THE red [illegible]

ADULTS ONLY!
forced entry

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
253-5426

Real In Some Minds

by David Miller

Nico
THE END...
Island ILPS 9311
Total Playing Time: 41:18

I'm not sure where all this death comes from, but if it's so real in some minds, it must have some validity. In case you don't know of Nico, she was once allied with the Velvet Underground. She is a tall, dark-haired woman with a [illegible] The Marble Index [illegible]

The End... [illegible]

[illegible] it some validity, are the indications that we might have done better. In "We've Got the Gold" Nico sings, "We've got the gold, we do not seem too old—And yet it does not bear a single flower". And although we meant well, it was not good enough. "Are you not loyal to your pride? Are you not on the secret side?" "I am a varlet, innocent and vain ("Innocent and Vain")"; "Will I regain my father's gate? ("Valley of the Kings")"; "Very proud and very poor—I'm waiting at your prison door ("We've Got the Gold")." At the end, there's communication barely made and apathy unlike anything ever seen, even more intense than what we have at UMass: "When I remember what to say—You will know me again—And you forget to answer...you seem not to be listening ("You Forget To Answer")". All this is made fairly explicit in the reworking of the Doors epic, "The End", a tale of complete collapse. "This is the end, beautiful friend—I'll never look into your eyes again...No safety, no [illegible]

OK, a great deal of despair, [illegible]

[illegible]

I personally don't believe in [illegible] The End... [illegible]

by H.C.P. Kostek

Fear
JOHN CALE
(Island ILPS 9301)
Time 40:38

Whip-edged atmosphere

Fear is Cale's fifth album since leaving the Velvet Underground, [illegible] The edges of John's art are beginning to show.

Basically, Cale writes four kinds of songs: [illegible]

[illegible]

Laying on top of all these are John's [illegible] Lou Reed [illegible]

[illegible]

My squeak about John's stagnation is made only because he has been such a forceful and innovative musician in the past. Fear is still a bold, mature, [illegible] record that leaves Welsh John as one of the most important [illegible] working today.

The Bottom Forty (and proud of it)

[illegible]

Sonny Boy Williamson
"King Biscuit Time"

[illegible]

Playing away on the thin ice of hooray

by [illegible]

In Concert
Jethro Tull
Springfield Civic Center
March 11

[illegible]

Show...

...and Tull

guitarist Martin Barre, was prancing 'round the stage, [illegible]

[illegible]

With the grammar lesson [illegible]

[illegible]

Barlow's drum solo [illegible]

It was now encore time, and the band didn't disappoint. [illegible]

[illegible] "See ya later."

Cowwws find way into palace

[illegible]
JOHN McLAUGHLIN, DAVE HOLLAND, [illegible]

[illegible]

Alternate Takes
JOHN COLTRANE
(Atlantic)

[illegible]

John Coltrane
Alternate Takes

"...[illegible] notes, all supremely ordered, ever vibrant, ever soaring..."

[illegible]

—Jack Cahill

[illegible]

Finneran's Vary Tales

The Lady or the Tiger: consider the possibilities
by Daniel Finneran

Once upon a time in a land so far away that every call was long distance there ruled a cruel and wicked king. How cruel was he? He was so cruel that he had pay toilets installed in the hospital's dysentery ward. For laffs he would release cats in front of on-duty seeing eye dogs. And every few years he would announce that Christmas would have to be called off because of a hunting accident that occured when he was deer hunting up North. But these few peccadillos aside, he was, on the whole, a real nice guy, beloved and honored by those people of the kingdom who knew what was good for them.

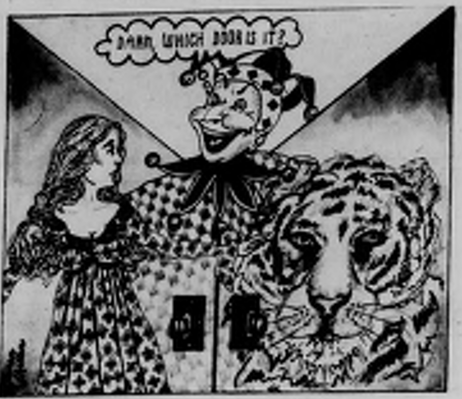
The King was also known for his quaint ideas concerning the administration of justice. Regardless of the crime, the accused faced a special assembly of the King and his court which was held in the right field bleachers of the Royal Ball Park. From the prison in the visiting team's dugout, the accused was marched across the field and presented before the King. In front of the accused were two large and ornately carved oak doors. Having addressed the accused as to the nature of the crime, the King commands the accused to choose and open one of the two doors. Depending on the door chosen, the criminal was either lunch for a tiger, or married on the spot to the lady behind the door.

The King, as if you haven't already quessed, also had a very beautiful daughter. How beautiful was she? She was so beautiful that she could start a clock. Men from as far away as the East Side would come to ask for her hand. Of course occasionally some clown with a foot fetish would show up, but the guards took care of them. However, no matter how much these men tried the King always said no dice. Some said that he was awaiting the man who would fulfill the prophecy he found on a bubble gum wrapper. Others told of the time the King saw an Ingmar Bergman flick and left the theater with his eyes slightly glazed and fixed upon his daughter. Whatever the explanation, it seemed that no one would ever marry the Princess.

Understandably dismayed, the Princess decided to get a little action going on the sly. So, while at the annual Princess's Convention in Chicago she began fooling around with one of the bell boys; one of the elevator operators; one of the cooks from the hotel's kitchen; the doorman; two of the desk clerks; a window washer she discovered outside her window; three Knights of Columbus from a convention next door; and on one rainy Wednesday afternoon even with the eunuch her father sent to guard her. But since it was not a meaningful relationship, she broke it off.

Returning home after the three day convention, the Princess found it difficult adjusting to her pre-convention life. Soon she was rendezvousing with various members of the palace personal. She realized that this was dangerous with her father so near, but she accepted the risks.

Meanwhile, having heard stories from Chicago, the King ordered one of his daughter's maids to spy for him. The King's suspicions were confirmed when the maid brought him the helmet feathers of half of his army; they had been found under the covers of the Princess's bed. The next day the King stormed into her room, catching her with the royal jester.



DAMN, WHICH DOOR IS IT?

On orders of the King, the jester was to face the two doors.

For this event the Royal Ball Park had been sold out three days in advance, and all major networks were covering it live. The tiger was a special order from Sears, and the lady had once been a harem favorite of the King — voted Miss Pillow Cushion three years running. School had been called off, and senior citizens were to be admitted free. And while there were reports that Miami had covered a "large" bet on the jester, New York and Vegas had the tiger a three to one favorite.

In the dugout, the jester talked to his coach.

"I just hope I haven't over trained for the lady and neglected the tiger. Those five hours at Madam Malory's Massage Emporium may have been too much."

"Don't worry about it. Nobody ever trains for the tiger."

"Do you think the tiger will be very ferocious?"

"Did you ever see a tiger that wasn't?"

With that the jester was led into the ball park and presented to the King.

"For crimes against my daughter, and for giving straight lines out of uniform you will now choose between the two doors. Your fate is behind one of them. Now choose and meet your fate!"

Stepping forward, the jester reached out and opened the door he had chosen.

At this point the sixty-four dollar question is: did he get the lady, or did the tiger get him? To answer that we must retorn to the night before. The Princess managed to sneak into the dugout and there told him of her plans. She had discovered behind which door the tiger would be and had cleverly marked it as such. By choosing the other door he would be saved. Or would he? Might not the Princess hate the thought of her lover in the arms of the lady as much as in the jaws of the tiger? And might she not purposely mark the door of the lady to make him pick the tiger? All this is conjecture based upon the complexities of the human heart. The jester realized this and was much tormented by his thoughts. And when he was finally before the two doors he saw that the Princess was not at her father's side. What could this mean? Did she want not to see him in the arms of the lady as her plan saved his live; or was her jealousy tempered by some love and she did not want to see him eaten by the tiger, though it was her who would condemn him?

He pondered the possibilities and having arrived at a solution opened the door he knew would have the lady behind it. Not only was the lady there, but sitting next to the lady and at the wheel of a Dodge van was the Princess. How stupid of him to doubt the Princess! Why just the other day she had been talking about getting a second woman into their relationship. She had wanted to try a threesome and this was her chance. He sighed with delight at the thoughts of things to come as the Princess drove the van into the sunset.

Stomaching politics

WILL FOOD TASTE BETTER UNDER MARXISM?

By [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
(as told to Scott Haas)

[illegible]

I [illegible] workers in the United States and the People's Republic of China. The rumination included conversations, visiting factories in both nations and an idea or two about living with selected workers' families. The study was conducted over a period of six months in my Cambridge, Massachusetts home. Often I would discuss the conceptual layout in my lectures taught at Harvard. The lectures were grouped together under the course Sociology of Psyche and will soon be published by Harper and Row under the same title.

[illegible]

[illegible] be flavorless food!" Yet nothing could be further from the truth. [illegible]

[illegible] many and they are few! With [illegible]

[illegible] by the Doppelganger School of [illegible] interviews with Communist Chinese workers in the field of agriculture, and [illegible] serving a variety of meals to both worker and factory owner (in the United States) and graphing their reactions.

Time and time again the results might have shown a high correlation between class and food taste. [illegible] the case of Communist China, a classless society, [illegible] everyone enjoyed the food in the same delicious way. At least I think they did. And my conceptual statistics prove me right.

Quicksilver

featuring

THURS. & FRI. ENTOURAGE

SAT. FREEFALL

STOP IN FOR HAPPY HOUR
4 - 7 Daily

Mixed 55¢ Draught 25¢

AMHERST Cinema

NOW [illegible] NOW

EXCLUSIVE AREA SHOWING

One of the 10 best films of the year. Perhaps the last film [illegible] of all film makers.

LE PETIT THEATRE DE JEAN RENOIR

[illegible]

Cinema
THE STEPFORD WIVES

Books

The Fires of Jubilee

The Fires of Jubilee
by Stephen B. Oates
$7.95 187pp
Harper & Row
Reviewed by Ed Smith

The myth and fact of Nat Turner's Rebellion is something which has been argued about since it occurred nearly a hundred and fifty years ago. "The Confessions of Nat Turner" by William Styron was probably the most widespread book about the rebellion and Styron has been accused, from various corners, of being racist in his depiction of Turner. That may well be true, but what is important in discussing this book by Stephen Oates, a professor here at the university, is why Nat Turner's rebellion has attracted so much attention.

Turner's rebellion, while not the first attempt by blacks in America to strike out at their oppressors, was remarkable in its brutality and the insanity which marked the reprisals against it. The terror which it inspired in whites throughout the South is just one of the many issues that are brought up by Turner's rebellion. It also begs the question of why blacks did not rise up more often against their masters. Maybe they did and it was not recorded by white historians. Maybe what is most remarkable about Turner's rebellion is that it was remembered. It is this question of historical accuracy, especially when dealing with people who had no hand in writing history, that Oates' book keeps in one's mind.

Oates, in his foreward, says that everything in the book should be prefaced with a comment like, "this is the way things appeared." One must resepct him for this because that is the case with all of history. However, in the book Oates makes comments, speculations and observations that he does not follow up or explain. If one is to write history with an admitted subjective view, which is probably the only honest way to write it, then one is committed to being as thorough as possible in explanations of personalities and events that might otherwise be ambiguous.

In the case of Nat Turner, Oates does this. He states that Turner did very little killing in the course of the rebellion and then speculates on why this is so. He relates it to Turner's view of himself as a mystical and prophetical leader. He also goes into the way Turner was treated in life and the events in the man's life that led to the rebellion.

Will Francis was another rebel, but he is treated much differently. It is recorded that Francis did extensive killing with an axe and was said to be quite brutal in his slaughter of the whites. Oates says Francis is an enigmatic figure due to this and the lack of background information on the man. It may be that Francis' personality is unclear, but through this statement Oates is also implying that the urge of the blacks in the rebellion to kill the whites is also enigmatic. It does not seem all that enigmatic that people who have been oppressed in a foreign land for many years should finally get so frustrated that they preferred to die fighting their oppressors than working for them.

While Oates' book is interesting for its recording of the reactions of the press and the white people to Turner's Rebellion, it skirts the eternal why of the Turner rebellion and rebellion in general. He places a great deal of emphasis on Turner as a charismatic leader and not enough to the sociological motivations and conditions of the South in the 1830's.

It might be that this is a criticism of Oates for what he has not written, but in dealing with history, omission is a rather serious problem. The book fails to build up adequately the surrounding climate of the times. By his work Oates may well add fuel to the burning argument about Mr. Turner's rebellion instead of dowsing it.

Philosophical Overlook

Dear Sir,

The ranking of local record stores by Michael Kostek II in your supplemental Audio Special of 12 March 1975 seems fair enough given the criteria he announces in his article, but the criteria will surely strike at least some other recordphiles as eccentric, to say the least. I think it's a good thing for consumers to communicate about their experiences. My own subjective ranking of local stores would be quite different possibly because my interests and needs seem to differ sharply from Mr. Kostek's. (Some audiophiles might define hell as a place where one was forced to play used records.) If Mr. Kostek has been haunting local stores for seven years, he will know that until recently it has been impossible to shop for out of the ordinary records in Amherst. In ranking Discount Records [illegible] among the non-fun stores, largely on the grounds that it is a branch of a large corporation and that it fails to handle used records, Kostek has unfortunately buried the fact that Discount Records has given Amherst shoppers the only real opportunity in modern times (except for bookshops [illegible]) to examine a huge and varied stock of records. It is thus possible to look at records locally that one is interested in without ordering them unseen or unheard. Further, I believe that some of the facts given in explanation of the ranking are simply wrong. Not only is Discount Records less expensive than Kostek suggests, they have recently offered their entire stock of LP's at [illegible] per cent off [illegible] and have had some huge inventory reduction sales at good prices, moves that I think incompatible with the claim that Discount Records has no real sales. Most importantly, I have found the staff there quite willing to trace down record requests based on insubstantial information, often for records on labels not listed in the normal record catalogues. I have found other local stores not to have the resources or the willingness to conduct such investigations. Subjectively, I would rank Discount Records first in Amherst as an important source of rarer records which I would hate to see disappear because of insufficient trade volume. I have repeatedly discovered in conversation with others that the advantages of Discount Records in terms of the size and variety of their stock and their willingness to pursue special interests are simply not widely known. It would have better served record buyers in the area if this had been made clearer in Kostek's article.

Yours truly,
Robert Ackermann Philosophy Department

— — — —

Mike Kostek replies...

A few of the words of the 12 March Sound Supplement said: "Discount remains the store for [illegible], with a reported stock of over [illegible]. Their classical, Broadway, specialty and jazz stocks cannot be touched ... and push a goodly amount of new releases and selected labels and artists on sale ($4.09-4.79) to make good buys, and currently feature most of their stock going for $4.77 and less." These were in the section on Discount. I don't mean to give them any extra publicity, but ... hmmm, are you one of their agents? It doesn't seem to go that a Philosophy Department could misread so ...

Furthermore, the normal price I quoted ($5.59) for most of their stock was the one found on their wall Saturday, March 8, and which I assume remains today.

Yes indeed, it is helpful to check out-of-the-ordinary items in person, but paying what usually amounts to a dollar more to buy them in person seems a luxury at best. You really can order them elsewhere for less, making Discount something like a library. Support it if you can, but I know most folk can't deal with such prices.

P.S. Who's making you play those darned used records anyway?

— — — —

SOUND ADDENDA

[illegible] the only local place in town to buy singles. It was discovered that Paperback Booksmith deals out the little numbers. Sorry.

And MOST IMPORTANTLY, it was forgotten last week that JOE [illegible] John at For The Record. Hooray!

Below The Salt
20 March 1975
Volume 3, Issue 8

FAMOUS BRANDS

David Miller
Bob [illegible]
Alan [illegible]
Kit [illegible]
Robert Ackerman
Scott Haas
Daniel Finneran
Joe Mahoney
Rose [illegible]
Craig Roche
Craig [illegible]
Kenny [illegible] Blanchard
Jack [illegible]
David [illegible]
Karen Miller
David [illegible]

Editor
Tyla L. [illegible]

Assistant in Melodrama
Andrew B. MacKenzie

Musical Member and Assistant
Michael C. Kostek

Art Ed
[illegible]

[illegible]
[illegible]

Reading
Ed Smith

Popcorn and Juju fruits
[illegible]

Sex and Violence
[illegible]
[illegible]

Dance
[illegible]

Theatre
[illegible]

Below the Salt has always been the kind of magazine that would print peculiar work. We pledge to uphold this tradition, but can't promise everybody's peculiar work will fit. Yours must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces to the line. The deadline for each Thursday's edition is noon the previous Tuesday; but you can write to us or call [illegible] anytime.

Below the Salt is a weekly fine arts-read world magazine of the [illegible] Daily Collegian, student newspaper, Amherst, Mass.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
THE BOLSHOI BALLET

SHOWCASE CINEMAS
Funny Lady
Young Frankenstein
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny"
Nominated for Academy Awards
THE TOWERING INFERNO

FIVE COLLEGE BLACK STUDIES FACULTY SEMINAR SERIES

"Piano Music of Early 20th Century Black Composers: A Historical Perspective"
[illegible]

"Black Sociologists: A Critical Analysis"
[illegible]

"Inextricable Aspects of Sex and Race"
[illegible]

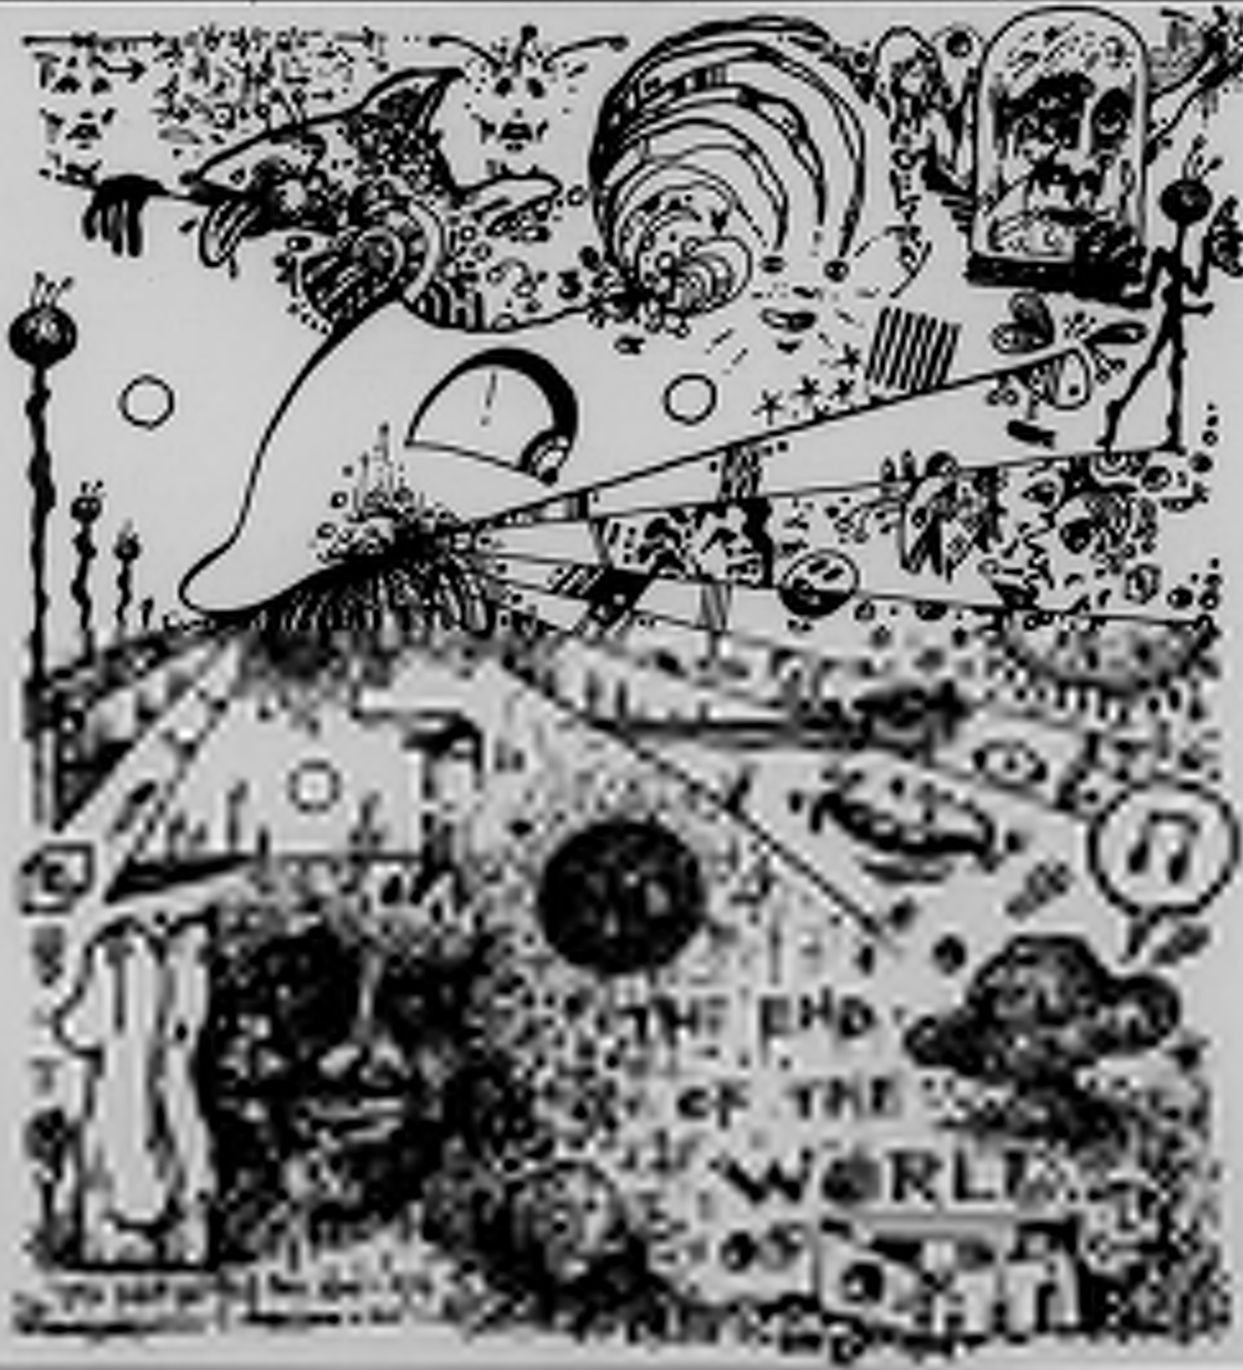
Sponsored by
[illegible]

BELOW SALT

Volume Three, Issue Eight 20 March 1975

Confusing the issue

Let's play overkill



What you've read:
Weekend . . . page 1
Area listing . . . page 2
Art & Dance . . . page 3
Music . . . page 4 & 5
A double of satire . . page 6
Misc . . . page 7

Bromery warns of impending state budget cut

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said yesterday that the state legislature may cut the university's budget request for next year by 10 per cent.

turn to p. 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

weather

To head Maryland U.

Gluckstern will leave UMass

Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Robert L. Gluckstern will leave UMass for the Chancellorship of the University of Maryland at College Park, the Collegian has learned.

Gluckstern was chosen over three other candidates Tuesday at a closed meeting of the University's Board of Regents, a high administrative source said.

Harrington speaks for gambling legalization

Governing Board opens bidding for CC Bank

'Administration' hard to define

Budget cut directive stirs confusion

By DONNA FUSCO
and BILL DENSMORE
Staff Reporters

What is administration? In light of State Secretary of Education Paul Park's directive to the University to cut the budget in administration - not academics the present controversy is what to categorize as administration.

In a telephone interview with Parks yesterday, he said he was "opposed to any cuts that would directly impinge on the quality of education in the classroom", but he declined to be specific about what he considered administrative cuts.

"I'm not going to set the guidelines any tighter than that, they know what I mean," he said.

Neither Warren Gulko, director of budgeting and institutional studies, at Amherst, nor Phil Gartenberg, Budget Director in President Robert C. Wood's office in Boston know what Parks means.

"Administration is such a vague term. I don't even use it myself," said Gulko. "Is a department head or a dean administrative because he is non teaching?" said Gulko.

Gartenberg said if he had to pin down "administration" he would probably locate it in institutional support, one of five program areas in which the University is divided.

Institutional support includes the central administration of the campus and University as a whole, including the admissions office, parking and transportation, faculty senate, alumni office, and environmental health.

The UMass fiscal 1976 state maintenance budget request does not include a category for administration.

It is even difficult to define what personnel positions are administrative in nature.

Of the 78 new permanent positions requested in the proposed Fiscal 76 Budget request 29 are for "professional employees," while 49 are "classified". The difference is essentially in salary level.

Professional employees salaries are set according to their positions and tend to be those in management or positions of high responsibility. Classified employees are paid by law according to salary groupings graded from 3-18 and ranging from $6,000 as much as $15,000.

The 49 requested classified positions would bring the total number to 1823 at Amherst at an average cost of $8,228. The 29 new professional positions would bring the total to 1988 at an average salary of $21,177.

It is difficult to separate new positions which relate directly to students from those which are strictly administrative, however requests for professional personnel in the following Whitmore offices appear to be administrative in nature.

Labor relations, 2 positions, employee health and safety, 1; office of vice-chancellor for student affairs, 1; development office, 1; budget office, 5. (3 for management, 1 for analytical studies, 1 in budget); Chancellor's office, 2 (duBois papers caretaker and the center for intellectual leadership) and the Graduate School, 1.

A Collegian assessment of administrative as opposed to student related positions found that 14 of the 29 professional positions are not student related. The non student positions total $150,000.

The Collegian review found 15 positions totalling $235,000 were student related, although the University budgeting system includes only 2 of the 29 as Student Service.

In a public hearing last November 8, Wood stressed the need for additional support staff. He said he didn't believe the University could ask for less than the $80.8 million budget request.

According to Gulko, "The only intelligent way to cut the budget is programatically where it will least affect the campus."

UMass student volunteers man auxiliary fire department

By PAUL BRADLEY
Staff Reporter

When Amherst fire department trucks move out of the sub-fire station on Triangle Street, they are manned by 24 UMass students acting as volunteer firemen.

The students are unpaid volunteers trained in the use of fire fighting apparatus and answer "box alarms." The regular fire department answers the "still alarms."

Fire Chief John Doherty said that the fire department in Amherst is made up of three units: A full time permanent force, a call force, residents paid on a part time basis, and students.

Doherty claims he is responsible for the creation of the auxiliary force. When he became chief in 1966, he moved to create an auxiliary force. At that time it was made up of about 15 men, and was a recognized student organization under the supervision of the then Dean of Men Robert Hopkins. The students, who called themselves the Volunteer Firefighters, were funded by the Student Senate.

The Student Senate in 1969 took away the RSO recognition and consequently, senate funds. Doherty made the Auxiliary Force entirely part of the Amherst fire department in 1970 and since the group has no official ties to the university.

Doherty said the fire department had a recruitment drive at UMass for an expanded auxiliary force in 1972 and had over 200 students express interest in joining the force. This was whittled down to about 50 members, and that is where the majority of the 24 present members came from, said Doherty.

Each of the two trucks that are assigned to the auxiliary force are manned by students, and each has a captain and three lieutenants, who are responsible to the chief.

Keith Hoyle is a 22 year old personnel management major who is the captain of engine four. He said that the members of the auxiliary force carry paging units on their belts that summon them when they are needed. Doyle said that the duties of the auxiliary force are to respond to calls in the town of Amherst, including the three colleges.

Although the full time branch of the force is usually the one that responds to calls first, Hoyle said that last month the auxiliary force was the first to respond to a fire last month to fraternities at both UMass and Amherst College. Doherty said that the Force "performed excellently" in battling the blazes on the college campuses.

Charlie Dougherty, a 21 year old mechanical engineering major, is the captain of Engine three. He said that his motivation for joining the force was "kind of a spur of the moment thing" and added that he is looking towards a career in fire protection engineering, which he says is a good blend of his major and his three year stint on the force.

Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

UMass volunteer fireman Pete Stafford during a practice session yesterday.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief Bill Parent
Managing Editor Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor BJ Roche
News Editor Richard Wright
Sports Editor Ben Caswell
Photo Editor Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie Assist[illegible] Affairs Editor Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager Gary Williams
Production Manager Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor Walt Powers
Layout and Graphics Ron Chait
Editorial Layout Mike Izdepski, Mickey Rooney, Benita Pullara
Sports layout Chas O'Connor
Darkroom Staff Chris Bourne, Debbie Schafer, Rob Carlin, Stuart Evman
Art Layout Avis Yuni

[illegible]

Tenants ask for rent decision

By DEBBIE SCHAFER
Staff Reporter

The UMass Tenant Association (UMTA) Steering Committee has requested that University Board of Trustees make a final decision regarding the UMTA request for a rent rollback.

A UMTA letter to the Trustees states: "...we feel it is now incumbent upon the board to take the immediate action that was promised... Thus we ask that a final decision be made at the April 2nd meeting of the board on our request for a rent rollback." The Board of Trustees will be meeting on the UMass-Amherst campus.

★Harrington speaks

cont. from p. 1

He said organized crime originated in the 1920's during the Prohibition era which made the sale of liquor illegal. People still wanted to buy liquor, organized crime saw a way to supply liquor through [illegible] profits, so they jumped into this profit-making business. When Prohibition was repealed in 1933, the small groups and gangs forming the commission, shifted to gambling.

"Organized crime," Harrington said, "was considered a figment of journalistic imagination until 1951 when people saw the Kefauver Senate committee investigations on organized crime on their new T.V. sets and realized that criminals were real people."

Cosa Nostra leader Joseph Valachi's narration of the history of the workings of the underworld and the accidental publication of crime leader Raymond Patriarca's transcripts finally "galvanized law enforcement." Officials learned about the intimate workings of the underworld and sixteen top leaders were arrested.

He said, "the underworld rocked, mob leaders were incarcerated but the mob still goes on because of the accumulated money paid by people who want the mob to exist."

By legalizing horse, dog racing and sports bookmaking, the state can weaken organized crime, allowing police to spend their time fighting street crimes and obtaining usable money.

Stockbridge gives out '74-'75 awards

By P. J. PROKOP
Staff Reporter

The Stockbridge School held its 21st Annual Spring Progress Banquet last night in the Campus Center Auditorium. The event was held to honor students and faculty of the Stockbridge School for their efforts, achievements and contributions throughout the year.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery and Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Robert L. Gage attended the affair, but did not speak.

The first speaker of the evening was Stockbridge Dean Jack Denison, who read a letter sent from UMass President Robert Wood, who was unable to attend.

Awards were presented for outstanding students and faculty, as well as many athletic awards.

UMass 'rat race' impresses Australian exchange students

By DEBBIE SCHAFER
Staff Reporter

"The world is a rat race, but here at UMass it's like a rat, rat race...you can feel the pressure building up" — that's the way it seems to Christine Gates, a newcomer to UMass this semester.

Gates, Jacky Ruys, and Bill Richardson are the first Australian students to participate in an exchange program at UMass. The three are education majors at Sturt University, an 800-student teacher training school in Adelaide, South Australia.

"Living here is quite an experience after being at such a small school," says Gages. "The amount of people is amazing." All three students have lived in Southwest. "Living there has forced us to meet all kinds of people who we might never have known otherwise," said Gates.

According to these students, the teaching profession has much more respect in Australia than in America. Australian teachers are much more professional, they claim. Australian teachers' colleges are very selective in their admittance criteria, according to Gates.

The Australian trio has found that many UMass students are quite unaware of Australian lifestyles, and suffer from many misconceptions. "One woman even asked us if we had to learn English before we could come to study in America," said Chris.

"American news is very prominent in Australia. We're aware of what goes on in America, but Americans don't seem to be aware of us," she said.

The visitors at UMass regard their stay as a valid learning experience. It is their first visit to America, and they are looking forward to travelling around the U.S. this summer. We've heard that New England is more or less an entity of its own, and we want to see what the rest of the country looks like, they said.

Staff Photo by Debbie Schafer

Christine Gates and Jacky Ruys are two of the first Australian exchange students at UMass.

Irked at 'cheap shots'

Warren defends DC menu, service

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

"It's hard to satisfy our audience," Acting Food Services Director Arthur Warren said, "but we're trying our hardest to satisfy them." The audience Warren is referring to is the 9,000 students his department must feed everyday at UMass dining commons.

"I know we make a few mistakes," Warren said, "and some jokes people make about dining commons are in good fun." But, according to the director who has served on the post for fourteen months, "Cheap shots at the department are not called for."

Warren defended the department's name in a Collegian telephone interview and pointed out its attributes. "We have four dietitions on our staff all belonging to the American Dieticians Association," Warren said, "who work hard to produce menus and recipes for good balanced meals.

"We believe there should be more emphasis on what the students like to eat, and right now we're listening to the students." Before, Warren explained, students were served food and told 'eat it--it's good for you.' "I realize our menus should be nutritionally satisfying," Warren said, "but at the same time, we're not going to get hung up on this idea."

One Berkshire Dining Commons supervisor who asked not to be identified, said, "I'm not about to jeopardize my job by not keeping the students happy. We are most certainly trying to satisfy the students and I think we have been trying to do this all along." The supervisor said, "I think we've gone over too far bending our backs helping students. How many restaurants can you go out to today and get three servings, all the desserts you want and all the milk you can drink for no extra cost?" the supervisor asked.

According to this supervisor, employees must come in at six a.m. "and a lot of times before six" and have a meal ready by 7 a.m. "It's a lot of pressure when you get a big student turnout-right at 7 o'clock," the supervisor said. "Occasionally when we run out of a meal, we have to prepare another meal in a hurry. We have to learn just how much to prepare everyday."

Warren said, the primary purpose of the department is to serve students the kind of food they like at the lowest possible price. According to Warren, the food services department can serve foods that the students like and also serve foods that are nutritionally satisfying. "There's no reason why we can't do both," Warren said.

When asked if the dining commons menu has been seriously affected by the economic situation, Warren said "it has not suffered a great deal. Next year, however, if everything remains the same (if the Universal Resource Fee is not instituted) we'll have to increase board costs," Warren said. "The cost of labor and the cost of food have increased." What the students pay for board, Warren must use as his budget.

"Before we raise board we'll be open to alternative student suggestions," Warren said. "If they're (students) willing to cut down on second servings then we can save money that way," he said.

Since Warren assumed food service director responsibilities, the dining commons has been cooking most of its food from "scratch" rather than purchasing prepared food.

"We're baking most of our desserts right in the dining commons right now," Warren said, "but it's tough competing against mother," said jokingly.

Food services feeds more than 9,000 students daily and "when 20 per cent don't like a meal, you have almost 2,000 ticked-off students," Warren said.

Staff Photo by Bob Stevens

Employee Brian Towagy stirs one of the big cauldrons at Worcester Dining Commons.

Rivest named to chair Student Organizing Panel

By HILLARY MARTICK
Staff Reporter

Student Senate Speaker Cindy McGrath nominated Sue Rivest, academic affairs committee member, to become the new chairperson for the newly restructured Student Organizing Committee (SOC).

McGrath made the nomination at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting. Rivest's nomination will come before the Senate for confirmation on Wednesday, April 2.

The Senate voted to restructure the SOC last week because it did not have enough non-Senate participation. The old SOC was composed of 16 people, most of whom were senators.

Elected members of the new 20 member SOC include one member from each area government, one from WMUA, and one from the Collegian. SGA appointed members include three from RSO groups and five other members. The SGA President, Speaker, and Treasurer or their designates are also members.

Jon Hite, Student Senate Budget Committee member, said, "A broader base was wanted for community organizing because we weren't pleased with the grass roots organizing efforts that were going on."

According to Hite, the Student Organizing Project (SOP) which is a branch of the SOC, supported the motion to restructure the committee.

Hite said "The new SOC, along with the SOP, will start to work on getting people organized, informing them on what it means to have a union and 'the collective bargaining rights that go along with that.' I'm quite confident they'll get people psyched about fighting the proposed tuition increase as well as alerting them to the problems involved with the universal resource fee (URF)."

According to Hite, there are now several bills before the legislature to increase UMass tuition as of September, 1975. He said, "None of the money raised from a tuition increase comes back to this campus or University. It goes into the state treasury. There is nothing that says it has to be used here."

If confirmed, Sue Rivest will replace John Pack, current SOC chairperson. Pack said, "I think the restructuring of the committee is a good thing. We will probably be able to take advantage of the participation by the area governments, RSO groups, and the campus media.

"It's not going to change the way I work with SOP or the amount of time I put in. I would have no problems with Sue Rivest if she's approved."

John Fisher, economic development coordinator of the SOP, said, "I'm very pleased with the idea of restructuring the SOC. In the next few months, things like the URF, budget cuts, program cuts, tuition increase will be coming up, and now is the time we definitely have to start moving out on a grass roots level."

"A broader base gives the committee a possibility to have a broader spectrum of input into what we're doing. People coming out to the new committee should realize there is a lot of work to be done. We need to have a lot of cooperation, and everyone on campus will have to work closely together if students' interests are to be protected," Fisher added.

The Student Senate is still accepting applications for representatives from RSO groups, area governments, and for the SGA appointed positions.

Vietnam Communists fire on fleeing refugees

Five more provinces under pressure

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops tightened their grasp on eight abandoned provinces in South Vietnam yesterday and opened fire on a refugee column, scattering thousands of troops and civilians into the hills.

Military sources said five other provinces were under heavy Communist pressure and in danger of collapse.

Field reports said Communist gunners broke their presumed secret guarantee of safe passage and shot up a refugee column fleeing from Cheo Reo, capital of Phu Bon province, 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

The column split into segments and thousands of refugees fled into surrounding hills.

Communist troops raised the Viet Cong flag in Cheo Reo, a city of 40,000, after it was evacuated.

On other refugee routes Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops waved at some refugees and troops that were among the estimated 1 million persons fleeing surrendered chunks of territory.

Communist tanks in Quang Tri province on the North Vietnam border turned on their headlights after routing a contingent of South Vietnamese marines so the retreating troops could find their way at night, military sources said.

Diplomatic and military sources said they believed South Vietnam and the Communists negotiated a secret agreement, without the knowledge of the United States, to grant safe passage to retreating soldiers and civilians in exchange for surrender of the provinces.

The sources said the Saigon retreat was worse than the most pessimistic Washington forecasts.

Military sources listed the five new provinces in danger of falling as Tay Ninh, 50 miles northwest of Saigon; Quang Ngai province, 318 miles northeast of the capital; and Lam Dong, Quang Duc, and Tuyen Duc, 60 to 150 miles northeast of Saigon.

Refugees began pouring out of Tuyen Duc's provincial capital of Dalat Wednesday, but military officials said the government has not yet given up that province.

The eight of South Vietnam's 44 provinces that have been abandoned or are in the process of evacuation are Darlac, Kontum, Pleiku, Binh Long, Phu Bon, Quang Tri, Phuoc Long, and Thua Thien, whose capital is the ancient capital of Hue.

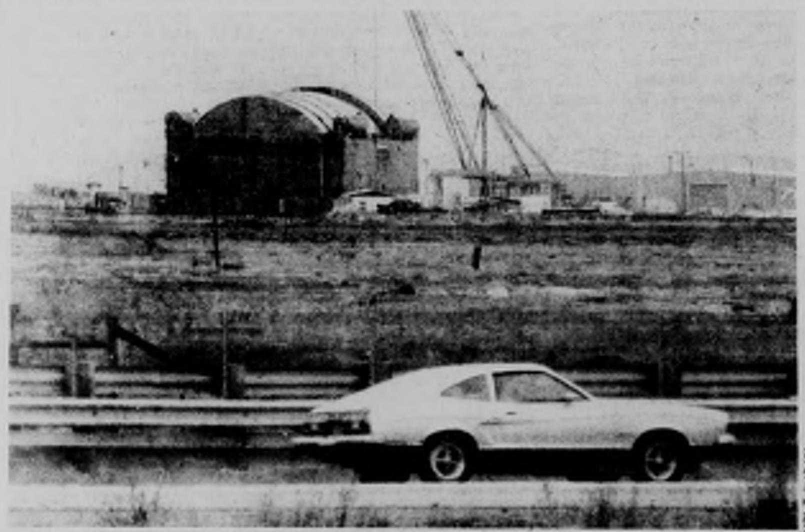
Phuoc Long fell last January, and the rest were abandoned after a fierce Communist offensive in the Central Highlands that began March 10.

The latest province to fall was Binh Long, 60 miles north of Saigon on the border of Phuoc Long. Its provincial capital, An Loc, withstood a six-month Communist siege in the 1960s and held out despite a bombardment of 600 shells a day.

The Communist offensive is believed to have given them control of between 50 and 75 per cent of South Vietnamese territory, but there was no way to reach an exact percentage.

The loss of Hue, capital of Thua Thien Province, was a stunning psychological blow to the Vietnamese nation, which considered the old capital an intellectual and cultural keystone.

The city was seized by the Communists in the 1968 Tet offensive but recaptured after a fierce struggle.



UPI Telephoto

View from the highway in Redwood City, California shows the barge that was built to aid in the recovery of the sunken Soviet submarine. It was reported yesterday that former President Nixon inspected the shipyard where the barge was being built, but that he refused to christen it, because he was not told what the barge was to be used for. He had approved the project, however.

Plan to raise submarine worth effort, intelligence sources say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite claims that a CIA attempt to recover a Soviet nuclear missile submarine was not worth the multi-million dollar expense, intelligence officials yesterday maintained the operation partially succeeded and could have been "an enormously important" coup.

The Soviet G-class diesel submarine exploded in the Pacific 800-1,000 miles northwest of Hawaii in 1968 and plunged three miles to the ocean floor with some 86 Russians aboard.

A special CIA designed research ship and a separate submersible barge built by Howard Hughes' Summa Corp. at a reported cost of $350 million, found the sub and raised a third of it last summer. The rest, including the control center, cryptographic computer, cyphers, target plans and nuclear warheads were said to have sunk back to the bottom.

Intelligence sources said before the operation was made public Tuesday that the Central Intelligence Agency had planned to go back for the remainder this summer. This now appears unlikely in view of congressional and other criticism. The CIA would not comment on its plans.

There was speculation, however, that the CIA may already have recovered some or all of the strategic material it wants and that word of a projected return trip was "a cover within a cover," to divert Soviet intelligence.

Congressional and other critics claimed that the CIA had expended vast sums on a useless operation involving an already obsolete submarine with little or no secrets.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the special Senate committee created earlier this year to investigate CIA activities would include the salvaging operation of its inquiry.

But high intelligence sources told UPI that even from the portion "we've seen...we got some useful information, marvelous stuff" and the entire wreckage would have been an intelligence coup of major proportions.

Experts studied the recovered part to analyze methods of construction, composition of metals and components and compared the facts with CIA estimates and evaluations of 1968 or earlier when the G-class first took to the seas.

Communist shells stop evacuations

PHNOM PENH (UPI) Communist-led rebels battered Neak Luong with heavy shelling attacks yesterday, halting evacuation of hundreds of wounded soldiers and civilians from the last Cambodian government enclave on the Mekong River between Phnom Penh and South Vietnam.

Outside besieged Phnom Penh, government paratroops reported they drove back a force of [illegible] rebels trying to set up artillery and mortar bases three miles from the heart of the Cambodian capital, killing [illegible] of the insurgents.

Schlesinger attacks Congress on Viet aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger blamed Congress yesterday for South Vietnam's loss of the central highlands, and said it was reasonable to assume the Communists would mount an attack on Saigon next year.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott also criticized Congress' unwillingness to provide more aid to Saigon, expressing fear it is returning the nation to isolationism.

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the United States should cut off aid to the South Vietnamese "right now," notwithstanding their major territorial losses.

Schlesinger, emerging from a three-hour private meeting with the Senate Armed Services Committee, told reporters: "The shrinking level of support is the approximate cause of the withdrawal from the highlands.

"If the level of resources for South Vietnam had continued at the level of 1972 or 1973, if we had been less niggardly in our funding of South Vietnam, their situation would have been far better and they would not have been forced to make withdrawals."

Asked if he believed the Communists were positioning themselves for an attack on Saigon next year, Schlesinger said, "I think that is very reasonable. I think that they will plan such an attack."

Mansfield, talking to reporters before the Senate convened, was asked when he would like to see aid to South Vietnam cut off. "Right now," he replied curtly.

Meantime Sens. Charles McMathias, R-Md., and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., introduced legislation to end military assistance to Saigon as of June 30. Economic and humanitarian aid would not be affected.

Stevenson said: "How much longer do we want to support this terrible, bloody war? Two years? Three years?"

The Stevenson-Mathias proposal is more restrictive than one by Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and James B. Pearson, R-Kan., — and favored by President Ford — for a three-year phase-out of military assistance.

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New
RECORD SHOP
19 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
[illegible]

for fine
DIAMONDS and other quality gifts
BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
[illegible] Pleasant St.
Amherst

Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing
Time is on your side at Rapid Reproductions Open Sundays 11-7

Amherst Carriage Shops
233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst
Mon-Fri 9-9 Sat 9-6 Sun 11-7
549-0566

State employees seek pay raise

Over 5000 protest Dukakis proposal

BOSTON (AP) — About 5,000 chanting, sign-bearing state employes marched on the State House yesterday, furious with Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' refusal to award them an 11 percent cost-of-living pay raise.

The workers demonstrated outside the State House as their leaders and supporters pleaded with the legislature's Public Service Committee to endorse the pay increase or face the threat of a work stoppage by the state's 63,000 employees.

The workers — many chanting "11 percent for food and rent" and "Dukakis says cutback, we say fight back" — marched in front of the State House and down a side street adjacent to Gardner Auditorium, where the public hearing was held.

Capitol Police Chief Paul Doherty said the crowd numbered about 5,000 at its peak, as Metropolitan District Commission officers reinforced Capitol police. One man was arrested as police cleared the crowd from halls and stairways outside the auditorium, Doherty said.

Inside, the room was filled to capacity with about 600 persons, although the audience thinned in the late afternoon, around the same time the demonstration on the streets petered out.

Most of the testimony was from state employe union leaders and members of the rank and file. Only a few legislators endorsed the pay raise.

One who did, Rep. Raymond L. Flynn, D-Boston, said if the legislature does not grant the increase — and then override a gubernatorial veto — "I predict a very serious work stoppage."

Howard Doyle, head of the largest state employe union, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, chided Administration Secretary John R. Buckley for "welching" on the state pay raise commitment.

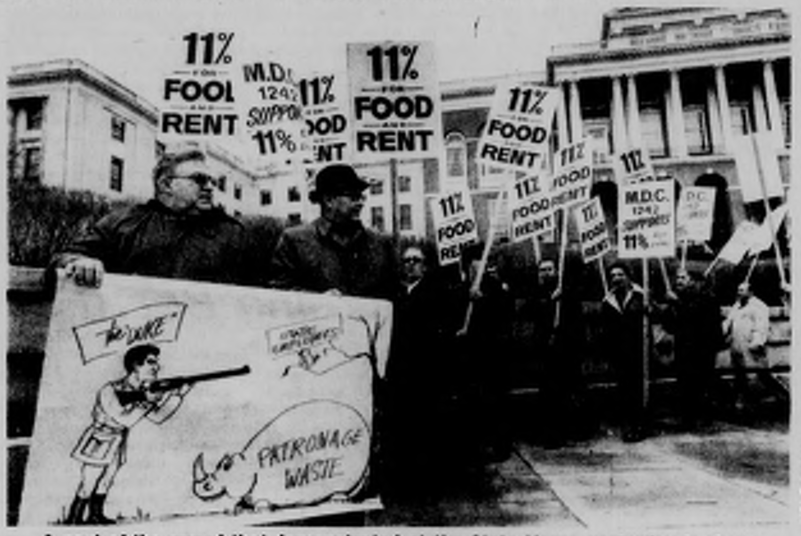
"He's a choker," Doyle said of Buckley. "We're not begging. We're not demanding. We're just asking you to give workers what they're entitled to. No more, no less."

Under state law, the administration is required to file a cost-of-living pay raise bill for state workers, but it is not required to provide funds for it. Dukakis has said the state, faced with a budget deficit of at least $350 million, cannot afford the pay raise for either state workers or welfare recipients.

Under a new collective bargaining law, however, state employes can negotiate for a pay hike later this year. The administration has said if employes get a pay raise through bargaining, welfare recipients also will be given an increase.

Dukakis has estimated that the state will save some $80 million by denying the increases.

In past years, state employes have had annual cost-of-living pay increases ranging from 3.3 percent to 6.2 percent.



UPI Telephoto

A part of the crowd that demonstrated at the State House yesterday is shown picketing in favor of an 11 per cent pay hike for state employees that Gov. Michael Dukakis has refused to grant.

Boston school masters to submit integration plan to judge today

BOSTON (AP) — Four court-appointed masters in the Boston school desegregation case will recommend a final plan to U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. today, but one master denied a report that they would recommend the schools be taken over by area universities.

Harvard Prof. Charles Willie, one of the masters, labeled the report in yesterday's Boston Globe as "completely inaccurate."

The Globe said the proposal will be that area colleges and universities take over administration of the schools under nine elected district councils.

But Willie said the plan was still the subject of negotiation yesterday and was not completely written. He said he did not know what the recommendation will be.

However, one of the experts who helped the masters prepare the plan, Boston University School of Education Dean Robert Dentler, said the recommendation will be to have the universities share responsibility for school administration with the Boston School Committee.

The Globe report, attributed to unnamed sources, was that the plan was part of an overall move to shift policy-making power away from the school committee, blamed earlier by Garrity for deliberate segregation.

Two members of the school committee said they had not seen any report about the recommendations. But one of them, Kathleen Sullivan, said the proposal outlined by the Globe "would leave the whole thing wide open for appeal.

"The people of Boston already feel the court is taking over the school system. This would make it clear to everyone what's going on — that the court is taking over the school system."

Willie said "The official responsibility of the school system is with the school committee and the universities obviously have enough to do running their own institutions."

The Globe story said the masters would recommend that at least [illegible] colleges and universities would administer the schools under contract with the city. They would include Harvard, Boston College, Boston University and Northeastern.

The story quoted a college administrator as saying "It has never been done having universities run a public school system, certainly in any desegregation order."

news summary

Talks 'in business'

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger brought to Egypt yesterday perhaps decisive new Israeli proposals trying to keep alive negotiations for a second stage Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai desert.

"We are still in business," an American official said as Kissinger flew here with the new proposals drafted in a marathon Israeli cabinet meeting during the past 24 hours that delayed Kissinger's fourth shuttle four times.

A senior American official aboard Kissinger's plane said there is still no agreed framework for the accord — how far Israel will withdraw in exchange for what Egyptian concessions.

Maiden names OK'd

BOSTON (AP) — Married women will soon earn the statutory right in Massachusetts to keep their maiden names, after six years of trying.

One proposal now awaiting the signature of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and two others making their way through the legislature aim to clarify the common-law right a woman already has to choose her married name.

A spokesman for the governor said Dukakis favors the intent of the bill now on his desk, a general measure prohibiting discrimination against persons because of their choice of married name.

Gas hike proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gasoline prices must be forced up higher and faster to discourage consumption than they would under the gradual tax hike proposed in Congress, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said yesterday.

Zarb said he and President Ford agree an increase in gasoline prices should play a key role in any new national energy program. [illegible]

McCord wants truth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. goes to prison today convinced the full truth about the political scandal is not yet out.

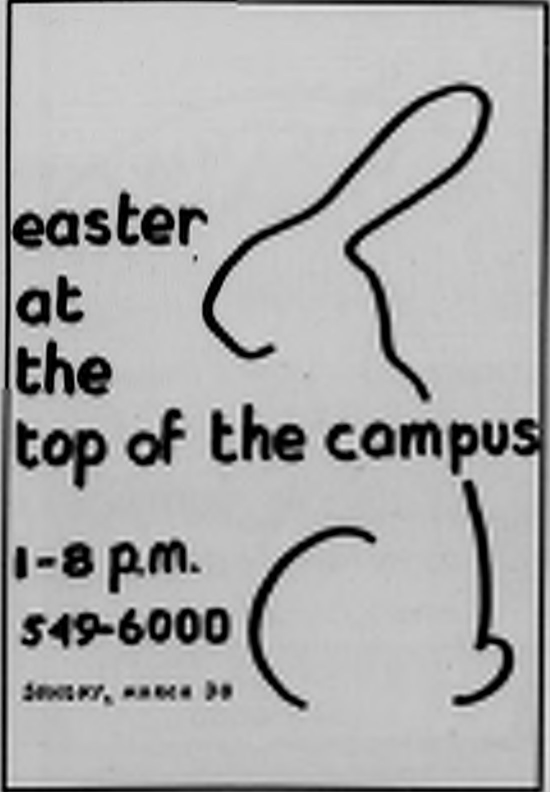
"No, of course not," he replied yesterday when asked if the American people now know the full story of Watergate.

McCord believes the relationship between Richard M. Nixon and billionaire Howard Hughes is one of the biggest unexplored areas.

Prices rise slightly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Wednesday that consumer prices rose [illegible] per cent in February, with food showing its smallest increase since July and the general pocketbook inflation rate apparently running below 1974 levels.

[illegible]



easter
at the top of the campus
1-8 p.m.
549-6000
SUNDAY, MARCH 30

SUPER PIZZERIA
specializing in
PIZZAS (Large and Small)
SPAGHETTI
GRINDERS (The meatiest [illegible] grinders in the area)
Free Delivery in Amherst and Sunderland
[illegible]
WITH THIS COUPON 25¢ OFF A SMALL PIZZA
WITH THIS COUPON 50¢ OFF A LARGE PIZZA

[illegible]

Phonothon collects $25 thousand

By FRED GOSIEWSKI
Staff Reporter

More than $25,000 has been pledged to UMass by alumni in the first phase of the Student-Alumni Phonothon, according to Brenda Rau, assistant to the fund raising drive.

Through the first eight days, 3950 alumni (46 per cent of those called by student volunteers) have pledged $25,396.70, according to Rau. She added that one-half of the alumni called have graduated since 1968.

"This makes us two or three times as big as the next largest student phonothon in the country," said Rau.

The money raised by the phonothon is used to fund the scholarship program and special programs here, according to phonothon chairperson Steve Sadler. Pledges can be restricted to specific programs, but Rau said that "we don't encourage restrictions."

Student volunteers have been coming in large numbers, and serve on the telephones on a first, come, first serve basis. Last week, 300 volunteers showed up, according to Rau. Student volunteers receive free beer and food, and Rau noted that 35 cases of beer were used up during the first eight days of the drive.

Crabtree dorm is the leading group in terms of money pledged, being "well in the lead" by raising $6500, said Rau.

Chadbourne dorm is second, and veterans place third in funds raised.

In the individual races, Ed Menders of Crabtree is leading with a total of $1700 pledged. Marilyn Schmidt is second with $750, and the rest of the top ten is close, said Rau.

The top group wins the prize of a party, and the top individual fund raisers receive a UMass rocking chair.

Collecting the money that is pledged is not much of a problem, says Rau, who estimated that 85 per cent of those who pledge money actually pay it.

Those who pledge money receive a request card in the mail soon after having been called, and then the funds come into the Alumni office throughout the year. "There is no credibility problem," said Sadler.

The phonothon will continue for three weeks in April, in order to reach the overall goal of $50,000. "We should make that goal with no problem," said Rau. She also expects the goal of 550 student volunteers to be met.

Staff Photo by Bob Noscott

Unidentified stroller suffers from a case of fractured identity as reflection is broken in puddle by library.

New fraternity elected to Greek Council

By STEVE MACAULAY
Staff Reporter

A new fraternity, Zeta Psi, last night was voted into Greek Council, becoming the 26th voting member in the Greek area.

John Tata, president of the Greek Council, said that the new addition, "is a great boost to the system." Tata also said that this demonstrates the growing interest in the Greek life style.

Three UMass students met with Ed Bowe, the Greek Area director, and explained their interest in starting a new fraternity on campus on August 14, 1974. Bowe introduced them to several national fraternities interested in getting on campus, but left the final choice up to the trio.

Pete Rody, vice president of Zeta Psi, spoke to the Greek Council about the task the three men faced. After building their numbers up to 18, the group officially pledged Zeta Psi at the Dartmouth chapter. Rody stressed the cooperation received from their fraternities national branch. He said, "we were very impressed with Zeta Psi National, as they were with us." It was seven months between the meeting in Bowes office, and the formal initiation of 24 UMass men at Zeta Psi's UConn chapter on March 6, 1975.

The UMass President of Zeta Psi Steve Ruggles, said, "It was, and still is, quite a learning experience for all of us."

★ Governing Board

cont. from p. 1

the establishment of a bank as well as questioning whether the bank will serve the needs of students. The report concluded by recommending that a bank not be established.

Board members Arthur Strohl, Milton Kerstein and John Hays expressed concern that the board had no written commitment from the administration that there will be student input into the final decision to put a bank in the Campus Center.

"We have a verbal commitment that students will have input into the bank," Strohl said, "but we have no written commitment. It seems to me this building was built on verbal commitment and look what we've got."

In support of the bank, board member Stephen Lewis said, "I think students are tired of waiting for a bank on campus. I think they want it and I think they need it."

Board member Chris McCarty, who introduced the bank motion to the board, said that if a bank is not brought into the Campus Center, it will be "very costly to students." According to McCarty, the cashier's office will have to be renovated and additional cashiers will have to be hired.

Taggart also told the board that he had received word from CC Director John Corker that he felt it is inappropriate for the board to evaluate professional staff members on its own. The board voted two weeks ago to establish a committee to evaluate the performances of CC managers Steve Stefano, Phil Amico, John Corker and Carl Clay.

Corker told the board, "procedures for the review of any professional staff member have been established by the personnel office" and that the evaluation process the board was trying to establish was not within its "authority."

Taggart cut off debate on the issue and told the board it wasn't Corker, but University regulations that prevented the evaluation process.

In other action last night the board voted to approve the contract for the UMass Students Credit Union. The credit union will operate out of Campus Center Room [illegible] and has a contract through June with an option for a one year renewal. The union's contract must be cleared through "normal" legal channels before it is fully accepted.

WMUA vote top brass this week

WMUA held their annual station elections this week. Re-elected were Marc Berman, Station Manager; Scott [illegible], Program Director; Gary McAuliffe, Chief Engineer; Priscilla West, Public Relations Director; and Robin Jacobson, Women's Affairs.

Newly elected were Fran Garcia, Assistant Chief Engineer; Mark [illegible], Sports Director; Dave [illegible], Business Manager; Carol [illegible], Black Affairs Director; and Bob Vinci, Director of Training and Production.

Also newly chosen for positions in the Wednesday night election were Ann Green, Public Affairs Director; Susan Schaefer, Music Director; and Ken Lindberg, News Director.

These positions become effective May 15.

★ State budget cut

cont. from p. 1

Bromery said, "There is a way out, but it is a dangerous thing to get involved in. By hooking up tuition fees directly with the budget, whatever money added onto tuition would be put back into the budget.

"With our present fiscal autonomy," he continued, "we can move tuition money around, but there's no guarantee that our fiscal autonomy won't change."

Bromery said with the plan there is a danger of tuition fees "taking off." It wouldn't take long before tuition costs equal the $2000 tuition cost of the University of Vermont. But, unlike Vermont, Bromery said, UMass would have a marketing problem with private colleges.

Bromery said, "The idea is worth looking at, but we must look at other alternatives.

"No one's going to say 'I want to give up part of my salary,' Bromery said, "but some of the people above $20,000 and the [illegible] [illegible]."

Bromery also discussed the universal resource fee and said a final decision would be made "within a week." He will base his decision on input from Vice-Chancellor Robert W. Gage.

Workshop stops job drowning

What is it like sinking in the ocean 'cause you can't swim?

Not getting a job cause you blew the Job Interview?

Come to the Interview Workshop April 1, 1975, 7 o'clock Campus Center, room [illegible].

Summer course listings

A complete listing of the courses to be offered during the 1975 Summer Sessions will be published in the Collegian after spring vacation.

Information about summer session offerings is now available in the Provost's Office.

Good Food & Music
Lots Of Room To Boogie
THE FOUR LEAF WINDOW
drinks — hats — people — laughter!!! BEER & BOOZE
THUR.-SUN.
"Calamity Jane"
Live Entertainment Tues.-Sun.!
Rt. 202, New Salem at Truman's Flea Market, only 10 miles from Whitmore!
Plenty of Room to Boogie!
THUR. [illegible]-FRI. [illegible]
The "Raspberries" with "PROMISE"
[illegible]
Wed.: No Cover
[illegible]
Watch for our ads every Wed. & Fri.!
[illegible]

Rapid REPRODUCTIONS
Quality Xeroxing
XEROX 3400
Sameday Service
233 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst Carriage Shops
Mon-Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6/Sun 11-7
549-0566

Support the P.A.I.G.C.

By LLOYD HAYNES
Black News Service

As you may or may not know, organizations both locally and abroad have come of age in accordance to their own people, nation, and-or group to end the practices of racism, colonialism, and imperialism.

The P.A.I.G.C. (Party of African Independence in Guinea and the Cape Verde Islands), and its assassinated founder Amilcar Cabral, have already resorted to a 14 year armed revolutionary struggle against the fascist Portuguese regime for the independence of Guinea.

That armed struggle was against one of the most inhumane forms of repression ever perpetrated against a dependent people by a colonialist regime.

The P.A.I.G.C. support committee here on campus has a number of purposes, goals, and directions. Some of these are:

1) to inform the campus and the Third World Community in particular about what level of progression the struggle is taking in Cape Verde and Guinea.

2) To stress the importance of other African Liberation Movements in Zimbabwe, Mozambique, Namibia, Angola and Azania.

3) To give support to the ongoing struggle by way of sending monies (via donation) to revolutionary heads for the upkeep of the P.A.I.G.C. chapter there to build schools, educate the people, train doctors, etc.

4) To expand the awareness of the coalition of units that should be between student organizations here; that is necessary to win the fight.

The chapter in Guinea and Cape Verde also have their work cut out for them. Even though Guinea has proclaimed her independence since September of 1973, they still have a task of electing a governmental coalition between Guinea and Cape Verde.

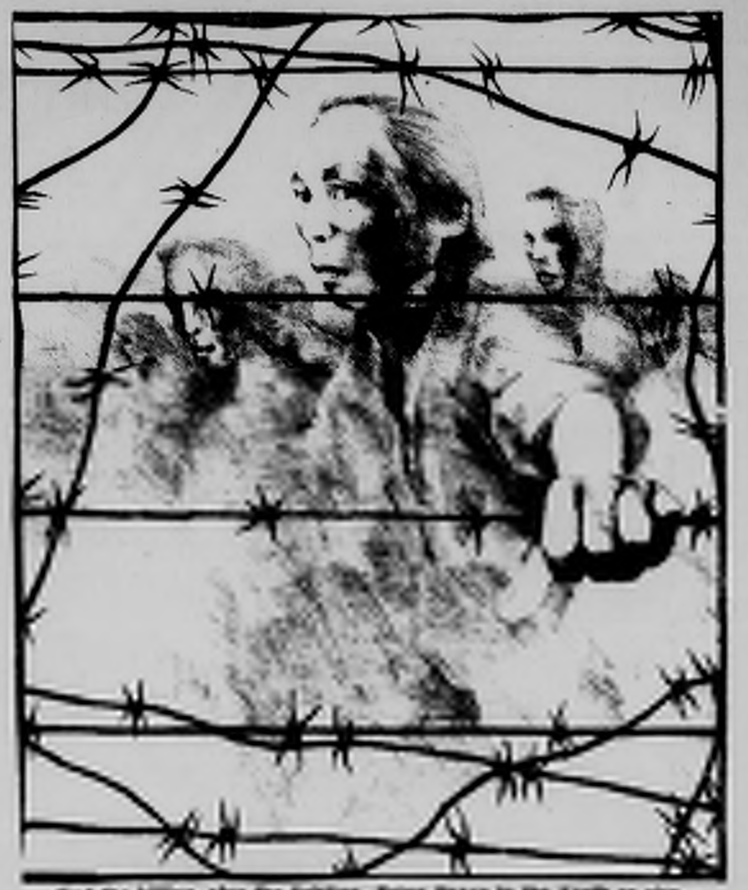
In Cape Verde, though most of the nation is free of imperialist rule, some Portuguese colonies and troops still remain on the Islands as an outpost to exploit other African nations.

Portugal being "small" can only remain there with the help of N.A.T.O., Gulf Oil, Polaroid and the U.S.A.'s "freeze dry coffee."

But just because the fight against imperialism has claimed victory, doesn't mean a people's government is automatically established. This is why elections are planning to be held in Cape Verde sometime in July.

Remember the corporations such as Gulf, that keep to this day the colonialist regime there. Thus keeping the people poor to the point of starvation, disease, and death. Support the P.A.I.G.C.

Join the Black News Service



End the killing, stop the fighting. Bring Peace to the Earth or else...

"I consider the day I was operated on for cancer my second birthday."

"Cancer of the colon, the doctor told me. Well, I cried, my husband, the tough guy, he cried, my kids cried. Anyway, a short time later they operated. I remember the date—because that's the day my life began again, December 7, 1966, the day I was saved from cancer. What really saved me was recognizing one of cancer's seven warning signals early. That gave the doctors time to do something about it. Ask the American Cancer Society for the list of cancer's seven warning signals. And give. We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

American Cancer Society

P.R. III is coming to Amherst

black affairs

In Memoriam: Elijah Muhammad

Members and guests of Muhammad's Temple No. 13, Springfield gathered Wednesday to honor the memory of the late Elijah Muhammad and to affirm the unity of the Nation of Islam. A taped message was sent by the Honorable Wallace D. Muhammad, Supreme Minister of the Nation of Islam.

"The Honorable Elijah Muhammad," he said, "is a spirit, a word, a morality." He continued, saying that the Nation of Islam — so called 'Black Muslims' — were not a race conscious group. That the Honorable Elijah Muhammad said it was not a race. "It is a nation".

He stressed the validity of the Messenger's teachings and its importance to Black people who "know his work, his aspirations". The Honorable Elijah Muhammad, he said, "will fill our hearts."

Join B.M.C.P. and support Black media

AMHERST CYCLE SHOP
We've moved to 253 Triangle St.
(near Tech HiFi & Discount Records)
Come in and see our wide selection of bicycles and accessories, or bring your bike in for a spring check-up.
See our other ad on page 15.
Raleigh pro shop

HURRY!
ONLY 12
1974 KAWASAKIS
LEFT IN STOCK!
VALLEY
MOTORSPORTS
[illegible] ST. NORTHAMPTON
[illegible]

Commentary

Singing the budget blues

By DOUG SURETTE

Did you ever get the feeling that someone in this state is out to get you? If not, you had better start getting that feeling pretty soon or you may find yourself out in the streets looking for a job that doesn't exist.

If we go down to Governor Dukakis' stripping of the UMass budget without a fight, it will only be the beginning of a long line of increased costs and reduced services. It could also signal the end of the inexpensive state college system that is now in operation. If you don't believe it, think of the 100 per cent increase in tuition that has been suggested for next semester.

Education should be one of the basic human rights, not the prerogative of the rich. The private schools in this state, headed by Boston University President John L. Silber, would like to see state funds shifted their way so that they might balance their payments and reduce their tuitions. Silber says that he could finance the private school operations at an estimated cost of $121 million a year, which just happens to be very close to the yearly cost at UMass. With the State having been recently declared broke, this could be part of the rationale used in future "budget cuts."

The consequences of these shifted funds is that they may cause UMass and other state schools to drastically increase their tuitions to make up for the lost state funds.

"Education should be one of the basic human rights, not a prerogative of the rich."

Such an increase could raise the cost of going to UMass by as much as $2,000 a year. The private schools would call it the forming of a more competitive market so that all prices will be about the same; and everyone will go to B.U. if UMass costs the same.

This rationalization is obviously invalid. Those people who could not afford to go to B.U. before will not be able to go to UMass for the same reason. Only the rich and the extremely poor on financial aid will still be hanging around. The low and middle classes will no longer have access to a college education, private, public or otherwise.

There is obviously a need to adjust our priorities in this state when it is ranked 49th in the country in financial aid to its schools, and yet Dukakis insists on slashing the budget in the areas of education and human services.

There is also a serious problem at the University level when it costs $124.08 per credit hour per student, and yet only $67.87 goes towards academics. It seems that there is a lot of fat floating around in the shadows and that's where the "knife" should go — not on T.A.'s, janitors, and student services. Surely President Wood doesn't always have to use a private helicopter at $70.00 an hour.

The Coalition for a People's Budget (CPB) has been formed to unite students and faculty who demand to take an active role in affecting the budgetary and educational decisions facing the state and University at this time. It is in everyone's interest to get involved in the next couple of weeks before we have to pay for our laziness. Don't wait until you receive next semester's bill, it may be too late.

Doug Surette is a Collegian Commentator.

Old soldiers never die...

By STEPHEN TURNER

With the advent and implementation of the atomic bomb in 1945 there ended that glorious period in history when war was looked upon, not as a theatre of horror, but one of heroism. On the open battlefield a boy could become a man in the time it took him to fire a rifle or leap from his foxhole and drag a wounded buddy to safety. These were the days when an unknown kid like Audie Murphy could go to Italy, win a chestful of medals, become a national hero and star in his own life story on the screen. These were the days when men fought and won wars. There [illegible] glory days. And they are gone.

Today, war is a machine. The weapons and soldiers are machines, deadly effective but without the capacity for fear, for patriotism, for courage. The battlefields are gone. The men exist only to start the machines and to keep them going. To put it simply, war is no fun anymore.

Oh, I know what you're saying. Isn't this tawdry skirmish in the Middle East an old-fashioned, battlefield-type war? And didn't we ourselves just finish up a lolapalooza of a limited ground action over in Vietnam? Well, it just isn't the same. Take Vietnam. The key to that fiasco is the word "limited." We couldn't put everything we had into the fight for fear of that deadly nuclear cloud that's been hanging over our heads since Nagasaki. And the underhanded Vietcong insisted on fighting a guerilla war, which no one can win anyway.

As for the Mid-East, well, there's a little hope there, but not much. As the fight goes now, the Israelis and Arabs are having a ball, and there's plenty of old time shoot-em-up action for both sides to scream about. But it's still too [illegible] inspiring [illegible] One and Two [illegible] To give the [illegible] After much [illegible] we're finally [illegible] U.A.R., which [illegible] the heart of [illegible] of finding glory on the very sands trod by Montgomery and his Eighth Army thirty-three years ago. But hell, the way things are going now, as soon as our landing craft hit the beach the Russians would get mad and PFFFFT — there goes the big one and our soldiers' helmets would melt and stick to the tops of their heads. Yes, it is appalling.

But there's more to it than just the nuclear menace. The causes of the wars we've got going today are positively ludicrous when you stand them up beside the great ones of the past. I mean you just can't compare making the world safe for democracy or damming the terrible tide of Hitler's legions with sailing ten thousand miles away to help [illegible] death of proud and glorious war and its replacement with mechanized mass murder.

The situation is steadily getting worse, and I don't see any way out of it. The powers of the world just aren't about to give up their smart bombs, MIRV's and MIG-25's. But, imagine for one brief moment, what if they did? What if technology was suddenly pushed back thirty years, and the most advanced weapons we had were BAR's, Mark I tanks and P-38's? They were good enough for George Patton when he chased Rommel across North Africa into the Red Sea — imagine them once more on the road to Cairo, kicking up great clouds of dust, carrying the American Army to immortality. [illegible]

Stephen Turner is a Collegian Commentator.

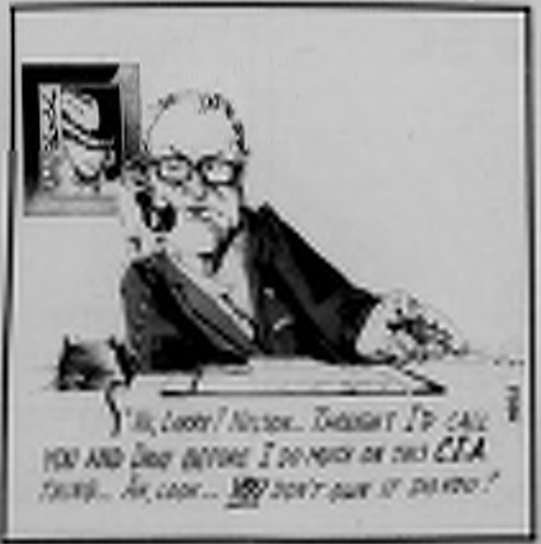
From 'Ishtar' to 'Easter'

By DUDLEY C. PHILLIPS IV

Coming direct to you, with as few interruptions as possible, is the holiday which praises the "fertility goddess;" Easter. From the ancient Nile rites to glorify Baal to the Babylonian and Greek "queen of heaven," the Easter Festival was celebrated. All these folks were sun worshipers and cared little for the monotheism of Abraham, Moses, Jeremiah, Jesus, or Paul.

The name "Easter" is taken from the Egyptian word, "Ishtar." Ishtar is the goddess of fertility, a kind of "mother earth." Ishtar was wife to Baal, the Sun-god. Baal was the most powerful of the pagan gods. When Moses came off the mountain with the first tablet, the scene he was angered by was one of a worship of an idol of Baal, the "golden calf." The Decalogue (Ten Commandments) was, in one sense, a defense against Baal. The struggles against the Pharoh in Egypt, by Moses, were to free his people from the Sun-god, in practice and symbol. [illegible]

[illegible]



"Hi, Lucky! Nelson... Thought I'd call you and [illegible] before I do much on this C.I.A. thing... Ah, look... YOU don't [illegible]!"

Letters to the editor

[illegible]

From our perspective

A medical marvel

When Mark Citron, former Chairperson of the Student Health Advisory Board, attended a college medical seminar in Texas last semester, he expected to learn how other universities were coping with their problems. He was quite surprised, however, to find himself in the spotlight as the UMass infirmary representative.

The Collegian is not surprised. While some administrative services on campus have viewed students as antagonists, the infirmary has been providing excellent health care to the students.

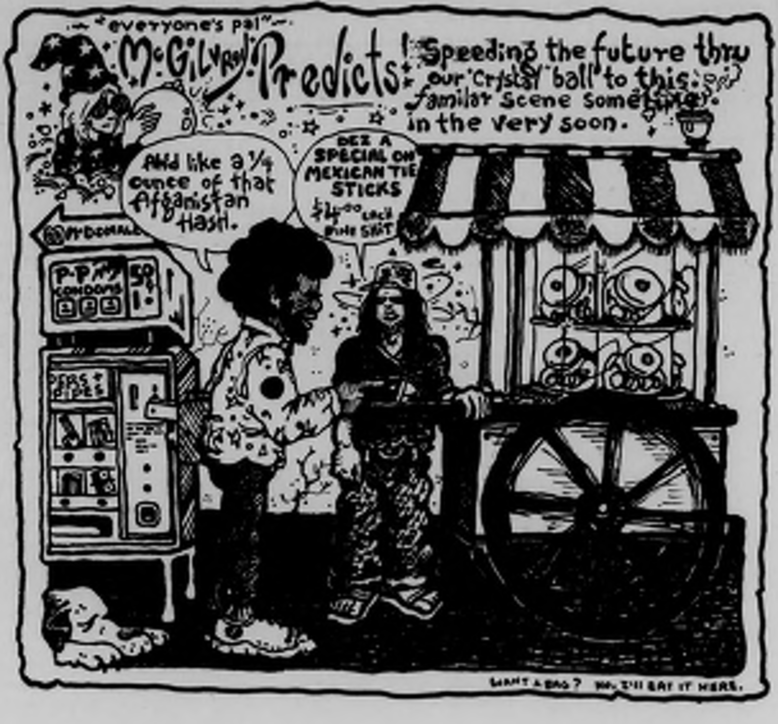
What makes the infirmary such a big success is, quite simply, the people who work there. Nurses, technicians and physicians never seem too busy to lend a professional hand or sympathetic ear. Indeed they are interested in the well-being of the students here.

The professional care is also of high caliber. Dr. Robert Gage deserves a great deal of credit for organizing the staff and new infirmary. In such a position, the Harvard Medical School graduate has no equal. The infirmary is now run by Barry Averill and Dr. Thomas McBride.

True, there are isolated incidents many students could bring up showing the lack of good care the infirmary extends. But the Collegian believes they are nothing more than isolated incidents.

To all those connected with the infirmary, keep up the good work!

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Board of Editors.



"everyone's pal"
McGilvray Predicts!
Speeding the future thru our 'crystal' ball to this familiar scene sometime in the very soon.
And like a 1/4 ounce of that Afganistan Hash.
DEZ A SPECIAL ON MEXICAN TIE STICKS $4.00 EACH McDONALD
P-P CONDOMS 50¢ 1¢
PAPERS + PIPES
WANT A BAG? NO, I'll EAT IT HERE.

James A. Nollet

Questionable control

One of the proposed solutions to Amherst's housing shortage is rent control. Rent control, in which rent is determined not by the free market but by law, is legal in Massachusetts only in communities which [illegible] for a 2 bedroom railroad flat. They have rented the apartment since before the daughter's birth (1951), and are still rent controlled, since the rent de-control bill exempted, and did not retroactively rescind, [illegible] resident. The population of Amherst is necessarily transient. However, the type of rent control available to large Massachusetts communities is different. Here, landlords are permitted to charge some percentage, say 5 [illegible] expenses? On the one hand, it's too easy for a politician seeking re-election to underassess expenses hoping to win votes. On the other hand, it's also too easy for a politician to be bought off by interested [illegible]

[illegible]

Commentary

Amherst rent control gaining power

[illegible]

Letters to the Editor

Nestelbaum: Ain't got no respect

To the Editor:

In my opinion, Zamir Nestelbaum's article in Tuesday's Collegian only showed ignorance, and utter disrespect for the third world. Just look at his ethnic slur about the Poles and their alleged order for six thousand bayonets [with complete instruction manuals?]! That kind of humor is unnecessary. It is also surprising coming from such a liberal paper as the Collegian.

While much of the arms sold to the third world are, indeed wasteful, the oil producing states in the Middle East do have cause for worrying. After all, they pump the oil that fuels most of Western Europe and Japan [we in the United States also import heavily from the Middle East].

Britain used to maintain stability in the Persian Gulf by stationing her own troops there. In this day and age of national self determination, these states should assume responsibility for their own defense. They can surely afford it. If we deny them the protection that they need, they will remain vulnerable to coercion from more powerful states, for example, the Russians, who already have a massive fleet in the Indian Ocean threatening the Persian Gulf. We in the United States should not allow ourselves to the lulled by detente. Gone is the era of Pax Americana. Russia is now more forthright in her demands on third world nations. If we want our grandchildren to enjoy the freedoms and privileges that we enjoy, we had best do all we can to check Russia and her desire for "world communism." Maybe our economic system needs revision, but I'd rather see change come from within America, not from the leaders in Moscow.

Thomas P. Youngren

A lack of nuclear knowledge

To the Editor:

I would like to point out a common misconception reflected in Mr. Romano's cartoon of March 19. Many people who oppose nuclear fission power plants fear that an atomic pile might explode. The core of a pile is graphite laced with fissionable material and moderators [neutron absorbing substances which control the reaction]. If a pile did go critical [a runaway chain reaction] it could not explode. The intense heat would melt the graphite and the core would melt. The resulting slag would render the plant inoperative, but there still could not be an explosion. Mr. Romano's inclusion of a mushroom cloud in his cartoon reflects either ignorance or scare tactics, both of which impeach his message. If Mr. Romano wishes to oppose fission plants he should first study their operation and construction. Then he may be able to seriously command the attention of the public by showing them real dangers, rather than chimeras.

Dale H. Cook

The "F": Linsky's folly?

To the Editor:

Stephen Linsky's proposal for a better grading system won't do a thing to improve the situation, and it surprises me to realize that he doesn't see it himself.

For starters, his plan will not change anything because he has still not abolished the letter grade, he has just extended the pass-fail requirement so that more students can take their required courses without putting any effort into them. It is very fine to carry on about how the pass-fail option enables students to expand their vistas by taking courses in areas where their competency is not equal to that of others without destroying their GPA, but the solid truth is that far more often than not, the pass-fail option is used to fluff up one's average by eliminating a poor grade which would be received for a difficult course.

There is no system of self grading which will provide more accurate results than the present system unless the basic character of students changes. Students are competitive; if there is any way to get the top grade, they will try to get it, and with the least amount of input possible. This is a fact, and not an idealistic rambling.

As far as counting "F's" goes, I feel that this is a good idea, too. Why should one person who gets a "D" in a course have a 1.0 averaged into his cum when his friend, who gets an "F" has no change. This is clearly unfair. According to the grading system, a "C" or 2.0 is supposed to be average. However, the average GPA on campus is about 3.0. One reason for this is not that students are smarter than average here, but rather that "F's" do not count. The lowest grade is actually a "D", 1.0. This shifts the average up.

Ask yourself: Which people on campus are worried about "F's" being counted? The answer is those who are willing to put the least amount of effort into their courses and are likely to receive an "F". It is these people who the administration are correctly referring when they say that [quoting Mr. Linsky] "There is no room for student responsibility in making UMass 'a place of academic excellence' ".

Why should the administration expect opposition when they finally come up with a good idea?

Steven H. Gardner

Athletic funding unfair?

To the Editor:

I'd like to raise the question of whether women should pay the same athletic fee as men pay, when the money is not equally used to fund the women's and men's athletic programs.

Sally Holmes

HUNGRY U
Pizza Subs
256-0473
103 N. Pleasent
256-8914
55 UNIV. DR.
We Deliver

Review of a reviewer

To the Editor:

After reading Ed Smith's review of The Fires of Jubilee: Nat Turner's Fierce Rebellion, I'm convinced that he has a brilliant career ahead of him as a book reviewer. Already he has mastered the technique of criticizing a volume he's only glanced through and offering weighty opinions on a subject he knows nothing about. Already Smith has learned to attribute implications to a book which it emphatically does not imply. Already he has learned to attack a book for leaving out things it does not in fact leave out [such as "sociological" and environmental factors]. Already Smith himself has mastered the book reviewer's trick of criticism by omission--that is, of ignoring all the factors, conditions, themes, and evidence which the book stresses in seeking to understand its subject.

Should Smith polish up his slanted and unfair techniques, he should have little trouble in getting a book reviewer's job at some place like Time.

Stephen B. Oates
History Department

Life insurance leeches

To the Editor:

I'm sure a lot of fellow seniors have been besieged sometime this semester by those parasites who sell life insurance. Jesus, they're always on our backs about how much we need life insurance and how, as smart sensible students, we should prepare for our future now, before its too late.

After talking with three bullshitters in the last month I can't take their crap anymore. The next one that calls me up I'll tell I'm planning to drop dead soon. These swivel-jaws are worse than door-to-door salesmen. They are really hungry for our money, and regard us as first class suckers.

I would recommend a lot of investigation before making any commitments to these clowns. If someone takes up a policy and finds out in a few years how bad it is, all one's investments will be lost if a change is desired. If anything, a short-term loan [5 years or so] would suffice until you have the essential information to make a permanent decision. But that should be the limit. If there is any way the university could keep the student rosters away from leeches like those mentioned above, I wish it would be done. Another pain in the ass I just don't need.

Norm Robinson

Trustees' meeting
April 2, 2 PM
Rm. 101 C.C.

MARCH 20·21·22
"BRIDGE STREET"
THE red Pantry playroom
RTS. 202 & 21 BELCHERTOWN

翰林 chinese restaurant
homemade mandarin cuisine
dine with our ethnic treats and out of the way finds in chinese cookery
call 586-4562
open 11a.m.-10p.m. tues.-sun.
193 locust st. (route 9)
florence, mass.
the han lin

IMPORTANT FINANCIAL AID NOTICE

★ ★ PLEASE NOTE ★ ★

A. ALL U-Mass Financial Aid applicants should pick-up and file the U-MASS application for aid as well as the appropriate financial statement and other required aid applications. All forms should be available in the Financial Aid Office (243 Whitmore) AFTER April 1, 1975.

For priority consideration, the U-MASS application MUST be complete and filed BEFORE May 1, 1975.

B. Applications and assistance will be available in the following locations:
1. CAMPUS ASSISTANT CENTER (Campus Center Concourse) —
April 8-16: 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
April 9-10: 7:00 p.m.-9:00 p.m.
2. FINANCIAL AID OFFICE (243 Whitmore Administration Building) —
April 1-30: 9:30 a.m.-4:00 p.m.

C. Special GROUP INFORMATION SESSIONS will be held on campus at the following times and locations:

1. Orchard Hill-Central	Tuesday, April 1 6:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m. AND 8:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. Baker Lounge (Basement)
2. Southwest	Wednesday, April 2 6:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m. AND 8:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. Hampden Resource Center
3. Sylvan	Thursday, April 3 6:00 p.m.-8:00 p.m. Cashin Basement
4. Northeast	Thursday, April 3 8:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. Lewis Recreation Room
5. Campus Center	Tuesday, April 8; Friday, April 11; AND Monday, April 14 12:00 Noon-2:00 p.m. Colonial Lounge, Student Union

Student Senate Transit Service

For bus information call: 545-0056 or 545-2086.

outbound

INTERSESSION & SPRING VACATION SCHEDULE

SD

	Stockbridge Road	Morrill	Arnold	School of Ed.	North Amherst	Sunderland Center	Sugarloaf Street	Mount. Road	South Deerfld. Center
am	7:40	7:41	7:42	7:43	7:45	7:55	7:57	7:58	8:00
	11:45	11:46	11:47	11:48	11:52	12:03	12:05	12:06	12:07
pm	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:08	4:10	4:20	4:22	4:23	4:25
	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08	5:10	5:20	5:22	5:23	5:25 EXPRESS to Garage

NA

	Stockbridge Road	Morrill	Arnold	School of Ed.	Crestview	Puffton Village
am	7:43	7:44	7:45	7:46	7:47	7:48
	8:15	8:16	8:17	8:18	8:19	8:20
	11:45	11:46	11:47	11:48	11:49	11:50
pm	12:25	12:26	12:27	12:28	12:29	12:30
	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:08	4:09	4:10
	4:20	4:21	4:22	4:23	4:24	4:25
	4:35	4:36	4:37	4:38	4:39	4:40
	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08	5:09	5:10

BN

	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts	Fearing Street	Cowles Lane	Town Hall	Mayflwr. Apts.	North Street	Gulf Road	Holland Glen	Arcadia Apts.	Bay Road	Quabbin Apts	Belch. Center
am	7:30	7:31	7:32	EXPRESS		TO	7:42	7:44	7:45	7:47	7:48	7:50	7:52	7:55
	11:45	11:46	11:47	11:48	11:49	11:50	11:57	11:59	12:00	12:02	12:03	12:05	12:07	12:10
pm	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:08	4:09	4:10	4:17	4:19	4:20	4:22	4:23	4:25	4:27	4:30
	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08	5:09	5:10	5:17	5:19	5:20	5:22	5:23	5:25	5:27	5:30

To Mayflower Apts. via Colonial Village & Rolling Grn.

SA

	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts	Fearing Street	Cowles Lane	Amherst Center	Memorial Drive	Columbia Drive	Riverglade Apts.	Brittany Manor
am	7:50	7:51	7:52	EXPRESS		TO		EXPRESS		8:05
	8:00	8:01	8:02	8:03	8:04	8:05	8:09	8:10	8:11	8:12
	8:20	8:21	8:22	8:23	8:24	8:25	8:29	8:30	8:31	8:32
pm	12:00	12:01	12:02	12:03	12:04	12:05	12:09	12:10	12:11	12:12
	12:40	12:41	12:42	12:43	12:44	12:45	12:49	12:50	12:51	12:52
	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:08	4:09	4:10	4:11	4:15	4:16	4:17
	4:35	4:36	4:37	4:38	4:39	4:40	4:44	4:45	4:46	4:47
	5:05	5:06	5:07	5:08	5:09	5:10	5:14	5:15	5:16	5:17

SN

	Stockbridge Road	Morrill	Arnold	School of Ed.	Crestview	Puffton Village	North Amherst	Townhouse Apts.	Plumtree Road	Cliffside	Sunderland Center	King Philip
am	7:50	7:51	7:52	7:53	EXPRESS			EXPRESS			8:03	8:05
	8:20	8:21	8:22	8:23	8:24	8:26	8:27	8:29	8:32	8:35	8:38	8:40
	11:45	11:46	11:47	11:48	11:49	11:51	11:52	11:54	11:57	11:59	12:03††	12:05
pm	12:50	12:51	12:52	12:53	12:54	12:56	12:57	12:59	1:01	1:02	1:03	1:05
	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:09	4:10	4:12	4:14	4:16	4:19	4:21	4:23	4:25
	4:40	4:41	4:42	4:44	4:45	4:47	4:49	4:51	4:54	4:56	4:58	5:00
	5:15	5:16	5:17	5:18	5:19	5:21	5:22	5:25	5:26	5:27	5:28	5:30

†† To [illegible]

BR

	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts	Fearing Street	Cowles Lane	Town Hall	Univ. Park	No. East Street	Colonial Village	Rolling Green
am	7:50	7:51	7:52	7:54	7:55	7:57	7:58	8:00	8:02	8:05
	8:20	8:21	8:22	8:24	8:25	8:27	8:28	8:30	8:32	8:35
	11:45	11:46	11:47	11:48	11:49	11:50	11:51	11:53	11:55	11:57 to Belchertown Center
pm	12:50	12:51	12:52	12:54	12:55	12:57	12:58	1:00	1:02	1:05
	4:05	4:06	4:07	4:09	4:10	4:12	4:13	4:15	4:17	4:20
	4:40	4:41	4:42	4:44	4:45	4:47	4:48	4:50	4:52	4:55
	5:15	5:16	5:17	5:19	5:20	5:22	5:23	5:25	5:27	5:30

CS

CAMPUS SHUTTLE* - Counterclockwise will leave Stockbridge Rd. every
32 minutes 7:35-9:43 AM
16 minutes 9:43-11:35 AM
32 minutes 11:35-12:07 PM
16 minutes 12:55-3:19 PM
32 minutes 4:23-5:43 PM
*Campus Shuttle will stop at entrance to 25 Lot and will [illegible] 11 Lot.

OH

ORCHARD HILL Clockwise
will leave Stockbridge Rd. every 32 minutes 7:51-9:27 AM (no loop at 8:55)
at 11:51 & 12:23
32 minutes 3:35-5:11 PM
Orchard Hill will not go into Fraternity, Sorority Park

inbound

INTERSESSION & SPRING VACATION SCHEDULE

SD

	South Deerfield Center	Mount. Road	Sugarloaf Street	Sunderland Center	Lantern Court	Squire Village	Old Town Road	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts
am	7:30	7:31	7:32	7:37	7:39	7:40	7:48	7:50	7:51	7:52 to SA
	8:00	8:01	8:02	8:07	8:09	8:10	8:18	8:20	8:21	8:22 to SA
pm	12:25	12:26	12:27	12:32	12:39	12:40	12:48	12:50	12:51	12:52 to BR
	4:45	4:46	4:47	4:52	4:54	4:55	5:03	5:05	5:06	5:07 to BN
	5:30	5:31	5:32	5:37	5:39	5:40	5:48	5:50	5:51	5:52 Out of Service

NA

	Puffton Village	North Village	Old Town Road	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts
am	7:25	7:27	7:28	7:30	7:31	7:32 to BN
	7:55	7:57	7:58	8:00	8:01	8:02 to SA
	8:20	8:22	8:23	8:25	8:26	8:27 Out of Service
	8:40	8:42	8:43	8:45	8:46	8:47 Out of Service
	11:55	11:57	11:58	12:00	12:01	12:02 to SA
pm	12:35	12:37	12:38	12:40	12:41	12:42 to SA
	4:10	4:12	4:13	4:15	4:16	4:17 Out of Service
	4:30	4:32	4:33	4:35	4:36	4:37 to SA
	5:00	5:02	5:03	5:05	5:06	5:07 to SA
	5:20	5:22	5:23	5:25	5:26	5:27 Out of Service

BN

	Belch. Center	Quabbin Apts.	Bay Road	Arcadia Apts.	Holland Glen	Gulf Road	North Street	Mayflwr. Apts.	Stock. Road	Morrill	Arnold
am	7:20	7:22	7:24	7:26	7:27	7:30	7:31	7:33	7:43	7:44	7:45 to NA
	7:50	7:52	7:54	7:56	7:57	8:00	8:01	8:03	8:15	8:16	8:17 to NA
pm	12:20	12:22	12:24	12:26	12:27	12:30	12:31	12:33	12:50	12:51	12:52 to SN
	4:35	4:37	4:39	4:41	4:42	4:45	4:46	4:48	5:00	5:01	5:02 to SD
	5:30	5:32	5:34	5:36	5:37	5:40	5:41	5:43	5:55	5:56	5:57 Out of Service

SA

	Brittany Manor	Riverglade Apts.	Columbia Drive	Memorial Drive	Amherst Center	Post Office	Fearing Street	Stockbridge Road	Morrill	Arnold
am	7:30	7:32	7:33	7:34	7:37	7:38	7:39	7:40	7:41	7:42 to SD
	8:05	8:07	8:08	8:09	8:12	8:13	8:14	8:15	8:16	8:17 to NA
	8:15	8:17	8:18	8:19	8:22	8:23	8:24	8:25	8:26	8:27 Out of Service
	8:35	8:37	8:38	8:39	8:42	8:43	8:44	8:45	8:46	8:47 Out of Service
pm	12:15	12:17	12:18	12:19	12:22	12:23	12:24	12:25	12:26	12:27 to NA
	12:55	12:57	12:58	12:59	1:02	1:03	1:04	1:05	1:06	1:07 Out of Service
	4:25	4:27	4:28	4:29	4:32	4:33	4:34	4:35	4:36	4:37 to NA
	4:55	4:57	4:58	4:59	5:02	5:03	5:04	5:05	5:06	5:07 to NA
	5:25	5:27	5:28	5:29	5:32	5:33	5:34	5:35	5:36	5:37 Out of Service

SN

	Sunderland Center	King Philip	[illegible] Apts.	Lantern Court	Squire Village	Plumtree Road	Townhouse Apts.	North Amherst	Puffton Village	North Village	Old Town Road	Grad Research Center	Hasbrouck	Fine Arts
am	7:33	7:35	7:36	7:37	7:38	7:41	7:44	7:46	7:47	7:48	7:50	7:51	7:52	7:53 [illegible]
	8:03	8:05	8:06	8:07	8:08	8:11	8:14	8:16	8:17	8:19	8:20	8:21	8:22	8:23 [illegible]
	8:38	8:40	8:41	8:42	8:43	8:46	8:49	8:51	8:52	8:54	8:55	8:56	8:57	[illegible]
pm	12:33	12:35	12:36	12:37	12:38	12:41	12:44	12:46	12:47	12:49	12:50	12:51	12:52	[illegible]
	1:03	1:05	1:06	1:07	1:08	1:11	1:14	1:16	1:17	1:19	1:20	1:21	1:22	[illegible]
	4:23	4:25	4:26	4:27	4:28	4:31	4:34	4:36	4:37	4:39	4:40	4:41	4:42	4:43 [illegible]
	4:58	5:00	5:01	5:02	5:03	5:06	5:09	5:11	5:12	5:14	5:15	5:16	5:17	5:18 [illegible]
	5:28	5:30	5:31	EXPRESS TO GARAGE

* Out of Service

BR

	Rolling Green	Echo Hill	Colonial Village	No. East Street	N. Whitney Street	Amherst Center	Post Office	Fearing Street	Stockbridge Road	Morrill	Arnold
am	7:35	7:36	7:38	7:41	7:42	7:44	7:45	7:48	7:50	7:51	7:52 to SN
	8:05	8:06	8:08	8:11	8:12	8:14	8:15	8:18	8:20	8:21	8:22 to SN
	8:40	8:41	8:43	8:46	8:47	8:49	8:51	8:53	8:55	8:56	8:57 Out of Service
pm	12:35	12:36	12:38	12:41	12:42	12:44	12:46	12:48	12:50	12:51	12:52 to SN
	1:05	1:06	1:08	1:11	1:12	1:14	1:16	1:18	1:20	1:21	1:22 to Out of Service
	4:25	4:26	4:28	4:31	4:32	4:34	4:36	4:38	4:40	4:41	4:42 to SN
	5:00	5:01	5:03	5:06	5:07	5:09	5:11	5:13	5:15	5:16	5:17 to SN
	5:30	5:31	EXPRESS	TO		5:37	5:38	5:39	5:40	5:41	5:42 Out of Service

CS

CAMPUS SHUTTLE* - Counterclockwise
will leave Stockbridge Rd. every
32 minutes 7:35-9:43 AM
16 minutes 9:43-11:35 AM
32 minutes 11:35-12:07 PM
16 minutes 12:55-3:19 PM
32 minutes 4:23-5:43 PM
*Campus Shuttle will stop at entrance to 25 Lot and will [illegible] 11 Lot.

OH

ORCHARD HILL Clockwise
will leave Stockbridge Rd. every 32 minutes 7:51-9:27 AM (no loop at 8:55)
at 11:51 & 12:23
32 minutes 3:35-5:11 PM
Orchard Hill will not go into Fraternity, Sorority Park

Buses over vacation run less often

During Spring Vacation, the Student Senate Transit Service will be operating on an abbreviated schedule as printed below. Personal schedules will be available at the Bus Garage, the CC Info desk and on the buses. There will be no night service or weekend service March 22, 23, 29, and 30. For further information call: 5-0056 or 5-2086.

notes, quotes

Handicapped employment line started

A new toll free information and referral line by the Commission on Employment of the Handicapped has been established.

The purpose of the line for use by employers and handicapped individuals is to provide a clearinghouse where handicapped individuals can obtain information regarding services and facilities available to them for job placement, to provide a central location where employers can place job orders and to provide a clearinghouse for obtaining information on legislation related to employment of the handicapped.

The line's number is 1-800-392-6077 or in the Boston area 727-6470.

Scott to produce TV show

Larry Scott, a University Year for ACTION Center staff memeber, will produce an "Open Door" show to be aired tomorrow at 6:00 p.m. on Channel 57.

The intent of the production is to provide those in Western Massachusetts with an assessment of Minority Education at the UMass.

Dukakis will attend Greenfield meeting

Governor Michael Dukakis will be in Greenfield March 24 at 7:30 p.m. to attend a Town Meeting.

Citizens are urged to attend the meeting at Greenfield High School Auditorium, Lenox Avenue, Greenfield.

The Greenfield town meeting is the fifth in a series of meetings Governor Dukakis has called. The Governor has scheduled town meetings every two weeks to sit down with area residents for a candid 90-minute discussion of key state and local issues.

Stockbridge Livestock Classic notices

March 31 — Horse Clinic at Grinnell Arena, 7 p.m., Monday. Bring $5.

April 3 — Haltermaking, Thursday, Grinnell Arena, 6:30 p.m. All showing beef and dairy must make their town halter. Bring $2 to cover cost of rope.

April 12 — Pony Clinic, at the Pony Bar, 6:30 p.m. Mandatory meeting; demonstration clipping and showing.

April 1 — Livestock Classic meeting in Stockbridge Reading Room at 7:00 p.m. All superintendents and committee members must attend.

Rotary Club holds antique show, flea market

The Amherst Rotary Club's sixth annual antique show and flea market will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, March 23 in Pratt Cage, Amherst College.

This is the largest indoor show in Western Massachusetts, according to show manager Malcolm W. Turner. More than 100 selected dealers from the New England region will be exhibiting antique furniture, glassware, bric-a-brac, old tools, prints and maps, jewelry and other specialties.

Proceeds from the show are used by the Rotary Club to support a number of community betterment projects. Last year the Rotary Club contributed $3,600 to 11 worthy causes in the area. Most of the money was raised at the flea market.

Everywoman's Center sponsors self-defense workshop

Can you get out of a hand-hold? Do you know if you can scream? On April 5, A Day of Self-Defense sponsored by Everywoman's Center will enable woman to begin to learn how to defend themselves. This workshop will be a time for woman to learn alertness and awareness in potentially dangerous situations. Films, demonstrations and an opportunity for women to learn a bit of basic self-defense will be offered. The cost of the workshop is $12.00 and will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information call or drop in at Everywoman's Center, 506 Goodell on the UMass campus, 545-0883. Everywoman's Center's hours are Monday thru Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesdays 1 p.m. to 8 p.m.

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW NOW
Many of his fellow officers considered him the most dangerous man alive-an honest cop
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE
DINO DE LAURENTIIS presents
R
AL PACINO in "SERPICO"
Eves: Serpico — 7:00 & 9:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5·6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
·CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE·

STREISAND & CAAN
How Lucky Can You Get!
Funny Lady
PG
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Thurs. — 8:00; Fri. — 7:15-9:50; Sat.-Sun. — 1:30-4:15-7:15-9:50

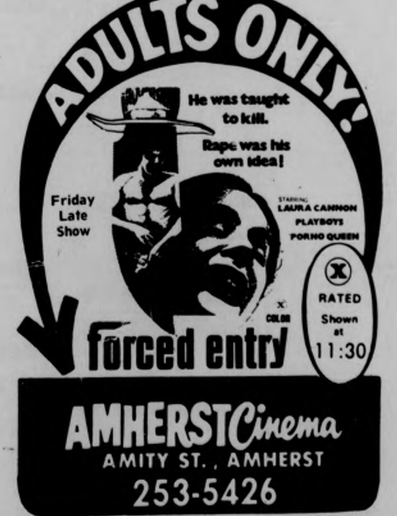
warren beatty
julie christie · goldie hawn
SHAMPOO
R
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Fri. — 7:00-9:30; Sat.-Sun. — 1:45-4:15-7:00-9:30

NOMINATED FOR 2 ACADEMY AWARDS
PG
YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Fri. — 7:30-9:45; Sat.-Sun. — 2:15-4:45-7:30-10:00

Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Fri. — 7:30-10:00; Sat.-Sun. — 2:00-4:30-7:30-9:50

Nominated for 8 Academy Awards
THE TOWERING INFERNO
PG
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Thurs. — 8:15; Fri. — 7:00-10:15; Sat. — 1:30-4:15-7:00-10:15; Sun. — 1:30-5:00-8:15

Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
EARTHQUAKE
PG
Wed. Mat. — 2:00; Mon.-Fri. — 7:30-9:45; Sat.-Sun. — 2:00-4:30-7:10-9:30



ADULTS ONLY!
He was taught to kill.
Rape was his own idea!
Friday Late Show
STARRING LAURA CANNON PLAYBOYS PORNO QUEEN
X COLOR
X RATED Shown at 11:30
forced entry
AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
253-5426

EASTFIELD MALL Cinema 543-3304
BOSTON RD / U.S. 20 at RT. 21
Daily Eve. Show 7:30-9:30
Mat. — Wed.-Sat.-Sun.
1:00-3:10-5:15
THE STEPFORD WIVES
A very modern suspense story from the author of Rosemary's Baby.
PG
Soon — West Mass. Premiere
"Reincarnation of Peter Proud"

Outside surgery must be approved

If you are planning surgery or hospitalization away from school during the spring break (or any other time), contact the Health Center IMMEDIATELY at 413-549-2671, Ext. 174.

The Insurance Plan will pay for care obtained outside the Health Center only when it could not have been rendered by Plan Surgeons at the Cooley Dickinson Hospital, and only when it is approved in advance and in writing by a Plan Physician at the Health Center.

The Plan works this way, because it is the only way the insurance company can guarantee such extensive coverage at such an unusually low premium cost to you. The basic idea is that the Health Services can make arrangements to obtain hospital, surgical, and specialty services for students at a lower cost, and it can take certain steps to prevent the unnecessary use of these costly services.

Recession inflates interest in economics

On college campuses, the nation's economic ills have inflated interest in basic economic courses. Area schools say enrollment has increased substantially over the past two years.

At UMass, the number of undergraduates taking economics increased 40 per cent in the past two years. And officials say part of that is explained by a shift in enrollment from liberal arts to the business school, where economics is required.

"Students are concerned about their own economic security when they get out," said George Treyz, a professor at UMass. "They are turning to economics as a more practical, career oriented course...They think it will be easier to get a job if they take economics."

"There is an increasing sophistication," said Barbara Solow, director of the introductory economics course at Boston University. "Students are following newspapers, asking their instructors for answers. It makes for good teaching and lively discussions."

Enrollment in the course at BU went from 1,524 in 1973 to 1,891 last year, and it is up an estimated 15 per cent this year.

At Harvard, "Ec. 10" formally, Economics 1010 is now the most popular undergraduate course. Enrollment went from 550 four years ago to 870 this year.

Teachers say students are motivated by a desire to understand both the big economic picture and how it affects them.

Jeff Oberlander, a Brandeis senior who is taking economics, said, "Lots of people are being pragmatic now. They want a secure job and are seriously considering business school."

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
SORRY — NO DOLLAR NITE THIS SHOW
1 Nominated: Best Actress — Gena Rowlands HELD OVER A Woman Under The Influence 7 & 9:45
2 HOT TIMES (X) 7 & 9 PLUS Rolling Stones "GATHER MOSS"
3 ROGER MOORE THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN GUN PG 7 & 9:10

AMHERST Cinema AMITY ST. 253-5426
NOW NOW
EXCLUSIVE AREA SHOWING
One of the 10 best films of the year. Perhaps the last film for one of the greatest of all film makers.
LE PETIT THEATRE DE JEAN RENOIR
"THE MOST BEAUTIFUL FILM IN TOWN. RENOIR'S PEOPLE ARE BEAUTIFUL. RENOIR'S DIRECTION IS BEAUTIFUL. RENOIR IS BEAUTIFUL. GO SEE IT." —Jonas Mekas, Village Voice
"WHAT A JOY... rich in imagination, brimming over with that warmth and affection that are of the heart of entertainment, a rarity indeed these days." Judith Crist, New York Magazine
"MARVELOUS... By some poetic chance, 'Le Petit Theatre' is both a cause for celebration and an act of it." Vincent Canby, The New York Times
"Not only an unabashed exercise in film... at its most masterly but a retrospective in miniature of one of the most perceptive, expansive careers in world cinema." Charles Michener, Newsweek
"Renoir — the greatest filmmaker of them all" Penelope Gilliatt, The New Yorker
Eves: Le Petit Theatre — 7:00 & 8:45; Sat. & Sun. Mat. — 1:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 - HADLEY, MASS.
1 WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS incl. BEST PICTURE PAUL NEWMAN · ROBERT REDFORD ROBERT SHAW THE STING PG 5:00, 7:30, 10:00 Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:30-5:00 Only
2 They'd do anything for a story...and do. JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU THE FRONT PAGE PG 5:15, 7:45, 10:00 Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:45-5:15 Only
3 WALT DISNEY PRODUCTIONS HERBIE RIDES AGAIN TECHNICOLOR HAYES BERRY POWERS McINTIRE WYNN G 6:30, 8:30 Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 6:00-6:30 Only
4 2 Academy Award Nominations "HARRY & TONTO" "HARRY & TONTO" starring ART CARNEY R 5:15, 7:45, 10:00 Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:45-5:15 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay
To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday-Friday.
The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.
The rates are:
Daily $.35 per line
Weekly $.30 per line
Monthly $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line

FOR SALE
Integral Systems power amp, large Advent speakers, ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $660. Call Mike 549-0177.
Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.
Pair JBL 88 speakers, high fidelity, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.
RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive, for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4785 evenings.
Scuba gear complete inc. wet suit $195. Lafayette amp. Like new 75.00. Call 549-6660 aft. 5:00.
Earth Shoes, size 8½ mens (10½ female). $42 new. Just $20 now. Call Kris or Danny, 323-4819. Keep trying!
AM auto radio for sale, $15. Call Steve at 256-6662.
Incredible 12 string cravola (like a guitar) for sale. Call Nelson 253-3016 anytime. Keep trying.
Five Bikers boots, size 12. Hardly used. Mark 256-8162, 10-11 p.m.
For Sale Schwinn Continental 10 spd. $60 or B.O. Phone 253-5824. Steve.
Two Cragar Mags, 14", $40. Steve 549-5497.
Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms/channel or 11 W X4 channel (quad) 3 mos. old. List $300. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Matt 6-7009. Also smaller adverts for $129.
B-W portable TV. Works. $15. 6-5847. Keep trying.
Lhasa Apso, 1 yr. male, $50 to right adult. Siberian Husky champ. 3 mos. fem. 536-7838.
EMC Takumar F4 100mm Bellows Lens. Hardly used. Value $110. Yours for $60. Call Joe 549-6598, nights.
4 Sale B Flat Clarinet. $50. 584-1082.
For Sale — Gibson Humming Bird, hard shell case. Best offer takes it. Call 256-8111 after 4 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE
Hardtop 4 Triumph Spitfire. Cheap! Call Bruce 549-6737. Keep trying.
65 Dodge Wag. $200. Gd. mech. 549-1708.
64 Chev. Wagon, top running, 6 cyl. automatic, new exhaust sys. $250.00. 253-7987.
1968 Pontiac Catalina Hdtp. Excellent mechanical shape, a good body. A real sacrifice at $675. 542-5563. Henry.
1964 Ford Galaxie, GXL, 4 speed, good interior, reliable transportation. Call Kim 323-4249 nights after 9:30. $175.
67 VW Squareback, AM-FM radio, $500. Call Pat 256-8470.
67 Chevy Biscayne, six, standard. Mark 256-8162, 10-11 p.m.
71 Fiat 850 sedan, 45 mpg hwy, 40 mpg city. Only 33,000 miles, 4 new radial tires, radio. $950. 1-783-8850 aft. 5:30.
67 Ford Galaxie. Fine running, 6 cyl. automatic. Good tires. $400 or B.O. 253-7987.
64 Chev. wagon, 6 cyl., automatic. Runs well. Good transportation. $250. 253-7987.
66 Chev. Bel Air, 6 cyl., automatic, 4 dr., dependable transportation. $395. 253-7987.
70 Fiat 850 Coupe. Excellent mechanically. 40 mpg and 3 new tires. $750. 253-7987.
1966 Plymouth wagon, runs great. $200 or best offer. 549-1006.
Very economical 72 Peugeot 304, 32 mpg. Michelin (x) radials. Immaculate cond. Must sacrifice $1600. Eves. 586-4177, 527-1445.
67 Opel, fair cond. 29 mpg. 62K mi. Full maint. rep. metric tools, incl. Some work req. High $ buys it. Tel. 586-6667.
Van 4 Sale — 73, 302, V8, RH, A/C. 532-4011.
59 VW, good running cond. $850. Call 549-3794 and leave message.
64 VW. Good body, runs well. $300. Call 549-6599.
Saab, 70, 96, V4, good cond. $1000. W/ racks. 617-546-6510. Week nites, weekends.
65 Chev. Impala. $100 or B.O. 256-0290.

AUTO FOR SALE
'67 VW Squareback, rebuilt engine, decent body. $650. Ashfield 625-2338.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE
HL Sportster. Koni shocks, disc front, [illegible]. Ernie 5[illegible]-4877.
For Sale. 72 Honda CB450 w. backrest at crash bar. Exc. mech. shape. Must see and I must sell. Best offer. 549-3345, eve.
Honda 450, tot. rebuilt eng. 549-5086.

FOR RENT
Business space, 3800 ft. ground flr. $325. Studio or craft, 2700 ft. divisible, 2nd flr., $225, half mezzanine $36. 36 No. Maple, Florence. 584-2550 weekends, downtown.
One bdrm. apt. for rent on 5d. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7085.
Whately, Mass. — 7 room house, good condition, available for 1 year. $225.00 month. Call 737-4040.
Amh. — New 2 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. and sec. 549-6800.
Amh. — New 2 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6800 before 5.
All util., kitchen, wash, dry. $80. 256-6456.

WANTED TO RENT
1 bedroom apt. Whmptn area $15 for Mar. Bus phone, 549-3129, ask for Papu, 6-5.
Sm. 5 cu. refrigerator. 584-3100, ext. 336.

TO SUBLET
June sublet town house apt., 2 bedroom, air conditioned, close to campus and on bus route. Lease can be renewed in September. $225 and utilities per month, but will negotiate for the summer months. If interested call 549-0880.
Two bdrm. apt., Brandywine. June - August. Call 549-1699 anytime. Will negotiate.
Large three bdrm. apt. June 1 - Aug. 31. Call 256-8436.
Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70 util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 to Sept. 1. Call 549-1276 right now.

TO SUBLET
One bedroom apt. near Amherst Ctr. $150 per month inc. util. 256-0389, 256-8153.

ROOMMATE WANTED
Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $100 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.
Beautiful N. Amherst house with garden. Grad or worker. $80 inc. util. 253-6285.
Responsible M/F, own room, 3 bdrm. Townhouse. Furnished. Busline. Bob. 253-7987.
AMH Center. Male roommate wanted. $72.50 avail. Apr. 1. 256-0561.
N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $61.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0689.
Women to share one bedroom apt. Call 549-4501.

ROOM WANTED
Need room in house until June at least. W-in commute of Spfld. Am 26, finished law school, new to area. Bill Newman, 737-1699; 783-0732.

WANTED
I WANT YOUR SICK OR AILING AUTO! Any make. Fast $ for the hulk. Bob 253-7987.
Wanted baby clothes. 1-583-6684.
Wanted to buy motorcycles — any kind, any condition, basket cases also. Particular interest in BMW parts. Call John after 5:00 p.m. 549-0068.
Acoustic Bass player for Blue Grass group. Call 549-3711.

HELP WANTED
Bartenders, Cocktail Waitresses, Doorman. Exp. pref. Apply in person, 3-20, 3-21 between 2 and 4 p.m. at P. R. 3, formerly Kathi Kai. Ask for Dave.

RIDE WANTED
Need ride Mar. 21-24 to Minneapolis. Will share exp. Call Ron 586-1106.

PERSONALS
Gor — I'm looking forward to our Rockport Sunday. — Beth.
Baber — Happy 21st. May the Yurik never sear! Love us Kidsh.

PERSONALS
To the person who returned my yellow shopping bag to the Chem. Off. Thank you.
Photos for passports, job and school applications, candid portraits. Good quality work. Call Debbie 549-8055. Leave name and phone no.
Steph — Thanks for thinking of me. I love you for it. B.
Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shevyele. Michael.
$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4816.
Mountain Recreation and Science Colorado State Univ. Summer Program for science and non-science students offer wide variety of non-technical interdisciplinary science related courses combined w. long weekends of white water river trips, backpacking, camping, summit ascents in Colorado Rockies June 16 - July 18. Write MRS, Box 16, Physics Dept., C.S.U., Ft. Collins, Colorado 80523.
Gay Catholics — Your church cares, do you? For info, counseling, rap, write to Dignity, P. O. Box 488, Forest Park Station, Spfld., Mass. 01108.
Single M member Nat'l Nudist Council would like to meet single F interested in Social Nudism. Write Box 383, Easthampton, MA. 01027.
To my special No. 81. Have a very happy 19th — I'm thinking of you — Your 212 honey.
Future CPA's. Learn how to prepare for the CPA exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.

TRAVEL
Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 549-0600.
Bermuda Spring Vacation. From $199. Call Campus Travel. 549-0600.

SERVICES
TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivers. 584-5024 anytime.
RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive, for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4785 evenings.

SERVICES
Datsun, Toyota, Volvo and domestic autos repaired. Plenty of experience and equipment. Phone Russ Bosa 586-1227.
HAVING CAR PROBLEMS? CALL BOB to fix it right. No job too small. 253-7987.
Karmechanics — All auto repairs. Fiat specialists. People's prices. We'll teach you too! 665-7146.

ENTERTAINMENT
Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $60. Call Bob the D.J. 538-8075.
Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $60. Call Bob the D.J. 538-8075.
THE BIG BAD BOOGIE IS COMING AGAIN!
UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years, $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information — 545-0202.
This week at the Bluewall: Goebel & Lang, Wed.-Fri., March 19-21, 9-1.
This week at the TOC, Warm Colors, Thurs.-Sat., March 20-22, 9-1.

MISCELLANEOUS
OVERSEAS JOBS — Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa. Students, all professions and occupations. $700 to $3,000 mo. Expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free info. TRANSWORLD RESEARCH CO., Dept. H4, P.O. Box 603, Corte Madera, 94925.

CALCULATORS
Special Calculator Sale! Melcor 535 Scientific machine with all trig functions, memory, parenthesis, and much more. This machine is similar to SR50 at the low price of $82.95. All models and makes available at low discount prices. T.I. SR50 only $. $102.95. Call Bob Crowell at 549-1216 for details. College Calculators.
College calculators has the new SR-51 at $195.95! The HP-21 is due in soon. Order now! The Melcor 535 scientific machine with all plus rig and log functions, parenthesis, memory and more is now only $79.95! You won't believe it 'till you see it. Call Bob, 549-1216.

UNITED Feature Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Yearn
5 ---- polo
10 Seaweed
14 Heating apparatus
15 Angry
16 [illegible]
17 Negative contraction
18 Royal
19 Be certain of 20 Defective
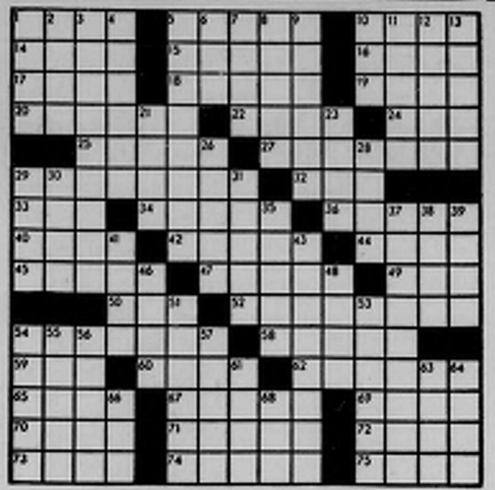
22 Eject with contempt
24 Before
25 Heads or ----
27 Made into law
29 Spearlike weapons
31 Spanish uncle
33 Biblical ruler
34 Engages in pillage
38 Fails to win
40 Ring of a chain
42 Tannery worker
44 Brad
45 [illegible] word
47 Multiplied by
49 [illegible] water
50 Caress
52 Rectangular column
54 Furniture wheels
58 Singer ---- Vaughn
59 Feeling of reverence
60 Cravats
62 Hasteners
65 Naked
67 Less
69 Leif Ericson's father
70 Wealthy nature
71 Common-place quality
72 Kind of lily
73 ---- lease
74 Did needlework
75 Pitcher

DOWN
1 Supreme Beings
2 Decline
3 Piercing
4 Catch
5 Lower leg
6 100 square meters
7 Shoelace parts
8 Storehouse
9 Cause to abate
10 Neighbor of La.
11 African cat
12 Regard with esteem
13 Dared
21 Stringed instrument
23 Lament
26 Noise
28 Fan
29 Mound of earth
30 Melody
31 Reduce to essentials
35 German trucks
36 Informal
37 Snakelike
38 Roof edge
39 Top notch athlete
41 Preserved
43 Revolutionary former state
46 Fall back
48 Garment of India
51 Trudges
53 Level
54 Group of brothers
55 Watchful
56 Finch
57 Cathedral feature
61 Form of winter precip.
63 City on the Baltic
64 Dickensian heel
66 Outer edge
68 Unicorn

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved



Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

FRIDAY, MARCH 21 — Born today, you are one of those persons to whom harmony is essential. Discord leaves you all but unable to accomplish even the most ordinary of chores, for you find yourself both physically and mentally disturbed when faced with dissension or disorganized material. When surroundings are peaceful, you are a wonderfully stable and efficient worker toward whatever goal you set yourself, and it would behoove you, therefore, to work as hard to achieve those surroundings as you do to achieve that goal.

You know what it is that you want out of life; more, you know how to go about getting what you want. There may at times be some confusion when loved ones, whose views may differ from yours, express themselves on your future; but because you are wise enough to know what is best for you and to follow your own instinct in these matters, confusion does not last long. You will not allow yourself to be misled into alternate activities — not even by those near and dear.

Inclined to work and rework a project until even the tiniest detail has been gone over and over to the point of perfection, you may actually spend too much time on details and not enough on visualizing the larger enterprise. As a result, there are times when you show yourself to be a veritable expert on some small part of a project — and rather unknowledgeable on the project as a whole.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Saturday, March 22

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Seek outdoor activity today, both as a safeguard for your health and a balm for your emotional upsets of the past days. Take a lesson from the young.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You can blow away the mental cobwebs today by taking part in outdoor physical activity. Don't be alarmed should you tire sooner than most.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Though the clouds may well be lined with silver, you won't know about it unless you seek and find. Don't expect others to rescue you from error.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Guard against any hasty decision-making. Don't be persuaded by others into attempting to act before you are prepared. Bide your time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Though you may not be bargain hunting at this time, you may well discover a lot for a little and decide to make an unplanned purchase.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — This is not the best time to launch a new business project. Wait until a more auspicious day, then move in quickly with new ideas for gain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — New friends may be charming, but this is a day when you should find that old friends serve you best. Discourage another's critical view of a mutual friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Leave yourself a loophole or two in your personal relationships today. It may be that you will want to get out of accompanying another on business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Stick to routine matters, especially during morning hours when family matters threaten to undermine your position of authority on the home front.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You should be able to work out your own problems early in the day; then you can spare the time to work out someone else's. Be assured of long-term success.

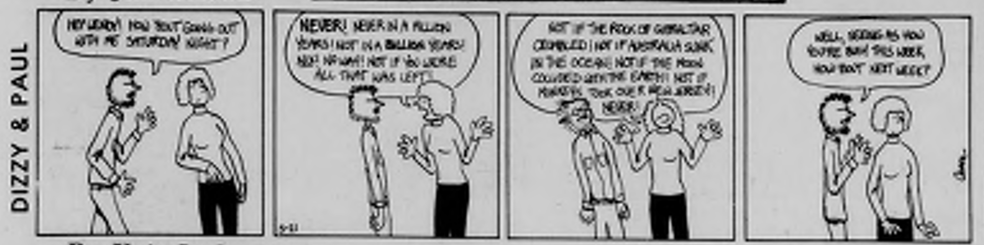
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Spring into action as easily and as early in the day as possible. This is no time to hang back for fear of making the wrong move.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Real accomplishment is attained during the forenoon. Afternoon and evening hours bring you some social advancement, but nothing memorable.

United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

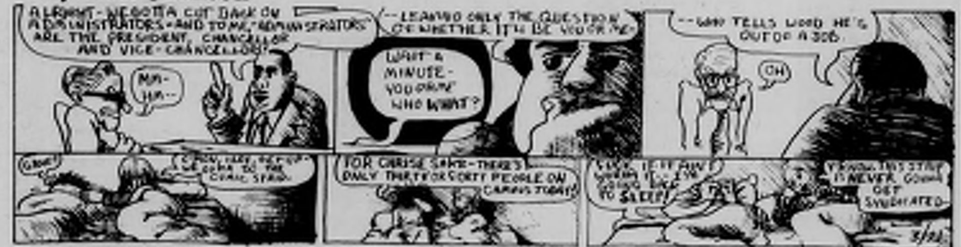
DIZZY & PAUL



HEY WENDY! HOW 'BOUT GOING OUT WITH ME SATURDAY NIGHT?
NEVER! NEVER IN A MILLION YEARS! NOT IN A BILLION YEARS! NO! NO WAY! NOT IF YOU WERE ALL THAT WAS LEFT!
NOT IF THE ROCK OF GIBRALTAR CRUMBLED! NOT IF AUSTRALIA SUNK IN THE OCEAN! NOT IF THE MOON COLLIDED WITH THE EARTH! NOT IF MARTIANS TOOK OVER NEW JERSEY! NEVER!
WELL, SEEING AS YOU YOU'RE BUSY THIS WEEK, HOW 'BOUT NEXT WEEK?
3-21

By Kris Jackson

KAMPUS KAPERS



ALRIGHT — WE GOTTA CUT BACK ON ADMINISTRATORS — AND TO ME, "ADMINISTRATORS" ARE THE PRESIDENT, CHANCELLOR AND VICE-CHANCELLORS!
MM-HM--
--LEAVING ONLY THE QUESTION OF WHETHER IT'LL BE YOU OR ME-- WAIT A MINUTE-- YOU ORN' WHO WHAT?
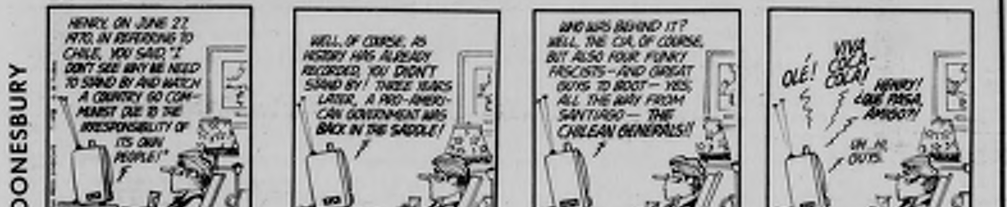
--WHO TELLS WOOD HE'S OUT OF A JOB.
OH
GAWD!
FOR CHRISE SAKE — THERE'S ONLY THIRTY OR FORTY PEOPLE ON CAMPUS TODAY!
YOU KNOW THIS STRIP IS NEVER GONNA GET SYNDICATED—
3/21

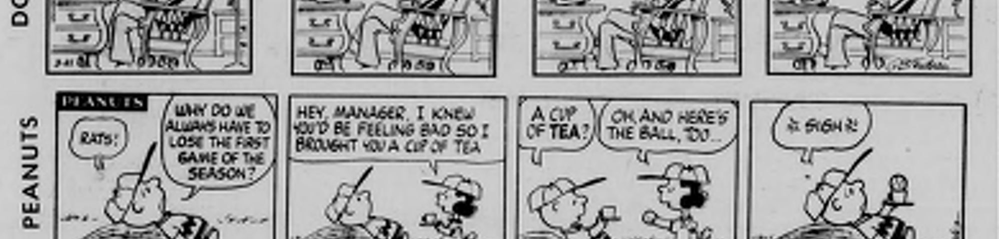
by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY



HENRY, ON JUNE 27, 1970, IN REFERRING TO CHILE, YOU SAID "I DON'T SEE WHY WE NEED TO STAND BY AND WATCH A COUNTRY GO COMMUNIST DUE TO THE IRRESPONSIBILITY OF ITS OWN PEOPLE!"
WELL, OF COURSE, AS HISTORY HAS ALREADY RECORDED, YOU DIDN'T STAND BY! THREE YEARS LATER, A PRO-AMERICAN GOVERNMENT WAS BACK IN THE SADDLE!
WHO WAS BEHIND IT? WELL, THE CIA, OF COURSE, BUT ALSO FOUR FUNKY FASCISTS—AND GREAT GUYS TO BOOT— YES, ALL THE WAY FROM SANTIAGO— THE CHILEAN GENERALS!!
OLÉ!
VIVA COCA-COLA!
HENRY! ¿QUE PASA, AMIGO?!
UH, HI, GUYS.
3-21

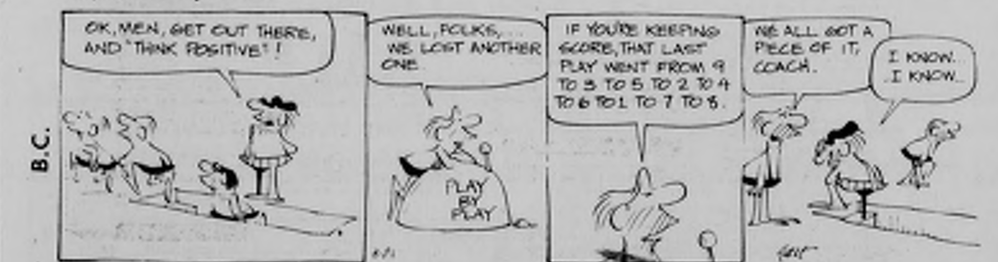
PEANUTS



PEANUTS
RATS!
WHY DO WE ALWAYS HAVE TO LOSE THE FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON?
HEY, MANAGER, I KNEW YOU'D BE FEELING BAD SO I BROUGHT YOU A CUP OF TEA
A CUP OF TEA?
OK, AND HERE'S THE BALL, TOO...
☆ SIGH ☆

By Johnny Hart

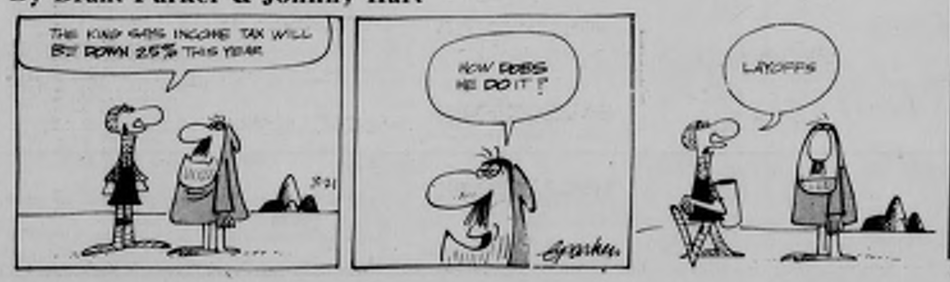
B.C.



OK, MEN, GET OUT THERE, AND "THINK POSITIVE"!
WELL, FOLKS, ... WE LOST ANOTHER ONE.
PLAY BY PLAY
IF YOU'RE KEEPING SCORE, THAT LAST PLAY WENT FROM 9 TO 3 TO 5 TO 2 TO 4 TO 6 TO 1 TO 7 TO 8.
WE ALL GOT A PIECE OF IT, COACH.
I KNOW. ... I KNOW.
3-21

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID



THE KING SAYS INCOME TAX WILL BE DOWN 25% THIS YEAR.
HOW DOES HE DO IT?!
LAYOFFS
3-21

notices

BOOGIE

Boogie like you never have before at the better than before Big Bad Boogie featuring the fantastic Luther Johnson Chicago Blues Band, April 5.

CIA AND WORLD PEACE

Senore Allende, widow of the late Salvador Allende, will be among speakers at a conference at Yale, April 5. Those interested in attending or for further information should contact John French 542-3227 or Stuart Belkin 665-3951. Buses will be chartered.

FASST

Federation of American Students Supporting Science and Technology meeting has been rescheduled for March 21-22 F.S. Will meet in C.C. 905-9 Friday 2-3 p.m., Saturday 10-11 a.m.

FRATERNAL DUMP ASSOCIATION

The FDA is sponsoring its annual crocus watch from March 21 thru vacation week. All western Mass. residents are invited to participate.

INTER VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Check C.C. schedule for Prayer Room - reserved from 11:00 to 1:00 today. Remember, our March 31 meeting - Rev. Brown, missionary to Pakistan, will share some of his experiences. Have a refreshing vacation.

LEWIS HOUSE

Counselor Applications forms are available in the Head of Residence Office. Deadline for applications is Friday, April 4.

PRE-NURSING

General meeting. Students in the Nursing Program will be present to answer questions. April 2, Wed., 7 p.m. Morrill 4th floor conference room.

OUTDOOR INTEREST GROUP

An important meeting will be held on Tuesday, April 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 163-164.

SABBATH SERVICES

Sabbath Services tonight in Colonial Lounge at 7 p.m.

STAR TREK LIVES

Next meeting Room 164 C.C. at 7:30 on April 2. Any questions call Barbara at 546-6672.

STUDENT CREDIT UNION TRAINING SESSION

All members and volunteers to meet in Room 166 for training session Sunday, March 30 at 8:00 p.m. We are opening March 31. All procedures to be outlined at this time.

FOUND

Watch in Mahar after 11:15 class. Call 6-5757 and describe it.

The Collegian is the only newspaper with campus and world news together — weekday mornings

Health help — call 253-7200

Slow start, slower finish Good things in between

Minuteman basketball in review

[illegible]

John Murphy—leader all season.

Please do not let this photo mislead you. Mike Pyatt (42) is NOT praising this referee.

[illegible]

Gym cont.

[illegible]

Baseball cont.

[illegible]

be an athletic supporter—read the Collegian

GRAY'S SUGARHOUSE

Pancakes, Waffles, Country Sausage & Bacon,

Homemade Apple Pie.

Beaver Meadow Farm — 3 mi. north of Ashfield Center — [illegible]
Serving Weekends [illegible]

Come Saturday — Avoid the Crowd

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.

[illegible]

Located on Rte. 9 Hadley-Amherst Line AMHERST

STORE HOURS: [illegible]

APRIL 2 — 5
Semi-Annual
Rental and Spring-Winter Equipment
SALE

30 — 60% Off all Rental Equipment, depending upon condition, including,
X-C Ski Outfits, Down Sleeping Bags, Pack Frames, Tents, Foam Pads, and Snowshoes.

[illegible]

Wrestling wrap-up; a long, hard season

By JOHN BOCK

[illegible]

Penny Noyes—All-American

[illegible]

UPI Telephoto

Fort Lauderdale, Fla.: Yankees manager Bill Virdon, (center, with glasses) is caught in an arm lock during a fight in the sixth inning of the Yankees-Rangers game yesterday afternoon.

Spring training roundup: Virdon, Martin in a tussle

[illegible]

AMHERST CYCLE SHOP

now located at 253 Triangle St.

We have a wide selection of bikes for the whole family, including excellent English and French racing and touring cycles, and now a NEW line of moderately priced ROSS bikes made in U.S.A.

Come by, look them over, and take advantage of our low introductory prices. See our other ad on page [illegible].

Appearing
THURS. — SUN.
Clean Living
at Rusty Nail
Inn
Rte. 47
Sunderland
665-1937

[illegible]

$1 [illegible]

[illegible]

Gymwomen to defend E.A.I.A.W. title

By BILL DOYLE

While most everyone else at UMass is beginning vacation, the top seeded UMass women gymnasts will be defending their E.A.I.A.W. gymnastics championship tonight and tomorrow afternoon in Dillon Gym at Princeton, N.J.

The Minutewomen were seeded first in the 29 team field because they had the highest team point average in the east, 102.6. Springfield was seeded second, as it had a 101.59 average. Penn State is third with a 100.4 average, Clarion State is fourth with a 100.3 average, and Southern Connecticut is fifth, averaging 99.7 points per meet.

Tonight the team and all-around championships will be decided and tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 p.m. with the individual titles will be determined.

UMass will be competing with Springfield, Penn State, and Clarion at 8:30 tonight.

"We have a good chance to win," Coach Virginia Evans said, "but this year we have the toughest field to compete against, which is good because we should improve with the competition.

"There is only a 2.3 point spread between the top four teams, so anyone of those teams could win it."

Coach Evans said that UMass will have Jeannine Burger, Susan Cantwell, and Pam Steckroat in the all-arounds. Burger is the defending E.A.I.A.W. all-around champ.

Seniors Gail Hannan and Marian Kulick will compete in vaulting along with freshwoman Cheryl Smith. On uneven bars will be Debbie Law, Linda Nelligan, and Ann Olson. Competing on balance beam will be Cindy Severyn, Margie Magraw, and Cheryl Smith. Olson, Smith and Alicia Goode will represent UMass in the floor exercise.

Besides being the defending all-around champ, Burger is also the defending floor exercise and uneven bar champion.

Throughout this season Burger hasn't been able to put together four strong events in one meet. Typical of the season, in the last two meets of the year, Burger had three strong events but she broke in her routine in the fourth. Against Southern, she fell during her floor routine and against Westchester State, she fell off the beam.

"If she hits her floor routine," Coach Evans said, "Burger could repeat as champ in the all-arounds."

Also a threat in the all-arounds for UMass is freshwoman Susan Cantwell, who outscored Burger in the all-arounds in every meet except the last one of the year against Westchester, Cantwell's best total of the season has been 35.75, that against Southern.

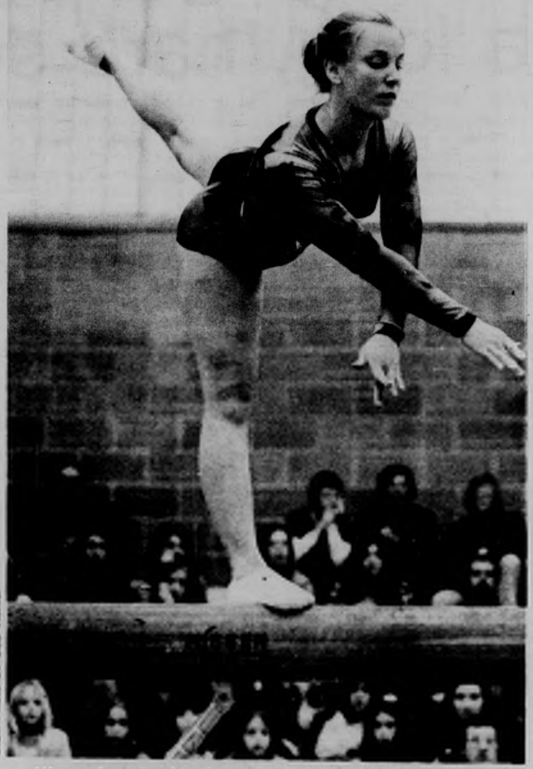
Cantwell should be a strong contender on the balance beam, which is her best event.

"Both Burger and Cantwell have looked really good in practice this week," Coach Evans said. "Our depth should really help in the championships, too."

The top ten individuals in each event go to the finals Saturday afternoon.

Coach Evans said that Southern's Cole Dowaliby, who totaled 37.30 against UMass, Penn State's Karen Schuckman, the defending national champ, Clarion's Karen Brezack, and Springfield's Katherine

turn to p. 14



Staff Photo by Bob Homer

Nissen is not only a brand of bread but also a brand of balance beam, as seen above. The Minutewomen gymnasts will be trying to defend their Eastern championship at Princeton this weekend.

Staff Photo by Joe Martins

Garber Gorillas Tim Murphy and Andy Scheffer storm the field after Jeff Spooner's game-winning, last-second goal against Brown last season.

Garber's Gorillas set; face Cornell Tuesday

"It used to be that the spring break was a good time for some scrimmage games and a good time to see what we've got," said Lacrosse coach Dick Garber, "now, well we'll be going right into it."

What coach Garber and his Lacrosse Gorillas will be "going right into," will be the start of the regular season while the rest of the university is on vacation.

There will not be a vacation of any kind for the Minutemen stickers as they will continue their practice season with a Saturday contest at 1:00 p.m. against Boston State. The game will be played behind Boyden, weather permitting, and if not, play will move inside the Cage.

Already this spring the Gorillas have scrimmaged Yale, and Nassau and Farmingdale Junior Colleges in New York.

"We've been playing fairly well," said Garber. "Our special teams (close defense and man-up and man-down teams) have been playing very well."

"On offense although we've takent a lot of shots," he continued, "we have not scored that well."

The Gorillas will then be traveling to Long Island where they will begin their regular season.

Tuesday they will face Cornell, the number 3 ranked team in the nation at Adelphi in Garden City.

Thursday the team will travel to Pennsylvania for scrimmage game with Bowling Green, another nationally ranked squad.

Saturday the regular season will continue for the Gorillas when they take on Hofstra. Hofstra is ranked 6th in the nation.

Last season the Gorillas had one of the most successful campaigns in their history as they won 11 games, while losing just 2. The high point of the year was the memorable last second win over Brown University that gave the Gorillas their first major college New England championship.

The top eight ranked teams in the nation make the NCAA playoffs in Lacrosse and the Gorillas just missed out by being ranked ninth at the season's end.

Reports of the teams "vacation" performance will be on these pages after spring break. The COLLEGIAN'S spring sports special will have complete profile's of the team, coach Garber, and much more on April 8th.

Baseballers travel South - seven games in seven days

By BOB HIGGINS

The 1975 baseball season will officially get under way next week when the UMass squad travels South for a grueling seven games in seven days.

The team will leave tomorrow for Chapel Hill, N.C., for a Sunday game with the University of North Carolina. That game will be followed by games with High Point College (Monday and Tuesday), UNC again on Wednesday, Wake Forest on Thursday, Guilford College Friday, and Randolph Macon College on Saturday.

"It's gonna be a tough week," commented Coach Dick Bergquist during yesterday's practice in the Cage. "We'll be playing every day while they'll have days off." Still, the coach thinks his team can win the majority, if not all of the games, and will be disappointed if they do not.

The Minutemen will be up against some tough competition throughout the week, according to Bergquist. "North Carolina's always strong, and they've already played fifteen games this year," he said. "I'm really looking forward to playing them."

Despite being a rather obscure name in college athletics, High Point College should prove a tough opponent for the Minutemen. High Point went 34-6 last season, and according to Bergquist, the fact that they play college division is unimportant in baseball.

Bergquist will be faced with a dilemma throughout the trip. He wants to win as many of the games as possible, since they all count in the team's record. However, it will also be a tryout period, especially for the pitchers. "I want to come back up here with some idea of who will be doing the job for me," he commented.

The coach was hard pressed to judge just how strong his team is at this point. "It's difficult to tell," he said. "We've been inside (the Cage) for six weeks, so it's tough to say what will happen when we get into live action."

turn to p. 14

Staff Photo by Chris Rourke

Coach Dick Bergquist, (right), hopes that he will not have to be in this position as often this season as he was last year. One of the team's priorities on their southern trip will be to improve their pitching staff.

No decision on universal fee

Gage sees mandatory dorm living, rent increase next year

By SUE ADLEY
Staff Reporter

"Dorms will probably still be mandatory next semester, with an increase in rent," said Vice Chancellor Robert Gage last night in a telephone interview with the Collegian.

According to Gage, no decision will be made this semester on the proposed universal resource fee, thus the present mandatory dorm system will continue. "Hopefully," said Gage, "we'll reach a decision on the universal fee by December of this year."

The proposed resource fee was $125 per student which would mean a $135 reduction in dorm rent.

"Most likely we will continue to run the residence hall system under the present ground," Gage said. "This isn't definite yet, but it's the best way until a fee is approved. The users will still bear the cost of residence. A result of this will be a definite increase in rent. There is absolutely no way to do it without a rent increase," he added.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said last night, "There hasn't been enough time for us to talk about the proposed resource fee with enough of the campus groups or with the President's office. Consequently, there'll be a continuation of the same set-up now in the dorms with a low rent increase. We had no rent increase at all this year."

"Gage and the Student Senate task force will be meeting on Monday and discussing this," he said.

The Chancellor said that there was a good possibility that the mandatory dining commons requirement would be replaced with other alternatives such as meal ticket options and changes in the dining commons format. Gage mentioned the possibility of a "small facilities fee" being passed to make eating in the dining commons voluntary.

"I can make no prediction at this time as to when the final funding will be decided upon," said Gage. "We will not have the option of delaying this in the future." When asked why the decision has been delayed up till now, Gage said he "could not comment." He did say, however, that it was his opinion

turn to p. 11

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 37 AMHERST, MA. MONDAY, MARCH 31, 1975

weather

Welcome back to windy days fair and clear and cold but not enough to cause dismay for Spring's as good as gold

Staff Photo by Dick Leonard

Robert Wood, University President

Senate to vote on fiscal autonomy for state institutions

By CINDY ROGERS
MDC Staff

A provision to remove fiscal autonomy from state institutions is scheduled for a Senate vote this week in the State Legislature.

UMass President Robert C. Wood said last night "a great deal of my efforts over the past few days has been in making sure the provision is defeated."

Mary-Ann Maguiera, staff assistant to Senator James A. Kelly sponsor of the provision said the provision is not a vendetta against Wood. "Wood is the strongest leader of higher education, and stands out as the biggest element because he usually takes the lead in opposing the legislature."

Kelly (D-Worcester) chairman of Senate Ways and Means Committee introduced the provision Thursday at a Senate hearing. The provision is an amendment to an Act of the legislature which allows institutions of higher education fiscal autonomy.

"It would give the legislature a handle on what kind of money is spent, so they would function like any other state agency. Higher Education has the second largest chunk of the budget next to welfare," Maguiera said.

Kelly made a report on higher education spending before introducing the amendment. The report stated that 987 faculty positions are not being used, Maguiera said. She also said the positions may be used for legitimate purposes but other uses of the monies could mean 14,000 more kids in public education.

The figures, she said, resulted from an analysis of faculty contact hours that the University and the state colleges were required to submit.

"It started with students at the UMass Amherst campus and their parents who complained to their congressmen that they rarely see full-time faculty," Maguiera said.

Maguiera described the faculty situation at the state institutions as an "inverse relationship." At the University, the faculty who spend the least amount of

turn to p. 11

Wood sees budget proposal as 'a difficult one to accept'

By CINDY ROGERS
MDC Staff

UMass President Robert C. Wood said yesterday Secretary of Education Paul Park's proposal calling for budget cutbacks in the area of administration is "a difficult one to accept."

He also said his office has not received a directive from Parks requesting a 10 per cent cutback in UMass' proposed budget for next fiscal year.

Parks, who discussed proposed budget cuts and tuition increases last week with the Student Government Association task force in Boston, said UMass budget cuts should be made in the area of administration and not in academic or support services.

"Because of the present deficit in the state," he said, "The Governor is trying to hold the line on taxes. By law we have to have a balanced budget so there has to be some belt tightening but no student services are going to be injured."

Parks also said he did not want to see increases in tuition, "I don't want to do it, I'd rather clean out the administration. The tuition increase will be based on the ability to pay if we come to that point."

Wood said the purpose of the proposed budget cutback was to divide faculty, students and administrators.

turn to p. 11

Gluckstern reviews budget, economy

By CHRISTINE DILLARD
MDC Staff

Provost and Vice Chancellor For Academic Affairs Robert L. Gluckstern is leaving UMass at a time when the university is facing serious budgetary problems to head the University of Maryland or College Park which is facing similar difficulties.

The University of Maryland is basing its budget for the next fiscal year on a smaller number of students and faculty then are actually present at the campus. The university faces a loss of 52 of 2200 faculty positions, which Gluckstern hopes will be faculty that leave on their own, rather than layoffs.

– Commenting on the porposed 10 per cent budget cut directive from Secretary of Education Paul Parks, Gluckstern said it would be impossible to make the cutbacks in overhead and administration without serious impact on student programs. He explained that the 10 per cent overall cut that is being discussed is a 10 per cent decrease in this year's expenditures, and is close to 30 per cent less than the figure requested for next year by UMass President Robert Wood.

Gluckstern said UMass has a number of strong supporters in the legislature, but administrators at UMass really can't tell how the legislature will respond at the budget hearings expected to take place this summer. He added, "I have a feeling that those that have the responsibility with the dollars will recognize what the impact of the budget cut is."

He said that when the economy is tight, all agencies must tighten their

turn to p. 11

Staff Photo by Robert Smeeding

Provost and Vice Chancellor Robert L. Gluckstern

Staff Photo by John Stewart

Six members of the Alternative Sunday News Service relax after one of their shows.

WMUA offers 'News Alternative'

By JOHN MCHALE
Staff Reporter

If you want to hear quite a different approach to news, WMUA's Alternative Sunday News Collective may have what you're seeking. Composed of about a dozen contributors, this group attempts each Sunday from 6 to 7 p.m. to present listeners with material it feels is "important."

What do they consider important? "Our main emphasis is the self determination of people both in this country and the world," said a spokesperson for the Collective. "There are liberation struggles carried on in the world not covered by the press on any level. We're picking up slack left by the major news services – sort of filling their void for the people. We feel there are a number of things wrong in the U.S. today and we're addressing ourselves to these inadequacies and to the common person's perspective."

This Alternative News Group will sometimes realign the hero's and villain's roles, as the Collective claims the media presently biases their order of priorities. "There are lots of names that no one covers or covers very slightly that we feel of paramount importance. Others cover the spectacular, for example every move that Ford and Rockefeller make. We cover news for the have-nots whereas the major services cover it for the rich. Our country is built on the corporate structure and they would have us believe that their survival is ours. We don't agree with this."

The spokesperson did not want to be identified, ostensibly because sentiments expressed were shared by the entire Collective. To further show their philosophy, the group said "The protectors of our country are in fact the investigators of war, for example the F.B.I., C.I.A., state and local police. The media of our times and country cover stories as if none of them interrelate, when in fact many do. We're trying to make up for this further inadequacy."

This belief in continuity to the news appears in the format the group follows at broadcast time. Members sit around a table together and start with the more local news, working their way up to state, national, and international events, often linking relationships.

Members of the Collective include Jose Tolson, Billie Stewart, Susan Markman, Alice Sunshine, Joe Leslie Hersch, Robin Rich, Zemi Braswell, Bob Forrant, Cliff Brennan, and others. These people all came together last summer when they worked at WMUA, got to discussing the inadequacies of the news services, and decided what should and would be done to rectify matters.

UMass art profs sign protest letter supporting A.C. artist

By MIKE FAY
Staff Reporter

An early spring brouhaha at Amherst College prompted twenty-four UMass art professors to sign a letter of protest addressed to Amherst College President John Ward.

Amherst professor and studio artist, Mark Oxman, denied tenure according to "Committee of Six" policy, is the man caught in the middle.

The Amherst "Committee of Six" is responsible for all policy decisions regarding tenure and promotion at that college. And "no-tenure" for studio artists is a long-standing Amherst policy that Mark Oxman became the center of, this spring.

The twenty-four UMass petitioners called the "no-tenure" policy, "discrimination." "In effect," the faculty wrote, "they (studio artists) are second-class citizens within the campus community."

Ward responded by letter to each of the twenty-four petitioners. He said the four studio artist appointments at Amherst "are explicitly visiting appointments for a term, and appointees who accept such appointment are aware of the fact." Defending the policy Ward said, "Students are thus exposed to work in different mediums and different approaches which ... permanent faculty in studio would not provide."

Mark Oxman, meanwhile, responded to all questions with a, "No comment." But reaction from the Five College area has been quick and to the point.

Leonard LeLonga of Mount Holyoke's Art Department labelled Ward's defense "a very old and very dull argument."

Dave Krieger, Vice-Chairman of the Amherst College student newspaper criticized the "no-tenure" policy in an investigative report series.

UMass art professor, Paul Norton, acknowledged the value of new mediums and approaches in studio art, but signed the petition to protest the inequities of the "no-tenure" policy. Norton cited the case of one William Darr, who worked as a studio artist at Amherst College for 9 years without being granted tenure or

turn to p. 11

Decision on School of Ed records suit expected soon

By JUDY BOUCHER
MDC Staff

A decision in a civil action suit seeking release of School of Education records will be forthcoming by the middle of next month.

In a hearing last week in Hampshire County Superior Court in Northampton both parties in the suit agreed to file briefs with Judge Raymond R. Cross by April 11.

The suit filed by William P. Densmore Jr., a Collegian reporter, claims the School of Education records are public documents despite a subpoena of the records by a Federal Grand Jury sitting in Boston. Densmore was denied access to records pertaining to administration of federal grants at the School of Ed.

UMass Attorney Sidney Myers' argument is that the grand jury is the custodian of the records and thereby not subject to public scrutiny.

However, Myers admitted that the records are physically present on the UMass-Amherst campus.

In an affidavit filed in the court, William J. Long, an agent of the Federal Grand Jury and special agent of the FBI, states that he has control of the records under subpoena.

In addition, Kenneth W. Johnson, UMass treasurer, charged as defendant says he was instructed by Long that all records are in custody of the federal grand jury.

In the defendants response filed with the court it was revealed that an additional subpoena had been issued on March 13.

The first subpoena was issued March 5, two days after Densmore requested a look at the School of Education records.

The second subpoena was issued on the same day Densmore and his attorney appeared in court in which the hearing was scheduled.

The second subpoena is all encompassing asking Johnson to appear with all accounting and financial records of any kind relating to grants or programs identifiable with the School of Education and the division of continuing education at the University of Massachusetts.

The first subpoena asks for all accounting and financial records identifiable with the Center for Urban Education within the School of Education and the division of continuing education at the UMass-Amherst campus.

James Newpher, agent in charge of the FBI unit in Boston, has said that the FBI would present its findings to a federal grand jury in early April and would ask for indictments by the second week in April.

The School of Education has been the subject of probes by the FBI, state Attorney General's office and district attorney for Franklin and Hampshire county offices.

Since printed reports of misuse of funds, three top administrators have resigned from the School of Education.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	BJ Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyle L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson
Associate Editors
Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth
Business
Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas
TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor	Dan LaBonte
Sports	Ron Arena, Bob Higgins
Darkroom	George Withers, John Stewart, Lionel Ribeiro Debbie Schafer, Robert Smerling

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

Photo Staff Meeting

There will be a meeting tonight of the entire Collegian Photo Staff at 6:30 in the office. Any who cannot make it please call in advance.

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents

GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S PIRATES of PENZANCE

APRIL 3,4,5 at 8pm APRIL 6 at 3:30 pm

BOWKER AUD, Stockbridge Hall, U.M.

$2.00 students & under 18 $2.50 others

Tickets go on sale March 17 at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter

545-0202 reservations and information

According to a random student survey

U.S. should halt further Indo-China involvement

By DEBBIE SCHAFER

The United States should halt any further involvement in the Indo-China war, according to most students who were interviewed in a Collegian random survey.

"It's their country, and the United States has no business being there," said Maria Santos, a UMass Spanish major. "If they want Communism, then let them have Communism. I think many Americans are interested in Vietnam because there was an oil find there... I'm sure that a lot of businessmen and members of Congress feel that it would be a good economical boost if we went into the war again," she said.

MARIA SANTOS

Approximately $150 billion has already been spent by the U.S. in Southeast Asia, and conservative estimates predict that the U.S. involvement will ultimately cost the American taxpayer upwards of $350 billion. President Ford's administration has already spent $1.2 billion in aid to South Vietnam.

ELISSA MAGNUSON

The news media is "drawing what's happening now all out of proportion," Santos added; "they're really trying to draw upon the American peoples' sympathy."

Coolidge resident Elissa Magnuson voiced a similar opinion. "The government is trying to build up public sympathy for the South Vietnamese people, and get the American public solidly behind the war effort. They want people who were once anti-Vietnam war to become supporters," she said.

Congress now seems likely to approve some of the military aid which President Ford is seeking for Indo-China. According to Henry Kissinger, refusal of aid would "deliberately destroy an ally."

But, do the people of Southeast Asia really regard the U.S. as an ally? "An important question we have to face is whether or not the people of Southeast Asia really want to have the type of governments that the U.S. is trying to get going over there... it seems to me that the general populus just isn't interested," said Russell Broz, a Hotel administration major. "They'd much rather be left alone, especially after having war for the past three decades," he added.

RUSSELL BROZ

Anti-American sentiment is prevalent in South Vietnam, according to an article which appeared in The Boston Globe yesterday. It is an "anti-Americanism which springs from a feeling of betrayal," the article said. Some sources feel that a mass anti-American rally is in the making, although hostility towards Americans is now limited to isolated incidents.

BRUCE KASANOFF

Bruce Kasanoff, UMass business major, feels that the corrupt South Vietnamese government should be done away with – "I don't think we should support it at all," he said.

In the past three weeks South Vietnamese forces have lost nearly all of the provincial capitals and government strong points on the coastal north and central highlands.

"Probably at this point Communist rule can take care of that area of the world better than the South Vietnamese 'democracy'," said Continuing Ed. student Michele Wiseman. "I feel that the U.S. is only using Southeast Asia as a manipulative force as far as Russia is concerned," she added, "and I feel that our involvement should stop. The United States really has to straighten out its policy as far as Vietnam is concerned."

all photos by Debbie Schafer

MICHELE WISEMAN

Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

Only hand tools are used by Richard Hardy on his woodwork.

Richard Hardy, one of the few remaining genuine hand craftsmen

By DOROTHY MULLER
Staff Reporter

A couple of days a week you can find Richard Hardy in the craft shop in the Student Union whittling away at his workbench. Hardy admits to being over forty, "with a kid in college" and a former English doctoral student turned to furniture carpentry because "it was less idealistic."

Hardy, a native of Jamaica, was squatting on the floor, in cowhide "chaps" and cowhide earth shoes putting the final touches on an original rosewood rocker. "To buy a chair like this retail would cost $300. I don't use a pattern if I want to make another I just get the general shape of the various pieces and approximate.

"Rosewood is one of the most difficult woods to work with, but it's one of the most beautiful. Which side of a board you use depends on the graining in the wood."

Hardy never touches a power tool and he "was aghast at the prospect." Every board, every joint and even the finish are produced by hand. "When you work with rosewood, part of the beauty is the variation in the grain. But when you start planing there are spots where the grain comes up at you so that instead of smoothing you tear the wood. You can plane it down to about one-thirty-second of an inch which doesn't sound like much, but then you have to use a lot of hand rubbing for a satin finish."

One of Hardy's "original" is a "Latin-American style birthing chair." Originally these were used by women in labor but this particular version has North-American additions.

The chair has three legs and a high narrow back, "with New England style fretwork, and every bit of it is hand tooled," says Hardy. "The chair took third place in a furniture show this year. But the only reason they didn't give it first was because they didn't believe it was hand-made."

Hardy is currently working on a desk, the project for a class he teaches in furniture craft four hours a day on Tuesdays and Thursdays. While the students watch he demonstrates the techniques of "planing in a runner" for a desk drawer.

"But you don't learn by watching," says Hardy. "If someone asks me how you mark off the dovetailing on a joint, I may show them once and then he does it. Then we review the results."

Hardy may be one of the last generations of hand craftsmen. "I am the only person I know who can sharpen the blade on a plane by ear-by the pitch," he says. As he slides the blade over the stone in a figure eight motion "to prevent sharpening the blade into a bow shape," he raises or lowers the blade until he hears just the right pitch. "You have to hold it so that you hear that one note which tells you you're not sharpening the heel."

"I'll bet you didn't know there are at least ten uses for a plane," he says. "We live in a completely mechanized age. The man is just an instrument of his machine. People just don't know what they are capable of. They don't get a sense of satisfaction from their work."

Hardy gestures with a carpenter's square. "You can do a million things with this, "build stairs, roofs anything." The square, according to Hardy, is essential to hand carpentry. "The first rule of carpentry is, never assume that anything is square. But you can usually get it pretty close."

Starting Wednesday and continuing till next Tuesday the Collegian will be featuring a special election section to inform students about candidates and the issues in Amherst's April 8 town elections.

The Collegian welcomes input from all candidates running for office. Articles, opinions and flyers should be brought to the Collegian office before Thursday, April 3, to insure complete coverage.

SOP lawyers near completion of student union legislation

By DEBORAH GALLAGHER
Staff Reporter

Lawyers for the Student Organizing Project (SOP) have put the finishing touches on a piece of legislation that, if approved by the UMass Board of Trustees, would grant students the right to unionize.

The Student Union Enabling Act, primarily written by noted Constitutional lawyer Leonard Boudin, may be presented to the Board of Trustees on May 7, according to SOP staff member Neala King.

SOP members will be appearing before the Student Senate, Area Governments, and the major RSO groups this week, King said, to explain the act and to establish "concrete student support." She added, "The policy right now is conditional on student support but it is a fair assumption that it will be supported" based on the support the SOP has received in the past.

Staff Coordinator [illegible] Phelps, a Harvard law student and one of the amendment's authors, explained that the amendment would grant the students the power of collective bargaining in negotiating the "terms and conditions of the students' contract with the University."

The amendment gives UMass students "...the same rights and powers with respect to questions of costs, degree requirements, and other conditions of their education and of their contractual relationship to the University ... as are enjoyed by employees..." It would give students who, according to Phelps, are in the "weakest position" compared with faculty and staff, equal [illegible] in determining the decisions which affect their lives and the legal sanction to enforce those decisions.

Democrats back Ford on signing of tax cut

Limit on spending urged by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's conclusion that the need for a tax cut outweighed the defects of the tax bill he signed Saturday was "the right thing" according to top congressional Democrats.

Ford signed the $24.8 billion tax cut measure into law during a national broadcast address Saturday night, but said he will try to clamp a lid on government spending to hold down the deficit.

The bill provides a variety of tax changes and reductions with the most immediate effect a rebate of $100 to $200 on 1974 taxes for most Americans. The first checks are expected to go out in early May.

Ford was critical of several provisions of the measure but said he was signing it because of "the urgent necessity of an anti-recession tax cut right now."

In January he had asked for a smaller cut aimed more at middle income taxpayers, and he noted Saturday that this law "fails to give adequate relief to the millions of middle-income taxpayers who already contribute the biggest share of federal taxes."

The measure is aimed to give the largest refunds to lower and middle income persons, with incomes up to $20,000.

Ford's action drew praise from both Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Both men said the President did "the right thing."

Some Republicans and other Democrats, however, indicated they wished the President had vetoed the measure.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said he agreed "that we've got to hold down federal spending as much as possible to keep the deficit down. But I don't want to see this become an excuse for this administration to dismantle badly needed domestic programs it doesn't like."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said he could understand Ford's reasoning but was disappointed that he did not veto the bill. "This country cannot go on having the kind of deficits this will mean without going bankrupt in a period of five years," he said.

Major provisions include:

—A 10 per cent refund of 1974 taxes up to a minimum of $200 and with a minimum of $100 except for persons who paid less than $100, who would get back all the taxes they paid.

—An increase in the standard deduction for 1975 for persons who do not itemize on their tax returns.

—A $30 tax credit on 1975 taxes for every taxpayer and each additional personal exemption claimed.

—A 1975 earned income tax credit to help the working poor through special payments to help compensate them for the Social Security taxes they pay.

—A tax credit of 10 per cent of earned income up to $400 for working families with children whose income is less than $8,000.

—Special tax credits for buyers of new homes of 5 per cent of the purchase price up to $2,000.

—Increases in deductions allowed for child care for working parents.

—Investment tax credits for businesses to help spur investment in new machinery.

—An additional 13 weeks of unemployment benefits for hard core jobless areas.

—A $50 payment to persons on Social Security, Railroad Retirement and Aid to the Blind, Aged and Disabled.

—Repeal of the oil depletion allowance for major firms.

—Changes in foreign tax credits for businesses.

As he announced the bill signing, Ford added that he will draw the line on the 1976 budget deficit at a record $60 billion — $8 billion more than his January estimate.

"This is as far as we dare to go," said the President. "I will resist every attempt by the Congress to add another dollar to the deficit by new spending programs."

Clemency program ends at midnight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's clemency program ends at midnight tonight after bringing some one-sixth of nearly 100,000 draft evaders and military deserters back to their native land.

Charles Goodell, chairman of the Presidential Clemency Board, said about 16,700 applications had been received as of last Friday. The board has until next September to complete processing the applications, but the deadline for applying will pass at midnight.

Those who illegally avoided military service during the Vietnam war can apply before the deadline by calling the board anytime before midnight Monday. The telephone numbers are [illegible].

Goodell said the board has completed action on [illegible] applications, and the results appeared uneven. Nearly one-third of the applicants received full clemency and were not required to perform some alternative public service work.

Virtually all of the rest were required to work only the minimum three months before receiving clemency.

The clemency program was begun under an executive order last September. Only 940 applications were received through December. A massive advertising and public relations campaign at the beginning of this year resulted in a boom in requests, peaking in February at [illegible]. Through last Thursday, [illegible] had applied in March.

Goodell said he has asked Ford to double the size of the nine-person clemency board to help cope with the backlog of petitions. He added he favored legislation now pending in Congress extending clemency in some form beyond the deadline tonight.

Criminal indictments may come against oil companies for fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government investigators of alleged oil company profiteering at the height of the Arab oil embargo are fighting among themselves over whether to seek criminal indictments, according to sources close to the case.

The U.S. Customs Service wants the cases criminally prosecuted, the sources said, but the Federal Energy Administration is arguing that the matter should be persued through administrative channels. The Justice Department reportedly is caught in the middle but so far has sided with customs.

Federal Energy Administration lawyers say published reports that oil companies may have overcharged U.S. consumers by billions of dollars are gross exaggerations without evidence to support them.

According to tabulations Saturday, the FEA has forced the oil industry to give back some $613 million through refunds, price rollbacks or cancellation of claims on future price hikes.

Investigators say the industry may have cheated the public out of $861 million or more since the Arab oil embargo.

The probe is going on in several cities, but only one case — in Jacksonville, Fla. — so far has reached the stage of being presented to a grand jury. Oil company executives who are subjects of that investigation say the whole matter is the result of "a terrible misunderstanding."

The Customs Service says the joint Customs-FEA investigation began last August and was focused on residual fuel oil imported chiefly through East Coast ports. A major portion of the residual fuel oil brought into this country is used by public utilities.

A status report on the six-month old probe said that although oil was a duty-free product during the 1973-74 embargo period, "false and fraudulent custom documents may have been submitted by importers as part of a scheme to reap huge profits by attaching fictitious surcharges to the price of oil. These charges are eventually passed on to consumers."

During the embargo that began in late 1973, some countries outside the Arab bloc continued to sell oil at pre-embargo prices while other boosted their charge nearly 500 percent.

Fun City Fast!

Catch A Ride With Continental Trailways.

A Continental Trailways Deluxe Motorcoach leaves Springfield for New York City every hour from [illegible] A.M. to [illegible] P.M. daily.

Peter Pan Bus Lines provide direct connecting service from:

■Amherst—leaving at [illegible] A.M. then hourly from [illegible] A.M. on through [illegible] P.M.

■South Hadley—leaving at [illegible] A.M., [illegible] A.M., [illegible] P.M., [illegible] P.M. and [illegible] P.M. ... [illegible] A.M. by advance reservation—no reservation needed for other departures.

■Northampton—leaving at [illegible] A.M., then hourly from [illegible] A.M. on through [illegible] P.M.

Average running time to New York (George Washington Bridge Terminal) is just 3 hours ... [illegible] minutes additional to midtown New York.

Ride with Peter Pan and Continental Trailways. You'll meet interesting people like yourself, have time to read, relax and contemplate.

Ticket Offices:

[illegible]

SUNSHINE RECORDS

SALE

All Single Albums

3 for $10.99

Latest Releases · Top Artists
Old Favorites Too

Doubles & Imports
Also On Sale

No. 9 E. Pleasant St.

Store Hours, 10-8 — Sale Ends Wed. Night

Please . . . No Trades During Sale

4 Doors From The Pub

Connecticut veterans bitter about war

Frustrated groups say war was waste

HARTFORD (AP) - With the communist Viet Cong now in control of the entire northern half of South Vietnam, many veterans of the war throughout the state are expressing frustration. The head of one veterans group says the war was a waste.

But the head of the Connecticut Veterans of Foreign Wars VFW defends America's presence in the 1960s, and is blasting Congress for failing to approve military aid for the anti-Communist regime there.

"I think current events really show what a waste all those years were," said [illegible], president of the Connecticut Concerned Veterans.

"It makes me sick when I think about it."

The VFW state commander, Frank Lavender of Fairfield, said Congress is to blame for the deteriorating military situation of the Saigon regime.

"I'm going to have to blame this on our Congress," he said in an interview yesterday.

"They should approve the [illegible] million in military aid for South Vietnam which President Ford is seeking" "and not worry about Watergate and not worry about the CIA," he said.

"If Congress refuses to give aid to Cambodia and Vietnam, then they are in fact saying, let's forget all the soldiers who fought in past years or who have died or given up parts of their bodies or their homes," Lavender said.

Saturday was officially proclaimed Vietnam Veterans Day in Connecticut, and some gathered at the State Capitol here in Hartford to mark the occasion. Saturday also was the day the key city of Da Nang fell to the Communists giving them control of all of northern South Vietnam.

One veteran, Jim Bacon, said "some veterans I've talked to said if they had to do it all over again, the way that it's ending now, they wouldn't have gone into the service.

"They would have gone to Canada" instead to avoid the draft like many other young people, he said.

"The time we spent fighting for our country we could have been in educational programs" leading to better jobs, Bacon said.

"Now that we're back, the job market's closed.

"We were there twice as long as in World War II and we're not even getting equal benefits now," he said.

Another veteran, Walt Soder of Hartford, said he opposes American reinvolvement in Viet Nam.

"That would be a sin, to commit ourselves any more than we already have.

"I don't like what's being done to the real people over there. Most of them don't know the difference between a Communist and a capitalist."

"We are now known as American the vincible, not America the invincible."

Concrete rings that will support one of the [illegible]-barrel tanks at the Trans-Alaska pipeline terminal in Valdez, Alaska, are under construction. Eighteen such tanks are being built in that port city to hold all that is to flow once the Alaska pipeline is finished.

Civil war in Eritrea province reaches stalemate, analysts say

ASMARA (UPI) - The two-month old Ethiopian civil war in Eritrea has reached a stalemate but between 5,000 and 10,000 persons already have been killed in the fighting, military analysts said yesterday.

Neither government troops nor the Eritrean rebels now appear capable to deal the knockout blow that would end the war by summer as each side had promised.

The analysts predicted the fighting could drag out for months or even years.

It began as a localized guerrilla war [illegible] years ago and erupted into full scale civil war Jan. 31, when rebels attacked the Eritrean capital of Asmara.

The war soon engulfed Eritrea, Ethiopia's northern-most province, and pitted more than 20,000 government troops, half the army's total strength, against some 6,000 well-trained, well-armed guerrillas.

Bolstered by fresh troops from the south, a fleet of [illegible] obsolete American-built aircraft and Washington's promise of $7 million worth of emergency ammunition supplies, the government has consolidated its grip on Asmara and the vital ports of Massawa and Assab and fighting has tapered off.

The government's only casualty list said 2,300 persons, most of them rebels, had been killed in the first three weeks of fighting.

Military analysts here say between 5,000 and 10,000 persons have been killed in two months of fighting, with the number of wounded estimated at the usual five times as many as the killed.

The analysts said government troops suffered far more casualties than the guerrillas but that civilians probably suffered the most.

Diplomatic reports and statements by rebels have cited evidence that government troops still were conducting a systematic campaign of terror against 2.5 million Eritrean civilians, most of whom back the rebellion. But the reports did not altogether support rebel claims of genocide.

The current conflict is rooted in Ethiopia's 1962 decision to annex Eritrea, which spawned the independence movement spearheaded by the Eritrean Liberation Front and the Popular Liberation Front - financed largely by such Arab states as Libya, Iraq and Syria.

Eaton's Corrasable

Typing Paper

4 different weights

at

A. J. HASTINGS

Newsdealer and Stationer

45 S. Pleasant St.
AMHERST

CambodiaCommunists drive toward capital

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) - Communist-led insurgents overran a government position six miles from Phnom Penh yesterday in their drive against the capital's northern defense line as President Lon Nol prepared to leave the country.

Field reports said about 30 government soldiers abandoned [illegible] and swam west across the Tonle Sap River at a point six miles north of the capital. The retreat was followed by an insurgent mortar attack on villages along Highway 5 which killed three persons and wounded six.

Pan Sothi, secretary-general of Lon Nol's Social Republican party, said the half-crippled, 61-year-old leader is scheduled to fly out of the country tomorrow. He will go first to Indonesia, then to Hawaii for "medical treatment." Reliable sources said he might go to Washington before Hawaii.

No one is calling the flight political exile, and Lon Nol is to retain the title of president while abroad.

news summary

Israel displeased

By The Associated Press

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said yesterday that Israel would take as a "negative indication" Egypt's announced refusal to extend the mandate of U.N. peacekeeping forces in the Sinai Desert for more than three months.

Rabin was displeased at Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's announcement in Cairo on Saturday that he will renew the U.N. peace force's mandate for only three months, rather than the six-month periods the peacekeepers have been given by the U.N. Security Council until now.

"The maintenance of the U.N. forces in their present form is part of the overall framework of the disengagement agreements" separating Israeli and Egyptian troops, Rabin said in Israel's first official comment on Sadat's speech.

Aid reform sought

BOSTON (UPI) - A coalition of taxpayers and revenue spenders converge on the State House today to urge legislative approval of any of three proposals that would increase the state's share of education costs by nearly [illegible] million.

The primary result of the combined effort will be to reduce the property tax rates in Massachusetts' 351 cities and towns.

A major side effect will be to move strongly to equalize educational funding across the state, thereby avoiding potential law suits, such as those in California, Texas and New Jersey that forced those states to revise their funding formulas.

Greek election held

ATHENS (UPI) - Greek voters yesterday elected mayors and other local government officials for the first time in 11 years.

Counting was to begin immediately after the polls closed last night.

"Voting is taking place with calm and order. We have no reports of any trouble," the secretary general of the Ministry of the Interior said.

Foundation cuts aid

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Ford Foundation announced yesterday that it will cut its annual grant budget in half by 1978 because of the "extraordinarily bad financial weather of 1973 and 1974."

Ford Foundation President McGeorge Bundy wrote in the organization's annual report for 1974 that the cuts were made so the foundation could "remain a force for the long run."

Until now, he said, the annual program budgets have run about $200 million, but they will have to be cut to about $100 million by 1978 because foundation assets have been badly depleted.

dvp

We've bought you Angela Davis, Daniel Ellsberg, Vaughn Bode, Francis Fitzgerald, Dennis Banks, Mickey Rooney and many, many more.

Come join us and help us make decisions — The Distinguished Visitors Program is now accepting applications for membership.

Pick up your application in the Student Union Building, Room 415 or at the C.C. Information desk.

THE WOK RESTAURANT

"Chinese Home Style Cooking"

Open 7 Days — 5-10 p.m.

No Reservations   Take Out Service

Tuesday Special: Dinners $2.00

Rte. 9, Hadley   [illegible]

Across from Cumberland Farms

Let the Marantz people test your stereo for free.

Wondering about the condition of your audio equipment?

Just bring in your amplifier, preamplifier, or receiver — regardless of age, make, or where you bought it. The Marantz people will take it from there.

First, they will thoroughly test your equipment (except the tuner section of your receiver) on $7,000 worth of precision laboratory equipment. And they'll tell you if you're getting all the sound performance you paid for.

In addition, the results will be plotted on a graph for your records. You'll also get an attractive brochure that explains exactly what's been done and what it all means.

There are no strings attached.

And you don't have to buy anything. We're bringing the Marantz people to our store simply to get you to know us a little better.

Date: April 1, 1975 Time: 11 a.m.-8:00 p.m.

tech hifi

Quality Components at the Right Price

359 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3610

marantz.

Da Nang crumbles under Viet Cong offensive

Two million refugees flood northern city

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, and other northern coastal strongholds crumbled yesterday before a powerful North Vietnamese offensive that rolled southward toward Qui Nhon, leaving in its wake destruction, panic and an estimated two million refugees.

The Viet Cong threatened to block the U.S.-led sealift of refugees from Da Nang, and there were new calls for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, with some opposition politicians predicting Saigon itself will fall if he stays in power.

Demoralized government forces offered little resistance as the North Vietnamese plunged 175 miles from Da Nang to Qui Nhon, where fighting was reported. U.S. officials said all Americans had been evacuated from Qui Nhon, a port city that is South Vietnam's third largest with more than 200,000 people. Like Da Nang, it was once a major U.S. base.

Despite flat reports by Saigon military officials that Da Nang had fallen, Defense Department officials in Washington said they still had no confirmation the city was lost, and their latest information was that fighting was still going on there. The United States no longer has any official representatives or observers in Da Nang.

Hanoi radio said many South Vietnamese troops in Da Nang mutinied and the people poured into the streets to welcome the Viet Cong. However, at least two American cargo ships made their way into the harbor to continue the evacuation of refugees.

Associated Press correspondent Peter O'Loughlin reported from the S.S. Pioneer Contender that 10,000 soldiers, women and children were storming the gangways of the Contender and the Pioneer Commander.

O'Loughlin said they had spent four days on ammunition barges without food and water. He reported the birth of one baby in the panic, the death of another, with still more likely to die.

He said there were sunken patrol boats in the harbor and that the ships had been warned of a possible underwater sapper attack.

President Ford has ordered four U.S. Navy ships into Vietnam coastal waters to assist the evacuation, and Britain, Australia and several other U.S. allies have promised vessels. But U.S. sources said only an accommodation with the Communist conquerors will permit the sea evacuation of all the refugees still trying to escape Da Nang.

The North Vietnamese now control virtually all of the upper half of South Vietnam, freeing some of their ten divisions in the region to push even further south toward Quy Hoa, Nha Trang and Cam Ranh Bay, where the sealift is carrying refugees from Da Nang.

Eventually, the North Vietnamese should be able to mount a major push in the 3rd military region that includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces. There are already five North Vietnamese divisions poised to attack Tay Ninh province northwest of Saigon and Long Khanh and Binh Tuy provinces to the east.

Informed sources believe a major Communist-led assault against Saigon could not be adequately resisted. They say president Nguyen Van Thieu's power base also is eroding quickly and that political changes could swiftly follow more North Vietnamese successes.

As many as 10 million civilians, half of South Vietnam's civilian population, were either under control of the Communist side, living in contested areas or on the run. An estimated 100,000 troops — 10 per cent of the total military force — were reported lost as a result of the fall of Da Nang and Hue before it.

Millions of dollars worth of military equipment were left behind, reportedly including the equipment of a full air division at Da Nang.

Such losses could spell doom for the South Vietnamese government.

Fleeing soldiers fight refugees, as evacuation causes wide panic

(Editor's note: UPI correspondent Paul Vogle Saturday flew out on a refugee plane from Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city and the last government outpost in the northern part of the country.)

DA NANG, South Vietnam (UPI) — Only the fastest, the strongest and the meanest got out on what may be the last refugee plane from Communist threatened Da Nang Saturday.

I saw a South Vietnamese soldier kick an old woman in the face to get aboard.

People fought one another and died trying to get aboard. Others fell thousands of feet to their deaths in the sea because even desperation could no longer keep their fingers welded to the undercarriage.

It was a ride I'll never forget.

World Airways President Ed Daley was aboard. He was angry and tired. Daley said he had been up all night arguing with American and Vietnamese officials for permission to fly into beseiged Da Nang to get more refugees out.

Daley finally said to hell with paperwork, clearances and caution and we were on our way.

More than a thousand people had been waiting around a Quonset hut several hundred yards away from where we touched down.

Suddenly it was a mob in motion — they roared across the tarmac on motorbikes, jeeps, scooters and on legs speeded by sheer desperation and panic.

Daley and I stood near the bottom of the 727's tailramp. Daley held out his arms while I shouted in Vietnamese, "One at a time — one at a time. There's room for everybody."

There wasn't room for everybody and everybody knew damn well there wasn't.

If Daley thought he'd get some women and children out of Da Nang he was wrong. The plane was jammed in an instant with troops of the 1st Division's meanest unit, the Hac Bao (Black Panthers).

They literally ripped the clothes right off Daley along with some of his skin. A British television cameraman who flew up with us made the mistake of getting off the plane when we landed to shoot the loading. He could not get back aboard in the pandemonium so he threw his camera with its precious film into the closing door and stood there and watched us take off.

We heard later that an Air American helicopter picked him up and carried him to safety.

As we started rolling, insanity gripped those who had missed their chance. Government troops opened fire on us. Somebody lobbed a hand grenade toward the wing. The explosion jammed the flaps full open and the undercarriage in full extension.

Our pilot, Ken Healy, 52, of Oakland, Calif., slammed the throttles wide open and lurched into the air from the taxiway. There was no way we could have survived the gunfire and got onto the main runway.

A backup 727 had flown behind us but had been ordered not to land when the panic broke out. The pilot radioed he could see the legs of people handing down from the undercarriage of our plane.

There were 268 or more people jammed into the cabin of the little 727 limping down the coast.

Only two women and one baby among them. The rest were soldiers, toughest of the tough, meanest of the mean. They proved it Saturday. They didn't talk to each other or us. They looked at the floor.

There was no more fight left in the Black Panthers this day. They had gone from humans to animals and now they were vegetables.

When we touched down the troops who had stormed us were offloaded and put under arrest. They deserved it.

The mangled body of one soldier, M16 rifle still strapped to his shoulder, was retrieved from the undercarriage. He got his ride to Saigon but being dead in Saigon is just the same as being dead in Da Nang.

The last plane from Da Nang was one hell of a ride.

Hanoi offensive could be delayed for several weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon analysts predicted yesterday the North Vietnamese Army will need at least several weeks to shift its troops, supplies and equipment southward for a crucial attack on Saigon.

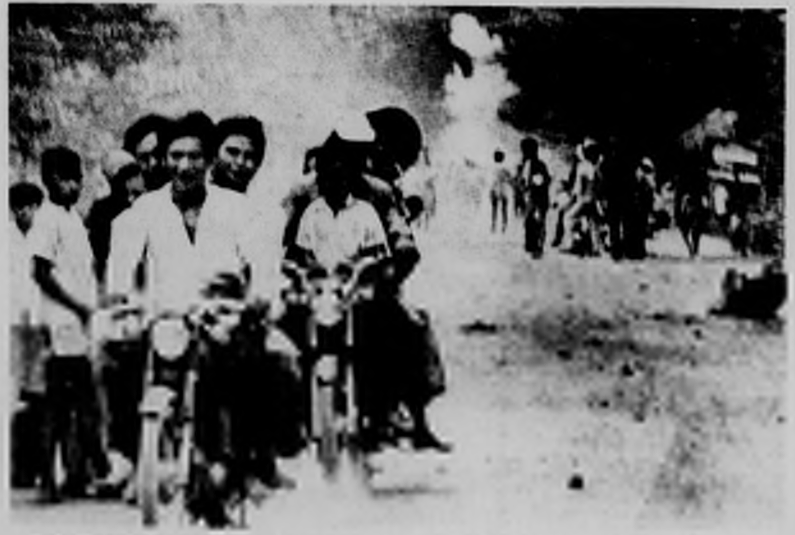
Anticipation of an attack on the South Vietnamese capital grew after NVA tanks and troops blasted their way late Saturday into Da Nang, a coastal city 380 miles north of Saigon.

Now in control of the entire northern third of South Vietnam, the communists have not yet indicated whether they plan to clean out and consolidate the recently fallen areas of the coast and highlands, or leave those areas to "mop up" and instead try for Saigon, military experts said.

Pentagon experts said there were some indications that Da Nang has not yet fallen to the North Vietnamese, but they said it is only a matter of time.

"It depends what you mean by fall," one analyst said. "It seems certain the North Vietnamese do not have control. But the South Vietnamese don't, either. It's just a big vacuum with panicky refugees scurrying about."

The biggest question facing these analysts was the fate of South Vietnam's sole marine division, which was under heavy siege near Da Nang. Pentagon officials knew that division was still intact Saturday afternoon, but had no more information yesterday.



A shell explodes on the crowded highway as South Vietnamese civilians flee the Viet Cong offensive in the Central Highlands recently. This scene was near the town of Duc Trong, 22 miles north of Saigon, when the Communists were advancing through South Vietnamese provinces. It was estimated that over two million refugees have been created by the upsurge in Vietnamese fighting.

Viet Cong denounce US effort to evacuate Da Nang refugees

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Viet Cong yesterday denounced as a "deceptive trick" a U.S.-led effort to organize a sealift of refugees from Da Nang and threatened "to punish all acts of encroachment" against their sovereignty.

"The fact that the United States and some other countries have sent shipping vessels to Da Nang allegedly to evacuate refugees is simply a deceptive trick about humanitarianism which is in essence to intervene in the affairs of South Vietnam to assist the Nguyen Van Thieu clique," a Viet Cong spokesman said in Saigon.

"The South Vietnamese armed forces and people are determined to punish all acts of encroachment upon their sovereignty. The United States and some other countries now taking after in committing these wrongdoings will have to bear responsibility for their actions."

The Viet Cong statement came as U.S. sources said only an accommodation with the Communist-led forces in Da Nang would permit the massive sea evacuation of hundreds of thousands of refugees still trying desperately to escape South Vietnam's second largest city, which fell earlier in the day.

The judgment came after the South Vietnamese government appealed to the United Nations and the International Red Cross to take over running the evacuation and prevent any possible Communist interference with the sealift.

However, there were no reports of any interference with the sea evacuation from Da Nang. Officials said at least 15,000 Vietnamese have landed at Cam Ranh Bay from Da Nang since Saturday, including an estimated 6,000 aboard a U.S. Navy cargo ship, the U.S.S. Andrew Miller.

President Ford has ordered four U.S. Navy landing vessels into coastal waters off Vietnam to continue a stepped up evacuation from Da Nang. U.S. officials said the vessels were due to arrive in two days.

They will join three American cargo ships, including the Andrew Miller, already operating in a sea evacuation that has carried an estimated 30,000 to 50,000 persons from Da Nang since last Thursday.

The Collegian is the only newspaper with campus and world news together — weekday mornings

Despite rumors, language requirement still in effect

By ROBERTA MARTONE
Staff Reporter

Rumors that the language requirement for UMass undergraduates may be abolished are, for the most part, unfounded, according to James Shaw, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at CASIAC.

Shaw was asked to verify the existence of two possible language exemptions: a signed note from an instructor, if the student is having difficulty with the language and a signed note from an academic advisor saying the requirement is irrelevant to the student's field of study.

He answered that such "sweeping revisions" would probably not be approved.

"If that were to happen, we would probably have students switching majors daily until they found a sympathetic advisor," Shaw said.

Shaw said he was hesitant to say anything definite about the requirement because, in the past, "students have gambled on the requirement being dropped, and lost." Some students found themselves unable to graduate because of failure to fulfill the language requirement, he added.

Currently, two committees are discussing the matter, Shaw said. The Curriculum Committee, whose responsibility is to discuss all curriculum changes at UMass, is reviewing the foreign language requirement in general.

The CASIAC Steering Committee is reviewing the situation only from the waiver standpoint.

Possible waivers that presently exist are:

— Completion of a foreign language course at the 140 level.

— Satisfactory performance on an achievement or placement test.

Satisfactory completion in High School of a fourth level foreign language course, or a third level course in one foreign language and a second level course in another.

— A year in high school in which English is not the basic language of instruction.

— Substitution of a language-related study if there is clearly demonstrated difficulty in language study, which has been approved by a CASIAC Dean.

The most frustrating waiver to prove, according to Shaw, is the "language block."

"There is no hard evidence that there is actually a language block. Consequently, there is no test for it. The only way we can attempt a solution is to eliminate other possibilities," he said.

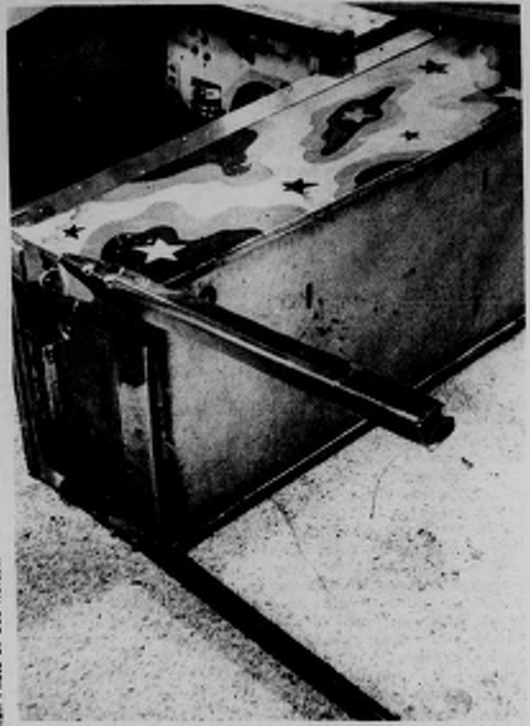
Shaw cited possibilities such as a speech and hearing problem, or failure after an actual attempt at the language has been made.

According to Shaw and others involved, the issue was supposedly settled two years ago. In actuality, the two committees haven't met in full yet.

For this reason, Shaw says he thinks the requirement issue won't come under serious consideration until next fall.

"We are only in the preliminary stages of discussion. We're not sure when it will come to a vote," he said.

Shaw added that both the Steering Committee and the Curriculum Committee need more student input.



Staff Photo by Bob Nercott

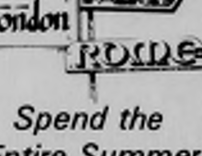
The Ultimate tilt. I guess next time I'd better give him a replay.

Tax bill won't effect unfiled 1974 returns

President Ford's signing of the tax cut bill Saturday night will have no immediate effect on any person who has not yet filed his 1974 income tax return. According to Nate Gordon, UMass Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Coordinator, the return should be filed in exactly the same way it would have been had there been no changes in the law.

"Any rebate on this year's taxes will be sent automatically to the taxpayer by the Internal Revenue Service," says Gordon. "The IRS will begin to send out rebates to those who qualify at the beginning of June. The people who filed the earliest will be the first to receive their rebates."

Besides the rebate, wage earners will also feel the happy effects of the tax bill by lowered withholding rates to reflect the cut in 1975 taxes.



*Spend the Entire Summer in Europe for just $377

BOSTON — PARIS — BOSTON

If you are a member of any of the 5 colleges within this area you may qualify for this low group fare

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT MR. RICHARD PINI — 253-7766

* air fare only

A Windfall of Books
at
THE UNIVERSITY STORE

spain
A HISTORY IN ART
BRADLEY SMITH

JAPAN A HISTORY IN ART mexico

A HISTORY IN ART
BRADLEY SMITH

SPAIN A History In Art JAPAN A History In Art MEXICO A History In Art
Bradley Smith

SPAIN, MEXICO and JAPAN...the fascinating history of each country revealed through the artwork of its people, from the most awkward ancient art to the most sophisticated the Twentieth Century has to offer. Each book illustrated with hundreds of full color plates, richly bound to insure a long life of pleasurable reading.

Was $30.00 Now $9.95

Man and his symbols
Carl G. Jung

MAN AND HIS SYMBOLS
Carl G. Jung

A popular-priced edition of the basic ideas of Carl G. Jung written in terms that can be understood by the average reader. More than 400 illustrations, many in full color, carefully selected and annotated to accompany and reinforce the text.

Was $14.95 Now $6.95

LIVING TREES OF THE WORLD

LIVING TREES OF THE WORLD
Thomas H. Everett

Here is an extraordinarily rich and comprehensive book on one of the loveliest and most useful of nature's wonders — trees. Combining an immense amount of information with interesting stories and sidelights, it is as suitable for reading as for reference. Beautifully illustrated with color and black-and-white photographs, this is the eighth in the series which began with Living Mammals of the World.

Was $14.95 Now $7.95

THE JEWS IN THEIR LAND
DAVID BEN-GURION

THE JEWS IN THEIR LAND
DAVID BEN-GURION

A new, revised edition of the continuing story of the Jewish people within the borders of their own land, covering both the periods of their independence and the periods when strangers ruled the nation. Beginning with a geographical description of the land of Israel, the book considers its history from the days of the patriarchs to the destruction of the first Temple, and then deals with the prophets, the history of the Jews from the return to Zion to the revolt of Bar-Cochba and down through the Turkish Conquest and on to Israel's present-day struggle for survival. Contributors include some of the best-known figures in the Jewish world.

Was $17.50 Now $9.95

UMass computer system: Varied uses, efficient results

By DAVID FARRELL
Staff Reporter

Contrary to popular belief the university computers are working properly ninety-nine per cent of the time. Most breakdowns which do occur are the result of problems related to the new system operating in the Graduate Research Center.

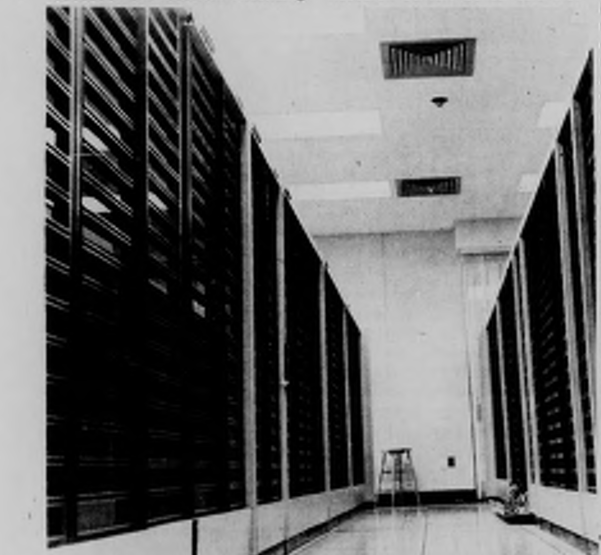
The Grad Research computer, a Cyber 74-18 which is leased from the Control Data Corp. for $50,000 a month, is used primarily for education and research. According to Robert Gonter, Acting Director of the University computer center, most of the problems stem from either the complexities involved in the system, which was installed last August, or from operators utilizing unique features which tax the system.

There are ninety-six terminals that tie into the grad research system. Most of them are located in the Library, School of Business Administration and the Grad Research Center. Gonter said that there has been some trouble with vandalism of these terminals, especially in the library. Gonter said that he may ask Library officials to move the terminals from the small rooms in which they are now located to a larger room, thereby detering misuse of the equipment. Most of the terminals are leased by the University.

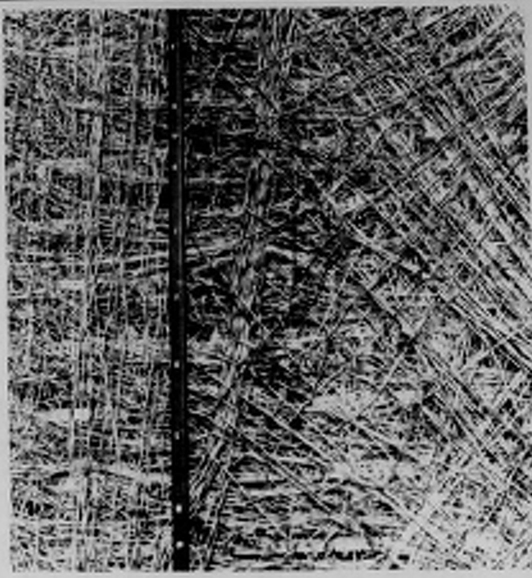
The goal of the Computer Center staff is to make the system "stable, reliable and fast," said Gonter, adding that a good deal of progress is being made. The major obstacles to this goal are problems which occur intermittently and are therefore difficult to isolate. There are two full time maintenance men working in the Center, along with a number of work study students who have been trained to repair the terminals.

At present, the Computer Center Computer is being used by students and faculty members for education and research, and also some State projects. The computer is not available for commercial use, although those companies involved in the various construction projects around campus have access to it. This computer is also used by students at UMass-Boston, to which it is connected via remote terminals.

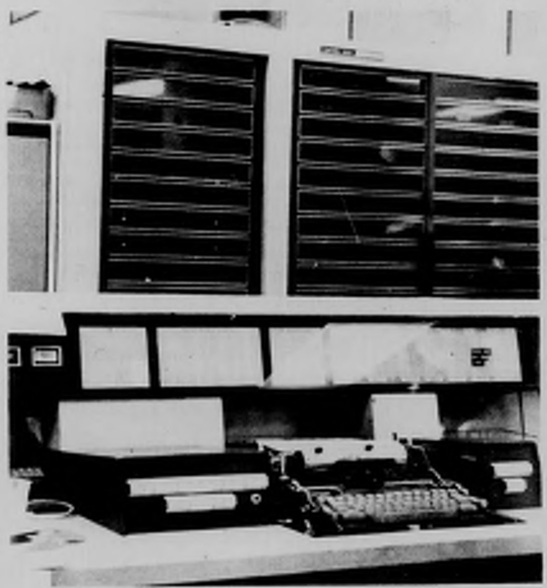
According to Gonter, usage of the computer has been rising over the last few years. He attributes this to the system being used for a number of different purposes. He said that April is the busiest month at the Center, although a peak occurs at the end of every session, including the summer.



Staff Photo by George Withers



Staff Photo by George Withers



Staff Photo by George Withers

Total.
Made especially for people who use spit on their contact lenses.

You really think you're saving something. Like the time it takes for proper lens care. And the cost of different solutions.

But in the long run you may wind up paying for short cuts. There's a chance your contacts will become contaminated. They'll probably feel uncomfortable and bother you. You may even get an eye infection. So why take chances with saliva?

Now there's Total® The all-in-one contact lens solution that does it all. Total® wets, soaks, cleans and cushions. And you only have to use a single solution to get the whole job done.

There are two good ways to buy Total® — the 2 oz. size and the 4 oz. size. Total 2 oz. has a free, mirrored lens storage case, and the new economy 4 oz. size saves you 25%.

Total® is available at the campus bookstore or your local drugstore.

And we're so sure you'll like Total® that we'll give you your second bottle free. Just send a Total® boxtop with your name, address and college name to:

Total, Allergan
Pharmaceuticals
2525 Dupont Drive
Irvine, California 92664
(Limit one per person.
Offer expires
July 31, 1975.)

Total
wets soaks cleans cushion
Total

Total. The easy way to care for your contacts.

AVAILABLE AT UNIVERSITY STORE

MONDAY 3-31
This Ad Worth
75¢
(Any Large Pizza except Plain)
On Deliveries to SW — Pickups Too!

ONE OF THESE DAYS YOU'RE GOING TO GET YOURS

Fast
30 Minute Delivery

OUR VEHICLES HAVE OVENS

DOMINO'S PIZZA

Amherst 256-8587
Northampton 586-2700

Farmers cut out middleman

MIDWEST CITY, Okla. [UPI] - A group of farmers having completed a successful sale of about 13 tons of beef, cheese and potatoes directly to consumers to avoid middleman price hikes, say a similar sale will be staged in Oklahoma City if a permit can be obtained.

National Farmers Organization representatives Saturday sold 5½ pound tubes of Oklahoma beef for $5, Wisconsin cheddar cheese at $1.30 a pound and Idaho potatoes for 10 cents a pound.

Robert L. Thomas, assistant national director for the NFO in Oklahoma and Kansas, said the sale bypassed retailers and gave consumers a break. He said the potatoes would cost about 24 cents a pound in stores and the cheese more than $3 a pound.

Nearly 75 persons were waiting in an auto dealership parking lot when the four NFO trucks arrived. Several hundred persons took advantage of the savings duirng the one-day sale and Thomas said there were "a lot of requests to come back here."

Thomas said the NFO has sponsored similar sales in northern states. They were started because of the depressed meat cheese markets, he said.

"The beef industry was pretty good about a year and a half ago, but when prices went down on live cattle the retail level stayed up," Thomas said.

He said NFO members felt the consumer "is being ripped off" by retail grocers.

If Oklahoma City refuses again to issue a sale permit, as it has done once, legal action may be taken by the NFO, Thomas said.

"We know various retail outfits have these kinds of sales," he said. "We feel there is some kind of discrimination against us in the city ordinances."

Thomas said four tons of beef, three tons of cheese and almost six tons of potatoes were sold Saturday.

How much profit does the average U.S. company make on each sales dollar?

(check one) A. ☐ 45¢ B. ☐ 28¢ C. ☐ 12¢ D. ☐ 5¢

And where do profits go?

If you compare what the majority of Americans think corporate profits are, with the bottom line of the typical corporate financial statement, you will see that the public holds profound misconceptions about this vital subject

The adjoining message from the April Reader's Digest sums up opinions and the facts about profits. It shows what happens to them. And it shows how the profit potential can give innovators the incentive needed to create or expand business. That leads to more jobs and more earnings all around.

Read on (even if you checked letter D above). It can be well worth the investment of your time.

Reader's Digest

ADVERTISEMENT

OUR ECONOMIC SYSTEM
YOU Make It Work

We all should know "them" better, for they play a vital role in everything we do

"THEM"

We've been hearing a lot about "Them" lately. Often bad things. About how big they are. They've been cursed in the streets, reviled in Congress, condemned in the press. They are often overestimated. They are seldom understood.

We all should know them better, for their handiwork is everywhere—though we may not realize it.

—They built a factory in a riot-torn section of Watts, Calif., then helped it along until it was a $10-million-a-year business owned largely by its employes.

—They helped to remodel a home for troubled youngsters in Leavenworth, Kan., and to fix up a recreation center for school dropouts and drug victims in Dallas.

—They created a million new jobs in the United States last year.

—They pour $325 million into education each year and another $144 million yearly into the arts. Their total outlay for charity each year is about $1 billion.

—They put $85 million into a new steel-making process that prevented a steel mill in Pennsylvania from closing down, saving 2000 jobs.

—They give federal, state and local governments more than $41 billion in annual tax revenues.

Who are "they"?

Profits. The money earned over and above the expenses of operating our American business and industry. If industry were not profitable, not only would companies soon go out of business—with dire consequences to employes and stockholders—but a great variety of social and humanitarian activities would simply go by the board. It is a corporation's continued profitability that allows it to regularly put money into, say, public TV or the local symphony, and at the same time create new technology and new jobs.

Profits are not, as some people seem to think, clutched in the hands of a few cigar-smoking tycoons. There are 30 million stockholders in this country who count on them; 33.5 million workers whose retirement funds, invested in stocks and bonds, depend on them; 365 million life-insurance policies in force in the United States that depend to a great degree on dividends that profits produce.

Profits are far more, of course. They are one of man's primary incentives. Long after factories have been built and payrolls and fringe benefits paid, profits keep lights burning in offices, in laboratories, in men's minds, spurring the almost indefinable mix of new products and ideas called progress. Paper shufflers and chart devisers in a centralized economic bureaucracy do not invent automatic transmissions, fresh-frozen foods, kidney machines, double-knit fabrics or wonder drugs. Men in the market-place do. Stimulated by the prospect of profit, they find harder steel, brighter color television, sharper razor blades, quieter air conditioners.

When millions wanted electric hair-styler dryers, tremendous amounts of money, planning and machinery had to be channeled to meet that demand by companies seeking a profit. When the dryers started rolling out, who benefited? The companies—sure. But the big beneficiaries were the consumers, first, because their demands were satisfied and, second, business competition quickly drove prices down.

Yet, while profits are so intimately tied to the lives of all of us, the public concept of them is so distorted as to be hardly a concept at all. For example, polls indicate that the majority of Americans believe business clears about 28 cents profit on every dollar it earns.

The fact is, after taxes the average U.S. company now makes a little less than a nickel profit on each sales dollar.

Certainly, in some industries the average is higher, but not very much. Mining companies, office-equipment and computer firms average between nine and ten cents on the dollar. Lumber products make around seven. Oil production and refining produce about eight. But in many industries the profit margin is much lower. Ironically, many of the lowest profit margins are in businesses that many people assume to be making "unconscionable profits" at the consumer's expense. Supermarkets, for instance, clear a little less than a penny on each sales dollar. In the retail-sales industry, the average profit per sales dollar is around two cents.

Business and industry have tried tirelessly to convey this true profit picture. But somehow we Americans remain peculiarly unconvinced. We buy a house for $28,000, sell it for $40,000, then the next day condemn someone else's "pursuit of profit." We blithely forget the realities of economics and competition.

Let's look at the profit picture on a common product—a woman's dress that sells in department stores for $50. A woman examining it might conclude she could make the same dress for quite a bit less than that amount. Provided she could get the pattern (one of hundreds submitted by the manufacturers' designers), she could indeed save money. But this dress is on the rack because the majority of women have neither the time nor the inclination to make their own.

Why does it cost $50?

The box in the previous column gives a breakdown of costs. And it shows that a $25.75 dress that provided jobs and made a profit for people in the garment industry ends up fulfilling a consumer desire, providing livelihood for a department store's employes, putting tax money in the public treasury and profiting the store's owners. In the process, it becomes a $50 dress. As for that $1.30 retail profit—well, you the consumer are the reason why it is that low. For to raise the profit margin the businessman would have to risk losing your patronage. You in the end make the decision. That's what competition is all about. And profit is the essence of competition.

MANUFACTURER'S COST AND PROFIT

Fabrics and accessories	$ 8.11
Design and factory operations	4.91
Production wages and benefits	6.86
Administrative and sales salaries	3.97
Taxes	.98
Profit from sales to retailer	.92
Wholesale price to retailer	$25.75

RETAILER'S COST AND PROFIT

Dress from manufacturer	$25.75
Advertising, sale markdowns, freight	5.55
Store operations	6.20
Payroll	9.10
Taxes	2.10
Profit from sales to customer	1.30
Selling price to customer	$50.00

For reprints, write: Reprint Editor, The Reader's Digest, Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570. Prices: 10—50¢; 50—$1; 100—$1.50; 500—$12.50; 1000—$20. Prices for larger quantities upon request.

This message is prepared by the editors of The Reader's Digest and presented by The Business Roundtable.

This advertisement appears in 50 leading college newspapers starting March 24, 1975.

★ Profs sign protest letter

cont. from p. 2

promotion. Darr left Amherst College about eight years ago.

The twenty-four petitioners apologized for their intrusion into Amherst's affairs. They wrote, "We do not wish to involve ourselves in the internal affairs of a neighbor." But, Amherst Dean of Faculty Prosser Gifford said, "They have the right to raise criticism. It was already a public issue, being in the Amherst Student."

And the debate may well continue, because there has been no final reaffirmation of Mark Oxman's status at Amherst College. Ward did not mention Oxman in his explanatory letter to the UMass faculty. He discussed Amherst policy only.

And in an interview, Gifford did not say the Oxman case was closed. He said, "The question came up last year, and was argued at great length; the issue of whether to continue term appointments in studio art which do not lead to tenure."

The Amherst College "Committee of Six" argued the issue at great length last year, and voted to continue the "no-tenure" policy for studio artists.

★ Proposed budget cutback

cont. from p. 1

Parks, at the meeting, said Wood did not inform the students of the proposed cutback because he is "trying to use students to be in front-line trenches." He also told the task force that it is "not going to be you versus them (the administration), my door is open to you. I am an advocate for the people in the institutions, not the institutions. The University is there for the education of youngsters, if it doesn't do that, there is no reason for it to exist."

Parks defined administration as that which does not relate to the educational process. "If an assistant dean does not see the classroom or students, that is ministration," he said.

Wood said cutting on the administration level would lessen the quality of education. He said administration encumbers financial aid, custodial services and counseling services.

"We could eliminate my office which accounts for a little over 1 per cent of the budget, but there is a lot of institutional research going on there which is useful and helpful," he added.

Parks told the task force that the higher educatin budget request which exceeded present expenditures will not be accepted. "They have to submit the budet for my approval. I have devised a method that allows me to see where they are taking money from. They are balking at that, and if they don't submit it like that, I don't approve," said Parks.

Wood said he would be "delighted" to consider Park's suggestions if "anyone can show us a way to cut 10 per cent off the budget with a full medical school still developing, College II and IV in Boston and plenty to do in Amherst to upgrade the quality of education."

"There isn't any magic road to budget making," he added.

When asked if the University could shuffle the money around, having fiscal autonomy, Parks said, "they'd be in trouble if they do."

Parks said he favored program review authority which would give him veto power over programs in the University.

Wood said, "This would be a very dangerous grant of authority." He said it would allow political judgement about academic priorities that is best "left to faculty, students and deans."

"The University is not an agency or department," he continued, "It is a community which effects the lives of people. It is a step apart from ordinary political process."

★ Gluckstern interview

cont. from p. 1

belts, but that what the public must realize is that higher education is an investment in the future and makes a contribution to society.

UMass has improved "tremendously" with its faculty and academic programs and has acquired a national reputation, Gluckstern said. He added that UMass like other public universities in the Northeast, has developed in the shadows of private institutions, and that the state of Massachusetts is behind the nation in recognizing UMass' reputation.

Present UMass students show a stronger capability and interest in academics than did previous UMass students, Gluckstern said. He added that there is a trend among students to want training and skills that will enable them to earn a living, and he expects this trend to increase over the next five years. Students will always want to learn about themselves and the world, but there has been a decrease in interest in those departments that don't offer many job opportunities, he said.

New programs will continue to be implemented, but there won't be as many as in previous years when the university experienced its period of fast growth, Gluckstern said. Some programs will have to be cut, but it is premature to identify which ones will have to go, he added. He said that new programs must be allowed to develop, because if that doesn't happen, UMass will stagnate.

When asked about the School of Education, Gluckstern said he would certainly support similar programs at the School of Education in the future, but he would lessen the possibilities of abuse. He added that there are "good people" at the School that have a commitment to continue the strong programs, but that it will take a little while for the reputation to recover. Gluckstern said the publicity has not only hurt the School of Education, but also the university.

★ Fiscal autonomy vote

cont. from p. 1

the least amount of time are paid the highest, while faculty at the community colleges who spend the most time with students get paid the least.

Maguiera said UMass Amherst in comparison to national faculty salaries pays $5,000 and $6,000 higher than average for graduate professors and $4,000 and $5,000 higher for undergraduate professors.

She said the institutions are spending more than Kelly thinks they should.

Maguiera said the institutions would see the provision as a threat "but the state is in dire financial straits and we don't know of any other way."

By removing financial autonomy, Maguiera said it won't make the institutions shut down. "It will slow down their spending rate," she said. "It is attempt to wake them up."

★ Universal fee decision

cont. from p. 1

that there "just wasn't enough time to discuss it."

Rick Savini, president of the Student Government Association, said that he has "no idea of what they (Bromery and Gage) are talking about" in relation to the decision's delay. "I am assuming that at Monday's meeting with Gage and the task force that we'll hear about this," Savini said. "My position is that people haven't sat down long enough to look at all the possibilities. The universal resource fee was probably discussed a long time ago, maybe three or four years back. When the suit came out against the University, it was a neat place to lay all the blame about mandatory housing and meal tickets. The fee was seen as one way to cover cost," he said.

A Windfall of Books
at
THE UNIVERSITY STORE

A CENTURY OF WONDERS
100 Years of Popular Science
ERNEST V. HEYN

An oversize, lavishly illustrated survey of science, invention and discovery as it was reported in the pages of Popular Science, one of the most widely read periodicals ever published, which is celebrating its 100th anniversary in 1972. The magazine's staff has selected the most interesting photographs, drawing and covers and added new text covering every aspect of science and technology, from the invention of the electric light to plans for manned space stations.

Was $20.00 Now $9.95

THE MOVIE STARS
Richard Griffith

Few, if any, of today's screen personalities can gain a hold on the allegiance and affection of the nation's movie-goers to rival that of the great stars in their heyday. What led to the remarkable success of the "star system"? And what caused its equally remarkable decline? These are the questions Richard Griffith answers in this sumptuously illustrated, highly informative book. Much more than just another movie "picture book", it is a perceptive, nostalgic, and thoroughly absorbing examination of one of the most important chapters in America's cultural history — and the last major work of a fine writer.

Was $25.00 Now $14.95

The Illustrated History of Ships and Boats
Lionel Casson

This big, handsome book tells the story of the various craft men have devised for crossing water, from prehistoric times — through all ages and all parts of the world — to the present. More than 300 photographs and drawings complement and illustrate the text.

Was $17.50 Now $9.95

LOCOMOTIVES IN PROFILE
Volume 1
BRIAN REED

The first volume in a new series entitled "Locomotives in Profile." It is a history of the design, technical development and operation of such famous locomotives as the New York Central Hudsons, the American Type 4-4-0's, the Mallets — such as Union Pacific's Big Boy's that conquered the Rockies — and the Rocket — the most famous locomotive in the history of railroads. Over 350 photographs and full color paintings are included in this illustrated history by a noted authority on railroads.

Was $19.95 Now $9.95

LOCOMOTIVES IN PROFILE
Volume 2
BRIAN REED

The second volume in a new series presented in the format and with the integrity of the distinguished Aircraft in Profile series — illustrated histories of the world's famous locomotives. Profusely illustrated with full-color paintings and over 350 photographs. This second volume on twelve of the most notable classes of locomotives from the golden age of the steam engine covers in particular the international locomotives.

Was $22.00 Now $9.95

Avoiding Future Shock

Why think about life insurance and estate planning now while you're young? Because the best way to avoid financial crisis in your leisurely years is to effectively manage your most productive years. The older you get, the more it costs to protect your family and business. Your Fidelity Union Life estate planner can show you how to prepare for a secure future – now.

Call the Fidelity Union Field Associate in your area:

Ronald J. Nathan Agency
747 Main St.
Amherst, Mass.
256-8351

Fidelity Union Life

Resurrection special/

An outside in

Bob Estelle, former Collegian Columnist, recently returned to UMass for a visit. Upon our request, Mr. Estelle penned a guest column.

I was asked to write a column by several Collegian personnel when I was up here just before your vacation. After doing some thinking, I came up with the following which I believe to be relevant to all UMies.

There will come a day for all of you to leave this place, one way or another. How one leaves UMass is really not that important. What is important is that the job market lies ahead for all of us.

Some of you will be looking for jobs in some area of what is commonly known as the free enterprise system. Those who don't will be looking for jobs in either government subsidized organizations (for example, a corporation whose survival is dependent on government contracts) or you will be looking for jobs with the government itself.

As someone who has been looking for a job since last June, I feel I have a few things to say about the dangers that will threaten all of us!

The first problem we all face is that hundreds of people who are working in the free enterprise system have already been laid off and more may follow.

The second problem involves both of the other groups previously mentioned. Their problem is that layoffs will occur in their lines of businesses, too.

What it all boils down to is something that even "President" Ford called our nation's number one problem: INFLATION.

To put it simply, inflation is caused by government and the deficit spending that government brings, which is at a record high in the current budget.

What has to be done to cure inflation is to balance the budget. This means that many currently government programs and many government employees will have to be cut out of the budget. Thus, the many layoffs that government employees must face.

As for people employed by those companies that rely on government contracts in order to produce, you will be in trouble, too. The government contracts that once came so easily will soon be scarce. If government cuts its budget, as it should, then many employees in this line may soon be facing layoffs.

And as for free enterprise, it was previously mentioned that layoffs have occurred greatly in that sector of the economy. The reason is that production is down. And the reason production is down is due to that people cannot buy as much because of inflation (the dollar has less purchasing power than before).

Thus, if inflation is cured by balancing the budget, along with reducing taxes whenever possible, then jobs will reduce in those sectors of the economy dependent upon the government but the problems limiting productivity in free enterprise may be on the way of being solved.

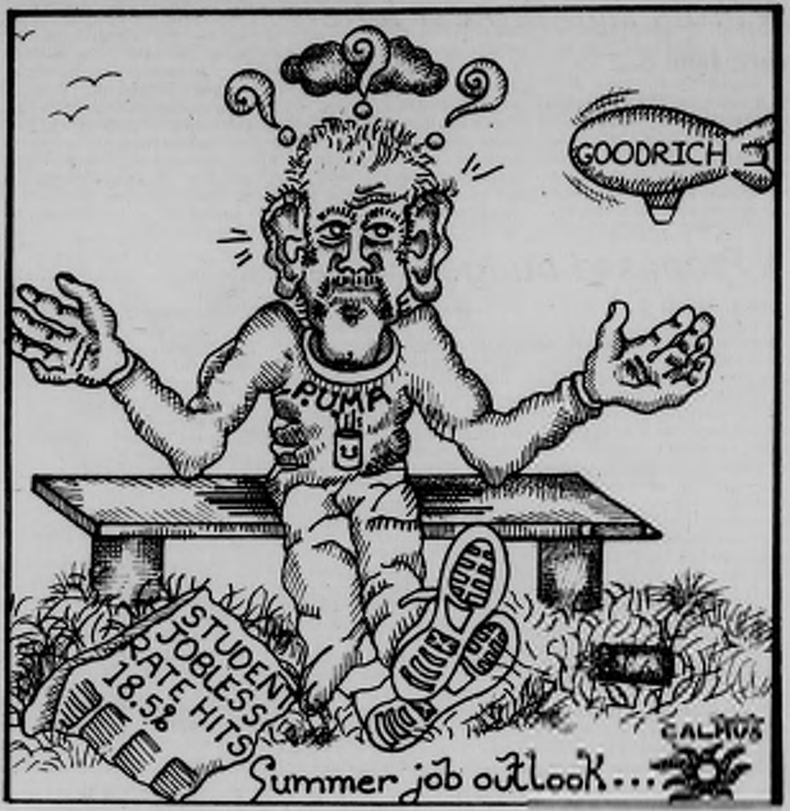
It seems to me that if inflation is solved by balancing the budget, then free enterprise may soon be able to supply plenty of employment. This may be the answer to the problem of finding employment, a problem most of us share.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Show your concern for the uni-fee, budget cuts, tuition hikes. Attend the UMass trustees' meeting Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Campus Center.



Commentary

Student unity - lost in a shuffle?

By BRYAN HARVEY

The next time you're walking through campus, take a good look around. There has been a permanent addition made to the University landscape, in the form of a sprinkling of cream-colored posters in previously [illegible] protecting their own futures than in embroiling themselves in the controversy.

[illegible]

The birds in Whitmore are singing their swan songs. It is no coincidence that Provost Gluckstern is looking to the greener pastures of Maryland (What do they [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Letters Policy

[illegible]

Benita Pullara

Long war's journey into fight

It looks like the end of the road for South Vietnam. There is little hope that this exhausted, war-torn country can regain the strength it needs to defend what little of its land has not fallen into communist hands. In these last battles there is an air of finality, as if after twenty-five years the war is almost over.

Many Vietnamese have known little else but war and political division. Perhaps, after all these years they will finally know peace, but the war will not end unless North Vietnam is satisfied with the area it has conquered. The decision South Vietnam faces is to live under a communist regime or to live in war and turmoil indefinitely.

[illegible]

[illegible] understatement. True, we are tired, but we also feel guilt, shame, and remorse for our part in this war, and we are relieved that our involvement is over. We were just beginning to forget names like Hue, Da Nang, and Thieu, when they sprang up in the news again. Perhaps, hundreds of years from now historians will be able to point to the direction we should have taken, but there are too many obstacles to define a clear cut right and wrong today.

Henry Kissinger has claimed that if we do not honor our moral obligation to Vietnam our national credibility is in danger. Kissinger is ignoring the fact that other nations are not blind, they can see the [illegible]

[illegible]

Benita Pullara is a Collegian Columnist.

Luis Manuel Medina

¿Hasta cuando?

A group of Spanish Speaking people is encouraging the Massachusetts' Latino population to participate more actively in state and presidential elections.

According to Alberto Vassallo, in charge of the Public Relations affairs of "pro Voto Hispano" in Boston, the organization is encouraging the U.S. Native Spanish Speaking, (Puerto Ricans), and the naturalized Latinos, (Cubans, Central and South Americans), to register to vote for the next elections.

The activity seems to be an awakening of the U.S. Hispanic population to participate more aggressively in deciding who is going to be chosen to hold public office.

In the Southwestern states, the Mexican Americans had created the Raza Unida Party, participating in country and state elections. [illegible]

[illegible]

Letters

Reflections on our rationale

[illegible]

Norman Braustin

DVP recruiting new staff

[illegible]

Rosemary Schwartz

Travel Service too much in the air

[illegible]

William E. Locke, Jr.
Paul Koch, Jr.

Apathy in politics

[illegible]

Commentary

[illegible]

Listen Smokers! You don't have to wait 20 years for cigarettes to affect you. It only takes 3 seconds.

More letters

History repeats itself

To the Editor:

Yes, Brittany Manor strikes again! Dealing straight-bullshit. I'm really writing this editorital to 1) warn everyone not to do any sort of business with this wonderful rental outfit, 2) express my frustrations on paper about what has happened to me these past few weeks here at Brittany Manor.

To begin with, it all started eight months ago when we were promised to have our rugs shampooed by the Brittany Manor maintenance people before we moved into our apartment in September. It was just last month (February) that our wish was fulfilled – yes, we got our rugs cleaned seven months after our request. Now, if you're the patient type, and don't care if you have to walk around on gobbs of hardened candle wax (from the previous tenants), or crusty burn holes and dog hairs in the rug, then you're all set.

This past November I was paid a visit by two Brittany Manor trustees, who nonchalantly and ambiguously were inquiring about whey we hadn't paid October's rent. Little did they know that we had paid October's rent, and were in the process of paying November's. Well, it did finally get straightened out, and what's a bookkeeping error anyway? I'll be glad to tell you just what an error like this can do........

Just last week I found a surprise in my mailbox. No, not a sample of Aim toothpaste, an eviction notice from our dear landlords. They proceeded to say that if our rent wasn't paid within fourteen days, eviction proceedings would occur. Now the strange part about this whole thing is that since September, we've always paid our rent about the twentieth of the month. So why would we be getting an eviction notice on the twelfth? I began thinking that errors were in the making, or should I say already were made. Two days later we were blessed with another surprise, this time it was attached to our doorknob with a rubberband. Four copies of a Summons to the District Court of Hampshire in Northampton – New Colonial Realty Trust vs. US! What in hell was going on? I'd be damned if I knew! They claimed we owed them $500 for February and March's rent. At this point I thought things were starting to get fairly serious, so I went to the LSO in the campus center. Can you possibly believe that Brittany Manor had improperly recorded a $500 check we submitted to them for payment of two month's rent? At this point, I will spare you any more details. Let me say this however, they were ignorant enough to go as far as a Court Summons. What bastards. With their mistake, we have to be inconvenienced! Hopefully things will be cleared up with the help of the LSO, but we had to appear in court, and the best part is that we had to travel from out - of - town since the summons date was during spring break.

Oh yes, Brittany Manor is dealing straight. For your own sake – please don't even consider renting at Brittany Manor – the hassle isn't worth it, and besides, their reputation hasn't changed any, its worsened in my opinion.

SCREW YOU BRITTANY MANOR!

Debbe Marchetto

One for the record

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to lend support to Messrs. Pine and Jordan's contention (Monday, Mar. 10) that "For the Record" is "far from the most pleasant record store in the area." Their letter brought to the forefront of my mind an incident which occurred last summer, before I became a student at the University.

At the mentioned store I had purchased a record which I later found to be severely warped.. I brought the record back to the store, expecting to exchange it for another copy without any trouble. When I explained the situation to the salesman (probably the same one referred to in the previous letter), he asked me at what tracking force my tone arm was set. I replied: "a couple of grams." He said: "Then there's nothing wrong." I insisted that the record was badly warped and that I wanted merely a simple exchange. He then put the record on a turntable, knelt down and looked at it long and hard, played it, and said finally, "There's nothing wrong with this." (Never mind that the tone arm was moving up and down about three-quarters of an inch.)

I persisted in asking for an exchange and he started insulting me, calling me inconsiderate and a troublemaker, and insisting I knew nothing about warped records. He even went so far as to suggest I was making London records suffer because I demanded my records flat. It had been about fifteen minutes since I came into the store and started arguing with the salesman, and I was becoming very annoyed, to say the least. I began to raise my voice, and when people started staring he broke down and made the exchange. But as he made it he again rebuked me for "causing a lot of people a lot of trouble," and told me to take my record buying somewhere else. In this respect I have obliged him, and I urge the rest of you to do the same.

Obviously mine was not an isolated experience. The merchants of this town should learn not to abuse the people who keep them in business. If they insist on doing so, we should turn our collective buying power away from them, and put them out of business.

Cliff Skibinsky

Board of Trustees meeting
Wednesday, April 2, 2:00, 1009 C.C.
Attend and show you care!

CAMP COUNSELOR OPENINGS
UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS
GRADUATE STUDENTS and FACULTY MEMBERS
THE ASSOCIATION OF PRIVATE CAMPS
. . . comprising 150 outstanding Boys, Girls, Brother-Sister and Co-Ed Camps, located throughout the New England, Middle Atlantic States and Canada.
. . . INVITES YOUR INQUIRIES concerning summer employment as Head Counselors, Group Leaders, Specialties, General Counselors.
Write, Phone, or Call in Person
Association of Private Camps – Dept. C
55 W. 42 St., New York NY 10036 (212) OX 5-2656

RSO budget off track

To the Editor:

As long as there is all this talk flying around about the budget, I would like to take issue with a few appropriations which, in my opinion, appear to be on the high side of high. The most glaring example of these is the money it supposedly takes to run the RSO office. I'd be most appreciative if someone could tell me what the RSO office does that is worth the $323,345 that it received this year ($239,413 of which was taken directly from the student activities fee). Why is there a $19,270 phone bill even though they have a WATS line? Why $3,000 for conferences? Surely all the individual RSOs can take care of themselves with little or no help at all from the RSO office.

The Student Financial Affairs Committee didn't bother to go into detail about its intentions for the $7,000 it was given; apparently they felt "Organization Program Support" would suffice. Likewise, the Commuter Assembly feels that the category name "Other Capital Charges", subtitle "other," explains an allocation of $3,000 and "Other Lump Sum Program Allocations" ("other") justifies an appropriation of $14,000.

Also, as concerns the Commuter Assembly, why did it need $2,000 worth of lounge renovations last year and $3,000 worth of renovations this year? I won't even ask about the $3,000 for House Mouse Magazine*, whatever that is.*

The Drum had quite a high budget, $31,345, which is a lot of money to spend on a quarterly publication run by and directed primarily to 4 per cent of the student population.

The phone bills for several RSOs are quite steep, and there are many instances in which money could be saved so that groups such as the Student Homophile League would not be in jeopardy of losing their funds altogether. There is enough money to go around if it is used wisely.

If you want a good laugh, or, more likely, a good cry, pick up a copy of this year's RSO budget (which, by the way, is supposed to be available on request) and give it more than a cursory glance. Then maybe there'll be more motivation to do something about the upcoming budget.

Lisa Babner

IT PAYS TO SHOP THE FINAST WAY
Mountain Farms Mall in Hadley
Beer and Wine Shoppe!

Budweiser Beer
case of 24 12 oz cans 5.55
Chateau Laurent Sparkling Sangria .. 4/5 btl 2.99
Tytell Lambrusco .... 24 oz btl 1.99
Great Western Pink Catawba ...... 4/5 btl 1.79
Donelli Lambrusco .... 4/5 btl 1.89
Rosé De Portugal ...... 48 oz btl 3.99
Paul Masson Rose' .... qt carafe 1.99
Gunther Beer
case 24 - 12 oz cans
4.09
Finast SUPERMARKETS
Prices Effective thru Sat., April 5
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

THE LODGE at harvard square ®
Rt. 9 – Russell St., Hadley next to McDonalds
Mon.–Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-6
THE LODGE at harvard square ®
1st Anniversary Sale
15% off everything in the store!
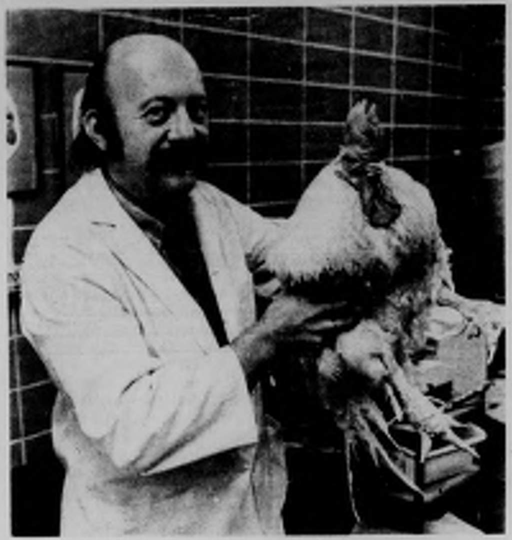
(except promotional or sale items)

adult's denim overalls
Danskin + Capezio leotards
dunham sandal
Landlubber canvas overalls
abel hurachis
brown, natural, rust
Sundowner + Forum men's tops
painter's pants
SBJ + College women's T-shirts
baretraps
Landlubber pre-washed Tango's
SPECIAL! Short-sleeve chambray workshirts $1.95 orig. 4.50
SPECIAL! casual women's shoes from Clark, Jolly Mocs $11.95 orig. 23.00
SPECIAL! Wide selection of dress shirts $2.95 orig. up to 15.00
SPECIAL! Converse men's sneakers $12.00 orig. 18.00



Dr. D. Eduardo Slatapolsky, has a tempermental 15-pound rooster that yields what may be the best poultry-product medical discovery since chicken soup. The rooster, El Macho, produces an antibody that can be used to monitor a hormone that causes bone weaknesses in kidney patients.

Connecticut Indian chief wants new house for his small tribe

TRUMBULL, Conn. (UPI) — The chief of one of the nation's smallest Indian tribes says white men have been stealing Indian land for long enough and the least they can do is give him a new house on his quarter-acre reservation.

Aurelius Piper, also known as Chief Big Eagle, is the leader of the Golden Hill Tribe, a band of less than 100 Indians who have been losing ground to white men since 1659.

"After 316 years of taking Golden Hill land, I think it shouldn't be too hard to provide a house that would cost only $35,000 to build today," he said.

The tribe got its name when America's first reservation was established on 80 acres of land on Golden Hill in Bridgeport.

But a few years later the Indians were paid off and forced to leave the land. A 20-acre reservation was set up in Trumbull, but was sold by an Indian agent in the 1850's, without the tribe's knowlege, Piper said.

Today's preserve, the smallest in the country, was officially recognized 99 years ago. Piper, incapacitated by a heart condition, said the crumbling dwelling he lives in on the reservation doesn't even have a heating system.

"This house was built by an Indian in the early 1800s. It served its purpose then," Piper said recently.

But because it is on a state reservation, he said, the state Department of Environmental Protection is responsible for repairs and maintenance. Piper said the house has been "neglected to the point where it's uninhabitable."

Piper and the state Indian Affairs Council rejected a money-saving proposal to move Piper to a nearby vacant house, leaving the reservation unoccupied.

"I will not leave my land," Piper said firmly.

Piper, 59, had to give up his trucking business in 1969 and has lived on Social Security since. Asked what he plans to do, he said: "Eat and sleep and stay in. What do you expect me to do — run? I'm supposed to be in the hospital."

Ford comes through as a Mr. Nice Guy

By RICHARD H. GROWALL
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lyndon B. Johnson yelled at aides. Richard M. Nixon shoved his press secretary in public. The White House now has a Mr. Nice Guy.

Commentary

As they count their blessings in planning his 1976 campaign for election, President Ford's aides list high his human kindness.

Not even his political enemies accuse the President of being anything but one of the nicest fellows around Washington. The examples are many:

— Aides told Ford he must make his national television speech outlining his economic energy program at 8 p.m. EST. It was so ordered. Then Ford learned the Smothers Brothers, whose comedy could not be counted on to deal gently with him, had planned their television comeback that same night at 8 p.m. Ford, so as not to smother the brothers' program, moved his back to 9 p.m.

— Ford's speeches are typed, like those of other leaders, in large print with paragraphs completed on each page and not continued, to insure smooth reading. A new secretary, typing a Ford speech on his plane, not only broke up paragraphs between pages but sentences and even words. Noticing this just before landing when nothing could be done, a Ford speechwriter said, "My heart sank. We had to tell Ford the awful news. He made sure no one would blame the young woman, who had not been told how to type the speech and he said only, "Forget it. It'll be all right."' The speech went off without woe.

— On perhaps his toughest day, Aug. 8, 1974, the day he was told he would become president, Ford stepped from the White House next door to his vice presidential office in the Old Executive Office Building and sat at his desk, awaiting a briefing by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. A young woman came in with a sandwich on a tray for him. Ford, noticing she was having difficulty maneuvering the tray through the doorway, interrupted his thoughts and sped around his desk and held the door for her. "It took something even more than a gentleman to do that at that moment,'" said a man who was there.

BOOKTHRIFT
FOR BOOKLOVERS

Come join us at our extraordinary
50% OFF
giant paperback book sale.
Outstanding current and back list titles from many leading publishers.
This is a sale Booklovers can't afford to miss.

The University Store

EMS

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.
SPECIALISTS IN QUALITY LIGHT WEIGHT
BACKPACKING AND MOUNTAINEERING EQUIPMENT
Located on Rte. 9 Hadley-Amherst Line AMHERST

APRIL 2 — 5
Semi-Annual
Rental and Spring-Winter Equipment
SALE

STORE HOURS:
MON.-FRI., 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.
SAT., 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

30 — 60% Off all Rental Equipment, depending upon condition, including.
X-C Ski Outfits, Down Sleeping Bags, Pack Frames, Tents, Foam Pads, and Snowshoes.

Qty.	Item	Sugg. Price	Sale Price
	PARKAS
10	Alp Expedition 1974 Model	$110.00	$88.00
28	Alp Glacier with hood 1974 Model	95.00	76.00
6	Gerry Makalu 1974 Model	72.00	58.50
21	Mansfield with hood	57.50	45.50
35	EMS Down Vest	22.50	17.00
	Sizes and Colors As Available
	CLOTHING
30	Norwegian Wool Sweaters	$22.00	$16.50
122	Down Booties	12.95	9.25
84	El Cheapo Rain Parka	14.00	10.95
65	El Cheapo Rain Pants	11.00	8.95
	PACKS
8	EMS B Pack and Frame (Old Style)	$45.00	$27.50
14	EMS Expedition Bag and Frame	54.50	39.50
96	C.T. Canyone Bag and Frame	34.50	27.50
15	C.T. Nylon Bag and Frame	29.50	12.95
15	Gerry Vagabond (Old Style)	40.00	25.95

Qty.	Item	Sugg. Price	Sale Price
	TENTS
10	Alpine Designs Backpacker	$95.00	$80.00
36	EMS Kaskawalsh	115.00	85.00
15	EMS Mosquito Net	85.00	65.00
18	Gerry Year Round II (1974 Model)	115.00	89.50
	SLEEPING BAGS
9	Gerry Camper — Reg.	$105.00	$78.95
13	Gerry Camper — Lg.	110.00	82.95
19	EMS Teton	94.50	79.50
22	EMS Estes	79.50	69.50
34	EMS Sandpiper	57.50	49.50
6	EMS Dhaulagiri — Reg.	130.00	105.00
9	EMS Dhaulagiri — Lg.	140.00	112.00
13	EMS Robson — Reg.	99.50	82.00
17	EMS Robson — Lg.	106.50	86.00
19	EMS Minilight — Reg.	92.50	74.50
24	EMS Minilight — Lg.	97.50	79.50
15	EMS Pecone, Jr.	30.00	26.00
	BOOTS
	Special Introductory Offer
84 pr.	EMS Katahdin	$34.95	$27.95

Philippines may be America's next Vietnam

By KEN REARDON
Progressive News Service

The Phillipines, under the militarily imposed marshal law of President Ferdinand Marcos may very well serve as America's next Vietnam.

Fifty area residents were told about the deteriorating political conditions in the Phillipines by Rev. Paul Wilson, who had recently returned from that country. Rev. Wilson, a United Church of Christ minister and veteran of the U.S. farm workers movement spent 10 months working, as a staff member, with the Phillipines National Council of Churches. Wilson spent most of his time trying to organize the peasant population into farm cooperatives and credit unions.

Unemployment — "despicable"

Wilson described how two and a half centuries of Spanish colonialism followed by fifty years of American supervision of the island as a protectorate had laid the foundations for the present situation, "a society in which two per cent of the population, forms an oligarchy controlling 95 per cent of the island's wealth. Quoting unemployment figures in excess of 25 per cent, Wilson described the "desperate" conditions under which the majority of the peasant population lives, most earning .75 a day doing ,work on American owned farms while making less than $100 a year.

News Analysis

Wilson in a speech retraced the recent political developments during which growing opposition from large segments of the rural and student population forced Marcos to declare marshal law on the island and the suspension of most democratic rights and freedoms.

Call for Land Reform

According to Wilson, at the inception of marshal law large portions of the country's Muslim population, approximately 12 per cent of the population, on the island of Mindanao were pressing for rapid land reform and calling for the breakup of large foreign owned plantations, and the subsequent redistribution of land to the poor.

Thus, Wilson narrated the swelling opposition which the Marcos administration faced in 1972, as opposition in Parliament grew, students organized with the support of the Phillipine Communist Party.

The Phillipine Communist Party demonstrated against the expanding U.S. ownership and influence on the islands. Wilson described how most recently the Dole Pineapple Co. and the Delmonte Corp. had relocated their main production centers moving from Hawaii to the Phillipines in order to take advantage of .75 a day laborer costs and marshal law protection against militant trade unions.

Growing Unrest

Wilson also told of the deteriorating economic conditions and the growing unrest to Marcos's September 1972 decree of marshal law. Since that time the Parliament has been dissolved along with the Supreme Court, while opposition leaders have been incarcerated without the benefits of the right of "habeus corpus," which was also done away with under marshal law. All subsequent laws were created by Presidential order, the right to strike abolished, and many liberal social science faculty members imprisoned. Citing an amnesty international publication, Wilson told of the some 12,000 political prisoners being held in the island's many jails.

Wilson then related the facts that lead up to his own arrest and final "involuntary deportation under armed military guard" on June 26, 1974. After 10 months work with the Phillipine National Council of Churches in developing rural agrarian cooperatives, armed military intelligence police stormed his apartment in Manilla, arresting 16 persons attending a dinner party there. Wilson, his wife and ten year old son, along with some 13 staff members of the national Council of Churches were incarcerated, interrogated, and after two weeks the Wilsons were deported. When asked what charges his family faced, Wilson replied: possession of an unregistered mimeograph machine, subversive associations, and possession of banned reading materials.

Wilson said the purpose of his speaking tour was "to make Americans aware of how the U.S. government, while purporting to fight communism, was engaged in subverting democratic rights, by supporting dictatorships not only in the Phillipines, but in South Vietnam, South Korea, Chile and Brazil." Wilson claimed the main objective of his trip was to encourage the people of Western Massachusetts to pressure congress to suspend all aid to Marcos until democratic rights are returned to the people of the Phillipines. For he said, "Without U.S. aid, which will exceed $100 million dollars this year, the Marcos regime could not last even 30 days." Wilson's trip is being coordinated throughout the country by the Friends of the Phillipines Committee, located in Cambridge, Mass.

Swingshifters
of '71
REUNITE
for party info call Janice 256-6457 or Steve 253-5260 before Apr. 10

SUPER PIZZERIA
Specializing in —
PIZZAS (Large and Small)
SPAGHETTI
GRINDERS (The meatiest ROAST Beef grinders in the area)
Free Delivery in Amherst and Sunderland
549-0626
Open 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
17 Montague Rd.
N. AMHERST
(Next to the N. Amherst Post Office

WITH THIS COUPON
25¢ OFF
A SMALL PIZZA
This coupon valid thru April 8, 1975

WITH THIS COUPON
50¢ OFF
A LARGE PIZZA
This coupon valid thru April 8, 1975

COME ALONG ON A
PETER PAN
APRIL TOUR
RIGHT FROM THE COLLEGES

- University of Massachusetts
- Amherst College
- Smith College (Northampton)
- Mt. Holyoke College (So. Hadley)

Sign up soon and reserve your place on one or more of these attractive tours:

APRIL 12 (Saturday) — 1-DAY NEW YORK CITY SHOW/SHOPPING
This tour takes you to the heart of Midtown New York at Easter season, with about 10 hours to shop, see a matinee, or sightsee. The low price includes a delicious smorgasbord luncheon at the famed Stockholm Restaurant.
Per Person, Just $17.75

APRIL 19-20 (Sat.-Sun.) — 2-DAY WEEKEND IN MONTREAL
Come with us on Patriots' Day Weekend for a wonderful excursion to glittering, cosmopolitan Montreal. Hotel accommodations, included in the bargain fare, are at the LaSalle Hotel in the heart of downtown activities. Plenty of time to enjoy exciting day and evening activities.
Per Person, Just $35.00

APRIL 26 (SATURDAY) — 1-DAY EXCURSION TO EXPO VINO '75
You'll want to attend this unusual, spectacular wine, cheese, and gourmet food show at Commonwealth Armory, Boston. There will be four hours to really enjoy the show, and the low tour price includes admission and ten sampling tickets.
Per Person, Just $10.75

Why not pick up our special brochure today giving further details?

Peter Pan Bus Lines

Campus Ctr. Hotel — UMass.
Tel. 545-2006

Peter Pan — Amherst Center
Tel. 256-8431

Peter Pan — Northampton
Tel. 586-1030

Cannon's — South Hadley
Tel. 533-7115

"Town Meeting" tapes to be aired tonight

Immediately following tonight's 10 p.m. News, WMUA (UMass radio, 91.1 FM) will broadcast taped excerpts of last Monday's "Town Meeting" with Governor Michael Dukakis at Greenfield High School.

Portions of the two-hour open meeting with the governor were taped for airing tonight by WMUA "Focus" series producer Kenneth Mosakowski and production assistant Michael Schwartz.

More than 400 people, including a number of UMass students and employees, attended last week's meeting.

Tax resistance clinic offered tomorrow

The Valley Peace Coalition is sponsoring a Tax Resistence-Understanding Clinic Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the CALC office at 24 Churchill St. in Amherst. The evening will be facilitated by John Hammer who coordinates Work Inc., an organization in Holyoke involved in developing economic alternatives for people. The Clinic will focus on the whys and wherefores of tax resistence and the inequities of taxation and the spending of tax dollars. Everyone is welcome.

Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing
2½¢
Bulk Rate
10 Pages
10
Copies-Back to Back
12 Hours
[illegible]

Staff Photo by George Withers

One little Hobbitt went to market...

Doctoral student claims teachers grading system is too generous

Have college teachers caused their students to learn less through too-generous grading practices? Research by a doctoral student at the UMass answers "yes", at least for accounting courses.

Ronald B. Pawliczek is completing a dissertation for which he has demonstrated that the tougher, more realistic grading plan was sufficient to cause students of lesser aptitude to learn more than a more able group with which they were compared.

Both groups were taught by Pawliczek, who treated them alike except for refusing to allow any credit for partially correct efforts in the weaker group, while using a more customary grading plan which gave some credit for partially correct work with the other class.

After the superiority of the no-partial-credit grading plan had been clearly demonstrated over half the semester, Pawliczek graded both of his sections with the superior plan. Gradually the groups became more equal until their final examination performance was identical.

Frank Singer, chairman of Pawliczek's dissertation committee, said, "I've suspected what Ron has so clearly shown us for several years now. A lot of accounting teachers are still making this mistake — as I did many times in the past. I don't imagine that this finding applies only in the subject of accounting, although we haven't proved anything else, of course."

"Slumpflation" index shows discouraging trend for economy

The "slumpflation" index, inflation and unemployment rates combined, is the best measure of the state of the economy, writes William B. Whiston in the latest edition of the Massachusetts Business and Economic Report.

Whiston, director of the Center for Business and Economic Research at UMass reports the relationship of inflation and unemployment is like a see-saw. Money is injected during periods of unemployment and removed during the resultant period of excess demand and inflation.

The slumpflation index for the last 20 years clearly shows a discouraging trend. In 1955 the index was 5.6. In 1965 it was 6.8. By the fourth quarter of 1974 it was 18.0, an increase first seen in 1971 when the rate was 10.2. The critical measures of unemployment and inflation are out of control.

So-called "pump priming" cannot alone reduce unemployment without inflation. The economy can be pulled to a halt by monetary policy but employers will not hire unless the productivity of the added workers exceeds administered wage levels.

Whiston guarantees that every worker seeking unemployment would have access to job training to increase productivity. He also calls for easing the move from transfer payments such as welfare and unemployment insurance, until the marginal worker earns enough to make his return to transfer payment levels an unacceptable economic choice.

Whiston also reports few laymen understand why inflation can destroy the private sector of the economy. As a result, citizens were not sympathetic to the drastic measures taken by the Federal Reserve Board last fall in creating a "planned" recession.

But, Whiston says, the real equity of U.S. corporations was descending to dangerous levels. Excessive commercial loan demands pushed the stock market to new lows weekly with the news of new loans to business. Near panic developed in October of 1974 as financial institutions and manufacturing corporations faced serious liquidity crisises.

Equity levels were low, leaving a vulnerable capital structure. It is impossible for most firms to carry inflated inventories and accounts receivable without increased equity. But increased equity is after taxes. If equity equals annual sales, states Whiston, then 12 per cent inflation requires 24 per cent extra earnings before taxes just to maintain constant equity levels.

Coming Soon
a new dining experience on campus for TOC clu! members and their guests.
A place for steak
and . . . .
Watch for grand opening
. . . soon
clip this ad for 10% discount.
(offer good till 4/15/75)

TIRED OF THE OLD TANK?
TRY A KAWASAKI THIS YEAR!
VALLEY MOTORSPORTS
348 King St. Northampton
584-7303

Agency directory offers aid to resource, planning problems

A new and updated directory of agencies that can offer help in environmental problem solving is available free from the Cooperative Extension Service at UMass.

"The directory of selected natural resource and associated planning agencies is offered to the people of the Commonwealth as an aid in locating sources of assistance in solving resource and planning problems at the local and private level of decision making," according to its editor, Professor John H. Noyes of the UMass Forestry and Wildlife Management Department.

In 68 pages, the directory lists many federal and other national agencies whose programs have application in Massachusetts, state agencies, local organizations, private groups, foundations and others. There is a brief description of each with addresses and telephone numbers.

The "Massachusetts flatural Resource Agency Directory," Publication N. 29, is available without charge from the Bulletin Distribution Center, Stockbridge Hall.

Book by UMass History prof nominated for national award

Salem Possessed, a book by Paul S. Boyer and Stephen Nissenbaum, of the UMass History Department, has recently been nominated for a National Book Award.

The book, published by Harvard University Press, is a study of the social origins of witchcraft in seventeenth century Salem, Massachusetts, and has already received the John H. Dunning Prize of the American Historical Association.

Boyer, a 1960 graduate from Harvard University, completed his doctorate at the same institution in 1966. Prior to coming to the University of Massachusetts, he was Assistant Editor of a three-volume project, Notable American Women, published by Harvard University Press. His other publications include a monograph on Purity in Print: Book Cnesorship in America, and a volume of documents entitled Salem Village Witchcraft, which he edited with Nissenbaum.

THANK YOU
for helping raise $25,000 in March on the WORLD'S LARGEST STUDENT PHONOTHON
Come in April, Monday-Thursday,
6:00 p.m., Memorial Hall
to double it.
First come first serve on the phones

Join a University Committee and help in the decision making that affects YOU!
GET INVOLVED: SHAPE POLICY
These committee appointments are open:
Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee
Athletic Council
Fine Arts Council
Space and Calendar Com.
Master Planning Comm.
Foreign Language Requirement Committee
Core Curriculum Comm.
Committee on the Status of Women
Distinguished Teacher Awards
If interested in applying, Contact Rich Savini at 5-0341

"Lifeline Bill" designed to meet, guarantee basic electrical needs

MassPIRG Director Ronald E. Bogard joined hundreds of outraged Massachusetts utility consumers in urging the legislature's Committee on Governmental Regulations to report out favorably the "Lifeline Bill" (H-3498 as amended) that is designed to meet the immediate short-term needs of residential consumers unable to pay skyrocketing electric bills. The lifeline bill would guarantee a basic amount of electricity to all residential consumers at a fair and reasonable rate.

In prepared testimony, Bogard stated: "This modest rate reform proposal is designed to provide the majority of Massachusetts' residential consumers with immediate-short-term relief, pending consideration and implementation of needed long range reforms such as some form of public power, a complete overhaul of our rate structure and creation of a viable DPU that acts in the public interest." Bogard added: "Massachusetts residential consumers need utility rate relief now, and "Lifeline" would provide that relief without having a significant negative impact on Massachusetts' economy.

Citing figures computed by an economist and statistician retained by MassPIRG, Bogard said that the smallest consumers of electricity pay the highest costs per kilowatt hour.

Bogard cited MassPIRG's March 1975 study of 100 commercial establishments in the Bay State where 75 per cent of the stores surveyed had temperature levels above FEA standards and 62 per cent of the stores had light levels in excess of FEA prescribed standards.

Bogard added "Small users who use electricity only for necessities of life cannot change their consumption patterns and have absorbed the brunt of recent rate increases. The Lifeline proposal would guarantee the availability of basic electricity at a price which most citizens can afford."

Seminar to discuss world control shift

In the past quarter century, according to General Electric Co. systems engineer Harold Chestnut, there has been a gradual shift from a world in which conditions were primarily determined by acts of nature to one in which conditions are more strongly determined and influenced by man.

Chestnut will explain this shift, and the need for new decision-making models to keep pace with it, in a talk at 4 p.m. today at Engineering East Auditorium.

The talk, open to the public without charge, is a seminar sponsored by the UMass Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering. The speaker is a systems engineering consultant at the GE Research and Development Center in Schenectady and a former president of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.

According to Chestnut, the influence of man-made decisions is becoming greater because of the increasing amounts of energy, material, information, money, resources and people available for man to use and direct.

His talk, "A Framework for National Models Useful in Planning and Predicting Alternative Possible Futures," will describe a framework that will enable men to understand a whole country and the effects of other countries as well as the internal operation of the major sectors of the technical, economic, and social activities that make up the country. Such a framework will be developed and ways for studying different alternative futures will be described.

Women voters will sponsor televised candidates night

The Amherst League of Women Voters will sponsor a televised Candidates Night tomorrow April 1, promptly at 7:30 in Room C21-22 on the second floor of the Junior High School.

Staff Photo by George Withers

A one-person minority group tries to influence the comic-buying vote on a sunny day in Northampton.

Hispanic Faculty group elects new officers

The Association of Hispanic Faculty at UMass has elected new officers. President is Pedro Barbosa, Department of Entomology; Secretary-Treasurer, Antonio Andrade, Jr., Department of Spanish and Portuguese; Executive Committee, Barbosa and Andrade; Jessie Ortiz, Public Health Center; Sylvia Viera, School of Education; Sara Nieves, School of Education, and Juan Zamora, Spanish and Portuguese, ex officio.

The Association of Hispanic Faculty welcomes all faculty members who are of Portuguese or Spanish ancestry and who seek to promote the cultures of Spain, Portugal, Brazil, Spanish America and of the Spanish and Portuguese speakers in the U.S.

The association serves Hispanic minority students and communities, as well as the University and other educational institutions of the Commonwealth, promotes Affirmative Action programs, represents and supports its members before the administration and the University community, and provides the members an opportunity to meet socially and professionally and share in their common culture.

Free career workshops offered

On the following dates, the Student Development Center will be offering a series of one-session career development workshops focusing on resume writing: Mon. March 31; 7-10 p.m.; C.C. 803; Thurs. April 10; 7-10 p.m.; C.C. 803; Tues. April 25; 7-10 p.m.; C.C. 903.

Some of the questions that will be addressed during these sessions include: "What does a job mean to me?"; "What marketable skills do I have?"; "How do these answers translate onto a resume?"

These workshops are free and open to all interested students. For registration and more information, Call Charlene Campbell at 546-4556.

Food seminar begins April 1

A six-session seminar for food service people on Effective Use of Personnel in Food Service Operations will be offered by the UMass' department of hotel, restaurant, and travel administration starting tomorrow.

The two-hour evening sessions will be held at the Hampden County Improvement League Building, 1499 Memorial Ave., West Springfield, from 7 to 9 on April 1, 8, 15, 22, 29, and May 6. The series of meetings is an offering of the Cooperative Extension Service of the College of Food and Natural Resources and the Hampden County Extension Service.

Prof. Charles E. Eshbach of the department of hotel, restaurant, and travel administration will direct the series. The sessions will focus on personnel in relation to high labor costs, the new philosophy on the part of new workers, selection and evaluation of new employees and their training, equipment that is interchangeable with people, labor efficiency, the food service industry as a place for careers and management in relation to other workers.

Advance registration is necessary. The fee is $25. Further information on the meetings can be obtained from Professor Eshbach at the department of hotel, restaurant, and travel administration, 215 Chenoweth Laboratory, Telephone 253-2061.

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay
- To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.
The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.
The rates are:
Daily — [illegible] per line
Weekly — [illegible] per line
Monthly — [illegible] per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE
Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. [illegible] Call Mike 549-0177.
Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8461 or stop by and see at JQA 1600.
Pair JBL 88 speakers: high efficiency. 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.
RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive: for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4766 evenings.
Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms channel, or 11 WBS channel (quad). 3 mos. old. List $380. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Mark 6-7009. Also smaller adverts for $120.
Van 4 Sale — '73, 302, V8, RH, AC. 532-4611.
A brand new Polaroid ID 440 camera with flash. Used only once. Best offer takes it. Call 253-2707. Keep trying.
Trumpet-pro. Silver Holton Bb $260. Call Paul at 542-6867 Hampshire Col.
Minolta SRT 101, 58 mm f1.4, case and extras, ex. cond., $180. 788-6670 aft. six.

FOR SALE
For Sale — Gibson Hummingbird, hard shell case. Best offer takes it. Call 256-8711 after 4 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE
SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM-FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2600. 1-369-4685.
Great '70 Fiat 850 Coupe looking for good home. 30 mpg. $895. cheap! 253-7967.
'66 Chev., Seeds looking, great running, good transportation. $295. Bob 253-7967.
'64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new exhaust, runs well. $200 or best offer. 253-7967.
'58 Peugeot 403, sunroof. Bring a battery and drive it away! $100. 253-7967.
'66 Corvair convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer takes. 253-7967.
'73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5633 Chuck.
'67 VW Squareback, rebuilt engine, decent body. $600. Ashfield. 625-2336.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE
HD Sportster. Koni shocks, disc brake, alum. jugs, [illegible] Ernie 527-4877.

FOR RENT
One bdrm. apt. for rent on 5d bus route. $180 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7666.
Whately, Mass. — 7 room house, good condition, available for 1 year. $225.00 month. Call 737-6660.
Amh. — New 2 bdr., w-w carpet, dw. disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. and sec. 549-6600.
Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw. disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

FOR RENT
Nr UMass Univ. Park, 2½ rm., June 1. $165 including util. No pets. 253-2986.
Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm. $160 mo. includes util. 5-2266 (Sue) days. 256-0384. 5-6 p.m.
Co-op Res., 665 Main, AMH veg. org. food growth oriented. Mat. persons [illegible] util. & food & deposit. 3 openings. 253-5253.

WANTED TO RENT
1 bedroom apt. Nhmptn area [illegible] for May. Bus phone. 549-2129 ask for [illegible]. 9-5.
Small house in countryside. Isolation and work space. Resp. craftsman. Refs. available. Now or summer. Call collect 617-[illegible].

TO SUBLET
June sublet town house apt., 2 bedroom; air conditioned; close to campus and on bus route. Lease can be renewed in September. $230 and utilities per month, but will negotiate for the summer months. If interested call 549-0886.
Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70 util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 til Sept. 1. Call 549-1275 right now.
Two bedroom apt. in Amherst Center. June 1-August 31. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.
Sublet June 1 to Sept. 1. Brandywine Apt. Furnished. 549-6547.
2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month on bus line. June 1-August 31. opt to renew. 546-6333.
One bedroom apt. in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

ROOMMATE WANTED
Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $100 per mo. incl. util. 253-9471.

ROOMMATE WANTED
N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0600.
Beautiful N. Amherst house with garden. Grad or worker. $80 inc. util. 253-9295.
RESPONSIBLE M/F to share 3 bedrm., furnished apt. on Bus line. $110. 253-7967.

WANTED
Wanted baby clothes. 1-583-6684.
BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $. for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.
Typist for final draft of thesis. 100 pages total call 584-1580 early mornings.

HELP WANTED
Applications are now available for employment with conference HSQ. 25 positions available including clerks, housekeepers, and night mgr. Further information and application forms may be obtained at off. of Residential Life, 233 Hills N. Deadline for returning applications — 4-14-75. [illegible] Action Employer.

TYPING
Students — Avoid last minute rush. Have papers etc. typed early. Call 253-3494 or 253-7145.

PERSONALS
Timmy Happy 20th to Prime Cut — The Baker Babes.

PERSONALS
Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your sheygets. Michael.
$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis. 5-5000 or 665-4879.
Future CPA's. Learn how to prepare for the CPA exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.
See you at the Big Bad Boogie! There's more to drink this year and it's only $2 for the band and all you can drink!
Owl the rate did it. They made me miss Xmas. It's owl day 75. After all there is such a [illegible] as almost grandma's den. Love Zord.

TRAVEL
Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

SERVICES
TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.
Yogapiano. 549-6321. Carole Shanti.
BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job to small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.
RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive, for instance, name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4766 evenings.
Kermeschenko — All auto repairs. Fiat specialists. People's prices. We'll teach you too! 665-7146.

ENTERTAINMENT
Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $60. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.
Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $60. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.
UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 2:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years. $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information — 545-0202.
THIS WEEK IN THE BLUEWALL Tuesday, April 1, — Fat, 9-1; Wed. and Thurs., April 2 & 3 — Night Hawks; Fri. and Sat., April 4 & 5 — Forest, 9-1; Sunday, April 6 — Jazz Jam Session. At the Toc, Thurs.-Sat. — Priest Dixieland Jazz Band.

MISCELLANEOUS
OVERSEAS JOBS — Australia, Europe, S. America, Africa! Students, all professions and occupations. $700 to $3,000 mo. Expenses paid, overtime, sightseeing. Free info. TRANSWORLD RESEARCH CO., Dept. H8, P.O. Box 603, Corte Madera, 94925.
Wanted bird nests for cash. resident 116 Cliffside, Sunderland. [illegible]

AUTO WORKSHOP
DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10. Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS
College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. Before you buy anywhere call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 546-1216.

UMass student spends semester as intern with local TV station

A paper mache rabbit, an abstract painting, an antique dress form, a pair of skis — what's it all about? It's all in a day's work for senior Donna Ovian.

Ovian is a working part of University Year for Action, a federally funded program that places student volunteers in social service projects. A mass communications major, Ovian is earning a semester's credits as an intern at public television station, Channel 57 in Springfield.

The staff and volunteers at Channel 57 are busy working on Auction 75, an annual event that raises programming funds for public TV by auctioning off merchandise and services to homeviewers in a life television broadcast. Monday through Friday, 9-5, Donna can be found right in the middle of all the work and excitement. As Warehouse Manager, she keeps tabs on all the donated merchandise and is making sure that it's all gathered in time for the April Auction. Items like fifteen gallons of milk, a car, a bellydancer, and autographed editions of rare books come under Donna's jurisdiction in the warehouse.

Answering phones, attending staff meetings, keeping records straight, setting up displays — Ovian is finding her UYA internship to be a real learning experience. Ovian believes that out-of-classroom work is an important part of media education, and will be especially valuable after graduation. Planning to work in TV or radio, Ovian will be able to use knowledge gained from her work in public television when she enters the job market in June.

Meeting and working with people from all over Western Massachusetts, Ovian has been especially impressed by the way local communities are working together to make the Auction a successful production. She's giving serious thought to seeking employment in this area — another plus gained from her internship.

There's never a dull moment, and barely time for lunch for Donna Ovian at Channel 57's Auction headquarters — and when the bidding gets started on April 12, Ovian will be busy behind the scenes helping bring a unique event to life for over 200,000 viewers of public television.

Donna Ovian, UMass Senior, is working at Channel 57 as an intern through the University Year for Action program. As part of her six-month assignment, she's in charge of the warehouse for the station's Action Auction.

Compulsory spring vehicle inspection begins Tuesday

Owners and operators of motor vehicles and trailers registered in Massachusetts are reminded that the compulsory Spring Inspection begins tomorrow and ends May 15.

This is a good time to make repairs so that when you do present your motor vehicle for inspection it will pass the first time.

There are 4400 official inspection stations located throughout the state which have been checked by Registry officers and are ready to perform the required inspection for you.

Before you take your car in, check the registration number with your registration plates to see if they match. If they do not match, go to a Registry office to have a correction made. Also, check the vehicle identification number on your registration certificate with the vehicle identification number which is on the vehicle to see if they match. If they do not match, go to your insurance company or agent for corrections.

The Registration certificate must be presented before an inspection will be made, and all information must be correct.

The fee for a motor vehicle inspection is now $3. The fee for inspection of a trailer alone is still 50 cents.

Items to be checked include brakes, stop lights, lights, horn, exhaust system, steering gear, windshield, windshield cleaners, number plates, rear windows, tires, fenders, bumpers, external sheet metal reflectors, splash guards and chock blocks, pollution control systems or devices, and the vehicle identification number.

Vehicles passing inspection will have an official green sticker printed in black placed on the windshield by an adjuster after a passed inspection.

LENZ auditions set for tomorrow night

Auditions for LENZ, a work in progress by Dan Eaton, have been scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. in Room 08 of the Fine Arts Center.

The script, to be developed during the rehearsal process, will be based upon the life and letters of the German playwright and, the story — a copy of which is available in the Theater Department main office — of the same title by Georg Buchner.

The objective, according to Director Jeff Nichols, is to form an ensemble of from ten to fifteen actors and explore and experiment improvisationally the source material on hand, working toward the development and creation of a new theater piece.

Underwater Archaeology lecture to be presented

The subject of Underwater Archaeology is very fascinating and the interest is h[illegible] among the University community concerning such a subject. Professor [illegible] teaches at the Classics Department of UMass and she will present on Wednesday an illustrated lecture concerning the subject of Underwater Archaeology.

The lecture will be open to students, faculty, and others, and it will begin at 7:00 P.M. in room [illegible] of the Campus Center. Because of the interest shown in the subject those planning to attend the lecture are advised to arrive a little early. The lecture will be illustrated by slides, a film will be shown, and is sponsored by the Hellenic American Association.

Campaign party set for local candidate

George B. Schauser of 54 Colonial Village, a candidate for the Amherst Housing Authority in the town's April 8th election, will be the guest of honor at a campaign party to be held this Tuesday, beginning at 8 P.M., at Apartment 5-B, Brandywine Drive.

Schauser, a program representative for the Experimental Housing Allowance Program in Springfield, is being opposed for the vacant housing authority seat by Robert Graham, a local realtor.

Amherst voters are invited to attend the party and question the candidate about rent control, zoning, UMass housing policy, and other local housing issues.

Schauser will also be appearing Tuesday night on the special candidates' forum on Channel 8, the local cablevision TV channel.

Restrictions for ads in CC

"All private business advertising and notices will be limited to posting on OPEN bulletin boards only. Under no conditions will any items be attached to external or internal structural surfaces, furniture or equipment within the Campus Center Complex. Material will be no larger in size than 14" x 22". Material will be limited to one (1) item per bulletin board. Poster material in violation of this will be immediately removed and organizations may be banned from displaying in the Campus Center Complex."

Pete 'n' Tillie
TONIGHT
Monday, March 31
7, 9, 11
C.C. Aud.
[illegible]

university of massachusetts arts council presents
M'BOOM
RE-PERCUSSION
MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM
TICKETS

Rapid REPRODUCTIONS
Quality Xeroxing
XEROX 2400
Sameday Service
233 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst Carriage Shops
Mon-Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6/Sun 11-7
549-0566

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

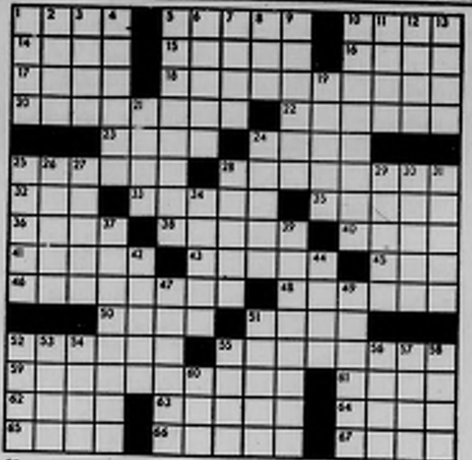
UNITED Feature Syndicate

ACROSS

[illegible]

DOWN

[illegible]



Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

MONDAY, March 31 — Born today, you have a decidedly spiritual nature — but you also have decidedly material appetites. This means, of course, that there will often be conflict between your desire for the creature comforts and your need for spiritual fulfillment. It will not always be possible for you to satisfy yourself physically at the same time that you find expression for the needs of your spirit; as a result, you may often know times of great emotional upheaval — times through which, ironically, you can develop your highest and best nature.

You may have a difficult time discovering where your interests really lie insofar as a career is concerned, but once you finally settle down to a single line of work which takes both your attention and your time, you should be able to reach the top in very short order. You have tremendous powers of concentration, but they have to be activated by both determination and opportunity; without these, no amount of wishing will bring your powers into play.

You have a basic desire to help others achieve success in their chosen fields but you also have a basic shyness about approaching others with an offer of help. Your ability to put yourself in another's place ultimately pays off handsomely, however, as you draw to yourself friends who do not need words for understanding. These are those who will make your life exciting and worthwhile.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Tuesday, April 1

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — An excellent day for the Aries deeply involved in his own profession. Discover where your best bets lie — but don't rush things along the way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Make your present plans with half an eye — at least — on the future. Don't lose an old advantage by too close attention to a new phase.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Apply your talents fully and completely to the project at hand — but don't resist another's suggestions for improving the results of your efforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Take advantage of a new business opportunity that arises early in the day. Take your time during the afternoon and evening, especially in a matter of choice.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Where debts are owed you make an attempt to collect. Another's tale of woe must be taken with a grain of salt. Seek corroboration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Make an effort to see friends of long standing. Don't be surprised, however, should you have more difficulty than you expected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may have a financial advantage you are not aware of. Take your time during afternoon hours, when it may be difficult for you to make gains.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Press your own interests today. This is no time to be as generous to others with your time as you usually are. You need to see to your own success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Another's offer should be taken seriously and contemplated well. It could give you the chance you've been waiting for to advance your career.

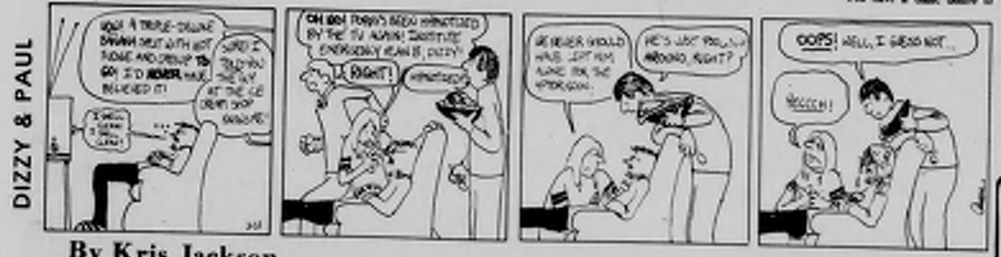
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Anticipate success before the day is over. This is a good time to move quickly ahead toward your goal. An excess of caution is ill-advised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Your efforts in all directions should meet with success today. Make cooperation with others a matter of course, especially during the afternoon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Keep yourself in readiness for change. Speedy arrivals and departures characterize your contacts with those who can help you be prepared.

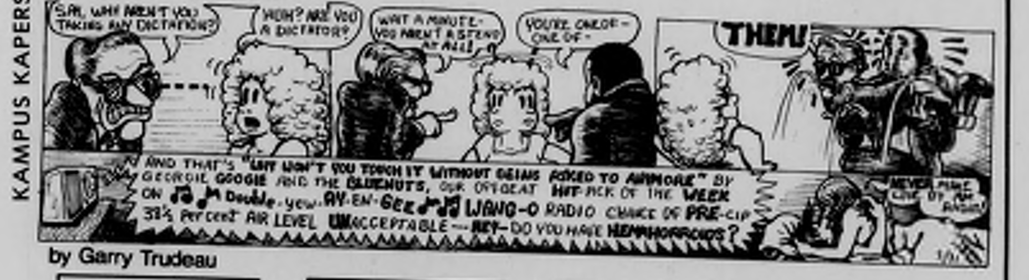
United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson



DIZZY & PAUL
WOW! A TRIPLE-DELUXE BANANA SPLIT WITH HOT FUDGE AND SYRUP TO GO! I'D NEVER HAVE BELIEVED IT!
OH BOY! TOBBY'S BEEN HYPNOTIZED BY THE TV AGAIN! INSTITUTE EMERGENCY PLAN B, DIZZY!
RIGHT!
WE NEVER SHOULD HAVE LEFT HIM ALONE FOR THE AFTERNOON.
HE'S JUST FOOLING AROUND, RIGHT?
OOPS! WELL, I GUESS NOT...

By Kris Jackson



KAMPUS KAPERS
SIR, WHY AREN'T YOU TAKING ANY DICTATION?
HUH? ARE YOU A DICTATOR?
WAIT A MINUTE- YOU AREN'T A STENO AT ALL!
YOU'RE ONE OF- ONE OF-
THEM!
AND THAT'S "WHY WON'T YOU TOUCH IT WITHOUT BEING ASKED TO ANYMORE" BY GEORGIE GOOGIE AND THE BLUENUTS, OUR OFFBEAT HIT PICK OF THE WEEK ON Double-you-AY-EN-GEE WANG-O RADIO CHANCE OF PRE-CIP 33½ PERCENT AIR LEVEL UNACCEPTABLE—HEY—DO YOU HAVE HEMMORROIDS?
NEVER MIND ONE OF 'EM AGAIN!

by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY

By Johnny Hart

B.C.
IN THE BOTTOM OF YOUR FEET

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID
I'M ABSOLUTELY SPEECHLESS

notices

GAMMA GAMMA SIGMA

Important meeting tonight 6:30 C.C. 804-9. Elections will be held.

BDIC STUDENTS

The new revised mid-semester report form is available this week at the BDIC office. Old forms are no longer valid. Due dates are April 21-28. Before you write anything come get the new form.

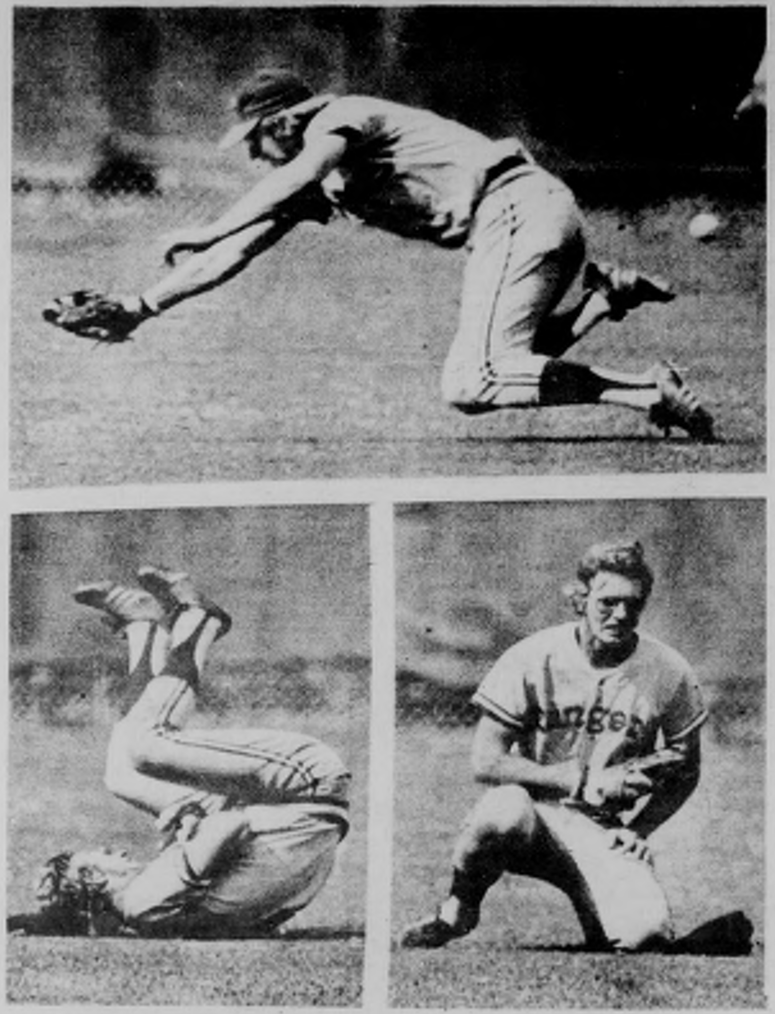
UNDERSTANDING LIFE

Free informal classes on practical and relevant life subjects Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m., 666 Main Street, Amherst. 253-6253.

RSO FILM PROGRAMMERS

All students involved with film programming are urged to attend a general meeting with Jim Riley, Tuesday, April 1, 8 p.m., C.C. 172-71.

[illegible]



THAT'S NOT HOW YOU DO IT! The immortal Bob Jones shows alot of hustle but little form as he comes up empty-handed in pursuit of a Roy White line drive. Will Jones save this picture to show his grandchildren?

BoSox blasted by Dodgers again,7-2

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bill Buckner clubbed two doubles and Andy Messersmith hurled six strong innings Sunday as Los Angeles defeated Boston 7-2 for its sixth straight exhibition victory.

The win was the 16th in 21 games for the National League champion Dodgers.

Trailing 2-1 after two innings, Dave Lopes singled home the tying run and Buckner then doubled home Lopes to put the Dodgers in front to stay. They added three more runs in the sixth inning, with help of an error on shortstop Rick Burleson.

Messersmith allowed only three hits and two runs while striking out seven Red Sox. Mike Marshall finished the game, giving up two hits in three scoreless innings.

Rick Wise took the loss, surrendering six runs, three earned, on seven hits.

Lopes opened the Dodgers' first with a triple and scored on Buckner's infield out.

Boston went in front with two runs in the second on a two-run double by Bob Heise.

Bill Russell singled to start the Dodgers' third, stole second and scored when Lopes singled to right.

In the sixth after two were out, Jim Wynn walked and Joe Ferguson was safe when Burleson booted his easy grounder. Paciorek then doubled to score both runners. Paciorek came home on a single to center by Ron Cey.

Los Angeles got its final run in the seventh when Lee Lacy singled and came home on a long single to center by Henry Cruz.

In sweeping three games in a week with the Red Sox, the Dodgers combed Boston pitching for 30 runs and 47 hits. However, the performances of Wise and Drago were the best by any combination of hurlers.

Rogelio Moret blanked the Dodgers on three hits for four innings Saturday, but that came after Reggie Cleveland was bombed for 16 hits and 10 runs in the first five innings.

Wise, trying to come back from a sore shoulder which plagued him in his first season with the Red Sox, allowed six runs and seven hits in six innings. However, one run scored on a wind-blown fly which fell near trees for a triple and three other tallies came across after an error by shortstop Rick Burleson.

"I'm satisfied with Rick's performance," Boston manager Darrell Johnson said. "His arm is not powerful yet, but he's going to get stronger. I don't think any of our pitchers has his arm at full strength yet."

The Red Sox left most of their regulars at home to work out in Winter Haven. The team at Vero Beach managed just five hits and Johnson admitted he is "a bit disappointed with our hitting in the last few games."

Now 10-14 in exhibition play with seven games remaining before heading for Boston next Sunday evening, the Red Sox remain home Monday to play the St. Louis Cardinals.

Luis Tiant, a 22-game winner tuning up for the start of the American League season April 8, will start on the mound against the Cardinals. Tiant will get one more start before being sent home a couple of days early to get ready to face the Milwaukee Brewers as the Red Sox launch their 75th season.

BOSTON 020 000 000 — 2 5 1
LOS ANGELES 102 003 10X — 7 10 1

WISE, DRAGO (7) AND BLACKWELL; MESSERSMITH, MARSHALL (7) AND YEAGER, MILLER (7). WP — MESSERSMITH. LP-WISE.

Notice

WOMENS' LACROSSE — Begins April 1 at 4:00 behind NOPE. Practice Mon—Thurs, 4-6 p.m. Everyone welcome.

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New
RECORD SHOP
[illegible] No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
[illegible]

Campbell reported on way out; Leafs' Sedgewick may succeed

TORONTO (UPI) — The bosses of the National Hockey League have decided to oust 69-year-old Clarence Campbell as NHL president, says controversial New York hockey writer Stan Fischler.

According to Fischler, Toronto Maple Leafs' Governor, Robert Sedgewick, is an 11th-hour entry to replace Campbell after Canadian interests objected to an American heading the league.

Sedgewick, a 50-year-old tax lawyer, is on a visit to Switzerland this week. But his son, Robert Jr., confirmed Sunday the question of his father's elevation to the top post had been discussed.

"But that is as far as I go right now," he said. "There is nothing definite at the moment."

In a sharp attack on Campbell in the latest issue of MacLean's Magazine, Fischler says Campbell's bosses, the NHL team owners, have reached an "overriding sentiment" that Campbell is too old to be president.

"He has been president of the NHL for 28 years," says Fischler. "Longer than Napoleon ruled France, longer than Hitler dictated to Germany and longer than MacKenzie King presided over the Canadian government.

"This year the bosses have finally decided, barring a last minute change of plans, that Campbell has to go, the sooner the better."

Fischler accuses Campbell of having acted "more like a puppet tangled in its strings" than the decisive president of a huge corporation.

In any showdown, Fischler says, the owners invariably overruled him — "Clarence has absorbed all the curves and spitballs his bosses could throw at him."

Fischler cites criticism of the quality of NHL play and violence on the ice — violence that Campbell has defended.

Fischler also attacks Campbell for a pompous "it will never get off the ground" attitude toward the World Hockey Association. This backfired in his face, says Fischler. It encouraged the growth of the new league and ultimately led to the defection of such former NHL "institutions" as Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull.

"The NHL 'spectacle,' as Campbell likes to call his product, has deteriorated in sales value to the point where, for the first time in years, the league is in serious danger of losing its lucrative U.S. network television contract," Fischler says.

Fischler also accuses Campbell of acting like a schoolyard bully, being tough on 98-pound weaklings in the league but becoming "inexplicably" [illegible] when confronted with NHL heavyweights.

"Campbell will rush to penalize third-rate players but will spread his protective cocoon around the likes of Bobby Orr," Fischler said.

According to Fischler, James Cullen, "an unknown attorney" for the St. Louis Blues, emerged for a time as a favorite to replace Campbell. But the thought of an American heading the league grated on some Canadians and Sedgewick of Toronto moved into the picture.

Gorillas drop openers

cont. from p. 26

Bowling Green in a scrimmage game and they were victorious, 6-4.

Saturday seventh-ranked in the nation Hofstra was the opponent as UMass fell 14-10.

"We played well enough to win so this was really a frustrating game," said Garber.

After a 4-6 half-time Hofstra lead the game really opened up offensively. With six minutes left the score was 11-8 and Hofstra was able to hang on for the win.

"Despite a somewhat frustrating start," said Coach Garber, "we still have a very good lacrosse team and we're looking forward to the start of our regular New England season this week."

SCOOP SHOTS — "Our close defense played very well ([illegible]) when we were down," said Garber. "It's too bad they were not even longer against [illegible]. Our midfielders did a good job but we could have picked up on the man a little better. They were getting too many shots." The attack did a very good job. Ten goals in each game should have been good enough to win. We took as many shots as the other teams but too many of them were not on the cage..."

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1-2-3-4-5-6
Funny Lady
Young Frankenstein
Lenny
The Towering Inferno
The Four Musketeers

Kentucky-UCLA: Depth vs legend

SAN DIEGO (AP) — UCLA's Bruins battle Monday night to give Coach John Wooden a 10th NCAA basketball championship as a retirement present.

Their game against the physically strong Kentucky Wildcats still rates as a toss-up with some oddsmakers seeing UCLA as a one-point favorite in the contest at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Coach Joe B. Hall, who succeeded the legendary Adolph Rupp at Kentucky three years ago, now faces a team bidding farewell to another basketball legend.

Hall, however, doesn't feel Wooden's announcement after his semifinal victory Saturday over Louisville will affect the southerners.

"We have great momentum psychologically right now and have had it throughout the tournament," Hall declared. "Coach Wooden's retirement announcement will have no negative effect on our team. What it does to his team remains to be seen."

UCLA, rated No. 1 in The Associated Press poll, takes a 27-3 record into the finale against No. 2 Kentucky, 26-4.

Wooden says he didn't make his announcement to "hype our players. We want to win with a workmanlike job."

At the same time, he admitted the Bruins this season haven't met teams with the physical strength of the Wildcats.

"We've played teams of similar style, but not as physically endowed," was the way the 64-year-old coach made his evaluation.

Wooden and Hall agree on one thing — this game will be for the national title, despite the comment of Coach Bobby Knight of Indiana that it should be only for the tournament championship. Knight's previously unbeaten Hoosiers lost by two points, 92-90, to Kentucky in regional competition.

Monday's program opens with a consolation game between Syracuse and Louisville. Kentucky whipped Syracuse 95-79 while Louisville fell in overtime to the Bruins 75-74.

Another capacity crowd of 15,151 will watch, along with millions viewing via national television.

Kentucky starts a front line of 6-10 freshman Rick Robey and seniors Kevin Grevey, 6-5, and Bob Guyette, 6-9. Capt. Jimmy Dan Conner directs the action, teaming with another senior guard, Mike Flynn.

UCLA also has plenty of height up front with All-American Dave Meyers, 6-8, Marques Johnson, 6-6, and Rich Washington, 6-9. The No. 1 reserve, Ralph Drollinger, stands 7-1.

In the backcourt are Pete Trgovich, a senior, and Andre McCarter, a junior.

Kentucky's bench strength could make a big difference. Hall used 11 men in his win over Syracuse, when reserves scored 29 of the 95 points. Jack Givens, a freshman, wound up as the Wildcats' leading scorer with 24.

"I thought maybe he didn't start the regulars," Wooden said with a smile. Then he added: "I was extremely impressed with Kentucky, the size and strength.

"I don't know when I've looked at a more awesome physical group of basketball players." The UCLA coach said Meyers' injured leg hurt after the Louisville game "and we don't know how it will react."

In answer to a question Sunday, Hall said the Syracuse press worked while Kentucky had reserves in the game but not against veterans.

UCLA long has been noted for its defensive press, but Hall said he will take his chances in substituting.

"We'll sacrifice a little bit to keep freshness in the game," he explained. "When we see the aggressiveness fade in the starters, we'll use substitutes to maintain the aggressiveness."

Both coaches declared they'd go with their usual starting lineups, Wooden explaining, "They're the ones that brought us here."

UCLA, shown here in the Western Regionals, will be trying to regain their title tonight after losing it to NC State last year. Richard Washington (31), batting away an enemy shot, will be a key for the Bruins.

Kentucky will be looking forward to Rick Robey (53), shown here in earlier NCAA action, to pace the Wildcats' inside attack in tonight's finale.

Stottlemyre released

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — With the departure of pitcher Mel Stottlemyre, there are no members of the New York Yankees' last pennant winner in 1964 left on the club.

"I'm not surprised, but I'm disappointed," said the 33-year-old right-hander after the American League club announced Saturday it was asking waivers on him for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

"My only regret is that I bothered coming to spring training," said the pitcher who three times has won 20 games in a season and who has played on five All-Star teams. "If I had known this, perhaps I would have pushed harder to find out sooner."

Stottlemyre hurt his arm last June and pitched very little the rest of the season.

"I will make a couple of calls to other clubs to see if anyone is interested," said Stottlemyre who reportedly was paid $90,000 last season. One of the clubs he said he would call is Detroit, managed by Ralph Houk, who formerly managed the Yankees.

Stottlemyre broke in with the Yankees in August, 1964. He posted a 9-3 record that season, helping the club to the pennant and was 1-1 in three appearances in the World Series. His over-all record is 164-139, with a 2.98 earned run average.

Canadiens fight back to catch Bruins in 2-2 tie

BOSTON (UPI) — Guy Lafleur's 51st goal of the year, at 7:26 of the third period, lifted the Montreal Canadiens to a 2-2 tie with the Boston Bruins Sunday night in a National Hockey League game.

Lafleur's goal came a little more than a minute after Bruins defenseman Bobby Orr had given the home team a 2-1 lead on a power play goal at 6:20.

Lafleur almost won the game for Montreal with 52 seconds left when his power play shot almost trickled past goalie Gil Gilbert, but the Boston netminder grabbed the puck before it went into the net.

Phil Esposito gave Boston a 1-0 lead at 8:46 of the second period when he took a rebound of a Don Marcotte shot and beat Montreal goalie Ken Dryden on his glove side from about 15 feet.

The Canadiens got the goal back at 2:18 of the third period when Jacques Lemaire blasted a slapshot from the blue line past Gilbert.

Boston outshot Montreal 34-21.

Referee Dave Newell handed out 22 minor penalties and one game misconduct penalty, to Montreal's Pete Mahovlich.

Score by periods:

Montreal	0	0	2	2
Boston	0	1	1	2

First period — no scoring. Penalties: Roberts 1:36, Forbes 1:36, Smith 5:25, Vadnais 7:10, Risebrough 11:44, S. Savard 12:46, [illegible] 16:05, Esposito 16:05, Gainey 18:46.

Second period — 1. Boston, Esposito 59 (Marcotte, Orr) 8:46. Penalties: Mahovlich 2:26, Smith 2:26, Wilson 2:46, Esposito 5:11, Boston (Bench) 6:16, Vadnais 18:47, Roberts 18:47, Forbes 18:47, Mahovlich (Minor, 10 minute misconduct, game misconduct) 19:20.

Third period — 2. Montreal Lemaire 34 (Robinson) 2:18. 3. Boston Orr 44 (Sheppard, Bucyk) 6:20. 4. Montreal Lafleur 51 (Lambert, Lapointe) 7:26. Penalties: Gainey 5:09, Schmautz 5:19, Awrey 5:16, Schmautz 17:20.

Shots on goal by:

Montreal	7	5	9	-21
Boston	11	12	11	-34

Goaltenders: Montreal, Dryden; Boston, Gilbert. A - 15,003.

UMass
sportsline
5-2210

Yvan Cournoyer (top) seems to have tackled Bruin's goalie Gilles Gilbert, but it proved in vain as Gilbert stopped the scoring bid.

Women capture EAIAW

By BILL DOYLE

In what amounted to a two-team battle between UMass and Springfield, the top-seeded Minutewomen proved the experts right and successfully defended their E.A.I.A.W. gymnastics championship by edging the Chiefettes, 105.55-104.70, at Princeton's Dillon Gym, ten days ago.

It was a case of UMass just having too much depth for the rest of the 29-team field as the Minutewomen totaled their best score of the season and thus qualified for the national championships in Hayward, California, Thursday-Saturday. The Minutewomen will be attempting to win the nationals for the second time in three years.

UMass' second straight victory in the Easterns wasn't an entirely happy venture, as the team lost the services of freshwoman Pam Steckroat for the nations. Steckroat will be out for two months, Coach Virginia Evans said.

"She suffered a compressed fracture of her lower vertebrate when she fell on her mount of the uneven bars during the finals on Saturday," Evans explained. "Her loss will definitely have an effect on our depth for the nationals."

In the Easterns, although UMass didn't have any individual winners, the team did have the tournament's highest totals on bars, beam, and floor. UMass was edged gy Springfield in vaulting.

The Minutewomen showed great consistency by totaling 26.10 on bars, 26.55 in vaulting, 26.15 on the beam, and 26.75 on the floor.

Evans said that UMass still has room for improvement, "We were a little off in vaulting. Last year we peaked at the Easterns but this year both myself and assistant coach Mike Kasavana believe that we still haven't peaked yet. Hopefully, we'll peak at the nationals.

"We won this year with virtually a new team. The freshmen definitely contributed to the team's success," Evans said in somewhat of an understatement.

Frosh Susan Cantwell finished sixth in the all-arounds with a 35.15 total. She also finished tied for 5th on the bars by scoring an 8.5 on Friday's team totals and a 9.0 during Saturday's individual championships. She finished third on the floor with a 9.1 and a 9.15. Despite a fall off the beam, she also finished eighth in that event.

Freshwoman Steckroat finally put it all together in vaulting, scoring a 9.0 and an 8.9 to finish in a fourth place tie. She also qualified for the finals on bars by finishing in Friday's top ten, but of course her fall prevented her from competing. She finished tenth in the all-arounds with a 33.45 total.

Another freshwoman, Cheryl Smith, finished in a sixth place tie on floor by scoring an 8.85 and a 9.10 (her best score of the season).

But the Minutewomen didn't win on the efforts of just freshwomen, as senior Jeannine Burger finished third in the all-arounds with a 35.5 total. Cole Dowaliby of Southern Connecticut won the all-arounds with a 36.85 score and Penn State's Karne Schuckman just did edge Burger out for second with a 35.6 total. Burger was the defending all-around champ.

Burger didn't defend her bar or floor championships but she did come through with staunch performances in both events. She placed third on bars, scoring an 8.80 and a 9.10. On floor, she finished just behind Cantwell for fourth place with 9.0 and 9.2 scores. Burger also finished fourth on the beam by scoring 9.0 and 8.75.

Senior Gail Hannan "performed her best vault since her freshman year," according to Evans, in scoring an 8.85 in the finals after scoring an 8.85 the day before also. She placed ninth and earned for herself a spot on the nationals squad, Evans added.

UMass qualified five gymnasts for the finals on floor and four on bars. Alicia Goode and Ann Olson both performed their best routines in the floor exercise, finishing in a ninth place tie. Goode scored two 8.8's and Olson averaged an 8.75 and an 8.85.

Olson was the other Minutewoman who qualified on bars, tying Cantwell for fifth. She scored an 8.5 and a 9.0.

Besides winning the all-arounds, Dowaliby took first in every event. She scored 9.25 and 9.35 in vaulting, 9.0 and 9.10 on bars, 9.2 and 9.4 on beam, and 9.4 and 9.4 on floor.

Penn State finished third in the E.A.I.A.W. gymnastics championships, totaling 101.40, over three points behind Springfield. Southern was fourth (99.30), Clarion fourth (98.45), and Canisius sixth (97.65). All six qualified for the nationals by scoring over 96 points.

Staff Photo by Bob Homer

Senior Jeannine Burger, here performing on the beam, played an instrumental part in UMass' winning performance. Burger, finished third in the all-arounds, with unspectacular but consistent showings.

Top-ranked Cornell, Hofstra drop Gorillas

By BEN CASWELL

While the rest of us were on vacation last week the UMass lacrosse Gorillas opened their season with two hard-fought losses against tough New York opponents.

Tuesday the stickers lost to Cornell, a team ranked second in the nation, 16-10, at Adelphi University.

The game had three distinct changes of team control in it. At the end of the first quarter the Gorillas were hopelessly behind 6-0. Attackmen Jeff Spooner, Bill O'Brien, and Frank Garahan then sparked UMass to a seven-goal outburst in the second quarter and the Gorillas led by one, 7-6, at halftime.

The Gorillas still were flying at the start of the second half as two breakaways were nearly scores. Cornell, though, was able to turn the momentum around and they scored seven straight unanswered goals.

All of those seven straight Cornell scores were man advantage situations for the Big Red.

"Nine penalties in the third quarter killed us," was what head Gorilla Dick Garber said. "Some of the calls were questionable, although we're not making any excuses. It just seemed that a call would come against us and then we would get hit the same way with no call," he said.

The rest of the game was played out with Cornell having a big lead and the final score of 16-10 was not a real indication of the way the game went.

"I felt we played one of the best teams in the country," said Coach Garber, "and I felt we played them fairly even except for those nine minutes in penalties in the third quarter."

Thursday the Gorillas played last year's midwest lacrosse champ,

turn to page 22

Baseballers inconsistent; go 2-5 on Southern tour

By BOB HIGGINS

Inconsistency is something you expect from a team during the first week of the season. Unfortunately for the UMass baseball team, their inconsistency led to near disaster as they dropped their first five games of the season before winning two during their Southern trip last week.

While a record of 2-5 sounds like a pretty dismal way to start a season, Coach Dick Bergquist was not particularly disappointed. "We weren't out of any games," the coach commented. "We played good ball early in the week and didn't win."

Last Sunday's loss to North Carolina exemplified the type of week the Minutemen went through. They entered the ninth with a 4-2 lead, resulting from a combination of good pitching (Craig Allegrezza and John McManus), solid infield defense, and the hitting of Jerry Mondalto. But with one out in the final frame, McManus got wild, walking two batters and then giving up an opposite-field three-run homer to UNC leadoff man Early Jones. What looked like a sure win became a 5-4 UMass defeat.

Monday's game with High Point College (N.C.) was rained out and rescheduled as a Tuesday doubleheader. The "high point" of the day for the Minutemen was some fine pitching by three men. In the first game, sophomore Jeff Reardon and Jerry Erb each struck out five, Reardon pitching five innings and Erb three. But the only offensive clout the Minutemen could muster was a 340-foot home run by co-captain Pete Backstrom in the sixth with nobody aboard, and High Point won, 3-1.

The other impressive UMass hurler was freshman Rich Kelly, who pitched five shutout innings in the second game. The Minutemen lost another heartbreaker, however, when High Point got to reliever Tom Nigro for six runs in the seventh, and took the game, 7-6. For UMass offensively, Backstrom had another homer and other RBI's came from Mondalto, Steve Wright, and [illegible].

The Minutemen's fourth loss came against UNC on Wednesday, 9-2. Freshman Pete [illegible] pitched four shutout innings and Backstrom hit a two-run inside-the-park homer to highlight the action for the Minutemen, but three UMass errors marred their performance.

UMass was not sharp, according to Bergquist, in Thursday's 6-3 loss to Wake Forest. "It was a case of no (UMass) hitting vs. poor (Wake Forest) pitching," he said. The only exception for the Minutemen was Steve Wright, who had two of the squad's four hits.

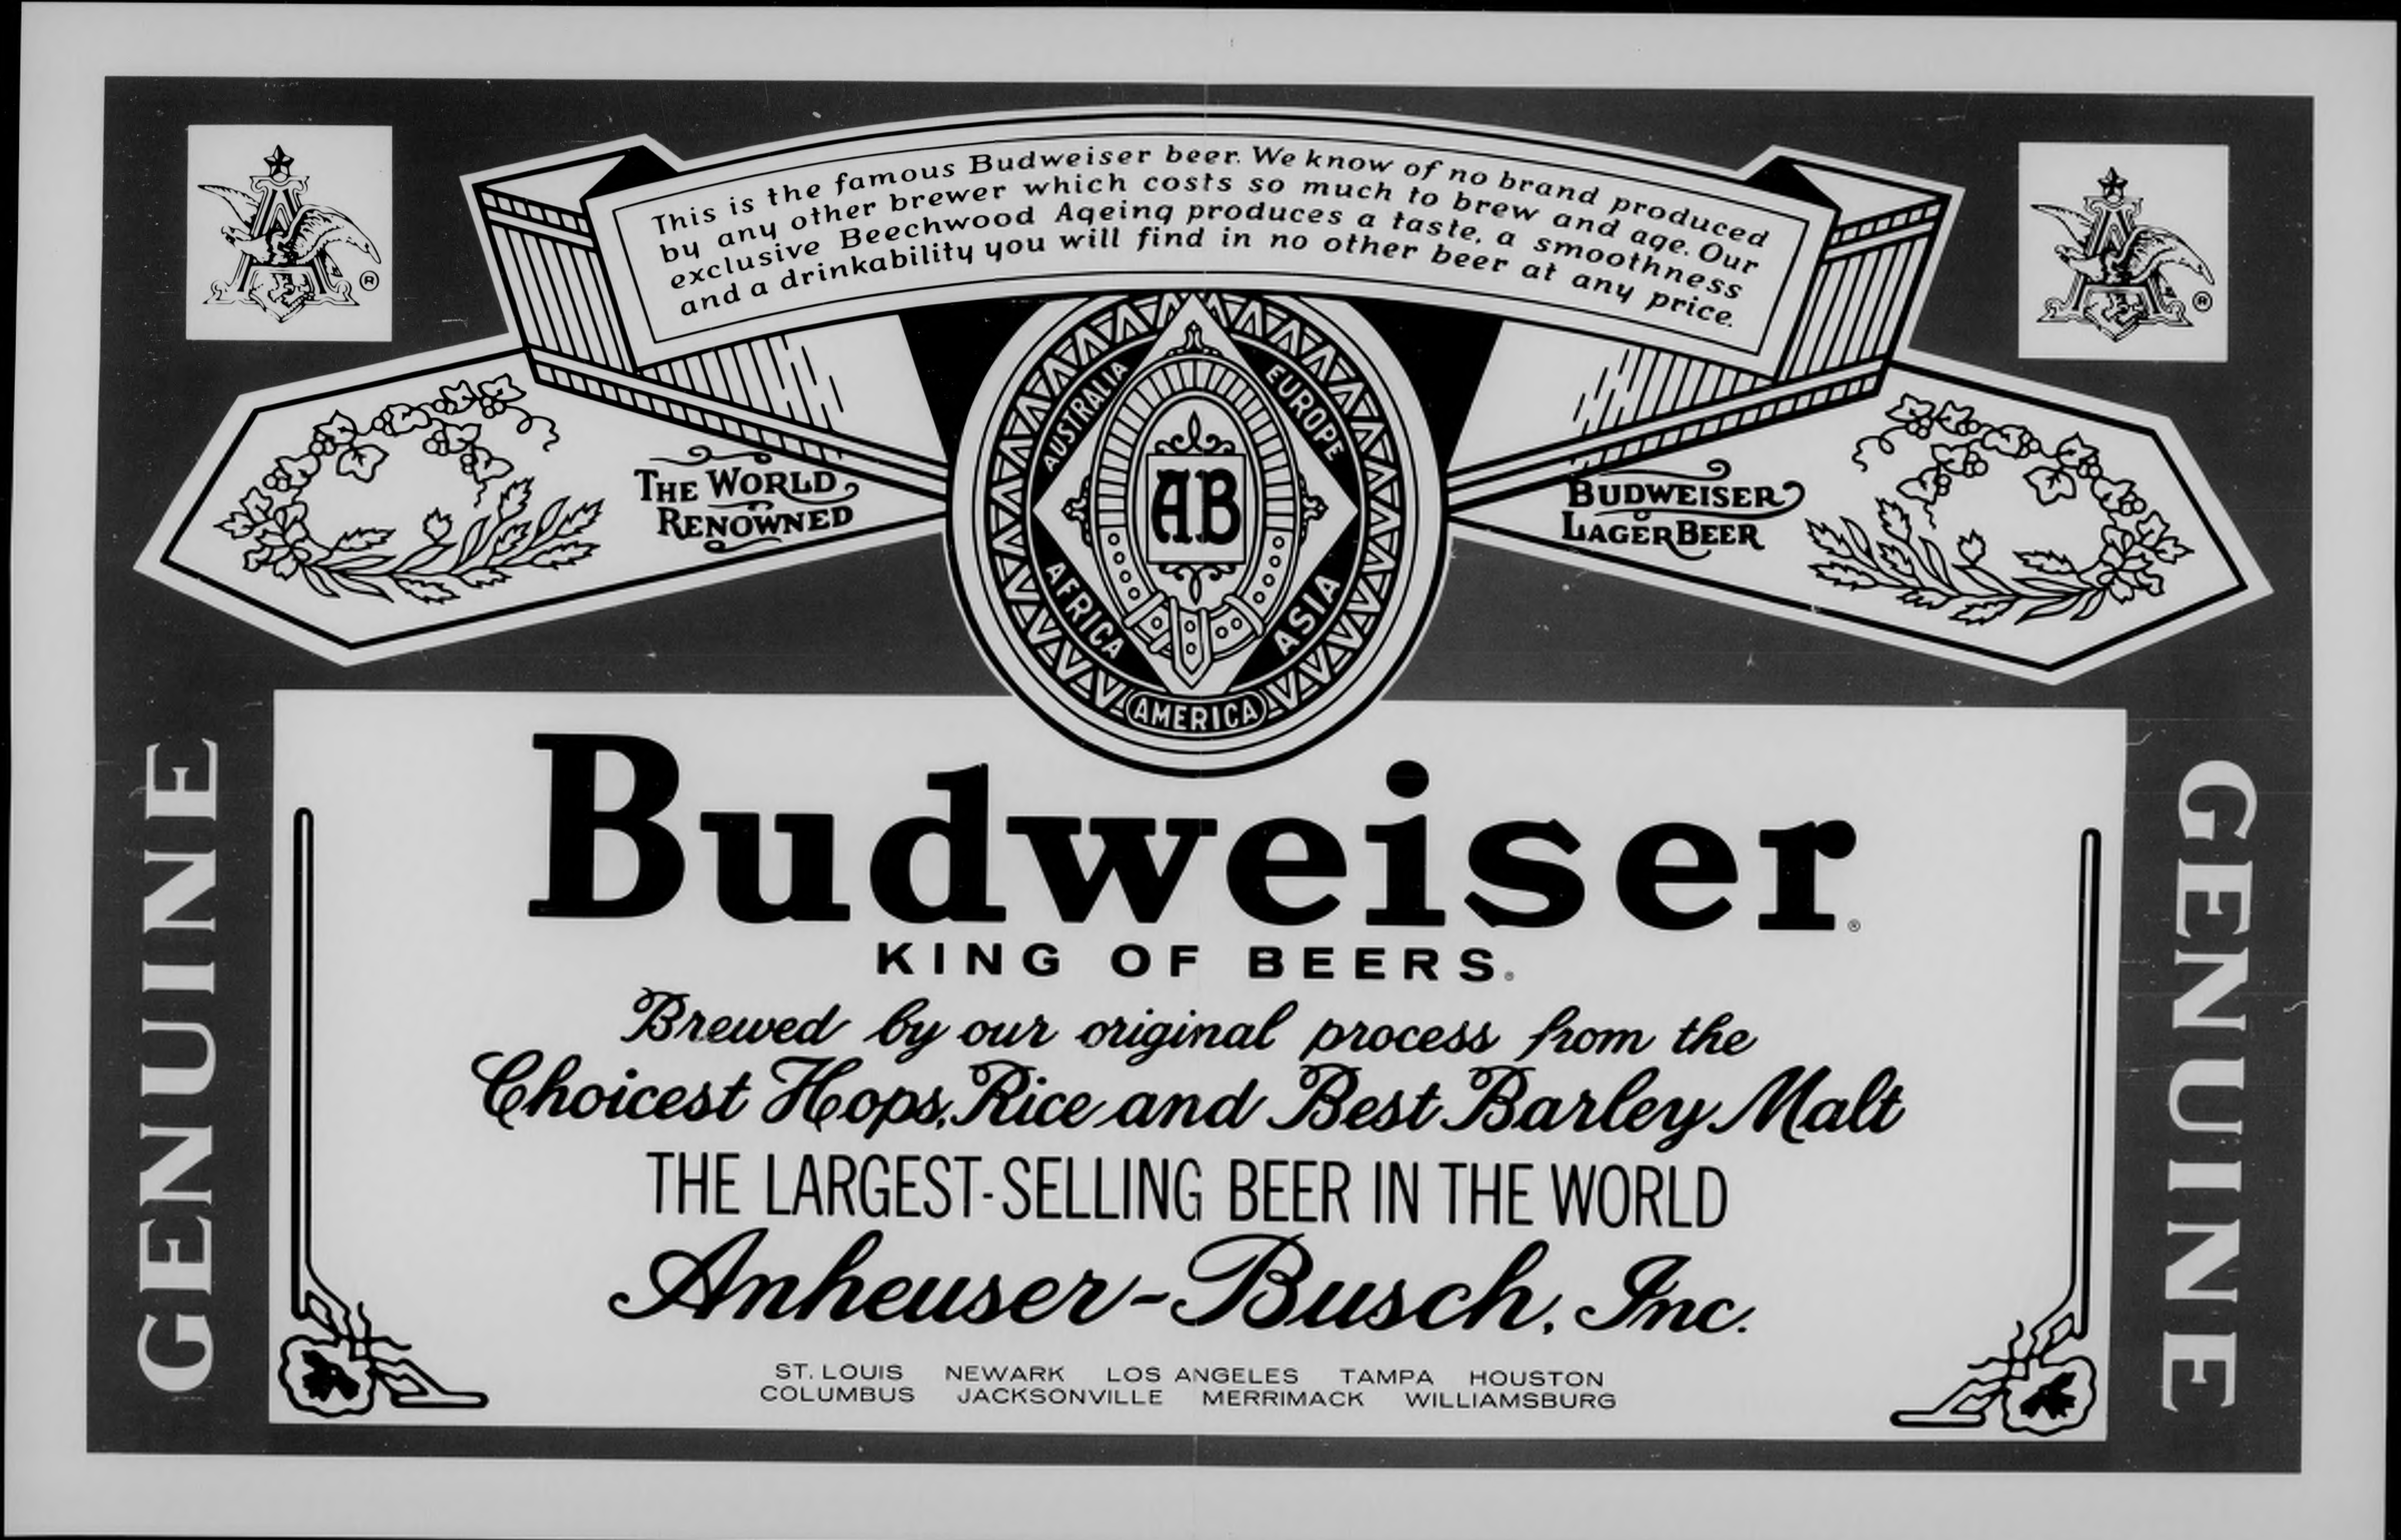
The Minutemen finally got on the winning track against Guilford College on Friday, but it wasn't what you would call a premier performance. The Minutemen had to come up with eight runs in the seventh inning to pull out a 15-12 thriller. Offensive heroes were numerous for the Minutemen, the list being headed by Backstrom (three hits, his fourth homer, four RBI's), catcher Jim Black (four hits, three RBI's), and Mike Koperniak (three hits). Jeff Reardon was effective again, relieving Jerry Erb in Guilford's eight-run third inning, and giving up only one run in five innings.

The Randolph-Macon game was basically a laugher for the Minutemen, as they stretched their winning streak to two with an 8-2 win. The first five men singled for UMass in the first inning, and six men crossed the plate before it was over. Randolph-Macon contributed to the UMass cause with six errors in the contest. Kelly and Allegrezza again turned in good performances on the mound for the Minutemen.

[illegible] SCOOPS...Co-captain John [illegible] injured his shoulder during the week and may not be able to catch for the Minutemen...Bergquist tried out a new infield and felt they did a good job. The lineup was as follows: Mondalto at third, Jim Cullen at short, Koperniak at second and John Seed at first...On his pitching staff, Bergquist commented, "The potential is there we just have to be consistent."...According to Bergquist, the hitting standouts for his squad were Backstrom, Seed, and Black. Others who showed "signs of life" were Koperniak, Wright, and Mondalto...The Minutemen will be competing with UNH, Eastern Conn., and Southeastern Mass. University in the [illegible] Tournament at SMU next weekend.

Staff Photo by [illegible]

Sophomore hurler Jeff Reardon, shown in action last season, turned in impressive performances during the baseball team's trip down South.



This is the famous Budweiser beer. We know of no brand produced by any other brewer which costs so much to brew and age. Our exclusive Beechwood Ageing produces a taste, a smoothness and a drinkability you will find in no other beer at any price.

THE WORLD RENOWNED

BUDWEISER LAGER BEER

AUSTRALIA EUROPE
AB AFRICA ASIA
AMERICA

GENUINE

GENUINE

Budweiser®

KING OF BEERS.

Brewed by our original process from the Choicest Hops, Rice and Best Barley Malt

THE LARGEST-SELLING BEER IN THE WORLD

Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

ST. LOUIS NEWARK LOS ANGELES TAMPA HOUSTON
COLUMBUS JACKSONVILLE MERRIMACK WILLIAMSBURG

Ford moves to stop Communism; aid hungry

By EARL BUTTS

President Ford today unveiled a plan which he optimistically predicted would "stop the worldwide march of communist aggression and solve the international food crisis at the same time."

Speaking before the Brotherhood of Non-Representative Trade Union Leaders (BNRTUL), Furd unveiled a new 527 trillion dollar package which bears the name "Domino theory '75". The plan, if implemented, would set up a chain of Domino's Pizza stands across Cambodia, Vietnam, Laos, and Thailand, with future plans for chains throughout the rest of the world "as the need arises".

Each outlet would be operated by Green Beret detachments under the auspices of the Southeast Asian Development Corporation, an arm of the Pentagon. The detachments will storm the areas that they are to set up businesses in. They will seize the food supply of the areas, dispersing the captured food through their "Domino" fast food outlets. Communists, or those suspected of Communist activity, will be denied access to the food.

"They should all be dead within three weeks," a smiling Ford told the assembled members of the press. "When the Commies are gone, the pizza stands will be turned over to local control, and the people will rule." He went on to say that all food sold at the stands will be supplied solely by the United States Government as part of the agreement, and that "anyone who refuses to do business with us can fry, since they're obviously Communists anyway."

Congressional leaders forecast speedy passage of the package. An optimistic Senator Barry Oldwater told the Collegian in an exclusive interview that the Ford package is "the hope of free world. Truly free people everywhere will rejoice when the world is once again safe for democracy."

Cambodian President and Head Coach Chuck Noll had this to say in regards to the new plan. "The people's republic of Cambodia welcomes the aid of our American allies in the fight against Communist aggression. If you redeem our coupon before April 9th, we'll give you one dollar off the price of our 16 inch pizza, or 50 cents off the twelve inch size."

Offer good only in the republic of Cambodia. Void where prohibited.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 38
AMHERST, MA.
TUESDAY, APRIL 1, 1975

weather

or not you believe any of this garbage, don't forget the date.

ALL THE NEWS THAT SHITS, WE PRINT.

Hearst captured in Amherst

Fugitive Patty Hearst, who has been the subject of an intensive manhunt since her kidnapping in February 1974, has been apprehendedin Amherst, according to an FBI spokesman.

"We've been all over the country looking for her, and it's finally over," said Donald Mewpher of the FBI's Boston office.

Hearst before kidnapping.

Hearst was taken into custody shortly after 3 p.m. yesterday following a 24 hour FBI stakeout of the apartment in Brittany Manor where she was allegedly held up.

Hearst was brought first to the UMass police station for three hours of questioning before being taken to the maximum security section of the Amherst lock-up.

UMass police captain William H. Joyce, who assisted federal officials in the questioning, said he was surprised to find Hearst in the Amherst area.

"She didn't look anything at all like the wanted posters," Joyce said. "She had blazing red hair" and apparently used contact lenses to change the color of her eyes.

Hearst had allegedly been residing in the apartment of Sean and Paula Mallet in the Brittany Manor complex since late January.

"We had no idea who she really was," said a surprised Sean Mallet to the interrogators. "We met her at a party in Boston on New Year's Eve, and she said she was looking for a place to live in Amherst.

The dangerous debutante, daughter of newspaper mogul Randolph Hearst, was allegedly reading nursery rhymes to the Mallet child at the time of her capture. Mewpher, aided by three federal agents and two UMass patrolmen, burst into the room and threw Hearst against the living room wall.

A subsequent search of her person and the apartment revealed no dangerous weapons.

According to the Mallets, Hearst had been using the alias of Jacqueline Summers and had often frequented the UMass campus.

A subsequent check of the Maloney's telephone bill for February revealed several long distance calls to Oregon, in which Hearst alias Summers allegedly was trying to contact pro basketball player Bill Walton.

Walton had been one of the links in the long chain of events leading to Hearst's capture.

When reached in his suburban Portland apartment, the Trailblazer's star center said "all I know is that my answering service said that I had three calls within a week from some girl in Massachusetts who said she wanted to 'get it on.'"

Stephen Weed, Hearst's fiance who was brutally beaten in her kidnapping by the Symbionese Liberation Army last year, received the news of her capture with optimism.

"I just know she's still the same sweet girl I fell in love with," Weed sobbed. "I'm glad I saved myself all this time. Maybe now we can finally get married.

FBI investigation left no stone unturned

The stake-out of the Brittany Manor apartment of Sean and Paula Mallet which led to the capture of fugitive Patty Hearst began at about 2 p.m. Sunday.

Donald Mewpher, an agent from the FBI's Boston office who headed the surveillance unit, said he patiently waited the appearance of the suspect.

"She (Hearst) didn't leave the apartment on Sunday, but we could see a little of what was going on through the windows," Mewpher said.

"It looked like they (Hearst and the Mallet couple) were having a good time." Mewpher remarked. "Nothing kinky, you know. Just some straight three-way stuff. Then the windows fogged up and we couldn't see anything.

Hearst did not leave the apartment until 9:23 the following morning, when she began hitchiking in the direction of Amherst center.

Hearst was picked up by Richard Carlson, an FBI agent in drag, driving a 1967 Mustang.

"She was really nice," Carlson said, "except she put her hand on my knee and made it hard to shift. I dropped her off on North Pleasant Street, and she went into Augies."

Hearst then crossed the street and entered the Amherst Post Office. She emerged seven minutes after entering and headed back toward Brittany Manor.

Mewpher then entered the Post Office and questioned a clerk who said Hearst had purchased a ten-cent stamp, asking specifically for one which portrayed the Pioneer Jupiter space probe, and then slowly perused the wanted posters on the opposite wall.

According to the clerk, who asked to remain anonymous, Hearst at no time looked uneasy, and once chuckled softly.

Thinking it too risky to have Carlson again offer Hearst a ride, the agents watched intently while she waited approximately ten minutes before being picked up by a person Mewpher described as "a bearded, nondescript, little nurd" who deposited Hearst at the door of the apartment and attempted to follow her inside. At that point, Hearst looked back and softly called "fifty dollars" and the man reentered the car and left.

It was approximately 10:45 when Hearst returned to her alledged hideout, and she remained in the apartment until the FBI agents decided to move in at 3 p.m.

"I couldn't take the waiting much longer," Mewpher said. "As soon as we picked her up, I scooted right over to the Gaslight."

Staff Photo by Dick Leonard

Patty Hearst is dragged away by two FBI agents following her arrest in Amherst yesterday afternoon.

Chase-Manhattan forecloses on SW

By RIP STORK
Staff Smirk

(HIC) — In a letter dated April 1st, Chancellor Randolph Bromery received notice from the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York and the World to the effect that because of the University's default on its payments, the Southwest Area Residential Complex would be foreclosed.

The giant bank can gain control of the large zoo since it floated the massive loan that went into construction of what some call "the world's largest sardine factory" and residents refer to as "the black hole."

In a phone call, S. Wigwam Hodgekiss, Vice President of Nasty Stuff for Chase Manhattan informed the Collusion that Southwest would be fumagated and then turned into an insane asylum for the insanely wealthy. "It shouldn't make much of a real difference anyway what with the huge numbers of loonies already there. The only difference will be the nets placed in strategic spots to catch the suicides. As far as tenants, we hope to get every big name wacko from Meldrim Thompson to Howard Hughes. It'll be a real gas!"

The students reaction was generally favorable. "The place reeks anyway. Rockefeller deserves it!!" one bedraggled sophomore blurted out.

"Lets wreck it before they come!" panted a malicious looking freshperson with a broken beer bottle in his hand.

The reaction was not just one sided however. One petite brunette coed moaned: "It may not be much but its home! What'll become of my pretty drapes and cute matching bedspreads?"

The University is remaining silent as to why it allowed Southwest to fall into the hands of the greedy capitalists.

Chancellor Bromery was rumored to be gone on a "fishing" trip to Buenos Aires. However planning director Jack Littlefield was overheard by one of our crack cub reporters to be planning a new superhighway through the area where Southwest now stands.

CHASE MANHATTAN

Towing fleet destroyed on fluke

By TEX BURNEDAGAIN

FLASH — The entire Amherst Towing Fleet was destroyed on a technicality today. It all started when an Amherst Towing truck was hitching up yet another unsuspecting UMie. The University Police officer on the scene at the tow informed the truck as it prepared to leave that it had violated the University's five minute standing rule, and thus had to be towed itself.

Another truck was called in to do the towing of both the truck and the car attached to it. It, too violated the five minute rule. Another truck was called in, with the same result.

Finally, the last available Amherst tow truck completed the task of hitching up 27 violating trucks and a Volkswagen in less than five minutes. As the extremely long caravan headed for the Amherst Towing yards in North Amherst, Arab terrorists hired by the Student Senate blew up North Pleasant Street. There were no survivors.

Cal's Sunoco was called in to tow the wrecks away after the attack.

CIA finds Hale Boggs amidst sub wreckage

The CIA announced today that Hale Boggs, former Louisiana senator who has been missing since a plane crash in the Alaska more than two years ago, is alive.

A spokesman for the CIA said that Boggs was found amidst the remains of a Russian submarine recovered by the agency just two weeks ago.

According to the spokesman, Boggs was dressed in a wetsuit and breathing through a snorkel.

"He seemed to be in good shape but was somewhat incoherent," the spokesman said. "He spoke only Russian with a slight Cuban accent."

The CIA called in an interpreter to decipher Bogg's ramblings, but according to the language expert Boggs could only say "polar bears" and "Castro", repeating the words in rapid succession.

Boggs is expected to return to his Senate post following a debriefing session that will last approximately two hours.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

TODAY'S STIFFS

April Fool Co-ordinators	Steve DeCosta, Zamir Nestelbaum
Special Contributors	Steve Tripoli, Mike Ugolini, Ben Caswell, Tyla Michelove, Bill Parent, Dave Eibel, Fred Gosiewski

EDITORS

Editor-in-Chief	Bobo Brazil
Managing Editor	Charles Colson
Executive Editors	Emma Peel
News Editor	John Kiley
Sports Editor	Charo
Photo Editor	Henry VIII
Fine Arts Editor	Evel Kneivel
Black Affairs	Shirley Temple

ASSOCIATE EDITORS

Wired Editors	Tarzan, Jane
Assistant Managing Editor	Wilhelm Reich
Assistant Executive Editor	The Green Hornet
Assistant News Editors	John Birch, Adolph Rupp
Assistant Sports Editor	Marv Throneberry
Assistant Photo Editor	Henry IX
Assistant Fine Arts	Clifford Irving
Assistant Black Affairs	Dita Beard

BUSINESS

Business Manager	Milton Bradley
Advertising Manager	Harland Svare
Production Manager	Ann Arbor
Assistant Business Manager	Ann Apolis
Assistant Advertising Manager	Totie Fields

The Collusion is the student newspaper of this joke of a university. The staff is completely irresponsible, as you can tell from the content, and faculty members can't read anyway so why should they read this rag.

Unsigned editorials were completely made up and represent nothing. They do not necessarily reflect the views of derelicts, maniacs, or transvestites. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters may or may not represent the views of the authors, depending on whether they lied or not.

The Collusion strives to print only advertising which brings in revenue regardless of its taste or truthfulness.

The crude, tasteless, revolting, sexist, racist crap that appears today is a conspiracy between the devil and several acid-burned collaboraters on campus.

We disregard any knowledge of the above, below, and in-between, and disavow any responsibility for our actions. We're only doing our jobs.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

The man who allegedly received three bogus checks from the School of Education appears before a Senate subcommittee.

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents
GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S
PIRATES of PENZANCE
APRIL 3,4,5 at 8pm APRIL 6 at 3:30 pm
BOWKER AUD, Stockbridge Hall, U.M.
$2.00 students & under 18 $2.50 others
Tickets go on sale March 17 at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter
545-0202 reservations and information

Screw-loose and fancy-free governor seeks new M.D.

By FERD FINBONE
GNP Reporter

MANCHESTER — Meldrim Thompson is looking for a doctor. According to a full page ad placed in such newspaper worthies as the Manchester Union Leader and the Podunk Garbage Liner, the present conservative Governor of New Hampshire is looking for the services of a special kind of physician. According to the major domo of the conservative Republicans and possible presidential hopeful, Thompson has been having trouble with his head. "It malfuctions sometimes. I hear clicking and whirring and I think my battery is going dead. I tried to jumpstart it, but my cables were all burnt out."

According to sources in the granite state, the Governor is looking for a doctor who can unscrew his head from what Thompson calls his "neckpipe" and check the wiring underneath. This is very important to the Governor as he is touring the country accusing Gerry Ford of everything from being soft on Communism to sleeping with dead rabbits. Thompson, an aide disclosed, does not want to break down in the middle of one of his diatribes for any mechanical reasons. "He is very much afraid that he may come off sounding like a buffoon or worse yet ... a retroactive abortion."

Thompson is looking for a doctor who can give him a 100,000 mile guarantee. Thompson fired his last physician, a mechanic from Manchester, because he looked like Nelson Rockefeller whom Thompson thinks helped the Grinch steal Christmas last year. That and the interchange the two men had when Meldrims head was idling in neutral last week:

Thompson: "Doctor, my head hurts every time I try to think!"

Doctor: "STOP THINKING!!! Every time you think you weaken the nation!"

Towing firm in meteoric financial boom

By DAVE LIBEL
and BILL DENSE
Collegian Financial Writers

NEW YORK — An Amherst, Mass. firm has made an unprecedented one-year rise to the near top of Fortune Magazine's prestigious listing of the 500 top industrials.

The firm, Anhurst Towing, Limited, has soared to eighth among the nation's top firms, as rated by Fortune with net earnings exceeding such giants as E. I. Dupint Demoirs Co. and Town and Bethlehem Iron Works.

"They seem to know how to turn a buck," said Phillips G. Twadwitty, vice-president for obfuscation at the Wall Street brokerage firm of Merrills, Lynch-mob, Pierce-Arrow, Finest and Smut.

Wall Street sources said the firm has increased assets dramatically over the last quarter since the nearby University of Massachusetts prohibited parking on campus. Sources said the firm is believed to be involved in the removal of vehicles from the campus.

The removal is believed to be accomplished by a variety of methods, including radar identification of offending vehicles, search and seizure of available bumpers and collusion with campus authorities.

An official of the Securities and Exchange Committee, while refusing to confirm that an investigation was underway, told the Collegian "this is a big fish. We're throwing bait, and there could be some big catches down the line a bit."

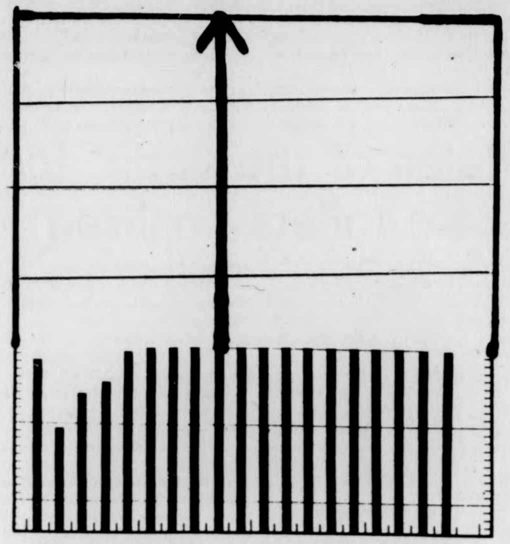
The SEC official, Haim Goldbar IV, said Anhurst's securities have improved by five points per day on the New York Stock Exchange since early 1975 when removal operations began at the 24,000 student University.

Anhurst's operator, "Tex" Jacknife, reportedly has rented a New York penthouse suite which he has used in seclusion since February. Jacknife's wife, who works in the administration building at UMass, was not available for comment on Jacknife's whereabouts.

University of Massachusetts officials were quiet about the firm's dealings. But campus chancellor Rudolph B. Armory said: "It's the best way we know to make this a pedestrian campus - but it's been full of meatheads all along anyway."

Twadwitty, the Scurrilous, Lynch-mob vice-president, said investors in the firm have included the governments of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Abu Dabai. "The bastards will invest in anything - we're putting them on our boycott list."

Twadwitty also said a number of wealthy fairy godmothers and political lightweights have invested. Among them are President Jerry Ford and millionaire recluse E. Howard Hughes. "It's the best damned tax shelter since Air America in Cambodia," Twadwitty added.



The meteoric rise of the Amherst-based towing company on the New York Stock Exchange is portrayed above.

Mudslide swallows 32 Sylvanites

By OLIVIA, NEWT, and JOHN

A mudslide on the hill directly behind Johnson House today killed 32 Sylvan Area residents on their way to Worcester Dining Commons. University officials labelled the deaths "inevitable" in a public statement, and exhorted the public to forget about them, and "remember all the good things UMass stands for."

Eyewitnesses to the disaster told the Collegian that "there wasn't a thing anyone could do about it. The hill just rose up and buried the poor bastids." The 32, all residents (appropriately) of Brown House, took the Big Slide at 6:15 p.m.

The University's official explanation, along with the previously mentioned exhortation, explained that "mud has always been an integral part of the unique living-learning experience that is UMass. It adds to the aesthetic quality of the campus, and keeps the population down in these times of worldwide food shortages. It is part of our effort to make the world a nicer place for everyone to live in. "Anyway, they wouldn't have survived the dining commons. It was inevitable."

The 32 students, interviewed in the University mortuary, had no comment.

Sylvan residents were up in arms over the incident. Sylvan area President Rich Mazeltov blamed it on "the low grade mud that the University has been buying lately." Under state law, the University must buy products from the lowest bidder. The winner of the mud contract was Brittany Manor Apartments, now suppliers of all the University's mud needs.

"It's that local mud that causes all the problems," Mazeltov said. "We used to have good stuff from the Welsh slag heaps, but the import tariff put that out of the University's price range."

Governor Ducarcass, on being notified of the incident, praised the University for "trying to save the state money in their mud purchases," and lauded the "32 valiant people who made the ultimate sacrifice for austerity's sake."

Services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 a.m. The 32 victims will be buried under the hill, and a monument will be erected to them on the hill. Bids on the monument will be sent out by Whitmore tomorrow.

Pigs hassle Indians; actually use handcuffs

By HELEN GABBIN'
Regressive News Service

[The Regressive News Service is not the product of the radical minority's attempts to place their own rotten bias under the dubious heading "news". Anyone interested in this kind of demagoguery is urged to apply.]

Twelve martyrs of the people's revolution were today placed under arrests by the pigs in Wounded Knee, South Dakota. They were charged with violation of the conspiracy to conspire act by the repressive government.

The martyrs, all American Indians, told Regressive News Service that they weren't guilty of anything. The twelve cases of dynamite confiscated from them by police were only "for tribal ceremonial purposes" according to a spokesman.

Gail Bleeding Heart, RNS correspondent on the scene, said that police brutality against the martyred Indians was evident. "All twelve of them were handcuffed" a horrified Bleeding Heart told the Collegian by telephone. She then burst into uncontrollable sobbing.

The handcuffing report has not been verified, but we at RNS wouldn't be surprised if the pigs had really done it.

Elsewhere, the people's armies in Southeast Asia press on to victory. The struggle for Communist control is about to be won in Cambodia and Vietnam. Pretty neat, huh? Once the Commies get in everything's gonna be just peachy!

It has also come to our attention that the Associated Press and United Press International are somewhat biased in their reporting. We abhor this as a matter of policy, and if we ever get into power we're going to take all their rights away. Pigs don't deserve rights anyway.

New Bogota gets nod over Amherst

The Board of Selectpeoples announced last night it has finally taken action on renaming the town New Bogota.

The action came after a long wave of protest led by Eric "The Rodent" Walboard because Jeff Amherst has been discovered to be an Indian killer.

"We chose the name New Bogota, in light of all the commerce the students of the area have done with the Columbian capital, indirectly of course" said Ed Nancy of the board.

The action is expected to cause problems in the sign department though. And area businesses have expressed a reluctance to change the name of their companies.

"Frankly I think that the Lord Bogota Inn sounds shitty" said the owner.

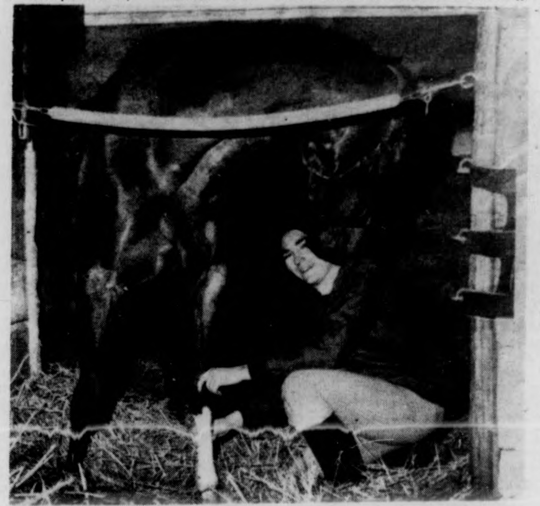
The Post Office announced that the name change will go into effect in time for the bi-centennial for no apparent reason.

Other names which were in for consideration were Oz, the Ozone, Furcolo, Nebuchadnezzar, Screwtown, and East South Hadley.

200 years ago today John Hancock was caught forging important documents by his future wife.



Milk from a horse! That's the amazing discovery of UMass graduate student Laitey Purepak who is working on her master's thesis entitled "Milk from alternative animal sources."

Holy War feared in SW; elevator cult on rise

By UPPEN VAN DOWN

Students in the towers of Southwest, who commune daily with elevators have developed a cult devoted to the worship of the up - and - downers.

Elevator ceremonies involve students crowding into elevators clad in nothing but UMass gym suits, and dancing around showering the elevator with offerings of broken beer bottles. In homage to the elevators, sacrificial slops are administered pink bellies (abdominal applause) and veezers (underwear stretched over the spine and haircut and fastened onto the chin.)

Elevators have been converted into temples. The temples are resourcefully furnished by an altar made from a UMass-issue dorm desk. The altar is covered with the latest issue of the Collegian, reverently draping its facts over the house of the Southwest god.

Area clergy, protesting the wickedness of pagan gods, descended en masse upon Southwest, striding determinedly to the towers, their pious faces encountering eggs thrown from 22nd floors by resolute elevator cultists.

The towers of Southwest house a total of 15 elevators. Each elevator has its own following of strictly loyal cultists, so fiercely loyal to their own that they become resentful of cultists devoted to others. Observers fear that a holy war is in the offing.

Southwest Administrative Director Richard Green recently issued a memo stating that any student refusing to worship the elevators will definitely be kicked out of Southwest; and, if he has any say in the matter, the heretic will be expelled from the university as well.

The evolution of the elevator from a tool to a pagan god was the result of a slow but inevitable process. Upon their initial exposure to the elevator, students were slightly nervous, but soon overcame their fear and approached the elevator with less hesitancy. As a result of forced familiarity (who wants to take the stairs?) students began trusting the elevator. Instead of waiting for the elevator with the apprehension of waiting for a dentist appointment, they waited comfortably, like someone anticipating a meeting with a benign beaurocrat.

From familiarity emerged love. Students began addressing the elevator as "the big yo-yo" as an expression of endearment. Students honored the elevator by decorating its walls with graffiti, occasionally obscene graffiti, as love permits liberties.

At the beginning of the love affair, some students tried to have amorous relations with their idol, but learning the hard way that it was impossible, they began worshipping it in lieu of sex.

Amherst shit to fly

By I.P. FREELEY
Staff Depositer

Amherst's new sewage treatment plant should be ready for opening within a month, according to building manager Lee K. Bowells.

"The shit should begin to hit the can real soon now," Bowells said.

Construction of the plant had been delayed on several occasions due to repeated bomb threats.

"We took care of that," Bowells remarked. "It was an internal affair, and we flushed out all the troublemakers."

Once the plant opens, Bowells said he expects "a lot of shit from all those fellows over at the University. Most of it is just hot air," he explained, "and I think we should be able to handle it."

Ford announces celebration plans

For sesquicentquadragenarinovennial

By HOLDEN A.P. NUSS
Hearse reporter

CAMP DAVID — President Ford, seen walking and chewing gum at the same time for the first known time, yesterday announced elaborate plans for the nation's sesquicentquadragenarinovennial celebration on the 4th of July this year.

"I garr-antee a really big show for our sisky ... ah ...squigee ... ah ... crescent ... ah ... incestment ... umm ... oh, the hell with it, you know what I mean," studdered Ford, running his fingers through his hair.

''That's sesquicentquadragenarinovennial, sir,'' whispered mouthpiece Ron Ziegler . . . . Nessen.

Ford then walked toward Ziegl ... Nessen, and tripped over his gum and pushed into Nessen as he fell.

Some of the events in American history that are scheduled for homage are:

— A reenactment of the 'Trail of Tears,' in which Cherokee Indians were driven from Kentucky and Tennessee to Oklahoma. This event is scheduled to take place in the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building.

— An updated version of the Whiskey Rebellion, to include a mass raid on Wilbur Mills' office-bar. This event is not open to the public or to Argentine citizens.

— Reenactments of the Boston Massacre, scheduled for both Kent State and Jackson State Universities.

— Internment of Chinese and Japanese-American citizens and confiscation of their property.

— In memory of the two world wars of this century, the German Embassy will be firebombed day and night, and renamed the 'Liberty Building.'

"These are some of the greatest and most memorable events in the history of the United States, and it is only fitting and proper that they be remembered by all citizens, especially school children," said Ford.

'Rules of the John' for state toilets finalized

By JACQUES TUTITE
New York Slime News Service

BOSTON [NYSNS] — State Commissioner of Public Health Davey Crockashit yesterday announced state standards for toilets in all state offices.

Issued on a roll of brown toilet paper, the declaration, entitled 'Rules of the John,' was described by Crockashit as "an attempt to stop the vicious spread of venereal disease, both of the crotch and of the mouth."

"I only hope that every city and town in the commonwealth will adopt the same standards for their local restrooms, or else we will cut off state subsidies for toilet paper supplies," he added.

Some of the major recommendations that were announced in yesterday's news conference in the men's room of the State House include:

— No toothpicks in the bowl, because crabs have been known to polevault."

— "All swimmers must wear state-approved bathing caps."

— "Don't throw cigarette butts in the bowl, because they become soggy and hard to light."

— "No loitering in the stalls."

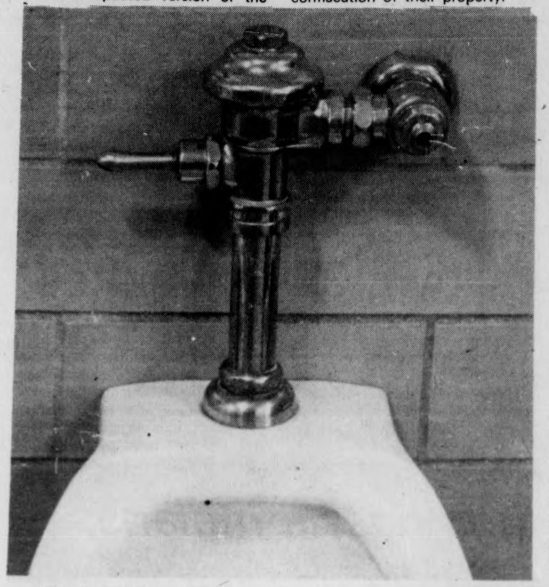
— "All stalls must carry the following warning, prominently displayed — 'Danger-Flammable Vapors.'"

— "Maximum — 2 per stall."

— "No toy boats allowed in the bowls."

Crockashit added that the above regulations do not apply to the state's estimated 39 half-toilets. "It would be too prohibitive to go after such small game," he noted. "We have to enforce the major violators." (Half-toilets are designed for half-assed people, most of which are in the State House.)

The regulations are scheduled to go into effect as soon as the 19 members of the Board of Pubic Health are released from the hospital. They have been hospitalized for the last three weeks for an undisclosed ailment.



No butts or toothpicks, please. New law should help keep the bowls cleaner.

---

200 years ago today Ben Franklin begat his twenty-fifth illegitimate child.

South Vietnamese children arrested in alleged study conspiracy

SUM DUM GOY [OIC] — A group of thirty South Vietnamese children were caught yesterday as they conspired to form a study group. According to U.S. Army sources, the children ranging in age from five to seventeen intended to learn about their history and some simple math.

They claimed that other groups had organized before them, but had been forced to disband due to restrictive study conditions.

The conspirators found an empty sewage pipe and infiltrated it for their own purposes. They had been meeting frequently months before their capture early in the afternoon. Since this is their first offence they will all be released within the week after thorough interrogation and severe beatings.

SUNSHINE RECORDS
SALE
All Single Albums
3 for $10.99
Latest Releases - Top Artists
Old Favorites Too
Doubles & Imports
Also On Sale
No. 9 E. Pleasant St.
Store Hours, 10-8 — Sale Ends Wed. Night
Please. . . No Trades During Sale
4 Doors From The Pub

Welcome Back Special
THE HUNGRY-U
Call Us
SUBS & PIZZA
55 UNIVERSITY DR Amherst Mass. TEL. 256-8914 (beside The Chequers)
103 NO. PLEASANT ST Amherst Mass. TEL. 256-0473 (across from Louie's)
WE DELIVER
50¢ off large Pizza on deliveries Tues., April 1st
25¢ off small Pizza on deliveries Tues., April 1st.

World-wide conflicts erupt

Houston, European capitals bombed byTurkey

[API] — The cities of Paris, West Berlin, Vienna, and Houston were air-bombarded by the Turkish air force last night in a totally surprising move by Turkey.

Casualties are very high, and volunteer crews have been relentlessly working to free the survivors from the ruins of the destroyed buildings.

The reasons for the bombardment were disclosed at 2 A.M. this morning by the Turkish Information Office located at Tierra del Fuego. It appears that a Declaration of War had been issued by Turkey against Luxemburg three weeks ago. According to Mr. Ecetart, Turkish former Prime Minister, and now Ambassador to Luxemburg, Turkey, declared war because: "Turkey wants its right place under the sun" and "After the fiasco at Cyprus, we felt it necessary to demonstrate to the world that the Turkish Armed Forces are indeed capable of holding back the Red menace from the north — you know, the Commies." Mr. Ecetart also stated that Luxemburg was chosen as the recipient of the "Turkish might" because it was an equal foe — both in numbers and in equipment. Hearing a chuckle from a reporter, Mr. Ecetart replied: "This (the chuckle) was unwarranted. Have we (the Turks) ever lied?"

Asked why Turkey attacked with its air force three weeks after the formal declaration of war was issued, Mr. Ecetart replied:

"Well, you see, we thought that we were ready to attack at that particular time but we forgot to take into account that half of our armed forces were at Cyprus looting the Greek-Cypriote stores and houses, and as a result, it was quite impossible for us to attack with only half of our armed forces."

Asked whether looting has stopped in the newly-aquired colony of Cyprus, Mr. Ecetart replied: "No, not yet. We showed those Greeks didn't we?"

The fact that no one in the West, or East, knew anything about the Turkish declaration of war, a high member of Luxemburg's diplomatic corps stated that his country did not make the declaration of war public because they thought that "...it was a joke."

After last night's bombardment, no damage was done to Luxumburg itself. The Turkish General directing Operation "Honor" gave the following reason for the escape of Luxemburg from destruction: "We did not know where the hell Luxemburg was."

When he made such a statement, he was asked: "Why were the four foreign cities bombarded?" The pride of Turkey replied: "Well, as you all know, Turkey has not had much contact with the West for the past few centuries, other than military conquest of course, therefore, our armed forces did not really know their geography. Some airplane pilots thought that Paris was Luxemburg — others thought that Vienna or West Berlin, were Luxemburg. As far as Houston Texas is concerned, it appears that there was a slight navigational error. Nobody is perfect you know. And besides, some of our boys were quite irritated that the U.S. Congress cut off military aid to Turkey. It wasn't very nice of them."

The reaction of the world to the bombardments varies from "Ha, ha, ha. So, what else is new? (Greece), to "Good thing they are our enemies."

Ethiopia launches Italian invasion

Addis Ababa (PUS): In a bold move electrifying the world, Ethiopian forces launched an all out massive invasion of Italy, yesterday. It was a role reversal for the two combatants from the Italian invasion of Ethiopia some forty odd years ago. "We gonna wop em! cried the Ethiopian War Lord Chuga Hassim as the attacking forces landed at Salerno and along selected beacheads on the Italian Riviera. Seventy divisions of screaming Ethiopians backed up by the three-hundred-balloon air force pelted the fleeing tourists up and down the Italian boot. It was a scene reminiscent of a Fellini horror as terror struck the inhabitants. It was the first known attack of a European country by an African nation since the Moors invaded Spain a thousand years ago.

Screaming "Whattsa goina ona heah!" Generallissimo Linguini Antipasta rallied his valiant defenders against the African onslaught. All throughout Italy shops and bowling alleys closed in response to the attack. Natives scurried about taking their spaghetti off the clotheslines, securing their valuables and locking up their daughters. Rome today looks as if it was built in half a day as the people are hiding in the subways and behind bushes. This despite the fact that the first wave of Ethiopian spearchuckers were still some five hundred miles away.

The world reaction to the invasion was a stunned bewilderment. Just what would prompt Ethiopia into belligerency is not quite clear to most observers. Perhaps an overwhelming need for respect in the eyes of the world, led her to try on the Italian boot for size.

The invasion could easily backfire and the occupying army may find itself booted into the Mediterranean. This was exactly the reaction of the Vatican, which released a papal bull that intimated something about killing the infidels for Christ. It is rumored that Secretary Kissinger is jetting into Palermo this very moment.

Semi-civil war in G.B.

by Lord Howard Hertz
Disassociated Press Writer

London [DP] — England declared war on Scotland yesterdav in a dispute over oil rights in the North Sea. Observers were quick to note that this could become the second 'Battle of Britain' in this century.

It was reported late last night that 250 English troop paddled by rubber life raft to an oil rig off the Scottish coast and started to hack saw the legs of the rig, and demanded that the Scottish workers surrender. No casualty figures were available, but it was reported that two Scottish workers slipped on an oil slick and fell into the North Sea, and were picked up by a Russian trawler cruising in the area.

First signs of an impending battle was in a donnybrook in a recent cricket match between England and Scotland. After star Scottish player Hiram Onderocks was found with crude oil in his hair, the umpires ejected him from the game. The fight them started.

Later in the day, English Minister of War Will Overkill sent a derogatory message to the Scottish govermment, threatening to send troops into Glasgow and intern every firstborn son. Sources in the men's room of Henry's Pub in London with access to confidential government dispatches, said that the English message threatened to transfer not only Enlish troops, but also IRA subversives to Scotland. (A high official source in London, when questioned about the secret message, said, "How the hell can they intercept our messages when the CIA can't?")

One informed limey offered this comment on the causes of the newly-declared conflict. "This is a fight not only for black gold, Texas tea, but also for the Queen's thirty-second cousin, who just pulled the necessary strings to get into Oxford, and now needs the money to pay for his education. And whatever the Queen wants, she gets."

You won't believe what we put together for you this summer.
SUMMER I
June 2-20
3 credits in 3 weeks
The three week tour for the mind. Registration is by mail or in person at Hills House main lobby, Thursday, May 29, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Counseling and Financial Aid are available.
SUMMER TWO
JUNE 24 AUGUST 15
The extended tour for the mind. 250 courses are being offered. Classes meet from the solstice to the latter days of August, June 24 to August 15. Registration is by mail or in person at Boyden Gym, Monday, June 23, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Financial Aid and Counseling are available.
Evening College
June 24-August 15
Classes meet summer evenings from 7 until 10.
For those who like to learn after the sun goes down. Almost 50 courses including everything from art to zoology. Registration is by mail or in person at Boyden Gym, Monday, June 23, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. This session is from June 24 til August 15. Counseling and Financial Aid are available.
These courses are brought to you by the University of Massachusetts' Summer Program Office and Division of Continuing Education. (413) 545-0905
Please send me information concerning:
○ Summer 1
○ Summer 2
○ Evening College
Name ____________ City ____________
Address ____________ State ______ Zip ______
CLIP AND SEND TO:
CATALOG REQUEST
CONTINUING EDUCATION
HILLS HOUSE NORTH
UMASS/AMHERST 01002
UMASS/AMHERST — Where else?

Campus Comments

Question: "How did you lose your virginity?"

Michael S. Ducarcass - "she was a girl from Newton. I was a boy from Brookline, we met one morning on the green line, we did it right there on the MBTA. I may ride forever 'neath the streets of Boston....

Gloriam Steinem - "He was great, tall blonde, an adonis type character brimming with beautiful dominant masculinity"

Nelson A. Ripoffeller - "It was just after I bought Puerto Rico I met this tour guide from Fort Knox, we slipped away from the group and we made it on a bed of fresh 100 dollar bills.

Martha Mitchwell - "it was in a motel room, it was just awful!!! This man from the FBI pulled my pants down and gave me a shot in the bum, it was enjoyable yes, but my hemorrhoids never got over it Edward M. Kennurdy - "it was back in '69, you see, we were driving across this bridge on Chappaquidick, you see, we were about to go skinny-dipping and she didn't want to get out of the car...

Pat Nixn - "One night at San Clemente Dick said to me What's that? and I said that's my garage, and he said Can I put my car...."

Notable Quote

"Who do I think will be the next President of these United States? I can't think of anyone other than Linda Lovelace. There's no job that's too big for her to handle."
Alexei Kosygin during an interview with Pravda

THE WORLD IS A VERY SICK PLACE
DIG IT!
WAAA!!
McGILVROMANO

Commentary

Theatrics in the A.D.

By T.D. DOWNEY

If you thought the recent fiasco in the School of Education was the worst thing to happen at UMass since Julius Erving jumped from the hallowed floor of the Cage to the monied rims of ABA basketball you're wrong.

Athletics on this campus are in a state of no money, no playee, because the state of Massachusetts is hoarding money like John D. Rockefeller and refuses to waste it on the future leaders of society. But that's only on the surface.

If you're wondering why UMass did not get into the ECAC tournament in Springfield this year it was because the Athletic Department at the university is made up of deadwood, more deadwood, and enough seaweed to keep the dining commons vats filled for years.

You can't blame any member of the basketball team for the disappointment brought on by Poly Crotch A.D. Tom A. Jerry and his faithful friends like Long John Boner at the University of Contriplicut. In fact you can't even blame the connivers mentioned above. The blame lies right on this campus, in Boydumb Gymnasium.

First the director of theatrics, I mean athletics, Fink McEarny, is too good an actor to be an undiscovered talent in the wilds of the Berkshire foothills. Although his tenure at local radio station WHAT is over, he still has done a marvelous job of publicizing the university's athletes. In his commercials, a travesty of a sham of an evil of a most cancerous sort, he does his share to put UMass on the map.

Doesn't every local resident recognize the worth of a man who drives up beside the football stadium and peddles savings accounts from the Community Chest Trust Company? Or a man who equates football films with debentures?

The gymnastics team was dealt a cruel blow last year when 12,000 signatures were considered immaterial and the coach Tom Dunn, was told he would not be rehired next year. And where was our esteemed A.D.? Putting on makeup in the Boydumb lavatory, where else.

But he's not the only one. There's Thick Gauge, a man who's supposed to send press releases to papers throughout New England, but thinks that the Greenfield Recorder is the edge of Massachusetts, and Boston is an island off the Azores.

And, Cally Granite who's unofficial title of procurer of transportation is one big joke. Last year the men's gymnastics team had to drive down to a meet at Navy because Cally's trigger finger developed Eritrean Rheumatism as he tried to call a major national car rental company.

What about Tick Confugia who makes 25 thou a year, smiling in Boydumb? I'd smile for nothing.

The chain of command in Boydumb is like the Gordium Knot, and certainly harder to crack than Minoan Linear A heiroglyphics. Rumors have reached the Collegian that the CIA, with as much secrecy as a sieve has inquired through CIA operative Bob Estelle, currently on welfare, if the Athletic Department could design a systems control system for their field offices in fifty states and 129 foreign countries, to prevent leaks through one-way toilet bowls.

Students pay an athletic fee, and it's time they got off their high horse, and put aside their water pipes and got together as a single powerful force.

If you want to know what's really happening at Boydumb write your Congressperson or Louis Day Tricks currently working with RIGA-Racism Is Good for America, at her office in Wheeling, West Virginia, in the Pure Textbook Building.

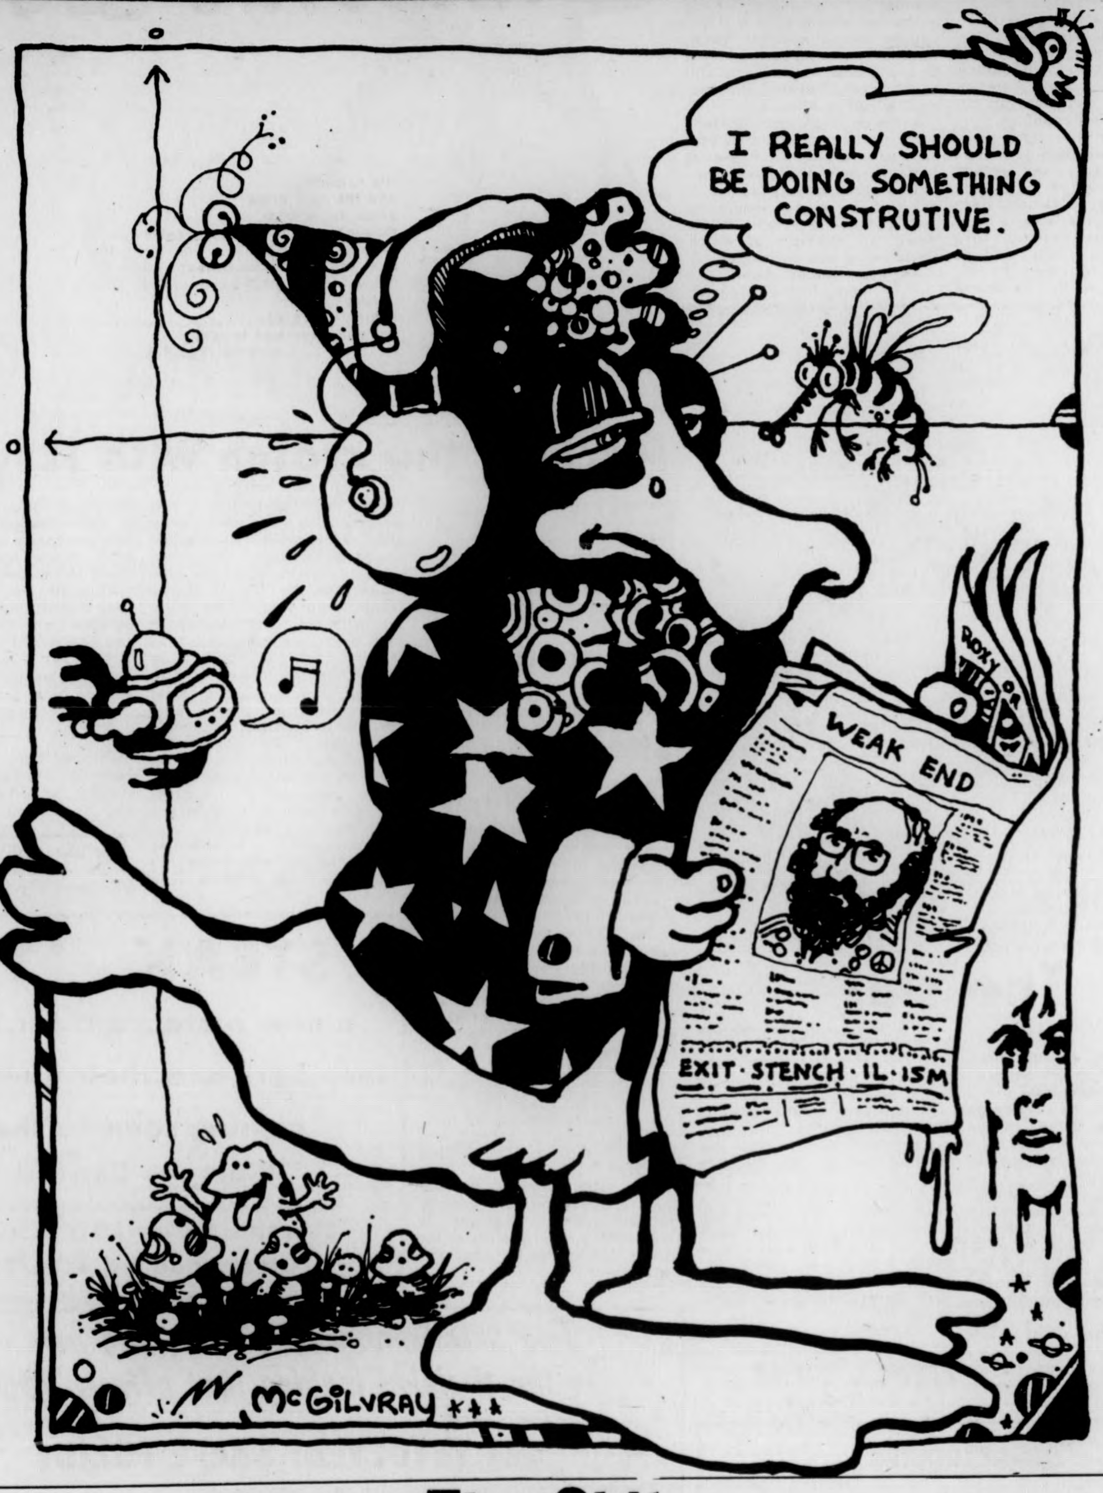
In any event, keep in mind that in five years, no major sports or minor ones will be played here not through inflation, or lack of funds but cobwebs in Boydumb.

And I'm not talking about cobwebbed ceilings either.

---

above the ordinary but...

BELOW the BELT



I REALLY SHOULD BE DOING SOMETHING CONSTRUTIVE.
WEAK END
EXIT·STENCH·IL·ISM
ROXY
McGILVRAY

The Shit

A continuing saga of the assured

By E. QUAID McPATRICK

Slowly, lowly I sipped patiently at my cooling acid covered coffee contemplating life and insanity floating like dirigable dreams upon the mist. Suddenly my mind was filled violently with thoughts of having to excrete the waste my body had accumulated since my last full meal. Ever so carefully as not to break the cup into little pieces I set the cup on the table where it would rest silently while I was gone to the dark smelly lavatory.

Walking toward the dingy tile room of solitude I opened the door listening to the creaking noises of the seldom oiled hinges. Pausing, stopping facing away from the toilet I undid my belt buckle of mythological gods long dies, unzipped the front of my pants letting my loose fitting garment drop to the floor. Sitting down on the cold hard seat my eyes dropped low glancing at the little shriveled penis of student 684960

"'ugh, ugh, ugh," I moaned in constipated pain.

"Oooh, ahh, ohh" I groaned again.

Suddenly I unsnapped my windbreaker.

"forplplpssss" said my buttocks as the rush of unfresh air resonated the walls.

I pondered death as I looked at the chipped paint walls, which were painted by someone who was probably now buried with worms and maggots inhabiting his once moist esophogus. Life and death is all the same, illusions of failure rested finally in the reaches of my brain. Just then trinklets of urine dropped into the water, Freudian sex symbol, below.

At that moment a knock came at the bathroom door.

"Who's there?" I asked questioningly

"The wanderer" Came the answer in a deep voice.

"Wanderer who?"

"Wander if you'd like zo open ze door,

I racked my brain trying to establish the identity of the intruder of my personal life. With a crash though, my pondering mind was interrupted as a large black boot splintered the oaken door followed by, yes it was, the entire missing third brigade of the Third Riech from the fire bombing of Dresden.

I was lost for words as I eyed the grey uniforms and the unshaven faces of my intruders. My life passed slowly before my eyes. In retrospect it has been indeed — boring, dull in haay shades of pale blue hue.

"Where have you bee — I mean, how are you doing."

"Zorry, ve is now ins da

turn to p. 8

RECORDS

Railroad chugs along

ALL The Girls In
The World Beware
Grand Funk
(Capitol SO-11356)
Total Time: 43:56

Budding geniuses Mark, Don, and Mel have again presented us with exciting philosophical revelations as well as mellow rythms and melodies for our hearty listening appetites.

Not since the anthology album have we seen such fluid ease of phrasing, and astounding mastery of intensely melodic improvisation, both evidence of the nearly omnipotent rock talent these sweating, bulging, musclebound he-men are.

All The Girls In The World Beware is both high-spirited and lucid, if not downright HEAVY. From "Some Kinda Wonderful," reminiscent of the anthology album's "T.N.U.C." (guess what spelled backwards), we're reassured that Grand Funk Railroad is still capable of producing the best rock & roll in America.

Although this album glistens with more conceptualization than say, Closer To Home, it contains that energetic component which is sadly lacking in much of the primal mumbling that passes for rock music today, an example of which would be the now celebrated LP of the year, Quadrophenia.

—Your Intrepid Tripper

The shit

wrong room, excuse bitte."

"Certainly," I said as I watched them march away their boots making no noise as they tromped through the living room and out on the street with their cute deutsches asses disappearing into the night.

I repeated my low cry of struggle as before.

"Ugh, ahh, ugh, eeee" Student 684960 was constipated from Ware pastries and donuts as before. I though of what Kierkigard has said. "...it is... and wasn't. Was all that my memory served to tell me of the occurrence.

Suddenly, ever so fast I could feel the rush of human power surging violently through my abdomen. "Plop, plop, plop, plop.

Cold water splashed on my bare cheeks jarking me off the seat momentarily. More feces were there, I knew it, I could feel it deep down inside.

With a low groan the final poops came out.

"Kerplash!" my white soft skinned behind was soaking wet.

I reached existentially for the toilet paper and pushed it up and down my natural back crevice. I did it again. And again. I was done. I stood up and pulled up my garment again barely catching my jigger in the fly.

"Another stage of my life has passed" I said as I flushed the soft, smelly brown crap away forever never to be seen again.

To be continued next week

SCHOLARSHIPS
FOR NURSING MAJORS

paying full tuition, lab fees, textbook costs and incidental fees plus $100 per month may be available to you through the Air Force ROTC 2-year nurse commissioning program.

To find out if you can qualify as an Air Force Nurse,

contact:
Major Goodhue 5-2437
Room 205 Dickinson Hall

These Are IN

it's raining
and the rain drips
drips drips drips
through the campus center garage
like the purple-southwest-snot throw a chair off the roof of the library
i think i love you
but you have bad breath
Larry Ferlingotten

Rocking the crotch with Izzy

Warsaw Express
Izzy Crotch
(Atco 65347)
Playing time 3:42

Like, ah this is man the best licks I ever heard this week. I was eating some honey granola yogurt while listening to it and well man the vibes were really great, I mean. Well I guess you hadda be there.

My favorite song on the album was the "Polish Kazoo Steam Bath Rag." The drum solo with Izzy Crotcholesky on the empty sauerkraut cans was far out. Izzy can really bang those cans and it was far out.

The album has great social significance. It is the first album to be declared a pollutant by the Environmental Protection Agency. The Album cover is not recyclable but it tastes good with wheatgerm and wild hickory nuts mixed with it.

Another good cut on this disc is the one my roommate put across side one when he used the album for cutting up a gram of hash. The scratch added a new dimension to the music and after a few numbers no one could tell the difference.

All in all I like the Album and rank it among other heavies like Senator Sam Ervin at Home, and The Hillell Glee Club sings Christmas Carols. Happy listening and don't smoke any wooden nickels or whatever.

The men...
The bird...
The sun...
The ocean...

A man sat cross-legged on a beach, facing the waves with the sun at his back.

A small white bird was perched on his left hand and he stroked it gently.

The man wore a long, torn coat and a soiled derby hat.

His whiskers were gray, his eyebrows thick.

They were alone, the man and the bird, and the sun sprinkled arrows of diamonds across the noisy ocean.

The man listened to the repetitious sound of water against water, but did not watch the sun disappear behind him.

The bird saw it, though, and with a screech, it set out to find the sun.

The man, prodded by the ever-ensuing water, slowly stood, turned, caught a momentary, final glimpse of the bird-speck in the horizon, and followed it.

---

200 years ago today Spiro Agnew's great-great-great-great-grandmother had a twinkle in her eye.

---

200 years ago today Benedict Arnold took out a life insurance policy with Liberty Mutual.

STEAK $1.99
a new restaurant for TOC members and their guests . . .
coming soon to the
Campus Center.
Clip this ad for 10% discount.
(Offer good till 4/15/75).

Join a University Committee and help in the decision making that affects YOU!

GET INVOLVED: SHAPE POLICY

These committee appointments are open:

Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee
Space and Calendar Com.
Foreign Language Requirement Committee
Athletic Council
Fine Arts Council
Master Planning Comm.
Core Curriculum Comm.
Committee on the Status of Women
Distinguished Teacher Awards
Student Organizing Committee
If interested in applying, Contact Rick Savini at 5-0341

Graphic arts in heat

The liver is green.
The chicken is hairy.
To tell you the truth,
It is really quite scarey
To go to the room
Where the poison is laid
In the form of food
That should have been sprayed.

Now that we've eaten,
And suffered the meal,
We'll go to our cubes
To have something real.

Reality is imagined, for those who are able,
But all must suffer the shit at our table.

"mankind handkinds through the blues" (or hardup)

the cigarette that will not ash the pencil that will not get smaller the coins piled higher that will never crash
the tree that only grows taller

the guns that are only made rifles long the snakes that elongate for a song
the cucumber that's forever upright in a field
the banana that glows when it is peeled

the submarine sandwich that bites don't diminish the 6-ft. long knockwurst that one cannot finish
the sleek new hot rod that front engine's a mile
the river solidified, of course, the long Nile

the empire state building that winds cannot shake
the umass library that to which (wider-than-they're-long-books)
do not make moral: a stiff Venus cannot be Bard, the Sick go to candles
Coffins
oh freud, dear freud, freud-
freud freud-freud-freud.

—erica.

A Walk in the Woods

Spaghetti meatballs in my mind;
Oh how many mind trips can I take,
The ocean, the moon, the sun
Walk me to church

Pray! Pray for what?
I don't believe in pizza
I don't believe in children
I believe in Spanish moss

Acne is a dreaded disease
rots the crotch out

Weeeeoooo!!! Love that bank
Pablo

200 years ago today Betsy Ross blew five soldiers on their way to Valley Forge.

"Rain"

Your concrete walls of grayness
Take away, all that would be gayness
They make everything like sameness
And the holes in the ceilings
Let rain into campus buildings
Your muddy sidewalks are icky
And make my earth shoes sticky
The rain falls like pearls
On my long blonde curls
And make my brain muddy —Casandra

200 years ago today Johnny Tremain broke his hand on a trip to the combat zone.

QUALITY CHICKS
MEATIER STOCK BETTER LAYERS

STOP LOOKING for a good part-time job!!

- Good Pay
- New Opportunities
- Career Training
- Regular Promotions
- Men and Women Eligible

EARN $45 FOR ONE WEEKEND PER MONTH, AND TRAIN FOR A REWARDING CAREER IN THE TECHNICAL SKILL OF YOUR CHOICE.

GETTING INVOLVED BECAUSE AMERICA NEEDS US

FOR MORE INFORMATION (No Obligation) CLIP AND MAIL TO:
ARMY RESERVE OPPORTUNITIES, 4001 WEST DEVON AVE.
RM. 106, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS 60646

NAME__________ AGE____
ADDRESS__________
CITY__________ STATE____
ZIP______ PHONE______

" IT PAYS TO GO TO MEETINGS "

1975 summer program of goddard college
ALTERNATE ENERGY
AND AGRICULTURE
wind, water, methane, solar social ecology studies

June 2-August 22 15 credits

An intensive 12 week program in social ecology and environmental sciences, exploring alternative technologies, a no-growth economy, organic agriculture, urban decentralization, the politics of ecology, and the design and construction of experimental models for wind, solar, and methane-powered energy production.

Goodard is located in a rural Vermont community, rich in both natural and human resources, in a state noted for its progressive environmental legislation.

The summer program is directed by MURRAY BOOKCIN, author of Post Scarcity Anarchism, Our Synthetic Environment, and Limits of the City. Visiting Faculty will include outstanding national experts in the fields of alternate technology and communities such as KARL HESS, Community Technologies, SAM LOVE, Environmental Action, JOHN and NANCY TODD, founders New Alchemy Institute, WILSON CLARK, author of Energy for Survival, STEVE BAER, Zomeworks, JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH, publisher of Mother Earth News, ROBERT REINES, Integrated Life Support Systems Labs, and STEWART BRAND, publisher of The Whole Earth Catalog.

For detailed illustrated brochure write:

D. Chodorkoff
Social Ecology Program
Goddard College Box SE 3
Plainfield, Vermont 05667

books

God has potential

By J. PROSPECT CALO

"Brilliant...superb!" Kurt Vonnegut Jr.
"I read it...so can you!" John Updike
"It looks good on my bookshelf" Jacqueline Sussan

Poignant, simple and brilliant in its complexities are three illuminations of one of the Best Books written this year. Yes, Monarch Notes has outdone itself in its masterful handling of God's best known literary work — the Bible. Monarch has done its usual competent job in revealing what has brought revelations to so many. Monarch skims and slides, hees and haws its way past the myriad of situational developments. The stories of Aesop and his lost birthright, Joshua and his wall, and Lot and his pillar of salt wife is recanted in almost miraculous tones and descriptions. The prophesies are handled with foresight, and one cannot help but be impressed by the existence of one continuous theme throughout the bestseller — that of the good guy is always Jewish.

There are some problems however, with Monarch's rendition, mostly stylistic. The plotline is handled just a bit too fast. Events unfold and end often in the same paragraph, not allowing the reader to savor every spicy drop. The characters are described rather than developed and appear sketchy at best. All we learn about Moses is that he once took a ride in a straw basket as a kid, and later in life had hallucinations about burning bushes and sticks turning into snakes. Pretty strong acid — even for those days. Monarch is also prone to preachiness — didactically instructing one on how to lead a fruitful life. In regards to fruitful, the part about multiplying is bound to leave the zero population groups in a scurvy. In short, Monarch's Bible has the potential to be a great one, but at present is only a good Good Book.

OLIVER
AUTO BODY

★ 43 years of service and quality work
★ most completely equipped auto body shops
★ only customer satisfaction program
★ most highly skilled craftsmen

The Largest Auto Body Company in New England

NEARBY LOCATIONS
Northampton: 84 Conz Street 584-1192
Holyoke: 1519 Dwight Street 532-9413
Greenfield: 319 Wells Street 774-2261

Other Oliver shops in Springfield, West Springfield, and Pittsfield.

Hard-to-find foreign car parts available; broken or cracked windshields and window glass replaced promptly.

EXCELLENCE IS NO ACCIDENT
AT
OLIVER AUTO BODY

Finally Art

MOVIES
Ratings
++++Jacqueline Susan
+++Tex Ritter
++William Loeb
+Fred Weiss

The Blob That Ate Dallas - Directed by Antonio Mangevani starring Totie Fields and Al Kapp. Dallas is decimated in one large sumptuous feast. The movie earns its X rating when Totie Fields bounces a subway car off her bazookas. Very good movie if you've got the runs. ++

I'm OK, You're So So - Dr. David Reuben's spine tingling masterpiece about a retroactive abortion finding solitude in a Bronx massage Parlor. Critics have gone bananas when the hero masturbates on a portrait of Freud. Directed by Russ Meyer. ++++

: Blew David Susskind - Starring some local talent. David is jerked off by the same kind of weak knee liberal that he pretends to be. Movie has many climaxes and a great ending when the jerkee kicks the jerkor in the pachkees. +

The Flaming Asshole - Irwin Allen's sequel to the Towering Inferno and the Poseidon Adventure. Earnest Borgnine plays a fireman who tries to tame the blaze and save two puppydogs from the festering hole. There's a great scene when Shelly Winters loses her balance and falls into her own bottomless pit. ++

The Making of The President - Fanny Foxe's big bang of a movie. Not much of a script by the character development is superb. Fanny lives up to her name with some spectacular tap dancing. The movie ends when Uncle Wilbur pharts on a Clean Air Bill. +++

above the ordinary but....
BELOW the BELT

Staff Photo by Robert Smerling

Queen For A Day - starring Alice Cooper. An offbeat World War Two movie depicting action on the homo front. Hero goes beserk when he receives a "Dear John" letter from David Bowie. +

The Watergate Saga - Walt Disney's latest hit. Depicts the seamy sid of a Washington Hotel. Based on the novel by Harold Robbins. Starring Dean Jones and Annette Funicello. Big moment when Tricia Nixon Cox learns to think in a circle. +

C+R+A+S+H - The hilarious spoof of people committing suicide during the depression. Directed by Amy Vanderbilt. The screen debut of Studs Terkel who jacknifes into the Manhattan traffic from atop the World Trade Center - in living color. Cass Eliot does a bedroom number with a Ham Sandwich. +++

All The Chancellor's Men - The intriguing saga of the Whitmor jollies. Watch Glucky go for coffee. See Gage spin the wheel of fortune. Watch Ralph Jones blow up the Computer. Find out about the Wild Sex parties the secretaries have every afternoon in the Whitmore courtyard. Oscar certainly deserves one for his performance. ++++

The Planet Of The UMies - A so so attempt by Director Cheetah the Chimp to portray college students walking around like a bunch of apes. Filmed in Sylvan Area. Plot line is poor but costumes and special effects make it a must. ++

The Incredible Mr. Limp - Don Knotts tries to fly a kite but in the end can't get it up. He then commits suicide by performing oral sex with an electrical outlet. The audience always roars its approval when Knotts utters the now famous line: "I can never seem to get enough tail!" ++++

Be-bop-a-loo-arrgh

Ratings key:

++++New York Times
+++Washington Post
++Boston Globe
+Daily Collegian
no mark indicates Below the Salt

+++Flush — playing at the Outhouse II near Turner's Falls, Mass. Five dollar cover includes all drinks and utility use.

+Dirty Dick and the Whitewash — appearing at the Rusty Dome, Capitol Street, Sunderland, Sunday only. No plausible cover whatsoever.

Wassil Grog — playing Friday and Saturday night at the Barfly lounge, Northampton. Free beer after five a.m. happy hour, 7 to 7:15 a.m.

++Dirty John 'n' da Urinal six — playing at the Outhouse, rte 2, Athol, Mass. No cover charge if you bring your own tissue paper. Now through Saturday.

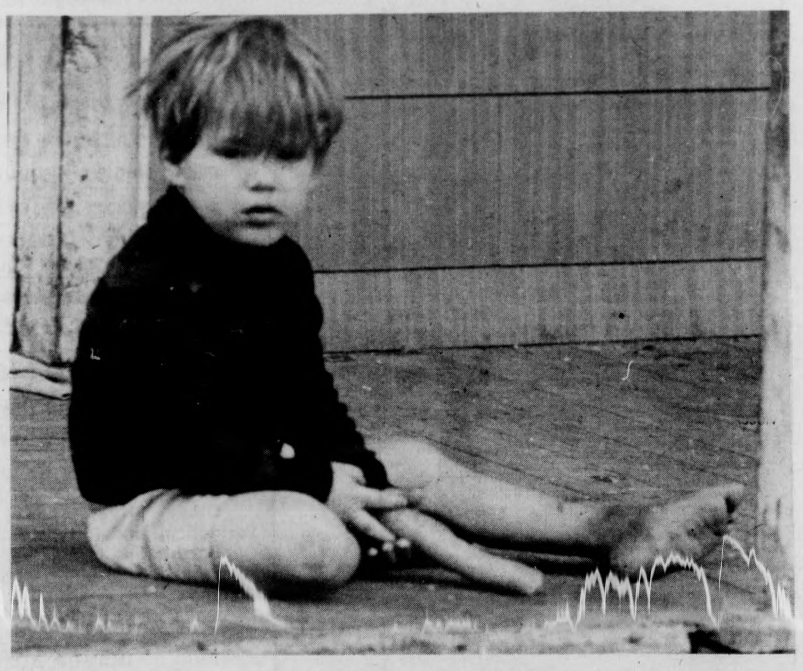
++++Amherst Towing — an oldee but goodie group, still as unpopular as ever. Now on tour at UMass. No set engagements but can be seen and heard all over campus at any hour, day or night. Eighteen dollar cover with a three dollar fee everytime they crank out a tune.

+Mz. Appropriation — female vocalist appearing at the School of Education, UMass; now through indefinitely. Also performing with her will be Outside Audit, formally the members of Shaftall Orchestra Inc.

++++Off Campus Housing — one of the most impossible groups to get a hold of. Be sure and get in a listen or two to what these clowns are blaring out now. Appearing at the Crop of the Campus, UMass for one night only. No cover but slight University fee.

Little Feet — a local group that still needs work. The drummer has three arms and is well worth the laugh, even though he can't play. Now at the Rake-in restaurant, rte 9, Amherst.

+++Randy B. — noted for his last hit "From rocks to riches" (recorded on Decc-a-dent discs). Randy is noted for his quick, nimble decisiveness in changing from fret to fret amid song. Fans hope that he will perform his latest "Ex-chancellor". Now through June at the Blewalle.



Local boy makes it big

We believe

Glucky don't go

We find it appalling that in this hour of crisis, this time of need, this moment of urgent and ponderous decision, that Vice Chancellor Gluckstern has found it within himself to leave UMass for Maryland.

Now more than ever the University is faced with weighty alternatives — none pleasant. We need every man and woman to stand tall, man his-her stations and greet the enemy with cries of "BANZAI", and not jump ship screeching "Maryland here I come!" We have to transform UMass into the Rock of Gilbraltar, and not the Pebble of Hadley.

Vice chancellor Gluckstern was especially useful in his role here at the University. He always knew who liked theirs black and who liked theirs regular. It was unbelievable how many ham and cheese, and apple blintzes he could stuff into those grubby little paws. A meeting wasn't a meeting until Glucky made a run. And he always brought back the correct change — he could be trusted.

We, the unsigned members of the Bored of Editors, urge the University find a suitable replacement for the vacancy. We hope that the replacement has a car so that Hardees is within range. We hope that the replacement is swift afoot and slow of mind. We need a replacement who will salvage the remains of an already floundering administration from this most deplorable situation. Not since the Emperor Caligula named his horse Consul, did a personnel shift of such magnitude occur.

All unsigned editorials express the opinion of the majority of the Bored of Editors, if any really gives a flying fuck.

FOR EARLY PROFITS...
ORDER CHICKS NOW!

EDITORIAL OPINIONS

Reed Fisherman

A union made in Shop-Rite

Well, I decided to stay up here over vacation and do some writing and have some time to think things over, and I have to say that I would never have expected such an entertaining experience as the one that happened to me last Friday. Therefore, I feel it necessary to relate to you the story.

It all began Tuesday when I was thumbing through a local newspaper looking for entertainment. Suddenly, I noticed a familiar face on the "Weddings and Engagements" page. I wasn't sure who it was but I felt like eating a steak and upon further investigation of the page I realized that it was none other than the vivacious Sylvia Gottlieb. I couldn't believe it as I read on:

> "Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gottlieb proudly announce the wedding of their daughter, Sylvia, to Mr. Henry J. Whipple of Hoboken, N.J. The ceremony will take place Friday night and the reception will be at the Lord Jeffrey Hotel in Amherst."

It was the answer to all my problems. What a rush! — going to the wedding of Sylvia Gottlieb and Mr. Whipple. I couldn't wait.

That Friday, I put on my blue blazer and got high and went to the Lord Jeff to catch the festivities. I wasn't exactly sure what to expect so I waited till I thought everybody would be good and drunk before I drove down there. Now I'm sorry I didn't go earlier. It was like being in the middle of "one of those Hollywood parties, and everywhere I looked I recognized someone.

And there was Mr. Whipple with his arms around Sylvia...squeezing her. And then it struck me. How is she going to be able to get on television with a straight face and say, "Hi. This is Sylvia Whipple."? Who's gonna buy that beef?

Anyhow, I went over to say Mazeltov to Sylvia, and I was so excited that I bumped into one of the Juicy Fruit Twins and spilled his drink. He started chewing me out and a shrill voice started yelling, "Don't worry, Bounty will handle it!" Then a lady with an apron ran in and everyone shouted, "Yeah, Rosey!"

I stepped back to the wall and began talking to Sylvia's sister, Sheila. Hi, Sheila. She had a crush on the leader of the band, whose name was Big Wally. She introduced me to Mr. Clean, who had performed the ceremony. I asked him if he was planning to run for president and he laughed and said, "Don't I always?"

Just then, an orchestra started playing and fifteen dancers ran into the room and began dancing on tables and singing a medley of "Hold the Pickles" and "You Deserve a Break Today." What a show. Even Henry Fonda was there — taking pictures.

It was stranger than lunchtime in the Student Union and I was there and everybody else had gone home for vacation. I asked the bride and groom where they were going for their honeymoon, and they said they didn't know yet but they were going to shop around. "The Virgin Islands are on special this week." said Sylvia.

By the time everybody was drunk enough so they were ready to leave, it was considered by all to have been a lovely affair, and the happily harried couple drove away with Toilet paper and "SQUEEZE ME" written all over the car. I went over to the coat check room and put my check stub on the counter and the lady said, "Those hands look like they've been fondling shit!" It was Madge and she was drunk as a skunk and started squirting Palmolive liquid at me and laughing hysterically, and I knew it was time to go home.

Reed Fishermen spends his spare time crashing various social functions.

Letters to the Editor

Allen responds to charges

To the Editor:

I am writing in reference to the article published in last Tuesday's Collegian on the misuse of Federal funds in the UMass School of Education, which was inaccurate for the following reasons: First, I did not spend $17,574.83 on a camping trip; I merely spent $15,193.37. I think Suzuki is trying to cover his honeymoon expenses from last year. Anyway, it was the best godamned camping trip I ever went on, all at the taxpapers expense. Who says crime doesn't pay? Maybe I'll write a book.

Secondly, the article says I'm planning a trip to the moon in a hot air balloon — that's a flat lie. I'm not so stupid as to think I could make it to the moon in a hot air balloon. Besides, I now have $2.6 million of this counry's money to do whatever to fuck I want with. So the School of Education, Bob Wood, and all those peons running that poor excuse of a college over in Amherst, can go bark at the moon.

Dwight Allen
Guano, Africa

Frat house hi-jinks

To the Editor:

Recently, a group of us attended a party at Eata Roota Chi fraternity. Our main complaint in this letter, does not concern the hospitality of the brothers that night, although gross and disgusting. Anyhow, we got there about 8, and everybody just kind of stood around in the lounge, while the men drank a lot of beer. By 10:30, they started getting gross, I mean really gross. Anyhow, my friend Sherry wanted to stay, so we stood around while Larry H. went No. 2 on the carpet, while brothers Bill McG., Brian I don't know his last name's first letter, and Zamir N. looked on. And they were rolling on the floor laughing so hard, and Zamir turned blue, and made Schlitz come out of his nose. It was gross. I mean really gross.

Anyhow, our objective is to tell our "sisters" about how perverted they are. About halfway through a demonstration of the Japanese Sit-Up, I went to the ladies room to go tinkle. Anyhow, I was sitting there on the potty, and I hear the sound of heavy breathing. I look up, and you know who I saw? Bob and Peter peeking in the skylight, both of them foaming at the mouth. Boy, are those guys sick!

Anyhow, any member of the female sex that goes to a party at Eat Roota, don't use the ladies room. We do not appreciate the antics of these voyeurs with the antiquated ideas of women. I mean, that kind of shit went out with panty raids.

Rosemary Schmaltz

A victim of soicumstance

To the Editor:

My boss asked me to take a letter, but he didn't say where I should take it, so I thought you guys might be interested in publishing it. My boss said that he thought it was weird how, after spending six years trying to pin a conspiracy rap on those uppity liberals, the old Berlin Wall gets nailed with one, if you know what I mean. Geez, is that weird.

Rose Mary Woods

Stand up for pastrami

To the Editor:

For some time now, we've known that the Campus Center has been ripping off students in many ways, but their most recent incident is just too much.

My roommate Beans McAroni proved during a three-minute investigation that the Snatch was shortchanging its customers serving them unsaturated instead of saturated fats in the french fries.

But this is terrible!
Very terrible!
We must organize!

We have learned that the machine that weighs pastrami in the Snatch has lost at least three ball bearings. This means that the weights are off by 3-4 of an ounce.

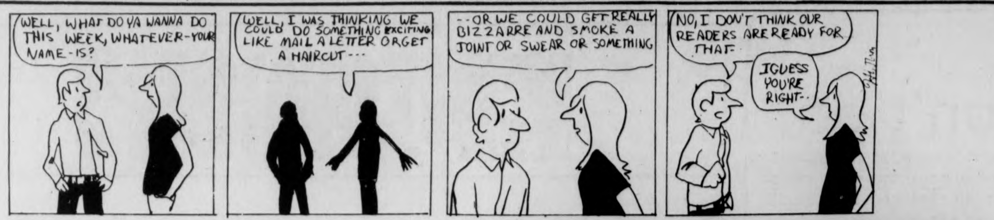
So when you pay your hard-earned cash for that oppressive slop you're getting ripped off.

We must stop the thrust of this fiendish plot.

Fight for your rights. Stand up for pastrami.

Che Guevara

DROWSY AND PILL



WELL, WHAT DO YA WANNA DO THIS WEEK, WHATEVER-YOUR NAME-IS?
WELL, I WAS THINKING WE COULD DO SOMETHING EXCITING LIKE MAIL A LETTER OR GET A HAIRCUT---
--OR WE COULD GET REALLY BIZZARRE AND SMOKE A JOINT OR SWEAR OR SOMETHING NO, I DON'T THINK OUR READERS ARE READY FOR THAT-I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT--

Shuttle bus leads nowhere for Henry

By PUSSY GALORE

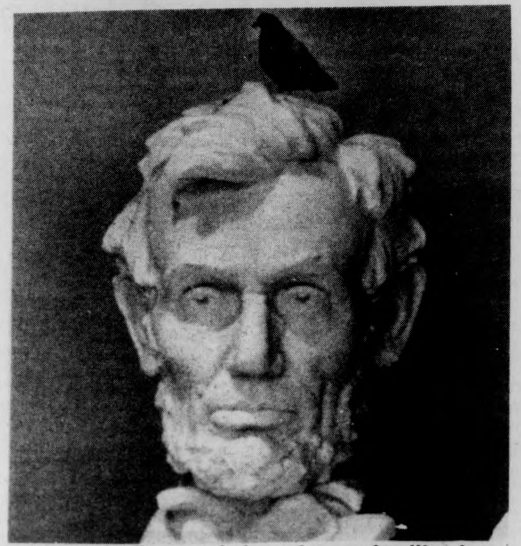
DAMN ASS CUSS — Secretary of State, Director of Nation Insecurity, and Roving Ambassador Henry Kissinger yesterday continued his shuttle-bus diplomacy between the Persian Gulf states of Kuwait and Oman, in order to settle the 29-day war of attrition between the two nations.

"Another day shot to hell," grumbled Henry after boarding the 1952 GMC Motor Coach in Oman. "I just hope we pass a gas station that's open tonight."

Henry, commonly referred to as the Super K, has been getting his share of kryptonite on this mission, as he has been unable to mediate between the factions.

"After his string of successes in the Mideast, Ireland, Cyprus, Pakistan, Vietnam, Uganda, Puerto Rico and Cleveland, Kissinger may just be losing his secret powers," said an inidentified Arab, as he was getting into his chauffer-driven Rolls Royce.

Kissinger has been forced on this mission to use a shuttle bus, because of the continuing Arab oil embargo against the airlines of the world, for exceeding the annual quota of hijackers captured. The world's major airlines have agreed to subdue only 299 would-be hijackers a year, in exchange for jet fuel, but aggressive pilots have killed 325 so far this year.



A recently discovered piece of campaign literature of Stephen Douglas from the 1860 presidential campaign is shown here. The caption under this picture of Abraham Lincoln said, "Would you elect this shithead president?" The example is typical of the gutter, mudslinging political races of the nineteenth century.

A Wood by any name

By LEWIS PETROVICH

Robert Woods is being featured around 20 cities in the country, in the best Hollywood Spanish Speaking movie-made, "El Corsario", which means in the correct language of Cervantes . . . uh, I mean of Atahualpa ... uh, I means Pocahontas . . . or the language of Shapespeare, (that's better), that means "The Pirate or Corsary".

The movie is being presented by Caballero Spanish Movies in Lo Mejor del Cine Espanol. (The Best of the Spanish Movies).

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.

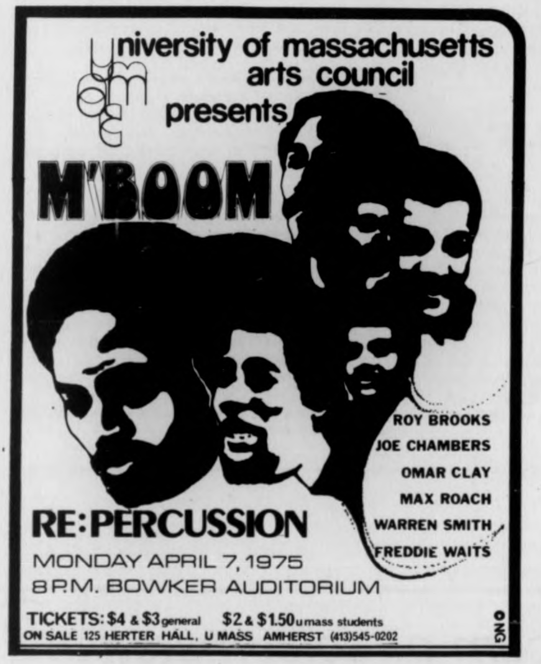
AFROTC

An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.

- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.



university of massachusetts arts council presents

M'BOOM

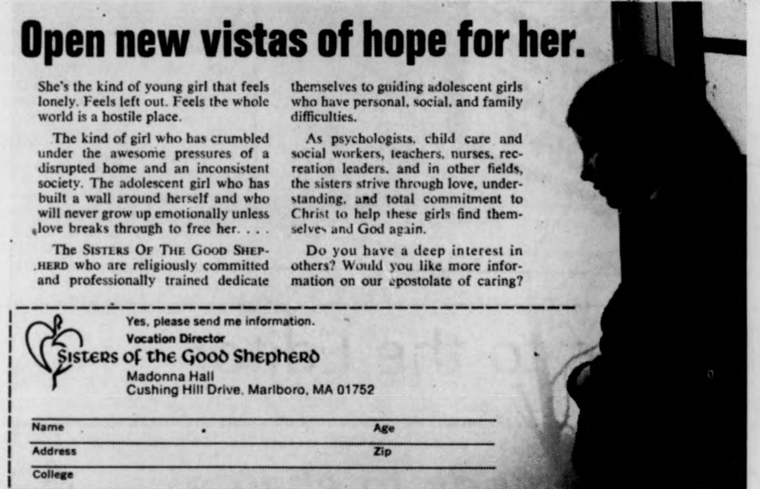
ROY BROOKS
JOE CHAMBERS
OMAR CLAY
MAX ROACH
WARREN SMITH
FREDDIE WAITS

RE:PERCUSSION

MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

TICKETS: $4 & $3 general $2 & $1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

ONG



Open new vistas of hope for her.

She's the kind of young girl that feels lonely. Feels left out. Feels the whole world is a hostile place.

The kind of girl who has crumbled under the awesome pressures of a disrupted home and an inconsistent society. The adolescent girl who has built a wall around herself and who will never grow up emotionally unless love breaks through to free her. . . .

The SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD who are religiously committed and professionally trained dedicate themselves to guiding adolescent girls who have personal, social, and family difficulties.

As psychologists, child care and social workers, teachers, nurses, recreation leaders, and in other fields, the sisters strive through love, understanding, and total commitment to Christ to help these girls find themselves and God again.

Do you have a deep interest in others? Would you like more information on our apostolate of caring?

Yes, please send me information.
Vocation Director
Sisters of the Good Shepherd
Madonna Hall
Cushing Hill Drive, Marlboro, MA 01752

Name Age
Address Zip
College

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $550. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers; high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive: for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4765 evenings.

Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms-channel, or 11 WX4 channel (quad). 3 mos. old. List $350. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Matt 6-7009. Also, smaller advents for $120.

Van 4 Sale — '73, 302, V8, RH, AC. 532-4511.

A brand new Polaro ID 440 camera with flash. Used only once. Best offer takes it. Call 253-3707. Keep trying.

Trumphet-pro. Silver Holton Bb. $250. Call Paul at 542-5057 Hampshire Col.

Minolta SRT-101, 58 mm F1.4, case and extras, ex. cond., $190. 788-4678 aft. six.

FOR SALE

For Sale — Gibson Humming Bird, hard shell case. Best offer takes it. Call 256-8111 after 4 p.m.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM-FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

Great 70 Fiat 850 Coupe looking for good home. 40 mpg. $695, cheap! 253-7967.

68 Chev., Seedy looking, great running, good transportation. $395. Bob 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new exhaust, runs well. $250 or best offer. 253-7967.

58 Peugeot 403, sunroof. Bring a battery and drive it away! $100. 253-7967.

64 Corvair convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer takes. 253-7967.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

1969 Chevy Van. Needs minor repair. $950. Will bargain or trade for motorcycle. Ph: 665-4984.

'71 Fiat, 124 Sedan, radials, 30 mpg. Good condition. Asking $1200. Call Ms. Roberts, 5-0150 evenings 628-3825.

Wanted — Volvo P1800 in good repair. Joan. 256-8989.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

HD Sportster, Koni shocks, disc front, alum. jugs, sifton cams. Ernie. 527-4877.

1969 CL350 Honda, rebuilt. Excellent condition. Best offer. Larry. 6-6570.

FOR RENT

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

FOR RENT

NR UMass Univ. Park, 2½ rm., June 1. $165 including util. No pets. 253-2985.

Co-op Res., 655 Main, AMH veg. org. food growth oriented. Mat persons 80 & util. & food & deposit. 3 openings. 253-5253.

Amh. — New 2 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. and sec. 549-6600.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

Whately, Mass. — 7 room house, good condition, available for 1 year. $225.00 month. Call 737-6088.

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70, util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 til Sept. 1. Call 549-1275 right now.

Sublet June 1 to Sept. 1. Brandywine Apt. Furnished. 549-6547.

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a [illegible] bus line. June 1-August 31, opt to [illegible]

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedrm., furnished apt. on Bus line. $110. 253-7957.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $, for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Typist for final draft of thesis — 100 pages total call 584-1580 early mornings.

HELP WANTED

Applications are now available for employment with conference housing. 25 positions available including clerks, housekeepers, and night mgr. Further information and application forms may be obtained at off. of Residential Life, 233 Hills N. Deadline for returning applications — 4-14-75. SCH is an affirm. Action Employer.

COLLEGE CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVE Needed to sell Brand Name Stereo Components to students at lowest prices. Hi Commission, No Investment required. Serious Inquiries Only! FAD COMPONENTS, INC., 20 Passaic Ave., Fairfield, New Jersey 07006. Jerry [illegible] 201-227-6814.

TYPING

Students — Avoid last minute rush. Have papers etc. typed early. Call 253-7454 or 253-7145.

PERSONALS

There will be 15 kegs (at least) and other forms of liquid refreshments at the Big Bad Boogie Party, Party.

PERSONALS

Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Future CPA's. Learn how to prepare for the CPA exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Yogapiano. 549-6321. Carole Shanti.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job to small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Karmachanics — All auto repairs. Fiat specialists. People's prices. We'll teach you too! 665-7145.

[illegible]

THE PARTY OF THE YEAR! The big bad boogie — with the Luther Johnson Blues Band — Sat. Night — Admission only $2 for a great band, loads of liquid refreshment including at least 15 kegs of beer...9 p.m., Worcester Commons.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years. $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information — 545-0202.

THIS WEEK IN THE BLUEWALL: Tuesday, April 1, — Fat, 9-1; Wed. and Thurs., April 2 & 3 — Night Hawks; Fri. and Sat., April 4 & 5 — Forest, 9-1; Sunday, April 6 — Jazz Jam Session. At the Toc, Thurs.-Sat., — Pzazz Dixieland Jazz Band.

MISCELLANEOUS

Open Rush Tonight at Kappa Alpha Theta featuring Greaser Night. All are welcome, 778 N. Pleasant St. Ride 5-2736.

Wanted bird nests for cash, resident 110, Cliffside, Sunderland. 03175.

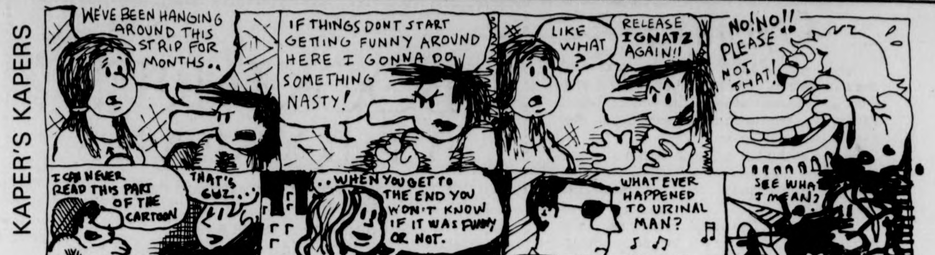
AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS

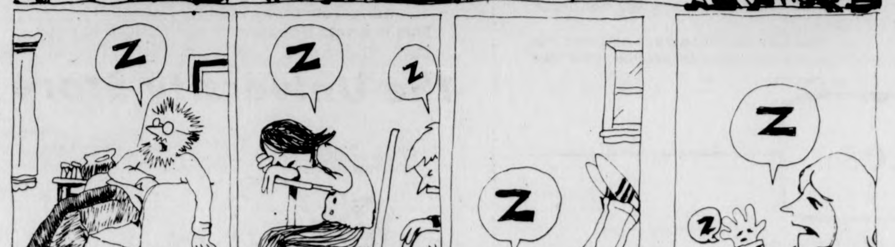
College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. Before you buy anywhere call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

KAPER'S KAPERS

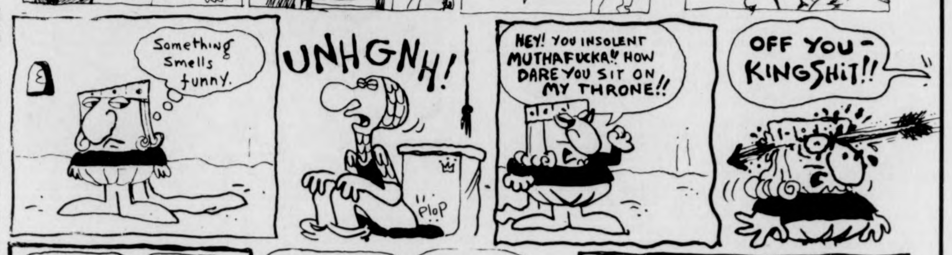


WE'VE BEEN HANGING AROUND THIS STRIP FOR MONTHS..
IF THINGS DONT START GETTING FUNNY AROUND HERE I GONNA DO SOMETHING NASTY!
LIKE WHAT?
RELEASE IGNATZ AGAIN!!
NO! NO!! PLEASE NOT THAT!
I CAN NEVER READ THIS PART OF THE CARTOON
THAT'S CUZ...
..WHEN YOU GET TO THE END YOU WON'T KNOW IF IT WAS FUNNY OR NOT.
WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO URINAL MAN?
SEE WHAT I MEAN?

DIZZZZZZZZY

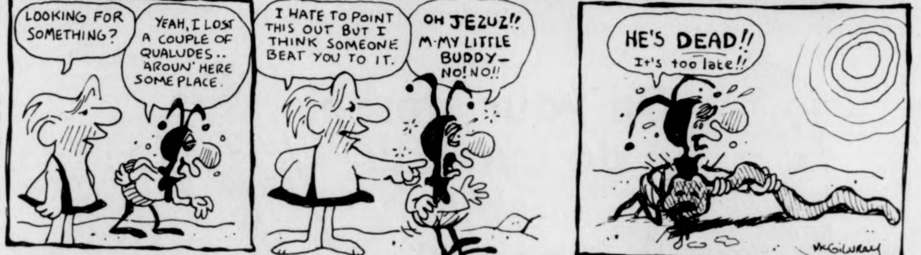


THE WIZARD OF UM



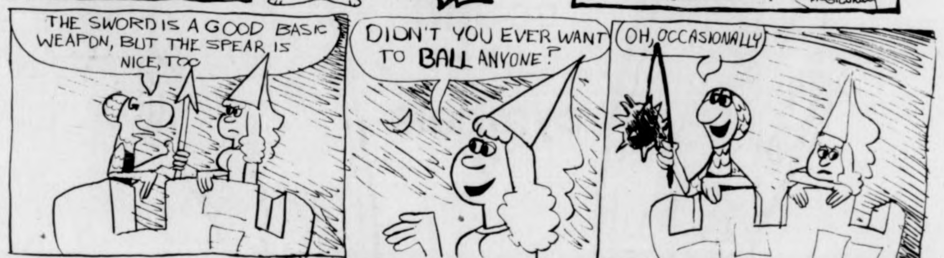
Something Smells funny.
UNHGNH!
PLOP
HEY! YOU INSOLENT MUTHAFUCKA!! HOW DARE YOU SIT ON MY THRONE!!
OFF YOU-KINGSHIT!!

O.D.



LOOKING FOR SOMETHING?
YEAH, I LOST A COUPLE OF QUALUDES.. AROUN' HERE SOME PLACE.
I HATE TO POINT THIS OUT BUT I THINK SOMEONE BEAT YOU TO IT.
OH JEZUZ!! M-MY LITTLE BUDDY— NO! NO!!
HE'S DEAD!! It's too late!!
McGILVRAY

CHANCELLOR OF ID



THE SWORD IS A GOOD BASIC WEAPON, BUT THE SPEAR IS NICE, TOO DIDN'T YOU EVER WANT TO BALL ANYONE?
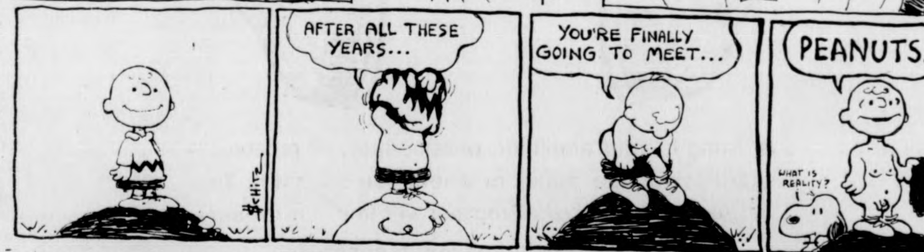
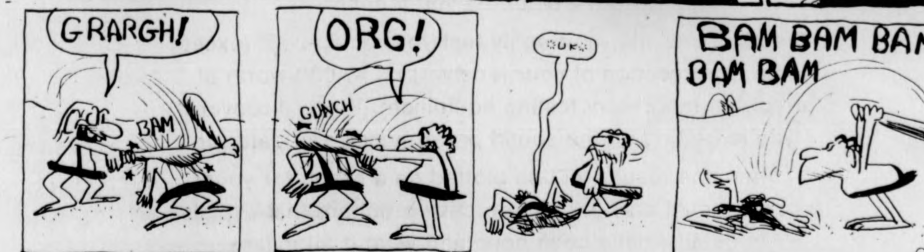
OH, OCCASIONALLY

PEANUTS REVEALED



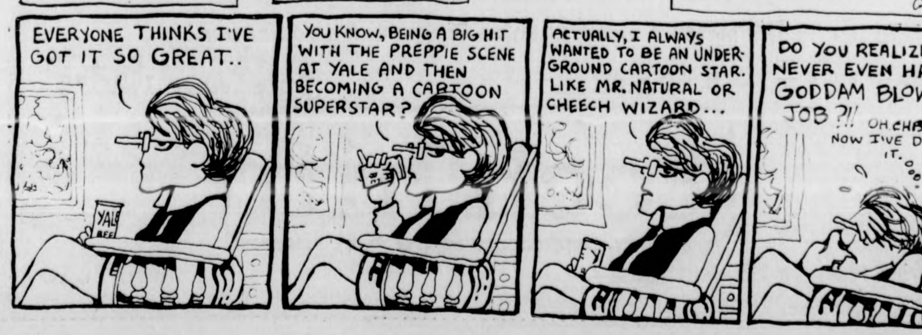
SCHITZ
AFTER ALL THESE YEARS...
YOU'RE FINALLY GOING TO MEET...
PEANUTS!
WHAT IS REALITY?

UGH!



GRARGH!
BAM
ORG!
GUNCH
OUK
BAM BAM BAM BAM BAM
Grunk

DOUCHEBERRY



EVERYONE THINKS I'VE GOT IT SO GREAT..
YALE BEER
YOU KNOW, BEING A BIG HIT WITH THE PREPPIE SCENE AT YALE AND THEN BECOMING A CARTOON SUPERSTAR?
ACTUALLY, I ALWAYS WANTED TO BE AN UNDERGROUND CARTOON STAR. LIKE MR. NATURAL OR CHEECH WIZARD...
DO YOU REALIZE I'VE NEVER EVEN HAD A GODDAM BLOW JOB?!!
OH CHRIST, NOW I'VE DONE IT.

Daily Oscilloscope

By JEFF JOWEL

Tuesday, April 1. You are a fool obviously, especially if you read this stupid thing and think it means anything. You are also ugly and impotent. You are often good spirited at times but often you are not unless of course the planet Mars goes into Taurus then you are constipated.

Your most stunning feature is that you are easy. A basic desire to inflict harm on others is an integral part of your personality also. Spiritually the April fool is a total zilch. Today will be a good day to commit suicide in the a.m. while the afternoon is prime for shopping and listening to quiet music and watching re-runs of 'I'm Dickens, He's Fenster'

To find out what today will be for you call your mother, find out when born you were, and look under the sign under your birthday. (Believe it or not you can sleaze credits for this madness from the BDIC people)

Aries (March 21-April 19) Don't unless you think about it and if you procrastinate it won't get done until later.

Taurus (April 21-May 21). Look toward the future today, dwell on the present and back on the past. If you see old aqaintance piss in their ear.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) Where you owe people money leave town. A good day for family relationships, incest is best.

Cancer (June 21-July 21) Just keep smoking.

Leo (July 21-August 21) My mother is a Leo and she's neurotic you probably are too. If you are a Leo and you were born in November you don't know what's going on at all.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept 23) Morning will be fine and so wouldn't Larry if he were alive. Afternoon will be good for travel, work, play and masterbation.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Today is a day for change but remaining the same. Don't be concerned with others they don't care about you.

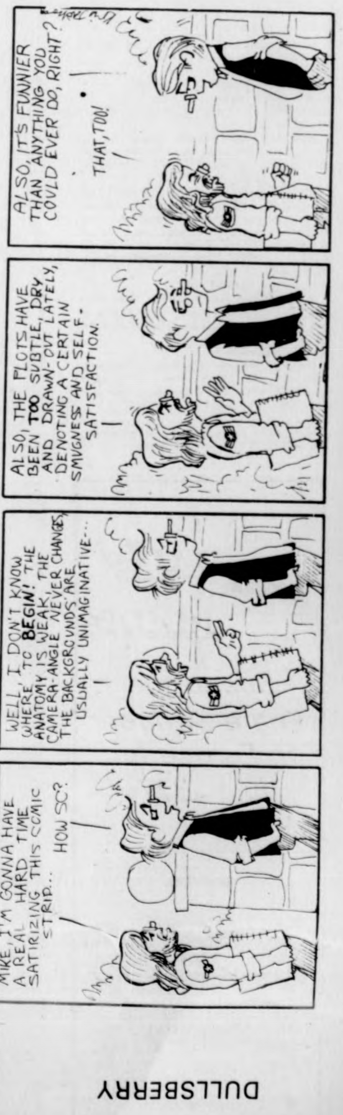
Sagitarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Be on your guard, the media will try to fool you today, but if you read this far you've all ready wasted enough of your day.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 22) Not available there were clouds in that section of the stars last night and I couldn't find Arions Penis constallation.

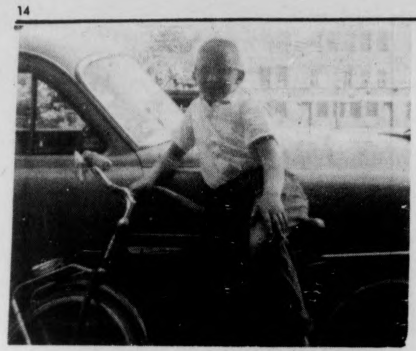
Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 20) A bad day for love relationships, car problems, indigestion, walking, sitting laying down standing. Good day for burps and poops.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) A cup of Hatch Coffee and a donut will prove lethal within five minutes. Don't put it off anymore — change your sheets.

DULLSBERRY



MIKE, I'M GONNA HAVE A HARD TIME SATIRIZING THIS STRIP.
WELL, I DON'T KNOW WHERE TO BEGIN! THE STRIP IS TOO STATIC, CAMERA-ANGLES NEVER CHANGE, THE BACKGROUNDS ARE USUALLY UNIMAGINATIVE...
ALSO, THE PLOTS HAVE BEEN TOO SUBTLE LATELY, AND DRAWN-OUT, CERTAINLY DEVOTING ITSELF TO SMUGNESS AND SELF-SATISFACTION.
ALSO, IT'S FUNNIER THAN ANYTHING YOU COULD EVER DO, RIGHT?
THAT, TOO!



Cycling

Spring is here and with its coming comes the two wheels of fortune that you will see men and women alike riding into oblivion. What we're talking about is bicycles and the people who ride them.

Shown at the left is Stevie "what a hero" Tripoli the self-acclaimed HEAD of the UMass-Brittany Manor I love the feel of my seat bicycle club.

"Trip" and his late model two-wheeler are inseparable and he can be seen flying through campus on almost any day of the week.

The club's activities get into full swing this weekend when some of its members will bike to heaven.

notices

AMATEUR RADIO LICENSE CLASS
Tonight 7 p.m. at the ham shack (Rm. 109 Engineering Lab).

ASTROLOGICAL SOCIETY
Meeting tonite at 8:00 Campus Center. New people are invited. Room posted in CC.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting tonite in Hasbrouck 22 at 7. Come.

BUTTERICK FASHION CLUB
Meeting 4-1, 7 p.m., Rm. 119 Skinner. Several things to discuss. Please try to make it or call 546-9622. Also, next week a speaker from the Casual Corner chain!

DO YOU SHOP AT CASUAL CORNER?
If you like what Casual Corner has to offer for sale, come hear an executive from this company come and speak about herself and her company. Question and answer period following. Refreshments, 4-8, 7 p.m. Rm. 119 Skinner.

CHESS! PLAYERS
Come to CC 162 tonite to play chess with us. Please bring you own equipment as we still don't have enough. Come around 7 or 7:30.

HEYMAKERS
Regular meeting Tues. at 8 p.m. Talk over upcoming dance and events.

KAPPA DELTA PI
Meeting with Bob White on 4-2 at 6:30 p.m. in the Berkshire Library (1st floor). Sorry! no principal. More info call: 549-1026.

LIVESTOCK CLASSIC NOTICES
April 2: Swine Clinic on Wed. at 3:30 at the Youngstock Barn. Bring $5.
April 3: Beef and Dairy Clinic on Thurs. at 6:30 p.m., at Grinnell Arena.
April 6: Swine Clinic, 2 p.m. at the Youngstock Barn. Anyone who can't make it Wed. come Sun. Bring $5.

ORCHARD HILL AND CENTRAL AREA RESIDENTS
A group information session on Financial Aid for next year ('75-'76) will be held tonite at 6 and 8 p.m. in the Baker Basement Lounge.

COALITION FOR A PEOPLE'S BUDGET
Tonite at 7:30 we will meet to discuss plans for the April 15 rally. All are welcome-newcomers especially. It's a campus-wide rally, so we'd like as much input as possible. Bring ideas and bring a friend. CC 118.

PRE DENTS, MEDS, VETS
Important meeting of the Pre Dent, Med and Vet Club's Executive Boards tonite at 7 in CC 801. All officers of the three clubs are asked to attend.

PRE NURSING
General meeting. Students in Nursing Program will be present to answer questions. Wed. 4-2, Conference Rm. 4th floor Morrill, 7 p.m.

SW BANJO COLLOQ
Mandatory attendance Tues. for credit. Call 549-6330 if you can't make it.

SAM PECKINPAH FILM
First time shown, Peckinpah's "The Ballad of Cable Hogue" tonite at 7:00 Public Health Aud.

STUDENT HOMOPHILE LEAGUE
The Spring Gay Festival Committee will be meeting tonite in CC 805-9. We need help, please come.

SWINGSHIFTERS '71
For party info call Janice 256-6457 or Steve 253-5260 before April 10.

200 MOTELS
See Frank Zappa's movie masterpiece tomorrow nite at 8 and 10:15 in SUB.

UNDERGRADUATE BUSINESS CLUB
Meeting Wed. 4-2 at 7:30 p.m. in CC 169. Come and help us plan our trip. All new members welcome.

UNIVERSITY DOG CLUB
Advanced grooming demonstration by local dog breeders Wed. 4-2, 7:30 p.m. Paige Lab Rm. 202. General meeting 7:00. Everybody welcome.

LOST
Reward for return of gold Bulova watch, leather band, much sentimental value. Possibly left in Hatch Mon. morning, in envelope with ID info on it. Call Rick 256-0573.

LOST
Blue and green mohair scarf before vacation — sentimental value, Janet 549-0459.

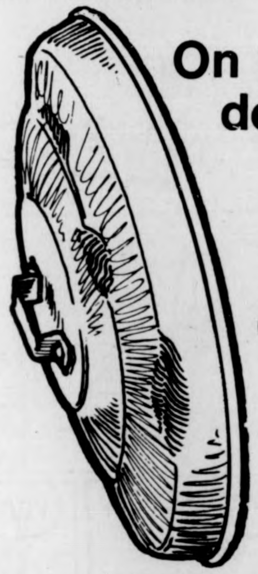
LOST
The Groucho Letters, lost in the Bluewall St. Patrick's Day. Reward. Please call 253-5369.

HOW TO "DRIVE TO STAY ALIVE"
Commuters or others interested in taking a one credit colloque on defensive driving techniques and instruction, call Bob evenings at 549-6349, classes will be held on Thursday eves starting April 3 from 6-9.

BOOKTHRIFT
FOR BOOKLOVERS

Come join us at our extraordinary 50% OFF giant paperback book sale.
Outstanding current and back list titles from many leading publishers.
This is a sale Booklovers can't afford to miss.

The University Store



On your stereo, do cymbals still sound like cymbals ?

Just bring in your amplifier, preamplifier, or receiver — regardless of age, make, or where you bought it. The Marantz Audio Analysis Program will find out for sure.

And it won't cost you a cent.

First, Marantz will thoroughly test your equipment (except the tuner section of your receiver) on $7,000 worth of precision laboratory testing equipment. You'll discover if you're getting all the sound performance you paid for.

Then, the results will be plotted on a graph for your records. You'll also get an attractive brochure that explains in detail what's been done and what it all means.

The Marantz Audio Analysis Program. It's yours, free.

Time: 11 a.m. — 8:00 p.m. Date: April 1, 1975

tech hifi
Quality Components at the Right Price

259 Triangle St., Amherst 549-2610

London
PARIS
ROME

*Spend the Entire Summer in Europe for just $377

BOSTON — PARIS — BOSTON

If you are a member of any of the 5 colleges within this area you may qualify for this low group fare

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT MR. RICHARD PINI — 253-7766

 air fare only

Battle of the Century in Big Cherry Bernie screws Constance, 5-3

By IKE NELSON

It was truly the Battle of the Century. Ringside seats sold for $150 apiece as 80,000 crowded into teeming Madison Square Garden for the monumental tussle. Coast to coast, 250 cities carried the event on closed circuit T.V. screens as millions paid $10 each to witness the event. Radio Free Europe broadcast the play by play action so that countries behind the Iron Curtain could be exposed to Western civilization. Finally at 8:00 p.m. EST, Bernie Kravitz entered the ring and hopped into the sack to do grapple with his wife Constance.

The affair started out slowly, each combatant willing to feel the other out waiting for the moment. Constance jumped into the lead, when after Bernie balked, she engineered a pretty squeeze play scoring a run, leaving Bernie gasping for breath. But Bernie recovered quickly and immediatly swung the momentum over to his side. He nimbly stickhandled through Constance's porous defense and fired it home, at 2:53. Two minutes later Bernie scored again on a wicked slapper from the blue line. With Constance backed against the ropes, she went for broke. After a long count in the huddle she fired a bomb deep into Bernie's territory. But Bernie was quicker and intercepted the pass and followed it with the execution of a beautiful 80 yard broken field return to paydirt, slamming the pigskin into the wet turf. Five seconds later he booted the extra point. This virtually finished off Constance, and after a nip and tuck third period, Bernie ended up on top.

(Staff photo by Dirt Bag)

CONSTANCE

After the game Bernie had this to say: "It was ah, er....a great ballgame. Constance is a great player and I'm er um tickled pink to be able to uh win. Her uh defense was uh a little slow but her ah offense was great. It was all I could do to keep the action around her net. She was always screaming "Get the puck outta here". I've er been conditioning and ah training for this one for months - wind-sprints, squat-thrusts, and pushups every morning. I'm looking forward to next season when I can defend my title."

All Constance could say was: "FIX! FIX! FIX!......"

President Ford, President King? to ski for Minutepeople next year

By BURP EDELMINT

WASHINGTON — President Gerald Ford will compete for the University of Massachusetts ski team this coming season it was announced yesterday by sources close to the President.

Ford, 60, out of Washington D.C., was on the slopes of Vale, Colorado, this past winter perfecting his shusses, christies and snowplow.

When informed of his spot on the team by coach Bill MacConnell, the exuberant President purchased 3000 lift tickets for Berkshire East.

Ron Nessen, Ford's press secretary, spoke for the President who was unavailable for comment for the better part of the day.

Asked how Ford could possibly handle his executive duties while away from the White House, Nessen replied that "Vice-President Rockefeller is a very able man."

"The President is thrilled to have the chance to ski for UMass and has absolutely no aspirations towards the 1976 Winter Olympics," Nessen added.

Late in the afternoon the press was allowed into the Oval Office where Ford was dressed sharply in a bright red ski parka, thick leather gloves and a stocking cap emblemized with the letters "NAIT". Laying his pen down, the President rose, maneuvered around his desk and shuffled forward to greet the scribes, displaying the nifty "K-2" skis attached to his feet.

Leslie King

"I'm sorry I had to ask you boys in here, but I can't fit my skis through the doorway," the President informed reporters. "Betty helped me get them on, but now the bindings are stuck and she's gone shopping.

"I think I can help the team," Ford predicted. "My slalom time is improving and I gathered a great deal of confidence in Vale."

Ford played football for the University of Michigan in his younger days, so a question of his eligibility for UMass surfaced.

"Rocky (Vice President Rockefeller) told me that everything is taken care of," assured the President.

"University of Michigan, University of Massachusetts; you might say I'm getting into a rut playing for schools with the initials 'UM'," the President observed.

"I can hardly wait to go to UMass next year and then, possibly, the Olympics in '76. What I'm really shooting for though, is to star in a television endorsement for a shaving cream company," Ford explained, awkwardly jumping up and down on his "K-2's".

In a telephone interview with coach MacConnell, the ski mentor cited that there would have to be some changes in procedure to accommodate the President.

"Usually we give chewing gum to the guys to keep their mouths moist, but we'll discontinue that practice since Gerry (Ford) can't ski and chew gum at the same time."

CONTACT

BUY THE SET, GET 10% OFF WITH AD

BRUSHED DENIM
BY CONTACT
tops 18.00 & bottoms 16.00

the jeans store

WEAR-HOUSE

201 n. pleasant st. / amherst
Fairfield Mall / chicopee

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officer's commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

UMass women get shaft

By IMA SLEAZE

In an unprecedented move to make athletics at UMass "big time" Athletic Department HEAD Fred McInsanity yesterday announced the cutting of all women's programs from the athletic department budget.

The announcement came very late last night after Athletic department officials deliberated for an undetermined amount of time.

McInsanity seemed to have great faith in the worth of the decision. "It's almost a necessity," said the AD head, "If we really want to show the rest of the nation that athletics at UMass mean something then this is our only alternative."

Frank McInsanity

The decision will become effective at the end of the current semester. "The women will still have their spring softball season," said Associate Athletic Department head Biff O'Comment, "things will be business as usual until the end of this term."

As far as the budget is concerned Financial Manager of the department Alvin Roofer said, "we expect that this move will have great advancing effects on all of our men's programs. Now with all the added funds and positions for the men we can really move into the national limelight of college athletics."

This move will certainly put some people out of jobs, one being Virginia Slim, the extremely successful coach of the women's gymnastics team, or former team. Slim said, " his decision sucks."

Virginia Slim

Plans are being made to turn the Northeast physical education building, formerly the women's building, into a hotel for the visiting men's teams. It will be complete with sauna baths and massage rooms.

Scheduling-wise plans are in the making to open the 1977 football seasons with the Cornhuskers of Nebraska, the 1977 basketball season with the Bruins of UCLA and the 1977 hockey season with the Canadiens of Montreal.

Leading feminist on campus L. N. Gabbing was in somewhat of a tirade after hearing of the decision. "It's a disgrace to everything that we (females) stand for, whatever that may be," she screeched.

No one from the administration in Whitmore was available for comment although it was reported by an unknown source that Chancellor Bummery has said, "women?, fuck 'em."

Curt Gowdy brutally slain MUA sportscaster to replace

In a surprise announcement made today, Bill Doyle, an unknown from Chicopee, Mass., was named to replace Curt Gowdy as anchorman on the NBC broadcasting network in the wake of Gowdy's unexpected death last night.

Gowdy's career came to an abrupt halt last night after the broadcast of the NCAA basketball finals in San Diego.

While interviewing retiring coach John Wooden of UCLA after the Bruins had won the championship for the tenth time in twelve years, Gowdy asked a question that apparently Wooden could not take. Gowdy said "Coach, why on earth are you retiring after having so much success as Bruin coach over so many years?" Wooden replied, "It's because of incompetents like you, Curt. I've been waiting for this chance to lash out and say what I really think. It's bad enough I have to have these black players on our team and have to put up with hippie freaks like Bill Walton, but when people like you compound my miseries by asking foolish questions after games when I would much rather be home being laid, I just flip out. So this, Curt, is for you." Wooden then seized the microphone and strangled Gowdy to the delight of 15,000 roaring fans.

Doyle, when asked what he tought of the whole thing, replied that, "I am not surpised. NBC wanted me a year ago but they could not release Gowdy because of legal difficulties."

Staff Phot by Dirt Bag

Jock Layman, head coach of the Minuteman basketball team, demonstrates for all his feelings about the ECAC decision which left UMass as a fish without a pond, a pitiful guppy gasping for breath on the streets of New York.

"My right hand, pointing to the floor, signifies that the committee can go to hell. My left, extended straight out, shows that we are looking to the future none the less. And my mouth, wide open, signifies that they'll never hear the end of it."

One of Garber's Gorillas is shown here taking the chain in a recent contest.

Vermont will play football

By EIBELLO

BURLINGTON — The Board of Trustees of the University of Vermont decided to reinstate football on the athletic program for the 1975 season in a meeting held yesterday.

In order to raise an estimated one million dollars needed to run the program, the University has decided to install an all-inclusive "Green Mountain Fee" which will raise at least 90 per cent of the needed funds.

"Students, faculty, and lavatory staff will nave to pay 800 dollars a semester to the Fee," said University President Ethan Allen XIV. "If they don't they'll be shot in the back, after a fair trial of course."

The football team was disbanded at the end of the 1974 season when the administration made an across - the - board budget cut.

"We plan to hire a new staff headed by ex-Another Damn coach Arid Parchthroatian," said Sports Sinformation Director Quick Zittier.

"Although final arrangements have not been made," continued Zittier," we'll open our season September 8th against UCLA in the Coliseum, and close at home against Alabama, November 23rd.

Malignant UMass massacres Providence, 250 people slain

By FRED GWISS
Anonymous Press Writer

PROVIDENCE — This shell-shocked city mourns its dead today, while commentators from across the country expressed violent outrage at the acts of the UMass basketball team that killed 250 people in an early morning ambush here.

In Washington, President Gerald Ford declared the city a disaster area, opening up millions of dollars in funding for the stricken, largely Republican area.

It was the worst sporting disaster in history of the United States, and the second worst in the history of the world, surpassed only by the 1955 soccer disaster in Rome, Italy, where 3,245 people were trampled to death in an attempt to strangle the referee.

Coach Dave Grabzitt of the Providence College basketball team compared the attack to the bombing of Hiroshima, and in a sweeping statement, denounced UMass as a haven for criminals, degree peddlers, drug addicts, and profligate heterosexuals."

"UMass is the drug capital of the academic world," he ranted, "And don't try to tell me the team wasn't high when they did this."

In Montreal, National Hockey Leage President Clarence Campbell used the incident to point out the violence inherent in the only uniquely American game.

"The officiating in that game is so stringent," Campbell said, "That the players are never allowed to blow off steam. So the tension just keeps building up, until finally it explodes. Compared to basketball, hockey is a roll in the hay."

In a statement delivered at his secret bomb factory in Evanston, Illinois, anti-war activist Jerry Rubin characterized the incident as "The violent super-nova flowering of the bourgeois - capitalist - military - industrial - revisionist athletic, violence-worship Imperialist decadence complex."

HOSPITAL NOTES

"In the repressive American society, children are taught to use violence as a substitute for sex," Rubin said. "The Providence incident only goes to show that you can take the Americans out of the Viet-Nam war, but you can't take the Viet-Nam war out of the Americans." In a dramatic gesture, Rubin then went on to fornicate with a Bazooka.

Reaction at the UMass Campus was swift. In a seldom-precedented move, Chancellor Randolph Bromery said he would make the Providence Incident the first item on the agenda of the next Bored of Trustees meeting. Bromery speculated that a special committee would probably be called to investigate the incident in two weeks, and added that possible recommendations for the suspension of the students involved could come by the end of May. Bromery had no comment on the incident itself, however, "Because I haven't read all the reports yet."

Frank MacKinexcusey, the popular radio personality who moonlights as the school's Athletic Director, said that "The students, faculty, and alumni of the University of Massachusetts can be justly proud of the efforts of the boys on their basketball team, who despite working with only one quarter of the athletic budget (football gets the other nine tenths) performed admirably against a team ranked with the best in the country."

The reports of casualties left MacKinexcusey non-plussed.

"My experience with the team in the past has never diverted me from the opinion that they are all perfect gentlemen, though I would not deny the possibility that violence was a hidden part of their nature," MacKinexcusey said. MacKinexcusey also said the final decision on the status of the players involved was up to the coaches. "Personal discipline is not part of my duties as Athletic Director," he said. "I'm not being paid to baby-sit."

In Algeria, UMass basketball coach Jack Lowman characterized the remarks of Providence coach Dave Grabzitt as "sour grapes." He took the honor of being the first basketball coach ever named to the FBI's team most wanted list in stride, however, saying "Sure it's an honor, but don't give the credit to me. Give it to the boys. They did all the work.

Bruce Corwin

Rainbow treasurer Corwin

Charged with RSO policy violation

By DEBBI DIMASSIMO
Staff Reporter

Bruce Corwin, treasurer of Rainbow Productions, has been charged with violations of the student code of conduct, activities regulations and the Recognized Student Organization (RSO) financial policy act.

Corwin, a Business Administration major from Quincy, has been subpeonaed to appear before the Student Judiciary on Monday, April 7 and Tuesday, April 8.

A complaint signed by Craig Ghidotti, Senate chairperson for governmental affairs, charges Corwin with:

--failing to adhere to the regulations of the RSO financial accounting system.

--knowingly approving financial policy act.

--using purchase orders limited to expenditures of $25 or less for purchases exceeding $25.

--illegally using inter-activity transfers (IATs) to conduct transactions between student organizations.

--failing to deposit all revenues with the RSO office as is required by the financial policy act.

--representing "improperly and not by error the identity of any other member of the community".

--representing an RSO group without the "Specific prior consent of that group".

--"tampering with or falsifying an official document and knowingly submitting false information for incorporation into such records.

If convicted of these charges, Corwin would be liable for separation from the University, said Student Attorney General Cindy Iris, who will act as prosecutor.

Corwin received a copy of the complaint on March 20.

inside

Town election special page 6
Lifestyle page 7
South Vietnam loses another coastal capital page 4
Student denied access to School of Ed records page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545 3500
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1975 AMHERST, MA. VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 39

weather

Sunny most of today, clouding over late in the day, highs in the 40's through the solar day,
with more of the same on Thursday

Wood to chair fiscal summit

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

UMass President Robert C. Wood will chair a summit meeting on fiscal autonomy in Massachusetts' institutions of higher education.

The conference was called by State Senate President Kevin B. Harrington. No definite date or place has been set for the conference, but Wood said last night that it will probably be convened at the end of April.

"At that time," Wood said, "we'll evaluate where we've been and where we're going in all areas of education. I hope it will be a very constructive meeting."

Harrington, in a letter to Wood said, there has been a "growing restlessness" concerning the practice of fiscal autonomy at state universities and suggested a conference be convened in the light of present state economic problems. Harrington also said the conference would familiarize new administrators and legislators with the "original concept and intent of fiscal autonomy."

Harrington said, "guerilla warfare directed towards some elements of public higher education should not be continued by those of us who serve in elective public office, any more than self-serving statements should continue to emanate from the public halls of academe."

A spokesperson for Harrington said "cheap shots at higher education, simply because the public is concerned about the economy" is what Harrington meant by "guerilla warfare." According to the spokesperson the "unusual summit might improve communications between the government and the university."

State Senator John Olver (D-Amherst) said relations between the Legislature and UMass are "very poor". "It appears that nobody is talking to each other," Olver said.

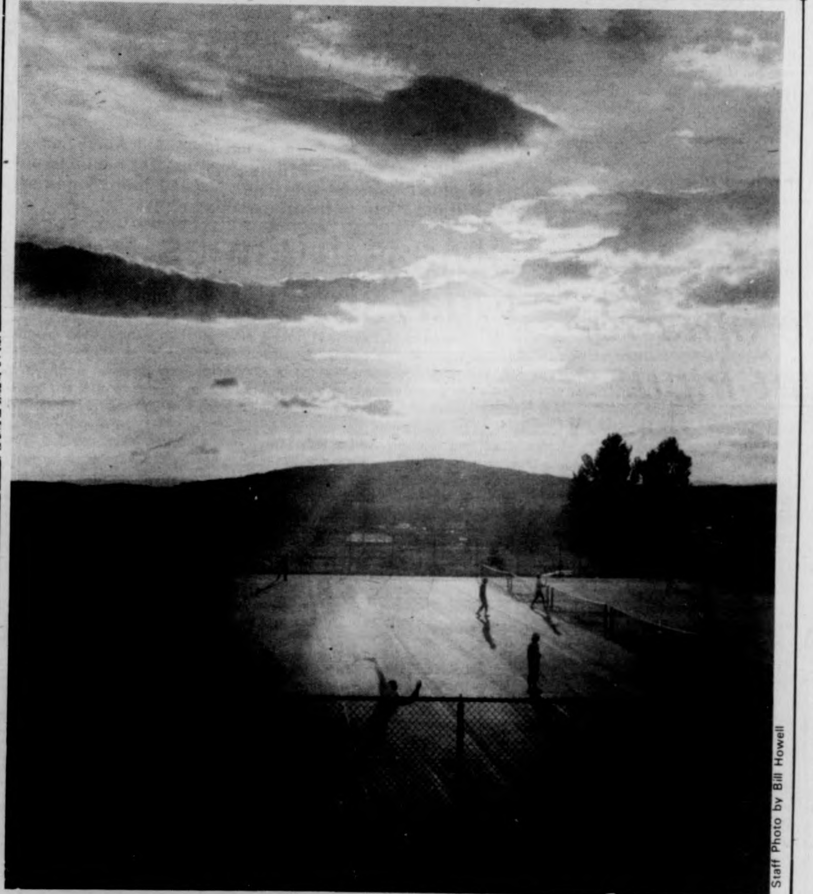
In reply to Harrington's conference suggestion, Wood in a letter said he would be "glad" to coordinate a gathering of presidents, trustees, faculty, students, legislative and executive leaders.

Wood hoped to hold the conference in "three to four weeks" and suggested to concentrate on three issues:

—how appropriate is the organizational structure designed in the Sixties in the context of educational opportunities and problems in the Seventies?

—how efficient and effective are college and university management and administrative arrangements?

—how successful have the colleges been in providing students and taxpayers education of high quality at relatively low costs?



Staff Photo by Bill Howell

Lengthening shadows create an abstract feeling as the advent of warm weather fills the tennis courts.

UMass fiscal liberty upheld

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery and UMass President Robert C. Wood expressed satisfaction yesterday after the State Senate "killed" an amendment that would have removed fiscal autonomy at state universities.

Adamantly supporting fiscal autonomy in a "time of austerity" Bromery said he was happy that the amendment which would have curbed the universities freedom to dole out the funds received from the state government for the first time in 10 years, was not passed.

"What the people don't realize," Bromery said, "is that the positive aspects of fiscal autonomy far outweigh the negative aspects." Bromery said the negative aspects should not be ignored, but "when the legislators see how beneficial it (fiscal autonomy) can be, I'm certain they'll agree that it is necessary at state universities."

UMass President Robert C. Wood, a key figure in persuading the Senate to kill the amendment, and who was "gravely concerned" earlier this week over the amendment, was critical of making the move to restrict autonomy in a deficiency budget proposal.

Wood said he is "extremely pleased at the action of the Senate in removing the amendment on a point of order," and characterized the action as an "extremely important event."

The amendment was "stricken" according to Senate President Kevin B. Harrington's press agent John Abbott, because "although there have been instances of its (fiscal autonomy) abuse, the amendment is not the proper way to get at the issue." Abbott said Harrington hopes the summit conference will improve matters.

The amendment's proposer, Senator James A. Kelly (D-Oxford), Ways and Means

turn to pg. 17

Records may indict Ed School officials

By BILL DENSMORE
Staff Reporter

A record book detailing expenditures in a federal grant program at the School of Education may be missing, but significant information it contains can be obtained elsewhere, the Collegian has learned.

The record book itemizes the spending of the $1.36 million Brooklyn-based Career Opportunities program administered by the School. The program, which trained minorities and the disadvantaged as teachers, was run by Cleo Abraham and Atron A. Gentry. Both have resigned their posts at the School of Ed amidst reports of misuse of funds.

Despite the missing record book, information is available that may criminally indict School of Ed officials for their role in alleged misuse of up to $100,000, possibly in the Brooklyn program.

The record book reportedly contained records of payments made on the grant in greater detail than standard records maintained by the University offices of the treasurer and controller.

Each time the University pays for a service from an individual or firm, a request for payment must go through the Whitmore administration accounting office for verification. The "invoice" or check request and record of payment are all maintained in files kept by Controller William H. Maus.

News that the record book might be lost was first reported a week ago by the Daily Hampshire Gazette, a Northampton newspaper.

UMass credit union opens

By CHERYL WALSH
Staff Reporter

The only student run federal credit union in the Northeast officially opened its doors Monday with 15 members.

The UMass Federal Credit Union is the second federally chartered student credit union in the country. The other is at the University of Florida at Gainsville.

At a press conference Tuesday afternoon SFCU President Peter Birnbaum, said that the student credit union will provide UMass students "with a place to save money as well as obtain low interest loans."

According to Birnbaum a survey taken over the January break indicated that, "84 per cent of the student population has the money to join." He added that students do have a need for credit in the form of loans for educational expenses.

A five dollar minimum deposit plus a fifty cent membership fee entitles a student to receive interest compounded quarterly on his-her savings and the right to take out a loan at one per cent interest per month,with an average 6½ per cent interest yearly on the existing balance. An average pledge of $80.00 per member is expected.

John Fischer, economic co-ordinator of the student organizing project and researcher for the SFCU said that, "the students monies would be as safe as in a bank." The Student Federal Credit Union is insured by the National Credit Union, a branch of FDIC.

Fischer emphasized that a "common bond" was the reason for the creation of a student credit union. "The students can now pool their resources and be the sole profit sharers," he said.

The organization is staffed entirely by bonded students who receive credit for their work. Richard Orr, a freelance auditor, has been hired as a part-time professional manager to the group.

"One side-effect of having students run the project is they gain practical experience," said Fischer.

The election of officers within the Union will be by members, whose shares will totally own and operate the Credit Union.

Once a student joins, he-she is a lifetime member, who can still use the service after graduation from UMass.

Any undergraduate as well as those employed full-time by an RSO group qualify for membership.

"The Student Credit Union will start the sale of Food Stamps in April," according to Birnbaum. He also predicted the beginning of a checking account service within a year.

The UMass Student Federal Credit Union is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and is located in 166 Campus Center.

Debaters place two in nationals

By DAVE KOWAL
Staff Reporter

Two members of the UMass debate team have qualified for the National Debate Tournament to be held this month.

John Adams and John Cross qualified for the tournament by placing fifth in last week's district tournament.

Prof. Ronald J. Matlon, director of the debate union, said, "Qualifying for the national tournament is analogous to qualifying for the NCAA, or a major bowl game.

"Out of the 1200 schools in the country competing to qualify for the tournament, only about 60 schools actually make it."

Matlon said in the 25 years which UMass has tried to get into the tournament, the team has qualified three times. "Interestingly enough," Matlon said, "the team has qualified for the past three years."

The UMass became one of five schools from New England and New York to qualify for the nationals by compiling a 9-7 record in last week's district tournament.

The district tournament, which was held at UMass, was attended by about 25 schools according to Jill Peltin, president of the debate union.

Cross said, "I've been preparing about five hours per day for the debate team since this year's debate resolution came out in July."

The national tournament will be held at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, California.

The debate team was also successful at the Novice National Debate Tournament this past weekend at North Western University in Chicago. Nick Burnett and Bill Dale compiled a 6-2 record, leading UMass to an eighth place finish among 84 schools, Peltin said.

"To raise money for the national tournament," Peltin said, the debate union will be sponsoring a raffle.

"Now that we have shown that we have the potential," she added. It is more important than ever that we get the money we need, and have a successful raffle."

Grad Senate opts for more student input

By AL COLARUSSO
Staff Reporter

A proposal designed to attract more student input into the Graduate Student Senate (GSS) was passed unanimously Monday night.

The motion, proposed by Howard Levine, Senator from Marine Science, calls for the distribution of both academic credit and money to graduate students for GSS related activities.

Levine said the GSS is having problems finding graduate students willing to fill the time consuming administrative posts and hopes the proposal will alleviate the problem.

The following salaries were proposed for GSS administrators during fiscal year 1976:

President, up to $4,000; Vice-President, up to $2,400; Treasurer, up to $2,400; Executive Secretary, up to $2,400 and Administrative Coordinator, up to $6,500.

In other business, the GSS voted to support the boycott of Gallo wines proposed by Cesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers.

The Senate resolved to urge all student groups to boycott stores which sell Gallo wines and further resolved to notify the owners and management of Four Seasons Package Store in Hadley and the Big Y in Northampton, who continue to sell Gallo wines, or their decision.

Finally, survey forms were given to senators to redistribute to their constituency. The survey asks for student input needed to fulfill University President Robert C. Wood's request for a White Paper, a document outlining Graduate Student needs.

The report must justify graduate education at UMass and suggest needs and priorities for changing the present system.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	BJ Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	D.M. Eibel
Photo	Pete Turner, Mark Biletch Annie Liebowitz and the Canon F-1
Ad Layout	Sue Belliveau
Sports	Chas O'Connor
Night Staff	Nancy Delaney, Cut E. Sark, Jim Beam

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

Swingshifters of '71

REUNITE

for party info call Janice 256-6457 or Steve 253-5260 before Apr. 10

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

UMass bandleader Joe Duchi found this April Fool in his office yesterday morning. Members of the band put 1300 paper cups on the floor, stapled them together, and filled them with colored water.

UMass trustees meet today in CC 1009

The University trustees will hold their regular monthly public meeting today at 2 p.m. in Campus Center room 1009.

Among agenda items will be a discussion and possible approval of tenure for several faculty on the three UMass campuses as well as a status report on ongoing educational, administrative and criminal probes of the School of Education.

The Board, composed of Bay State citizens appointed by the Governor, is the top policy making body for the University. The President and administrative officers serve as its pleasure. Although impromptu addresses to the Board are traditionally not allowed, a student representative is scheduled to speak. The meeting is open to the public.

Summer Language Programmes offered in Toronto:

English Language courses offered in Toronto at the Scarborough College Summer Language Institute:

French, Spanish and German language courses
Ancient Greek and drama courses offered in Saint-Pierre et Miquelon:

French language courses offered in Mexico City:

Spanish language and civilization courses

enquiries:
University of Toronto
School of Continuing Studies
119 St. George Street, Toronto M5S 1A9
(416) 928-2400

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents

GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S PIRATES of PENZANCE

APRIL 3, 4, 5 at 8pm APRIL 6 at 3:30 pm
BOWKER AUD, Stockbridge Hall, U.M.
$2.00 students & under 18 $2.50 others
Tickets go on sale March 17 at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter

545-0202
reservations and information

Johnson denies writer access to Ed records

By FRED GOSIEWSKI
Staff Reporter

UMass Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson has denied a writer access to records concerning contracts that two departments in the School of Education here have with the Agency for International Development (AID).

Johnson, in a letter to Patricia Rector, a UMass political science graduate student, refused to release the documents, claiming that they were "investigatory materials" under Massachusetts law, and therefore are exempt from disclosure.

Rector requested the material that included contracts with the Center for International Education (CIE) and the Center for Nonformal Education have with AID, an agency of the State Department, according to Rectur the documents should be available under the Freedom of Information Act and under Massachusetts law.

The two organizations in the School of Ed have been contacting ministers of education in foreign countries, under the auspicies of AID. Rector said she objects to the possibility that the university may be used by AID as a research body.

Rector claimed that AID was using universities as a "non-ideological tool" to gather information that will be used to gain political knowledge about the foreign countries.

She said that AID, which works primarily in udderdeveloped countries, has a "low credibility" in the U.S. Senate.

"I would recommend that it is not a reputable contracting firm," she said.

Johnson claimed that since the records of the School of Ed have been subpoenaed by a federal grand jury in Boston, he does not have custody over them.

William Densmore, a UMass student, has initiated legal action to obtain the records of the School of Ed that are directly related to the financial investigations at the school. The case is pending in court.

Rector suggested that she may work together with Densmore, since they both are seeking documents from the School of Ed, and both have been denied the records.

Rector says only administration officials can review the contracts and that other members of the university community cannot view them.

She also objects to the investigation of the organizations of the School of Ed by the FBI, claiming that "I don't trust the FBI to do a thorough job on an agency that is financed 80 per cent by AID."

Rector claims that although the organizations in the School of Ed claim that there are non-ideological, many of the members of them dopt the political outlook of AID, and that this is reflected in the recruiting of persons to work in the programs.

Those who work in them "become sort of seduced into lucrative research grants," according to Rector.

Rector said that she "certainly will appeal" Johnson's decision and that she will be seeking the necessary legal advice.

Many UMies vacationed in Florida last week, and got their tans together; Collegian staffer Mark Biletch caught these pink flamingoes having a "divine" time near Cocoa Beach.

SOC to submit Enabling Policy to Student Senate tonight

By DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporter

The Student Organizing Committee (SOC) voted last night to send the Student Union Enabling Policy to the Student Senate for their consideration tonight.

The vote was described by Sue Rivest, SOC Acting Chairman, as a "favorable vote by a student senate committee to send the matter to the full Senate."

The SOC is a twenty member committee made up of representatives from each area government, two representatives from campus media, three from RSO, five appointed by the Speaker of the Student Senate and designees of the President, Speaker and Treasurer. It's purpose is to oversee the functions of the Student Organizing Project.

"The Enabling Policy", said Rivest, "sets up procedures by which students can organize a union. It does not form a union."

According to the Enabling Policy a petition must be signed by students indicating that at least 30 per cent desire an election to decide whether they want collective bargaining.

According to Nesta King, staff member of the Student Organizing Project, the Project is canvasing door to door and soliciting endorsements from various student groups to support the Policy.

The Policy provides for an "exclusive representative", a student organization, elected by a majority of students who choose to vote, which would be certified as an exclusive representative of the students.

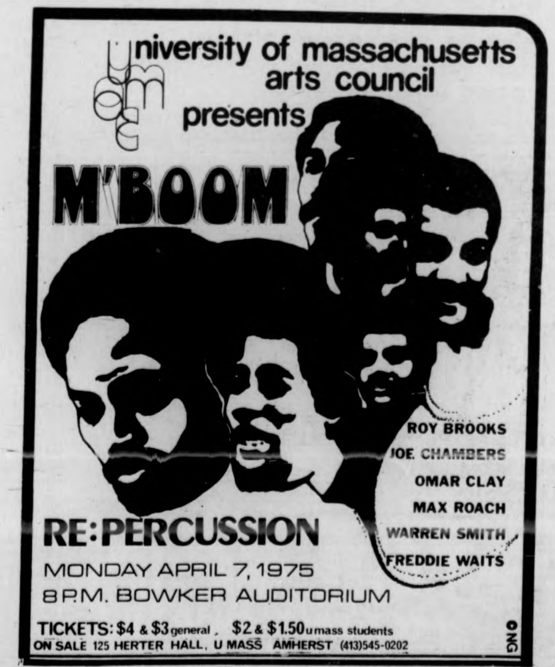
It also provides for a Board of Student Relations, which shall decide all questions which arise under the policy.

The Board would be made up of "the Chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs of the Board of Trustees, the Vice-President for University Policy, the student trustees from UMass-Amherst and UMass-Boston and an "impartial" appointee of the Governor of Massachusetts, "knowledgeable in student-university relations."

The union would be funded by a mandatory fee to the Union paid by all students to cover the cost of collective bargaining expenses in addition to voluntary union dues.

The Policy will go to the Board of Trustees Student Affairs Committee April 15 and to the full Board May 7, said King.

According to one SOC member, the benefits of this Policy are that all negotiated decisions would be legal and binding.



university of massachusetts arts council presents

M'BOOM

ROY BROOKS
JOE CHAMBERS
OMAR CLAY
MAX ROACH
WARREN SMITH
FREDDIE WAITS

RE:PERCUSSION

MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

TICKETS: $4 & $3 general, $2 & $1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

ONG

Budget Coalition plans rally against cuts

By DAVE KOWAL
Staff Reporter

Anticipating budget cuts from the State Legislature, a group of concerned students are preparing a campus-wide rally in support of keeping the University's proposed budget from getting axed.

The Coalition for a People's Budget (CPB) yesterday outlined the aspects of a rally against proposed University budget cutbacks to be held April 15 on campus.

Jim Leas, a member of the CPB, said, "The idea of a rally is that significant, large scale participation creates great pressure. If there seems to be a sizable opposition to budget cuts, the legislators will have to think twice about it."

Sherry Flashman, member of the CPB steering committee, said the rally will be informative and alert students to the possible budget cuts to plan future action at the state level.

Flashman said, "The rally will consist of a series of workshops and speakers with some entertainment. Workshops will focus on the nature of budget cuts, as well as their consequences on the quality of the University experience, for student, staff, and faculty.

Leas said the CPB wants to involve as large a section of the University as possible for the purpose of unity, and so that all points of view can be expressed.

Flashman said, "A major concern of the coalition is that the proposed budget cuts are symbolic of a declining support for public higher education in Massachusetts.

"The people most effected by these cuts," she added, "would be nontraditional, middle and low income students."

A statement released by the CPB said the most shattering consequence of University cutbacks is the opposition which would result between the people and programs with the least power in the institution.

The statement said, "Assuming that the LIFO ('last in, first out') effect operates, those groups and individuals recently assisted by affirmative action policy are likely to lose even the marginal gains they have made."

The CPB requests the University to develop a clearly defined and publicly stated system of educational priorities based on people's needs.

The CPB said. "As things stand currently, one is given the impression that no one knows what the priorities are, who makes decisions, or when they will be made. This implies either power operating in a vacuum or covert power and hidden priorities."

Fishman said it is important for everyone who will be affected to act quickly, and not wait for long term consequences.

The next CPB meeting will be April 8 in the Campus Center.

Coca-Cola
National REPORT TO THE COMMISSIONER

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

Continuing our tour of the U.S., we view a slightly different environment than flamingo country - this photo taken in the "Big Apple" during NIT weekend.

North Vietnamese capture provincial capital

Nha Trang loss third in 24 hr. battle

SAIGON [UPI] — Tank-led North Vietnamese troops smashed into the coastal headquarters city of Nha Trang yesterday, forcing South Vietnamese defenders to abandon the key provincial capital that was once the home of the U.S. Green Berets.

Nha Trang, 188 miles northeast of Saigon, was the third provincial capital to be lost in 24 hours by the South Vietnamese in the face of a Communist blitzkrieg down the central coast through crumbling defenses toward an increasingly jittery Saigon.

The three abandoned capitals were Qui Nhon, Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang on the coast ranging up to 250 miles northeast of Saigon. The Communists now control 15 provinces — roughly about two-thirds of South Vietnamese territory.

Pressure for the removal of President Nguyen Van Thieu from office mounted Tuesday. Sen. Vu Van Mau, former foreign minister and spokesman of a radical Buddhist movement, demanded his immediate resignation.

Coup rumors swept the capital as the military situation deteriorated. Hundreds of foreign residents of Saigon swamped immigration offices trying to obtain exit visas.

Thieu abruptly canceled a scheduled meeting with visiting U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick G. Weyand on the eve of his departure for the United States to report to President Ford. Weyand postponed his departure and rescheduled a working session for Wednesday with Thieu, Gen. Cao Van Vien of the Vietnamese joint general staff and U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin.

Military sources said North Vietnamese tanks and troops had battered their way into Nha Trang — and all authority had broken down in the city, which formerly was headquarters of the U.S. Green Beret Special Forces in Vietnam.

Communist infiltrators broke open the Nha Trang jail and freed hundreds of prisoners. Rioting, looting and gunbattles were reported in the city, and Communist forces were reported in control of sizeable sections of the town.

Nearly 200 American consulate officials, teachers and missionaries were evacuated from Nha Trang, capital of Khannh Hoa province, as the city erupted into the now familiar chaos of rioting and looting.

Helicopters lifted the Americans to Nha Trang airbase which was sealed off by a ring of Vietnamese troops and still being held at nightfall.

Fist fights broke out as people scrambled for evacuation planes. Eyewitnesses said some parents.

Cambodian strongholds fall; Lon Nol leaves

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — A tearful President Lon Nol left embattled Cambodia for exile yesterday. Rebel troops celebrated his departure by tightening their noose around Phnom Penh and partially overrunning one of the governor's last provincial strongholds.

Lon Nol, 62, who has led the Cambodian government for five years since the overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, flew to Indonesia via Thailand. Two insurgent rockets landed near the President's plane as he climbed the boarding ramp at Pochentong airport.

The president, accompanied by Prime Minister Long Boret and a party of 28 officials, arrived late yesterday in Jakarta, Indonesia, and then flew on to Bali on the first leg of what was described as an "unofficial" tour destined to take him to the United States.

Senior government sources said it was clear the chief of state has no intention of returning.

Shortly after Lon Nol's departure, official sources disclosed that the Mekong River town of Neak Luong, jammed with 60,000 refugees and soldiers, had been partially overrun and was in danger of falling.

"They're in control of a good part of the town; they may have half of it," the sources said. "It looks like it is going to fall."

The fall of Neak Luong, besieged for over two months, would free thousands of rebels to join in the battle for Phnom Penh.

The sources also said government forces retreated south and northwest of Phnom Penh. Rebel rockets fell on both Pochentong airport, where the American airlift continued, and in the city near the U.S. Embassy.

Lon Nol made a tearful departure. Generals and prominent politicians gathered in the president's Chamcar Mon palace to bid farewell. Witnesses at the departure ceremony said the president left reluctantly, and as he inspected a color guard both he and his wife wept.

Then Lon Nol and his party boarded four helicopters for the quick flight to Pochentong airport where U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean was the sole diplomatic representative to see the president off. After a quick handshake at planeside, Lon Nol climbed aboard and left the country.

Clemency applications may hit 25,000

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Officials of the three phases of President Ford's "earned re-entry" program yesterday estimated applications for the conditional clemency might reach the 25,000 mark.

But they said precise figures, following a final flurry of applications before they were cut off by the Monday midnight deadline, would not be available until the end of the week.

President Ford announced the program Sept. 16. Under terms of the twice-extended plan, Vietnam-era draft resisters and evaders and military personnel with desertion or absence-related charges could receive a presidential pardon and clemency by performing up to two years of alternate service.

"We had about 750 telephone calls Monday," said Joann Vinson, speaking for the Presidential Clemency Board. "We were taking calls right up to midnight."

Poor Richards

super music from the discotheque between 8 and 1 except on monday

happy hour 8-9 every night except monday

discotheque

belchertown rd.
route 9

turn east off memorial drive - Chicopee - just one-half mile between 8-10 p.m. on 4-2 and 4-3 this ad may be exchanged at door for coupon worth 1 free drink. one per customer please.

Report and Thesis Covers

at

A. J. Hastings

Newsdealer and Stationer

45 S. Pleasant St.
Amherst

GRAND OPENING

Thursday, April 3, 5 p.m. — 8 p.m.

Ye BUMSTEER

. . . a new restaurant in the Bluewall for TOC members and their guests.

featuring:

STEAK and accompaniments all for $1.99

bring this ad for 10% discount and help us celebrate our new addition.

(offer good until 4/15/75)

MUST READING ...
For Young & Old

$6.95

AMERICA THE LAND OF MY DREAMS

The Odyssey of a Greek Immigrant

By GEORGE F. STEFFANIDES

NOW AVAILABLE
AT YOUR FAVORITE
BOOKSTORE

Spring Madness Sale

APRIL 9, 10

from 10AM to 4PM
20% OFF ALL SCHOOL SHIRTS
(with student i.d.)

from 4:30PM to 11PM
20% OFF MARKED PRICE ON ALL SHIRTS

from MIDNIGHT to 3AM
BUY TWO SHIRTS, GET ONE FREE

THE COVER UP

amherst carriage shops
233 n.pleasant st.

THE T-SHIRT SHOP

Risks prevalent in contraceptives

WASHINGTON [AP] — There's still only one method of birth control that is completely safe and effective: sexual abstinence.

For those who reject that alternative and turn to modern contraceptives — the pill, the IUD, the condom, etc. — there are some risks involved. The condom, for example, presents no danger of medical side-effects, but as protection against pregnancy it's unreliable. The pill is a highly reliable pregnancy preventer, but users run a tiny chance of medical complications.

Americans have been bombarded in recent years with stories about the drawbacks and dangers of various contraceptive techniques, especially the pill and the IUD. There have been congressional hearings on contraception, federal recalls and bans of contraceptive products and contraceptive research studies of limited scope. The stories have left some people wondering about the effectiveness and safety of modern contraceptives.

"The information that's available isn't very good, even to physicians," says Dr. Robert G. Castadot, an associate director of the nonprofit Population Council, in talking about gauging the relative safety and effectiveness of contraceptives.

In the early 1960s, oral contraceptives and improved intrauterine devices burst upon the scene almost simultaneously. The pill was the first drug approved by the government and prescribed en masse for a nondisease. The IUD didn't even have to get approval. Both were heavily promoted and widely accepted as an easy, safe and effective means of family planning.

There are an estimated 10 million American women taking oral contraceptive pills 20 to 28 days a month; three million to four million wearing IUDs; one million men and women who are surgically sterilized every year and countless others relying on condoms, diaphragms and spermicidal creams, foams and jellies.

The advice from experts on which contraceptive to use varies. Some have become devotees of a particular method or device. There is no broad consensus, though virtually all types of contraceptives are recommended relatively freely by most doctors.

An analysis of medical literature and interviews with family planning specialists indicates that virtually all chemical, mechanical and surgical methods of family planning are safer than the hazards of pregnancy.

The pill and the IUD carry a risk of rare, serious, even fatal adverse effects not common to other contraceptive methods, but, on a statistical basis, they come out on top when the effectiveness in preventing pregnancy is considered.

Out of every 100,000 live births in the United States last year, according to the National Institute of Health, 15 women died from complications arising during pregnancy, childbirth or the immediate recovery period afterward.

Therefore, the safety of any contraceptive should be measured against the risk of pregnancy while using it, the experts say.

news summary

Death penalty passes

BOSTON [UPI] — The Massachusetts House, by more than a 2-1 margin, yesterday voted to reinstate the death penalty for first degree murder.

The roll call vote of 155-70, came after 90 minutes of debate. House Speaker David M. Bartley, D-Holyoke, voted in favor of the bill. The Republican leadership voted against the measure.

The bill calls for a mandatory death penalty for nine categories of first degree murder. They include: killing a police officer or fireman, murder committed during kidnaping, persons committed of second offenses, murder by a hired killer, murder committed during rape, death resulting from a hijacking, a murder committed during breaking and entering, murder during armed robbery and a murder committed with extreme atrocity or cruelty.

Daley steamrolls

CHICAGO [UPI] — Richard J. Daley, the Democratic kingmaker called "the last of the big city bosses," steamrollered to a victory of expected landslide proportions last night for an unprecedented sixth term as mayor of Chicago.

Daley, 72, completely overwhelmed John J. Hoellen, 60, the last Republican alderman in Chicago and a lame duck who at one time had tried to get out of the race.

Israel pushed back

By United Press International

Lebanese artillery beat back an Israeli patrol crossing the border and traded fire with Israeli guns for an hour yesterday in the second artillery duel in two days, a Lebanese military communique said.

Israeli military sources said Israeli and Lebanese troops exchanged fire briefly after Israeli workers repairing the border security fence were fired on from the Lebanese side. No casualties were reported. The sources said the incident was similar to one that took place Monday.

48 PRAKTIKLY GREEN WORNE
NORTHAMPTON
velvet jackets
western shirts
open: MON-SAT 10-5:30
functional & fashionable used clothing at people's prices

The Four Leaf Window

presents

"MAD ANGEL"

THURS.-SUN.

Wrangler thinks Americans should get what they pay for.

We now carry Wrangler

Blue Jeans flair leg & straight western denim

Shirts & Jackets

Every time you spend a dollar for clothes, you should get a dollar's worth of fashion, fit, quality and value. What's more, everything you buy should be guaranteed. That's your right. And that's our responsibility.

the jeans store

WEAR-HOUSE

Introductory Offer: 10% OFF WITH THIS AD!

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.

AFROTC

An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.

- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

20% SAVINGS ON all footwear

ANNIVERSARY

SALE

FOOT FASHIONS
IN THE MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

the SHOE-BIN

Election Forum

Amherst town elections next Tuesday

Town of Amherst precinct districts circled numbers are precinct districts.

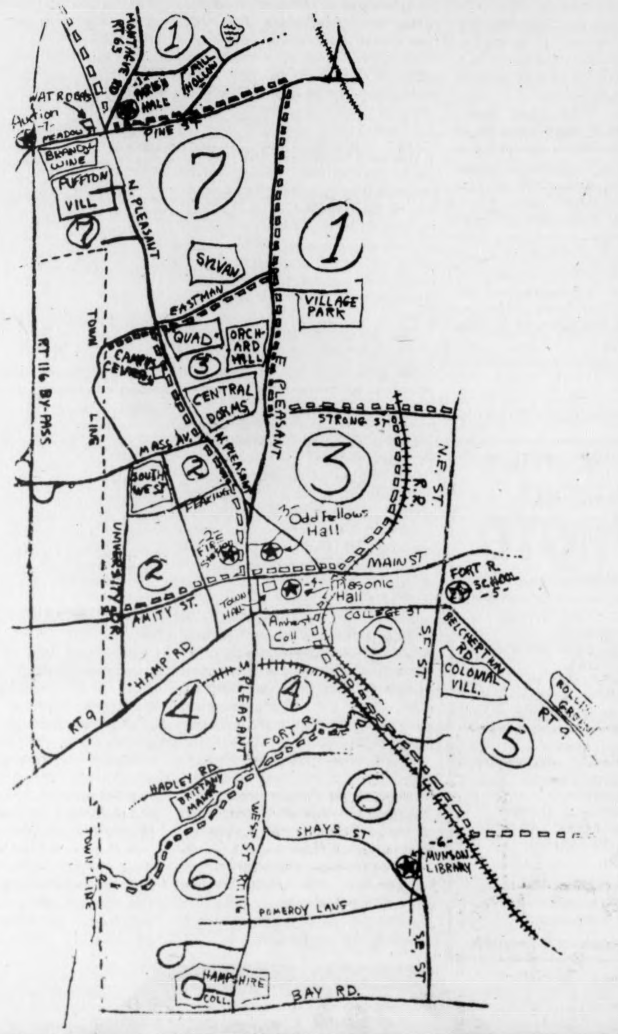
See text at right for ballot casting locations.



Next Tuesday about 4,000 students will be casting their ballots in the Amherst town election. Up for grabs will be two seats on the Board of Selectmen and positions for the Town Meeting members.

The Collegian will be running a daily forum for interested candidates to present their opinions on issues facing the town through election day.

In the town of Amherst, voting is organized under seven precincts decided on the basis of registered voters in a given area. The polling places and their locations are as follows

Precinct 1 - North Amherst Parish Hall, Across from Watrobas.

Precinct 2 - Fire Station [Belchertown Road and South Amherst buses].

Precinct 3 - Odd Fellows Hall, Kellog Street beside the Post Office. Take South Amherst and Belchertown Rd.

Precinct 4 - Masonic Hall, Main Street, Main Street across from All Star Dairy.

Precinct 5 - Fort River School, At South East and College Street.

Precinct 6 - Munson Memorial Library, South Amherst Center

Precinct 7 - Amherst Auction Galleries, Meadow Street and Rt. 1,16 [Sunderland and North Amherst buses.

Students will be taking an active role in this year's election in light of the issues which directly concern the University in relation to the community.

There are forty-eight students on the slate this year for Town Meeting member, the body which meets annually to vote on policies and warrants for the town.

Issues concerning students this year include rent control due to the end of mandatory dorm residency, a ceiling on University expansion, and the safety of nuclear power plants.

Tomorrow the Collegian will report on the Progressive Candidate Pool, a coalition of candidates formed to protect the rights of students, tenants and poor people.

VOTE

ATTENTION Collegian staff —

HERE YE, here ye! You are hereby summonsed and called to make an accounting before you fellows at twilight one day hence.

See editorial pages for details.

FitzWilly's

presents:

Wine & Cheese &

Food & Booze &

well JUST about

Everything!

23 Main St., Northampton

ANNIVERSARY
SALE
S
A
L
E
FOOT FASHIONS
IN THE MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
♀ ♂ the SHOE BIN
AMHERST
20%
SAVINGS
ON all footwear

UMass - A spotlight on its early years as MAC

By SUSAN BLETHEN
Staff Reporter

Does the place in this picture look familiar?

If not, then set your time machine down close to where the Infirmary stands, and climbing in, push the lever back 107 years, and you will find yourself looking out over this peaceful scene - UMass, 1868.

The school, founded in 1862 by a land grant, was first known as Massachusetts Agricultural College, or M.A.C. for short. At the time this picture was taken the faculty numbered only four.

South College, seen at far left, was used as a dormitory to house about 46 students. It also contained 2 "recitation" rooms, a reading room and library, and two large rooms for "specimens illustrating the natural history and geology of Massachusetts." This building burned to the ground in 1885 and was replaced by the present structure the following year.

North College, referred to as the "new" dormitory, was retained until 1957, when it was torn down.

The Chemistry Lab, designed for use in carryine out experiments in practical chemistry, served as a gymnasium in 1868, as it wasn't yet equipped with scientific apparatus.

The President's office was located in the Botanic Museum, which also housed a lecture hall and exhibition rooms.

The Durfee Plant Houses, foreground, were described as an "elegant group of glass buildings for propagating plant species."

To the far right stands the Old Hash House, where a week's meals could be purchased for $3.00.

If the campus was small, the expenses to the students were also small. Tuition, as listed in the Annual Report of the college, was $36.00 per year. Room rent was $15.00, Board, $115.00, Fuel and Washing, $25.00, and Incidental Expenses were estimated at $3.00 for the three semesters of the school year.

Closeup: Undergrad heads of residence run three SW dorms

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

Campus-wide, students may believe they are not allowed enough responsibility, but in Southwest six students have a tremendous amount of responsibility. They are the heads of residence of three Southwest dorms - Cance House, John Adams and Moore House.

No other residential area on campus has undergraduate heads of residence. Heads of residence in Cance are Dave Bloom and Greg Fanceschi, John O'Leary and Mark Dunn in John Adams and in Moore, Mark Cashman and Phil Salinger.

In a Collegian interview, all six heads of residence for the most part agreed that there should be more undergrad heads of residence at the university, "as long as students realize that the job is more difficult than they think it is," as Cashman said.

All six liked their jobs but all concurred that the "job is very time-consuming." In Moore House, where heads of residence are elected every year, Cashman has decided not to run for re-election because "the field of candidates running for election is good. I also want to graduate," Cashman added. Cashman believes his primary role in the university is to be a student and his secondary role is to be a head of residence. "It doesn't work out that way, though," Cashman said. "I like the job very much but sometimes when I'm at a heads of residence meeting I feel I shouldn't be there and that I should be studying."

Salinger, sharing head of residence duties with Cashman is "not sure" whether he'll run for re-election. Bloom is graduating, and the remaining heads would like to continue their duties.

When the undergraduate heads of residence were asked whether floor counselors should be eliminated in an effort to cut back on university spending, all six were opposed to the idea.

"Counselors are the backbone of the dorm set-up, "Bloom said, "and if they are eliminated a lot of things in the dorm will fall apart." Dunn said counselors are "very much needed." The real worth of the counselors would be realized by the students if they were eliminated, according to Cashman.

The primary role of an undergraduate head of residence was seen similarly by most heads. Dunn saw his role in this way: "To see that the dorm is responsive to the wants of the students." According to Bloom, heads of residence "should find ways to meet these wants."

Salinger said the primary role of an undergraduate head of residence "is the same as the primary role of any other head of residence. To perform administrative, counseling and physical maintenance duties and to make sure every thing is running smoothly."

All six believe there are definite advantages to student-run dormitories. "There is less alienation from students than I think other heads of residence experience," Salinger said Bloom believes the rapport between students and heads of residence is good in student-run dorms because "it's easier for a student to go up to another student about a problem than it is for him to go up to a non-student."

Keeping an eye over dorm programs but not necessarily controlling them was the most accepted sentiment among the student heads. "The whole idea of this set-up is for the students to run the activities in the dorm," Dunn said.

Franceschi said, "students should run the programs but they should be coordinated through us (referring to heads of residence)."

"The dorm government controls most of the programs in John Adams," O'Leary said, "so in our case the students completely run the programs."

Regarding their effectiveness, Franceschi said, "We're doing just as good a job as the other heads of residence so there shouldn't be any differentiation between the two."

COME ALONG ON A
PETER PAN
APRIL TOUR
RIGHT FROM THE COLLEGES

- University of Massachusetts
- Amherst College
- Smith College (Northampton)
- Mt. Holyoke College (So. Hadley)

Sign up soon and reserve your place on one or more of these attractive tours:

APRIL 12 (Saturday) – 1-DAY NEW YORK CITY SHOW/SHOPPING

This tour takes you to the heart of Midtown New York at Easter season, with about 10 hours to shop, see a matinee, or sightsee. The low price includes a delicious smorgasbord luncheon at the famed Stockholm Restaurant.

Per Person, Just $17.75

APRIL 19-20 (Sat.-Sun.) – 2-DAY WEEKEND IN MONTREAL

Come with us on Patriots' Day Weekend for a wonderful excursion to glittering, cosmopolitan Montreal. Hotel accommodations, included in the bargain fare, are at the LaSalle Hotel in the heart of downtown activities. Plenty of time to enjoy exciting day and evening activities.

Per Person, Just $35.00

APRIL 26 (SATURDAY) – 1-DAY EXCURSION TO EXPO VINO '75

You'll want to attend this unusual, spectacular wine, cheese, and gourmet food show at Commonwealth Armory, Boston. There will be four hours to really enjoy the show, and the low tour price includes admission and ten sampling tickets.

Per Person, Just $10.75

Why not pick up our special brochure today giving further details?

Peter Pan Bus Lines

Campus Ctr. Hotel — UMass.
Tel. 545-2006

Peter Pan — Amherst Center
Tel. 256-0431

Peter Pan — Northampton
Tel. 586-1030

Cannon's — South Hadley
Tel. 533-7115

Fun City Fast!

Catch A Ride With Continental Trailways.

A Continental Trailways Deluxe Motorcoach leaves Springfield for New York City every hour from 6:15 A.M. to 7:15 P.M. daily.

Peter Pan Bus Lines provide direct connecting service from:

■Amherst–leaving at 5:00 A.M. then hourly from 7:00 A.M. on through 6:00 P.M.

■South Hadley–leaving at 7:20 A.M., 9:30 A.M., 12:30 P.M., 2:30 P.M. and 4:15 P.M. . . . (7:20 A.M. by advance reservation–no reservation needed for other departures).

■Northampton–leaving at 5:20 A.M., then hourly from 7:20 A.M. on through 6:20 P.M.

Average running time to New York (George Washington Bridge Terminal) is just 3 hours . . . 30 minutes additional to midtown New York.

Minor variations in schedule on Sun. consult your local terminal.

Ride with Peter Pan and Continental Trailways. You'll meet interesting people like yourself, have time to read, relax and contemplate.

Ticket Offices:

Amherst
Peter Pan Bus Lines
79 South Pleasant St.
256-0431

Northampton
Peter Pan World Travel
Old South St.
586-1030

South Hadley
Peter Pan Bus Lines
25 College St.
533-7115

campus carousel

By TONY GRANITE

THE MEEK STREAK; SAPS ARE RUNNING, again. That's the word from at least three campuses, according to a round-up piece in a recent New Hampshire newspaper.

Streaking incidents were reported in February at Michigan State, Southern Illinois and UGeorgia, which still claims a national record for a 1,500-student streak a year ago.

At Purdue, about 30 students made a nude run around their dorm, whic established the tradition "at least five years ago."

In New England, the only sap running is maple syrup.

- - - -

DOG BAN on the USoFla campus is going to be enforced, after a series of incidents, this term, the Oracle says.

A seeing-eye dog (the only ones allowed on campus) that was attacked by another dog started Campus Security to their duty, according to a page three piece.

It's dog eat dog, even on the campuses.

- - - -

MATURE STUDENTS PLAN at Franklin (Ind.) College permits students from 35 to 49 years of age to enroll at only 40 per cent the cost of tuition. Those from 50 to 64 years of age pay 20 per cent. The 65 and over citizens take college courses free of charge.

Older is cheaper, anyway.

- - - -

ADD TRICKY TERMS...The Commentator of UMinn Tech carries an interview with the Directory of Minority Programs who works with American Indian students. She is quoted as helping them through the "white tape" of financial aid applications.

While they see red, no doubt.

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New RECORD SHOP
197 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-5394

Finast SUPERMARKETS

Finast Leads the Way Again ... UP TO 15% Reduction On Most Nabisco Items
Nabisco Vanilla 12 oz pkg NillaWafers 59¢
Nabisco 16 oz pkg Fig Newtons 79¢
Nabisco 13½ oz pkg Nutter Butter 79¢
Large White EGGS Finast 49¢ DOZ With Coupon Below

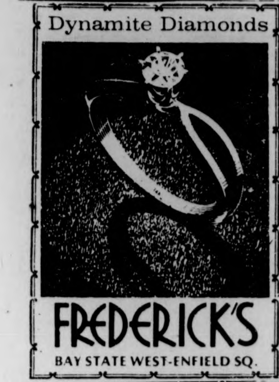
Frozen Food Values The Finast Way!
Libbys Frozen Vegetables Broccoli Spinach or Brussel Sprouts 5 10 oz pkgs $1
Finast Boil n' Bag Meat Entrees Beef, Turkey Meat Loaf Veal Parmesan, Salisbury Steak Chicken Ala King 4 5 oz pkgs $1
Dinner Fries Oreida 24 oz pkg 59¢
Orange Juice Finast 4 6 oz cans 89¢
Welch's Donuts Glazed or Grape 9 oz pkg 69¢
Lantic Granulated Cane SUGAR 5 lb. bag $1.79

Underblade Beef Chuck Roast Bone In Tender Flavorful Pot Roast Formerly Called California Roast 78¢ lb
Naturally aged for tenderness and flavor.
Boneless Beef Shoulder Roast or Steak London Broil 1.18 lb
Naturally aged for tenderness and flavor.
Ground Chuck Any Size Package Fresh 88¢ lb
Steak Sale Boneless Beef Top Chuck Beef Chuck Cubed or Underblade 1.38 lb
Beef Rib Steaks Extra Trim Large End 6 to 8 Ribs Bone In 1.28 lb
Sirloin Steak Beef Loin Bone In 1.49 lb
Porterhouse or T-Bone Steaks Tail-less 1.79 lb 1.69 lb
Top Chuck Steak Beef Bone In lb 1.08
Beef Chuck Short Ribs lb 1.08
Beef Chuck for Stew lb 1.08
Italian Sausage Primo Hot or Sweet lb 1.09
Sliced Bacon Finast or Colonial lb 1.19
Pork Shoulder Colonial Master lb 75¢
Mr. Deli Favorites
BoiledHam Domestic Freshly Sliced To Order 1.79 lb
Beef Extra Trim Rib Roasts Large End 6 to 8 Ribs 1.18 lb
Small End 9 to 12 Ribs 1.38 lb
Roast Beef USDA Choice half lb 1.39
Bologna or Liverwurst Mr. Deli lb 1.19
Jarlsberg Cheese lb 1.79
Genoa Salami A/C half lb 99¢
Potato Salad lb 45¢
Fresh Chicken Parts!
Chicken Legs lb 79¢
Chicken Breasts lb 89¢
Boneless Breasts lb 1.59
Tender, Young Veal
Shoulder Chops lb 1.49
Rib Veal Chops lb 1.79
Loin Veal Chops lb 1.99
Veal Cutlets Sliced Thin From Leg lb 2.59
Favorites from the Seven Seas!
Haddock Fillet Frozen Skinless 99¢ lb
Halibut Steak Center Cut Frozen lb 1.59
California Squid lb 39¢

More Proof it Pays to Shop the Finast Way!
Proof It Pays to Shop for Quality Produce the Finast Way!
FIRST IN THE FRESH
Florida Oranges 5 lb bag 79¢
Mushrooms Fresh 1 lb pkg 79¢
Tangelos California Mineolas 10 for 69¢
Chicory or Escarole Salad Twins 29¢ lb
Broccoli California bch 49¢
Radishes Red 1 lb cello 29¢
Vanity Fair Facial Tissue pkg 134 29¢ With Coupon Below
Ragu Spaghetti Sauce 32 oz jar 89¢
Tropi-Cal-lo Orange Drink half gal 59¢
Baked Fresh the Finast Way!
Finast White Big Round Top Bread 3 20 oz lvs $1
Hamburg Rolls 3 pkgs 8 1.00
English Muffins 3 pkgs 6 1.00
Junior Pies 4 4 oz pkgs 1.00
Hot Dog Rolls 3 pkgs 8 1.00
Rye Bread Swedish 2 1 lb lvs 89¢
Bakery Items Available Tues thru Sat
Clorox Bleach gallon jug 49¢
With This Coupon & Purchase of $5 or More Limit One Coupon Per Customer Valid Thru April 5. H-141 F
Sunrise Fresh Dairy Values!
Margarine Mrs. Filbert's Quarters 1 lb pkg 69¢
Befit Yogurt 4 8 oz ctns 1.00
Margarine Chiffon Soft 1 lb tub 79¢
For Your Health & Beauty!
Mouthwash Listerine 20 oz btl 1.17
Crest Toothpaste 7 oz tube 93¢
Duncan Hines Fudge Brownie Mix 15 oz pkg 87¢
Finast Flour 5 lb bag 69¢
Bumble Bee White Tuna in Oil 7 oz can 69¢
Applesauce Finast 35 oz jar 67¢
Evap. Milk Finast 4 13 oz cans 99¢
Shortening Finast 3 lb can 1.79
Salad Oil Finast 38 oz btl 1.59
Dog Food Finast Gravy Style 5 lb bag 99¢
Heinz Dills Kosher Spears 24 oz jar 69¢
Hellmann's Mayonnaise qt jar 1.33
Elbow Macaroni Finast 3 lb pkg 1.13
Confectioners Sugar 1 lb pkg 69¢

Vanity Fair Facial Tissue Regal Print pkg 134 29¢ With This Coupon & Purchase $5 or More H-101 Valid Thru April 5, Limit One 72 F
20¢ off With This Coupon On (2) 5½ oz pkgs Betty Crocker Potatoes Scalloped or Au Gratin H-996 Valid Thru April 5 52 M
10¢ off With This Coupon On (1) pkg 10 Hefty Trash Can Liners H-997 Valid Thru April 5 57 M
25¢ off With This Coupon On (1) 10 lb bag Gravy Train Dog Food H-998 Valid Thru April 5 62 M
Finast Fresh Large Eggs White Grade A doz 49¢ With This Coupon & Purchase of $5 or More H-187 Valid Thru April 5, Limit One M
Prices Effective thru April 5, 1975 We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities Not Responsible for Typographical Errors

---



Dynamite Diamonds
FREDERICK'S
BAY STATE WEST-ENFIELD SQ.

Wolff to present higher ed lecture tonight

Professor Robert Paul Wolff will speak on "Appearances and Reality in Higher Education" in the final presentation of the Chancellor's Lecture Series tonight.

Wolff's discussion of what the state university ought to be will begin at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

The lecturer is a UMass philosophy professor and director of the interdisciplinary major in social thought and political economy. He earned his degrees at Harvard University and joined the UMass faculty in 1971 after holding positions at Harvard, University of Chicago and Columbia University in New York.

His areas of study include social and political philosophy and the philosophy of Kant. He has written many books. The latest, "About Philosophy," will be published in December.

Parking registration for fall is underway

Parking Registration for Fall 1975-76, begins March 31. If you do not receive a renewal form by campus mail before April 5, come into the Parking Office Rm. 1 Munson Hall. If you want to change lots you must fill out an application form as soon as possible. Change assignments are made on a first come first served basis. Bring your vehicle information, student number and registration fee to the Parking Office, Rm. 1 Munson Hall.

CCEBS offers seminars

The Academic Services at CCEBS is pleased to announce the following seminars. CCEBS students, Bilingual students and Upward Bound students are strongly urged to take full advantage of these seminars.

RAP SESSION with CCEBS ADMINISTRATION: April 3, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

LIBRARY TOUR: April 8, 1975; 1;30 p.m., Entrance Lobby, Main Library.

STUDY HABITS AND STUDY SKILLS: April 10, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

LIBRARY TOUR: April 14, 1975; 1:30 p.m., Entrance Lobby, Main Library.

MATH-SCIENCE MISCONCEPTIONS: April 16, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

TAKING EXAMS-MULTIPLE CHOICE, TRUE-FALSE: April 22, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

TERM PAPER WRITING: April 24, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

TAKING EXAMS - MATH, SCIENCE: April 28, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

MAKING IT THROUGH THE UNIVERSITY: April 30, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

TAKING EXAMS - ESSAY: May 6, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

PLANNING FOR GRAD. SCHOOL, MED. SCHOOL, AND LAW SCHOOL: May 8, 1975; 7:30 p.m., room 203, New Africa House.

The Big Y
LIQUOR SUPERMARKETS
★ SPRINGFIELD
BRECKWOOD BLVD. - WILBRAHAM RD.
★ NORTHAMPTON
'HAMP PLAZA — RTE. 5, NORTH KING ST.
★ FAIRVIEW
NEXT TO BIG "Y" - MEMORIAL DRIVE
from our well-stocked LIQUOR, BEER AND WINE SHOPPES

HARWOODS CANADIAN WHISKEY 80 Proof $8.49 ½ Gallon
FELLOWS VODKA 80 Proof $7.59 Half Gallon
CARSTAIRS WHISKEY 80 Proof Blended $8.49 ½ Gallon
Paul Masson ROSE or CHABLIS $2.69 Half Gallon
GUNTHER BEER 24-12 oz. cans $3.99
SCHLITZ BEER 24-12 oz. cans $5.29

Staff Photo by Mr. Green Jeans

"Aw, gee whiz, fella, leave me and my family alone during dinner, okay? It's real corn-y!"

Quilapayun concert set for Thursday

The concert of the world famous Chilean musical group, the Quilapayun, has been rescheduled and will be given tomorrow at 7:30 in the Campus Center Auditorium at UMass.

The concert was to be held originally March 18th, but had to be cancelled when, at the last, moment, the U.S. State Department refused to issue visas to the Quilapayun, who have been refugees in France since the 1973 coup in Chile.

The group was granted "H-1" Distinguished Artist status in February, and was told by U.S. officials in France that there would be no trouble getting visas. On March 12th, the U.S. Consul in France decided to do a "security check" on the group in Santiago, Chile.

The illegal military junta which now controls Chile sent word to Washington and Paris that the group was "ineligible".

It was then up to the state Department to waive this ineligibility and recommend the issuance of visas, which it did not do for one week. As a result, four concerts, including the one to take place in Amherst, had to be cancelled.

When Quilapayun finally arrived in the U.S. on Friday, March 21st, and appeared for their concert at Hunter College, they were greeted by a standing ovation.

Now appearing at the
THE STEAK OUT
BONES FOR TUCKER
Wed.-Sat.
Happy Hour — Mon.-Sat., 4:30-7:00
in the Speakeasy Lounge

unionization — a backround

By NESTA KING

Student unionization refers to the creation of autonomous unions of students which seek to represent the interests and defend the rights of their student members. The concept of student unions is not a new one. Students within student government structures have often been frustrated with the structural limitations that student governments have, and have arrived at the idea of organizing into an individual membership-based student union. A union could take positions on behalf of its membership from a position of autonomy, and strength, and bargain a contract, something a student government cannot do no matter how strong and effective its members are.

A union with voluntary, individual membership could bargain with the University over all the terms of students' contracts with the university. All of the services, costs, courses, requirements, rules and regulations are part of the contract. In the case of UMass, everything in the General Information Bulletin, the Course and Faculty Directory, and University Directions makes up the students' contract. This is a contract that students with which had nothing to do in deciding upon, but which can be changed by the university at any time without students' knowledge or consent. In any other contractual arrangement, students would never be expected to sign a contract which could be changed at any time by the other party to the agreement. No-one would sign a lease or buy a car if the landlord or car salesperson could raise the cost mid-way through the payments! Not so with your education. When a student enters a university, she or he has no guarantee that the cost will not spiral, or a major be wiped out. It is a fundamentally unfair relationship for an institution existing to serve the students, to disregard the very people the institution professes to serve when making decisions about the priorities and programs which form the parameters of our education and our lives here at UMass.

So why haven't students organized students unions, and demanded collective bargaining before? One reason is that before the age of majority was lowered to eighteen, the contracts were with students parents, and not with students themselves. Another is that students were always told by faculty and administrators that collective bargaining was an inappropriate way to make decisions in a university community and that they should bring their grievances through regular University governance channels. However, faculties across the country are now unionizing at an overwhelming rate to bargain the terms and conditions of their contracts with the university. They too are finding that their grievances cannot be resolved without a union. Therefore, times have changed, and UMass faculty are expected to follow suit, and hold an election for a union this fall.

If we had a student union we too could bargain about virtually anything with the university, and they would have to sit down publicly and negotiate a legally binding contract with our union representatives.

So what might a student union be like? The union structure, representation, and platform will be determined directly by the student membership of the union. There would be a representative structure, with negotiators, and officers of the union elected by the membership. An initial founding meeting would determine the constitution and structure.

The union membership would then adopt the platform, and based on this platform, representatives of the student union would bargain with representatives of the university regarding the issues of the union platform. After negotiations were completed, and an agreement arrived at, the agreement would be sent back to the membership for acceptance or rejection. If the agreement is accepted by the students, then it is the contract with the university, and cannot be violated, or changed except by renegotiation with the students. The university could then be taken to court if it violated an agreement with students.

The first step in getting a student union with collective bargaining power is to get the UMass Board of Trustees to pass the Student Unionization Enabling Act. This establishes a mechanism for a student union to organize and be recognized. The Student Organizing Project was founded by the UMass Student Senate to work to make student unionization a reality and has initiated this policy, which will go to the Student Senate, and then the Trustees.

This Spring a campus-wide canvas will be conducted to inform students about student unionization, and to gain signatures on a petition directed at the Board of Trustees, to show support for student unionization. Student unionization can be a reality. In our current situation, we have nothing to lose.

Nesta King is a Collegian guest commentator.

NOTICE

Important meeting of ALL Collegian staff tonight in Rm 171 of the Campus Center at 7. Please attend.

WADDAYA SAY, ROCKY? ...IT'S ONLY 'TIL PAYDAY...!
MOYLE
NEWS ITEM: U.S. MAY HAVE TO BORROW $80 BILLION TO PAY DEFICIT.

Decisions decisions

By B.J. ROCHE

In the days leading up to vacation, the Collegian has been urging students to attend today's meeting of the Board of Trustees. It was assumed at the time that the Universal Fee,well, as well as other subjects relevant to students, would be brought up for discussion. It now appears that due partially to the non-decision by Dr. Gage, the fee will not be discussed; at the time of this writing, it is unclear as to what will be discussed. It may be, as Dr. Gage so aptly put it, "another dull Board of Trustees meeting." Nevertheless, if we can sit through so many dull classes, surely we can find the time to observe (if not participate in) the decision making processes for this University. It can't be stressed enough that students attend the meeting if not to be heard verbally, to be heard in, spirit. If there are any changes to be made, it is the Trustees that hold the ultimate power to make these changes. By attending, we are showing the Trustees that it may be time to sever the umbilical cord between the student body and the Administration.

It appears that the Administration has been putting off action in a kind of "Wait 'till your father gets home!" attitude. Well, consider it six o'clock, Daddy's here today.

In terms of long-range goals, the Board will be considering the motion for student unionization in May; it would only be beneficial if a large amount of students attended the meeting to show support for one another.

A short statement listing student grievances will be read at the meeting, but the statement will be meaningless without students present to back them up.

The Board Meeting will be held in 1009 Campus Center at two o'clock this afternoon. Michael Dukakis wrote and said he couldn't make it — he's in Boston. The rest of us are much closer; there's really no excuse.

B. J. Roche is Executive Editor

Letters to the Editor

The Foolish Forty

To the Editor:

The morning of April 1st I turned on WMUA to find that they were playing a supposed 'April Fool's joke' by going to a TOP 40 format (actually it was more like 2,000). I know it was intended to be plainly stupid, but I found it plainly entertaining, amd much more professional sounding than their mandatory enforcement of someone's concept of progressive radio.

Radio formats do vary, of course: Progressive, Chicken-Rock, MOR (Middle of the Road), TOP 40, National TOP 20, or whatever ... but whichever one at a station undertakes should be done well or not at all. A college station that is restrictive to its programmers (just let a programmer try and do this 'joke format' on any normal day) while at the same time giving them valuable 'real world radio' experience just doesn't appeal to me.

I have a feeling that the jocks who took the helm that day probably discovered that it was as much fund for them to do as it was for us listening, and FAR less pretentious than the regular old WMUA.

Andy Simons

The disturbed majority speaks out

To the Editor:

This letter is in regard to the minority of students who felt it was within their right to disturb the majority of students on Orchard Hill in the early morning hours of March 21, 1975. This disturbance was achieved by screaming, calling of obscenities, and the throwing of potentially lethal objects from the balcony, i.e., furniture.

When people not from our floor stormed into our study lounge to scream and hurl objects from the balcony, they were politely asked to leave. Their responses were insults and refusals to leave.

We are complaining about the small number of students who find these dangerously juvenile pranks amusing. These activities will give the administration no other alternative but to seal off the lounges which is something that the majority of Orchard Hill students don't want.

If not in a dorm situation, these people would be liable to be arrested for disturbing the peace. We would hate to see these same "adults" after they leave school for the real world — will it be championship yelling contests between the apartment complexes? We hope not.

Gabor Korthy
Debra Packard
and 20 signatures

Clarification on unionization

To the Editor:

With regard to the article on the relationship of faculty unionization to student unionization, I would like to clarify certain points.

First of all, it is correct to say that evidence from around the country overwhelmingly indicates that the impact of faculty collective bargaining on students' interests is potentially a negative one. It is also the case that this potentiality has become an actuality in example after example where faculty have unionized.

Nevertheless, this does not mean that the impact of faculty collective bargaining upon students is necessarily negative. On the one hand, faculty have indeed tended to take a rather narrow and materialist approach to the use of their newly found power after unionizing. But, on the other hand, students have failed to parallel faculty organizing efforts with the creation of unions of students. They have themselves invited the demise of student power.

Rather than object to the right of faculty to negotiate collectively over the terms and conditions of their relationship to the University, students should simply demand the same right. Then faculty and students, each having gained a measure of control over their dealings with the bureaucratic institution called UMass through unionization, can work side by side to reorient priorities and develop a democratic, critical university.

Doug Phelps
Student Organizing Project

Vietnamese face deportation

To the Editor:

Last month the Black News Service had an article about the planned deportation of seven Vietnamese students by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

If anyone is interested in helping them get political asylum, they can write to:

Patrick F. Coomey
District Director of INS
JFK Bldg-Govt. Center
Boston, Ma. 02203

William Saxbe
Attorney General
Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20536

Leonard F. Chapman
Commissioner of INS
Immigration and Naturalization Service
Washington, DC 20536

Henry Kissinger
Secretary of State
Department of State
Washington, DC 20536

When you write, please be sure to send a copy of all correspondence to the students' lawyer, David Rockwell, 698 Mass. Ave., Cambridge, Ma. 02139.

Margaret Cornell

Yearning a trade

By PAUL BRADLEY

Over the past two years there has been a marked increase in the number of students who are choosing journalism as a major field of study. Events like Watergate have recently increased the respectability of this profession, and the field itself has been recognized as a craft whose subject matter is infinite but whose techniques of critical learning are specific.

Many institutions of higher learning have found it difficult to meet this startling increase. Supply has fallen short of demand.

The University of Massachusetts is no exception to these figures, as any freshman who has tried to enroll in a journalism class this semester will attest. There are presently over 200 Journalism majors at UMass. There are only three full time professors specializing in Journalism. These figures speak for themselves without any in depth analysis.

The fact is that there is not even a Journalism Department on this campus. Rather, Journalism is a concentration under the English Department. A JS major must take both the 30 credit hours in English as well as 15 credits in Journalistic Studies.

Prior to last semester, students were allowed to elect a double major, combining study in Journalism with another department. In conjunction with the English Department, Journalistic Studies decided last year that English was the sole track open to a Journalism major. It was said at the time that this was the only way to achieve the goal of a full Journalism major. A strong background in English was held to be the most beneficial to the future journalist.

Now it is hard to argue that studying English would not make better writers out of student; but having students complete an English major based on the rationale that it is a stepping stone to an independent department is less easy to swallow. Perhaps easier administration is a better reason, because keeping track of double major Journalism students scattered throughout different departments is difficult. The natural rhetorical question is how much do we ask students to sacrifice during this "transitional" period.

Commentary

The Journalistic Studies Department is undergoing severe growth pains. Journalism has languished on this campus while it has flourished on campuses across the country. Those in the department argue that the double major system was a key factor in frustrating the growth of journalism at UMass. The man who designed the double major system stated this as one of his goals, saying that Journalistic Studies is a social science, devoted to the academic study of the press, and not worthy of a full major.

Despite this, it seems that the student who had professional journalistic ambitions with a desire to specialize in a given field would benefit from the double major system. The argument against this runs along the lines that a student does not have to be a journalism major to specialize, but instead major in his chosen field and take journalism courses on the side. This is not so easy as it is becoming increasingly necessary to be a journalism major to get into journalism courses.

It seems that if the Journalism Department is looking for a stepping stone towards an independent department, perhaps Communications Studies would be a better choice. Both have a special interest in Mass Communications, and a journalist is first and foremost a communicator.

At the very least, the department should be more flexible and allow students a greater spectrum to study and still be a journalism major.

The University is in the midst of an austerity program, with cuts as much as 6 per cent expected next year. This will further stunt the growth of the journalism program at UMass. The program has grown considerably over the past three years, and it will be unfortunate if it stays mired in the English Department with its rigid standards. There are students who are getting together on this problem, and the voice of students should be listened to above administrators.

If we are really "broke" as the Governor says that the state is, let us at least allow some flexibility in the Journalistic program until the money needed for growth is available. Student support and ideas are essential to this, and if journalism majors choose to remain silent, then nothing at all will be solved.

A shabby disgrace

To the Editor:

The so-called Universal Resource Fee, which funds something that is not much of a resource and by no means universal, is a shabby and disgraceful attempt on the part of the Administration to force the students to pay for its own financial and managerial irresponsibility.

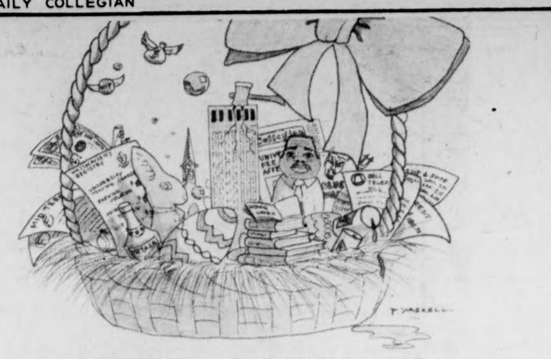
They chalk up most of the increase in costs to inflation. The most inflated thing around here is the Whitmore personnel roster. This university is so bloated with surplus administrators that they had to stick the Office of Residential Life in Hills because Whitmore was full. The Administration saw fit to add another level of bureaucrats to the hierarchy at a time when there was not enough money to give the faculty merit pay raises. Now, when money is even harder to find, Whitmore wants to saddle the students with something they have the nerve to call a Universal Resource fee, rather than face up to the responsibility of living within available funds.

If a Student Affairs staff member has nothing better to do than sit on Housing and Meal Ticket Exemption committees, or chair Pet Policy Review committees which are dissolved before submitting a report, that staff member is surplus, non-productive, and should be laid off permanently. If Whitmore had the integrity to prune the administrative dead wood rather than provide sinecures to useless drones, there would be more than enough money to run UMass as a top-quality educational institution.

This will never happen, of course. Rather than fire three administrators to save $60,000, they will fire 75 counselors actually earning twice what they are paid. Rather than admit that Student Affairs is an expensive farce, the administration will shift both the blame and the financial responsibility for their irresponsibility to the students.

John Lederle ran this campus and built two others with a handful of staffers working out of a couple of rooms. And he did a far better job than the present army of unemployables.

Tim O'Brien



IT'S BEEN A TOUGH EASTER FOR MOST OF US!!

Kyriakos Karoutsos

The reaping of sage

The old man is slowly walking down Boylston Street, accompanied by loneliness, burdened by old age, and laden with old shopping bags containing everything he owns. His face seems expressionless, empty of feeling and emotion. It seems that way, but I look into his eyes, he looks into mine, and feelings which can never be expressed by the pen or by the word are magnificently manifested by two smiles — his, a benevolent and knowing smile, and mine, an understanding and respectful smile. We are both outcasts of our society — he has lost the battle, he is old, sick, homeless, alone; I have just begun fighting — I have taken over the task which he himself took over from someone else.

The old man is slowly walking down Boylston Street, accompanied by loneliness, burdened by old age, and laden with old shopping bags containing everything he owns. His face seems expressionless, empty of feeling and emotion. It seem that way, but I look into his eyes, he looks into mine, and feelings which can never be expressed by the pen or by the word are magnificently manifested by two smiles — his, a benevolent and knowing smile, and mine, an understanding and respectful smile. We are both outcasts of our society — he has lost the battle, he is old, sick, homeless, alone; I have just begun fighting — I have taken over the task which he himself took over from someone else.

In me he sees himself — he has dreamt what I dream, he has wept for the reasons over which I am weeping, he has believed in what I believe, he has fought what I am fighting, he has been punished by the society just as I will be punished by it.

I look into the old man's eyes and I see immeasurable bitterness and disappointment. Bitterness with the state of our society, and disappointment with the state people are in.

He comes over to where I am sitting, and lays his tired body beside mine. His clothes are rags that he has picked up here and there — the newest piece of his "wardrobe" is a pair of boots which he salvaged out of a trash disposal seven months ago. His white hair is long and untidy, his beard is thick and dirty. We sit together enjoying an unusually warm day, and we just watch people go by. He doesn't say much and neither do I — we do not have to talk much, we understand each other. Among others, young executives walk by us, a briefcase in one hand, the Wall Street Journal in the other, their gait is fast, their faces flushed from anxiety and their fast pace, their eyes unsteady and insecure. They walk by and upon seeing the old man and me together, contemptuous and sarcastic grins appear on their faces. The unpleasant odor coming out of the old man's body and clothes bothers them, but what bothers them most is the volley of fire coming out of the old man's eyes. He looks at them as a cobra is looking at her potential victim — cold, frightening, threatening looks. The old man is having fun. He is playing with his enemies, he is making them feel uncomfortable, uneasy, insecure. I am also having fun because his enemies are my enemies. He is I, and I am he.

In me he sees himself — he has dreamt what I dream, he has wept for the reasons over which I am weeping, he has believed in what I believe, he has fought what I am fighting, he has been punished by the society just as I will be punished by it.

I look into the old man's eyes and I see immeasurable bitterness and disappointment. Bitterness with the state of our society, and idsappointment with the state people are in.

He looks at me, with steady and clear eyes, he smiles, and out of his countless hidden pockets he takes a pamphlet and gives it to me. I read its title and apparently the expression of my face gives away my pleasant surprise. For the first time since I met him, he lets out an uncontrollable laugh. He picks up his old shopping bags, calls over his two ever-present companions: loneliness and old age, who had been window shopping nearby, and gets ready to move on. I do not bid goodby and neither does he. My mind is wildly dancing, wildly thinking — if only he and I would fight together, if only...

He walked off to die somewhere, and I took the bus for Amherst.

Kyriakos Karoutsos is a Collegian Columnist

Commentary/

The Jongest yarn

By MARY C. DRISCOLL
Progressive News Service

The women of America don't give a dam about the "zipless fuck", that illusory platitude of spontaneous sexual freedom and response, made famous by author Erica Jong in her novel, "FEAR OF FLYING." Given half a chance, Ms. Jong would have us believe that the ultimate feminist statement for announcing the arrival of the contemporary liberated female is the carefree seduction of strange men on trains. However, my purpose here is not to beguile the desperate quests for guiltless orgasm, so often heralded by the brats of costly Freudian analysis and the "upper east side," rather, I want to pose a question to those of us who harbor fantasies of someday making a righteous stab at the best seller's list. Who are the women of America? And, does it really matter to the daughters of this land that their successful sisters manage to get their professional rocks off?

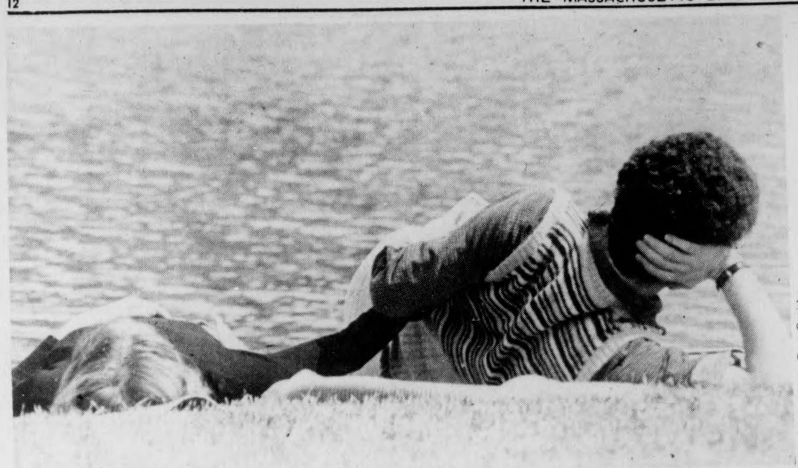
Certainly, anyone clever enough to render authentically her epic affronts to upper-class sex roles can publish a lucrative novel, and, maybe even become the guardian angel of "the latest revolution in feminist writing." And, the doubtless millions of thrill-thirsty patrons who can afford to endorse and fluently acclaim the "new woman's genre" will get their bellies filled.

But what about the millions of women in American welfare roles, factories, prisons, Indian reservations, or those women receiving Catholic Communion in the City Hospital maternity wards? Are not these women the heroes of so many unwritten novels, the tales of the sisters of oppression and poverty, stories that ask the highest price? Are not the women involved in a struggle for survival also authors of feminist classics in their own right?

The daughters of American sweat and tears can do without the travesty of global bed-hopping and shrink-swapping. The sad and silent eyes of the unemployment lines or the lonely bar stool are their own lament.

It is an absolute denial of human truth to allow the impressionable American literary audience to swallow the myth that feminist consciousness is expressed in the kinky sexual appetite of Erica Jong. For women who will leave these hallowed halls of academe with tickets to a publishing house in hand, I only wonder if they will notice the shadows of their quieted sisters who'll lurk in the back alleys and die in the subway stations.

Mary Driscoll is a Collegian commentator



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

Two incurable romantics hold hands by the pond -- apparently having loads of fun at it, too.

INSTRUCTIONAL CENTER IN GUADALAJARA, MEXICO
Summer — Fall — Winter & Spring Quarters

SUMMER CURRICULUM (June 17 — August 15, 1975)

Understanding Art	Peasant Societies
Photography I & II	Mesoamerican Pre-History
Pottery, Glass Blowing	Comparative Cultures
Painting	Guitar Instruction
Design Metal, Design Fabric	1st & 2nd Year Spanish
Mexican Civilization	Intensive Spanish I & II
Folklore of Mexico	Sp. Am. Lit. 19th & 20th Century
Indian Cultures	* taught in Spanish
Comparative Law

Workshop on Mexican Culture (July 18-August 15) — series of lectures by experts on Mexican society and culture, current and past. Participants, with students in the Mesoamerican Pre-History course, will take a 2-week field trip to the Yucatan to visit the archaelogical sites of Teotihuacan, Tres Zapotes, Palenque, Uxmal, Chichen Itza, Monte Alban, Mitla, and will also visit the Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City.

COST: Non-Resident Tuition and Fees: Summer $189; Fall and Spring $473; Winter $493; Housing with family $100 month; other cost extra.

CONTACT: International Programs, Central Washington State College, Ellensberg, WA 98926. Phone (509) 963-3612.

Fine Arts Center hit with holiday damage

Vandalism was extensive at the Fine Arts Center, during Spring vacation, according to UMass Police Reports.

Among the damages were: broken pianos and windows; a broken sculpture; paint smeared on elevators; fire damage in several sinks; and water damage.

The cost of the damages is not yet known, said UMass police.

The vandalism was discovered by physical plant workers. The case is currently under investigation by the UMass police.

In larcenies over the Spring Break, two lacrosse goal posts were stolen from the fields behind Boyden Gym, according to reports.

Scotch and water mix

Almost everyone knows that oil and water don't mix, but that scotch and water do.

A theory that explains why was presented recently at a meeting of the American Physical Society in Denver by Dr. Isaac C. Sanchez, assistant professor in the Department of Polymer Science and Engineering at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

In a paper titled "A Molecular Theory of Fluid Phase Equilibria," Sanchez attempts to explain, from a molecular point of view, why two different liquids will or will not mix.

For example, gasoline is obtained by boiling crude oil and collecting the vapor that is given off (a distillation process). Also, there is a wide range of industrial processes, including the processing of paints and the manufacture of composite materials and fibers, which depend on our understanding of mixing behavior.

There are some mixtures which exhibit the unusual behavior of demixing as the temperature is increased and there are even examples of mixtures that demix at both low and high temperatures, Sanchez explains.

His theory, "relatively simple but surprisingly accurate," envisions the liquid state to be a mixture of molecules and "holes". Most solids expand by 10 to 20 per cent in volume when they are melted to form liquids (ice, unfortunately, is an exception, since it contracts by about 10 per cent on melting).

"To summarize," he continues, "the theory that we have developed is able to explain the mixing behavior of liquids, including the unusual types of behavior that were previously mentioned, and is also able to describe the distillation behavior of these mixtures.

Texas Instruments

The World's Most Wanted Scientific Calculator

OUR PRICE
$96.80

Plus $6.50 for local sales tax, shipping/handling charges.

5 day Air Mail/United Parcel Service delivery

Compare with local store prices.

Performs all the functions of higher priced calculators and more for a lot less

Thousands sold in hundreds of colleges.

- algebraic keyboard
- accuracy to 13 significant digits
- 12 digit display · 10 digit mantissa, 2 digit exponent
- powers
- roots
- factorials
- logarithmic, trigonometric, hyperbolic functions
- memory storage and recall
- scientific notation
- rechargeable battery pack

1 YEAR TEXAS INSTRUMENTS WARRANTY.

Send certified check or money order for delivery within five days. No COD's please. Slight delay in delivery if personal check accompanies order.

Our bank reference: Town Bank and Trust Co.

BOSTON TECHNICAL, INC.
728 Dedham St., Newton, Mass. 02159

Please ship immediately via Airmail/UPS ______SR-50(s)

Name ______________________

Address ______________________

IT PAYS TO SHOP THE FINAST WAY

Mountain Farms Mall in Hadley

Beer and Wine Shoppe!

Budweiser Beer

case of 24
12 oz cans

5.55

Chateau Laurent	Sparkling Sangria	4/5 btl	2.99
Tytell	Lambrusco	24 oz btl	1.99
Great Western	Pink Catawba	4/5 btl	1.79
Donelli	Lambrusco	4/5 btl	1.89
Rosé De Portugal		48 oz btl	3.99
Paul Masson	Rose'	qt carafe	1.99

Gunther Beer
case 24 - 12 oz cans
4.09

Finast
SUPERMARKETS

Prices Effective thru Sat., April 5

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

AMHERST CYCLE SHOP

now located at 253 Triangle St.

We have a wide selection of bikes for the whole family, including excellent English and French racing and touring cycles, and now a NEW line of moderately-priced ROSS bikes made in U.S.A.

Come by, look them over, and take advantage of our low introductory prices.

See our other ad on page 19.

UMass Music Theatre Guild to stage 'Pirates of Penzance'

UMass Music Theatre Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" tomorrow, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall.

"Pirates of Penzance" is generally considered one of a trio of Sir William S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan's best operettas, along with "The Mikado" and "H.M.S. Pinafore".

The operatta deals with an apprentice pirate, his coming of age on his twenty-first birthday, and his entanglements with the beautiful daughters of a major general, the pirate band and the police.

UMass Music Theatre Guild is a student group which has performed at least one musical on campus annually for 39 successive years. Recent past productions have included "Company" in 1973 and "Dames at Sea" last year.

This year is the one hundredth anniversary of public performances of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, and "Pirates of Penzance" is the first Gilbert and Sullivan operetta to be performed by the Guild since 1944, when it had an eight year tradition of performing solely these operettas.

Tickets for "Pirates of Penzance" are on sale daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall. Tickets are $2 for Five-College students and anyone 18 years of age or younger, $2.50 for others.

For information and reservations call 545-0202. Tickets go on sale at the Bowker Box Office, Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall two hours prior to performance.

Burrill Phillips concert tonight in FAC recital hall

Wednesday, at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Fine Arts Center, the "group for new music" will present an all-Burrill Phillips concert. Included on the program will be a work composed especially for this occasion, Intrada, plus a talk by Phillips.

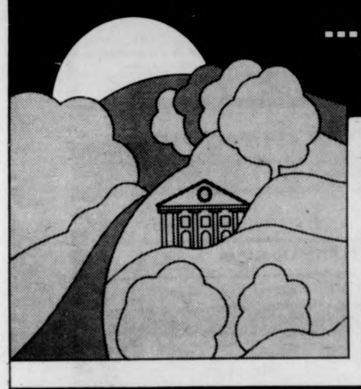
The "group for new music" is a student faculty ensemble within the Department of Music which concentrates on performing contemporary musical compositions. Under the direction of Professor Charles Fussell, the "group for new music" has recently recorded P.M. Davies EIGHT SONGS FOR A MAD KING for Opus One.

Phillips will be on campus from today, through tomorrow to meet with the students and attend all rehearsals. Dress rehearsals today and tomorrow (7:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall) are open to the public.

There will be no admission charge.

C.W.POST

...A BEAUTIFUL WAY TO INVEST A SUMMER



We make summer matter with a full range of undergraduate, graduate, Weekend College and Continuing Education courses on one of America's most beautiful campuses . . . and with special institutes and workshops, modern residence halls . . . and our good teachers.

3 SESSIONS (day and evening):
May 21-June 20, June 23-July 25 and July 28-Aug. 29

Call or write for the Summer Bulletin:
Summer Session Office, C.W. Post Center
Long Island University
Greenvale, L.I., N.Y. 11548 • (516) 299-2431

c.w. post center
LONG ISLAND UNIVERSITY

SUNSHINE RECORDS

SALE

All Single Albums

3 for $10.99

Latest Releases - Top Artists
Old Favorites Too

Doubles & Imports
Also On Sale

No. 9 E. Pleasant St.

Store Hours, 10-8 — Sale Ends Wed. Night

Please. . . No Trades During Sale

4 Doors From The Pub

notes & quotes

Interviews offered for bilingual ed program

Interviews for those undergraduates who wish to enter the Bilingual-Bicultural Education Professions Program at UMass in the Fall of 1975, will be held today, Thursday and Friday.

Those students who will be second semester sophomores or first semester juniors with at least a 2.0 cum. average, and are interested in becoming either bilingual elementary or secondary teachers, should bring a copy of their transcripts.

For further information or an appointment, please call Ms. Susan Vilches, Undergraduate Academic Advisor of the Bilingual-Bicultural Education Professions Program, at 545-1506.

the world of art supplies . . . .

when was the last time you visited?

there are new products, new colors and new papers all the time. if you haven't been in for a while, come in now because many items are on sale as well.

the art store within a store university store campus center university of massachusetts/amherst

notices

AHEA

There will be a meeting in Mitchell Lounge, Skinner Hall on April 3 from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Come and help finalize plans for Career Day.

ALCOHOL DISCUSSION GROUP

Anyone interested in any area relating to alcohol is encouraged to attend meeting in C.C. 904 at 7:30 p.m.

ALPHA ZETA

Monthly meeting, election of next year's officers on Tues., April 8 at 6:30 p.m. C.C. 164. Attendance mandatory.

AUDITIONS

Final day of auditions for "LENZ", a work in progress by Dan Eaton, Directed by Jeff Nichols, Room 08 Dept. of Theater, Fine Arts Ctr., 7 p.m. Plans are to form an ensemble and work improvisationally to develop a script.

BIBLICAL EXPLORATION UCF

Tonight from 9:45-10:30 p.m. in 316 Hampshire House, another in the series of free, open exploration of a few verses of Scripture. Anyone who is interested is welcome. (UCF is an ecumenical campus ministry to the whole UMass community.)

BOTANY DEPT COLLOQ

Dr. A.E. DeMaggio of the Dept. of Biology at Dartmouth College, Hanover, New Hampshire will be the guest speaker at the Colloquium, Thurs., April 3 at 4:30 p.m. in Room 203 – Morrill Science Center. His topic is "Polyploid and Gene Dosage Effects on Enzyme Activity in Ferns." Coffee will be served at 4 p.m.

BREAD AND WINE

You are invited to a brief, simple sharing of common loaf and common cup in an upper room (316 Hampshire House) tonight from 10:30-10:50 p.m. UCF offers this as part of an ecumenical campus ministry to the whole UMass community; all are welcome.

BRIDGE PLAYERS OLD AND NEW

Bridge instruction in C.C. 801 at 6 p.m. Regular Duplicate Game at 7:15 p.m. sharp in 174-176. Teams tonight.

CAMPUS SCOUTS

There will be a meeting tomorrow night April 3 at 7 p.m. in C.C. 802. Please come!!

CASIAC

Beginning on April 9 and continuing on Wed. and Thurs. eves thereafter, CASIAC, will be offering pre-graduate advising to students interested in either careers or graduate study in Social Work, and related areas of the social sciences (i.e., Psychology, Sociology). See Lou Boudreau in E20 Machmer, Wed. and Thurs. eves from 7-9.

CULTURAL MEETING

An open meeting will be held tonight sponsored by the Human Rights Com. of the Student Senate to set up definitions and guidelines for the cultural fund. All groups and individuals welcome and encouraged to attend. 4:00 in C.C. 171-3.

DANCE FOR THOSE WHO CAN'T

3rd Annual Phi Mu Delta 52 hour Dance Marathon for Muscular Dystrophy will be held April 25, 26, 27. Applications to dance now available. Call 253-9034 or 545-2163. Ask for Carmen or Kitty.

EASTER WORSHIP

Easter has 50 days; come celebrate them with us! The Holy Eucharist according to Episcopal tradition at the Newman Center chapel. Wed. at :00 p.m.

ENG. HONORS MEETING

Meeting with Profs Farrell and Innes of the English Department to discuss possibilities for honors theses. Informal opportunity for honors students to meet. Top of Campus. 4:00 Thurs., April 3.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATER

Start the season off right. See BALL GAME, a new play. Thurs., 4-3 at 4 p.m. and Fri. 4-4 at 7:30 p.m. Exp. Theater, Fine Arts Center. It's free.

ENTERTAINMENT

FREAKS will play tonite in Herter 227 at 7:30 and 9:30. With Laurel and Hardy's MUSIC BOX, an academy winning short.

FLYING CLUB

The first meeting for this month will be tonight at 7 in Campus Center.

HOW TO DRIVE TO STAY ALIVE

Commuters or others interested in taking a one credit colloq on defensive driving techniques and instruction. Call BOB at 549-6349, classes will be held on Thurs. eves. starting April 3 from 6-9.

ISRAELI DANCING

At 7:30 tonight in the Cape Cod Lounge Israeli Dancing resumes. Teaching till 9 with more advanced dancing till 10:30. It's free, fun and open to everyone.

KUNDALINI YOGA CLASSES

Ongoing yoga classes every Tues. and Thurs. eves 5-6. Classes will cover yoga postures, breathing, chanting, diet, lifestyle, and healing. All are welcome. C.C., consult daily listing for room.

MORTARBOARD

All members; two more meetings required to make final selections regarding

turn to p. 15

London Paris Rome

Spend the Entire Summer in Europe for just $377*

BOSTON — PARIS — BOSTON

If you are a member of any of the 5 colleges within this area you may qualify for this low group fare

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT MR. RICHARD PINI — 253-7766

* air fare only

AMERICAN PARTS AUTO PARTS

IS YOUR CAR READY FOR SPRING? • • • OFFER EXPIRES APRIL 30, 1975

FIRE EXTINGUISHER
1 lb. dry chemical extinguisher for home and auto. Compact for storage in small areas.
$4.43 reg. $7.27 SAVE $2.84

POWEREADY 370-10 IGNITION POWERED TIMING LIGHT
• Pistol Type
• Sharp Focused Beam
• Heavy Duty Cords
A low cost neon timing light that works on a 6-12-24 volt ignition system only.
$6.19 reg. $8.16 SAVE $1.97

CAR FRESHNER
It's a fume broom! Works automatically. Lasts for months. Suitable for home use. When the scent is gone use the case for a coin holder. Easy to hang or mount.
63¢ reg. $1.09 SAVE 46¢

You'll find the things you need nearby at American Parts!

IMPROVE YOUR GAS MILEAGE 20% with POWEREADY top quality, heavy duty TUNE-UP PARTS
POINTS and CONDENSERS CAPS and ROTORS COILS
PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL TO ASSIST YOU "SHOP WHERE THE PROS SHOP"

SPRAY PAINT HIGH QUALITY LOW PRICE!
For just about anything!
• Wheel Paint • Laquer
• Undercoating • Primer
• Hot Paint • Metal Flake
• Hammer Finish • Fluorescent
• Engine Paint • Tire Paint
• Candy Apple • Enamel
• Heat-resistant

WALKER MUFFLERS and PIPES
Why deal with strangers when your neighbor's an expert?
You know the man who runs your service station or garage. And he knows you. Knows your car, too. He recommends Walker mufflers because they're the most efficient you can buy. And they're built to car manufacturer's exact specifications, for quality and long life.

"ALLIED MOTOR PARTS"
319 Main St., Amherst

C/R SEALS "The best insurance against trouble on wheels."

YOUR MONEY'S WELL SPENT AT Archer Kent

Archer Kent

Amherst 191 N. Pleasant St. | Northampton 114 Main Street
Quantity Rights Reserved
PRICES EFFECTIVE THRU APRIL 6, 1975

DISCOUNT HEALTH & BEAUTY AIDS

Mfr. $1.79 EARTH BORN Shampoo 15¢ OFF 69¢ 8 oz.
Mfr. $1.29 RIGHT GUARD Deodorant 59¢ 4 oz.
Mfr. $1.19 CLEARASIL OINTMENT 59¢ Medium Size
Mfr. $2.03 BRECK Shampoo Normal Dry Oily 99¢ 11 oz.
Mfr. $1.92 BUFFERIN $1.09 100 Tablets
Mfr. $1.49 POND'S COLD CREAM 79¢ 3.5 oz.
Mfr. 79c PRO TOOTHBRUSH 3 for 55¢
$1.98 Wella Balsam Conditioner 8 oz. .99¢
$1.95 Contac 10 Capsules 99¢
$1.79 Q-Tips 408 Cotton Swabs 88¢
$1.49 Old Spice Stick Deodorant 69¢
$1.41 Aim Toothpaste 6.4 oz. 73¢
Mfr. $1.35 NOXZEMA SKIN CREAM 77¢ 4 oz.
Mfr. $1.51 MISS BRECK HAIR SPRAY 66¢ 13 oz. All Types

WE DISCOUNT OVER 3000 ITEMS EVERY DAY

notices

cont. from p. 14

75-76 membership. Sat., 4-5, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. and Sun., 4-6, 12 noon. Attendance required. See C.C. schedule for Room No.

MOVEMENT WORKSHOP

Exercise and dance on Wed. and Thurs. from 12:30 to 2:30 or 5 to 7 p.m. at the Valley Women's Center in Northampton. Eight week session begins April 9. Call Valerie 268-7266. For women only.

NU? STAFF MEETING

All people interested in working for NU? The Five College Jewish Monthly, there will be a staff meeting in C.C. 168-178 on Wed., April 2 at 4:30. Bring a friend.

PUBLIC HEALTH MAJORS

Grads and undergrads, there will be a meeting Thurs. evening 4-3 at 7:15 p.m. in C.C. 805 to discuss student-faculty relations within the department. Please attend!

RUSH: SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

All UMass women are welcome to come and meet the sisters and pledges of Tri Sigma, tonight at 7 in Frat-Sr. Park, take the O. Hill Bus or call for rides 253-9066.

SCUBA CLUB

Meeting tonight to discuss upcoming Rockport trip. A short talk on how to use the decompression tables will be given. Bring a swim suit and-or equipment — we have Curry Hicks pool.

STAFF AND MUSICIANS NEEDED

People are needed to staff Orchard Hill resource center and coffee house. Musicians are needed to play at Coffee House on Fri. nites. Good time and experience guaranteed. Call Deb or Paul at 546-6616.

STAR TREK LIVES

Meeting tonight 7:30 C.C. 164. Tonight we will explore new area.

STUDENT CREDIT UNION OPEN

Your new credit union, The UMass Student Federal Credit Union, is now open for business from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily. C.C. 166.

STRATEGIC GAMES CLUB

The Strategic Games Club will meet tonite in the C.C. from 5 p.m. to closing. Everyone welcome.

UMASS VOL FIRE DEPT.

Important meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in C.C. 808. Many very important issues will be discussed concerning the future of this organization. New people invited to attend also.

VCCA MEETING

Vets coalition meeting Wed., 4-2 at 4 p.m. Commuter Lounge, S.U.B.

UNION STEREO CO-OP

The Union Stereo Co-op will hold a very important organizational meeting at 7 tonight in C.C. 165.

LOST

Student Union-Stockbridge Area., a gold, heart-shaped locket, pictures inside. Very much sentimental value. Please call 5-2417 and ask for Joanne in 217.

PHOTOGRAPHER BRUCE DAVIDSON

Will be speaking Wed., April 2 at 8 p.m. in the Public Health Auditorium at UMass. The lecture will include a 30-min. color film directed by Davidson as well as a slide presentation of selected works from his photographic essay on a N.Y. ghetto, EAST 100 STREET. Admission charged.

FINANCIAL AID INFORMATION

A general information meeting on financial aid for 75-76 at 6:00 and 8:00 tonight in the Hamden Resource Center (SW).

Law workshop

A three hour workshop is planned for students considering attending law school, and curious about the LSAT.

The purpose of the workshop is to:

—discuss the role of the LSAT in the admission process,

—study the content of past tests, the methods of scoring, and the sorts of aptitudes that the exam purports to reveal,

—provide a brief review of essential skills, materials, and suggestions for further study.

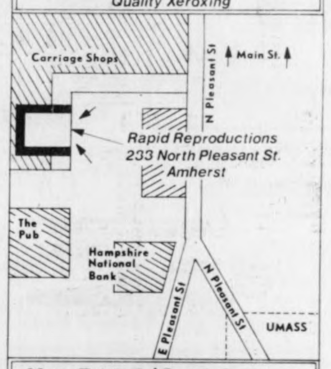
There will be a charge for materials and administrative costs which will not exceed $5. Sign-ups will be in the pre-law office, E-22 Machmer Hall.

Come see
the cult film of the year . . .
Jimmy Cliff
in
The Harder They Come
Sat. night
7, 9, 11
C.C.A.

CALVIN Theatre KING ST., NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW NOW
Nominated for 11 Academy Awards
The Godfather PART II Best Picture Best Actor Best Director
R RESTRICTED
2nd SMASH WEEK!
Eves: Godfather II — 7:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR
NEW YORK FILM CRITICS
JUDITH CRIST
ROGER CORMAN Presents
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
Directed by FEDERICO FELLINI Produced by FRANCO CRISTALDI
STARTS WEDNESDAY
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR THEATRES

Rapid Reproductions · Quality Xeroxing
High Grade Thesis Reproduction
BOND PAPER · RECEIVE YOUR COPIES BY AN ASSURED DATE
CLEAN CONCISE CORRECT COPIES
Call in advance and reserve a date for your copying: 549-0566
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst
Mon Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6/Sun 11-7



Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing
Mon-Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6
Sun 11-7
549-0566

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
starts WEDNESDAY
Apr. 9 at 7:00-9:00
EXTRAVAGANTLY FUNNY
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
presenting the Original Version!

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1 2 3 4 5 6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
· CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE ·

STREISAND & CAAN How Lucky Can You Get! Funny Lady PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00

warren beatty julie christie · goldie hawn SHAMPOO R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30

NOMINATED FOR 2 ACADEMY AWARDS YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:35; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:45

Dustin Hoffman "Lenny" A Bob Fosse Film Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 10:00; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

Nominated for 8 Academy Awards THE TOWERING INFERNO PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:15; Fri., 7:00, 10:15; Sat., 1:30, 4:15, 7:00, 10:15; Sun., 1:30, 4:50, 8:15

What could be better than The Three Musketeers? THE FOUR MUSKETEERS PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:45; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

Campus Cinemas 256-6411 AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
DOLLAR NIGHTS MON & TUES ALL SEATS $1.00

1 MEL BROOKS' BLAZING SADDLES 7 & 8:45 R
or never give a saga an even break!

2 "THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT" It's more than a movie. It's a celebration. 7 & 9 G

3 7 & 9:45 Nominated: Best Director No Dollar Nite R
JOHN CASSAVETES' A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426

WEDNESDAY ONLY
2 ALFRED HITCHCOCK HITS "FRENZY" &
"TORN CURTAIN"

THURS. THRU MONDAY
MEL BROOKS
"BLAZING SADDLES"
plus Ringo Starr
David Essex in
"That'll Be The Day"

Wed. Nite Only: Frenzy — 7:00; Torn Curtain — 9:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON

only area showing
at 7:00 & 9:00

Walt Disney's
FANTASIA
Technicolorful Music by the Great STOKOWSKI!
NOW AT POPULAR PRICES!

CLINT EASTWOOD & JEFF BRIDGES in
THUNDERBOLT AND LIGHTFOOT
Friday April 4
CCA 75¢
6:45, 9, 11:15

TONIGHT
See Frank Zappa shit on the world

200 MOTELS
S.U.B. 8 & 10:15
Come Early! ½ Hour of Zappa Music Before Each Show

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS

WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS — BEST PICTURE • BEST DIRECTOR
...all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN/ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
"THE STING"
6:00, 8:30
1 PG
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only

They'd do anything for a story...and do.

JACK LEMMON • WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
6:15, 8:30
2 PG
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only

DAVID O. SELZNICK'S PRODUCTION OF MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
STARRING CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA deHAVILLAND
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
6:45
3 G
No Twi-Lite Hour

Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
4 R
Nominated For 6 Awards
6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only

TIMES CHANGE DAILY

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadlin[illegible] 45, two days before the da[illegible]r ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $660. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers, high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive: for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4765 evenings.

Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms-channel, or 11 WX4 channel (quad). 3 mos. old. List $350. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Matt 6-7009. Also, smaller advents for $120.

Van 4 Sale — '73, 302, V8, RH, AC. 532-4511.

A brand new Polaro ID 440 camera with flash. Used only once. Best offer takes it. Call 253-3707. Keep trying.

Minolta SRT 101, 58 mm Fl.4, case and extras, ex. cond., $190, 788-4678 aft. six.

For Sale — Gibson Humming Bird, hard shell case. Best offer takes it. Call 256-8111 after 4 p.m.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

Typewriter, elec. Olympia 35c (film), about 1½ yrs. old. Cleaned recently. Exc. cond. $200. 549-6258, leave mes.

'75 Fender Stratocaster and case, 2 mos. old. $385. 546-1191. Mapleneck finish.

Black and white 16" ZENITH. Almost new, has warrantee! Call 256-8997.

Commodore Calculator — 4 basic functions, invese, sq. root, memory percnt. $40. K. Hanson. 6-4897.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

Great 70 Fiat 850 Coupe looking for good home. 40 mpg. $695, cheap! 253-7967.

68 Chev., Seedy looking, great running, good transportation. $395. Bob 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new exhaust, runs well. $250 or best offer. 253-7967.

58 Peugeot 403, sunroof. Bring a battery and drive it away! $100. 253-7967.

64 Corvair convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer takes. 253-7967.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

1969 Chevy Van. Needs minor repair. $950. Will bargain or trade for motorcycle. Ph. 665-4984.

'71 Fiat, 124 Sedan, radials, 30 mpg. Good condition. Asking $1200. Call Ms. Roberts, 5-0150 evenings 628-3825.

Wanted — Volvo P1800 in good repair. Joan. 256-8989.

'67 VW -400 or B.O. Call 247-9358.

'68 Dodge Dart, 20 and 23 mpg., 74,000 miles. Old, w-AM-FM stereo radio. Asking $775. W-out radio, $675. Call after 6. 253-3344.

'64 Volvo, 18005, 4 sp., overdrive, body gd., runs exc. 57,000 mi., 25 mpg. $850. 256-6319.

1968 Pontiac Catalina, 4 dr., hardtop, cosmetically and mechanically good. Low mileage. Asking $650. 542-5563. Ask for Henry.

'63 VW convt., '67 engine, new top, gas heater, body solid, runs exc. Also spare '67 engine. Total $425. Paul 549-6391.

'69 Dodge, auto., p.s., exc. condition. $600. 256-8487.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

HD Sportster, Koni shocks, disc front, alum. jugs, sifton cams. Ernie 527-4877.

1969 CL350 Honda, rebuilt. Excellent condition. Best offer. Larry, 6-6570.

BMW R-60, 63. All stock w-6 gallon gas tank. Was in accident, needs engine work. $135. 256-0544.

Motorcycle tires, used. All will pass inspection. $4 to $10. Call for sizes. Russ at 256-0544.

For Sale — 1970 250cc, Yamaha Street. Ex. condition. Call 665-2893.

1974 Honda, XL250, 680 miles, like new! Call Russ at 256-0544 for more info. $935.

1970 Hodaka 100 trail bike, excellent cond. $250. 586-4315. Call after 5 p.m.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

FOR RENT

NR UMass Univ. Park, 2½ rm., June 1. $165 including util. No pets. 253-2985.

Whately, Mass. — 7 room house, good condition, available for 1 year, $225.00 month. Call 737-6088.

Amh. — New 2 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. and sec. 549-6600.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

One bedroom efficiency on bus route. All utilities. June 1 - Sept. 1. Call 665-3367.

Cape Cod. Falmouth. 2, 3 and 6 bedroom cottages, winterized, furnished. Walk to beach. Full season only. Owner. 1-203-521-6841.

Room in house. Lg. fire-pl., prl. bath and storage. 2 mi. to cam. on bus rte. Sub. Apr. & May w-opt. $115. All util. inc. Call 256-8271.

Room in house. Wash, dry, util. $80. Call after 5. 256-8456.

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70, util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 til Sept. 1. Call 549-1275 right now.

Sublet June 1 to Sept. 1. Brandywine Apt. Furnished. 549-6547.

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month on bus line. June 1-August 31, opt to renew. 546-6333.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

Four bedroom apt., util., furn. inc. June - Aug. Neg. Amherst 253-2433 on bus. 2 miles to U.M.

Two bedroom apt. Colonial Village by June 1. Call Sue 253-5289 or Jeri.

Sub. 2 bdrm. Brandywine Apt. $220. Call 549-4474. Two bus lines.

June-Sept., 2 bdrm. $175. Pool w-utl. 665-3953.

TO SUBLET

To sublet: 2 bedrm. apt., Cliffside, in Sunderland, June 1-Aug. 31; tennis, pool free. Security deposit. 665-4310. Call evenings. Keep trying. Late.

Sublet with option to renew two bdr. townhouse, Squire Village, June 1. $170 per mo. plus utilities. Call 665-3280.

Beautiful Townhouse apt. available June-Sept. with option to renew. 3 bdr., w-w carpeting, AC, swimming pool, ever green enclosed patio, fully modern kitchen and plenty of room to roam. Will rent furnished if desired. Call 549-6804 evenings.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

M or F wanted for summer cottage in Dennisport. 15 wks. $375. 549-1365. Dana.

Own lg. room in Hatfield. Country home w-land. 10 mi. from Amherst. No lease. $61 plus utilities. 247-9358.

1 or 2 roommates wanted. Lg. rm. in Deerfield. Country home. Garden space. Rent negotiable. Call Laura 247-9358.

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedrm., furnished apt. on Bus line. $110. 253-7967.

ROOM WANTED

Priv. spacious room in country near UMass by June 1. Call grace 545-0790.

F, 23, piano, dog. Need home. Cris. 253-3975.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $, for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Typist for final draft of thesis — 100 pages total call 584-1580 early mornings.

HELP WANTED

Applications are now available for employment with conference housing. 25 positions available including clerks, housekeepers, and night mgr. Further information and application forms may be obtained at off. of Residential Life, 233 Hills N. Deadline for returning applications — 4-14-75. SCH is an affirm. Action Employer.

TYPING

Students — Avoid last minute rush. Have papers etc. typed early. Call 253-7454 or 253-7145.

PERSONALS

Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Future CPA's. Learn how to prepare for the CPA exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.

Happiness is...Being a Lambda. Rhoda, Tina, Nancy.

Cape Cod anyone? We need one or two more people to share a house in W. Yarmouth. If interested, call Dave 6-7008 before noon.

Cathy — Thanks for returning my lost letter. Carol.

To the guy from Kennedy who rescued my suitcase at Southwest — Thank You!

Al, I'm not going to miss another Sylvan Party. Meet me at the Big Bad Boogie! It'll cost us less than a nite at any bar and we'll have 2 times the fun.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Yogapiano. 549-6321. Carole Shanti.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job to small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Karmechanics — All auto repairs. Fiat specialists. People's prices. We'll teach you too! 665-7145.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years. $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information — 545-0202.

THIS WEEK IN THE BLUEWALL: Tuesday, April 1, — Fat, 9-1; Wed. and Thurs., April 2 & 3 — Night Hawks; Fri. and Sat., April 4 & 5 — Forest, 9-1; Sunday, April 6 — Jazz Jam Session. At the Toc, Thurs.-Sat., — Pzazz Dixieland Jazz Band.

THE PARTY OF THE YEAR!! The big bad boogie — with the Luther Johnson Blues Band — Sat. Night — Admission only $2 for a great band, loads of liquid refreshment including at least 15 kegs of beer...9 p.m., Worcester Commons.

Sylvan does it again! The Big Bag Boogie. Bound to be better than last year. Sat. at 9 p.m. $2. Worcester Commons.

FREE

Puppies. Free. 253-5380.

Free — Kittens, 6 wks. old. Call 549-2629 after 5 p.m.

MISCELLANEOUS

Wanted bird nests for cash, resident 110, Cliffside, Sunderland. 03175.

Hand-tamed hooded rats, light and dark. M & F. 50c ea. 549-6449.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available. Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

ACROSS
1 ----put: Field event
5 Eddie ----: Olympics champ
10 Shade
14 Affection
15 Moslem decree
16 Persian poet
17 Part of the great outdoors: 2 words
19 Impossible: 2 words
20 Most high-strung
21 Piled orderly
23 More slippery
25 Small: Suffix
26 Reveal
29 Mistaken person
34 Arabian Sea gulf
35 Body of an organism
37 Directly below
38 Tree
39 Rubbed gently
41 Previous to 42 Hasty
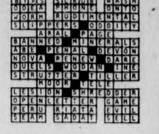
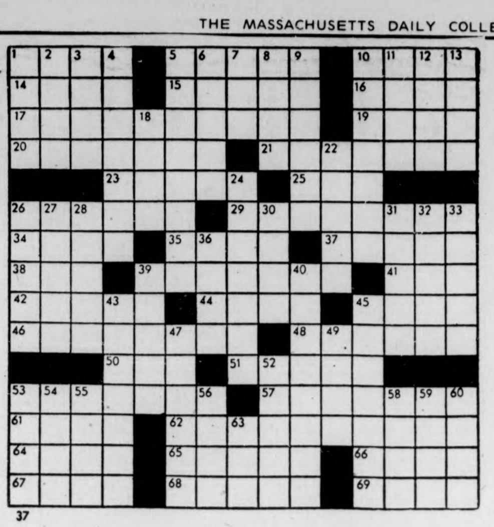
44 War god
45 Indian of Iowa
46 Meetings
48 Old Testament book
50 Playing card
51 Varnish ingredient
53 Ridges
57 Eye expert
61 Undersized animal
62 Feminine cabalist
64 African plant
65 Protectress of women
66 Terrestrial
67 Clutter
68 Horrify
69 Uncanny

DOWN
1 Track of a deer
2 Expectation
3 Drying apparatus
4 Uneasy suspense
5 Drunkest
6 Speak publicly
7 Shellac ingredient
8 Summer drinks
9 Wise old man
10 Relate to
11 In a frenzied manner
12 Flavoring
13 Trampled
18 Cut: Suffix
22 Not whispered
24 Bitter regret
26 Removes
27 Boy's name
28 Nasal passages
30 Scrape
31 Utopian
32 Antitoxin fluid
33 Travels by ox wagon
36 Algerian city
39 Farm enclosures
40 Not general
43 Sizable pieces of land
45 Ship's canvas
47 American Indian
49 Priggish
52 Blackmore heroine
53 Stuff
54 Control
55 Slugger ---- Slaughter
56 Small piece cut off
58 Arrow poison
59 Asterisk
60 Toronto Telegram's old nickname
63 Plumbing item

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved





37

Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

WEDNESDAY, April 2 — Born today, you are deeply interested in the occult, the mysterious — but you are wise enough and clever enough not to be taken in by fakes and charlatans. With a background of scientific knowledge, you approach any study of the occult from a facts-and-figures point of view, refusing to be misled by emotional responses and reactions to what you don't understand. On the other hand, you seldom take such an approach to an affair of the heart, for you know that love cannot be derived from or thrive in the presence of a computer.

You are a highly inventive, highly original individual, but at the same time you are not one who takes kindly to change. Thus, you have a conflict that springs from your inner nature. You will want to put your new ideas to good use — and you will want to do the same things you have always done and in the way you have always done them. Even your interest in the occult can't overcome your desire for maintaining the status quo.

You have a genuine talent for making friends, but you must take care not to abuse this talent. It would be a simple matter for you to ease your way through life by riding the coattails of all those successful persons willing to take you along with them — but it would not teach you much about life or give you the kind of self-respect you are looking for.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Thursday, April 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Complete plans for a new project — and don't worry should you not gain the support you expected from sources close to home. Time brings changes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Be ready to take your place in the limelight late in the day. Now is a good time to demonstrate to others your talent for keeping your cool.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Important business matters must not be set aside in favor of accepting a social invitation — no matter how long you may have been waiting for the latter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — There is little to be said for the avoidance of hard work today — since only through such work can you possibly know gain by day's end.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Stick to the company of close friends. You may not be able to make yourself clearly understood by any who are not used to your manner of speaking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Educational matters may come to a head this morning. Don't be surprised should you find yourself in a position of authority — unexpectedly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Keep social contacts aware of each other. Make an effort to introduce younger family members to new methods of operation where home hobbies are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — A day when you will make or break your own luck. Prosper through the application of talents you've been neglecting lately.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — So long as you are aware of the facts and figures of whatever "case" you are arguing, you should be able to win your point by evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Business and pleasure vie with each other for your attention today, especially during morning hours. You would do well to attend to career matters first.

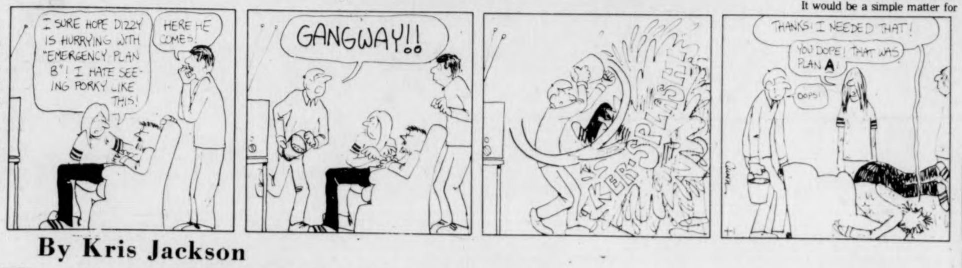
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Complete work already begun. Don't hesitate to confide in a friend if you find yourself unable to move ahead quickly. Seek advice from experts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Keep to your usual routine — but only to the extent that you don't have to ignore a new opportunity for gain in order to do so.

United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

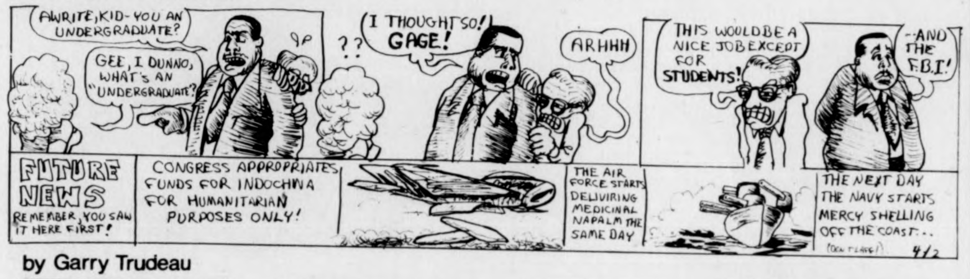
DIZZY & PAUL



I SURE HOPE DIZZY IS HURRYING WITH "EMERGENCY PLAN B"! I HATE SEEING PORKY LIKE THIS!
HERE HE COMES!
GANGWAY!!
KER-SPLASH!
THANKS! I NEEDED THAT!
YOU DOPE! THAT WAS PLAN A!
OOPS!

By Kris Jackson

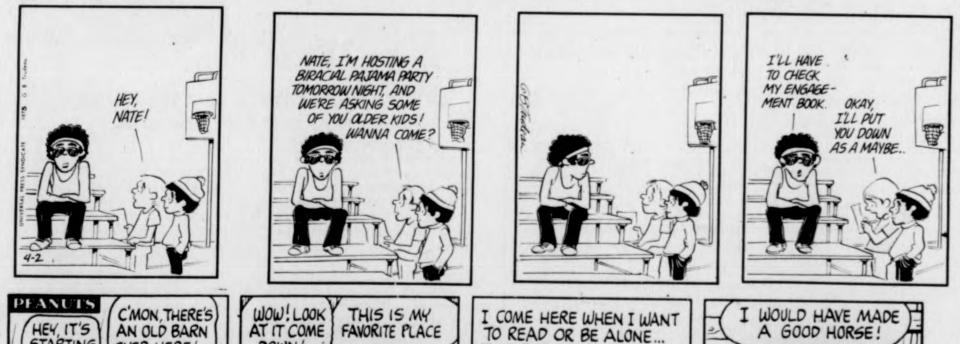
KAMPUS KAPERS



AWRITE, KID- YOU AN UNDERGRADUATE?
GEE, I DUNNO, WHAT'S AN "UNDERGRADUATE"?
??
I THOUGHT SO! GAGE!
ARHHH
THIS WOULD BE A NICE JOB EXCEPT FOR STUDENTS!
--AND THE F.B.I.!
FUTURE NEWS
REMEMBER, YOU SAW IT HERE FIRST!
CONGRESS APPROPRIATES FUNDS FOR INDOCHINA FOR HUMANITARIAN PURPOSES ONLY!
THE AIR FORCE STARTS DELIVIRING MEDICINAL NAPALM THE SAME DAY
THE NEXT DAY THE NAVY STARTS MERCY SHELLING OFF THE COAST...
4/2

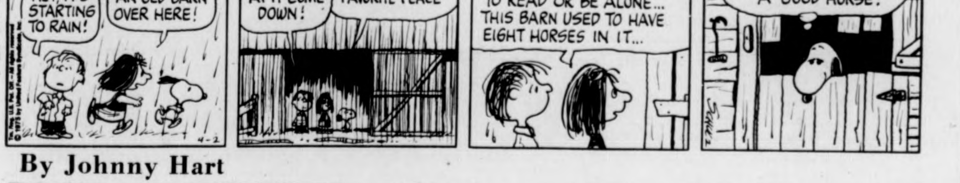
by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY



HEY, NATE!
NATE, I'M HOSTING A BIRACIAL PAJAMA PARTY TOMORROW NIGHT, AND WE'RE ASKING SOME OF YOU OLDER KIDS! WANNA COME?
I'LL HAVE TO CHECK MY ENGAGEMENT BOOK.
OKAY, I'LL PUT YOU DOWN AS A MAYBE..
4-2

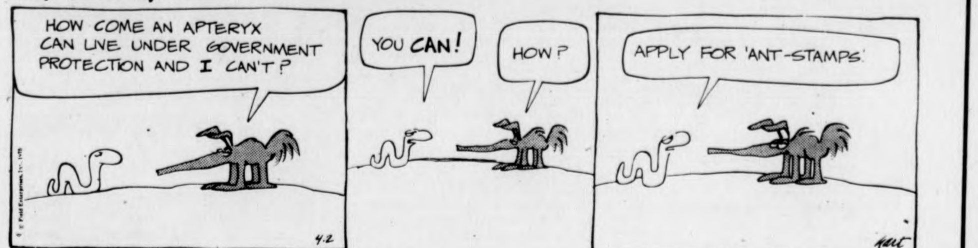
PEANUTS



PEANUTS
HEY, IT'S STARTING TO RAIN!
C'MON, THERE'S AN OLD BARN OVER HERE!
WOW! LOOK AT IT COME DOWN!
THIS IS MY FAVORITE PLACE
I COME HERE WHEN I WANT TO READ OR BE ALONE... THIS BARN USED TO HAVE EIGHT HORSES IN IT...
I WOULD HAVE MADE A GOOD HORSE!
4-2

By Johnny Hart

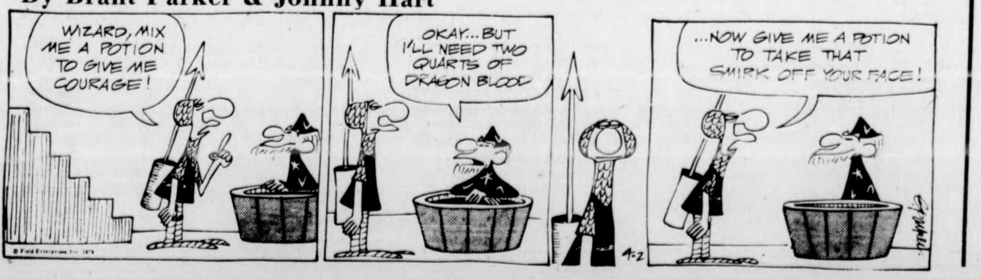
B.C.



HOW COME AN APTERYX CAN LIVE UNDER GOVERNMENT PROTECTION AND I CAN'T?
YOU CAN!
HOW?
APPLY FOR 'ANT-STAMPS'.
4.2
hart

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID



WIZARD, MIX ME A POTION TO GIVE ME COURAGE!
OKAY... BUT I'LL NEED TWO QUARTS OF DRAGON BLOOD
...NOW GIVE ME A POTION TO TAKE THAT SMIRK OFF YOUR FACE!
4-2

Fiscal freedom upheld

cont. from p. 1

Committee chairman, said he is not going to oppose Harrington's decision at this time because it will mean holding up a $70 million deficiency budget."

Kelly said a fiscal policy at UMass which disturbs him is the expenses of the president's office. "It seems to me that the administration in education has taken the freedom to spend as much money as they want. They're supposed to act responsibly in areas of education and right now I don't think they are," Kelly said.

Kelly is also "deeply disturbed" about the administration salary schedule and the apparent abuse of the funding of three "consultants." I think we have to take reasonable action to prevent its reoccurrence," Kelly said.

The salary schedule Kelly refers to is a report which shows that many of the top administrators in state financed schools of higher education make more than $40,000 a year, including UMass President Wood who earns $[illegible]0,939 yearly. Also, former UMass president John W. Lederle is paid $40,700 as a professor and Maurice Donahue, former Massachusetts Senate president is paid $33,500 as the Institute director of Governmental Service and as lecturer at UMass.

State Representative, Jim Collins, (D—Amherst) reacting to the Legislature's move to strike Kelly's amendment, said the Legislature's act was a "good act."

"It's important for the university, and all institutions of higher education, to retain fiscal autonomy," Collins said, "to insure that higher education is isolated and protected from state politics."

Collins said fiscal autonomy is a "privilege" granted only to state universities and that the state government should not interfere with this privilege. Collins added state universities should "re-earn" this privilege to let the taxpayers know that the students are getting a quality education at the lowest possible price.

Chancellor of higher education, Patrick McCarthy, defended the need for fiscal autonomy and condemned any move to restrict it by saying "we would be going back 10 years."

Nu? who?

NU?, the Five College Jewish Monthly invites you to attend the first official five college family staff meeting; on Wed., April 2, 1975 at 4:30, in the Campus Center Room No. 168-170. Everyone is welcome, bring along friends, writers, reviewers, photographers, artists, business managers, staff workers, typists, or anyone interested in helping, no experience necessary just the desire to work, for a growing Jewish newspaper.

Jeanne Abrahamson Co-captains Pat Glispin

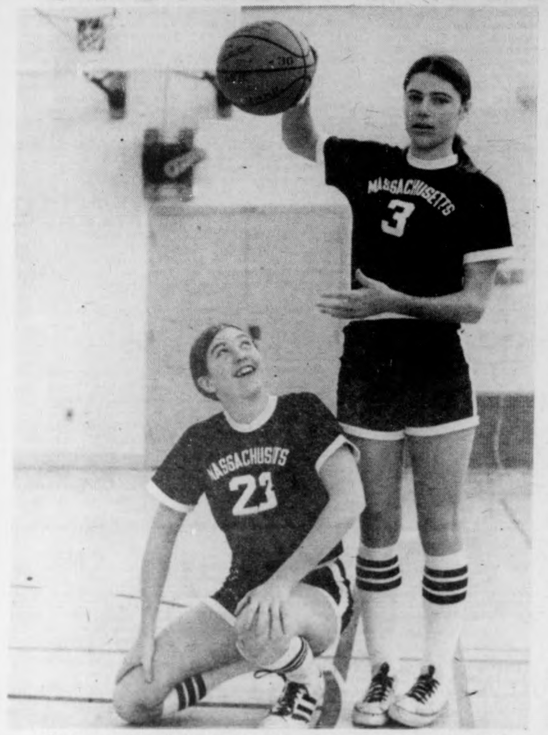
Women's basketball team leaders



Jeanne Abrahamson and Pat Glispin, woman's basketball co-captains.

By GREG LEVINS

Pat Glispin is the type of player every coach dreams about. At 5'7" Pat has played center, forward, and guard during her four year varsity career at UMass.

Coach Carol Albert describes Pat as "the fastest player on the team, good acceleration, strong legs, our best outside shooter and a player who gets the most out of her 5'7"."

Pat came to UMass after an illustrious career at Grafton High School. During her playing days at Grafton, Pat twice led her team to post season tourneys and in the process won the squad's Most Valuable Player award both years. After her senior campaign (a season in which she was elected captain) Pat opted for UMass "primarily because of its Phys. Ed. program."

Starting as far back as her freshman year, Pat made her presence known on the varsity. Overcoming her apparent height disadvantage through exceptional leaping ability, poise, and hard work she moved right in as a starting forward for the Minutewomen.

Injuries proved one of the few ways to stop Pat during her stay at UMass. Pat missed many a game due to a wide variety of ailments ranging from concussions and shoulder problems to "mere" sprained ankles and knees. The injury "bug" seemed to have left Pat this year until she suffered an ankle injury in action against Worcester State. This nagging injury shelved Pat for four games and sent her into the tourney well below top strength.

Despite these hindering ailments by her junior year Pat had become the teams third highest scorer, pouring in 101 points at an 8.4 ppg. That same year Pat finished second in rebounding pulling down over five caroms per outing. Always a cautious player, Pat committed only 21 turnovers while playing the majority of 12 games.

Prior to the season, Pat was named co-captain along with Jeanne Abrahamson. Under a brand new coach (Carol Albert) Pat was switched from the frontcourt to the backcourt. Pat recalls the switch as "shaky at first but I really enjoyed playing guard in the end. I had never really worked on ball handling before and it game me an entirely different perspective on the game."

Looking back on her years as a Minutewoman, Pat calls her most "memorable experiences" having the opportunity to play against the Australian National Team and being elected co-captain.

Abrahamson, spirit from the sideline

By GREG LEVINS

Four years ago when Jeanne Abrahamson came to UMass she never expected to make the women's varsity basketball team during her first year. Jeanne had just completed a four year career at Minnechaug High School in Wilbraham by leading her club to its third straight league championship.

Always a real competitor, Jeanne realized that at 5'7" she didn't have the necessary size to become a starting forward. However, when she was called on, Jeanne always responded with an inspired, hustling play that typified the type of competitor she is. More often than not, playing against bigger and stronger forwards, Jeanne learned to make up what she lacked in size through intelligent heads-up play.

Coach Carol Albert called Jeanne "The type of player that promotes cohesiveness, and a player with tremendous composure and poise." Obviously her teammates thought as highly of Jeanne as Coach Albert and it is reflected in their electing her captain both this year and last.

Being named co-captain Jeanne described as "really a big thrill; it really meant a lot to me."

Jeanne's most valuable asset to the Minutewomen was her leadership qualities. Coach Albert noted that "even though she didn't see much action, Jeanne was always rooting for the team which helped provide a good sense of rapport."

Jeanne attributed much of this year's success to a "change in attitudes of the players." Coach Albert and many of Jeanne's teammates attribute this attitude change to the fine leadership of both Jeanne and Pat Gillispin.

During her four years at UMass, Jeanne calls her greatest thrills "facing the Australian National Team, being named co-captain and the tremendous team effort given against Queens in the regional tourney."

"Basketball here at UMass meant everything to me," said Jeanne. "It has been my most enjoyable experience. I looked forward to playing every day. You get to know all the people and go through various highs and lows. It is without a doubt the thing I'll miss most when I leave UMass."

Next year Jeanne plans to go on to high school teaching and coaching. With the use of the dedication and leadership she has displayed at UMass, there is little doubt in the minds of any who've known her, that Jeanne Abrahamson will be a valuable asset to any school.

SOPHOMORES

If Your Major Is:

Computer Technology
Aerospace Engineering
Civil Engineering
Electrical Engineering
General Engineering
Industrial Engineering
Mechanical Engineering
Mathematics or Physics

You may be eligible for a two-year scholarship and a commission in the Air Force — Call 5-2437 or stop by Rm. 205, Dickinson Hall.

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.

SPECIALISTS IN QUALITY LIGHT WEIGHT
BACKPACKING AND MOUNTAINEERING EQUIPMENT

Located on Rte. 9 Hadley-Amherst Line AMHERST

STORE HOURS:
MON.-FRI., 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.
SAT., 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

APRIL 2 — 5
Semi-Annual
Rental and Spring-Winter Equipment
SALE

30 – 60% Off all Rental Equipment, depending upon condition, including.
X-C Ski Outfits, Down Sleeping Bags, Pack Frames, Tents, Foam Pads, and Snowshoes.

Qty.	Item	Sugg. Price	Sale Price
	PARKAS
10	Alp Expedition 1974 Model	$110.00	$88.00
28	Alp Glacier with hood 1974 Model	95.00	76.00
6	Gerry Makalu 1974 Model	72.00	58.50
21	Mansfield with hood	57.50	45.50
35	EMS Down Vest	22.50	17.00
	Sizes and Colors As Available
	CLOTHING
30	Norwegian Wool Sweaters	$22.00	$16.50
122	Down Booties	12.95	9.25
84	El Cheapo Rain Parka	14.00	10.95
65	El Cheapo Rain Pants	11.00	8.95
	PACKS
8	EMS B Pack and Frame (Old Style)	$45.00	$27.50
14	EMS Expedition Bag and Frame	54.50	39.50
96	C.T. Canyone Bag and Frame	34.50	27.50
15	C.T. Nylon Bag and Frame	29.50	12.95
15	Gerry Vagabond (Old Style)	40.00	25.95

Qty.	Item	Sugg. Price	Sale Price
	TENTS
10	Alpine Designs Backpacker	$95.00	$80.00
36	EMS Kaskawalsh	115.00	85.00
15	EMS Mosquito Net	85.00	65.00
18	Gerry Year Round II (1974 Model)	115.00	89.50
	SLEEPING BAGS
9	Gerry Camper — Reg.	$105.00	$78.95
13	Gerry Camper — Lg.	110.00	82.95
19	EMS Teton	94.50	79.50
22	EMS Estes	79.50	69.50
34	EMS Sandpiper	57.50	49.50
6	EMS Dhaulagiri — Reg.	130.00	105.00
9	EMS Dhaulagiri — Lg.	140.00	112.00
13	EMS Robson — Reg.	99.50	82.00
17	EMS Robson — Lg.	106.50	86.00
19	EMS Minilight — Reg.	92.50	74.50
24	EMS Minilight — Lg.	97.50	79.50
15	EMS Pocono, Jr.	30.00	26.00
	BOOTS Special Introductory Offer
84 pr.	EMS Katahdin	$34.95	$27.95

Ruggers at home Bucknell opponent

By NEIL KELLY

The University of Massachusetts Rugby Club opened it's spring season this weekend in Medford against the Pilgrims, a strong club from Boston. When the afternoon was over the A side walked away with a 17-14 victory. The B side was never able to get untracked and would up on the short end of a 7-0 score. The A team put their points on the board as a result of some excellent running by inside center, Ricky Lopes and by wing Jay Appleman. Lopes scored two trys and Appleman one, as both backs utilized their speed in outracing Pilgrim defenders to the try line. Outside center, Walter Elsmore ran hard all day and was able to come up with many important tackles when the Pilgrim backs had the ball.

UMass rugby teams of the past have usually been quick and fast and this season's could rely heavily on both of those things. In many games, the Minutemen forwards are faced with trying to overpower and outmanuever a larger opposing scrum. Because it's the scrums job to get the ball out to the backs, the Minutemen forwards really have their work cut out for them in just about every game. Once the scrum has gotten the ball out to the backs, the Minuteman attack is set into motion. The overlap is the most basic form of attack the backs use. Overlapping is simply passing the ball down the back line and getting to the outside of the backline, hoping for a return pass in order to keep the attack moving. Speed and agility enable the UMass backs to bring a few options into their attack. They also utilize a scissors which oftentimes springs a back free because it catches the opposition off balance. Long runs and a razzle dazzle style of play really add to the excitement of the game, and are usually greatly appreciated by the spectators.

The UMass Rugby Club will open it's home schedule this afternoon against Bucknoll, a club which is presently touring New England. The game will begin at 2:30 on the rugby field across the street from Boyden, directly behind the tennis courts. The club would really appreciate some support, so come on out and watch the game.

Frank Robinson will be highlight, probaseball season forecast is good

NEW YORK [UPI] — The 1975 major league baseball season, already predestined for the history books, officially opens Monday at four sites and there is a general optimism among top officials that this year could be one of the more memorable in the game's annals.

The naming of the game's first black manager, Frank Robinson at Cleveland, already gives this season a unique place in history. Further, the prospect of four tight divisional races and deals that sent some of the game's prominent starts to new teams has set the stage for an intriguing campaign.

"Fans don't expect me to be anything but an optimist, but I haven't known a year on this job when I could visualize four divisional races as tight and exciting as we could have in 1975," says Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "I see multi-team raches in each division as a distinct likelihood.

American Leage East — Baltimore and New York are the two strongest teams in HE Division. The Orioles, while perhaps not as deep in pitching as the Yankees, have a better defense and hence rate an edge. Boston, Milwaukee and Cleveland should battle for third with Detroit bringing up the rear.

American Leage West — Oakland is considerably weaker in the pitching department with Hunter having departed, but the A's still have best personnel in division. Texas, with acquisition of Willie Davis to fill centerfield hole, looks to be strongest opposition. Minnesota, the best team in the division over the last six weeks of last season, rates as a darkhorse candidate. Kansas City and Chicago lack pitching while California has pitching but little else.

National League East — Either Pittsburgh, St. Louis, New York or Philadelphia seem capable of winning it yet all have major weaknesses. Pittsburgh has great hitting but little pitching; St. Louis has good hitting and best team speed but suffers from pitching sports; Philadelphia has good hitting and defense but only fair pitching and no bench; New York has fairly good pitching but questionable hitting and poor bullpen. Montreal and Chicago don't measure up to other teams in division.

National League West — Los Angeles or Cincinnati, pick-em. These are two best teams in entire league. Dodgers somewhat weaker in pitching this year without Tommy John but still have strong overall club. Reds are better defensively but don't have a pitcher of the caliber of Dun Sutton or Andy Messersmith. Atlanta, Houston, San Francisco and San Diego are also-rans.

Robinson, however, will undergo the closest scrutiny. Not only is he the game's first black manager but he also will be serving as the first player-manager since Hank Bauer tried it with Kansas City in 1961.

Air Force ROTC...The college scholarship program with sky-high benefits.

Some people might need to be coaxed with more than a full college scholarship to enroll in the Air Force ROTC Program. So, if free tuition, lab and incidental fees aren't enough . . . the Air Force offers a monthly allowance of $100.00, tax-free, in your junior and senior years, even if you are not on scholarship.
And flying lessons to those qualified provide the most exciting benefit of all. Interested?

Contact Air Force ROTC
At Dickinson Hall, Univ. of Mass. Call 5-2437

PUT IT ALL TOGETHER
IN AIR FORCE ROTC

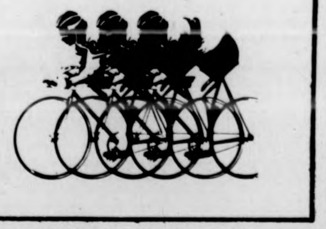
TENNIS TODAY

The UMass netmen begin their 1975 season today with a practice match against a Boston University tennis club.

Boston University has no tennis team but a club was organized by B. U. students.

The match will be played on the courts next to Boyden.

The netmen play Amherst College this Sunday. These practice matches will be preparing the netmen for their first regular season match against Tufts College, April 7.



AMHERST CYCLE SHOP
We've moved to 253 Triangle St.
(near Tech HIFI & Discount Records)

Come in and see our wide selection of bicycles and accessories, or bring your bike in for a spring check-up.

See our other ad on page 13.

Raleigh pro shop

WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
COMPLETE GLASS SERVICE
VALLEY Auto Trim
and Glass Shop
796 N. King St., 'Hamp.
584-4837 1 mi. n. of [illegible] Rt. 5
Installation WHILE YOU WAIT!

Gymwomen ready for Nat's

By BILL DOYLE
Staff Reporter

OAKLAND, Cal. - The UMass women's gymnastics team arrived here at 12:30 yesterday afternoon for the national championships to be held at California State University at Hayward Friday and Saturday, and began preparing for them by sunbathing at the motel poolside.

The Minutewomen will be without the service of freshwoman Pam Stectroat, who will be out for two months with a compressed fracture of her vertebrate, suffered in a fall off the uneven bars in the Easterns when she attempted to mount them.

Steckroat paid her own way out to the Nationals to be with the team and cheer them on. Coach Evans said that the team will miss the 18 year old, 4' 11", 102 pound Steckroat especially on the uneven bars and in vaulting.

Steckroat suffered her injury just when she appeared to be peaking, as she averaged her best vaulting score the day of her injury, placing fourth in the Easterns with a 9.0 and 8.9 score. She also performed her best bar routine of the season, scoring an 8.8 before injuring herself in the finals.

Steckroat will be replaced by Gail Hannan on beam and in vaulting and by Debbie Law on bars and floor.

Evans said that Steckroat had a lot of potential when she came to UMass last fall and that she is slowly developing that potential.

"After she recovers from her injury she should continue to improve," Evans said of Steckroat.

Pam has only been competing for two years in gymnastics, a rarity said Evans. Usually a gymnast starts competing by ninth grade at the latest, but Steckroat didn't compete until halfway through her junior year of high school.

"I joined a gymnastics club February of my junior year of high school," Steckroat explained, "and I really got into the sport. I love to practice every day now."

Evans said that there were times this season when the team had to throw Steckroat out of the gym in order to get her to stop practicing.

"I love the discipline of gymnastics," Steckroat said, "I love the competitiveness and the challenge. I only wish that I got hooked on the sport sooner."

"She has been making up for lost time quickly by improving consistently," said assistant coach Mike Kasavana.

She won the all-arounds in her district of her home town of Middletown, Penn., her senior year of high school. She has taught the sport over the last two summers and plans to do the same this summer. And, of course, she improved enough in two short years to be an important cog on a team that oould very well win the national championship.

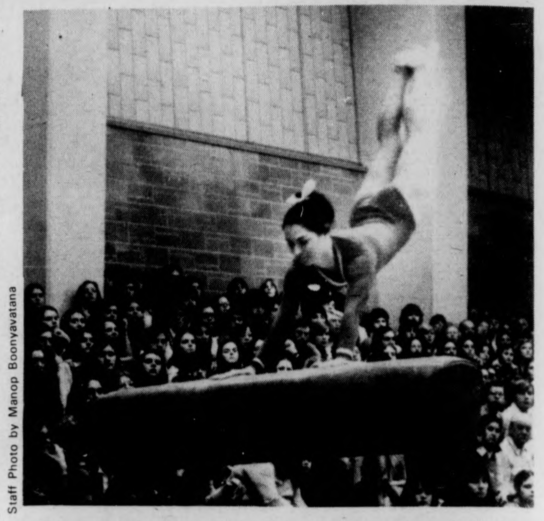
GYM GEMS: A local paper rates Southern Illinois, Southeastern Mississippi Jr. College, and Springfield College as the favorites for the nationals. UMass wasn't even mentioned despite the fact that the Minutewomen defeated Springfield twice this year in two meetings.

Coach Evans expressed disappointment that she won't be able to the order in which the team will compete or the time of the competition until Thursday night.

"I'd like to know because it could throw of our practice a little," she said.

Steckroat said that she misses practice already.

Kasavana said that Pam's injury puts more pressure on the rest of the team to hit their routines. He said that he thinks the team can make up for her loss if the gymnasts can hit.



Staff Photo by Manop Boonyavatana

Jeanine Burger will be leading the UMass Minutewomen gymnasts in the National Championships this week in Hayward, California.

Gym coach Dunn may be hired again

By BEN CASWELL

Men's gymnastics coach Tom Dunn has been offered a full-time coaching position once again in one part of a proposal that will go to the complete Athletic Department and the Athletic Council for consideration before it is confirmed.

The offer comes as somewhat of a surprise after the Athletic Department's decision last spring not to rehire a full-time men's gymnastics coach after this season.

That decision was met with much disagreement from the team and from the student body as indicated by 12,000 petition signatures that were collected.

"There are many changes that we are proposing right now," said Athletic Director Frank McInerney, "Tom Dunn would be offered a full-time gymnastics coaching position and his job would also include duties as the diving coach for the men's and women's swim team and possibly some track work with women's track that is also part of this proposal.

"It must be understood that this is still a proposal," said McInerney, "it is a proposal that will be offered to the whole Athletic Department for consideration and then, of course, to the Athletic Council for their advice.

Other points in the proposal, continued McInerney, "are the restructuring of the track and golf programs, so as to include women. Also we hope to use more graudate assistants in the intramural program than we have in the past."

At the present, all of the women that coach varsity level teams at UMass are in the school of Physical Education and are not members of the Athletic Department. Another part of this "proposal" would provide for the naming of two women coaches to be part of the Athletic Department. Another part of this "proposal" would provide for the naming of two women coaches to be part of the Athletic Department.

"Except for Vivian Barfield (the new assistant Athletic Director), all of the women are now in the school of Physical Education with adjunct responsibilities," said McInerney. "Equality is the key word," he said, "and we want to have everyone on an equitable basis."

Coach Tom Dunn said that McInerney's job offer to him came as somewhat of a surprise after the decision of last year.

"He (McInerney) told me that he assumed that the terms of the contract related to salary would have to be the same according to university regulations concerning renewing contracts."

Dunn had been put in charge of a search committee earlier in the year to find a replacement for himself as a part-time coach. "Right at the time when we were going to finalize who would get that part-time position (probably present assistant coach Bob Koenig) Mr. McInerney told me we were going to hire a coach full-time. After three years of evaluation, it seems the department saw enough worth in the program to want to stick with it," said Dunn.

Dunn has had other offers from both private businesses and other universities, the most attractive of which is the assistant coaching job in gymnastics at Penn State with the assurance of becoming head coach after next year when present coach Gene Wettstone retires.

In dealing with the UMass offer Dunn will be looking past next year and hopes to have some idea as to what the future holds.

"If this is just going to be another one year thing," said Dunn, "I might as well leave now."

Staff Photo by Bill Howell

A few of Garber's Gorillas dig in front of the Boston University cage in a previous scrimmage game. The Gorillas will be digging behind Boyden at 3:00 p.m. this Thursday against UConn.

Steve Saraceno

Diamond Facelift

As we pick up the action, the nefarious Dr. Hookslide, head of the UMass crank sciences department as well as mad professor and ardent baseball fan, is completing the final stage of his bizarre experiment – "Body-Transferral Over Space and Time Coordinates."

Strapped to the chair of a colossal machine is one of Hookslide's inept students, a helpless lass looking only for extra credit.

"Are you sure this is safe, Professor?" the girls asks as the machine's roar increases.

Shouts Hookslide, "Yes, yes! Everything's okay!" But then he grins deviously and mutters to himself: "Ha, ha! Little does she know, she is about to be sent back to the year 1848 – whereupon my machine will then exchange her for a specially selected person of that era to be transported back here!

"She will be lost forever, but," he continues insanely, "what do I care? For I will have transported to the present, the immortal inventor of baseball ..." and Hookslide shudders with joy," ...Alexander Cartwright!"

[Ed. Note – Abner Doubleday did not, as some still believe, invent baseball. Alexander Joy Cartwright is generally credited with this, as he established ninety-foot baselines, nine men per team, and nine innings as basic parameters of the game.]

The transporter does its hideous work and Alexander Cartwright appears in the chair.

"Where am I?" he asks, incredulous.

"Greetings, Mr. Cartwright," says Hookslide. "I admire you greatly, and have brought you here for a reason. I want to show you the heresy now rampant in the game you invented, our beloved sport of Baseball. Perhaps you, in all your glory, can finally put a stop to such desecration."

- - - -

Thus it was agreed, and though it was cold and drizzly outside, a full-dress practice of the UMass varsity was called, for Hookslide's a man of great pull in the athletic department.

"But baseball is a warm weather game," protested Cartwright.

"Not anymore," related Hookslide sadly. "At this moment, the season is a week old."

What then appeared before their eyes horrified them greatly.

"Egad!" screamed Cartwright. "Is that a ...metal bat?"

"Aluminum," nodded the doctor. "They say they're more durable, deliver less sting ..."

"What are those players wearing? Modern underwear?"

"No," answered the prof, "the uniforms are polyester double-knits. Supposedly more stylish and less restraining than the old flannel."

"Whatever," sighed the immortal, "happened to my knickers? And are those giant things on the players' hands just to keep them warm on days like this? Or are they, gasp, modern baseball gloves?"

"Natch. Gloves like the Wilson A2000 are big, flexible, and the direct antithesis of the gloves of your day, Mr. Cartwright, when men were men, and our American flag flew proudly.

"So," continued the tearful Dr. Hookslide, "will you put a stop to this madness? They've even changed the rules so a pitcher doesn't have to bat if he doesn't want to! Imagine that? And the pitchers are throwing these little curveballs, devastating things they call "sliders", so hitting has never been worse!

"And to top it all off," finished the now bonkers Dr. Hookslide, "some fields don't have grass anymore!"

"No grass?" Cartwright asked, afraid of the answer.

"No. They use a fake covering made out of chemicals. It's called "artificial turf".

With that, the crazed Mr. Cartwright dashed back to the lab with Hookslide in hot pursuit.

"What?" panted the disappointed professor, "you're not going to help me?"

"No way," retorted Cartwright, hopping back on the transporter seat. "Send me back to my time. After seeing the future, I'm gonna forget all about baseball and take up ranching."

"Why ranching?"

"Well," explained Cartwright, "my brother Ben has this big place, the Ponderosa, and he's been having trouble handling it with only his three sons to help out ..."

UYA Center recruitment in full swing

By LARRY SCOTT
UYA Center Staff

The UYA Center for Experimental Education is presently recruiting students from the University of Massachusetts and the Five College community for pre-professional internships to begin in June, 1975. These internships are for a full year. Students will receive academic credit, medical insurance, and a stipend while interning.

Last summer, June 17 - 22, 1975, fifty-eight students from UMass, two from Smith College, and one from Amherst College, began their Phase VI "Year for ACTION" internships during a six-day training and orientation period at the Northfield Inn in Northfield, Massachusetts.

During the conference the students met with former Interns and professionals from various public service agencies as well as faculty members from the University, along with the UYA Center Staff.

Various workshops were held to discuss the responsibilities and objectives of the Intern as well as locating relevant resources available to them that they might not know about. The information given in the workshops proved invaluable.

The UYA Center staff and Interns, are well into the third quarter of Phase VI operations. We are presently recruiting for Phase VII operations. They will begin in June, 1975.

From resources compiled, it has been a most productive and rewarding year.

As the UYA Center program grows, it is maintaining its status as the biggest and most successful in the country. We, at the UYA Center, have become involved in more and varied programs and have ventured into new areas, such as this year's initial cost-sharing attempt and committments of new agencies; and our pilot program Summer '74, which was conceived in an effort to involve more minority students in the program.

The objective of this newsletter is three-fold: for those who are not familiar with UYA Center program and desire information; for recruiting those interested in joining the UYA Center Phase VII program; and for initiating a UYA Center Intern Consortium by compiling resources by general service categories.

The UYA Center is recruiting for Phase VII Interns. If interested — act immediately! The UYA Center program offers you a full year's internship at a public and community service agency in Massachusetts, in the areas of Health, Law, Communications, Education and Public Welfare; a full year of academic credit; a living allowance; and medical insurance

April 3, 1975
page 1A

University Year for Action

a Collegian supplement

Interns respond to year in UYA

The following article includes some reactions of UYA Interns, who are presently participating in Phase VI to their year in Action.

Despite the discouraging level of legal service given poor people by the Justice Department, Intern Cynthia Jacques feels that an individual can do a great deal in the legal services office.

Jacques has been involved in recruitment for Third World paralegals, while carrying heavy caseloads. She has produced a television show on housing and consumer advocacy. Cynthia provides information about Chapter 766 to clients. She is presently working on an individual Chapter 766 case evaluation

Currently, Cynthia has been working with another organization: Center for Technological Alternatives. The organization is working on issues on legal drug abuse in the Springfield School system and the National Food Day on April 17 and Privacy legislation. She has been compiling resources on the privacy abuse issue.

Cynthia states that she has learned mostly the art of compromise and learning how to work in a community agency. She feels the UYA experience was valuable. Now she has a "gut feeling for the theoretical and analysis obtained in the classroom." Jacques says "I would never recommend my experience for those who plan to use this experience to attend law school, for moral reasons. I resent them coming here with that kind of attitude because what they are doing is 'ripping off' the people in the community. I would recommend it to someone ready to understand the immediate problems and those who really have an open mind."

Nina Kalckar is a UYA Intern at South Worcester Neighborhood Center in Worcester, Massachusetts. Nina is interning as the Nutrition and Health Program Coordinator for the Center.

She has worked on a city wide hypertension program, a pilot program funded by the Massachusetts Heart Association. Over two hundred people have been screened.

There is a nutrition course operating out of the Center sponsored by the Worcester County Extension Service. The course demonstrates the way in which one could get the most nutritional value from inexpensive food for large families.

She also coordinated a health survey along with volunteers from Worcester State College to determine the overall health need in the Worcester area. The results will be used for future applications for funding for health centers.

There is also a Yoga class taught at the South Worcester Branch Library coordinated by the Center workers and herself.

Nina is currently working on improved services from the health clinics and hospitals in the area. Some transportation must be arranged to take people to the clinics and hospitals. In South Worcester there is little public transportation. She is working on door to door transportation.

Nina has 'institutionalized' her position at the Center. The Neighborhood Center is hiring a full-time staff member to coordinate the health programs.

In response to the question, How was your "University Year for ACTION?" Lisbeth Berman said, "My experience at Western Mass. Family Planning Council has been really great. I have learned how to do many things within a community organization and how that organization exists in the community it serves. First I will tell some of the things I have done

turn to p. 3a

WANTED: students

Are you interested in a full year of UMass credit to work on community-based off-campus programs?

Come to the UYA recruitment meeting tomorrow night in Campus Center room 905 at 7 p.m.

Dennis Martin, a former UYA Intern, officiates a soccer game with one of his physical education classes at the Lawrence School in Holyoke.

UYA Center objectives include increased minority participation

The following article was written by Larry Scott, a minority student who was a UYA Intern and presently is working in the UYA office.

Since the UYA program began, there has been little participation by minority students. This can be attributed to the lack of exposure of experiential education programs the University has to offer.

Most minority students come from low-income backgrounds and areas. Being able to attend college is, in itself, quite an accomplishment. The low-income minority student perceives the same academic process as the middle class student, that being the traditional classroom procedure, books, exams, term papers, i.e., as an extension of high school. They are not involved in a work experience that can prepare them for post-college work in their respective disciplines.

Since there has been and still is a low number of minority students in the program, we at the UYA Center have tried various means of recruitment. We have been stifled by misinformation, non-information, and misconceptions of the program held by the students. The minority student, because of his background, cannot afford to become an "Intern". Summer '74 was an effort whereby the UYA Center could attract minority students, pay them enough to cover their tuition and living expenses for the coming school year, and at the same time, orient them to experiential education.

The students who participated would learn about their major discipline, the world outside the classroom, their employer and fellow employees, and how to deal with pre-professional positions simultaneously. They would have some idea of the decision making policies relative to urban problems, and would learn how to deal with people different from themselves.

We accomplished the initial goal of giving the student the option of off-campus learning. Twenty-one students were involved in the program, and all the students have stated they have had a rewarding experience. Most of the students

turn to p. 3a

Springfield UYA head lauds intern

Springfield Youth Resource Bureau director, Richard Couture in a recent UYA interview, stated that UYA Intern Sandra Rigazio has been an asset to Youth Resource Bureau programs.

Couture said, "Since Sandra is considered a regular staff member, she must carry the normal amount of caseloads. She has the same responsibilities as other professional staff members. In that way she benefits the agency and most importantly the children and the whole social service community in Springfield as well."

Youth Resource Bureau was initiated in Springfield in 1971, when a number of local citizens concerned with the rise in juvenile delinquency came together and identified the need for such an organization. The aim of the agency is directed towards delinquency prevention. The agency provides one to one counseling and covers any need that arises from that particular youth and his family in matters such as welfare, school supervision of the child and other related actions.

The Youth Resource Bureau works closely with the court in CHINS cases (Children in Need of Services). CHINS cases constitute a large portion of the Bureaus caseload.

Sandra's functions include one to one counseling; teaching arts and crafts to a group of fourteen youngsters; working closely with the Junior League of Springfield to set up an alternative school that will have accreditation in the fall from the Springfield School System; and contacts with the Springfield Child Welfare Committee.

Couture added, "We enjoy having UYA Interns here, even though this is our first year having a UYA Intern on our staff. This has been a positive experience and I am sure that future UYA Interns will benefit the agency."

UYA Intern Resource Listing

A compilation of resources by general service category

Housing

. . . CLIFF LUCE has organized tenant's groups and has handled lock out, delayed employment eligibility, employer-employee conflicts, and health violations of clients at WESTERN MASS. LEGAL SERVICES-GREENFIELD.

. . . MARGARET DEMUTH Intern at WESTERN MASS. LEGAL SERVICES-PITTSFIELD, has done the preliminary orientation with the Urban Coalition on the idea of coordinating a Housing Court.

. . . TOM ROSSETTI Intern at CENTRAL MASS. LEGAL SERVICES-FITCHBURG has been working on cases such as security deposits, landlord-tenant problems, utility shutoffs, etc. Tom has prepared a legal memorandum on a landlord's lien on an evicted tenant's property.

Legal Services

VICES - WORCESTER Intern, MAUREEN 57 along with NANCY FITZGERALD, CHANNEL 57 Intern. The show was a bilingual show informing those in the Western Massachusetts areas about housing advocacy. CYNTHIA is currently working with Chapter 766 provisional cases.

TOCMAN and HAMPSHIRE COMMUNITY ACTION COMMISSION-NORTHAMPTON. Co-worker PATRICIA KEENAN has organized a new lead paint volunteer group of 25 UMASS volunteers. She is instructing them in procedures to measure lead levels in paint. Each volunteer will receive academic credit. PAT has established a community housing resource collection. Co-worker JAMES WALSH has been working on an eviction check sheet.

UYA Interns utilize a management by objectives approach to the problems they work on in the community. This Planned Impact Programming allows Interns to measure their progress, throughout their field experience, toward the goals they set out to achieve.

Education

. . . DENNIS DESMOND, Intern at R.A.P.-PALMER has prepared alternative education curriculum and cultural enrichment projects for youngsters.

. . . LINDA HOLT, Intern at NEW ENGLAND FARM WORKERS COUNCIL-NORTHAMPTON has drafted a new teaching aid book and has prepared a social security demonstration including an overhead projector series for migrant farm workers.

. . . In the LEOMINSTER SCHOOL DEPARTMENT-SPECIAL EDUCATION UYA Intern GAYLE SABOL is implementing Chapter 766 in the Leominster School System and she works closely with the Core Evaluation Team.

Mental Health

. . . FRED GONZALES, Intern at NEW ENGLAND FARM WORKERS COUNCIL is the Senior Manpower specialist in charge of the Employability Development Team.

. . . SANDRA RICAZIO has been implementing the group dynamics approach to promote improved social behavior and has drafted a new brochure for YOUTH RESOURCES/ SPRINGFIELD.

. . . BOB HALPIN coordinates a Joy of Cooking group two mornings a week for 20 participants. Bob is interning at CENTRAL MASS. LEGAL SERVICES/ FITCHBURG.

Social Services

. . . A CENTRAL MASS. LEGAL SERVICES/ WORCESTER Intern* MAUREEN LOUGHNANE has begun drafting a brochure/ hand-out on Welfare information for Legal Service clients.

. . . WESTERN MASS. LEGAL SERVICES/ SPRINGFIELD Intern CYNTHIA JACQUES produced a TV show on Channel 57 along with NANCY FITZGERALD* CHANNEL 57 Intern. The show as a bilingual show informing those in the Western Massachusetts areas about housing advocacy. CYNTHIA is currently working with Chapter 766 provisional cases.

. . . NEW NEIGHBORHOOD CENTER ANNEX/ WARE opening date was March 19, due to the work of Intern HOWARD TOCMAN and HAMPSHIRE COMMUNITY ACTION COMMISSION/ NORTHAMPTON. Co-worker PATRICIA KEENAN has organized a new lead paint volunteer group of 25 UMASS volunteers. She is instructing them in procedures to measure lead levels in paint. Each volunteer will receive academic credit. PAT has established a community housing resource collection. Co-worker JAMES WALSH has been working on an eviction check sheet.

Health

...AT SOUTH END COMMUNITY CENTER-SPRINGFIELD, Intern CHRIS WANG is working to obtain commitments from area hospitals for setting up a neighborhood health clinic. CHRIS has successfully arranged for the Home-Care program to take over the elderly shopping program entirely. They will not provide the drivers, vans, and assistants to maintain the program that the Interns initiated. CHRIS will provide the necessary orientation for Home-Care Volunteers.

Performance round-up on UYA Interns

At Belchertown State School, two interns, majoring in industrial engineering, have completed an inventory report. They also designed a new vending machine lunch room. Their analysis of the fire escape system provided the base for the most efficient use of the emergency exit chutes. Another Intern is maintaing the token economy program and developmental and behavioral program — dressing, dining, etc. and one to one play therapy. The Interns are presently training other staff and presenting data analysis to other staff. The interns and expanding and redesigning a daily evaluation system.

At Berkshire Unlimited in Pittsfield, a UYA Intern is conducting an experiment to evaluate reinforced setting vs. nonreinforced setting. She designed the equipment and faculty members from the University of Massachusetts Psychology Department and Hampshire College had input in the experiment. She has been providing job orientation for clients and has trained parents.

At Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts in Northampton, two UYA Interns have drafted funding proposals, evaluated medical services and personnel of their agency. They are establishing a vasectomy clinic. One Intern handles inventory and sales on new products for the agency. The Interns have also designed a library which will open on March 10.

At Northampton State Hospital, four Interns have been coodinating the services of community and student volunteers. One Intern works two days in the community. He holds basketball and yoga clinics one evening a week for the residents. He also takes them bowling. The Interns had a unit bazaar on February 21, 1975 that brought residents, their families and hospital staff together.

HEALTH

At Channel 57 a UYA intern has been soliciting agencies for appearances on the "Open Door" program. The "Open Door" offers free air time to special interest groups in the Western Massachusetts area.

EDUCATION

At Central Massachusetts Legal Services in Fitchburg, UYA Interns are handling Welfare cases, Social Security appeals, Juvenile cases, and CHINS (Children in Need of Service).

At Hampshire Correctional Services, UYA Interns have a half-way house in Florence. They secured funding from the L.E.A.A., Mental Health and Mass. Rehab.

At Western Massachusetts Legal Services in Greenfield, UYA Interns have been working on Housing and Consumer cases. One Intern investigated institutionalized discrimination at the state level. Another Intern has been negotiating with a bank to encourage their participation in the sale of food stamps. She is also working on the emergency fuel program to include electrically heated housing units.

At Western Massachusetts Legal Services in Holyoke, UYA Interns are working on discrimination cases and organizing tenants groups. One Intern is coordinating resources to assist single mothers with child care courses. One Intern is working with the Welfare Coalition.

At Western Massachusetts Legal Services in Pittsfield, two UYA Interns are handling Welfare cases. They are also involved with the Welfare Coaltion and housing court cases. One Intern has developed an emergency housing list for referrals.

At Western Massachusetts Legal Services in Springfield, three Interns have been working on discrimination in real estate agency cases, tenants union and rent control. One Intern produced a Housing Advocate program on Channel 57 in February.

SOCIAL SERVICES

At Friendly House UYA Interns are producing a weekly radio program on Worcester on WORC. One Intern has established a drop-in center. Another Intern has established a teaching position with P.A.C.E. concentrating in home economics and literature. She is also involved with the civil service employment bureau — training people to take the exam.

At Hampshire Community Action Commission in Northampton, UYA Interns are partaking in such activities as para-legal, and testing lead paint poisoning. Another Intern has expanded neighborhood services to Ware.

At New England Farm Workers Council there is one Intern. He has interviewed over 100 migrant workers for a survey on their basic needs. He has trained an Outreach Worker to assist in the survey. He has also made 15 referrals for high school equivalency training.

At South End Community Center in Springfield, three Interns have provided South End with its first area newspaper which is trilingual; lead paint screening for 200 participants; instant certification for food stamp applicants; training for Housing Court aided by Legal Services, Housing Allowance Program.

At South Worcester Neighborhood Center, their only Intern continues the newsletter. She teaches a yoga class. She represents the Center at the regular W.I.C. (Woman, Infants, and Children) meetings to facilitate coordination of programs in Worcester. She is coordinating volunteers who are providing the service of the Hypertension clinic unnder the supervision of a nurse coordinator for Family Health and Social Service.

Applicants to attend agency orientation

One of the most important meetings for UYA Interns, according to those who have been in the program in past years, is the agency orientation meeting where Interns find out about the kinds of positions available at the agencies.

This year's meeting is scheduled for April 8 in the School of Business, Room 120, beginning at 7:30 p.m. At that time each agency director, or his-her representative, will make a short five minute presentation on what that agency does and what role exists for an Intern during the next year.

Each agency will be prepared to distribute to interested students copies of job descriptions and training schedules which will be helpful to students in selecting which agencies to consider for an Internship.

The agency representatives will be available following the presentations for individual discussions with students and to set up interviews for the following week. Students will then have the opportunity to visit the agencies and get a clearer picture of what the Internship possibilities are.

Any student with a serious interest in a UYA Internship for this year should be sure and attend this meeting. For any student who has not yet filed an application with the UYA office they are welcome to attend this agency orientation meeting, but are reminded that they must file an application with the UYA office as soon as possible in order to be considered for placement this year.

UYA applicants attend agency orientation meeting for their first exposure to what positions are available. This year's meeting will be 8 April in SBA Rm 120 at 7:00 p.m.

Volunteers in ACTION earn academic credit

By RICHARD WRIGHT
UYA Center Staff

One of the unique features of the University Year for ACTION program that distinguishes it from VISTA or Peace Corps is that students are able to earn academic credit during their term of service. Each Intern establishes at the outset what various credit options he or she will utilize toward earning the 30 credits for field experience. Some of these options include:

- UMass practicum 200
- UYA sponsored block courses
- independent study
- reading courses, etc.

The most often used option for UYA Interns is the UMass practicum 200. It was originally proposed by UYA Volunteers and staff and with the approval of the Academic Matters Committee and the Faculty Senate, became an academic option which applied to new UYA Interns and the entire University student population beginning with Summer Term 1973.

UMass 200 is designed for students engaged in off-campus learning related to academic work. Credit is granted upon the student's ability to demonstrate that his-her intended work is related to at least one designated pre-course and one designated post-course. Up to 15 credits can be earned on a pass-fail basis.

A UYA Intern would arrange to have his-her practicum credits distributed over the summer term and fall semester during the field experience. Six credits would be taken in the summer and would eventually be reflected on the previous spring terms' grade card. The remaining nine credits would be listed for the fall term.

The post-course would be carried during the spring term as the field experience was drawing to a close. At this time the Intern would take an upper level course as an independent study option that would relate to the pre-course and the field experience itself. When the post-course was completed the Intern would submit the final project agreed upon as part of the practicum proposal that would show a relationship between the pre-course, the field experience, and the post-course.

The 15 credits from the practicum and three credits from the post-course leave only 12 remaining credits for the Intern. For College of Arts and Sciences students the UYA block courses are a requirement. Other students may elect to take advantage of these courses which are taught as interdisciplinary seminar style courses. Each Fall and Spring semester a series of six credit UYA block courses are offered exclusively for UYA Interns.

These courses are in such subjects as Mental Health, Legal Studies, Community Services, Alternative Education, Media Communications, Rehabilitation Couseling, Correctional Services, etc. By taking one of these each semester the Interns can complete the requirement for a total of 30 academic credits during their internship with UYA.

Other credit options are available for students depending on their departmental requirements or if they are a graduate student they can negotiate with their advisor to make special arrangements for earning credits.

In almost every department there are provisions for independent study or 'special problems' courses. These courses are set aside for experiential and innovative purposes. In all cases, a student must find a faculty sponsor.

Some departments such as Physical Education, Public Health, Afro-American Studies, Public Administration, and Human Development offer internships or practicum credit to their students.

Many students in UYA are in special programs such as Honors, BDIC, or University Without Walls (UWW). Interns find these programs useful because they are free from departmental requirements and are allowed to design their own academic program under the guidance of a faculty member whom the student selects.

All prospective Interns are given the opportunity to explore the various credit options available prior to entering the UYA program. The UYA office is prepared to advise students on the variety of ways they can earn credit during their year in ACTION.

Al Rosenberg, Training Consultant for SCOPE in Dayton, Ohio, advises UYA Interns about their roles in the low income communities. This year's orientation conference will begin on June 16, 1975.

Interns respond to year in UYA

cont. from p. 1a

inside the organization. I am the administrative assistant for planning and evaluation. The latest thing I have been working on, in terms of planning, has been in writing a proposal for a vasectomy clinic in Western Massachusetts.

"Most of the clients served at the Planning Council have been women and there has been a real unmet need for contraception for men. I had a phone grid going to evaluate what kinds of services were needed most in our area. Men and women call in for vasectomy operations. Only private physicians do it now. So the experience of writing a proposal for a vasectomy clinic was very exciting for me."

"Another thing I have been working on is an evaluation proposal for personnel at Family Planning Council. I have been involved in planning in the use of volunteers from the community in some of our programs. Another thing, if I may back track, is that, from the UYA viewpoint, I found the Planned Impact Programming very useful for me in organizing what could be considered a morpheous experience in a new area. I have been able to apply this in an evaluation of personnel at Family Planning. I also coordinate all printed media, press releases and respond to articles relative to the Council."

"The training that I received at the beginning of the program proved very useful to me. There should be more stress on it. My supervision was great. It was immediate, indepth, and on an ad-hoc basis. It is very important to have top supervision in a community agency and a good rapport with your supervisor."

Minority participation sought

cont. from p. 1a

possible for some. Other students simply cannot "affort" to be in the program. Because most of them are low-income students, they are dependent on all types and forms of financial aid. The minority students are restricted by the fact they are receiving money from one source, and often are restricted from receiving money from another source. These are real problems on which the administration as well as various academic and financial aid programs must act affirmatively if they intend to make a comprehensive choice for minority students. If the administration provides options for experiential wanted to continue but because of academic reasons, it was not education, or any other educational programs, and the students want to use these options and then find they can't participate because of restrictions, that means changes must be made to accommodate these students.

We at the UYA Center are looking forward to Phase VII.

Esta es la oportunidad! Nvestra oportunidad!

UYA CENTER es un programa primordiarmente diseñado para entrenar personas en el campo de consejería, diseño y técnicas de organizacion... Necesitamos principalmente estudiantes de la comunidad del Tercer Mundo. Nosotros somos las personas claves para despertar nuestras communidades. ACCIÓN, ORGANIZACION Y SOLIDARIDAD son necesarios. Esta es la oportunidad! Nuestra oportunidad!! ACTÚA!!!

Llama a UYA 545-1381, 315 Arnold House

Ven al Salón 905 CC 3 de Abril 7 p.m.

Ven al Salón 120 SBA 8 de Abril 7:30 p.m.

UYA Center director, Dr. Ruth Burgin presents a certificate to an Intern following her successful completion of a year in ACTION.

Veterans may collect GI benefits

For the UMass veteran, who is taking advantage of the G.I. bill, a year in ACTION will not affect his eligibility to collect benefits.

Veterans can continue to collect the full G.I. bill while enrolled in UYA because he-she is still a full-time student of the University during the Internship. Many veterans have found that a year in ACTION can be a most significant addition to the college experience.

The Veterans office in Whitmore Administration building is fully aware of the UYA program and recognizes Veterans eligibility is not affected by enrolling in the University Year for ACTION.

Veterans have been participating in the UYA program since it began in 1971 and have been among the most successful Interns to date. In each of the six phases of the program so far Veterans have been actively recruited and placed in Internships.

Physical Education programs didn't exist for this young man before UYA Interns came to his school.

AGENCY ORIENTATION MEETING —

Thursday 8 April 1975

SBA Rm. 120 7:30 P.M.

Questions & Answers

Who may apply for UYA?

Any person who is a full-time registered undergraduate or graduate student at UMass-Amherst or one of the other "5-College" campuses (Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith) may apply to UYA. An undergraduate should have completed most of his-her core requirements and need one complete year's credit before graduation.

Where and when may I apply for UYA?

Official recruitment occurs during the semester before placement with UYA. Recruitment for Phase VII Interns is underway now, and anyone can apply Thursday at 7:00 in CC, Rm. 905. Applications may also be filled out at the UYA Center Office at 315 Arnold House.

What about the agency? When do I see it?

After you have filled out the preliminary forms, you will visit selected agencies which interest you for interviews. During these interviews you should decide if you will be interested in spending a year with them, taking into consideration the the environment, the job description, the supervision, and other factors relevant to your final decision. At the same time, agency personnel will be interviewing you for such things as capability, judgement, interest and motivation.

When will I know if I am accepted as an intern?

It is the intent of the UYA Center staff that tentative placements will be made one month before training begins. However, final acceptance into UYA is contingent upon receipt of federal funds, federal and University clearance and successful completion of a UYA Center Orientation and agency training.

If I am selected, when will I receive training for the internship?

Training and orientation will start at the beginning of summer and run for one month. Trainees are expected to stay on the training site during the entire period. You must successfully complete UYA Orientation and on-the-job training at the agency before final acceptance into UYA.

When will I begin the internship?

UYA Interns will officially begin after successful completion of on-the-job training and will continue for one calendar year from the beginning of UYA orientation.

What hours will I intern?

You will work hours similar to other professionals in the agency. This will usually mean a five-day 40 hour week, but at crisis times may mean more. Technically, UYA Interns are expected to be on call 24 hours a day. Academic vacations will not be observed. UYA Interns are given a total of 10 working days vacation for the year. Sick leave is accrued at a rate of 1.25 days per month.

Will I need my own transportation?

Yes. Most agencies will be unable to provide your transportation to and from work. If they require you to travel on your job, your agency may be able to provide transportation for you. This question should be asked during your interview at the agency.

How much is the stipend?

$2,400.00 paid in weekly allotments of $45.95. This first check will probably arrive within four weeks of the initial training day, and will reflect one-week withholding for UMass payroll.

Do I have to pay tuition?

Yes. You must pay regular tuition during fall and spring semesters.

Do I have to pay fees?

A special arrangement has been made with the Bursar's Office for UYA Interns. University Interns pay only tuition and a special off-campus fee, amounting to approximately (from past semesters) $30.00.

What other expenses will I have?

There will be no other expenses connected with the program, but you will be responsible for your own housing, food, and travel if not covered by the agency.

Can I receive funds from a scholarship while participating in UYA?

You may receive scholarship assistance under certain specific conditions in accordance with the Domestic Volunteer Service Act legislation unless superseded by specific scholarship guidelines.

Where will I live?

You are expected to live in the community which the agency serves. The emphasis of the UYA program is community service, and guidelines require you to live where you work. Waivers may be granted upon special request from the Director. You will be expected to find your own housing in that community, but the agency supervisors have agreed to help you with this.

I have already signed up to live in a dorm. What do I do about this?

If you are accepted as an Intern, you will be let out of any contractual arrangements you have made for on-campus housing.

How do I register while serving in UYA?

You should register in the usual way if you're registered in UYA. If you did not preregister for UYA courses or off-campus courses (independent study or special problems) you will have to go through the add-drop procedure following registration.

How much credit can I earn?

You are expected to make "normal academic progress" as a participant in the program. Credit breakdown in terms of semesters and course numbers will be negotiated with your faculty advisor. A UMass-Amherst undergraduate must earn 30 credits during his-her year in UYA while a graduate must earn 8 credits per semester.

What are my academic responsibilities?

Your academic responsibilities will be defined by you and your faculty supervisor in response to your internship requirements. You cannot attend traditional classes, but you will attend seminars with faculty members in the field, do directed reading, write papers, or perform other independent studies. Some students may periodically participate in interdisciplinary seminars at the Amherst campus.

Who am I responsible to?

You are responsible to your agency supervisor, your faculty supervisor and your project manager. They will oversee both your field experience and the academic program developed in connection with that experience. You are ultimately responsible to the Director of the UYA Center program.

Am I considered a government employee?

Interns are considered employees of the Executive Branch of the federal government for purposes of complying with the Hatch Act, the Domestic Volunteer Service Act and the Federal Tort Claims Act. Interns are also considered student state employees as stipends are processed through the UMass payroll system.

Suppose I like the agency but not the particular job assignment?

Talk with your agency supervisor first and your project manager about the problem.

If I am not happy with my agency, can I move?

Each case will be considered separately, but generally speaking, if you are seriously unhappy with your agency or if they are unhappy with you, some kind of arrangement will have to be made. It is virtually impossible to transfer agencies after the initial one-month training is completed. It is your prerogative to terminate your term of service at any time in accordance with the guidelines for termination explained in the UYA Handbook. Approval by the Director must be made prior to any change.

Positions Available This Year

- ★ Day Care Development Specialist
- ★ Health Community Educator
- ★ Counseling Jail Inmates
- Rehabilitation ★ Counselor
- ★ Recreation Coordinator
- ★ Legal Asst.
- ★ Public Relations Coordinator
- ★ Bilingual Teachers
- ★ Health Lab Technician
- ★ Alcoholism Counselor
- ★ Tutor Coordinator
- ★ Outreach Worker
- ★ Career Development Spec.

And many other positions

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 40 AMHERST, MA. THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1975

weather

Snow today, possibly mixed with rain at times, highs in the 30's. Windy and cold tonight with a chance of flurries tonight. Mostly cloudy and cold tomorrow.

Trustees, students discuss budget crisis

Unity a must in 'difficult times'

By FRED NOBLES
Staff Reporter

UMass must "strive to maintain its autonomy and not give over control to political powers in the state," Trustee Chairman Joseph Healy said during a three hour meeting of the UMass Board of Trustees yesterday.

Healy said UMass is facing "difficult times" financially but he hoped the entire University Community can "close ranks" to insure that in the face of any budget cuts UMass will continue to "move forward."

During yesterday's meeting both Trustees and students expressed concern over the UMass budget and fiscal autonomy.

Matthew Burns of the Student Senate told the board that student fees are increasing at a rate almost twice the inflation rate. According to Burns a proposed $70 increase in dormitory rent would represent an actual increase of over eighteen per cent.

Burns also said "students will not and cannot allow budget cuts on any academic programs," and that he opposed any attempts by the state government to gain power over UMass finances.

Peter Donahue of the Coalition for a People's Budget told the board that UMass needs an "expanded budget" and that budget cuts proposed by state government are unacceptable and would seriously damage academic programs at UMass.

Donahue asked the Trustees to "endorse and take part in" a rally protesting budget cuts to be held in front of the Student Union on April 15.

In response to Donahue's remarks, Chairman Healy said, "there is no commitment stronger than this board's commitment" in trying to maintain adequate funding for UMass programs. Healy suggested student concern should best be addressed to "the Governor of the Commonwealth and members of the general court."

See related story page 3

In other action the Trustees voted to abolish tuition wavers for dorm residence counselors, effective July 1, 1975.

The Trustees also passed a motion of support for the dorm counseling program and expressed hope that an alternate means of supporting the counselors could be found.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said he felt the cost of maintaining the counseling program should be "integrated into residence hall budgets" and that dorms should be able to decide how many counselors they want, what duties they should perform and how they will be compensated for their work.

UMass President Robert C. Wood released a report at yesterday's meeting updating the status of the investigation into alleged misuse of funds at the School of Education.

The report states that "practices developed within the School" made it possible for the abuse of funds that occured.

Wood said in an interview following the board meeting that, "in terms of law, the wrong-doing is limited to a few individuals."

According to Wood, at the completion of an audit of questionable School of Ed. programs and an investigation into administrative practices and controls over funding, "past abuses of responsibility" will be appropriately dealt with.

Wood said he could not release certain information about the investigation due to legal and ethical considerations. He said School of Ed. records could not be made public at this time because they had been subpoenaed by a federal grand jury.

Wood also said that disclosure of certain facts could impinge on the rights of individuals under investigation and "prejudice their rights to a fair trial."

The Trustees also decided yesterday to reconsider in a joint session of the Student Affairs and Finance committees, grievances brought before them by Karen Forsgard of the UMass Tenants' Association.

The tenants association wants a roll back of rents in married student housing to Spring, 1975 levels. Forsgard charged that rent increases were the result of mismanagement.

Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

State Secretary of Environmental Affairs Evelyn Murphy said yesterday the purpose of her office is to "look at how we protect the environmental resources of the state and how we improve the quality of those resources and at the same time maintain a viable economy." Vice-Chancellor of Academic Affairs Robert L. Gluckstern met with Murphy at the Top of the Campus for lunch, during a break from her visit to the UMass Institute for Man and His Environment.

Crisis atmosphere prevails in South Vietnamese capital

SAIGON [UPI] — Rumors of plots and fears of impending Communist attack have plunged the South Vietnamese capital into a mood of grim uncertainty.

On the surface, things appear normal.

Vietnamese girls, their graceful Ao Dais and black hair flowing in the breeze, promenade along the Saigon River past the Majestic Hotel, smiling and chatting gaily.

But a few hundred yards away, hundreds of students from northern areas overrun by Communists, wait anxiously for every refugee boat, looking for missing friends and relatives.

In President Nguyen Van Thieu's palace, grim-faced aides and generals come and go in a crisis atmosphere.

Outside, in secret gatherings, powerful political figures and others who want to see action or change, plot against Thieu.

In a Chinese waterfront restaurant others talk about the plots but mostly how to get out if the Communists come.

Some take action.

Three oil firms engaged in offshore exploration have pulled out or are in the process of doing so. Other firms are seriously talking about it.

Pressure is building up to get out while it is possible. Airlines report a considerable increase in outward bookings. Lines of people trying to get exit visas get longer each day.

Impressive Communist victories, the fall of major cities and whole provinces, without a fight or explanation, feed the rumors, heighten the fears, increase the uncertainty and move the city closer to panic that could cause collapse and anarchy.

That's what happened in Da Nang less than a week ago. Now everyone thinks it could happen here.

Another danger is that anger will well up against Americans.

That was the case in Da Nang and elsewhere but it never got too bad because there simply wasn't time and there were not many Americans.

Saigon might be worse. Why should people who fought alongside Americans, worked and lived with them for so long suddenly turn bitter, angry and dangerous?

They feel let down.

"We always believed the Americans would do what they say," said a pretty young student at a Catholic school. "They said they would help us and defend us and support us. Where are they now?"

Universal fee is 'no longer viable'

By P.J. PROKOP
Staff Reporter

"The Universal Resource Fee (URF) as we know it, is dead — at least for next September," said Ken Somers, chairperson of the SGA Task Force called to work on the Universal Fee last February by Rick Savini, SGA president.

Mandatory Housing will still be in effect for next semester, Somers said because the Office of Residential Life (ORL) has not had sufficient time fo planning to prepare the dormitories for non-mandatory housing.

Warren W. Gulko, UMass Budget Director, said the meal ticket will still be required for fall, but there was mention at yesterday's Task Force meeting of the possibility of a $40 across the board 'utilities fee' which would be used to underwrite the Dining Commons debt service. This could possibly happen if the meal ticket should become voluntary, Gulko added.

Tony Armelin, spokesman for the Task Force attributes Gulko with saying that the administration feels the URF is no longer a viable permanent solution to the problem, and won't be implemented.

Armelin also said that a possible rent increase of $50-$100 was discussed at the meeting. This would be due to the 1.1-1.4 million dollar increase in the cost of utilities and other inflationary increases.

Gulko said, in a Collegian telephone interview, that the administration has not yet seen the budget from the ORL (which is in the process of being compiled) and is concerned about the "bleak economy situation and also the situation the students are in."

"With inflation and unemployment it will be difficult for a lot of students to meet the regular costs, so any increase would be very carefully considered," Gulko said.

A final decision on the mandatory dormitory situation is expected from Chancellor Bromery and the Board of Trustees by January 1, 1976, according to Somers.

"This time, we are going to demand that students be an integral part of the decision making process from the start," Somers said.

Asked about the possibility of any fees or rent increases being pushed through the administration in the summer, Gulko said "no, definitely not." He added, "We will be working on this now, through the summer and the fall."

Somers said, "We are very disgusted and frustrated that the administration has waited so long for student input in this matter. As users of the services, it should be our first priority to recognize that input."

Canoe team accepts challenge by building concrete canoe

by PAUL BRADLEY
Staff Reporter

Did you know that a 270 pound piece of concrete can float? A group of UMass students are in the process of proving just this and more.

The UMass Concrete Canoe Team is a group of six UMass Civil Engineering Students who have been working on the construction of a concrete canoe since early January. Sponsored by the Civil Engineering Department, the Western Mass. Branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and Barselotti's, the team will compete in a white water race to be held on April 26 near the University of Maine.

Rich McManus, a member of the team, explained that the Civil Engineering Department received a challenge from the University of Maine last semester to compete in a concrete canoe race. Although nothing like this had been done at UMass before, McManus and some classmates "threw the idea around half kiddingly and decided to check it out," he said.

The group was advised by Professor Denton Harris of the Civil Engineering Department on how to get such a project underway. The first step was procuring an old canoe for a mold.

After getting an old wooden canoe, the process then was to sand it down and staple four layers of chicken wire all around the vessel. A special type of concrete which has a strength of about four times that of regular mortar was then applied.

The canoe was set under a tent with humidifiers to keep the cement for about 20 days. Keeping the concrete wet for a prolonged period of time serves to increase the strength of the mortar, according to McManus. A washcoat was applied after this and the canoe is now in the process of being finished and painted. The wooden canoe mold was removed after the concrete had hardened.

The group worked eight hour days over the January intersession, and have worked on the project on just about every school day. Since it is a class project for Professor Harris, the time could be found.

Only one student on the team, Jim Dokoozian, has experience in white water canoeing, so he will be one of the two that will actually man the canoe in the race. The group plans to go to Maine early with an aluminum canoe to get the feel of the course and the member that feels most as ease will man the canoe with Dokoozian.

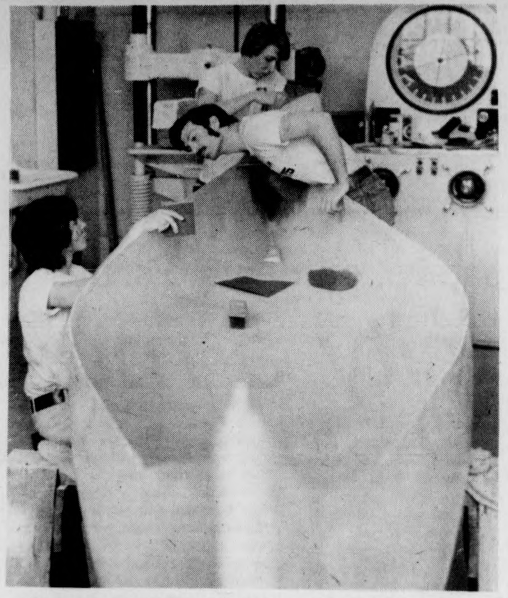
McManus said that there are 25 canoes competing in the race representing 17 schools. Last year, only about three canoes competed in the race.

McManus added that the canoe will be about an inch higher than the original model, since calculations revealed that the heavier concrete vessel would sit about an inch lower in the water.

The canoe is 17 feet long and has a 30 inch beam, or width at the widest point, and when finished, will weigh about 270 pounds.

The Concrete Canoe Team invites all students to the christening of the canoe representing UMass in the concrete canoe race. It will take place at the Campus Pond on April 11 at three o'clock, and a celebration and pep rally is planned at the Bluewall immediately following.

Staff Photo by Joe Stoddart



"Hey, do you think this thing will float?"
"I don't know . . . it's not everyday you see a cement boat . . ."
"Well, if it doesn't, we can always make a super banana split in it."
"Either that or we'll have a very original bathtub!"

Funding, space needed for centers

Day Care Committee requests support from Gage

By JULIE SMITH
Staff Reporter

At a meeting with Robert W. Gage, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, the Day Care Committee stated their need for his support in securing funding and space for the five day care centers at UMass to be discussed at the Principle Administration Officers (PAO) meeting April 11.

Also discussed was the need to find an office within student affairs that would be responsible for day care facilities.

Infant Care Experiential Center and New World Day Care Center are two day care centers that are unlicensible and need to move to comply with day care regulations. Presently these centers do not have playgrounds that fall under the 75 feet regulations.

Committee members stressed the University's committment to the five day care centers and wanted to make sure it had high priority at the April 11 meeting.

Gage said the PAO meeting would decide how the University would express their commitment.

"There are two options to the decision," Gage said. "We can either pre-empt academic space or take one section of the residence halls or dining commons."

Also discussed was the possibility of renting space off campus to find a place with more play area. Gage said the financial implications need to be explored as academic buildings charge no rent and buildings off-campus do.

Committee members stressed the need for research for space off or on campus before the April 11 meeting and also the need to know an answer by May 1 as to where it will be, who will be paying for it and what renovations need to be done.

David Wagstaff, Infant Care Parent, and spokesman for the group, stressed that there should be adequate funding for the centers as they couldn't charge parents too much more money in fees or they would lose their support.

"Schools are paying different salaries, there should be equal pay for equal work," Wagstaff said. "Also employees are being paid inadequate salaries for their jobs."

The need for a day care coordinator was discussed but Gage said student affairs would probably be reorganized rather than hiring someone new due to tight financial restrictions.

Gage was asked to elaborate on his support of day care center's limited budget of $32,000 and how he would represent the centers in the PAO meeting.

"I'm prepared to support day care," Gage said. "I support $32,000 as a base and if a cut was suggested due to inflation I would present a budget to demonstrate that $32,000 doesn't represent spending."

Four of the student affairs offices the committee plans to contact for support include Student development, Office of Residential Life, Health Services, and Public Safety.

"We have to be identified as an established institution to have our needs met," Wagstaff said.

Southwest Assembly announces appointees

By ANNE MARIE REIS
Staff Reporter

Mark Benoit was approved Tuesday night as Southwest Assembly (SWA) representative to the Student Organizing Committee. One spokesman from each area government will sit on this board which oversees the Student Organizing Project.

Jacky Cormier will represent the SWA on the search committee to screen applicants for the Residential Life Officer. This job entails handling the funds for the dining commons, greek and residential areas and married student housing. There are presently 120 applicants.

Other decisions at the brief meeting established April 29 as SWA officer elections, and April 19-21 to interview applicants for vacated Southwest Head of Residence positions.

A budget Committee meeting will be held in the Campus Center Rm 102 tonight to explore "implications of any budget cuts concerning Outreach, BDIC, Everywoman's Center and other organizations receiving state funds.

Arraignment held in assault case

By ROBERTA MARTONE
Staff Reporter

Complaints against Paul Fondakowski, 26, of 35 High St., Amherst, were brought to Northampton District Court yesterday morning, following an investigation that began March 28, said Captain Robert Joyce of the UMass Police.

A UMass student from Leach House was the victim of armed robbery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, according to UMass Police reports.

The original charge was one of rape, according to the records.

Fondakowski was already being held at Union St. Jail for other charges.

The arraignment Tuesday will be concerned with the charges of armed robbery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

UMass Music Theatre Guild presents
GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S
PIRATES of PENZANCE
APRIL 3,4,5 at 8pm APRIL 6 at 3:30 pm
BOWKER AUD, Stockbridge Hall, U.M.
$2.00 students & under 18 $2.50 others
Tickets go on sale March 17 at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter
545-0202
reservations and information

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	BJ Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	Geoffrey Kurinsky
Assistant Issue Editor	PJ Prokop
Sports Staff	Bill Edelstein
Photo Staff	Larry Hershkowitz, Jack O'Neil Joe Stoddart, Ed Cohen

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

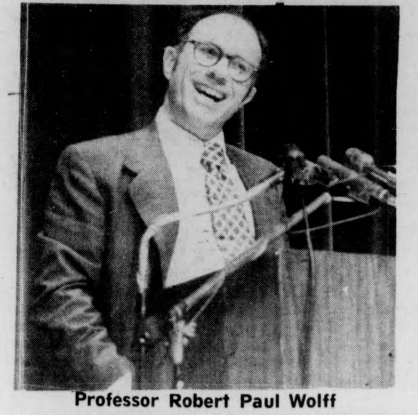
Second class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

Wolff: public education 'second rate'



Professor Robert Paul Wolff

By MELANIE JOHNSON
Staff Reporter

Professor Robert Paul Wolff said last night that public institutions of higher learning offered "second rate education for those who were too poor to buy the real goods, or not quite bright enough to win financial support," and that people at the University "should fight with all our strength" against this. Wolff, who is director of the interdisciplanary program in Social Thought and Political Economy, spoke to an audience of approximately 300 in the third and final portion of the Chancellor's Lecture Series.

Wolff said that UMass was "less than the sum of its parts" when one considered the "gifted faculty and bright and talented young men and women" who are here. Wolff asserted that we are "better than we think we are, and we are able to be better than we already are."

ways commonly used as innovation: altering the fundamental concepts of education, teaching new things, adopting new techniques, changing the administrative organization, or teaching new students.

Wolff, in reference to the University's administrative reorganization, said that it "has not done too badly." Furthermore, "there is no one right way to teach, nor is there any way guaranteed to go wrong," said Wolff. Innovative teaching methods are "good when they work and deadly when they fail."

Wolff urged that the University offer the "most demanding, rigorous, mind-expanding education" to best serve the students, and only "such people with precision, clarity, and intellectual rigour can meet the demand" by distinguishing between reality and appearance.

However, in order to serve the community and students better, Wolff maintained that there is a need to distinguish between appearance and reality; to make "real knowledge separate from opinion." Wolff cited the purpose of education to be the "development of the capacity to reason, in every sphere of thought and experience," and the University is an institution that should be "devoted to the fulfillment of that purpose."

Wolff also addressed himself to the question of what useful purpose the University could serve. Wolff said that a distinction must be made between "felt and unfelt needs," and that many human needs are not felt, or are "thoroughly misunderstood." "The genuine educational needs are repeatedly confused with the educational equivalent of the market demand," he added.

Wolff also remarked on innovation in education, citing five

Sylvan TV premieres tonight

By RON CHAIT
Staff Reporter

Sylvan residents should not be alarmed if they happen to see themselves on television tonight.

WSYL-TV's first broadcast will feature scenes from the March 7th Sock Hop, which drew more than 470 persons into Worcester Dining Commons for a night of '50s and '60s rock 'n roll.

The only closed-circuit television station on campus, WSYL-TV will appear this evening at 11 p.m. on Sylvan channel 2.

The program will begin with a "live" Janis Joplin performance from the Dick Cavett Show. After the Sock Hop highlights, an Ace Trucking Company film will be aired. The total running time should exceed two hours.

WSYL-TV is presently hooked up into the complex Sylvan antenna system which was installed on top of Cashin last November by the Physical Plant's Communication Section. In addition to the local stations and closed-circuit, Sylvan TV's are able to pick up channels 4, 5 and 27.

Since the station has been operating with one Sony videotape recorder and a borrowed set of lights, initial broadcasts will be rough, but this should not detract from the novelty of watching area events on TV, according to Station Manager Mike Narkewicz.

"If we had more than one camera, we wouldn't have this chop-chop-chop effect," Narkewicz said, "but for now this is what we have, and I'm sure we'll get better as we go along."

Narkewicz and Dean Leavenworth, both of Cashin, spent Tuesday night [illegible] separate soundtrack in spots to add some variety.

Future broadcast dates include:

--April 11th, a Stevie Wonder concert and some Ali fight highlights.

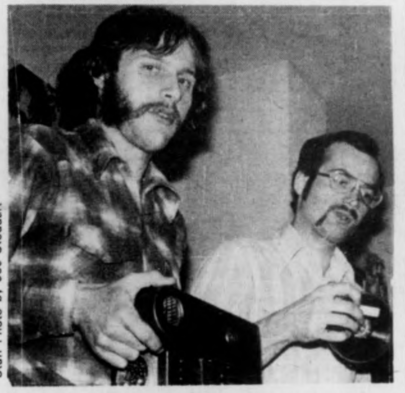
--April 17th, a simulcast with WSYL radio (97.7 FM), which will showcase Sylvan's Disco Nite.

An area soap opera and a Black production group are also reportedly in the works.

Narkewicz said he hopes that Sylvan residents will be patient with the station's progress. "At the Sock Hop, a couple of people gave us the finger and told us to get lost," he said. "Once they saw that we were serious in what we were doing, though, they didn't seem to mind."

WSYL-TV is owned and operated by the Sylvan Area Government.

Staff Photo by Joe Stoddart



Station Manager Mike Narkewicz and Dean Leavenworth put the finishing touches on WSYL-TV's [illegible] broadcast tomorrow night.

Senate fails to act on unionization bill

By CHAS O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

The Student Senate failed to act last night on the Student Union Enabling Policy (SUEP), a document that would set up procedures by which a student union would be organized on campus.

In a non-productive session, the Senate took care of much old business but failed to act on the SUEP, which would be the first major step towards unionization of UMass students.

Budget Committee chairperson Kevin Muldoon reported on the current status of the Senate budget, noting that the Senate would receive copies of the budget recommendation probably Monday. The Senate would act on the budget the following Wednesday night. The Board of Trustees must have the budget by that Friday.

The Senate also acted on several measures dealing with the allocations of funds by the area governments and also on the election of senators from the area governments, which would take place early next semester.

Cindy McGrath, speaker of the Senate, noted that a question to Provost Robert L. Gluckstern about why the University does not grant two Bachelor's degrees to students who have completed the requirements for both, has not been answered yet.

UMass bus struck by fire

By STEVE TRIPOLI
Staff Reporter

A UMass bus with three students aboard caught fire after a minor explosion last night on East Hadley Road outside Brittany Manor. There were no injuries.

"There was an explosion and noise, then you could see the fire," said Fred Burns, a UMass senior and driver of the bus. "The whole engine compartment was engulfed in flames." There was no damage to the interior of the bus.

Oil from what Burns said he thought was the rear main bearing of the bus spread over a small section of the road in flames after the explosion. Burns put both the engine and road fires out himself with the hand extinguisher in the bus. The road flames cause no damage.

Amherst police and a fire truck responded to the fire but both arrived after the flames had been extinguished. The three students on board the bus evacuated safety.

Trustees to reconsider rent rollback petition

By DEBBIE SCHAFER
Staff Reporter

The UMass Board of Trustees agreed to reconsider the UMass Tenant Association (UMTA) petition for a rent rollback, as a result of the UMTA presentation at yesterday's Board meeting. The Finance Committee recommended to the Board that there be no rent rollback, but the issue will remain under discussion due to an "information gap."

"We consider the recommendation before you to be improper and based on insufficient information," said UMTA spokesperson Karen Forsgard at the Board meeting, calling the recommendation "biased and unsound."

UMTA members consider the reconsideration of the Finance Committee suggestion by the Trustees a positive step towards the solution of the year-long rent dispute. The Board of Trustees has never overturned a committee recommendation, and rarely sends an issue back to a committee for further investigation.

Yesterday, however, it was decided by the Trustees that the UMTA petition warranted further consideration. Finance Committee chairman Robert Gordon proposed a joint meeting of the Finance and Student Affairs Committees along with UMTA representatives and UMass housing officials, to arrive at a "full presentation of all the relevant information."

UMTA claims the recommendation of the Finance Committee to the Board yesterday was unjust for the following reasons, according to the UMTA report:

— "There was no cooperation from the University with us."

At a February 19 meeting between UMTA representatives and the Finance Committee, UMTA presented its charges against Married Student Housing. Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery proposed that UMTA work with the campus administration in preparing a response to the UMTA allegations. However, the administration sent the committee a response to the allegations which was prepared without input from the UMTA.

— "The Finance Committee, in reaching their decision (at a March 27 meeting) did so without any further contact with us after the February 19 meeting," stated the report.

The UMTA had been in the process of assembling further information to substantiate their claim of mismanagement in Married Student Housing, and the March 27 decision was reached without benefit of this additional material.

— "We were not even notified of the meeting of the finance Committee, at which they made the recommendation." the report stated. Bromery was present at that meeting and requested the "no" recommendation on the rent rollback issue, but did not inform UMTA of the meeting until after it had taken place.

Trustee Chairman Joseph Healy charged UMTA with responsibility for making a full presentation of all pertinent facts to the Joint Finance and Student Affairs Committees, at which time the full Board of Trustees could make a more informed consideration of the issues.

UMTA members feel that the rent increase was unjust for two reasons, which they reiterated in their presentation before the Board: "The first is that there are serious legal questions involved in the decision to increase the rent. The second is that the rent increase is due to mismanagement in the day to day running of Married Student Housing and in its long-term planning," according to the report.

"Can we be so ignorant that you could expect us not to fight a rent increase due to mismanagement because of the existence of loans due to even greater past mismanagement?" said Forsgard in her appeal to the Trustees. Vacancy losses in married student housing over the years have been covered by $140,000 in loans from the residence hall trust funds. "Surely you don't consider us such fools?" said Forsgard.

The meeting marked UMTA's first appearance before the full Board of Trustees. Forsgard stated in her opening remarks: "In spring 1974 the Board voted a rent increase ... We have actively opposed that decision since then. It has taken us a year to get here."

ACHTUNG!
Collegian* staff
Instead of getting smashed tonight, come to the newspaper's staff meeting at 7 in Campus Center room 171 Brief, but urgent agenda. Prompt adjournment to liquid refreshment locations

Communists cut key highway, threaten Saigon

Refugees flee, reach outskirts of capital

SAIGON [UPI] — Advancing Communist forces threatened Saigon from two directions yesterday. Convoys of panicky refugees and soldiers fleeing the Communist blitzkrieg down the east coast reached the outskirts of this capital city.

Heavy fighting was reported around Xuan Loc, 38 miles east of Saigon, where the Communists cut key Highway 1.

Lt. Gen. Cao Van Vien, South Vietnam's top general, told the troops in an order of the day: "We have only one way and that is to fight for our survival. The historic hour has come."

Government troops and most civilians pulled out of the coastal cities of Phan Rang and Phan Thiet yesterday as frightened refugees poured down Highway 1 headed south, military sources said.

They reported scenes of panic and, confusion at Cam Ranh Bay, 188 miles northeast of Saigon, and feared that the city was in imminent danger of falling.

South Vietnam's Senate unanimously passed a resolution demanding a change in leadership of the South Vietnamese government. It blamed the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu and the United States for the staggering series of defeats that have given the Communists more than two-thirds of the country.

In Paris, the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government made it clear its military forces will press ahead with their offensive and march on Saigon unless Thieu's regime is overthrown.

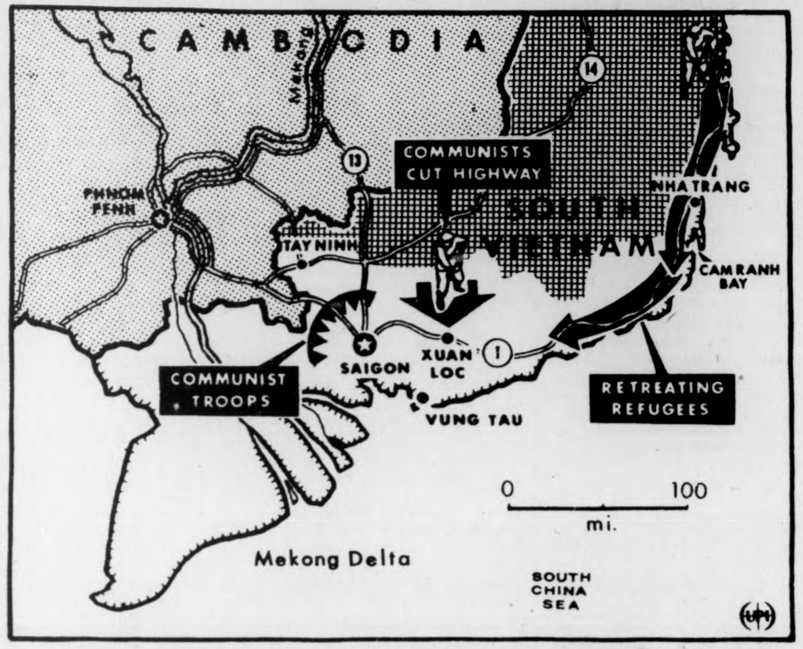
Dinh Ba Thi, the Viet Cong's chief negotiator in France, told a news conference that the Communists were ready to open immediate talks with a new Saigon administration that would replace Thieu.

In Washington, South Vietnam's ambassador said the U.S. failure to "lift a finger" to stop the Communist onslaught in Indochina is evidence that "it is safer to be an ally of the Communists and... fatal to be an ally of the United States."

Intelligence sources in Saigon said the victorious Communist force of tanks and infantrymen that has swept down the east coast, swallowing city after city is threatening Saigon from the northeast, with only about 5,000 government soldiers between them and the capital.

The second threat is from Communist forces in a wide arc from west to north of Saigon.

On that side of the capital, the equivalent of three divisions of South Vietnamese troops - including two brigades of crack paratroopers - stand between the Communists and Saigon, the sources said.



The first convoys of refugees fleeing from the Central Highlands in Vietnam reached the outskirts of Saigon yesterday. It was reported that less than 5000 South Vietnamese troops were standing before the Communist onslaught.

Ford rejects bombing to aid South Vietnam

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. [UPI] — The White House ruled out yesterday any American bombing to aid South Vietnam's collapsing military forces.

"The law forbids it. The President's inclinations are against it. And he has no plans to do it," Press Secretary Ron Nessen told a news conference at Ford's holiday resort.

"The President has a great deal of sympathy and compassion for the Vietnamese people. He continues to feel this Communist onslaught is a gross violation of the Paris Peace Accord and, like any civilized person, he is greatly distressed," Nessen said.

Congress passed a law in June of 1973 cutting of U.S. military activity of any kind in Southeast Asia as of Aug. 15 of that year.

There was no indication from Nessen and the other senior aides gathered in Palm Springs on what Ford will decide the United States should do about Indochina.

Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen, asked for Ford's views on Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller's statement yesterday there was nothing the United States could do to help the South Vietnamese, said "The vice president was expressing his own views."

Hushen said that as far as aides knew, Ford and Rockefeller had not been in communication with each other on Vietnam during the past few days.

Communists encircle Phnom Penh as US steps up evacuation

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — Communist-led rebel troops yesterday captured seven positions east, west and south of besieged Phnom Penh. The U.S. Embassy announced it was evacuating about 15 per cent of its staff from the Cambodian capital.

Furious fighting could be clearly heard in the capital during the night. Rebel rockets, artillery and mortar shells hit both the capital and Pochentong airport, where the American airlift continued on a curtailed basis.

One person was killed and 15 others wounded in the shelling attacks. One American plane was slightly damaged by shrapnel.

At one point, the rebels began firing artillery from east of the capital for the first time, with shells landing on a thin peninsula separating the Mekong and Tonle Sap rivers, only about 400 yards from the heart of Phnom Penh.

There was no word on the fate of more than 60,000 refugees and soldiers in the Mekong River town of Neak Luong, 31 miles southeast of here, which fell to the insurgents Tuesday night.

"They're still trying to pick up the pieces," an official source said of the loss of Neak Luong, which had been besieged for over two months. The fall of the town gave the insurgents total control of the Mekong River and, sources said, might free as many as 6,000 troops for the siege of Phnom Penh.

Within 24 hours of the fall of Neak Luong, government forces had been driven out of a total of seven positions to the south, east and west of the capital.

A nine-month siege at the highway four town of Kompong Sela ended when the government, decided to abandon the town, 78 miles west of Phnom Penh. Sources said that only about 500 soldiers were left in the town, which had suffered months of heavy shelling attacks and could only be resupplied by air. Most of the soldiers, the sources said, were evacuated by helicopter.

The cutback in the staff of the U.S. Embassy — obviously a result of government setbacks on Phnom Penh's ever-shrinking defense perimeter — was announced by Robert V. Keeley, deputy chief of mission. He also recommended that various relief organizations pull out some of their staffs.

"I wish to inform you that during the coming few days some of our personnel — a relatively small number — will be leaving temporarily to go to Bangkok," Kelley said.

STUDENT JOBS
SWITZERLAND-AUSTRIA
FRANCE-GERMANY
Resorts - Hotels - Office
Restaurants - Hospitals
SEND 25¢ — APPLICATION INFORMATION
TRANSWORLD OVERSEAS
STUDENT OVERSEAS SERVICES
10 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MA. — 617-723-7875
TRANS WORLD

SKI CLUB

ELECTIONS

This is your chance to have your say about your Club.

Nominations
Are Open

Mon. Nite April 7

Thompson 102

8 p.m.

APPLICATIONS

for the position of Affirmative Action Officer are available in the Student Attorney General's Office, 422 Student Union, for all interested undergraduates.

For job description and more information see Cindi Iris. Student Atty. Gen. Deadline for applications is Thursday, April 10th.

CARLO of Naples State Street, Northampton
54th Member of the World Famous Restaurant International
B.
Y.
O.
B.
Our menu consists of 62 items (Italian Food only) and an average spending of $2.25
Your Host, Carlo, is a special student at UMass

Price Reductions!!
Texas Instruments electronic calculators
Texas Instruments slide rule calculator SR-51
was $225.00 now only $179.95
Texas Instruments slide rule calculator SR-50
was $124.95 now only $109.95
both IN STOCK!!
UNIVERSITY STORE Campus Center
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Two arrested under state's gun law

Mandatory jail term required by law

By United Press International

At least two persons have been arrested under Massachusetts' rigid new gun law which went into effect Tuesday and carries an automatic one year prison sentence for possession of a firearm without a permit.

Calvin Hebert, 18, of North Adams, was arrested for carrying a .22 caliber rifle. Preone Moore, 35, of Boston's South End, was arrested after a gunfight at a party Tuesday night.

The law orders a mandatory one year sentence for anyone arrested carrying a gun without having a proper permit for the weapon. A court cannot lower the sentence.

Hebert pleaded innocent in district court to charges of illegal possession of a firearm and assault with a deadly weapon. The case was continued until April 15 and he was released on his own recognizance.

Police said Hebert was arrested about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday after a complaint that the youth was carrying the rifle while standing on a road near his home. They said when Hebert was arrested, the gun was empty but he had no permit. The assault charge was lodged when officials said the youth allegedly pointed the rifle at an unidentified man.

Moore was charged with illegal possession of a firearm and assault and battery with a deadly weapon. He was attending a party when an occupant of a lower floor complained about the noise. Police said Moore pulled a gun and chased the complaining man, Joseph Willis, 71, back to his apartment, where Willis picked up a pistol for which he had a license.

Moore was wounded in the arm in an exchange of shots. He also entered a plea of innocent in Boston Municipal Court yesterday and was confined at the Charles Street Jail on $1,000 bond. The case was continued until April 11.

Plane carries orphans from Vietnam to US

YOKOTA U.S. AIRBASE, Japan [AP] — A plane carrying 57 Vietnamese orphan babies bound for new homes in the United States reached Japan early yesterday after taking off from Saigon without control tower clearance in the face of a feared Viet Cong attack.

"Don't take off. Don't take off. You have no clearance," Ken Healy, who piloted the World Airways DC 8 jet, said he was told by the Tan Son Nhut airport in Saigon.

But Healy, who flew refugees out of mainland China in the late 1940s and made the chaotic last flight out of Da Nang last week, put the plane into the air anyway on its trip to Oakland, Calif., with stops in Japan and Hawaii.

He smiled later and said, "I just didn't get the message in time." Healy is from San Leandro, Calif.

Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport had been closed just before the jet took off because of a feared Viet Cong attack. All nonmilitary people had been ordered off the air base.

This correspondent, who flew aboard the plane on its trip to the United States, saw the babies roll on their backs in surprise as the plane took off. About 20 adult passengers, including two physicians, watched over them as the plane rose.

N.Y.S.E. Volume Profile	DOW JONES AVERAGE 30 Industrials
UP 565	Closed at 760.56
UNCHANGED 480	DOWN 1.02
744 DOWN	APR. 2, 1975

(UPI)

news summary

Connally trial opens

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The prosecution charged yesterday that former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. solicited $10,000 in bribes in 1971 by asking a milk lobby contact, "You think you can get some of that money for me?"

On the second day of Connally's bribery trial, assistant Watergate prosecutor Jon A. Sale said the prosecution would prove Connally sought — and got — payment for helping to persuade President Richard M. Nixon to raise milk support prices.

In his reply, defense counsel Edward Bennett Williams said the charges against Connally were false.

"He did not at any time receive anything whatsoever from the milk producers," Williams said. He urged the jury to "keep an open mind."

Hospitals slow down

CAMBRIDGE [AP] — People have begun to postpone surgery because of the recession, and hospitals are now operating 10 to 20 per cent below their usual levels, according to a survey conducted by a private research firm.

Among its other effects, the slowdown contributes to problems hospitals are having paying their bills and reduces demand for medical supplies, said Richard L. Hughes, director of health care study for Arthur D. Little, Inc.

Convention sought

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Promising an adequate number of hotel rooms, good transportation and fine food, officials of Kansas City and Cleveland yesterday made formal bids to host the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

The presentations — including slide shows — were viewed by the Democrats' Site Selection Committee, which scheduled similar pitches today by Los Angeles, New Orleans, Miami Beach, and New York.

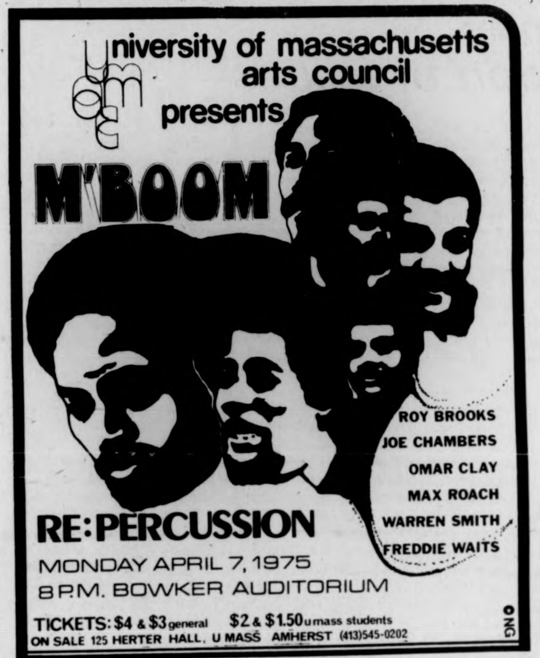
Chicago also had been scheduled to make a presentation yesterday but officials of that city canceled out, saying they had decided not to make a formal bid.

Rabin airs views

By United Press International

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said yesterday the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest Middle East peace mission showed the need for face-to-face Egyptian-Israeli negotiations for a new Sinai agreement.

Rabin also said he had little doubt Congress would approve new U.S. aid to Israel.



university of massachusetts arts council presents
M'BOOM
RE:PERCUSSION
ROY BROOKS
JOE CHAMBERS
OMAR CLAY
MAX ROACH
WARREN SMITH
FREDDIE WAITS
MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM
TICKETS: $4 & $3 general $2 & $1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

HUNGRY U
Pizza
Subs
256-0473
103 N. Pleasant
256-8914
55 UNIV. DR.
WeDeliver

adidas®
The three stripes of Adidas...Here the Tournament basketball shoe... with special padding to protect the heel and Achilles tendon, vulcanized rubber sole, and a new cushioned heel lining. You can't do better...in Tournament blue velour leather. Sizes 4-13 $23.95
Just one, from our exciting and complete Adidas collection
Mathaus SHOE STORE
SO. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST
BANKAMERICARD
master charge

EUROPE THIS SUMMER: $304
AT ADVENTURA TRAVEL-WHILE IT LASTS!
The "Apex" 60-day advanced booking fare is back! It's the least expensive, most flexible way of spending 22 to 45 days in Europe. Book now and you'll save $90 or more.
There are no hassles with inflexible charter flight dates and you can return from any city in Europe.
What's the catch? You must make your reservation at least 60 days ahead of departure and pay within 7 days of reservation. (Adventura Travel accepts credit cards and children's discounts are available). Also, since only 20% of the seats on each flight can be sold at this special rate, many flights are already sold out. The $304 price increases to $394 on June 1.
So call us or come in today to assure yourself a European vacation at this very special price.
"No Service Charge."
CALL TODAY FOR RESERVATIONS OR INFORMATION!
PHONE 549-1256
adventura travel
in the Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst - Phone 549-1256

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.
AFROTC
An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.
- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel
Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Election Forum

PCP candidates for Town Meeting

Precinct 1, Parish Hall, North Amherst - Floyd Bailey, Sandra Brayton, Ellen Gavin, Deborah Ortlip, Carrie Jo Gershman, Rubie James, John Pepi, Brian Sabel, Jim Starr, Ellen Caracciolo (one year seat).

Precinct 2, Fire Station at center of Amherst - Mark Benoit, Philip Sellinger, Robert Gilbert. Catherine Hopkins, Pamela Houmere, Douglas Stanley, Robert Weiner, Lawrence Kornfield (one year seat).

Precinct 3, Odd Fellows Hall - Lisa Marie Alberghini, Adam Auster, Donna Marie Fusco, Randy Grodman, Ellen R. Regal, Jonathan Speigel, Charlotte Walters, Janet Webber, Lynn Washburn, Mark Levitan.

Precinct 4, Masonic Building - Daniel Reich, Nina Reich.

Precinct 6, Munson Memorial Library Building - Marc Lee Berman, Jane Fleishman, Mary Nesta King, Fred Landes, Jack Leader, Don Michak, William R. Price, Jr., Terence Tierney.

Precinct 7, Amherst Auction Gallery - Mary J. Vinette, Marcus R. Gardner, Eric Walgren, Jean Marie Murray, Robert R. Gardner.

Progressive Candidates Pool offers alternative slate

As students prepare for the inevitable mass exodus off campus and into the surrounding community, a genuine concern for their soon-to-be home's welfare has given rise to an alternative slate of proponents for the Amherst Town Meeting known as the Progressive Candidate's Pool. More students are taking advantage of their right to vote and this marks the first time that they will have taken an active part in the town elections.

The group was initially formulated to organize protest against surging rent hikes in the town and since has focused their interests and concerns to the welfare of students, tenants, workers, and underpriviledged members of he community. The PCP has drafted a number of proposals and warrants for the Town Meeting siting their attention on transportation, rent connrol, protecting the local environment, town-university relations, and personal liberties.

One of the people running, John Pepi, said that the Pool is made up of candidates genuinely concerned with the town.

"This isn't an attempt at a take-over" said Pepi, "we want what is best for all the townspeople, which does in fact include a large number of students who live and work in the town."

Through a number of warrants the Pool has outlined their plans for change. Some of the changes the group advocates include initiating the action to bring rent control, new low income housing, taxing of University property, opening the dorms to non-students and apartmentizing them. The roots of these proposals is the flood of students to off campus residence expected.

Other issues which concern the Progressive Candidates are child care facilities, a non-enforcement policy on victimless crimes prohibiting dum-dum bullets, blocking nuclear power plants, encouraging non returnable bottles, Green Belt zoning by-laws, a town-university board and several others. Further information can be obtained by contacting any of the listed Town Meeting candidates.

Why I am running
An election of issues

By DOUGLAS PHELPS

As a candidate for Town Moderator, I am the only candidate for town-wide office affiliated with the Progressive Candidates Pool. Since it is our intent to emphasize issues and concerns rather than personalities, we have sought to focus our campaign on what we see to be the needs of the people of Amherst. We have found a great deal of support among people at the precinct level for the issues that we have raised, and we expect their message to be heard at the polls on April 8.

Some of the immediate needs which will face the upcoming Town Meeting are the following:

1) a program of housing reform, which includes effective rent control, planned flow of students to off-campus housing, and more low income housing in and around Amherst;

2) measures to insure the vitality of our liberties as citizens in a democratic society, including the formation of a Town ombudscommittee, 24-hour child care facilities, repeal of laws prohibiting group households, non-enforcement of victimless crimes, prohibition of the use of dum-dum bullets by police, and other law enforcement reforms in areas involving discretionary policies;

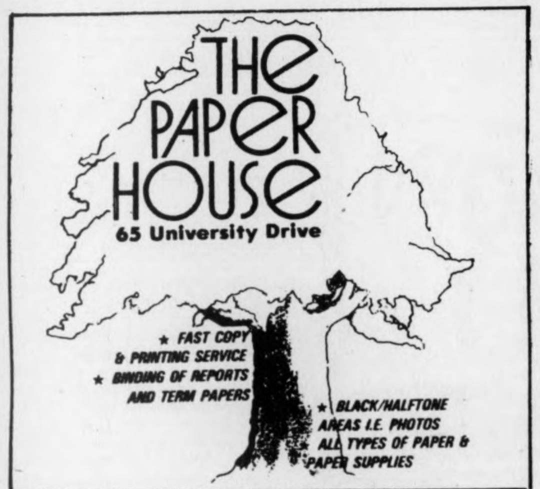
3) a clear commitment to the quality of life in the Town of Amherst, including measures to control town growth and insure greenbelt zoning, to provide for alternative and adquate transportation facilities, to control waste, and to oppose the proposed Nukes power plant; and

4) strenghtening self-government at a local level, through creation of a Town-University board, reapportionment of Town Meeting, affirmation of the principle of local control by speaking out as a Town on issues such as non-funding of the Southeast Asian War, and observance of the anniversary of our nation's Revolutionary Bicentennial as a people's celebration.

If elected Town Moderator, I would exercise my delegated authority to appoint certain Town committees, such as the Finance Committee, in a manner to insure a representation of a cross-section of people who understand the varied needs of our community, such as those needs outlined above.

In moderating the Town Meeting, I would insure that all issues receive a fair and full hearing, and that no voice goes unheard. I would carry to my role as Moderator the Progressive Candidates Pool's democratic commitment, and refrain from exercising illegitimate authority as Chair of Town Meeting.

Ultimately, the faith people have in the Town Moderator can, and should, be no greater than the faith which the Moderator places in Town Meeting as a form of government. A Moderator who respects the institution of Town Meeting will be a fair and effective Moderator. For my part, rest assured that I do not share UMass President Robert Wood's infamous assessment of town meetings as "government by wisecrack ... mechanisms too cumbersome to make real decisions." Rather, I share the judgement of DeTocqueville, who observed that "town meetings are to liberty what primary schools are to science; they bring it within the people's reach ... ."



THE PAPER HOUSE
65 University Drive
★ FAST COPY & PRINTING SERVICE
★ BINDING OF REPORTS AND TERM PAPERS
★ BLACK/HALFTONE AREAS I.E. PHOTOS
★ ALL TYPES OF PAPER & PAPER SUPPLIES

dvp

Applications at S.U.B. Rm. 415 or at C.C. Information Desk

The Distinguished Visitor's Program is financed and operated by the undergraduates of UMass. for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists. It seeks to bring to campus those persons whose experiences in domestic and international affairs, sciences, arts and humanities quality them to interpret, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions.

Come work with us.

Deadline April 6

Swingshifters of '71

REUNITE

for party info call Janice 256-6457 or Steve 253-5260 before Apr. 10

STUDENT UNITY

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Radio Shack
of AMHERST
locally owned & operated
YOUR 'EVERYTHING IN AUDIO' STORE
We service what we sell
Stereo · AM&FM · Transmitters & Receivers · for your Home, Car or Boat friendly, personal service that doesn't end with the sale - - -

PANASONIC cassette recorders & radios
SANYO auto stereo units
JENSEN car stereo speakers
REALISTIC
ELECTROPHONIC compact systems
CASIO calculators
ASTATIC replacement needles & stylii
HAYDEN technical books

Stereo & Hi-Fi components, speakers and compact systems · Citizen Band 2 way radio · Portable radios and cassette recorders · A full line of electronic parts and replacement transistors · Television antennas and accessories · Car stereos & 8 track, cassette, radios and accessories · Phono & tape equipment · Audio cables • •

318 COLLEGE ST.
ROUTE 9 AMHERST
NEAR THE UMASS BUS RT.

©NG

Letters

Sick of the Infirmary

To the Editor:

On Monday, March 10, I went to the infirmary to refill a prescription. I was directed through miles of red tape, and ended up seeing a doctor and having a blood test. The doctor interpreted the jumble of numbers on the blood test report as mononucleosis. Acting on his advice, I was admitted to the 3rd floor of the infirmary to "rest for a few days." This was my first mistake.

The first night of my rest was uneventful except for the fact that my room thermostat must have been set at -50 degrees. Needless to say, I caught a severe cold and could hardly breathe by morning. Naively, I asked the charge nurse for a decongestant. I was informed that "procedures dictate that you cannot have anything until your doctor comes in and authorizes it." My doctor made his rounds at four in the afternoon. That evening, after seeing the doctor and getting a cold pill, I decided to take a shower. Upon asking for some clean pajamas, I was informed that they were all out of large [I'm 6' 4"] and had to settle for medium. There seems to me to be a deficiency when the infirmary is not even half full, [20 out of 50 beds in use] and already they are running out of clean laundry.

In the middle of the night I was awakened to have my pulse and temperature taken. This is routine, and fine with me except for the fact that I laid there for 35 minutes with the damn thermometer in my mouth.

When my doctor came around Wednesday afternoon, I demanded that he authorize my release from that zoo. He agreed to let me leave in the morning. At 9:00 p.m., I decided to go to sleep since I was tired and nothing else was going on. I asked the charge nurse for my decongestant pill before retiring, and she replied, "Why don't you stay up for a while and have your medication with everyone else?" To this I replied, "You've got to be kidding." She wasn't. Enraged, I made enough noise so that, reluctantly, she finally forked over the pill.

Later that night, I lay awake talking to one of the younger nurses. I told her of my adventures, and I think she summed it up best when she replied, "This place is no place to be when you're sick and defenseless."

James Canning

A necessary correction

To the Editor:

I would like to take this time to correct an error that the Collegian made in printing my editorial entitled, "History Repeats Itself," which was printed on Monday, March 31st, 1975. It was incorrectly printed that, "... but we had to appear in court, and the best part is that we had to travel from out - of - town since the summons date was during spring break." I had never written any such thing in the draft that I submitted to the Collegian office. In fact what I did say was, "... but the best part is that we may have to travel from out - of - town, since the summons date is during spring break." I wrote the editorial before spring break, so there was no way for me to know at that time if we would have to appear in court, or if things would be cleared by the LSO before the date of the summons.

Evidently, an over-imaginative Collegian staffer decided to do some rewording.

Debbe Marchetto

S.O.P. enlists support

To the Editor:

The Student Organizing Project would like to encourage all interested students to come to an Organizers' Meeting today at 3 p.m. in 811 Campus Center. We will discuss strategy and ways of getting support for the "Student Unionization Enabling Act" which will be considered by our own Board of Trustees May 7th. Our plans so far include a campus-wide canvas, and the endorsement of campus groups. We will have a table in the concourse, and the Mobile Organizing Center in dorms to discuss unionization, and enlist support. We need the help and support of everyone to have a student union, so if you're curious, interested, or committed, come by the Organizer's Meeting to discuss plans and strategy for a student union!

The Student Organizing Project

Podunkian lament

To the Editor:

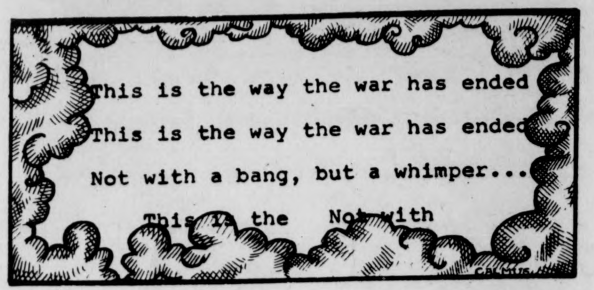
I respect the right of this paper to a free press; however, I must rise to the defense of all that is noble and sacred and renounce your remark in Tuesday's paper. I am, of course, referring to the article entitled: "Screw-loose and fancy-free governor seeks new M.D." As a loyal and dedicated Podunkian, I cannot let a remark like: "... such newspaper worthies as the ... Podunk Garbage Liner ..." pass by unquestioned.

Podunk has suffered the stigma of the colloquialism long enough! So, Ferd Finbone [and all the rest of you uninformed Umies], before you cast any more aspersions our way, go and look over the area we refer to as "God's Country". It is less than an hour's drive straight down Route 9 [east] except for the last mile or so. After you've seen it, I predict your remarks will be less prejudiced and much more favorable.

Chris Terry

Amherst town elections are Tuesday, April 8. Don't forget to vote!

Refuse and refugee



This is the way the war has ended
This is the way the war has ended
Not with a bang, but a whimper...
This is the Not with CALMUS

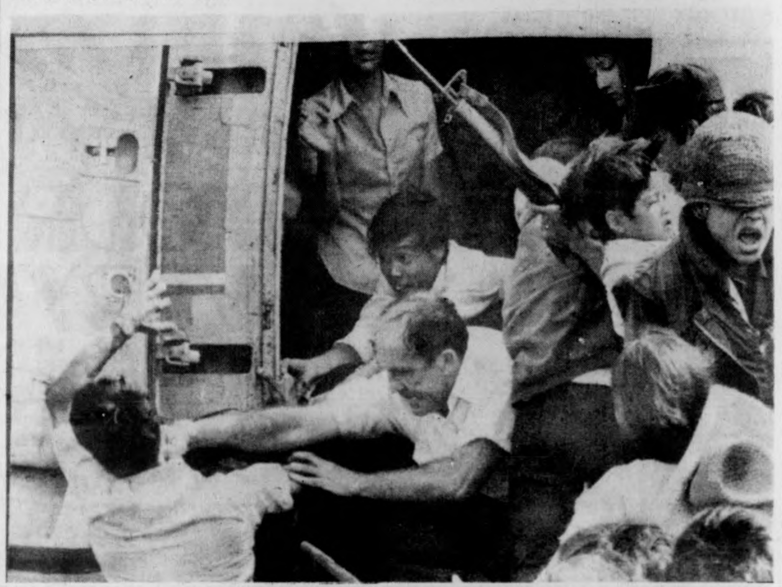
The long war in Vietnam is almost over. The past decade of conflict in the rice patties and college campuses, the arguments, the broken promises and lies, the friends and relatives returning from war dead and alive but never understanding the purpose at last; ends in a series of photographs of dying refugees piled in ships.



— The irony of refugees fighting with their own soldiers on the shores of Cam Ranh Bay where President Johnson stood eight years ago and told our boys they were fighting a "good war."

— The obscenity of the photographs of mothers holding their dead children casting them off the sides of U.S. vessels packed like sardine cans.

— The apathy of Americans as we can no longer take anymore of Vietnam and feel no shame for what has happened. In Dallas, the genitals of the shrapnelled child were covered on the cover of Newsweek. Vietnam has erased our sense of what is indecent.

There will be no banner victory headlines, no ticker-tape parades or joyful reunions. Vietnam will simply fade from the media and the price of tin will rise in the States.

We feel that there is reason for shame in Vietnam. Events there are all too disgusting to take on that 'we were right all along' attitude. We, as students sang, marched against the war, but we as students will inherit this country. It is our duty to never forget the lesson we paid for in lives and money never to let such a sham occur again.

It is now our task to see that what is going on in the Persian Gulf and in South America does not turn into other Vietnams.

We have been a generation who have grown used to shame, both domestic and abroad. Assassination, political corruption, social injustice, violence, and war have been part of all our lives.

Lessons can't be forgotten, we must prevent the actualization of Wasteland.

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Board of Editors.

Collegian staff members

If your name is not listed here, and you feel you qualify as a member of the Collegian for voting a tonight's meeting, contact Bill Parent at the office or at 5-3500.

SPORTS STAFF

Ron Arena, Wayne Bedell, John Bock, Ben Caswell, Tom Crowley, Bill Doyle, Steve DeCosta, Dave Eibel, Bill Elias, Teresa Hanatin, Scott Hayes, Bob Higgins, Barnaby Kalan, Neil Kelly, Mike Kneeland, Greg Levins, Jay Luppold, Peter McDonnel, Bob Northon, Chas O'Connor, Glenn Poster, Walt Powers, Steve Saraceno, Rich Sevieri, Russ Smith, Steve Tetrault, Laurie Whiting, Mike Berger, Beth Rose,,

NEWS STAFF

Bill Gonet, Larry Kornfeld, Ernie King, Hugh Owen, June Valliere, Steve Tripoli, Brina Coyne, Avis Uni, Fred Nobles, Sandy Carlin, Hillary Martick, Linda Brower, Debbi DiMassimo, Rick Gureghian, Nancy Gruscheck, Paul Bradley, Paul Logue, Thomas Brine, Bill Mills, Susan Genser, Tony Pelusi, Dan Lewis, Melanie Johnson, James O'Dato, Liz Temby, Donna Fusco, Steve Macaulay, Joe Mahoney, Sandra Waskiedicz, Kathy Weise, Vicki Poth, Mara Klein, John O'Neil, Paul Tucker, Joan Hurley, Sue Adley, Roberta Martone, Cheryl Walsh, Jan Alexander, Bill Densmore, Judy Friedland, Fred Gosiewski, P.J. Prokop, Debbie Shaefer, Dorothy Muller.

BUSINESS STAFF

Ken Shapiro, Gary Williams, Paul Kontrimas, Alan Anastos, Betsy Harkins, Lynn Frost, Michael Pappas, Susan Beliveau, Bob Kriensky, Betty Ramsey, Linda Cioffi, Bob Crowell, Bill Hicky, Jamie O'Brian, Wayne Bedell, Rodney Byrd, Sheila Watson, Sherry Jacobs, Bob Stevens.

BELOW THE SALT STAFF

Andrew B. MacKenzie, Michael C. Kostek, Gina Starodoj, Ed Smith Lori Leiderman, Maria Richmond, Sue Doskocil, Don McGilvray, Kris Jackson, Ben Atkins, Kit Browne, Jack Cahill, David Miller, Dennis Quill, David Santos, John Wassell, Karen Miller, Stuard Sojcher, Jeffrey Polman, Luis Medina, Bill Howell, Bob Lampron, Danniel Finneran, Kevin Pelletier, Ross Nerenberg, Ken Blanchard, Michael Peppe, Mark Harris Levitan, Linda Sherksnis, Ed Fleischer, David Letters, Craig Roche, Jim Paulin.

EDITORIAL STAFF

Paul Bradley, Jim Carson, Nat Clark, Reid Fishman, Robert Golner, Bryan Harvey, Mike Izdepski, Joyce Kosofsky, Luis Medina, Zamir Nestelbaum, Dudley Phillips, Benita Pullara, Stephen Romano, Robert Shmeligian, Doug Surette, qpphen Turner, Charles Zaffini, Mary Driscoll, Ellen Gavin, Kyriakos Karoutsos, James Noilet, Glenn Calmus, Peter Yaskell, Mike Moyle, Stephanie Kornfeld.

PHOTO STAFF

George Withers, Tuna Steward, Lionel Robeiro, Bob Gamache, Fran Glavin, Dale Griswold, Jay Saret, Leon Nadeau, Dan Smith, Mark Beletch, Bob Norcott, Jim Higgins, Larry Hershkowitz, Joe. Stoddart, Jack O'Neil, Ed Cohen, Chris Bourne, Bob Stevens, Bob Carlin, Peter Kruse, Bill Howell, Paul Muzyka, Stu Eyman, Clyde Beatty, Juan Durruthy, Bob Miles, Joe Martins, Rob Smerling, Dick Leonard.

ISSUE EDITORS & NIGHT STAFF

Geoff Kurinsky, Dan LaBonte, Walt Powers.

E. Patrick McQuaid

I'm oppressed -- you're oppressed

By E. PATRICK McQUAID

Where is that time; where has it gone? Those days long, long ago when in the blossom of our ignorance we frisked with our playmates on some endless beach; when a skimming rock would break the still silence of pastoral waters and a surge of mirth would ripple through our hearts, for we had jostled the steadfast scheme of nature.

When crossing a paved summit and descending its other side, each morning my eyes catch hold of a glorious span of sunblest vegetation. My foot moves from accelerator to brake but fails to finish the deed; I must go on or be late for class. Indeed this is tragic when I can no longer stop to experience the sensation of such beauty. Before me I see sunrays suckle every meadow and a field of gold once taken in awe by youth whose eyes had not yet seen the harvest of his age.

But now he is educated.

And he, the youth whose hair is streaked with gold, too remembers a gilded age; recalls the days that never were, but remain precious memories.

"I sure miss Life magazine," he stated as he released a blue fume of cigarette smoke into the still atmosphere. "Yup, every Friday afternoon, after school, it was cookies 'n' milk an' Life magazine. I remember thumbing through the pages and looking ... photos of ... and people ... an' remember the ..." fading, fading, fading, like the memories of which he spoke. His voice was swept away, his breath had escaped my ears like wind; his image like vapor.

Darkness set in, darkness like a shroud. The earth and the mind are in stillness, for he who had made memories was at rest in his horizon.

This darkness has blinded us from seeing the beauty of the everyday, the commonplace of existence. We are oppressed and we willingly accept it. That same force that drives us to liberate our fellow man binds us to an intolerable prison within.

There is no "ism" for which to slap a label onto this malady. It doesn't stem from our social, religious, or ethnic beliefs but is rooted deep within our subconscious. It is our damn human education! That elitist "maturity" that prevents us from looking with child-eyes at the world in which we live.

It is the same golden landscape that we saw as children. The sea is still there, roaring; how often do we listen to the sea anymore; it still says the same things to us.

So we are oppressed and we crave it. We have constructed huge monuments, cathedrals in concrete to praise our oppression. We squirm in the slime of our waste and exult in ourselves, for once again, as we did as children so long, long ago, have jostled the steadfast scheme of nature.

E. Patrick McQuaid is the Collegian Associate Executive Editor

Plight of the Soviet Jews

By LAWRENCE A. COHEN and MARILYN LEVI

Even though the U.S.—Soviet Trade has been cancelled by Russia, there are still three million Jews who need our support. Conditions for Soviet Jews have deteriorated from bad to horrible!

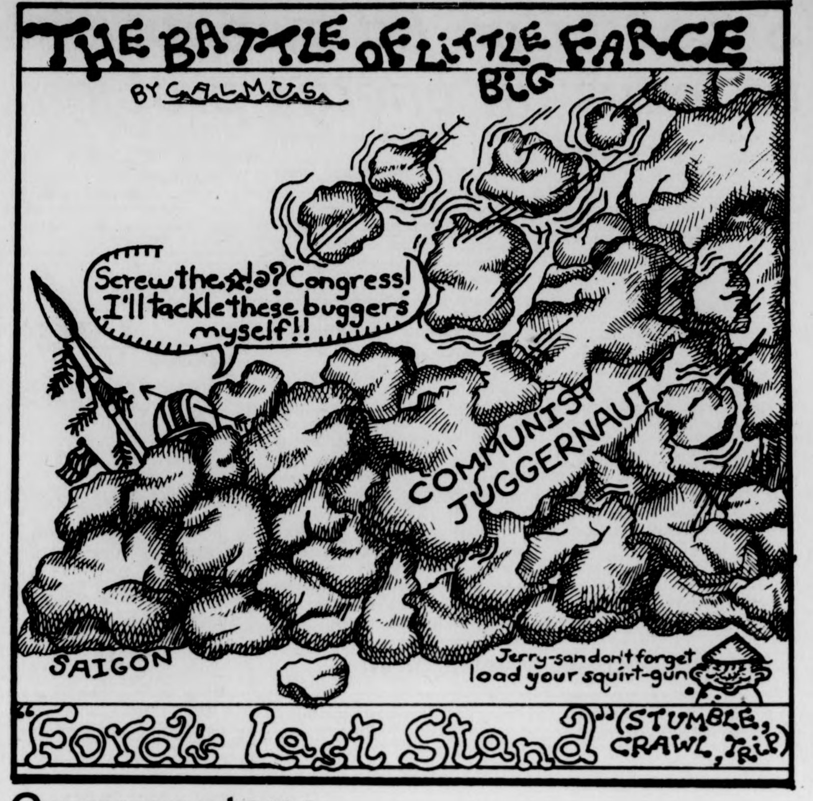
Harassment of applicants for exit visas was intensified promptly after the trade cancellation. Phone communications from the West to activists is almost entirely cut. Vladimir Oliker and Israel Varnavitsky of Leningrad were detained by police while making overseas calls. In Leningrad and Kiev, an applicant for exit must list relatives; who are then harassed and pressured to demand the applicant withdraw his application, and forced to sign documents in which there is a pledge not to apply for exit visas themselves. A Leningrad activist described in a letter how "in the OVIR immigration office, we now hear phrases such as 'I don't advise you to hand in your documents again this year, 'You can hand in your documents if you have forty rubles (the non-refundable application fee) to waste, 'You may come here again in 1977'." Moscow dentist Mark Nashpitz rejected an offer of exit providing he would first spy on the Jewish immigration movement!

Margarita Suslensky, wife of activist Yakov Suslensky, was subjected to a humiliating gynecological search, three times during an eight hour interrogation, by Soviet secret police, K.G.B., after visiting her husband in prison. Mrs. Suslensky was searched by a woman who wore no gloves and had dirty hands. She was then made to urinate and defecate to "prove" she had no "hidden messages."

We cannot stand idly by while Soviet Jews are being denied basic human rights and freedoms. We cannot and will not turn our other cheek to this barbarious persecution! We urge you to write letters to Soviet Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, deploring and rejecting this persecution, and demanding the right for Soviet Jews to emigrate to Israel. If you want more information on the plight of Soviet Jewry, look for our information table on the Concourse level of the Campus Center.

We ARE our brother's keeper. Let my people go!

Lawrence A. Cohen and Marilyn Levi are Collegian guest commentators



THE BATTLE OF LITTLE FARCE
BIG
BY CALMUS
Screw the ☆!@? Congress! I'll tackle these buggers myself!!
COMMUNIST JUGGERNAUT
SAIGON
Jerry-san don't forget load your squirt-gun
"Ford's Last Stand" (STUMBLE, CRAWL, TRIP)

Commentary

Manchesters's media menace

By DAVE OSTRANDER

"There is a real media problem in New Hampshire. When the Union Leader attacks you, you've got to fight back. The problem is you can't fight back effectively." — William Johnson, State GOP Chairman, 1969

That problem still exists. The newspaper is the Manchester Union Leader and the reason for the problem is a springhead by the name of William Loeb, the publisher and full time paranoiac of the "Communist conspiracy."

The problem is a virtual monopoly on the thinking and perception of all New Hampshire residents. Loeb has achieved this because his newspaper is the only one that is distributed throughout the state, it is the only morning paper, and has the only Sunday edition in the state.

The only "competition" Loeb has, is eight other local newspapers (he calls them the "pip-squeak press") which really have no effect anyway, since they carry mostly wire service news and generally reflect the ultra-conservative attitudes of the Union Leader.

The electronic media, growing in influence throughout the rest of the country, lags far behind in New Hampshire due to the poor reception. The only state stations are either impoverished or specialize in old movies and cartoons.

Boston stations reach into New Hampshire but cover little if any related events.

This situation would not be so dangerous if the Union Leader was a responsible, honest, fair, and objective newspaper like the public expect newspapers to be. Instead, it is an organ that returns to the red scare period of the Joe McCarthy fifties.

Not only is William Loeb an obstruction in the self-evaluation and judgement of the New Hampshire people, he is also a crook. In 1957, in Haverhill, Mass. he tried to put an opposing paper, the Haverhill Gazette, out of business, was sued, and forced to pay $3 million in damages.

"The situation would not be so dangerous if the Union Leader was a responsible, honest, fair and objective newspaper like the public expects newspapers to be. Instead it is an organ that returns to the red scare period of the Joe McCarthy fifties."

In order to save his skin, he took a $2 million loan from the Teamsters Union and continues to act as their puppet, especially in defense of Jimmy Hoffa and Teamster backed candidates.

Which brings us to politics, where Loeb has the most dangerous influence of all. He is literally able to pluck a candidate from nowhere and through the biased backing of the Union Leader, set him up in an official position. Hard to believe? Don't doubt it for long, because right now, a second rate hack by the name of Meldrim Thomson is Governor of New Hampshire, primarily through the efforts of William Loeb.

In state politics Loeb has undisputed power over who gets elected and who does not. Candidates are unwilling to enter primaries for office mainly out of fear of the newspaper's abuse of their families, something Loeb excels in, as evidenced in remarks and epithets made about national political figures.

The New York Times quoted one New Hampshire businessman about this problem. "It's not a question of my speaking out (against Loeb); it's a question of what he will do in the paper to my family. He has no sense of decency. If there is anything he can publish against you, he will."

"He (Loeb) is literally able to pluck a candidate from nowhere and through the biased backing of the Union Leader, set him up in an official position."

In the 1964 presidential primary Loeb called Nelson Rockefeller "a wife swapper," even though he himself has had three wives. "Moscow" Muskie, George McGovern, and John Lindsay are known as "left wing kooks." Henry Kissinger is "a tool of the Communist conspiracy" and Martin Luther King "really asked for what happened to him." Unbelievable!

Fortunately, candidates supported by Loeb have a habit of losing — Barry Goldwater, Sam Yorty the most notable. One exception (although this guy certainly is a loser) was Ricky Nixon, who in 1968, made a deal with Loeb for his support in the New Hampshire primary. However, Nixon's victory in the state was due to the way Loeb and his newspaper undercut Nixon's opponent, George Rommey, in his bid for the Presidential nomination.

But Loeb saves the best of his attacks, usually reserved for his mud-slinging front page editorials, for the Kennedys — disrespectfully known to Loeb as "Tricky Jack," "Copperhead Bobby," and "Stupid Teddy."

In my mind, this character is a basket case and should be put away, but it is unlikely that will happen as long as he monopolizes the communications media of New Hampshire.

The solution to the problem? Who knows. Perhaps outside pressure to present different viewpoints in the newspaper. At this time, no liberal or moderate columnists are carried in the Union Leader.

Opposing papers could increase political coverage and provide an alternative voice in the state. However, the ingrained Yankee-Protestant conservatism of the New Hampshire people would probably send the views on the same track as the Union Leader.

Until something changes, New Hampshire is stuck with a clown who presents the greatest danger to any democratic system — a single philosophy.

It's happening now in New Hampshire. It could be happening throughout the entire country if the communication's network is monopolized at the same rate as is now happening.

Dave Ostrander is a Collegian Commentator.

Second Con Ed symposium to focus on energy problems

Alternative energy and food production is the focus of the second annual "Toward Tomorrow: A Symposium of Alternatives" offered through the Division of Continuing Education at UMass this summer.

The "Toward Tomorrow" program pulls together people from all walks of life. Participants interested in learning through "hands-on" workshops gain practical working knowledge in such areas as wind power, solar heat, methane gas, organic gardening, steam power, electric cars, recycling, and world food and energy problems.

Building on last summer's experience, this series of 29 workshops is offered at a lowered cost and on weekend as well as week long schedules throughout the summer.

Workshop instructors are experts in their field, and emphasize the "how to" aspects of the subject matter. Whenever possible, students are involved in building, measuring, growing and problem solving.

"Students will leave their workshops with a new or sharper skill, one that has direct application to their personal goals," said Alan Ashton, director of Toward Tomorrow. Several participants in last year's program are currently integrating methods and techniques learned into their individual home or business sites.

In addition to the workshops, the Division of Continuing Education is making provisions for exhibits dealing with these alternatives. Such displays are open to the general public, as well as to workshop participants, and are provided by manufacturers and business throughout the country.

Toward Tomorrow workshops run from June 27 through Aug. 15. There is no limit to the number of weekend or week long sessions participants can register for. Enrollment is open to the public. Credit options can be arranged.

For further information on workshops and registration contact Toward Tomorrow, Division of Continuing Education, 205 Hills North, UMass, Amherst, Mass. 01002, telephone (413) 545-0905.

Student teachers meet tonight

The Cue-Tep students who plan to do their practice teaching during the fall semester '75 are requested to be present at the pre-intern placement workshop that will be held tonight at the University of Massachusetts, School of Education in Room 128 at 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.

The Cue-Tep staff will be looking forward to seeing you there.

Thank you for your consideration.

Library schedule

Monday-Friday (April)
8 a.m. to 12 midnight
Saturday (April)
9 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Sunday (April) 10 a.m. to 12 midnight

NOTE: Friday, April 18, the Library will close at 8 p.m. (This is Patriots' Day Weekend)

Collegian staff meeting tonight at 7 CC 171

London Paris Rome

Spend the Entire Summer in Europe for just $377*

BOSTON — PARIS — BOSTON

If you are a member of any of the 5 colleges within this area you may qualify for this low group fare

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT MR. RICHARD PINI — 253-7766

* air fare only

PAUL J LANDRY

LANDRY'S MARKET
The Oldest Grocery in Amherst

10% DISCOUNT ON ALL WINES
Prices Effective 4-2 to 4-9
ALL BEER WARM OR COLD

Munich Beer, 12 oz. N.R., Reg. $1.45	Our Price, 6 Pak 99c
Miller, 12 oz. Cans, Reg. $1.85	Our Price, 6 Pak $1.39
Ballantine Beer, 12 oz. N.R. Cans, Reg. $1.85	Our Price, 6 Pak $1.25
Heineken's Beer, 12 oz. N.R., Reg. $4.25	Our Price, 6 Pak $3.25
Guinness Stout, 12 oz. 4 Pak	4 Pak, $2.35
Cabot's Triple Score BUTTER	lb. 89c
Cabot's Vermont CHEESE	lb. $1.49
Idlenot MILK	½ gal. 72c, gal. $1.43
Slab BACON	lb. $1.09
Breakfast SAUSAGE	lb. 99c
Eye Round CORNED BEEF	lb. $1.39
Reg. Ground BEEF	lb. 75c
LETTUCE	29c head or 2 for 49c
CUKES	2 for 35c
Idaho POTATOES	5 lb. 49c
Fancy MAPLE SYRUP, Reg. $2.99	Our Price Pt. $2.59
Natural Hardwood CHARCOAL	8 lb. bag $1.29

Open 8-9, Mon.-Thurs.; 8-11, Fri. & Sat. 10-3, Sun. (No Beer)

711 Main St. Amherst 253-5387
On the Belchertown Bus Route

The way fun is going to be...

Maxwells

discotheque & restaurant
Three Floors Of Good Times!
Every Sunday — Live Bands 8:30 P.M.-1:00 A.M.
Discotheque Nightly 9:00-1:00 A.M.
new! mini-Max — upstairs . . .
an intimate setting for you and yours
and the underground — downstairs . . .
conversation, great sandwiches and special prices on draft beer!
"Sandwiches that are more than a meal"
Open at Noon
at the Elmwood
Route 9 Hadley, Massachusetts
Gress Inn, Inc.
food drink dancing

IN STOCK OVER 10,267 ITEMS
PAYSAVER DISTRIBUTORS
BEST THING SINCE WHOLESALE
THE CATALOG / SHOWROOM / WAREHOUSE
ASK OUR SOUND EXPERTS FOR DETAILS
PAYSAVER "Gold Book" CATALOG

Sansui
CREATIVE BSR

MFG. LIST 419.00
$249
SAVE $170.00
SANSUI 441 AM/FM STEREO RECEIVER
CREATIVE 222 2-WAY SPEAKER SYSTEM
BSR McDONALD 2260X TOTAL TURNTABLE

SPRINGFIELD 1351 MAIN ST. Daily 9:30 AM to 5:30 PM Mon. & Thur. til 9 P.M.
WEST SPRINGFIELD BURT'S-CENTURY CENTER Daily 9 AM to 9 PM SAT 9 to 5:30
HOLYOKE 1504 NORTHAMPTON ST. Daily 10 AM to 9 PM Sat til 6 PM
NORTHAMPTON HAMP PLAZA Daily 10 AM to 9 PM Sat til 6 PM
GREENFIELD 87 MAIN ST. Daily 10 AM to 6 PM Fri til 9 PM
master charge BANKAMERICARD
VISIT BURT'S NEW COMPLETE SOUND ROOM

Study on water quality seeks student assistance

If you are an Amherst town water user you can help in a new University of Massachusetts research study on what happens to water quality between the reservoir and the tap.

UMass chemist Tom Zajicek has preliminary data to indicate that water quality suffers because water extracts trace metal impurities as it goes through distribution mains and household pulmbing. His study will look into changes that take place in water throughout distribution systems, why and how these changes take place, and their effect on trace metal levels.

He has chosen the Amherst town system not because of any particular trace metal problem in the system but because it is typical of many public water systems in the region. The long range goal of the study is to provide answers which will aid in the establishment of reasonable and enforceable standards relative to trace metals.

He plans test sites around the town for frequent sampling and is interested in getting tap water samples from unusual systems — those with a completely iron plumbing system or a galvanized water tank, for example. "We would also welcome word of any unusual drinking water conditions noted around the town — such things as abnormal taste, color or the like," he said.

The Zajicek hotline at 545-1521 is manned between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Although he won't be there at all times, he will answer callers that leave names and phone numbers. He adds: "A transient problem may have to be sampled immediately; if your bathtub fills with unusually colored water, for example. This sort of problem may not wait until the next day so take a sample right away.

"A pint of water is enough. Use a clean bottle (liquid cleaners are hard to remove so a soda bottle with a screw cap is best). Fill the bottle as near to the top as possible and store it in the refrigerator. Call in the next day and it will be picked up."

notices

ARMENIAN CLUB

Meeting tonite, 4-3, at 7:30 in the 3rd floor lounge of Herter Hall to go over final plans for the dance. Party afterwards with wine and cheese. All welcome! Tickets for 4-19 dance will be on sale.

BICYCLE CLUB

Tonite, 7:30 CC 911-915 short business meeting followed by Terry Dibble of Amherst Cycle speaking on maintenance. New members welcome. Weekend rides will be posed on board Friday.

CAR WASH!

Saturday, 4-5, 10 a.m.-3:30 p.m., Zayre's parking lot, Rt. 9; sponsored by the J.O.E. Program. Clean a winter's-worth from your car and help the kids!

CHI OMEGA

Didn't make it to Hawaii over vacation? Well, you'll find the next best thing at Chi Omega tonite at 7:00. Come learn to hula from a Hawaiian native while you sip a passionate pineapple concoction! All university women invited. Rides provided at 6:45. More info call 5-0162.

"CITY KIDS"

Florence Ladd, Assoc. Prof. at Harvard School of Design will give a talk entitled "City Kids in the Absence ... " on Thurs. 4-3, at 8 p.m., Rm. 904 CC.

COME JOIN US

If you enjoy singing, come join us, the Newman Choir, at 6:15 p.m. on Sundays at the Newman Center Choir Loft. No auditions required. If interested drop by — everyone welcome.

COMM. DISORDERS MAJORS

Important meeting tonite before the colloq. Meet at 7:00 in 504 Goodell. Colloq. starts at 7:30. Please come — discussions about elections and constitution.

ECKANKAR, SOUL TRAVEL

There will be a discussion class and workshop on soul travel tonite in Rm. 902 CC. Anyone interested is invited to attend. Aaron 549-1696.

INTERESTED IN COMMUNITY

To those interested in Christian Community: contact the Wesley Co-operative. We are located at 10 Pleasant St. in Amherst, a 10 min. walk from UMass campus. Call 549-6563 or come to an open house 4-4 at 7:45.

JUDO ANYONE?

Ron Berube, 4th degree Black Belt Judo Champion will be the guest instructor at Thurs. nites Judo class at 7 p.m. in Boyden 237. All are welcome.

N.E.S. TUTORS

Seminar on reading methods will be tonite at 8:00 in 208 Grad. Research. All tutors should attend. Everyone enrolled in colloq must attend.

OPEN RUSH PARTY

The sisters and pledges of Sigma Kappa, 19 Allen St., invite all university women to join us tonite from 7:30-8:30 for informal card games. Call 256-6887 or 545-2297 for rides or more info.

PRE MED SOCIETY

Trip to UMass Medical School scheduled for 4-24. Details and sign up sheets available at general meeting next week.

PROGRAM COUNCIL MUSIC COMM.

Tonite, Thurs., is a crucial meeting as to the fate of the Spring Concert. All committee must attend this meeting, Committee members support must be shown tonite. Meeting is in Rm. 804 CC at 7:30 p.m.

PUB NITE

The sisters and pledges of Kappa Alpha Theta invite all university women to "Pub Nite", 4-3, from 7-8 p.m., 778 N. Pleasant St., 5-2735. Bring friends!

SCHLITZARAMA IS COMING

If you don't know what it is, ask; someone will be glad to tell you.

SAILING CLUB

Meeting next Tues. at 7 p.m. Movie on 18 footers of Sydney, Australia will be shown. Upcoming spring sailing will be discussed.

SKI CLUB ELECTIONS

Mon. nite 8:00, Thompson 102. This is the time to voice your opinions. Also, nominations are still open. Be sure to come!

SKI PATROL

Meeting to discuss Tuckerman's Ravine outing and end of season get together; CC 105, 6:30-9:30 Thurs. nite.

SPORTSWRITING

The sportswriting colloq. will reconvene tonite at the regular place and time.

UMASS SAILING CLUB

All members wishing to go to race at Coast Guard on Sun., 4-6, contact Jim at 6-5782, between 8 and 10 p.m. on Friday or 1-3 p.m. on Saturday.

UMASS THEATER

The original one act play "The Ballgame" by Scott Greenberg will be presented on Thurs. at 4:00 and on Fri. evening at 7:30 and 9:00 at the experimental theatre in the Fine Arts Center (follow signs from theater dept.). Free.

WILDERNESS-WILDLIFE MEDIA PROJECT

Filmmakers, photographers, video makers and anyone interested in the health of the life on our planet come to CC 172 tonite at 7:30. Free films and refreshments.

FOUND

Softball glove near Boyden, Wed. a.m. Call 5-3889, Everett Murray.

FOUND

Man's wristband found in vicinity of Mahar on 3-17. Check at Lost and Found.

LOST

Christine Ericson — you got the wrong ID back from the Music Library Mon. nite, 3-31. Please return wrong ID to Music Library. Thanks.

LOST

At 10 p.m., 8 th floor, CC, 4-1, a key. Go to CC Lost and Found.

OLD WEIRD HAROLDS

New Seafarer Blue Jeans $6.00
Heavy Used Blue Jeans $3, $4, and $5
Our Special Flannel Shirts $1.50

Gibbs saves money for those who help themselves.
WEEKEND SPECIAL (Lower than our usually low prices)
FRIDAY and SATURDAY ONLY
Regular Gasoline Only
45.9¢
Includes all taxes
110 Russell St. (Rt.9)
Hadley
GIBBS SELF SERVE
SAVE AT THIS SIGN

SUMMER I
JUNE 2-20 UMASS AMHERST

Put your mind on tour
3 credits in 3 weeks

If there was ever a summer to begin making that change you've been thinking about, this is it. Summer 1 is a three week tour for the mind, preceding the University's main session, Summer 2. You can earn 3 credits in a number of interesting subject areas. Registration is by mail or in person at Hills House Main Lobby, Thursday, May 29. Time: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Counseling and financial aid are available. Contact Continuing Education, Hills North, UMass, [413] 545-0905
CONTINUING EDUCATION

75¢ OFF Any Large Pizza Except Plain with this Ad Thursday Only
1 Ad/Pizza
TO ALL DORM DELIVERIES OR PIZZAS PICKED UP.
Hot Free Delivery
DOMINO'S PIZZA
at 363 Main St. Amherst or 71 Pleasant St. Northampton is as close as your phone.
CALL NOW
Amherst 256-8587
Northampton 586-2700
Open till 1:30 Week Nights 2:00 Weekends

The Collegian is the only newspaper with campus and world news together — weekday mornings

Zoning proposal merits discussion

Dale Pope, Amherst's assistant town planner, will be the featured speaker at Project Ten's Political Campaigns Seminar tonight at 7 p.m. in Pierpont Hall.

Pope will discuss the merits of the new proposed Amherst Zoning By-Law which, if approved by Amherst Town Meeting at its annual meeting in May, would further restrict town growth. Since the by-law was proposed by the Town Planner's Office, it has drawn heated criticism from local realtors, land developers, and property owners.

Since the by-law will require a two-thirds vote for passage by Town Meeting, its fate should be of particular interest to those Town Meeting member candidates running on platforms advocating rent control and controlled town growth.

The public is invited to attend and ask questions about the effects of the proposed by-law.

notes & quotes

'Planning for Floods' tonight

Tonight at 7 p.m. in Thompson 102, the Coalition for Environmental Quality is presenting the film "Planning for Floods". This film will accompany a discussion by Robie Hubley, the current director of the Arcadia Wildlife Sanctuary in Easthampton.

Basically "Planning for Floods" deals with the problems associated with building on flood plains, how certain flood control projects are designed to cope with flooding problems, and how these projects themselves may cause further problems.

Passover refunds

In response to a resolution by the Student Senate the University Food Services have ruled that all students on the University Meal Plan can eat Passover meals this week in the Hampden Commons without extra charge. Those who paid extra for these meals will be refunded by Hillel, SU 302, on Monday and Tuesday next week, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Win a speed racer!

How would you like a chance to win a brand new Raleigh 10 Speed Racer valued at $150? Well the J.F.K. Lower House Government is raffling off just such a bike. Tickets are 25 cents each or five for $1.00 and can be obtained today and tommorrow in Berkshire Dining Commons. Ticket tables will be open between the hours of 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., and 4 and 6 p.m.

UNITY COLLEGE

- INTENSE, HIGH ENERGY, FIVE WEEK PROGRAM FROM JULY 1 - AUG. 1
- PAINTING, DRAWING AND SCULPTURE WORKSHOPS
- NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED VISITING ARTISTS
- FIELD TRIPS IN THE COUNTRYSIDE OF HARTLEY, HOPPER, MARIN AND PEIRCE
- PRIVATE STUDIOS AVAILABLE
- OPEN TO PERSONS 18 YR YEARS AND OVER
- COLLEGE CREDITS ON REQUESTS
- FINANCIAL AID

summer art workshop

MAINE

FOR MORE INFORMATION WRITE SUMMER ART WORKSHOP, UNITY COLLEGE, UNITY, MAINE 04988.

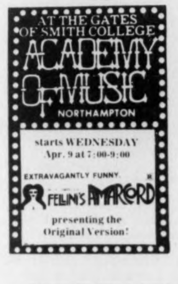
Bates Summer Theater

Graduate Program

Work with a company of professional actors directed by David Sumner, founder-member of the Royal Shakespeare Company, England.

Open to persons holding bachelor degrees and to highly qualified undergraduates.

Inquiries to Professor James Hepburn,
Bates Summer Theater, Bates College,
Lewiston, Maine, 04240.



AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
starts WEDNESDAY
Apr. 9 at 7:00-9:00
EXTRAVAGANTLY FUNNY.
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
presenting the Original Version!

for fine
DIAMONDS and other quality gifts
BAKER-WINN
JEWELERS
So Pleasant St
Amherst

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $650. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call [illegible] at 6-8451 or stop by and see [illegible] 1403.

Pair JBL [illegible]kers, high efficiency. 8 O[illegible] [illegible]67-9948. Keep trying.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive for instance name and address with or without telephone number $3. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph, 665-4765 evenings.

Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms-channel, or 11 WX4 channel (quad). 3 mos. old. List $350. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Matt 6-7009. Also, smaller advents for $120.

A brand new Polaro ID 440 camera with flash. Used only once. Best offer takes it. Call 253-3707. Keep trying.

Minolta SRT 101, 58 mm F1.4, case and extras, ex cond., $190, 788-4678 aft. six.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

Typewriter, elec. Olympia 35c (film), about 1½ yrs. old. Cleaned recently. Exc. cond. $200. 549-6258, leave mes.

Commodore Calculator — 4 basic functions, invese, sq. root, memory, percnt. $40. K. Hanson, 6-4897.

Pair Dynaco A25, 7 months old, perfect condition. 546-6727.

Sanyo refg. Best offer. Call 6-7209.

Come blow your horn! "Olds" trumpet, excellent cond. $100 or best offer. Call 6-9548, Steve.

Head tennis racket. A. Ashe Competition. Hardly used, orig. $60, sell $40. 549-3857.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Used apt. furniture for sale. 256-8068.

Golden Retriever puppies. AKC registered, beautiful championship stock. Wonderful family dogs. (802) 257-7028.

AKC German Shep. pups. Top champ. lines. Excel. temper. $150. Call 253-7610.

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 Ford custom 500 st. wgn., excellent running cond. 18-21 mpg., nw. brakes & clth. Asking $575. Call Bill at 549-0803 after 5. Leave name.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

Great 70 Fiat 850 Coupe looking for good home. 40 mpg. $695, cheap! 253-7967.

68 Chev. Seedy looking, great running, good transportation. $395. Bob 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new exhaust, runs well. $250 or best offer. 253-7967.

58 Peugeot 403, sunroof. Bring a battery and drive it away! $100. 253-7967.

64 Corvair convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer takes. 253-7967.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

Wanted — Volvo P1800 in good repair. Joan. 256-8989.

'67 VW $400 or B.O. Call 247-9368.

'68 Dodge Dart, 20 and 23 mpg., 74,000 miles. Old, w-AM-FM stereo radio. Asking $775. W-out radio, $675. Call after 6. 253-3344.

'64 Volvo, 1800S, 4 sp., overdrive, body gd., runs exc. 57,000 mi., 25 mpg. $850. 256-6319.

1968 Pontiac Catalina, 4 dr., hardtop, cosmetically and mechanically good. Low mileage. Asking $650. 542-5563. Ask for Henry.

'63 VW convt., '67 engine, new top, gas heater, body solid, runs exc. Also spare '67 engine. Total $425. Paul 549-6391.

'69 Dodge, auto., p.s., exc. condition. $600. 256-8487.

1970 Toyota Corolla, exc. mech. cond. Allan. 253-3107.

'68 Opel parts. Best offer. $75(?). 549-0635.

1964 Dodge panel truck. Rebuilt eng. Must see. $550. 527-9410.

4 Sale — Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

'62 Jaguar 3.8 MKII, excel. cond. 253-5560.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

HD Sportster, Koni shocks, disc front, alum. jugs, sifton cams. Ernie 527-4877.

1969 CL350 Honda, rebuilt. Excellent condition. Best offer. Larry, 6-6570.

BMW R-60, 63. All stock w-6-gallon gas tank. Was in accident, needs engine work. $135. 256-0644.

Motorcycle tires, used. All will pass inspection. $4 to $10. Call for sizes. Russ at 256-0544.

For Sale — 1970 250cc, Yamaha Street. Ex. condition. Call 665-2893.

1974 Honda, XL250, 680 miles, like new! Call Russ at 256-0544 for more info. $935.

1970 Hodaka 100 trail bike, excellent cond. $250. 586-4316. Call after 5 p.m.

'65 Honda S-90, 7700 mi. Runs well. 253-7610.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw., disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Honda 450, eng. totally rebuilt. $700 or best offer by April 14. 253-7637.

1967 Honda 305 — motor ex. cond., new batt. $300. Call Gary 253-2892 or 546-8505.

FOR RENT

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

One bedroom efficiency on bus route. All utilities. June 1 - Sept. 1. Call 665-3367.

Cape Cod. Falmouth. 2, 3 and 6 bedroom cottages, winterized, furnished. Walk to beach. Full season only. Owner. 1-203-521-6841.

Room in house. Lg. fire-pl., pri. bath and storage. 2 mi. to cam. on bus rte. Sub. Apr. & May w-opt. $115. All util. inc. Call 256-8271.

Room in house. Wash, dry, util. $80. Call after 5. 256-8456.

Four bedroom house in Northampton for Sept. Rent $275.00. Call Skibiski Realtors, 584-3428 between 3-5 p.m.

WANTED TO RENT

Sm. house in countryside. Isolation and work space. Resp. craftsman. Refs. avail. Now or sum. Call collect 617-868-4430.

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70, util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 til Sept. 1. Call 549-1275 right now.

Sublet June 1 to Sept. 1. Brandywine Apt. Furnished. 549-6547.

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month on bus line. June 1-August 31, opt to renew. 546-6333.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

Four bedroom apt., util., furn. inc. June - Aug. Neg. Amherst 253-2433 on bus. 2 miles to U.M.

Lge. 3 bedroom apt. available June 1st in Amherst. Call 256-8435.

Puffton, 2 bdrm. apt. Start June 1. 549-6385.

3 bdrm., Squire Vlg. Sublet June 1, option to renew. 665-3821.

House from Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0521 anytime. B.O.

To sublet: 2 bedrm. apt., Cliffside, in Sunderland, June 1-Aug. 31; tennis, pool free. Security deposit. 665-4310. Call evenings. Keep trying. Late.

Sublet with option to renew two bdr. townhouse, Squire Village, June 1. $170 per mo. plus utilities. Call 665-3280.

Beautiful Townhouse apt. available June-Sept. with option to renew. 3 bdr., w-w carpeting, AC, swimming pool, ever green enclosed patio, fully modern kitchen and plenty of room to roam. Will rent furnished if desired. Call 549-6804 evenings.

TO SUBLET

June-Sept., 2 bdrm. $175. Pool w-utl. 665-3953.

Sub. 2 bdrm. Brandywine Apt. $220. Call 549-4474. Two bus lines.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

M or F wanted for summer cottage in Dennisport. 15 wks. $375. 549-1365. Dana.

Own lg. room in Hatfield. Country home w-land. 10 mi. from Amherst. No lease. $61 plus utilities. 247-9358.

1 or 2 roommates wanted. Lg. rm. in Deerfield. Country home. Garden space. Rent negotiable. Call Laura 247-9358.

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedrm., furnished apt. on Bus line. $110. 253-7967.

Own room in Puffton Apt. All utilities. $75 mo. 549-4524.

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer — close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

Female — Own room. $70 per month inc. util. Call 549-1475.

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

ROOM WANTED

Priv. spacious room in country near UMass by June 1. Call grace 545-0790.

F, 23, piano, dog. Need home. Cris. 253-3975.

HELP WANTED

Applications are now available for employment with conference housing. 25 positions available including clerks, housekeepers, and night mgr. Further information and application forms may be obtained at off. of Residential Life, 233 Hills N. Deadline for returning applications — 4-14-75. SCH is an affirm. Action Employer.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $, for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Blank 'SLS' certificate needed. Will pay. Call 6-8621.

Wanted tires for '71 Pontiac Catalina, J78, 15". Also sell new, (500 miles), 14" radials. 542-5101.

Want to buy '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant Slant -6. $225. Call Jeanne 549-1312 eve.

TYPING

Students — Avoid last minute rush. Have papers etc. typed early. Call 253-7454 or 253-7145.

PERSONALS

Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Future CPA's. Learn how to prepare for the CPA exam. Becker CPA Review Course. Call collect 617-536-1440.

Cape Cod anyone? We need one or two more people to share a house in W. Yarmouth. If interested, call Dave 6-7008 before noon.

To the guy from Kennedy who rescued my suitcase at Southwest — Thank You!

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

$300.00 in prizes! Dance Marathon for Muscular Dystrophy. Call Kitty, 253-9034.

What's the name of that Sylvan area Boogie this Sat. nite at Worc. D.C.?

Special regards of the day to the cutest little bunny there is. Why didn't I smarten up sooner?

Let's stop the suspense, Paula T. It's time we did more than say Hi and bid Goodbye. Puzzeled PMD, Peter B.

To Doll — Number six was for nix, but number seven will be heaven — Hun.

Southern Comfort — Happy 21. Love Hi Lu Delta.

Wanted: Prospective wife, green and white. Call 617-335-2591 or write Apt. 11, 10 Mediterranean Dr., Weymouth, 02188.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

INSTRUCTION

Flute lessons. Call 256-6238.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Yogapiano. 549-6321. Carole Shanti.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS — All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

SERVICES

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job to small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years. $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information — 545-0202.

THIS WEEK IN THE BLUEWALL: Tuesday, April 1, — Fat, 9-1; Wed. and Thurs., April 2 & 3 — Night Hawks; Fri. and Sat., April 4 & 5 — Forest, 9-1; Sunday, April 6 — Jazz Jam Session. At the Toc, Thurs.-Sat., — Pzazz Dixieland Jazz Band.

THE PARTY OF THE YEAR!! The big bad boogie — with the Luther Johnson Blues Band — Sat. Night — Admission only $2 for a great band, loads of liquid refreshment including at least 15 kegs of beer...9 p.m., Worcester Commons.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Blues week in the Hatch: Bill Colwell and Luther Johnson, Wed. & Thurs., April 2 & 3; Big Screamin' McGrew & Bill Colwell, Fri. & Sat., April 4 & 5, 9-1.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

Party of the Century — 25c beers, peanuts, music, prize. No cover. 19th floor, Washington. Fri., Apr. 4th. 9:00. Win a case of Heiniken!!

FREE

Puppies. Free. 253-5380.

Free — Kittens, 6 wks. old. Call 549-2629 after 5 p.m.

MISCELLANEOUS

Wanted bird nests for cash, resident 110, Cliffside, Sunderland. 03175.

Hand-tamed hooded rats, light and dark. M & F. 50c ea. 549-6449.

AUTO WORKSHOP

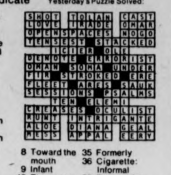
DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

UNITED Feature Syndicate

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:



ACROSS

1 Regulus
6 Photographs
11 Weep aloud
14 Love: Italian
15 Garden dormouse
16 Thrice: Prefix
17 Next to last
19 Long-tailed rodent
20 In a ----: Het up
21 Biting
22 Empty talk
24 Ground for trust
26 Digging tools
27 Game of chance
30 Place trust
32 Audibly
33 Delights in
34 Not tall
37 Fertilizing mixture
38 Hauled
39 Geometric ratio
40 Bakery product
41 Sea duck
42 Stupid person
43 Frank
45 Gave shape to
46 Using informal language
48 Profound
49 Dough used in ravioli
50 Braid of hair
52 Gray wolf
56 Canadian prov.
57 Of a math subject
60 Winter lake surface
61 Plant disease
62 Played a part
63 Conducted a band
64 Sledges
65 Listens to attentively

DOWN

1 Charts
2 So be it
3 Singer ---- Arden
4 Honest
5 Lamprey
6 Divide into portions
7 Numerical prefix
8 Toward the mouth
9 Infant
10 The -------: USSR plain area
11 Sprawling
12 Harangue
13 Seizes with the teeth
18 Trackman's goal
23 Moved rapidly
25 Ancient 26 Hurried
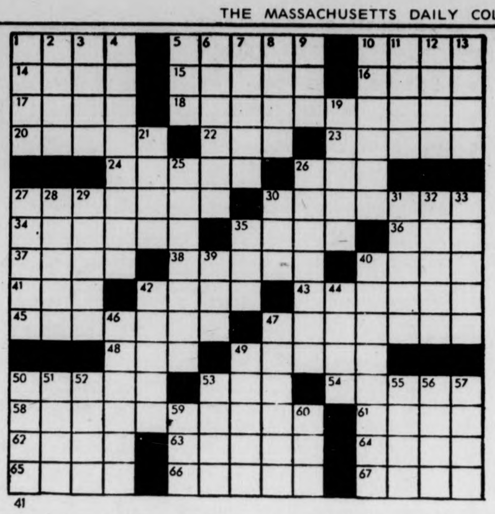
27 Inclined roadway
28 Turkish regiment
29 Calculated in advance
30 Bestowed excessive love
31 Repeatedly
33 Italian city
35 Formerly
36 Cigarette: Informal
38 Put in order
39 Church vestment
41 Engrossed
42 Female rabbit
44 Adjective suffix
45 Fabric
46 Pamper
47 ----- corporal
48 Eating plans
50 Roman garment
51 Chinese seaport
53 Eight: Prefix
54 Boxer Max ----
55 Auto pioneer
58 Be incorrect
59 Hurrah



Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

THURSDAY, April 3 — Born today, you are drawn toward all things scientific, but not to such an extent that you are not also a philosopher at heart. The analytical approach may force you into a pessimistic view of the world — but your other instincts cause you to take a more optimistic view. Though what you observe may prove that there is ill afoot in the world, what you feel and what you believe brings you to a different opinion. Because of this duality, you make an excellent teacher; you are able to instruct in two sides of any question.

You have been gifted with imagination, ambition, and the great determination it takes to keep goals in mind in spite of difficulties. It may take you longer than you would like to succeed in your chosen field of work — but there is no quesiton that you will ultimately fulfill your aim. Obstacles never loom so large that you are afraid to deal with them; the influence of others never appears so small that you are not willing to accept its benefits.

At the same time that you will move steadily toward your predetermined goal, you are wise enough to know when or if that goal becomes impossible to attain. You are not one to run against a stone wall; rather, you are willing, in the presence of such an obstacle, to step back and wait. You know that in time patience will pay off, reasonable behavior will prevail, and your luck will change.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Friday, April 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — A profitable day for the Aries willing to count both spiritual and material gains. Reconsider your plans for evening; hear another's suggestion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If you put forth better-than-average efforts, you should be able to get better-than-average results. Afternoon hours are especially rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Intentions count for very little today; what matters is the degree of your accomplishment. Don't expect to receive something for nothing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Let your intuitions be your guide today. There is no reason to panic simply because your plans don't work out the first time around.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — A friend's good offices make it possible for you to make the kind of headway you desire today. Morning hours present you with a few surprises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You should be able to gain an advantage over the competition if you begin early in the day to adapt to the circumstances as they presently exist.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Make contacts with those whose professional advantages are such that your career can be favorably influenced. Don't look too far afield.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Where finances are involved, take your problems to an expert. If you insist upon solving matters yourself, you may well make things worse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Creative endeavors are favored today, even though you may have to spend considerable time at work on matters of business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Catch up on detials of your present work which you may have been neglecting lately. Make sure co-workers understand your goals.

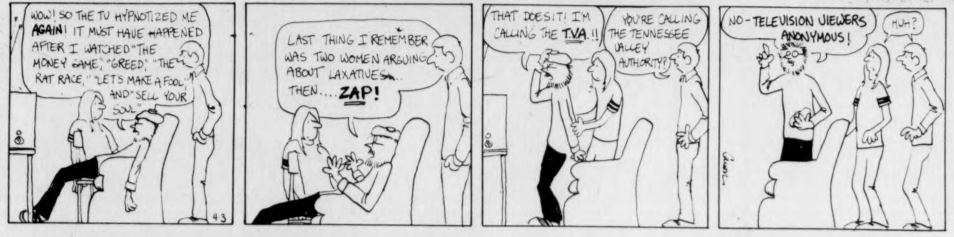
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Organization is the key to straightening out difficulties on the home front. Don't expect loved ones to take your part blindly. Earn support.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Make the best use of new information. Contacts made early in the day should be checked out well. Trust must be built up in the afternoon.

United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

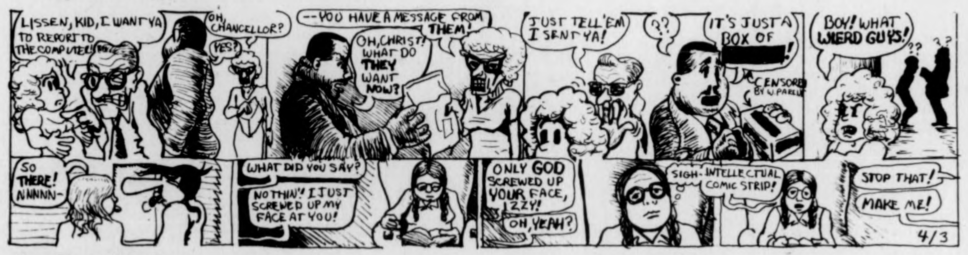
DIZZY & PAUL



WOW! SO THE TV HYPNOTIZED ME AGAIN! IT MUST HAVE HAPPENED AFTER I WATCHED "THE MONEY GAME," "GREED," "THE RAT RACE," "LET'S MAKE A FOOL" AND "SELL YOUR SOUL"
LAST THING I REMEMBER WAS TWO WOMEN ARGUING ABOUT LAXATIVES... THEN.... ZAP!
THAT DOES IT! I'M CALLING THE T.V.A.!!
YOU'RE CALLING THE TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY?
NO-TELEVISION VIEWERS ANONYMOUS!
HUH?
4-3

By Kris Jackson

KAMPUS KAPERS



LISSEN, KID, I WANT YA TO REPORT TO THE COMPUTER!
OH, CHANCELLOR?
YES?
--YOU HAVE A MESSAGE FROM THEM!
OH, CHRIST! WHAT DO THEY WANT NOW?
JUST TELL 'EM I SENT YA!
??
IT'S JUST A BOX OF CENSORED
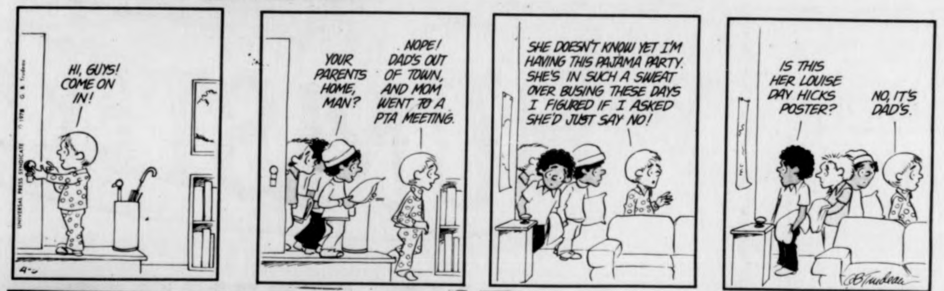
BOY! WHAT WIERD GUYS!
??
??
SO THERE! NNNNN-
WHAT DID YOU SAY?
NOTHIN'! I JUST SCREWED UP MY FACE AT YOU!
ONLY GOD SCREWED UP YOUR FACE, IZZY!
OH, YEAH?
SIGH- INTELLECTUAL COMIC STRIP!
STOP THAT!
MAKE ME!
4/3

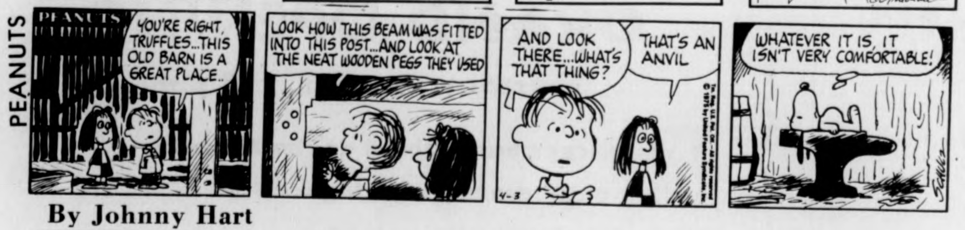
by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY



HI, GUYS! COME ON IN!
YOUR PARENTS HOME, MAN?
NOPE! DAD'S OUT OF TOWN, AND MOM WENT TO A PTA MEETING.
SHE DOESN'T KNOW YET I'M HAVING THIS PAJAMA PARTY. SHE'S IN SUCH A SWEAT OVER BUSING THESE DAYS I FIGURED IF I ASKED SHE'D JUST SAY NO!
IS THIS HER LOUISE DAY HICKS POSTER?
NO, IT'S DAD'S.
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYNDICATE
GBTrudeau

PEANUTS



PEANUTS
YOU'RE RIGHT, TRUFFLES...THIS OLD BARN IS A GREAT PLACE..
LOOK HOW THIS BEAM WAS FITTED INTO THIS POST...AND LOOK AT THE NEAT WOODEN PEGS THEY USED AND LOOK THERE...WHAT'S THAT THING?
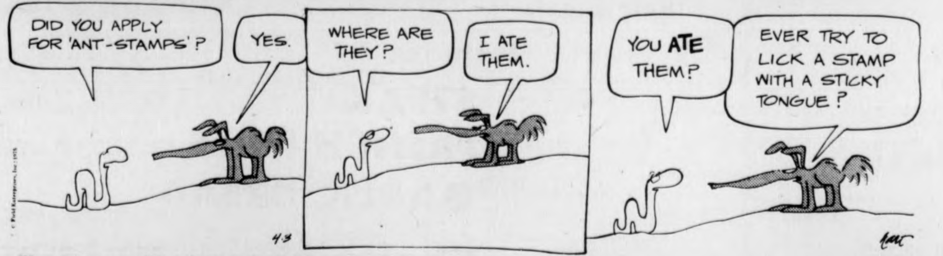
THAT'S AN ANVIL
WHATEVER IT IS, IT ISN'T VERY COMFORTABLE!
4-3
SCHULZ

By Johnny Hart

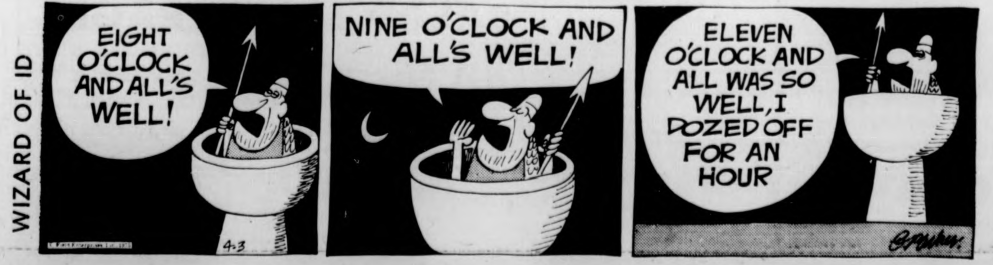
B.C.



DID YOU APPLY FOR 'ANT-STAMPS'?
YES.
WHERE ARE THEY?
I ATE THEM.
YOU ATE THEM?
EVER TRY TO LICK A STAMP WITH A STICKY TONGUE?
4-3
hart

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID



EIGHT O'CLOCK AND ALL'S WELL!
NINE O'CLOCK AND ALL'S WELL!
ELEVEN O'CLOCK AND ALL WAS SO WELL, I DOZED OFF FOR AN HOUR
4-3
parker

School of Education program interviews

Students interested in beginning a School of Education undergraduate program during the fall semester 1975, should take note of the following general schedule. Specific interview times and exceptions to this schedule are indicated in the individual program listings.

April 7-11 — Interviews

April 11 — Acceptances posted, late afternoon

April 14-18 — Interviews :for those not accepted by their first choices)

The following programs will be accepting new students at this time. Sign up or call for interview appointments at the program office listed below:

Amherst-Pelham Elementary Program (APEP). Call Chris for appointment, 545-3640, Room 423 Hills North. Interviews will be held Monday, 8:30-11:30, 12:00-4:30; Tuesday and Wednesday, 8:30-11:30.

Bilingual-Bicultural Education Professions Program. Call Susan Vilches for appointment, 545-1506. Initial interviews April 1-4, additional interviews April 8-11. Bring copy of transcript.

Cooperative Education. Call Susan Webber for appointment, 545-1527.

Center for Urban Education Teacher Education Program (CUETEP). Call for appointment, 545-1377, or stop at office, Room 222A School of Education. Application forms at office.

Early Childhood Education. Call Susan Krzanowski for appointment, 545-2085, Room 358 Hills South. Applications should be returned by April 4.

Education for Community Service — undergraduate component. This is a possible new component to an ongoing program. For information call Jill Spitz, 545-1508, Room 159 Hills South.

Education for a Changing World. 545-3560, Room 175 Hills South. Drop-in interviews Monday, 11:00-3:00; Tuesday, 9:00-12:00; Wednesday 1:00-4:00. By appointment only Thursday and Friday (primarily follow-up interviews).

English Education. Call Frances Stone or Fred Robinson for appointment, 545-0533, Bartlett Hall. Interviews will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9:30-12:00, 1:30-5:00; Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30-1:00.

Explorations! Call for appointment, 545-0969, or sign up on sheets outside Room 104 Montague House. Applications available in Room 104 and should be submitted prior to interview. Interviews will be held Monday 9:30-5:00; Tuesday, 9:30-12:00, 1:00-5:00; Wednesday, 9:00-11:30, 4:00-5:30; Thursday, 9:30-12:00, 1:00-5:00; Friday, follow-up group interviews at 9:00, 10:00, 11:00, 12:00.

General information about programs can be obtained at the Education Advising Office, Room 157 Hills South. If you need initial information on secondary certification before seeing program directors, see John Adams, CASIAC, 545-2191, Room E22 Machmer Hall.

Contacting program directors and their staffs NOW will greatly facilitate your preregistration process (beginning April 28) for the fall semester.

O'Neil - the flaming gun

By GREG LEVINS

Nancy O'Neil came to UMass last year after a record-breaking career at Scituate High School. As captain of the team junior and senior year, Nancy led her club to the Southeastern Massachusetts Girls Tournament both years. While pacing Scituate to the title in her final campaign, her 31 points in one game and 75 points in three games shattered previous tournament records.

In her first season at UMass Nancy was assigned to the junior varsity to improve her defense and gain some "valuable" playing experience. Nancy thought of the move as "kind of disappointing. I was put there to learn defense against easier opponents."

She concluded her junior varsity stint as the club's leader in 10 of 13 major categories including scoring (128 pts.) rebounding (110), field goal percentage (46 per cent from the floor) and free throw percentage (57 per cent).

This year Nancy moved on to varsity competition and immediately established herself as a starting forward. Despite being often doubled teamed Nancy led the Minutewomen in scoring (233 pts. 16.6 ppg), and finished second in rebounding (10.9 avg.).

Coach Carol Albert bills Nancy as "A great shooter, with good penetration and offensive ability. She's outstanding defensively on our press because she forces so many turnovers. A strong durable competitor and an all around good person to coach."

Only being a sophomore Nancy has more than enough time to better the high standards she's already set. She lists as next year's primary goals to "hopefully become a better all-around player. I think I'm mostly considered an offensive player so I'd be more satisfied if both my offense and defense were solid.

As far as how the team fares next year, Nancy feels "We should do well in the tourney, but a lot depends on the draw. The draw can make or break a team in the tourney. But we'll have all our players back except for the two seniors so it should be a very good year."

Nancy feels her most memorable experiences this year were playing against the Australian Nationals Team and the team's all out effort against Queens in post season play.

An all around exceptional athlete, Nancy is not competing for the UMass women's tennis team.

Booters go 2-4 at Storrs

By STEVE MACAULAY

The University of Massachusetts was well represented in the fifth annual UConn Indoor Soccer Tournament last weekend.

Nine members of last year's varsity team travelled to Storrs, Connecticut, the first day of vacation to compete against 24 other colleges in a double elimination competition.

The UMass squad was asked to play on the second day of competition, an honor shared by half of the participants. However, they were playing without recent practice, and without the presence of coach Al Rufe. The team finished with amediocre two and four record.

All those present were impressed by the excellent play of goalie Mark Hanks. He demonstrated his above average talents with several spectacular saves.

On the first day of play, UMass lost to a steady URI team on a break-away goal, 1-0. After beating the Coast Guard Academy 1-0, the booters lost to nationally ranked Hartwick, in an excellent game, again by the score of 1-0.

Although no sleeping quarters were provided for the team, on the second day of competition they played a nine a.m. game vs. Yale and tied at zero. The decision went to Yale since they had a 3-2 corner kick advantage. The Minutemen then beat URI in the two teams' second clash, 2-1, but UMass was eliminated by again losing to the solid Yale team 2-0.

Finally Here!

ON CONCERT

QUILAPAYUN

Singers of the Chilean Resistance widely acclaimed in Europe,

Washington, N.Y.C., Boston . . .

Thursday, April 3

7:30 p.m.

C.C. Auditorium

$2.00 Donation

$1.99
$1.99
STEAK
Ye BUMSTEER

GRAND OPENING

Thursday, April 3, 5-8 p.m.

Ye Bumsteer has arrived at the Bluewall with a daily dinner offering for TOC members and their guests.

featuring:

STEAK
FRENCH FRIES
GARLIC BREAD
Choice of SALAD or BEVERAGE
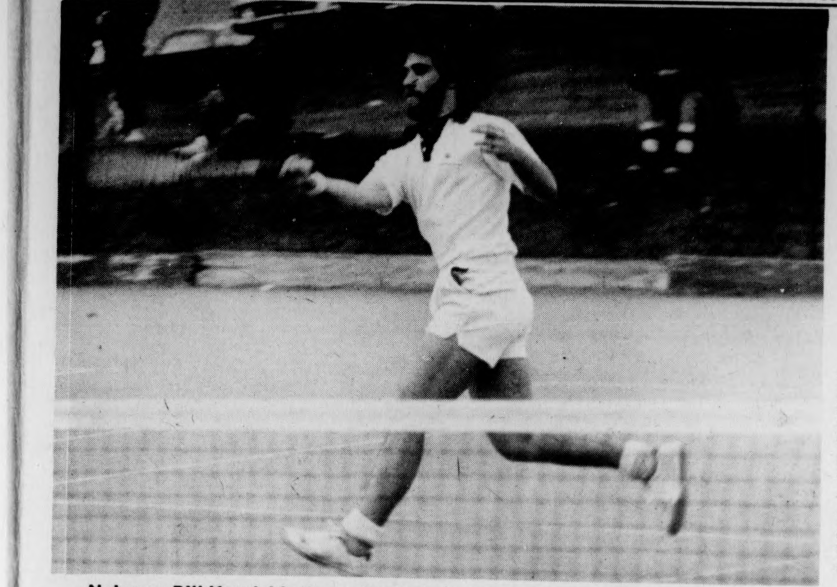
all for $1.99

Open 7 days a week from 5 p.m. - 8 p.m.
Bring this ad for 10% discount — offer good till 4/15/75.



Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz

Netman, Bill Karol, blasts one back at opposition during tennis team's 5-4 victory over Boston University. The people in the background are obviously waiting for the court.

Last match brings victory for netmen

A victory by the third doubles team of Chris Post and Thomas Doyle resulted in a triumph yesterday, as the UMass netmen beat Boston University, 5-4 in a practice match.

"Third doubles turned out to be our savior — they were the top team on the courts," said head coach Kosakowski.

Captain Chris Post and freshman Doyle were playing doubles together for the first time. Their win broke a 4-4 tie between B.U. and UMass.

Another freshman, Bill Karol, won at first singles 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

"Bill played really well," said assistant coach Ted Donahue. "There were two good matches in the top two positions," he said.

At second singles, Post lost a close three-setter, 6-3, 2-6, 4-6. Barnaby Kalan also lost at third singles, 3-6, 4-6.

Fourth, fifth and sixth singles were won by UMass.

Kevin Garrahan won 6-2, 7-6 at four, Marc Ouellet won 6-4, 6-2 at five and David Abramoff won 6-1, 6-2 at sixth singles.

"The doubles were very poor," said coach Kosakowski, "but I was trying different combinations."

A strong B.U. first doubles team beat UMass netmen Bill Karol and Kevin Garrahan 6-1, 6-2.

David Abramoff and Barnaby Kalan lost the second doubles confrontation 4-6, 1-6 while third doubles heros Post and Doyle won 6-4, 6-4.

"B.U. had a good team even though it's a club," said assistant coach Donahue. "They should get varsity status pretty soon," he said.

MCAdoo honored as NBA's MVP

BOSTON [AP] - Bob McAdoo of the Buffalo Braves was named the National Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player of 1974-75 Wednesday. "I've never gotten an award that means as much to me as this one does," he said. He felt that way, he added, because the award was voted by the NBA players.

McAdoo also said he wished the league had waited one more day to announce that he won the award because he had to play in Boston Wednesday night.

The runnerup to McAdoo in the MVP balloting also was in Boston-Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics.

But, McAdoo, who is the league's leading scorer, ran away with the Pedoloff Trophy, getting 81 first-place votes and a total of 547.

Cowens had 310 points. Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets finished third with 289; Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriers was fourth with 254, and the Milwaukee Bunks' Karoom Abdul-Jabbar was fith with 161. Voting was by NBA players.

A year ago, McAdoo, a 6-foot-10 center, was runnerup to Abdul-Jabbar.

"I'm really happy. I can't believe it. It seems like a dream," said McAdoo of the award.

And, his wife, Brenda, said, "I'll believe it when I see it and when they give him the trophy."

McAdoo said, "I'm lucky I started out on a young team instead of one of those with veterans. I'd still be a benchwarmer."

McAdoo was an overwhelming choice for Rookie of the Year honors as a forward in 1972-73, and he'll be getting another award at a luncheon in Buffalo on Thursday.

That will be the first annual Bronze Buffalo Award, presented by the Buffalo Athletic Club to the Buffalo athlete of the year as chosen by fans in that city.

He beat out the likes of football's C.J. Simpson and hockey's Gil Perreault to win that.

BoSox look silly again

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. [UPI] - Grand slam home runs by Ollie Brown and Alan Bannister in consecutive innings powered the Philadelphia Phillies to a 13-10 comeback win over the Boston Red Sox Wednesday.

Brown was appearing as the designated hitter for the first time when, in the seventh inning, he connected off lefthander Roger Moret.

Bannister hit his off Southpaw Rick Kreuger in the eighth inning. Krueger had relieved Moret with two men on base and walked Jim Essian to set the stage for Bannister's blast.

The Phillies overcame a 10-2 Red Sox lead built up over the first six innings. Boston scored seven runs in the fouuth stanza off Dick Ruthven, with the outburst highlighted by Tony Conigliaro's first home run of the Spring. The 30-year-old Conigliaro, attepting a comeback after a 3½ year absence, also had a run-scoring double and an infield single. His batting average is now .227.

Ruthven gave up all of Boston's 10 runs, but Cy Acosta stopped the Red Sox cold in the final three innings for the win.

After the game, the Red Sox optioned shortstop Steve Dillard to Pawtucket of the International League. Dillard will first go to Boston for a medical exam to make certain that his right shoulder is all right. He underwent an operation on the shoulder early in 1973.

Boston bests Braves

BOSTON [UPI] - Dave Cowens' 22 footer with 52 seconds remaining clinched a 95-92 Boston win over the Buffalo Braves Wednesday night, insuring a showdown match against the Washington Bullets.

Boston and Washington, deadlocked in the race for the best record in the NBA, meet here Friday night, in a game which may determine the league's top team.

Cowens led all Celtic scorers with 23 points. Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the NBA's most valuable player, was game high scorer with 25 points.

Forward Don Nelson's 10 points (17 in the game) paced Boston's last period comeback rom a 68-66 deficit.

It was Nelson's 20 foot jumper who put the Celtics on top to stay 78-76 after 3:57 of the final period. Buffalo closed to 89-88 when Jim McMillian dropped in two free throws with a little less than three minutes remaining.

Cowens answered with two more free throws second later and John Havlicek's nifty steal and jumper made it 93-88, before Cowens closed Boston's scoring.

Boston had scratched out a 58-54 lead at 5:31 of the third period.

The Celtics now have a 58-22 record, while Washington carries a 57-21 mark into the probable deciding game in Boston this Friday (pending the result of their late game against Houston last night).

Boston will have one game remaining (Philadelphia) after the big one with the Bullets.

Orr chosen

BOSTON [UPI] - Bobby Orr, the National Hockey League's leading scorer, Wednesday was awarded the 40th Elizabeth C. Dufresne Trophy as the outstanding Boston Bruin player during home games.

Orr, who shared the award last year with Phil Esposito, has won the trophy five times in his nine-year career with the Bruins. This season Orr has broken his own NHL record for most goals and points a defenseman. With two games left, the 27-year-old star from Parry Sound, Ont., has 44 goals and 87 assists for a total of 131 points.

Orr received the award Wednesday at a press luncheon. The award is chosen annually by writers who regularly cover the Bruins.

Sports notice

There will be a sports staff meeting tonight at 6:30 in the Collegian office. All Spring sportswriters and those interested in working on the Spring sports special are urged to attend.

PIZZA-RAMA

355 College St., Rt. 9, Amherst

specializing in

PIZZAS, HOT OVEN GRINDERS

and SPAGHETTI

STORE HOURS: Sun.-Thurs., 11 a.m.-Midnight
Fri., Sat., 11 a.m.-1 a.m.

Call 253-3808

"EXTRA SPEEDY DELIVERY"

between 5 p.m.-Midnight, every night

Best Food in Town — and the Lowest Prices

Air Force ROTC...The college scholarship program with sky-high benefits.

Some people might need to be coaxed with more than a full college scholarship to enroll in the Air Force ROTC Program. So, if free tuition, lab and incidental fees aren't enough . . . the Air Force offers a monthly allowance of $100.00, tax-free, in your junior and senior years, even if you are not on scholarship.
And flying lessons to those qualified provide the most exciting benefit of all. Interested?

Contact Air Force ROTC

At Dickinson Hall, Univ. of Mass. Call 5-2437

PUT IT ALL TOGETHER
IN AIR FORCE ROTC

OLIVER
AUTO BODY

- ★ 43 years of service and quality work
- ★ most completely equipped auto body shops
- ★ only customer satisfaction program
- ★ most highly skilled craftsmen

The Largest Auto Body Company in New England

NEARBY LOCATIONS

Northampton: 84 Conz Street 584-1192
Holyoke: 1519 Dwight Street 532-9413
Greenfield: 319 Wells Street 774-2261

Other Oliver shops in Springfield, West Springfield, and Pittsfield.

Hard-to-find foreign car parts available; broken or cracked windshields and window glass replaced promptly.

EXCELLENCE IS NO ACCIDENT
AT
OLIVER AUTO BODY

Huskies challenge Gorillas

By TOM CROWLEY

UConn hasn't beaten UMass in lacrosse in nine tries, and they will try again today at 3:00 outside Boyden. They also have a chance of doing it.

"UConn is a much improved team," coach Dick Garber said. The Huskies are coming off a 6-3 win over MIT last Tuesday. They also just lost to Yale, 6-4.

But the real indicator is Washington and Lee. The Huskies were up 7-5 over Washington and Lee, ranked high nationally, at the beginning of the fourth period, but lost 9-7.

UConn also has an advantage in that this is its seventh game while the contest is UMass' third.

The Huskies are led by senior attackman Gary Harris and junior attackman Mike Hogan. Between the two of them against MIT, they scored ten of the 16 goals. Captain and goalie Ross Blecchman is a sparkplug for the team and an exciting player to watch.

The improvement however is due to youth. Six of the ten starters are either freshmen or sophomores, which reflects the complexion of the roster. It is also reflected in their ranking in the polls, 20th in the nation.

"UConn always comes psyched-up," coach Garber said. "Coach (Nate) Osur lives for the day he beats us. He was a class and teammate of mine," grinned Coach Garber.

Still, the Huskies have yet to beat the UMass Gorillas. They lost last year 16-3. The closest UConn ever came was the year before where they lost by one, 11-10.

Although the Minutemen have only played two games, they were tough ones against two nationally ranked powers.

The Gorillas lost a 16-10 decision to Cornell. They were leading 7-6 at half-time after being down 6-0. The team also lost to Hofstra, 14-10. The seventh ranked team had a 4-3 lead at halftime and a 11-9 lead with six minutes to go in the game before they defeated the Minutemen.

Despite these two losses, UMass is ranked 13th in the nation, ahead of UConn by seven places. Last year's 11-2 record started off with two defeats and UConn has yet to bet UMass in lacrosse.

Maybe Coach Garber said it the best: "They're good, but we're better."

Staff Photo by Bill Howell

Boston State's goalie flings his stick in desparation at the ball, but it's already too late as Frank Garrahan (6), Jeff Spooner (backround) and Kevin Patterson (2) have netted a goal.

Trio in Indiana for Gym Nationals

By BEN CASWELL

The UMass men's gymnastics team will have three individuals competing in the University Division National Gymnastics championships beginning tonight at the Hulman Center in Terre Haute, Indiana.

Senior Bill Brouillet and sophomores Peter Lusk and Steve Marks will be competing for the Minutemen.

All three qualified for the national meet with their performances in the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League (EIGL) meet held at Springfield College earlier this month.

Bill Brouillet, one of the co-captains of this year's UMass team and the all-around stand-out competitor will be competing in the parallel bars. Brouillet was the EIGL champion in the event.

Peter Lusk will competing in the still rings. Lusk finished fifth in the EIGL meet but the four finishers ahead of him were college division competitors so Lusk was actually the number one university finisher in the East. Lusk has been the premier still rings man on the UMass squad for the past two seasons and hopes to follow in the footsteps of the last UMass national still rings qualifier Jay Aronstein who finished third in the nation three years ago.

Steve Marks finished fifth in the EIGL meet in the long horse vault, the event that he will be performing in at the Nationals. Marks was injured earlier this season, being hampered by first a broken finger and then a reoccurrence of an old back injury. Marks came on very strong though at the season's end highlighted by a 9.4 performance agaisst Temple University in a big Minuteman victory.

The National championship set-up is a combination of compulsory routines and optional routines on the first two nights of competition. The top six individuals after the combination of these two nights will go to the finals on Saturday night.

Coach Tom Dunn will be making the trip to Indiana with the three Minutemen competitors. His feelings are that if all of the gymnasts from UMass do their best in the first two nights of competition then they should qualify for the finals.

"All three of them (Brouillet, Lusk, and Marks) are the same," said Dunn, "they all have a good chance of making the finals but anything less than their best performances will make it very difficult for them to qualify."

"If Lusk Hits his compulsory routine on Thursday," continued Dunn, "and then hits his optional on Friday, he should be within the top ten in the nation."

Neither Peter or Steve did their best at the Easterns (EIGL). Both of them missed some of their routines," said Dunn.

"Marks has improved since the Easterns," said Dunn, "he has learned one more vault routine and if he gets to the finals that will be a very important factor." In the final competition for the long horse vaulting two optional vaults are required.

Compulsories are the most important part of the national competition said Dunn. "People with the best compulsory scores will probably end up on top," he said.

All season the gymnasts have been performing their optional routines and now the addition of the compulsory routines for the national competition give that part of the meet its great importance.

FLYING FINISHES---In the team competition, which UMass will not be concerned with because of its small number of qualifiers, the team with the highest qualifying score is the University of California at Berkley. Iowa State, the defending national champion is also a favorite to finish high in the team scoring, as is Indiana State, the host team, Southern Illinois and Nebraska.

Dunn is out at Indiana with his fate for the future hanging in the wind, so to speak....A proposal for his full-time rehiring is being considered by the Athletic department and the Athletic Council as reported in yesterday's Collegian.

Gymwomen get starting time

By BILL DOYLE

HAYWARD, CALIF. — Friday night at 6:30 is the time that the UMass women gymnasts will be competing for the women's national gymnastics championship at California State University at Hayward, coach Virginia Evans learned yesterday.

Evans, was originally told that she wouldn't know the time of the team competition or the order of events in which the team would be competing until tonight. She was told by the tournament committee yesterday morning that UMass would be competing in the fifth of six groups, along with Penn State, Cal. State at Long Beach and Springfield College.

The sixth and final round has Southern Illinois, last year's champs, Southwest Mississippi Junior College, last year's runner ups, Clarion State, and Southern Missouri.

A tournament committee member said that the times of competition were decided by dividing all the teams into three sections on the basis of the teams' regional scores and then dividing sessions into two groups each, which was done by a drawing.

The Minutewomen will start the competition with floor exercise, then go on to vaulting, bars and beam.

There are twenty teams in the nationals. This year for the first time, the teams didn't have to win their regional championships in order to qualify for the nationals, assistant coach Mike Kasavana said.

"Any team that scored ninety-six points in the regionals qualified," said Kasavana.

Kasavana also said that he was disappointed because each team was allowed only twenty minutes yesterday and today to practice in each event.

"It's not a meet run for the gymnasts," he said. "We only get ten minutes in practice on each event in the warm-up gym and ten in the competition gym."

Friday the team will not be able to practice in the competition gym at all because it will be used for the championship competition all day.

Regardless of the lack of practice time, this year's national championship meet is being run much better than last year's fiasco.

"There are posters up publicizing the meet," Kasavana explained. "They're even selling t-shirts to publicize it."

Last year UMass had to compete first of all the teams, a factor which may have cost them the championship, as the team finished third. Also, publicity was poor.

"So far everything has been organized very well," assistant coach Kasavana said. "Except for the practice time."

The only Eastern team competing in the nationals in Canisius, surprise of the Eastern Championships. Southern Connecticut only sent its top all-arounder, Cole Dowaliby.

GYM-GEMS: Ann Olson, who will be competing in the all-around for UMass, is practically home here on the West coast. She lives in Eugene, Oregon, and was a walk-on last fall for UMass.

All-arounder, Jeannine Burger revealed that she was also a walk-on for UMass her freshman year, after being a three-time state all-around champion at Pennsylvania.

"My coach told me that I was the only gymnast that she didn't help into the school," Burger said.

It is believed that Burger is the only minutewoman who ever went to the nationals in the all-around each of her four school years.

A member of the tournament committee said that UMass's 105.55 was the second highest score of any team in any of the regional championships.

Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz

This little dance number was performed during UMass' double loss to Bucknell; 15-6 and 14-0.

BELOW the SALT
Volume Three, Issue Nine
3 April 1975
appartitions of the truth

P.D.Q. Bach: Variations on a theme

by David Miller

preface to the Peter Schickele interview

As a few thousand disappointed Umies can attest to, the P.D.Q. Bach concert on March 20th sold out very rapidly — not within an hour, as it says here, and not months ahead of time, as it said in the Springfield Union — but within one day, two weeks before the concert. That's quickly enough. There was a lot of hindsight generated over the next couple of weeks, as countless confident visitors arrived at the Arts Council office, with "I'd like to reserve tickets for P.D.Q. Bach" — only to be turned away with sincere apologies. "Well, I guess we should have scheduled two performances..."

McLuhan's explanation of the clown applies well to Peter Schickele's art. In that explanation, the clown is the holistic man, come face to face with specialization and unable to play by its rules. As those who saw the concert will realize, the Professor is nothing if not holistic — a complete, many-sided human being, disarrayed tuxedo, scraggly beard, "warts and all" — confronting the specialized world of Professional Classical Music, and making a hash of it. It's quite wonderful to watch him work.

This interview took place on the afternoon of the concert, seated near the back of Bowker Auditorium, while the show was being set up. I am grateful for the assistance rendered to me by Marc Bauman, Barbara Hoffman, and Diane Unger — a contingent from WMUA. One note — because of the way we're seated, the Professor and myself are the only ones that can be clearly heard on the tape. I've done paraphrasing to account for other questions and comments, and apologize in advance for any mistranscriptions.

~~~~~~

Actual Peter Schickele interview — 3-20-75

DM: Well, the first question I wanted to ask was how this — how the whole thing began, you know, like how you started doing research into PDQ Bach. What the inspiration was for this whole — for the operation.

PS: Well, the concerts started when I was a student at Julliard, a composition student. I had been fooling around several years before with a couple of friends of mine, in my home town of Fargo, North Dakota. We had been listening to Bach's "Coffee" Cantata a lot, which, as you may know, was one of Johann Sebastian Bach's few attempts at humor. And I came up with this piece called the "Sanka" Cantata. And we recorded it, and we decided to make the tape in the form of a radio broadcast. Somebody came up with the name of P.D.Q. Bach — just because there were so many other Bachs already — W. F. Bach, C.P.E. Bach, J.C. Bach. So that's when the name came up. But it wasn't until several years later, that, at Julliard, I started doing some concerts with some friends, of humorous music — and it, they didn't even start out to be P.D.Q. Bach concerts. But as they became an annual tradition at Julliard, and also out at the Aspen, Colorado music school in the summer, I began to realize, after doing this for several years, that these pieces must all be by the same composer. And P.D.Q. Bach lurched out of my memory, and so by the time that I did the first public concert in 1965, I had already been doing this for five or six years at Julliard and Aspen, and worked out the format and some of the repertoire of the concerts. So it just sort of grew gradually, and got more and more out of hand.

DM: That's interesting. One thing, a local group around here, is called the Othmar Schoeck Society for the Preservation of Unusual and Disgusting Music, and I was wondering if you'd ever heard of Othmar Schoeck.

PS: No.

DM: Apparently he was a real composer, a real Swiss composer who, according to someone, didn't write an interesting note in his life.

S-492

PS: (Laughing) Well, I think there have been more than one of those throughout history. Right, right. (Laughs). (Looking at a card handed to him) Oh, there it is... the Othmar Schoeck... Memorial Society... Preservation of Unusual and Disgusting Music... Hunde sehen... oh, I see (Laughing, the German is being explained to him)... I can't read all of that... "We're thinking of you"... I got the bottom...

DM: More or less, it's...

BH: It means "When we see piles of doggy doo— Oh Othmar Shoeck, we think of you."

PS: Oh, I see, it's "Sehen wir Haufen"... "Hundedreck". Oh, there it is, I get it, see... (Laughing).

DM: Let's see, um, you've been touring and giving public concerts for about ten years now. I was wondering, what, another kind of banal interviewer question, but what it's been like, generally, doing this kind of thing in front of people.

PS: Well, in the first place, it's changed greatly as far as the amount of time I've done it. I mean, when we started in 1965, a friend of mine and I, he is now my partner and handles the business side of it — we just both borrowed some money and hired Town Hall in New York and put on the first concert. And we knew that even if we sold out we couldn't break even, but we just wanted to try and put it on the map, which we succeeded in doing. So that first year, we just had a couple of concerts, and it's gradually increased each year, to the point where last year I had about 60. And now I'm getting enough time to do the other things that I do. And now, in general it's, as I say, it's changed. Now, a lot of the audiences have a lot of people in them that are already P.D.Q. Bach freaks, and we don't get as many audiences now that we have to sort of win over from scratch. Whereas, obviously, ten years ago most people hadn't heard of it. But in general, I mean, we're lucky, we get very few — very few sort of audiences that feel like a trial. Mostly it's been going very well. And I always enjoy it, because in the first place I don't do it full year round, I do a lot of other things too. So it stays fresh to me. I probably would get sick of it if I did it 365 days out of the year. And I give concerts every Christmastime in New York City, and there's always something new on those concerts, there's always a mixture of old pieces and new pieces. So, that way over the years I gradually expand the repertoire. (Loud banging in the auditorium.) That's a nice recording studio — gradually expand the repertoire, without having to do a whole new program every year, which would be too much.

DM: I think people would be interested in the kinds of things you do outside this kind of work. Very few people know anything about...

PS: Well, I have my feet in a lot of pies. I quit teaching in 1965, when I started doing P.D.Q. Bach, even though, as I say, I didn't do many concerts at all. A whole lot of things sort of came together in 1965. I did the first public P.D.Q. Bach concert; I did the first arranging of an album for Joan Baez, which then, later, led to some other ones. And I did the first movie score, feature film score, that I had done. And so I just decided to try to become a freelance composer, and I gave up teaching, and for the next few years I did a fair amount of arranging. I did the arrangements of three of Joan Baez' albums. The last one, the album called Baptism, I wrote the music for too, and then I did a couple of feature films by a San Francisco director named John Corty. And the Joan Baez thing led later to — a few years ago, I did the music to a science fiction film called Silent Running. And Joan Baez sings two songs that I wrote with the lyricist on — in that, the soundtrack of that film. (MB asks if the film is about a submarine.) No, that's — see, I tried to get the director to change the name. That's Run Silent, Run Deep. This is Silent Running. And it has nothing to do with a submarine. Anyway, I was working with Buffy Ste. Marie and some of the other folk singers... So then, about the time that they all started going down to Nashville to do their records, I and a couple of other guys started a group called The Open Window, which was some kinda weird, in-between rock and classical kind of group. It was a, basically a keyboard group; we had piano, electric piano, electric harpsichord, a couple of electric organs, electric Fender bass, a keyboard Fender bass. And we later added a drummer. And we did some concertizing and made some records, and we also did the words and music for Oh! Calcutta!, and played that show for awhile. So that was a more or less full-time occupation for three years. And then, by the time we sort of went the way of all groups — went in different directions — by that time P.D.Q. Bach had enough concerts a year, so that I've just been very lucky; that I haven't had to do any real hack work in these 10 years of free-lancing. When one thing has started to fade, something else has built up, so —

MB: (asks is his association with P.D.Q. Bach has helped or hampered him professionally.)

PS: I think both. When I first started doing P.D.Q. Bach, some of my friends, who liked my straight music, you know, said, "You're making a big mistake. You're going to be type-cast," and stuff like that. And that — and it's certainly true that that's happened. But it's also true that I've gotten onto a lot of other things indirectly, through P.D.Q. Bach, that might not have happened otherwise. Even the arranging with Joan Baez come about because we were on the same label at that point; we were both on Vanguard. And the thing that got me going working with her was that somebody got the idea of doing a Christmas record in which the carols were arranged with the flavor of the period that the carol comes from, rather than just sort of modern, soupy arrangements. In other words, that the Renaissance carols should have a renaissance feel, and that the 18th-century carols should have a Baroque—Classical feel. And it was because they had done P.D.Q. Bach that they recognized that I would be able to work with the stylistic flavor of the different things. So you know that even came about through P.D.Q. Bach

continued on page two
~~~~~~

continued from page one

Playing by nobody's rules and that led, like to the Silent Running, which was a fun movie to write music for, which came about through my association with Joan Baez, which came about because of P.D.Q. Bach. Another example is, uh, there used to be a rock group called Metamorphosis, and they were all members of the Detroit Symphony who did a rock group on the side. And they commissioned a piece from me, a very serious piece, it was a Requiem for a friend of mine who had died the year before, called "Requiem Mantres" for rock group and orchestra. And that never would have come about if I hadn't been going through Detroit playing, doing P.D.Q. Bach with the Detroit Symphony. And we got to hanging out, and talking. On the other hand, it certainly is true that if I give a concert, as I do occasionally, in New York or someplace, of non-P.D.Q. Bach music, some people come, you know, determined to laugh, or expecting to laugh. For years I've wanted to write a serious piece for John Ferrante, the counter-tenor. Because he's a beautiful singer, and of course, in addition to myself, everybody in this program does other things too, does serious stuff too. And he's going great guns on opera now, he made his operatic debut in Europe last year, he's going back there. As soon as this tour is over, he's scooting right out to be with the San Francisco Opera. And he's doing a little concert with a chamber orchestra in Philadelphia in May, and I'm writing a serious piece for him for that, which I'm enjoying very much. But I've had to tell the orchestra, you know, "When you publicize this, be very careful." I mean, there's no doubt that it's a problem. "Be very careful, not to give people the wrong impression." My feeling is in retrospect, that if I had it to do over again, I wouldn't have done anything different except for one thing, and that is that I would have used a phony name as the Professor. Not as a matter of a secret, but just, like as a signpost, you know that 'that's that, and Peter Schickele is this.' I think that's the big goof I made. But I get much too much of a kick out of doing P.D.Q. Bach to — I mean, I'll be very sorry if I ever have to give up doing it completely. So what I'm trying to do is, starting next year, is to restrict it so that I'm only accepting concerts during half of the year. I'm also getting involved in theater music, and when you're involved in a show, you have to be there all the time. So this way, at least I can get involved in shows in the fall, even if I can't in the spring. And, uh, I just have to hope that in the long run that'll work itself out. I mean, it certainly is a problem, but it also, as I say, has had its — had its positive side too.

DM: That's great. I was wondering what the logic is behind the Schickele numbering system — for a lot of those pieces.

PS: Well, I think that you'll find that — you see, since I have not discovered the entire output of P.D.Q. Bach, I can't give a consecutive number. So what I just try to do is to give a number that I'll remember. And then, hopefully, if some day I can discover the entire output, then maybe I'll be able to put them in a real chronological order. But so many of his pieces were discovered by his family first, and destroyed, burned, that it's very hard to give a complete listing.

DM: Does anybody have any other questions? I have a couple more, but...

MB: I was just wondering — your background is basically in music, but the show is at least half and half theatrical and musical...

II
Allemande left
p

PS: Well, there are two things about that. One is that, in the first place, when I was ten years old, I thought I was gonna be an actor when I grew up, I mean that — and I spent all of the first half of my teenage years very heavy into community theatre and stuff. And it was very gradually that I got more interested in the music and less in the theatre. So, I mean, that's one of the reasons I get such a charge out of P.D.Q. Bach — that ham vein is still there, you know. I really get off on that part of it. But, in addition to that, when we designed this show, which happened three years ago — let's see, this is the fourth season we've been doing it — see, as I say, we gave up touring with our own orchestra. Then I started doing the guest appearances with orchestras. And then we started getting a lot of requests from colleges, where they either didn't have an orchestra, or it was practical — or impractical, or the conductor had too much taste to do P.D.Q. Bach, or whatever the reason — we began to get more and more requests for a self-contained show that wouldn't need local musicians. And so I put this show together. But the problem is that it's really a four man show; we also have a road manager and a bus driver, but as far as what you see, it's only four people — one of whom is Bill, and he's not a musician. So we're talking about a whole concert with three musicians. And with the orchestral program we have all the variety of an orchestra to work with. Here we have to build a program with some variety in it, with one singer, and a keyboard player, and me. We just felt that we had to provide some theatrical spectacle, and,...

MB: (asks if the theatrical elements were all thought of by PS, "Because that's genius.")

PS: (Laughs) Well, basically the stuff is all mine. But Bill and I, for instance, spend hours on planes and busses with each other. There are times in the year when we see more of each other then we do our wives, and we spend a lot of time talking about ideas for the show and stuff. And of course, as we do the show it improves too as we get ideas. So I don't mean that every single idea in it is mine; but I don't hire writers or anything; it's all basically my stuff.

MB: (asks what names the initials P.D.Q. stand for.)

PS: Oh. Well, you see, in his name they don't stand for anything. Because Johann Sebastian Bach had already had 20 children by that time, and he — he had run out of names, and he said, "From now on, it's just initials." And, so in his name they don't stand anything — for anything... Oh, well, people often contribute, you know, Peter Quincy, uh, Damon, or whatever — I don't know, people have come up with many possibilities.

DM: Well, the last question I have for you is, I was wondering — is there anything — this is, again, as the Professor — anything that you'd like to say, for the readers who'll be reading this in a couple of weeks, to help to them towards a greater understanding of P.D.Q. Bach's music?

PS: (Laughing) Right, you should have come to the concert! Let's see, no, I don't think of anything, I just think that P.D.Q. Bach has a therapeutic value, that it's a good idea to be exposed to the seamy side of 18th-century music, and that the inferiority complex that one can get listening to the perfect music of Bach and Mozart or Beethoven should be balanced by the tremendous elation you get listening to P.D.Q. Bach, knowing that you could as easily do that well yourself. And to, you know, that's all, I think, that would be just the basic message.

MB: This University community is usually a pretty lethargic, apathetic place. And there was, uh, really no promotion for this — a few posters put in unappropriate places. The tickets went on sale, and within an hour they were sold out.

BH: There were two girls, looking desperately, would do anything for a ticket...

PS: Send 'em to me. (General laughing).

MB: It's strange, because it seems that it's really more of a word-of-mouth thing.

PS: Sometimes I get embarassed because people introduce me to somebody as if everybody in the world has heard of P.D.Q. Bach. Of course, it's not — if you're talking about Johnny Carson, it's still a very esoteric thing. But in the classical music field it's certainly much better known than when we started ten years ago.

MB: The ad in the Times that got me to come to your opening at Town Hall last Christmas, or was it the second?—

PS: I don't know, we were there five nights, so —

MB: It was a Saturday.

PS: I can't remember now.

MB: But like, it was 45 minutes before the concert, and I was thumbing through the paper, and I just caught this really tiny ad, you know, and I said, "Could it be — could it be the Intimate P.D.Q. Bach, it's so small." And I said, "What the hell," and I went up 15 minutes before the concert, and I got the last seat, a front-row seat.

PS: Yeah. Well, you see, in New York, as I say, we give concerts every year, and a lot of people come back many times, so —

MB: There was somebody in back of me, giving me your entire spiel. I could have smacked him, he was nudging his buddy, saying, "Now he's gonna say —".

PS: Oh, that's a drag. That's terrible. (Laughing) No, the reason, so the reason that ad was so small was two things; in the first place, the concert promoter that we work with in New York has a mailing list that goes out, and in the second place, he varies the ads according to the response, the initial response.

BH: Where do you get some of your inspirations for some of your instruments? Like the Double-Reed Slide Music Stand — as an oboe player for two months, I...

PS: (Laughing) Well, t months — it's not too late to out, you know; not too late change your mind. The Doub
Reed Slide Music Stand was vented by an English Horn play named Peter Kriss, who's now
San — in Los Angeles, and that w in 1959 in Aspen. The "Sympho Concertante" was done th summer, and it was done for jus lot of instruments that happened be around. Uh, somebody out the played bagpipe, and you don't ke that a secret; I mean, as soon as started practicing everybody
Aspen knew there was a bagpip in town. And he invented t
Double-Reed Slide Music Sta with an English Horn reed. And lot of the instruments I do remember specifically how th started. As I say, Bill and I, a friends, we just sit around — y talk about a lot of ideas, most which, even if they're funny, m of them are impractical. We have standard phrase we use, which "That's for the movie." I do know if we'll ever get to make P.D.Q. Bach movie, but we get these ideas which would be t expensive to do every night, but you could only do them once, y know — Some of the ideas actua turn out.

The Hardart

continued in next issue

Below the Salt
Volume 3, Issue 9
3 April 1975

Bill Howell
Karen Miller
Craig Roche
David Miller
Mark Loner an
Ken Blanchard
Janet Webber
Jack Cahill
Mark Harris Levitan
Kit Browne
Michael Grossman
Ross Nerenberg
Kevin Pelletier
Michael Peppe
Stuart Sojcher
Michael Hunter
Ben Atkins
Christopher Leighton
Heidi Bates
Debbie Wilson
David Sokol

Editor & sex objects
Tyla

Assistant Editor
Andrew B. MacKenzie

Assistant Editor and Musi
Michael C. Kostek

Steadman
Gina Starodoj

Books
Ed Smith

Celluloid
Jeffrey Polman

Sex and Violence
Kris Jackson
Don McGilvray

Dance
Sue Doskocil

Theatre
Marla Richmond

Below the Salt has always been the kind of magazine that would print peculiar work. We pledge to uphold this tradition, but can't promise everybody's peculiar work will fit. Yours must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces to the line. The deadline for each Thursday's edition is noon the previous Tuesday; but you can write to us or call 545-3500 anytime.

Below the Salt is a weekly fir art—real world magazine of th
UMass Daily Collegian, studer newspaper, Amherst, Mass.

VILLAGE·INN
Fine Food and Drink. Like a symphony of love!
DRAKE

SCHOLARSHIPS
FOR NURSING MAJORS

paying full tuition, lab fees, textbook costs and incidental fees plus $100 per month may be available to you through the Air Force ROTC 2-year nurse commissioning program.

To find out if you can qualify as an Air Force Nurse,

contact:
Major Goodhue
Room 205

5-2437
Dickinson Hall

---

books

McHale's Folly

Alinsky's Diamond
by Tom McHale
$8.95 — 345pp.
Lippincott
Reviewed by
Ed Smith

A twentieth century crusade, ostensibly peaceful, from Normandy, France to Jerusalem. Coupled with a miracle; a young woman, crippled from birth, stands up and walks in the middle of a mass and the church characteristically decides to capitalize on it.

By turning all these things around, Tom McHale seems to have plenty of the stuff a good story is made of. Not necessarily a good novel though.

McHale's story is of an unscrupulous evangelist, masquerading as a priest, who brings together a drunk, a prostitute, her pimp, a senile monk, an abortionist and a few other rogues to march to Jerusalem in a tribute to something about which even McHale is unsure. The idea of the march, however, is to give a shot in the arm to Catholicism and, one discovers in the course of the book, avenge a score of sins.

The book follows these crusaders in their walk and dutifully avoids sounding like a travelogue. McHale mixes humor, sarcasm, violence and finally moral resolution. But in the end, Alinsky's Diamond, a fine story, fails as a novel.

McHale's book seems to exemplify the problems that appear in many modern novels. All the material is there with which to write a novel. The characters in McHale's novel are vivid, three dimensional and evoke a certain pathos from the reader. The story, the events that transpire, are often interesting, timely and even amusing.

It is in the area of plot, interactions between the characters and their environment and motivation that there is something lacking. This is assuming that the novelist is dealing in the realistic tradition which McHale appears to be attempting.

The criticism I offer is not that he fails to completely represent reality, because that is not the goal of realistic writing. But McHale and other novelists of his period, often disregard the elements of human nature in an effort to make a story cut the path they've conceived for it. In the course of writing the novel, instead of being a creative experience for the writer, it appears that a predetermined pattern has been set down and the writing of the novel is an exercise in filling in the blanks.

In Alinsky's Diamond, there is a collection of rogues, all of whom respond with amazing moral fortitude to a situation they never really understand. While reading the novel one can accept the writer's original premise of characters and situation, but it is much harder to accept the manipulation of situation, without cause, which dominates this book.

Another device of this type of novel is the madman. He is sometimes shown as an evil genius, a well-meaning, but twisted, philanthropist or as a more sympathetic character against whom some injustice has been done and now the world must pay. Into this character the writer can dump, with impunity, all the startling social comment, brutal violence and half-baked philosophy that the reader will not accept from the more conventional characters.

Meyer Alinsky, the convenient madman of Alinsky's Diamond, seems a prime example. He is provided with one motivating factor, and from that the reader is to assume all things flow. It seems the madman can be thrown into a lifelong rage by one incident and that injury will sustain his rage without any secondary motivation. The madman becomes the catch-all for the writer trying to give his story an interesting twist.

In Alinsky's case, an outrage occurs when he is in his twenties and this carries his rage well through his sixties. If there was at least some sort of clear philosophy behind his madness, even if it was an illogical philosophy, the reader might be able to accept it. However, McHale seems content with his mystery to lead the reader on and even at the end the mystery is just that, a mystery.

Though McHale's book is not an archetype of Seventies popular fiction, it does reflect a trend in that type of literature. Somewhere along the way writers have forgotten that the more you lead the reader on, the more you are expected to deliver at the end. The idea now seems to be, lead the reader on for a few hundred pages, throw in a large dose of senseless, possibly politically relevant violence, flash quick to a scene of cataclysmic destruction and then fade into a morally reassuring scene. Hopefully by the end, the reader will have forgotten all the teasing that has gone on earlier and accept this placebo. If it is true, as the dust jacket claims, that "Alinsky's Diamond places Mchale in the front rank of writers of important American fiction", then American fiction is in the most pathetic shape it has ever been. Basically, Alinsky's Diamond is a book one can miss reading and feel nothing has been lost.

It is these few criticisms that make the term novel a useless one. When War & Peace, Ulysses and

ALINSKY'S DIAMOND
A novel by TOM McHALE

Alinsky's Diamond are all referred to as novels, the term comes to mean little more than pages, bound, with print. So much for the sanctity of language.

This book is available at the University Bookstore.

Good Guys

The Destroyer No. 18
Funny Money
by Richard Sapir and Warren Murphy
Pinnacle Books
180 pp. $1.25
Reviewed by Michael Hunter

What would happen if a computer was programmed to engrave things so well that it could duplicate the United States currency, exactly? And also what would happen if the bottom-line program for this computer was survival?

The Destroyer knows, and in this, his eighteenth encounter with superhuman criminals, he is called back into action, this time, to save the United States government from the devastating effects of a superhuman counterfeiter.

Funny Money is number eighteen of what has become America's hottest selling series.

It has sex:

A door slid open in the apparently seamless wall to their right. Sitting at a little cocktail table was a blonde with a body that could make a priest burn his collar. Her breasts protruded in mammoth declaration of milk potential, reaching out to the limits of a stretching white smock. Her waist nosedived in and roared out at the hips again. A short light blue skirt revealed some white thighs.

When Remo finally noticed her eyes, he saw they were blue. And bloodshot.

"What can I offer you to drink?" she said. "Sit down."

"Ah sweet delicate flower," said Chiun. "What soaring heights your presence imparts to our humble hearts."

"Glad to meet you," said Remo.

"You're lying through your teeth," she said, pointing a martini glass at Remo. " You can't bullshit me. You like my boobs or my brains." Then she pointed to Chiun. "You, on the other hand, are on the level. You're real. Tell your phony friend not to lay it on."

And it has violence:

"He rammed the plates into his stomach and let himself fall toward the sidewalk. He heard an instant ping, apparently from his primary sniper with the curare tipped bullets, but then felt a wrench crush his left wrist with an incredibly painful cracking sound and then there was a feel of hot molten metal pouring into his left shoulder as he saw his own left arm go by his face with the plates washed in a dark liquid that was his own blood and then the right shoulder socket was searing pain and that arm was under his knee as he settled back onto the sidewalk screaming for his mother. And then blessedly there was a wrenching in the back of his neck as if someone pulled a switch that ended everything. His eye caught a glimpse of a bloody shoe and then there were no more glimpses."

But the most surprizing thing about Funny Money is that it has a plot, and a complex one at that. Basically, the Destroyer is a super-assasin who, through the help of his Perfect Master, Chiun, is capable of incredible human feats (and fights). And he is called on, in absolutely desperate situations, to save the US government from the forces of evil.

In this case, the counterfeiter and the Destroyer, Remo, first tangle at the exchanging of engraved plates for a ransom. They tangle again when the counterfeiter decides he must destroy Remo. And the final tangle, the super-battle at the very end of the book, which even gets the Perfect Master, Chiun, into the battle, ends, of course, with the forces of good triumphing over the forces of evil.

Now after all these super-heroes, and super-villains, and super-battles, and super-plots, and super-everythings you may say, "Hey, it sounds like a sophisticated Spiderman comic book."

Yup, and it sounds like there are seventeen more of them.

Very good. Read it.

©1975, Kalso Systemet, Inc.

This is the Earth® shoe.
Anne Kalsø invented it.
Everyone is trying to imitate it. But just because a shoe looks like the Earth® brand shoe doesn't mean it works like
the Earth® shoe.

KALSØ earth® shoe

Available at:
Amherst, Mass.: 264 No. Pleasant St.
Cambridge, Mass.: 14 Story St.

APRIL 4 & 5 ONLY 9:00 P.M.
THE "PROVINCETOWN JUG and MARCHING BAND"
A FIRST TIME PERFORMANCE IN WEST. MASS, THE "P.TOWN JUG AND MARCHING BAND" WILL BRING YOU THEIR BEST WITH MUSICAL VARIETY IN A WIDE RANGE OF INSTRUMENTATION FOR A DEFINITE GOOD TIME AND A REFRESHING CHANGE, DON'T MISS THE CAPES BEST HARD DRIVING BAND — THIS WEEKEND AT —
red pantry playroom
RTS. 202 & 21 • • BELCHERTOWN, MA.

Whether to change?

Droplets on a window pane coming together as a streamlet breaking its boundaries running down without hesitation without fault without shame
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
    without guilt

The winds of daydreams scatter clouds of my thoughts through the sky of my mind.

The gold butterfly
flutters and then dies
but lives in her eggs.

Flame-red radishes
and buried parsnips in March are my cheeks and toes.

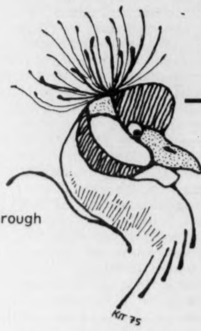
The crow ate his meal...
...strychnine...meant for a coyote...
...killed him...hungry child?

—Heidi Bates



FRIEND

Like some Roman lying in a bath with his wrists slashed your dull eyes glint as if maybe you could change your mind.
But as blood smokes the running water, your sobs are your epitaph:
    We've become a wind brandishing a blackest plague that stomps on wet streets of night.
    and the crude wagons with the weary horses are carrying our remains away.

Maybe a tankard or a smile from a lady can sew you up but through that little hole in your wrist rotten humors are spilling out.

Maybe I'm too final. But you've been dying for a long time.

—Christopher Leighton

a misplaced piece
in a jigsaw
puzzle
rubbing edges trying to round corners
lost and confused upsetting all who touch happiness hurts
beware of her
be where?
companions here
  and there abused regret life unattached wrong shape wrong tone incongruent alone
a misplaced piece
in a jigsaw
  puzzle?

—Debbie Wilson

We Must Be On

sit in oily rooms of talk about production like our minds are management and our souls labor.
There is the schedule;
capping our pens and shuffling papers,
we must be on.

celluloid sounds of clinking gears and whirling hallways pass on we ride on rollers like tomorrow's lunch past clipboarded apprentices with pupil-less eyes
down to a ray coded door that buzzes open to a dark damp room that moves
churning warmth
in rhythmic throbs

light blinks in steady chords on field lilies and sparrows rocking gently in green

—Christopher Leighton

Into Your Nest

You place your legs through the bars and reach to pull at your trousers
Grunting and making th- sounds hissing and plugging the noise with your thumb Sighing and seeing I'm watching you smile
find a ribbon and run it through your fingers and out the bars
there is a shoe worth having and you strain to reach it angling back through the bars
Your heavy breathing plugged with the heel you roll over and over eying your keys
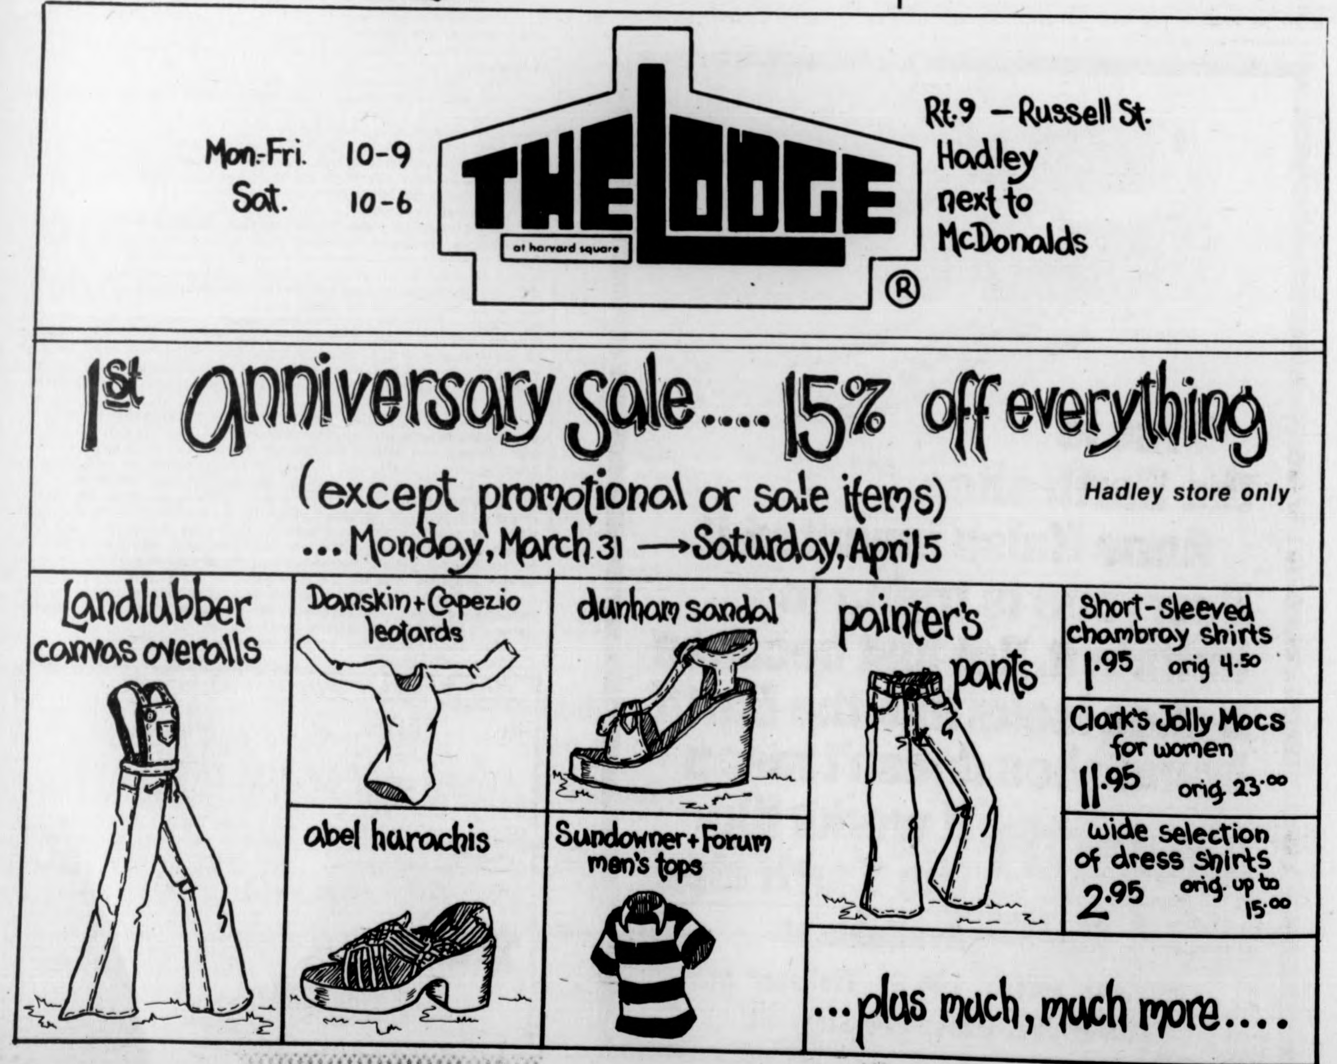
    you uncoil into sleep.

—Christopher Leighton

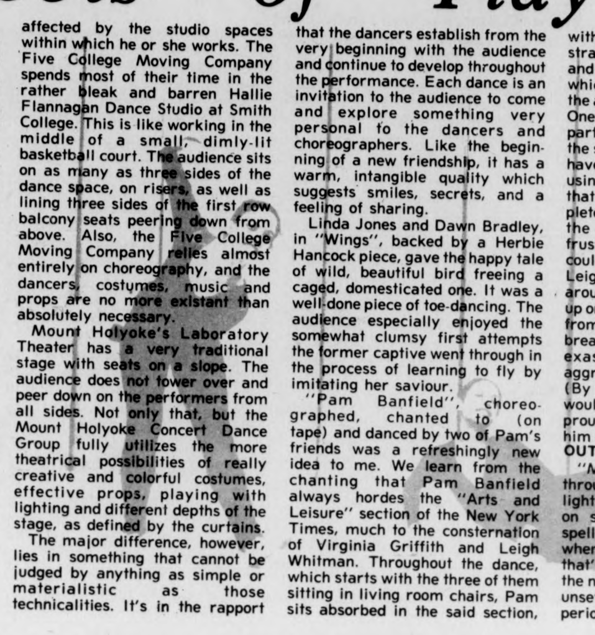


Mon.-Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-6
THE LODGE at harvard square ®
Rt. 9 — Russell St.
Hadley
next to
McDonalds

1st anniversary sale.... 15% off everything
(except promotional or sale items)
...Monday, March 31 → Saturday, April 5
Hadley store only

Landlubber canvas overalls
Danskin + Capezio leotards
dunham sandal
painter's pants
Short-sleeved chambray shirts 1.95 orig 4.50
Clark's Jolly Mocs for women 11.95 orig. 23.00
abel hurachis
Sundowner + Forum men's tops
wide selection of dress shirts 2.95 orig. up to 15.00
...plus much, much more....

Feets of Play



by Susan Doskocil

The Mount Holyoke Concert Dance Group presented three concerts the week before vacation on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 18-20, at 8:30 p.m. in the Laboratory Theater.

Although the program was separated into two parts by an intermission, the real division was between "5-Aces", the first piece of the program, and the following eight pieces as they were from two totally different worlds.

Joyce Morgenroth choreographed "5-Aces" to some music of Liszt for members of the Five College Moving Company. It was a very humorous number, based on a game of five hammy basketball players, each beating out their imaginative little brains (as well as others) to steal the limelight. The audience was not the real audience they were dancing to; their audience was way out beyond us, hopefully missing the stormy expressions and death knocks they blessed each other with. We were seeing the not-so-subtle jealousies that exist among any group of performers, being performed not-so-subtly at all.

The way in which a choreographer creates is always affected by the studio spaces within which he or she works. The Five College Moving Company spends most of their time in the rather bleak and barren Hallie Flannagan Dance Studio at Smith College. This is like working in the middle of a small, dimly-lit basketball court. The audience sits on as many as three sides of the dance space, on risers, as well as lining three sides of the first row balcony seats peering down from above. Also, the Five College Moving Company relies almost entirely on choreography, and the dancers, costumes, music and props are no more existant than absolutely necessary.

Mount Holyoke's Laboratory Theater has a very traditional stage with seats on a slope. The audience does not tower over and peer down on the performers from all sides. Not only that, but the Mount Holyoke Concert Dance Group fully utilizes the more theatrical possibilities of really creative and colorful costumes, effective props, playing with lighting and different depths of the stage, as defined by the curtains.

The major difference, however, lies in something that cannot be judged by anything as simple or materialistic as those technicalities. It's in the rapport that the dancers establish from the very beginning with the audience and continue to develop throughout the performance. Each dance is an invitation to the audience to come and explore something very personal to the dancers and choreographers. Like the beginning of a new friendship, it has a warm, intangible quality which suggests smiles, secrets, and a feeling of sharing.

Linda Jones and Dawn Bradley, in "Wings", backed by a Herbie Hancock piece, gave the happy tale of wild, beautiful bird freeing a caged, domesticated one. It was a well-done piece of toe-dancing. The audience especially enjoyed the somewhat clumsy first attempts the former captive went through in the process of learning to fly by imitating her saviour.

"Pam Banfield", choreographed, chanted to (on tape) and danced by two of Pam's friends was a refreshingly new idea to me. We learn from the chanting that Pam Banfield always hordes the "Arts and Leisure" section of the New York Times, much to the consternation of Virginia Griffith and Leigh Whitman. Throughout the dance, which starts with the three of them sitting in living room chairs, Pam sits absorbed in the said section, with her back to us. She is nearly strangled at the end of the dance, and throws up the coveted pages which obligingly flutter through the air and settle all over the stage. One aspect of this dance which particularly appealed to me was the simplicity of the situation. Why haven't more people thought of using such day to day themes as that? We, as an audience, completely agreed with and understood the contained but building frustration of the two friends...Who could hold back the laughter as Leigh and Virginia begin stamping around the living room, jumping up on the chairs to snatch the paper from behind and then taking a big breath that comes out in an exasperated sign as the aggravation starts to build again? (By the way, the tape they made would have made Frank Zappa proud to have them accompany him and his crowd on his FREAK-OUT album; it was great!)

"Moods", taking the audience through a series of highs and lows, lights and darks, was like riding in on someone's dream. It cast a spell, the sort of feeling you get when something happens to you that's such a minor step away from the norm that it leaves you with an unsettled, eery feeling for a long period of time...

Configurations" was an excellent example of the effective use of a large number of dancers. In this case, there were 15 of them dressed identically in white. In essence, what they did was form many different people clusters, each one evoking different emotions. Sometimes there were only one or two dancers, sometimes a number of small groups, each suggesting another idea, and sometime everyone was on stage. Unity and chaos were there, too. The amount of exploration done within the confines of a multi-person deserves a great deal of credit.

The other four numbers, "Games", "A Mosiac", "Hang Five" and "Routines" shared the warmth quality and were enjoyable to watch but were below the standards that made the other dances seem exceptional.

The company as a whole is a friendly and charming group that seems to be quite successfully developing its potentials. I for one am looking forward to another of their concerts.

Photo:
Dawn Bradley and Linda Jones — MHC Concert Dance Group.

Student Union Gallery
Through Now and Maybe Later

Exhibitionists Show Off

There is an impressive exhibit of ceramic works presently being shown at the Student Union Gallery. The show represents a wide variety of work done by nine students here at the University of Massachusetts. Pieces vary from the functional and traditional to the erotic and exotic.

The soft tranquility of Wynne Hayakawas work utilizes thrown and cast porcelain forms in the simplicity of traditional celadon glazes. Marlyn Coplin also works with porcelain. She uses very simple thrown forms much as a painter uses a canvas to display a deep sensual flow of glazes. Mark Richardson, Walter Hall and Rick Bernstein's pieces are concerned with making statements about form. They exploit clay as a plastic material using throwing and hand building to show the strength and also the softness and the flexibility of clay. Their work includes pieces done in stoneware, porcelain, raku and soft firing. The flashier elements of work comes from Richard Robishau, Lee-Ann Chellis-Wessel, and Susan Shapiro, all of who work in bright colored earthenware. Susan's work uses hard edge decoration on crisp-fitted thrown shapes. Richard's car and truck teapots are made with very slick thrown sections with hand built elements. Lee-Ann's pieces deal with making sexual fantasy into a reality using modeled figures tableau environment. Harvey Goldman, working in salt glazed stoneware, deals with exoticism in a less explicit but equally effective manner.

This is a show well worth seeing — cum and enjoy it.

tormer donut girl
Lee-Ann Chellis-Wessel with the clay thing artists Goldman,

Chellis-Wessel,
Coplin, Richardson

plates by Marilyn Coplin

Below the Salt photos by Bill Howell

C & C Package Store, Inc.
-: WINE & LIQUOR MERCHANTS :-
61 MAIN STREET
AMHERST. MASS. 01002

This Weekend at C & C
Thurs., Fri., & Sat.

C & C Price

Schmidt's Beer $4.55 Cs.
Cs. 24-12 oz. N.R. Bottles

Falstaff Beer $5.45 Cs.
Cs. 24-12 oz. Cans

Dom Silvano $1.79
Portugese Rose 24 oz. bottles

College Club Burbon $9.29
½ Gal. 86 Pf.

Schenley Reserve $10.50
86 Proof ½ Gal.

Pastene Festival Wines 35c
Chianti or Burgundy 12 oz. bottles

Logosta Portugese Rose $2.09
25 oz. bottles

20% SAVINGS
ON all footwear
ANNIVERSARY
SALE
FOOT FASHIONS
IN THE MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL
the SHOE-BIN

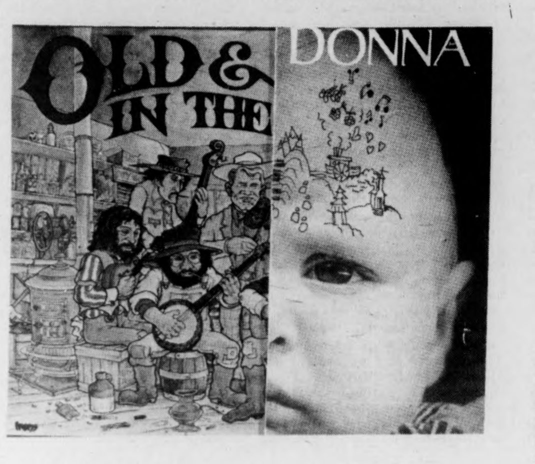
They're not live yet

by Mark Lonergan, Janet Webber and
Mark Harris Levitan

The good news for Dead fans came about a month and a half ago in the mail. Dead Heads across the land received more of those handy mini-album covers as well as two 7 inch 33 RPM records with excerpts from the latest Dead Family Releases. More of the group's current philosophy was revealed in the two newsletters in the package. The good news is that the Dead are still alive and recording a new album. Also, each individual in the band is involved in different projects (two of them are reviewed here.)

Billy Kreutzman is working with CSN&Y on their latest attempt. Phil Lesh and old friend Ned Lagin are working on a spacy thing called Seastones. Its organic potential is earth-shaking. Bob Weir is heading a band called "Kingfish" which will tour later this year. He's also planning his second solo for this summer. Keith and Donna Godchaux, pianist and vocalist for the band, recorded Keith and Donna and will be performing also. Then there's Garcia, ever-busy jack-of-all-musics, now touring with "Legion of Mary" (Boston, April 6). He produced Robert Hunter's new Tiger Rose album, and he sings and plays on Keith and Donna and Seastones. He has produced Pistol-Packin' Mama, another bluegrass venture for him, along with his active involvement with Old and In The Way. He's involved in the new Grateful Dead movie, and another solo album for summer release. Busy man.

But the Dead as a group won't be touring for a while, which is the bad news. Some of their last huge concerts were crowd-instilled nightmares. Their appearance in Boston last June unfortunately was such a bomb-stricken affair that the band's consistently good music could not overcome the bad vibes in the air. It must have been a drag for them.



Relatives of the Dead: Bluegrass & holograms.

So, until there exists a way for them to play live and sound Dead, we have to listen to Distilled Dead. (And hope the future lies in holography).

Keith and Donna
Round Records RX 104

Old and In The Way
Round Records RX 103

Keith and Donna:

This album is perplexing. We know of Keith Godchaux's ability to tie the Grateful Dead's loose ends together with his upward-climbing piano runs. We also know that Donna Godchaux's high harmony nearly perfectly complements both Jerry Garcia's and Bob Weir's singing. But here, they've both come down with a bit to expose their weaknesses.

Now, the greatness of the Grateful Dead lies in their sometimes consistent, yet sloppy togetherness (especially on records). The "sloppiness" is evident on this album, but it lacks the enthusiasm that would make up for such things as differently accentuated beats by bass, drums, guitar and piano. It hardly holds together at all in this respect.

Donna's most blatant weakness is that she is not a lead singer. Her voice wavers and varies too much in consistency. Some of the songs, particularly the remake of "River Deep, Mountain High" are suitable for that style, but it doesn't last throughout. Another good vehicle for her is the Godchaux original, "Every Song I Sing." Serving as a restatement of the album's varied musical influences, it begins as a gospel-style song and then slowly winds up until it finally breaks out into a full-fledged Dead song, replete with Garcia's humming lead, Donna's high vocals, and those trademark piano runs.

But the piano, as played by Keith, is a thin replacement for a rhythm guitar which is sorely missed throughout. And Keith's singing is earthy, but had to bear in this situation.

Not even a good effort by regulars Garcia, Merl Saunders or John Kahn could pull this off. Dead Devotion Definitely Demanded.

Old and In The Way:

In the early sixties, there was a folk boom in California that was father to the renowned "San Francisco Sound" of several years later. One of the bands that played Marin County's bars and clubs at that time was a bluegrass outfit known as "Mother McAree's Jug Stompers." The personnel were John Dawson on guitar, Jerry Garcia (in an early incarnation) on banjo, John Kahn on washtub bass and David Grisman on mandolin. Dawson, as Marmaduke, formed the New Riders of the Purple Sage; Grisman came to Boston and played in a band called Earth Opera; John Kahn played with everyone and anyone, from Bloomfield to Garcia; and as for Garcia, there were ten eventful years with the Grateful Dead.

There was an album released about a month ago on the Dead's new label, called Old and In The Way. The personnel are Jerry Garcia - banjo, John Kahn - string bass, David Grisman - mandolin, Peter Rowan, formerly of Seatrain and Earth Opera, guitar, and Vassar Clements - violin. After ten years, Mother McAree's Jug Stompers are back as Old and In The Way. This is by no means Garcia's band. He plays good banjo and contributes fine vocals, but he is overshadowed by Peter Rowan's pickin' and excellent vocals, and by Vassar Clements who is possibly the best fiddler in the country. John Kahn adds solid string bass with no frills. David Grisman plays a sweet mandolin, but unfortunately, is not very audible.

In fact, the complaint about the album is the sound mix. The instruments sound too distant, not full and rich. This gives the album the nice feeling of a barn dance, but clarity would be preferred.

The songs were written by the band members or are traditional or well-known songs, and all are at the very least good (although "Wild Horses" seems out of step here). Among the best are "Knockin' on Your Door", "Land of the Navajo," and the title song by Grisman. The vocals are the highlight of the album, with real bluegrass harmonies right out of the Appalachian Mountains, sounding as high as a lonesome train whistle in the night.

There are no real virtuoso instrumentals, except for Vassar, but he can't help it. What comes off instead is five men working together for an ideal; bluegrass music. As David Grisman put it in the jacket notes, "The music...embodies the spirit of that original bluegrass quest." He couldn't be righter. If you like bluegrass at all, do yourself a favor and pick this up. You won't regret it.

Used rat of mottled love

Propaganda
SPARKS
(Island ILPS 9312)
Total Playing Time: 32:50

Sparks consists primarily of Ron and Russell Mael, a songwriting-singing team of brothers, who get the nomination for Bonzo Dog Band Reincarnation of 1975. Their music works on that edge of bizarreness which the Bonzos explored in "We Are Normal" and "I'm the Urban Spaceman" — pop music played as heavy metal, with shifts of meter, music-hall and schmaltz turned to nightmare. Russell Mael, the vocalist, has a great controlled gift for manic singing — with overdubbing he can cause tremors. In fact, manic is really the word for the album — it never stops, and Muff Winwood has produced it excellently, given the album a thoroughly tight and dense sound.

The Maels seem to think (with some justification, actually) that being alive is very much like being at war. All of the songs on Propaganda treat it in some way: "At Home, At Work, At Play", "Don't Leave Me Alone With Her", and "Something For the Girl With Everything" all have a peculiar kind of misogyny — a paranoid fear of the woman who knows too much; "Reinforcements" and "Never Turn Your Back On Mother Earth" express life as a literal battle. "BC" and "Who Don't Like Kids" deal with the family — in "BC" the problem is maintaining the proper stability, "Who Don't Like Kids" is a scary epic about children as property; fake children growing up to be fake adults. "Achoo" works on the old image of physical sickness as mental illness; "Thanks But No Thanks" is filled with inhibition, also coming out of the family; the album ends with "Bon Voyage", sung by a person who didn't make it onto the ark, who's going to be left behind. Reeeel paranoia. Ah, but handled so creatively...

"...being alive is very much like being at war..."

Ron Mael is an excellent lyricist. His masses of words act as a kind of cosmic stuttering, although there's little or no waste in them. A couple of examples will have to do: "Unwitting chaperons, how come you cannot see — A Hitler wearing heels — A soft Simon Legree — A Hun with honey skin — De Sade who makes good tea ... ("Don't Leave Me Alone With Her"); "Three wise men are here — Three wise men are here — Where should they leave these imported gimmicks? — Leave them Anywhere — Anywhere — Make sure that there's a clear path to the door ... ("Something For the Girl With Everything")". Well, and so on. There are a lot of odd albums in existence; in many ways, Propaganda is one of the oddest. Which is all to its advantage.

— David Miller

Circle of Love
SISTER SLEDGE
(Atco)

This album has quietly made its way into record store bins without so much as an advertisement in the trades or any such promo devices. I gladly take it upon myself to say a few words about a nice little album that has the sweetest soul this side of the original Supremes.

Comparisons will inevitably occur 'twixt Sister Sledge and the Supremes. Their essence (a systems-oriented person might say "their formula") is much the same — usually one singer up-front, with the rest of the group responding or restating some sort of central line as well as taking care of the dancing and hand motion chores. The songs these women sing are pretty much similar too — songs about being caught in the middle of an insecure relationship, songs with titles like "You're Much Better Loving Me" and "Protect Our Love" could just as well be "Stop, In The Name Of Love".

Nonetheless, there is a slot in American pop music just waiting for something like Sister Sledge to fit into. Now, if they can only find that single (I'll place my bet on "Caught In The Middle" and start to tune in on RKO for the results). B

— Paul Kontrimas

I'm Jessi Colter
JESSI COLTER
(Capitol ST-11363)

There's not much to say about this album except that it's just plain empty. Devoid of the stuff that makes an album worth the effort to make. Jessi Colter sings ten of her own straight-life country and western ballads, yet she simply doesn't capture the faintest trace of emotional feeling that C&W music is best known for.

Not only are the words meaningless, but also the melodies. Often an artist's songs will sound similar, but in my opinion, this album goes too far. The first three songs on side two are almost exactly the same musically, and the rhythmic and instrumental differences are poor disguises (keep in mind that the words do not carry the weight). In fairness to Jessi, she did write a couple of good songs for the album, those being "Is There Any Way (You'd Stay Forever)" and "Storms Never Last." But she simply isn't strong enough as a writer to supply herself with an album's worth of songs.

What's worse is that there are only fourteen (14) minutes of music on each side, which is a total insult to anyone that might even consider spending four and a half bucks for sheer blandness. The backup music is real nice and it features Nashville's best, which includes Colter's husband Waylon Jennings (one of the Finest). The technical production by Jennings and pro Ken Mansfield is also Nashville's best, but although they obviously had good intentions ($?), they didn't realize the seriousness of Jessi's shortcomings.

—Mark Harris Levitan

Songbird
JESSE COLIN YOUNG
(Warner Brothers)

This album pisses me off. Jesse must have been taking Dave Mason lessons. This album puts me to sleep. It is virtual muzak. There is no originality. There is no spark. A body at rest tends to stay at rest. It sounds exactly like everything else he has done. He knows it. I don't think he cares. Now you know it. Do you care?

Even John Denver varies his formula a bit.

—Craig Roche

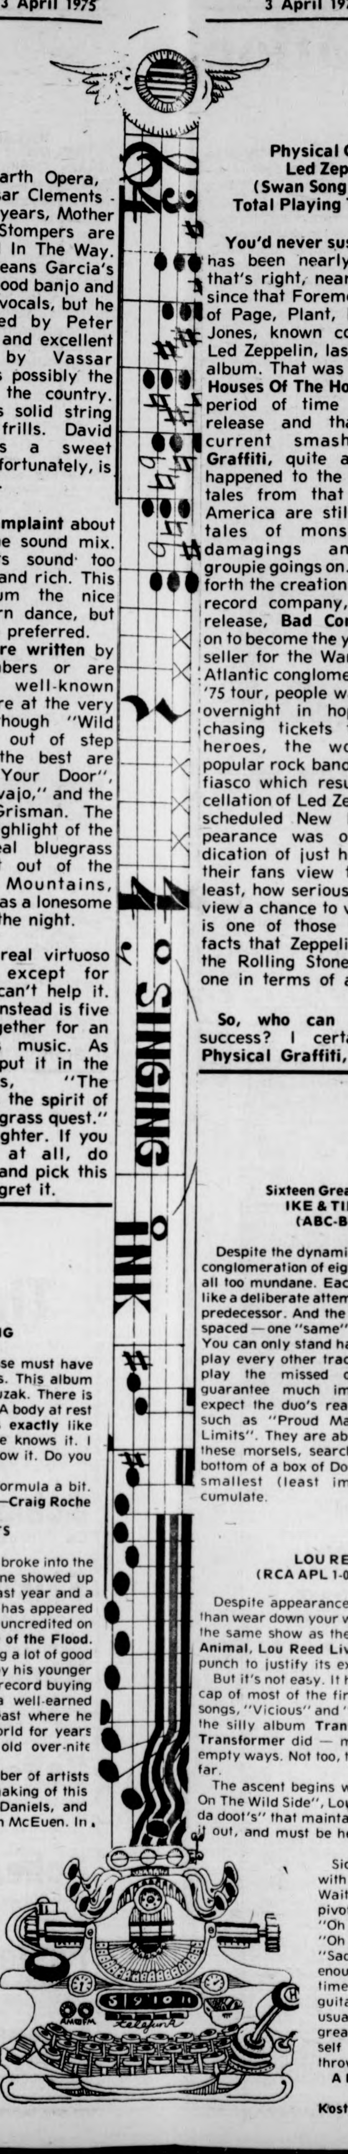
VASSAR CLEMENTS
(Mercury)

The last time a fortyish person broke into the rock scene was when the Airplane showed up with Papa John Creach. In the past year and a half, the name Vassar Clements has appeared on many albums, and remained uncredited on others, such as the Dead's Wake of the Flood. In short this country boy is making a lot of good music that is being recognized by his younger musicians and through them the record buying public. And it strikes me as a well-earned position in Clements' case, at least where he has been a part of the music world for years and years. Not your 20 year old over-nite sensation.

Proof of this is seen in the number of artists that wanted to be a part of the making of this album; John Hartford, Charlie Daniels, and Dirt Banders, Jeff Hanna and John McEuen. In all 17 musicians added to this album, making it a fine piece of music. When musicians of this caliber sit down to pick and play, it becomes very easy for the listener to get off on the licks and trades they make. The only real flaw, and a minor one, is that there is only one vocal track on the album and after listening to the whole, one's ear may be dulled.

But for excellent contemporary country musicianship, I doubt if this album can easily be equalled or surpassed.

—Craig Roche



Zep still full of zip

by Ross Nerenberg

Physical Graffiti
Led Zeppelin
(Swan Song SS 2-200)
Total Playing Time: 84:07

You'd never suspect it, but it has been nearly two years, that's right, nearly two years since that Foremost Foursome of Page, Plant, Bonham, and Jones, known collectively as Led Zeppelin, last released an album. That was the infamous Houses Of The Holy, and in the period of time between its release and that of Led's current smash, Physical Graffiti, quite a few things happened to the quartet. The tales from that '73 tour of America are still being told, tales of monstrous hotel damagings and strange groupie goings on. 1974 brought forth the creation of Zep's own record company, whose first release, Bad Company, went on to become the year's biggest seller for the Warner-Elektra-Atlantic conglomerate. For the '75 tour, people waited in lines overnight in hopes of purchasing tickets to see their heroes, the world's most popular rock band. The Boston fiasco which resulted in cancellation of Led Zeppelin's only scheduled New England appearance was only one indication of just how seriously their fans view them, or, at least, how seriously their fans view a chance to view them. It is one of those little known facts that Zeppelin now outdo the Rolling Stones by two to one in terms of album sales.

So, who can argue with success? I certainly can't. Physical Graffiti, the group's first double album, holds no real surprises in store for its listeners. There's nothing really innovative, revolutionary, or new, merely their old style of maniacally hard-driving rock. Could you really suspect anything else? There are no deep lyrics with hidden meanings to ponder over. Why should there be? No need to teach an old dog new tricks, not when he's raking in millions of dollars performing the old ones over and over again. So it is with Zeppelin. They have no reason to change, no new hills to climb. A two record set of the group eating breakfast would probably go gold inside of twenty minutes.

LED ZEPPELIN
K.O. Rossy

★★
No ordinary writing on the wall.
★★

Still, Physical Graffiti is a fine effort. Robert Plant's vocals are as they always have been: loud and shrill, just as we have come to expect them to be. John Paul Jones plays fine supporting bass and keyboards, while drummer John Bonham's constant pounding, thrashing, and hammering away fits in perfectly. Jimmy Page remains as Mr. Big within the group. He continues to come up with new sounds on his wide variety of guitars, which, since he composes the majority of the group's music, fit in beautifully. Also, as producer of the album, he has reaffirmed his tremendous skill and expertise in this field. Thus, he is the dominating force on the album, always in the forefront along with Robert Plant.

Side one gives us three offerings. Of these, "The Rover" contains Plant's finest vocal job on the entire album as he pleads for peace and unity in the world. "In My Time Of Dying," the longest cut contained here (11:08), comes off as too monotonous and drawn-out, perhaps the biggest failure to be found on this record. Side two also is composed of three cuts, two of which stand out. "Houses Of The Holy" is a hard rocker of the first degree, during which Page's heavy metal guitar work is very much in evidence. "Kashmir" features intermittent violin mixed with Bonham's bashing percussion to give it an eerie sound. Plant's vocals are forced to take a definite back seat to the rhythmic flow of instruments throughout the number.

The four works on side three are much more tame, in comparison with the previous two sides. "In The Light" as been compared to "Stairway To Heaven," but it falls far short of this all-time classic. However, its tempo changes come off well, especially Page's frequent guitar lines. The following bit, called "Bron-Yr-Aur," is a shorter piece on acoustic guitar, as Page does it all by himself. Side four contains five shorter, more concise songs. "Night Flight" brings us some more of Plant's finest vocals to go with Page's hypnotizing guitar style. "Boogie With Stu" serves as a change from the loud and heavy metal rockers, as Zep gets about as soulful as we will ever hear. Moreover, it sounds good. "Black Country Woman" features Page on acoustic guitar, uniting cohesively with Plant's toned down singing and Bonham's customarily heavy-handed drumming. Capping off the disc is "Sick Again," a rather nondescript work whose lyrics seemingly are aimed as a put-down of groupies.

Wrapping everything up, I probably haven't told you anything new. If you like Led Zeppelin, you will like Physical Graffiti, although it may take more than just one listening to convince you of it. If you don't like Led Zeppelin, there is always John Denver. Or the Osmonds. Or Tony Orlando and Dawn. Or, how about listening to the grass grow? Zzz-zzzz-zzz. Those may be fates worse than death itself, but, just so long as the Zeppelin balloon shows no signs of bursting, we're in good hands.

Favorite menus being enjoyed this year are: "Our Own Pizz," "Sloppy Joes," and a new addition, "Clam Rolls."
DELETE ABOVE DELETE

The headless swamps

Sixteen Great Performances
IKE & TINA TURNER
(ABC-Blue Thumb)

Despite the dynamic sound of this team, the conglomeration of eight tracks of each side are all too mundane. Each succeeding cut sounds like a deliberate attempt to avoid likeness to its predecessor. And the likenesses are all neatly spaced — one "same" song following the other. You can only stand half of the bit. Even if you play every other track and then go back and play the missed ones after, I couldn't guarantee much improvement. And don't expect the duo's really great performances, such as "Proud Mary" or "Nutbush City Limits". They are absent. Where they dug up these morsels, search me. Perhaps from the bottom of a box of Doo-Dad snacks, where the smallest (least important?) pieces accumulate.

—Linda Sherksnis

LOU REED LIVE
(RCA APL 1-0959) Time 38:39

Despite appearances, this one will do more than wear down your weary bones. Recorded at the same show as the smashing Rock N Roll Animal, Lou Reed Live provides quite enough punch to justify its existence.

But it's not easy. It has to overcome a handicap of most of the first side's being two silly songs, "Vicious" and "Satellite Of Love", from the silly album Transformer. They do what Transformer did — mark time in stagey but empty ways. Not too, too bad, but they don't go far.

The ascent begins with a convoluted "Walk On The Wild Side", Lou spitting out some "doot da doot's" that maintain the drama of spewing it out, and must be heard.

Side two slips on easy, with a right, quick "I'm Waiting For The Man", and pivots in the crux of Berlin, "Oh Jim" and "Sad Song". "Oh Jim" goes too long, but "Sad Song" is pervasive enough to make magic your time. The Hunter-Wagner guitar band plays well as usual, and Lou remains his great, dirty, decadent Jew self that moves some to throw bricks.

A Pathological Rhetoric B.
— Mike Crimson Gump Kostek

Crash Landing
JIMI HENDRIX
(Reprise MS 9204) Time 29:34

He's still dead, and perhaps always will be. No one has picked up on his music's spirit and technique. Oh, the notes! They weren't plucked from upside down Fender Stratocaster strings, they were notes, absolute sounds, with no hint to their strong origin. Perfectly plucked. And they came from certainly the farthest reaches of the Astral Plane (Imagination, if you will), and ...

Jimi Hendrix
Crash Landing

...a Picasso finished by a bricklayer.

It is always a delight to hear more of Mr. Hendrix's work, he being one of the finest musicians of the age. However, this is a strange album to begin "redeeming" Jimi's besmirched legacy of shoddy collections and ancient demo tapes. Strange for a number of reasons: 1) It's not even a half hour long. 2) It's not even as good as Rainbow Bridge, The Cry Of Love or the skimpy War Heroes.

Most of the reason is Jimi's death leaves mere mortals to finish up the work of a master. Alan Douglas, the producer and hale fellow who slogged through all those miles of tapes, had a lot of work to do here. So much, in fact, that he takes co-writing credits with Hendrix on two cuts. Two tracks, "Message To Love" and "With The Power", done with the Buddy Miles — Band Of Gypsies, sound like they were finished before Jimi's death, and cut the live versions by a good deal. The other six though, were nothing but Jimi's vocals, rhythm and first lead guitar lines when Douglas arrived. So what does 'Jazz Producer" Douglas do? Call in say, Jeff Beck, Tony Williams and Jack Bruce to flesh things out? No, he brings in Mirov, a Babbit and someone named Schwartzberg, and they predictably go nowhere. Also missing are the myriad of guitar overdubs Hendrix would have packed in, (Jimi also played the studio better than anyone else I can name.)

Douglas has tried to play it safe here, letting Hendrix stand up front, apparently not wanting to 'interfere'. But when the front figure is incomplete, the results are the same, and thus unsatisfactory. Crash Landing is thus presented as a simple rocker with a few frills. The one thing that frustrated Hendrix most was his inability to find people to move him, to inspire him. (One of the 'Aw shit, he was just gonna ... before he died' stories is Jimi recording with Rahsaan Roland Kirk and Tony Williams). Now that he's gone, the presentation of his music in such a plainly unfinished, awkward manner does nobody any good, save the Warner Brothers, and that is a very short return on the life of an Artist. And you see, these remains, this unfinished, unrequited sketch pad, this Picasso finished by a bricklayer, is still more than a bit of a bone crusher. The more's the pity.

Two final questions: One, do you think Hendrix would have released this if he still were alive? Two, as Mr. Gary Gomes has oft announced, DO YOU THINK HE WAS JUST KIDDING AROUND? It remains for Jimi's music to be taken as seriously by his record company as he took it. It seems he really did take it with him, as nobody else can find it.

A vehement B-.

— Mike 'Pay It Again, Damn' Kostek

Frampton
PETER FRAMPTON
(A&M)

This album is a downright bodacious letdown, coming as it does at the heels of Frampton's superb February concert here in our own dear Ballroom. On his past three studio efforts Peter has achieved an interesting balance of British power-chord rock and lilting melodicism. He's still combining these musical elements, but the results are less than inspiring. In short, he's run out of quality material (let's hope only for the time being).

There is a bit of savin' grace here, though, folks, never fear. "Crying Clown" sports the most appealing, and I might add the only readily distinct, melody on this piece of hot wax. "Fanfare" immediately follows; a pleasing medium-tempo rocker, the likes of which is usually Frampton's forte. "Penny for Your Thoughts", a short, lively acoustic guitar piece, is like a mist of perfume amidst mounds of dogshit. It's almost out of context, but refreshing just the same. The remainder is sloshy C-grade, in the tradition of all those forgotten souls who "almost made it but ...".

It is a wonder that in the midst of all this triteness Frampton's guitar playing remains creative, inspired, and spontaneous. It's even more surprising that this tasty instrumentation could accompany such dreck.

These are extremely hard words for a musician I've long admired, but the man certainly can do better. Judging from the quality of the material on his three previous lp's, I would venture a guess that Peter Frampton, musically is trying to peddle stale merchandise. This mother gets the Moldy Bread Non-Award of the Month.

— Kevin Pelletier

Tia Juana Moods
CHARLES MINGUS
(RCA)

In 1962, Charles Mingus called this record the best he ever made. Mingus' genius is singular: no one can convey a certain emotion through a quintet or sextet format as clearly and grippingly as Mingus can. He tells his musicians what to play, forcing them to emotionally sense what he wants. This multifarious Mexican melange recorded in 1957 paved the way for other evocative levels such as Self Portrait in Three Colors and the intense Black Saint and the Sinner Lady, yet it stands alongside these later works in its depth and maturity.

"Written during a very blue period" in Mingus' life, each of the five tunes reflects, no, radiates the bitter-sweet feelings of a very blue bass player hanging out in mad Tia Juana. "Ysabel's Table Dance" is an orgiastic maelstrom of wild music led by Mingus yells and Shafi Hadi's r&b-mari-achi wail alto. The Mingus structure is a way out one — numerous tempoes, multiple themes, wholly varied moods — but no matter how bizarre the changes, this structure ultimately re-emerges in wonderfully logical fashion. Jimmy Knepper's brilliant trombone ignores cliches as does trumpeter Clarence Shaw. Their originality is evident on the chiaro-scuro "Los Mariachis". The stereo re-recording on this record is excellent, adding to the listening pleasure. "Flamingo", the final piece, is a rare type of gentle, a beauty of sound that stays with you. Here is a masterwork.

—Jack Cahill

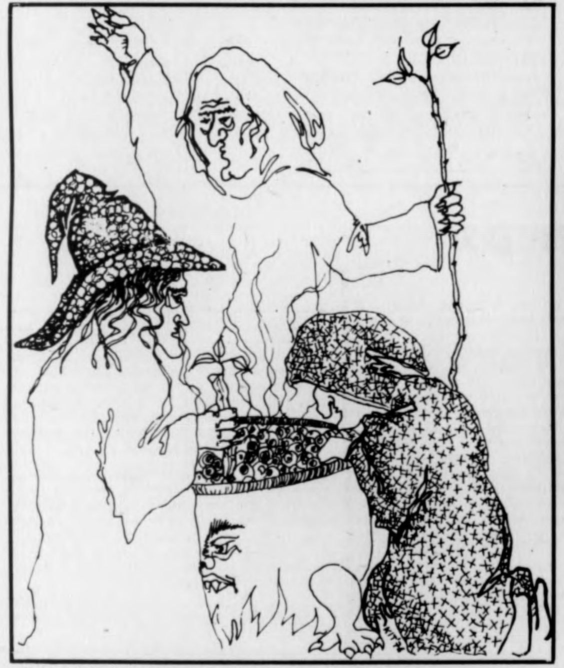
Polanski's Macbeth: A Modern Interpretation

reviewed by
Michael Grossman

Much has been said about Roman Polanski's screen version of Shakespeare's Macbeth. To my surprise, however, the comments have been mostly negative. True, the film revels in blood and gore; the 'shock' factor runs high in this film as it does in most Polanski films — The Fearless Vampire Killers and Rosemary's Baby. But the gothic sensibility does possess an artistic side — a side our personal sensibilities cannot bear to witness or accept.

What we should be concerned with is how Polanski uses what Shakespeare has left us, and to what purpose. If this film ignored the original, it would simply be a romp, visually exciting but basically thin. However, Polanski uses Shakepeare's play as the underpinning throughout, and the film is interesting and original as an interpretation of Shakespeare and as Polanski's personal vision of the modern world.

Remaining true to the conventions of English playwriting of the time, both Shakespeare and Polanski use the very first scenes to provide the audience with all the themes that pervade the play. In the original, the three witches appear usually with thunder and lightning adding to the emotional climate. The world of Scotland is indeed engulfed in an unharmonious condition. And, of course, the ugly witches deliver the key phrase for this play, "Fair is foul, and foul is fair." This underscores the essential theme of Macbeth — the ambiguity of life, equivocation and the confusion of values. When they finish their lines, the witches usually disappear in a cloud of smoke and proceed to "hover through the fog and filthy air."



With this in mind, let us look at Polanski's interesting variation on this very important opening scene. The film opens with a long view of a wet beach, but no trace of sea. For the first moments we see a change in the position of the sun and we may even sense a change in the seasons; both suggest the passage of time. But there is no thunder or lightning, just a hazy day. The witches enter from above the camera, and dig a hole in the wet sand. As they speak Shakespeare's words, they place a severed hand along with an assortment of witch items into a hole.

As we look at the witches we notice something significantly different. The first witch is very old and very ugly (her eyes remain closed throughout the film), the second witch is also of the typical Elizabethan variety, but not quite as old nor quite as ugly. The third witch, however, is a young attractive girl. Her youth and pleasant appearance, Polanski seems to suggest, symbolizes "fair", whereas her profession along with those around her indicate "foul." This is the first important image by Polanski to suggest the on-going quality that pervade these characters. They, too, grow and mature; the young, also, learn from the old. And when one dies, witches will remain forever. Again, the sense of time is provided.

As the witches leave they don't just disappear, they separate. The young witch holding the oldest walks away to the left (again suggesting the bridging of youth and age, "fair" and "foul"), while the other witch walks away on the right. What we see is the formation of a V pattern as they separate. The witches, it appears so clearly, pervade a lot of space. They actually hover over the entire world.

This is the main thrust of Polanski's interpretation. The emphasis on a space-time quality is not readily available in the original. However, the rich suggestiveness of Shakespeare's art allows Polanski to inject this twentieth century notion into his (Polanski's?) work.

Next, we are told of brave Macbeth's (played by Jon Finch) heroics on the field of battle. And, of course, he receives the first set of prophesies from the witches. And, at once, we see that Macbeth will pursue the prophesy of "King to be." When Macbeth receives the news that he has been given the title Thane of Cawdor, part of the witches prophesy, it serves as an added incentive to travel his determined path.

A lot has happened thus far, and now we are ready to see Macbeth and his lady together for the first time. Keeping traditional interpretations in mind, we are again struck by Polanski's significant revisions.

When we first see Lady Macbeth (played by Francesca Annis), reading her husband's letter telling of the "strange" events, we find that she, along with Macbeth, is somewhat young and pleasant to look at. She is not the older cold bitch we are accustomed to. When Macbeth returns to his humble abode, he takes her in his arms and wisks her off to their bedchamber to discuss his eventual climb to the throne. As we gaze upon the two, we sense their togetherness — more, their visual beauty as they seem to be one in mind and body. Theirs is a perfect marriage.

Again, Polanski is playing with the notions of "fair" and "foul". The fairness of the beautiful Macbeths quickly turns to foul as they move along their wayward path. They move apart from one another, we see them grow old and ugly — "fair" is once again turned to "foul."

For the rest of the film we bear witness to the actions of the "mad butcher" and his lady. This is where the film receives most of the unfavorable criticisms. But the camera has replaced the word and Polanski forces us to see the horrors. We see the murder of Duncan as he lays sleeping in his beautiful and naked serenity. Interestingly enough, all characters sleep in the nude in this film which might suggest executive producer Hugh Hefner's influence on the film. Hefner, incidentally, received a round of boos and hisses from about 15-20 women when his name appeared during the credits.

Macbeth stabs Duncan almost a dozen times. It almost becomes ritualistic. We even hear the knife strike the bones of Duncan's chest as Macbeth plunges his knife into the King.

We further bear witness to the brutal murdering of Banquo, Macduff's family and, of course, Macbeth's own decapitation. When Macbeth returns to the witches in the third act, he actually drinks the witches' concoction — he has literally "supped full with horrors."

For certain, the violence, blood and gore causes our inner senses to cringe in horror, fear and disgust. But these are not presented merely to appeal to our basest emotions. They are part and parcel to the world Shakespeare creates and are certainly a part of the world we see today. Polanski, it need not be stressed, has personally experienced these horrors. It is not farfetched to suggest that Polanski may be working out a personal obsession on screen. Irregardless, the horror we see is a part of our world, and as long as these elements serve a larger purpose, and in this film they most certainly do, Polanski's art is not decadent.

At the play's end, after Macbeth's decapitation, Polanski, again, moves one step further and carries his work into the twentieth century. Malcolm has been restored as the rightful heir, but Donalbain, who walks with a limp in this film, returns to the witches indicating the whole process of "good" vs. "evil" — "fair" as opposed to "foul", will recur infinitely.

Whatever is left to be said of this film, it cannot be denied that Polanski's Macbeth is one of the most successful modern interpretations of Shakespeare to date.

Each member account insured to $40,000
NCUA
by Administrator, National Credit Union Administration

UMASS Student Federal Credit Union is
NOW OPEN
*10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Weekdays

*Each member account FULLY insured up to deposits of $40,000 by the National Credit Union Administration.
*Food Stamp operations begin in 2 weeks.

If you have any questions or desire information concerning interest rates on loans, savings, etc., PLEASE do not hesitate to call us at 545-1994 or stop in Room 166 of the Campus Center.

YOU'RE WEARING CONTACTS.
WE CAN MAKE THE WEARING EASIER.

A lot easier.

You know that taking care of your contact lenses can be a real hassle.

You have to use a solution for wetting. Another one for soaking. Still another one for cleaning. And maybe even another one for cushioning.

But now there's Total® The all-in-one contact lens solution that wets, soaks, cleans and cushions.

It's a lot easier than having to use 4 different solutions.

There are two good ways to buy Total® — the 2 oz. size and the 4 oz. size. Total® 2 oz. has a free, mirrored lens storage case, and the new economy 4 oz. size saves you 25%.

Total® is available at the campus bookstore or your local drugstore.

And we're so sure you'll like Total® that we'll give you your second bottle free. Just send a Total® boxtop with your name, address and college name to:

Total, Allergan
Pharmaceuticals
2525 Dupont Drive
Irvine, California 92664
(Limit one per person.
Offer expires
July 31, 1975.)

TOTAL® MAKES THE WEARING EASIER.
Available at University Store

The Oscars: Chariots for the Gods

by Jeffrey Polman
and
Stuart Sojcher

The Oscar Awards are the film world's one-night ego trip. Careers are sealed and handed to the public on coast-to-coast platters, and starry-eyed is the viewer who sits out the proceedings to the final presentation.

But we (ahem!) critics know otherwise. We know that it is all just mass-produced makeup, unreal judgings molded solely around the Hollywood ideal. Each year there are astounding films which drift away awardless, let alone even be nominated. George C. Scott and Marlon Brando both made choices of refusal which seem more intelligent every year.

The annual event is scheduled for the night of Tuesday, April 8th, and once again there are foolish discrepancies. We cannot understand why Richard Dreyfuss did not receive a nomination for his extraordinary performance in The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz and why the same picture was not even considered for Best Film; why Gene Hackman did not receive a Best Actor nomination for The Conversation; why Goldie Hawn was ignored from The Sugarland Express; and why such films as The Three Musketeers, Badlands, and Love and Anarchy were overlooked in favor of The Towering Inferno for best film.

In this article, as loyal (?) film reviewers, we will list the nominations in the six most important categories. Then we will announce our predictions, each to be divided into two parts: 1) who we think should win, and 2) who we think will, to satisfy the Academy's biases.

Finally, we will try an experiment. A small survey form has been included in this article for you to fill out. We on Below the Salt are anxious to hear your opinion on the year's nominations, and hope that through feedback we can somehow be educated on the basic film interests of the 5-College Community. But hurry. The first twenty-five people who submit forms will receive Sugar Daddies.

NOMINATIONS

Best Picture

Chinatown; The Godfather Part II; Lenny; The Conversation; The Towering Inferno.

Best Director

Roman Polanski ("Chinatown"), Francois Truffaut ("Day For Night"), Francis Ford Coppola ("Godfather II"), Bob Fosse ("Lenny"), John Cassavetes ("A Woman Under the Influence")

Best Actor

Art Carney ("Harry and Tonto"), Albert Finney ("Murder on the Orient Express"), Dustin Hoffman ("Lenny"), Jack Nicholson ("Chinatown"), Al Pacino ("Godfather II")

Best Actress

Ellen Burstyn ("Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"), Diahann Carroll ("Claudine"), Faye Dunaway ("Chinatown"), Valerie Perrine ("Lenny"), Gena Rowlands ("A Woman Under the Influence")

Best Supporting Actor

Fred Astaire ("The Towering Inferno"), Jeff Bridges ("Thunderbolt and Lightfoot"), Robert De Niro ("Godfather II"), Michael V. Gazzo ("Godfather II"), Lee Strassberg ("Godfather II")

Best Supporting Actress

Ingrid Bergman ("Murder on the Orient Express"), Valentina Catese ("Day For Night"), Madeline Kahn ("Blazing Saddles"), Diane Ladd ("Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"), Talia Shire ("Godfather II")

STU'S PICKS

Best Picture: should — Chinatown or Godfather II; will — Godfather II; possibly — Towering Inferno

Best Director: should — Francis Ford Coppola; will — Coppola

Best Actor: should — Jack Nicholson; will — Art Carney (he's getting old)

Best Actress: should — Gena Rowlands; will — Gena Rowlands

Best Supporting Actor: should — Robert de Niro; will — Lee Strasberg

Best Supporting Actress: should — Madeline Kahn; will — Ingrid Bergman

JEFF'S PICKS

Best Picture: should — The Conversation; will — Chinatown

Best Director: should — Roman Polanski; will — Francis Ford Coppola

Best Actor: should — Albert Finney, Dustin Hoffman, or Al Pacino; will — Art Carney

Best Actress: should — Gena Rowlands; will — Faye Dunaway

Best Supporting Actor: should — Robert De Niro; will — Lee Strasberg

Best Supporting Actress: should — Tyla Michelove; will — Ingrid Bergman

Honorary Dead Award: should — Bob Hope; will — Jack Benny or Vittorio DeSica

DIRECTIONS: check the above nominations list and write down your predictions. Then forward by campus mail or pigeon to FILM EDITOR, BELOW THE SALT, STUDENT UNION BUILDING, U MASS. Your participation in this survey will be greatly enjoyed.

PICTURE__________
DIRECTOR__________
ACTOR__________
ACTRESS__________
SUPPORTING ACTOR__________
SUPPORTING ACTRESS__________

Film Conference to be Held

The New England Conference On Film Education: Curriculum Design And Film Resources will be held on Saturday, April 26, 1975 at the University of Massachusetts, in Amherst, Massachusetts. The conference is being co-sponsored by the University Film Study Center and the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Leading film educators will discuss the curriculum and resource problems confronted in structuring a university film program. The one day seminar will include three morning presentations, an afternoon of workshops that will provide an opportunity for extended consideration of the ideas initiated by the speakers, a panel discussion, and a program of evening screenings including, Language Of The Silent Cinema, a compilation film by Vlada Petric and A Page Of Madness by Teinosuke Kinugasa.

The speakers include: Ted Perry, Chairman, Department of Cinema Studies, New York University, Critical Problems In Organizing A University Film Program: An Overview; Sam Rohdie, Associate Professor of Film, Hunter College, City University of New York, former editor of Screen Magazine, Organizing A Film Curriculum Beyond The Basic Course; Dudley Andrew, Head, Film Division, University of Iowa, Alternative Approaches: The Departmental vs. The Interdepartmental Film Major; Peter Feinstein, Director, University Film Study Center, Resources And Film Study. Vlada Petric, Luce Professor of Film, Harvard University, will introduce the evening screening of his new compilation film, Language Of The Silent Cinema and discuss the use of extracts in film courses.

The conference is a project of the University Film Study Center's Film Information Office, established under grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Rockefeller Foundation, and the Louis B. Mayer Foundation, in conjunction with the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

The conference is open to faculty, students and interested members of the public. Preregistration is required. Conference fee: $3.50, regular admission; $2.00, student admission. All Programs will be held in Herder Hall on the University of Massachusetts campus in Amherst. For registration and further information, contact: Nancy Legge, University Film Study Center, Box 275, Cambridge, Ma. 02138. 617-253-7612.

Quicksilver
No. Pleasant St.
featuring
THURS. Bear Rabinow Band
FRI. & SAT. FREEFALL
STOP IN FOR HAPPY HOUR
4 - 7 Daily
Mixed 55¢ Draught 25¢

Now appearing at the
THE STEAK OUT
BONES FOR TUCKER
Wed.-Sat.
Happy Hour — Mon.-Sat., 4:30-7:00
in the Speakeasy Lounge

SAT.
7, 9, 11
CCC

SAT.
7, 9, 11
CCA

Jimmy Cliff in
The Harder They Come

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
only area showing
Mat. Sat.-Sun. — 2:00
EVES — 7:00 & 9:00
NORTHAMPTON, MASS. 584-8435
WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5·6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
·CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE·

STREISAND & CAAN
How Lucky Can You Get!
Funny Lady
PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00

warren beatty
julie christie · goldie hawn
Shampoo
R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30

NOMINATED FOR 2 ACADEMY AWARDS
PG
YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:35; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:45

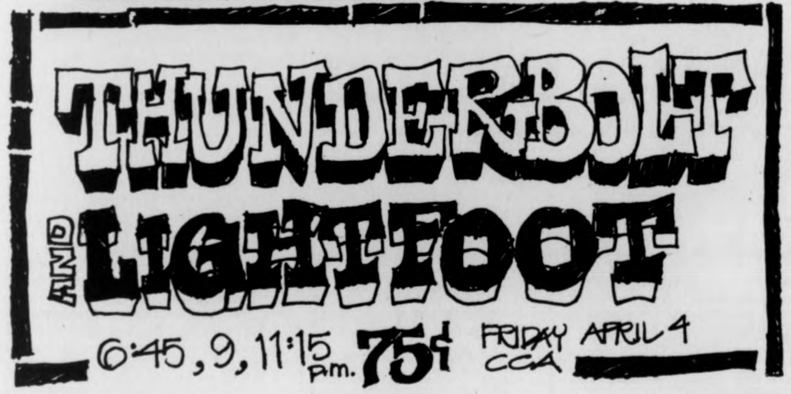
Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 10:00; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

Nominated for 8 Academy Awards
THE TOWERING INFERNO
PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:15; Fri., 7:00, 10:15; Sat., 1:30, 4:15, 7:00, 10:15; Sun., 1:30, 4:50, 8:15

What could be better than The Three Musketeers?
THE FOUR MUSKETEERS
PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:45; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
NOW
Thursday thru Monday
Elvis was the god. James Dean the martyred hero and people still spoke of Sandra Dee....
That'll Be The Day
PG DAVID ESSEX RINGO STARR KEITH MOON
Plus
MEL BROOKS'
BLAZING SADDLES
Eves: Blazing Saddles — 7:00; That'll Be The Day — 8:45
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

TAKE IT EASY BABY
Inventory Sale
20% Off
Everything
FREE WORK SHIRT
with any purchase of $10.00 or more
Jeans — Reindeer Sweaters
Leather Jackets — Cowboy Shirts
Many More Items
Located at: 255 TRIANGLE STREET
Amherst, Mass. 01002
(Between Tech Hi Fi and Discount Records)
413-549-3831
Also Located Circuit Ave., Oak Bluffs, Isle of Martha's Vineyard



THUNDERBOLT AND LIGHTFOOT
6:45, 9, 11:15 p.m. 75¢ FRIDAY APRIL 4 CCA

SALE
FABRICS
25¢ per yd. & up
CURTAINS
50¢ per pair & up
MADRAS SPREADS
Sale Priced
BROWN'S
178 No. Pleasant St.
(Across from Wearhouse)

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS

WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS
INCLUDING BEST PICTURE · BEST DIRECTOR
...all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
"THE STING"
6:00, 8:30
1 PG Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only

They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
6:15, 8:30
2 PG Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only

DAVID O. SELZNICK'S PRODUCTION OF MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
STARRING CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
3 G 6:45
No Twi-Lite Hour

Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
4 R Nominated For 6 Awards
6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only

TIMES CHANGE DAILY

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW NOW
Nominated for 11 Academy Awards
The Godfather PART II
Best Picture
Best Actor
Best Director
R RESTRICTED
2nd SMASH WEEK!
Eves: Godfather II — 7:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

Hard Day's Night
&
Help
Thurs., April 3
7, 8:45, 10:30
CCA
75¢

Lord of the Flies
&
David & Lisa
Sun., April 6
7, 8:45, 10:30
SUB
50¢

NILS LOFGREN
(A&M SP-4509) time 34:43

Long the critic's choice, Nils has skipped along the fringes of popularity, working a bit with Neil Young and the original, great Crazy Horse; his own group, Grin (four albums worth) stood always on the Verge, before stagnation and a solo Nils.

While it's good news that Nils has shugged out of the rehash formula that plagues All Out and Gone Crazy, Grin's last two albums, and has returned to the nice, smoothly rocking formula of Grin and 1+1, it's apparent that his borders are becoming confining.

This is still pretty good — nobody uses the acoustic guitar as well to rock, and Nils still can walk a most delicate and listenable path in his music that has a unique blend of lightness and punch. It's far above most, but still I believe Mr. Lofgren has it in him to be really great. Sounds like he needs something sharp to strike against.

A 'the sun hasn't set on this boy yet' B+.

—Mike Gunt Kostek

Funk Inc.
PRICED TO SELL
(Prestige P-10087) 29:10

Rising from the bowels of the Below The Salt office comes yet another obscure group, to be reviewed and immortalized in print for posterity and profit, (I get to keep the record).

Under the auspicious title of "Funk Inc.", is revealed this album's true nature, "more of the same". A lot of syncopated rhythms, a lot of dominant chordal forms, and a blase title cut, combine to show why this album is hard to find. In contrast though, the choral singing arrangements on three of the seven cuts are as crisp as a new ten dollar bill and worth a great deal more. Unfortunately, these vocals are performed by people helping out on the album, and not by Funk Inc. itself.

Priced To Sell, as the title for an album, leaves a sour taste in my mouth, for it seems that what the music industry needs most, is more music of imaginative quality, rather than commercial quality.

— Ben Atkins

That's The Way Of The World
EARTH, WIND & FIRE
(Columbia PC 33280) Time 36:35

If this album really does outline the way of the world, then we are living in an inconsequential place with a number of problems rooted in thorny yet smooth situations. That's the pitch made on this soundtrack album by the nine-member band whose talents go way beyond the sleek, admittedly skillful (notably "Yearnin' Learnin'") tunes on here that flow with little impact beyond the 'nice' category. Except for some kalimba and strangely-timed organ-bass intro on "Happy Feelin'" and a bit of zippy sax on "Africano", there is none of the great brew of different musics EW&F plunge into on stage, musics which are just part of the equipment needed to take on Planet Earth and its crazed denizens.

An 'Another group gone soft' C+.

— Mike 4F Kostek

Don't miss this theatre:

Weekend
KIT 75

Five College Area

Carousel, Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre, Smith, 8:00 p.m., April 3, 4, 5; 2:00 p.m. on April 6.

Pirates of Penzance, Bowker, 8:00 p.m. on April 3, 4, 5; 3:30 on April 6.

Jungle of Cities, Dickinson Hall, Performing Arts Centre, Hampshire, April 10, 11, 12, 13 at 8:00 p.m.

The Cavern, Studio Theatre, Fine Arts Centre, April 10, 11, 12, 15-19, 22-26 at 8:00 p.m., April 13 and 20 at 2:00.

Kyogen National Comic Theatre of Japan, Bowker, April 19, 8:00 p.m.

Beast With Two Backs, Fine Arts Centre, April 24, 25, at 8:00 p.m.

Heritage, Theatre 14, Smith, April 25, 8:00 p.m.

Black Theatre Workshop, Hallie Glanagan Studio Theatre, Smith, April 25, 26 at 8:00 p.m.

Springfield

The Guardsman, Stage-West, nightly except Mondays now — April 12.

One Flew Over the Cuccoo's Nest, Stage-West, nightly except Mondays, April 19-May 10.

Hartford

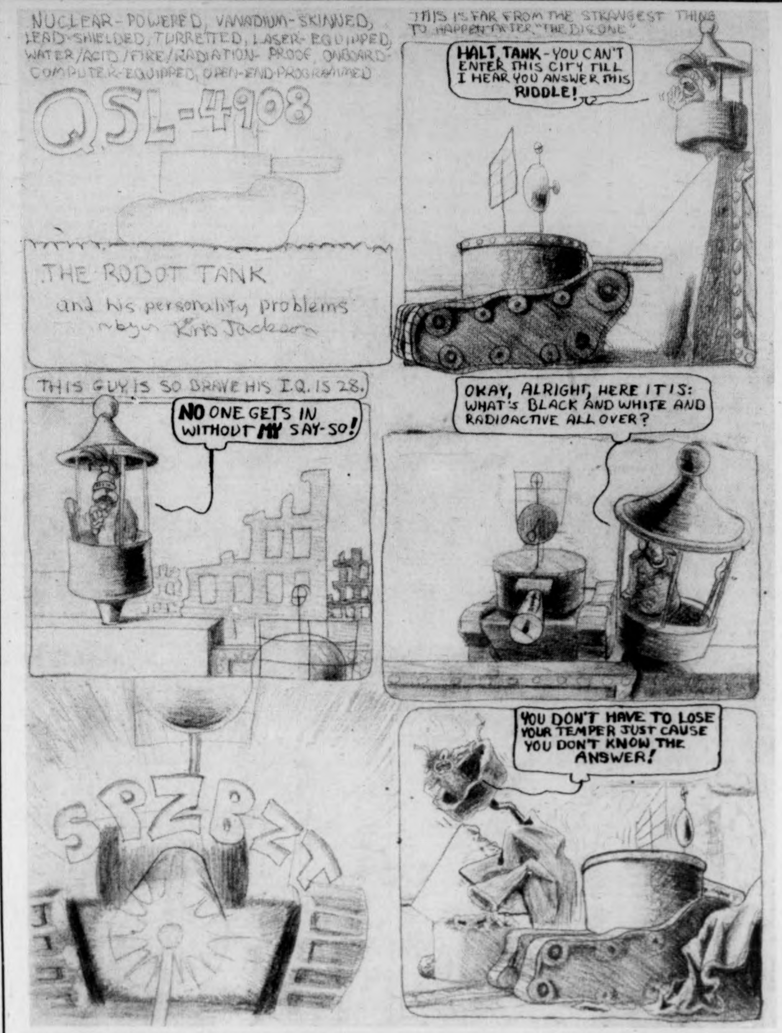
Afternoon Tea, The Hartford Stage Company, March 21-April 27.

Boston

Odyssey, Colonial Theatre, April 1-26.

H.M.S. Pinafore, Boston Light Opera, Ltd., Madelein Lee Theatre, April 11, 12, 25, May 2, 3, 9, 10 at 8:00 p.m.

We would like these listings to be as complete as possible. If your or your organization is running an art event in the Pioneer Valley, please let us know. Make sure that you include the date, time, place and admission cost of the event. It would be helpful if you also include the name of the sponsoring group and a telephone number where further information is available. All information must be received by Below the Salt before noon on Tuesday the week before the event is planned to occur. Address all mail to Tyla, Below the Salt, Student Union Building, UMass, Amherst, 01002 or call 545-3500.



NUCLEAR-POWERED, VANADIUM-SKINNED, LEAD-SHIELDED, TURRETTED, LASER-EQUIPPED, WATER/ACID/FIRE/RADIATION-PROOF, ONBOARD-COMPUTER-EQUIPPED, OPEN-END-PROGRAMMED
QSL-4908
THE ROBOT TANK
and his personality problems
by Kris Jackson
THIS IS FAR FROM THE STRANGEST THING TO HAPPEN AFTER "THE BIG ONE" HALT, TANK - YOU CAN'T ENTER THIS CITY TILL I HEAR YOU ANSWER THIS RIDDLE!
THIS GUY IS SO BRAVE HIS I.Q. IS 28.
NO ONE GETS IN WITHOUT MY SAY-SO!
OKAY, ALRIGHT, HERE IT IS: WHAT'S BLACK AND WHITE AND RADIOACTIVE ALL OVER?
SPZBZT
YOU DON'T HAVE TO LOSE YOUR TEMPER JUST CAUSE YOU DON'T KNOW THE ANSWER!

poetry:

Robert Bly, Emily Dickinson Hall, Hampshire, 16 April, 8:00 p.m.

Barbara Howes, Daniel Hoffman, Kathleen Spivack, New York Room, Mt. Holyoke, 19 April, 10:30 a.m.

T. Carmi, West Lecture Hall, Franklin Patterson Hall, Hampshire, 23 April, 7:30 p.m.

dance:

DANCE
Kit 75

Performance:

Johnny Seitz-Carla Montango Mime Troupe, Performing Arts Centre, Dickinson Hall, Hampshire, 5 April, 8:00 p.m.

NAIADS, Nope Pool, April 9, 10, 11, 12; 8:00 p.m.

University Concert Dance Group, Bowker, April 16, 17, 18, 8:15 p.m.

Participatory

Square Dance sponsored by ARA Outing Club and Phi Delta Sigma, Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke, 11 April, 8:00 p.m.

International Folk Dancing Club, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

Heymakers Square Dance Club, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 8:00 p.m., Tuesdays.

Israeli Dancing, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 8:00 p.m. Wednesdays.

Dance Free, Campus Centre 101, 7:30 p.m., Sundays.

area art:

AREA EXHIBITS

Jones Library — Photographs by Ralmon Jon Black on display during April, black and white as well as color prints including technical data.

Springfield Museum of Fine Art — Academic Artists Association National Exhibition—the 26th annual exhibition of this national art society, April 6-May 4.

Leverett Craftsmen and Artists Inc. — Spring classes spinning, weaving, watercolor, pottery, stained glass, paint and collage, oil painting, batik, gravestone rubbing, children's arts and crafts, and children's animated film-making — for details call L C&A 253-9062.

FIVE COLLEGE EXHIBITS

Amherst College — Mead Gallery — American and Dutch Paintings (primitive collection)

Hampshire College Gallery — April-May Student Examination Shows.

Mt. Holyoke College — Two contemporary Chinese artists April 7-20.

Smith College Museum of Art — Five anonymous American paintings, through April 21 — opening April 10, Paintings by Alice Neel through May 4 — opening April 3, Photographs of Renaissance Art by Clarence Kennedy through April 20, M.F.A. Thesis Exhibits.

U Mass—Herter Hall Gallery — Clement Roach, prints, Clive Santana, paintings through April 5 —April 6-12 Ron Michaud, paintings, Linda Bond, paintings.

—Student Union Gallery — Clay Exhibitionists show through this week.

phases
THE GREAT PHASES REBATE
• Now thru April •
TUES., WED., THURS. 20% Off Food Check AND 1st Drink With Dinner 50¢
FRI., SAT., SUN. 10% Off Food Check
Same Great Menu—Same Generous Drinks
the phases restaurant
huckle hill road . bernardston . mass. tel. 413/648-9161
exit 28 off I-91, rte. 10 east to bald mtn. road-follow new signs
Tues.-Thurs. 5:30-9:00; Fri. & Sat. 5:30-9:30; Sun. 4-8; Closed Monday
Reservations Suggested on Saturday

Grand Opening
Super Music
From the Discotheque begins at 8:00 p.m.
Poor Richards discotheque
5 new ludlow rd.
south hadley
route 20
westfield
AND NOW—
belchertown rd.
AMHERST
exchange this ad at the door of Poor Richards III, AMHERST, between 8-10 p.m. on 4/2 or 4/3 for coupon worth one drink

From bed to wursts

by JEFFREY POLMAN

++++Linda Lovelace
+++Chesty Morgan
++Divine
+Wilbur Mills

BLAZING SADDLES++++

If you have any disrespect at all for America's proud heritage, if you can appreciate The National Lampoon, if you've ever taken pleasure in hearing yourself emit a good burp, then this film will make you laugh. More specifically, you'll be coughing up your Raisinets into your neighbor's lap. (Campus Cinemas and Amherst Cinema)

DAVID AND LISA++++

Time called this the best American film for 1962, and it certainly was among the finest. Kier Dullea and Janet Margolin star as two young lovers, tortured by their individual mental problems. Frank Perry directs and his wife Eleanor wrote the screenplay. With Lord of the Flies in the S.U.B. on 4-6 at 8:45.

DOCTOR ZHIVAGO++++

Epic sage of a striving Russian medical man torn between two women during the heart of the Russian Revolution. David Lean's nificent, taking us from Moscow to the Eastern Grasslands and smack through a blistering Siberian snowstorm. Omar Sharif stars as Zhivago, with Julie Christie, Alec Guiness, Tom Courtenay, Rod Steiger and others smoothing out the cast. Excellent script, art direction, and haunting music. See this on a wide screen for the fullest enjoyment, which I hope they can provide at the C.C.A. on 4-6 at 6:30 and 10:15.

THE FOUR MUSKETEERS??

Part Two of The Three Musketeers which featured Michael York, Oliver Reed, Raquel Welch, Faye Dun away, Charlton Heston, Richard Chamberlain and others mercilessly wasted in itsy bitsy roles woven together to give Alexandre Dumas' tale a touch of class. It was also intended to be funny, and it wasn't, so what can I promise for The Four Musketeers? Director Richard Lester is certainly no Mel Brooks nor Sam Peckinpah, and he is torn between going in both directions at once. (Showcase Cinemas, West Springfield)

FUNNY LADY+++

Barbra Steisand and James Caan shine in the musical sequel to Funny Girl. An excellent evening of entertainment if you like Streisand and—or musicals, but honestly, aren't you getting sick of sequels? (Showcase Cinemas)

GONE WITH THE WIND+++

The mammoth classic of Southern romance starring Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh, filled with Civil War nostalgia, tear-spattered petticoats, and too much racism. If you haven't seen it, bring along some coffee to keep you awake during the second half, when the action gets so stifled that cobwebs form on the screen. Directed by Victor Fleming, who went downhill after The Wizard of Oz. (Mountain Farms Four and Mt Holyoke College)

Below the Salt photo by Bill Howell

A HARD DAY'S NIGHT—HELP!++++

A Beatle buff's dream. Two of their more insane film efforts, clearly showing what influenced the birth of The Monkees and other "camp" television shows. Hard Day's Night has better music and takes place in London. Help! has more absurdity and takes the cake for oneliners. (TONIGHT in the S.U.B. at 7, 8:45, and 10:30)

THE HARDER THEY COME++++

Powerful drama of racial strife, starring singer Jimmy Cliff. Audiences everywhere have supported this sleeper depicting a young man unjustly harassed by the American system. You can tell because it's been playing for over a year at the art theatres in Boston. (C.C.A., 4-5, 7, 9, and 11)

KNIFE IN THE WATER+++

Roman Polanski's first feature film, about a hitchhiker who is taken aboard a middle-aged couple's boat for a vacation. Has some compelling scenes of torment, but nowhere near the delicious perversity always inherent in Polanski's later works. Presented by Amherst Film Co-op next Tuesday, 4-8.

LENNY++++

Dustin Hoffman's finest two hours as Lenny Bruce, the dead comic who is more famous today than most of the living ones. Bob Fosse directs in a black-and-white documentary style designed to fill in unaware viewers on the basic highs and lows of Bruce's life and wife (Valerie Perrine). Chock full of excellently re-told routines, hysterical human situations, and alternately depressing ones. (Showcase Cinemas and Mountain Farms Four).

LORD OF THE FLIES++++

William Golding's story about English schoolboys stranded on an island who are forced to establish their own society. Peter Brooks' film is true to the novel and visually paralyzing, as the "society" breaks down to a savage world of power struggle and death. It is a story many of us read in high school, and you owe it to yourself to take in this superb screen version. (S.U.B., 4-6, 7 and 10:30)

SHAMPOO++

The first film about a hairdresser features Warren Beauty as the scissorstud who keeps his customers after shop hours. Julie Christie, Goldie Hawn, and Lee Grant play his girlfriends in this tight, nicely photographed, but incredibly overrated saga of adultery, sex before marriage (ye gads!), and other assorted hot combs. (Showcase Cinemas)

THE STING++++

Drama about a neurotic bee who can't get it in. Stars Newman and Redman. (Mountain Farms Four)

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT+++

It is? I guess so, but only if you can appreciate what the old musicals had to offer us, via Gene Kelly, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, and other stage stormers. But if you really want to see a musical you should check out Tommy instead. (Campus Cinemas)

THUNDERBOLD AND LIGHTFOOT+

Another Clint Eastwood gut-churning, real balls adventure about safecrackers who crack more jokes than safes. Jeff Bridges also stars to add a little finesse to the production, but even if you're not a steel-eater you might enjoy this, but notice I said MIGHT. (C.C.A., 4-4, 6:45, 9, and 11:15)

A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE++++ etc.

John Cassavetes' masterpiece of human emotion, detailing the nervous breakdown of a suburban housewife. Her relationships to her husband and children are laid bare, and with one realistic character after another drifting in and out of the crisis-haunted rooms, you feel you are living inside their very brains. Gena Rowlands, Cassavetes' wife, plays Mabel Longhetti so expertly; a symbol for oppressed womanhood and overall conflict, she has created a terrifying mask of melancholia, capable of carving its own niche into the list of convincing acting performances. Peter Falk, as her husband, Nick, is fascinating to watch, as he struggles vigorously to protect his love and balance the reactions of his friends simultaneously. Cassavetes' screenwriting, cinematography, everything is superbly rendered. Never have I seen a film which could hypnotically absorb me for its longer-than-average length. And it holds the record for viewers kept paralyzed in their seats at the completion: I counted roughly two-thirds of the audience. This is not simply a woman under the influence, but a portrayal of a diseased situation where the entire world is under some kind of influence, some kind of pressure. It is a work of art. (Campus Cinemas)

5-COLLEGE FILMS

AMHERST COLLEGE — Merrill Science Center

The Savages (4-3, 4 and 7 p.m.); Amherst Film Co-op; Alice Adams with Katherine Hepburn (4-4, 7:30 and 9:30) Truffaut: Stolen Kisses (4-4, 4-5, 4-6, 8 and 10)

HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE — Franklin Patterson Hall

Kubrick: Dr. Strangelove (4-3, 7:30 p.m.); Rene Clair: A Nous La Liberte and Woody Allen: What's Up Tiger Lily? (4-6, 7:30)

MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE — Gamble Auditorium

Gone With the Wind (4-4, 4-5, 4-6, 2 and 7:30 p.m.)

SMITH COLLEGE — Sage Hall

The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds (4-5, 7:30)

LOCAL MUSIC (April 3-9)

Luther Johnson — Worcester Dining Commons, Apr. 5 ($2, 9 p.m.)
Mitch Chakour and the Mission Band — Rusty Nail (Sunderland), Apr. 5,6
Fat — Mt. View Frolics (Chicopee), Apr. 3-5
Bill Colwell—Big Screamin' McGrew — Hatch, Apr. 4,5
Real Tears — Rusty Nail (Sunderland) Apr. 3,4
Artie Traum — Leon Cooper — Chelsea House Cafe and Folklore Center (W. Brattleboro, Vt.) Apr. 4,5
Hound Dog Taylor — Hide-A-Way (Granby) Apr. 4,5
Luther Johnson — Tobacco Shed (Whately), Apr. 4 Widespread Depression — Lazy River (Northampton), Apr. 3-6
Mitch Chakour — 5th Alarm (Springfield), Apr. 9
Beverly Rohlehr — Lazy River, Apr. 8,9
Forest — Bluewall, Apr. 4,5
Cricket Hill — 5th Alarm (Springfield), Apr. 3-6
Seagull — Tobacco Shed, Apr. 5
Night Hawks — Bluewall, Apr. 3
Aces & Eights — Hotel Monat (Holyoke), Apr. 3-6
East Wind — Rusty Nail, Apr. 7
Bones For Tucker — Steak Out, Apr.
Mad Angel — 4 Leaf Window (New Salem) Apr. 3-5
Big Screamin' McGrew — Rusty Nail, Apr. 9
Bruce MacKay — Red Pantry (Belchertown), Apr. 6
Pzazz Dixieland Jazzband — T.O.C., Apr. 3-5
Buck — Henry VIII (Springfield), Apr. 6-8
Crazy Daze — Carriage Lounge (Westfield), Apr. 4,5
Shadow Fox — Lakeview Inn (Southwick), Apr. 4,5
Jokers — 5th Alarm, Apr. 7,8
Bridge Street — Bernardston Inn (Bernardston Ctr.) Apr. 4
May Apple — Rusty Nail, Apr. 8

CONCERTS

(T — indicates Tickets on sale at CC Hotel)

UMASS

M'Boom (re:percussion) — Apr. 7, Bowker Aud.

AMHERST COLLEGE

(all music at Gerald Penny Memorial Black Culture Center)

Bill Saxon Quartet — Apr. 5, 9 p.m.
Unsung Heroes — Apr. 12, 9 p.m.
Sound Revolution — Apr. 19, 4 p.m.
David Wave Trio — Apr. 26, 9 p.m.

SPRINGFIELD

Johnny Winter — James Cotton Band — April 11, Civic Center T
John Denvers — April 15, Civic Center, T
Tony Orlando & Dawn — May 2, Civic Center
Aerosmith — April 25, Civic Center T
Lou Reed — String Driven Thing — May 4, Civic Center T
James Taylor — May 17, Civic Center 6 13 & 14 (sold out)

WEST HARTFORD

David Bromberg Band — Aztec 2 Step — Jayne Olderman — Apr. 12, Music Hall

SOUTHEASTERN MASS. UNIVERSITY, NOTH DARTMOUTH

Herbie Hancock—Richie Havens, April 6, Gym

CAPE COD COLISSEUM

Paul Anka — April 24
Boston Pops — May 20, Tentative

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Labelle — April 5, Palace
John Denver — April 17, Civic Center Sold Out
Seals & Crofts — April 19, Civic Center
Ike & Tina Turner — April 24, Civic Center
Frank Zappa — April 26, Palace
Tony Orlando — April 30, Civic Center
Aerosmith — May 3, Civic Center
Frankie Valle — May 10, Civic Center
James Brown — May 11, Civic Center
Frank Sinatra — May 12, Civic Center
Boston Pops — May 18, Civic Center
J. Geils Band — May 24, Civic Center

BOSTON

Ray Manzarek — April 3-6, Paul's Mall
Rahassan Roland Kirk — April 3-6, Jazz Workshop
The Staple Singers — April 3-6, Sugar Shack (Two Shows — 10 & 1)
Chris Smither—Ina May Wool Band—Rachel Faro—Oregon — April 4, Sanders Theatre
Orchestra Luna — Ralph Graham — April 6, Jordon Hall — Cambridge (Benefit)
Legion of Mary — (Jerry Garcia, Merl Saunders, et. al.) — April 6, Orpheum T (Two Shows — 7 & 10)
Labelle — April 6, Music Hall T
Jerry Lee Lewis — John Lincoln Wright & The Sour Mash Boys — April 6,7 Ramada Inn, Logan Airport (Two Shows, 8 & 11)
Kraftwork — April 7, Paul's Mall
Kenny Rankin — April 7-10, Jazz Workshop
Waylon Jennings — Tracy Nelson & Mother Earth — April 8, Harvard Square Theatre (Two Shows 7 & 10)
Miles Davis — April 8-13, Paul's Mall
Bobby Blue Band — April 7-13, Sugar Shack
Little Feat — Allen Toussant — April 11, Orpheum T
Charles Mingus & Friends — April 11, Symphony Hall
Supertramp — April 12, Orpheum T
John Prine — April 12, Symphony Hall
Passport — April 14, Paul's Mall
Jose Feliciano — April 14, Harbour House Hotel
Ecstasy, Passion & Pain — April 14-20, Sugar Shack
Aerosmith — April 18, Boston Garden T
B.B. King—The Persuasions — April 18, Roberts Center, Boston College
Robin Trower — April 20, Music Hall T
The Main Ingredient — April 21-27, Sugar Shack
Lou Reed — String Driven Thing— April 24, Music Hall T
Alice Cooper — Suzi Quatro — April 26, Boston Garden T (On sale April 5)
Frank Zappa — Roy Buchanan — April 27, Music Hall, T (Two Shows 7 & 10)
Creative Source — April 28-May 4, Sugar Shack

M'BOOM

The University of Massachusetts Arts Council will present one of the most electrifying musical groups to come upon the American scene in many years. "M'BOOM re: percussion," Monday, April 7, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The group has been called a new, rare and most provocative dimension in percussion composition. In its European debut last year, M'BOOM performed to standing room only audiences in Holland, Belgium and on the French Riviera. M'BOOM's versatility and melodic sounds of complex multi-rhythms can be best described as music of the African continuum.

The group was founded in the summer of 1970 in New York City by six of the country's most gifted percussionist-composer arrangers. Roy Brooks has performed and recorded with Horace Silver, Yusef Lateef, Charles Mingus, James Moody, Wes Montgomery, Sonny Stitt, and teaches privately on the faculty of the Harlem Music Center.

Omar Clay's credits include performing and recording with Sarah Vaughn, Roberta Flack, Dionne Warwick. He teaches in the New York City Public School System and is one of the staff at the Third Street Music Settlement. Freddie Waits, who has performed and recorded with Ivory Joe Hunter, Percy Mayfield, Stevie Wonder, Ray Bryant, Sonny Rollins, Donald Byrd, Lena Horne, Lee Morgan, Melba Moore, teaches and gives percussion clinics and seminars in the New York City Public School System.

Joe Chambers has performed and recorded with Eric Dolphy, Freddie Hubbard, Herbie Hancock, and Archie Shepp. He is currently teaching at the Harlem Music Center.

Warren Smith performs and records in all phases of African-American Music as well as Broadway shows and TV and radio. He was worked with Aretha Franklin, Nat "King" Cole, Sammy Davis, Jr., Sam Rivers, Harry Belafonte and many others. He also teaches at the State University of New York at Old Westbury. Max Roach, professor of music at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, has toured Africa, the Middle East, the Far East, Europe and the United States extensively. A giant in Black music, Roach has played with Charlie Parker, Bud Powell, Clifford Brown and Sonny Rollins, has led his own groups and is a composer and teacher.

Roy Brooks

Tickets are now on sale at the UMass Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, (Tel. 545-0202) and are priced at $4 and $3 for the general public, one-half price for UMass-Amherst students. Special group rates may be arranged. The performance is part of the Third World Cultural Series.

Locals propose transient exclusion

By JUNE VALLIERE
Staff Reporter

"Transients should not be town meeting members," said six Amherst residents who sent a list of Precinct I town meeting candidates, indicating the transients, to all voters in the district.

Clarence Parsons, 451 Montague Road, who initiated the petition, said "Transients who have been here for only three or four years usually do not have the same interest in the town as people who are heavy tax payers and who have been here for many years." He said transients, many of them students, do not have a background on issues that are being discussed at the town meeting since they have not been living here long enough. He cited the four and three tenth apportionment of the tax budget as an example of an area in which he thought students had no knowledge.

The petition, sent yesterday to Precinct I voters, listed the name, address, age, and occupation, when available, of each candidate. The information was obtained from a 1974 Street list. "NOT LISTED IN 1974" was printed next to the names of all transient members in bold capital letters. "We think Town Meeting members should not be transients. Please study this list carefully and Vote Tuesday, April 8, 1975" appeared at the bottom of the list. The petition was signed by Clarence Parsons, Marion Southwick, Theodore Johnson, Maurice Bates, Nancy Ruder, and Walt Jones, all Precinct I members.

"Qualified and informed voters will not be swayed by this list," said Mark Levitan, member of the Progressive Candidate Party. He said that this petition would "turn more people off," rather than encouraging them not to vote for transients. Even if it did convince taxpayers, it would have little

Turn to page 16

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 41 AMHERST, MA FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1975

Chilean resistance singers regale 1500 in SUB

By DOROTHY L. MULLER
Staff Reporter

Quilapayun, the internationally known Chilean singers of resistance to the Junta, were greeted by a crowd of more than 1500 people at last night's concert shouting, "Venceremos, we shall overcome, and Chile, Si!, Junta, no!"

Ramon Lugo, the representative of the Puerto Rican Socialist Party introduced the group declaring the party's solidarity with the singers of resistance. "We in Puerto Rico find ourselves in the same situation which the Chileans experienced. We are in open confrontation of a small number of elite exploiters. We represent the super-exploited workers that are shouting, "Basta ya. (It is enough!)"

Quilapayun, which is an Araucanian name meaning, "three bearded men," opened and closed the performance to a standing ovation. They sang the Cancion Nueva (new song) which has its roots in indian folklore and political oppression. The Quilapayun have lived in exile since the takeover of the Junta. Their concert last night, sponsored by the Five College Chilean Resistance Group, was delayed two weeks when the U.S. State Department denied them Visas, although Quilapayun is an internationally known group.

The group said, "The Cancion Neuva and even the instruments used to play it are forbidden in Chile by the 'intellects' of the Junta. One of the beginners of the Cancion Nueva, Victor Jara, was tortured and murdered at the hands of the Chilean Junta."

"I sing for a far strip of country narrow but endlessly deep. In the earth in which we begin in the earth in which we end brave songs will give birth to a song which will always be new."

Quilapayun also sang a poem written by Pablo Neruda on the fate of Chile.

"Chile, blood drenched Chile.
Chile, will always be united Chile, it will fight against the tyrant. Chile, it will never be defeated.

On the betrayed earth of our country. Drop after drop the red will come to be."

Quilapayun sang of resistance, a song by Black Slaves in the seventh century. "We want to demonstrate that resistance has international antecedants."

"The white man has a balcony in his pretty wooden house
The black man owns a straw hut with a single wall of mud.
And even if my boss kills me I'm not going to the mind.
I see the sad eyes of my woman by God's hand never touched

And seeing my children's hunger I asked myself... why us?"

Staff photos by Rob Carlin

QUILAPAYUN PERFORMING — Top: The ensemble performs in last night's concert in the Student Union Ballroom. Bottom left and right: Individual members play wind and percussion instruments.

WSYL DJ suspended after controversial 'joke'

By SAMUEL HASSAN
Staff Reporter

Sylvan Area Radio Station WSYL is awaiting notification from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) after a controversial broadcast that has resulted in the suspension of one disc jockey for the duration of the semester according to Station Manager Michael Narkewicz.

Dean Collotta, one of WSYL's sixty disc jockeys allegedly made a broadcast at 11:45 Wednesday night that said Henry Kissinger was assassinated in Washington, D.C. Listeners were advised to turn on their television sets for further information, according to a source that wished to remain anonymous.

Collotta has not said whether he was directly responsible for the broadcast or not, but does confirm that it was made.

Shortly after the broadcast approximately twenty calls were made to the station, some friendly and others which included threats of assault according to Collotta.

The source indicated that a retraction of the initial statement was made five minutes after its broadcast saying the report of Kissinger's assassination was untrue and intended as a belated April Fool's joke.

Two other similar retractions of the initial statement were made within thirty minutes the source said.

Collotta went off the air at 1 a.m. and returned to his Brown residence where he was, "barraged with calls until 3 a.m.,' he said.

At 5 a.m. yesterday, the Campus Police called Collotta and informed him that they had received various complaints about the broadcast he allegedly made.

At 11 a.m. Collotta went to Dickinson Hall and saw UMass Police Captain Robert J. Joyce and Detective Phillip J. Cavanaugh who told him that formal complaints had been made and that the sources would not be revealed.

He was also told by Police that word of the complaints had been forwarded to the FCC in Boston.

Turn to page16

Viet collapse unexpected, tragedy avoidable -Ford

Compiled from Wires

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — The deteriorating situation in Indochina is "a great tragedy... that could have been avoided," President Ford said yesterday, but "at the moment I do not anticipate the fall of South Vietnam."

Speaking of his "frustration" over limits holding back his freedom of action, Ford nevertheless said "I am an optimist."

Ford spent the largest share of a 40-minute nationally broadcast news conference dealing with South Vietnam and Cambodia. While describing himself as an optimist, he constantly talked of the events there as a tragedy.

Speaking of the congressional moves over the past three years limiting the use of American military force and restricting the amount of aid to Indochina, Ford said, "I must say that I'm frustrated by the actions of Congress... by the limitations placed on the chief executive."

In response to a direct question, the President declined to blame Congress specifically for the near loss of Cambodia and the increasing poor situation in South Vietnam.

"I think it's up to the American people to pass judgment on who was to blame and where the fault lies," Ford said. But, he went on:

"I think it's a great tragedy what we're seeing in Vietnam today. I think it could have been avoided."

Turn to page 4

inside

● Bromery says UMass should try to improve its image - page 2

● Agencies investigating the School of Ed won't comment - page 6

weather

Said Noah to the animals, after the flood:

"I can see for miles, and most of it's mud.

"There's enough wind here to split a sail,

"And there might be some snowflakes, or even hail."

Speaking yesterday in his office, Chancellor Randolph Bromery said he was in favor of the UMass quality of education.

According to Bromery

UMass should try to improve image

By HILLARY MARTICK
Staff Reporter

The University should try to improve its public image so that taxpayers might make a greater investment in public higher education, Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said yesterday.

Bromery, in a Collegian interview, supported the idea of having a quality system of public higher education. He praised the quality of education offered at UMass.

"There is some feeling out there that public institutions of higher education should take people who can't get into private schools. Not only is that nonsense, but it is also the reversal of how I think," he said.

The Chancellor continued, "I think the common man needs a high quality education more than the son or daughter of a Rockefeller. Not only can they get that education here, but it's even of a better quality than we here on this campus think it is."

When asked about his feelings about former Dean Dwight W. Allen and the recent School of Ed scandal, Bromery said, "Dean Allen was more concerned about the end results and not about the process he used to get there. I think he created an environment that a lot of people got into difficulty over. He could deal with it and they couldn't.

Bromery added, "We agreed on educational change and that the present structure and system of education in the U.S. left a lot to be desired. The changes Allen made have benefitted the educational system of this country and the School of Ed. The way he made those changes has impacted negatively on the School of Ed community as well as on individuals."

Regarding faculty unionization, Bromery said, "I think a union is only necessary if the faculty perceives they need a union to get what they want. I think they can get what they want without one."

"The moment you get into a union-management relationship there's a whole set of rules that govern your relationship. I think it's going to change the environment here," he added.

Bromery expressed dissatisfaction with the impact the present parking situation has on the environment.

"I'm not going to let all those people come in here and gas me to death with their cars," he said. "Automobiles are dangerous to your health and to the economic independence of this country (i.e. oil and the Middle East.")

"My solution is to get on the bus or walk. The answer is for people to abide by their stickers. It's not towing and the lack of parking spaces that is the problem but the people who want to park next to their classrooms. We're trying to hook up with the Pioneer Valley Mass Transit system in an effort to improve mass transit throughout the valley," Bromery continued.

Addressing himself to the direction the University should take in the next several years, Bromery said, "I'm very concerned as we pass into these austere financial times that a lot of things that make this University different and a good University should be preserved. The reason it's pretty damn good is that we've moved a long way in terms of such things as the affirmative action program in bringing in quality faculty to UMass, and in teaching the middle economic sector. What we have to do is protect what we have and build on quality, fight to keep costs down, and try to keep tuition as low as possible."

Academic council approves food curriculum

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

The Academic Matters Council of the Faculty Senate approved last night a bill which may institute an undergraduate curriculum in Food Engineering next semester. If upheld by the entire Faculty Senate and the Provost, it will be the first undergrad program in Food Engineering in the country.

By an 8-6 vote, the council approved the bill presented by professors H.G. Swartzberg and Joseph T. Clayton. The council made the vote after a report was compiled by a council ad hoc committee which detailed the proposer's steps in implementing such a curriculum.

Although the bill was passed, Clayton said "because of the closeness of the vote, it (the vote) will have an adverse effect on the chances of getting it approved (by the entire Faculty Senate)." Clayton added that the reasons six council members voted negatively were unrelated to the real issue. He said their reasons must be explained before the entire Faculty Senate if there is any hope for the bill to survive the final vote.

The council approved the bill despite a Provost's office recommendation to dismiss the bill. A statement from Provost Gluckstern's office said "a program in Food Engineering does not show student interest or demand." The Provost's office suggested a curriculum develop through an existing program such as BDIC or Chemical Engineering.

The School of Engineering also disapproved of the bill. The school's executive committee charged that the program is "very narrowly focused, and would be one which is not in the best interests of those students who would enroll."

Dean Spielman, College of Food and Natural Resources, supports an undergraduate curriculum in Food Engineering and is "anxious for its (final) approval."

Clayton and Swartzberg believe the program is "a strong one which will provide needed expertise in the area of food engineering...a need which exists both in this country and abroad."

At the council's next meeting April 17, an ad hoc committee will report on whether the Rhetoric Program will remain as an independent unit of the university or whether the program be dissolved to other departments in the university. If it is voted to disintegrate the Rhetoric Program, one of the university Rhetoric requirements will be eliminated.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	BJ Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson
Associate Editors
Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth
Business
Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas
Issue Editor	Walt Powers
Layout and Graphics	Ron Chait, Bill Mills
Editorial Layout	Benita Pullara, Mike Izdepski, Glen Calmus
Sports Layout	Chas O'Connor
Darkroom Staff	Chris Bourne, Bob Stevens,
Ad Layout	Avis Yuni

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

Corker says CC fee to stay at $64

By FRED NOBLES
Staff Reporter

Campus Center Director John Corker said yesterday there will be no increase in the Campus Center fee next year and that it may be possible to hold the fee at its current $64 yearly level for the next two to four years.

Corker made the announcement at last night's Board of Governors meeting, adding it will be necessary to trim $100,000 from the preliminary Campus Center 1976 budget to hold the fee at its present level.

Asked by board member John Hays if a budget cut of that size was possible, Corker said that it definitely was. The board is currently reviewing budget proposals for the Campus Center operation for the coming year.

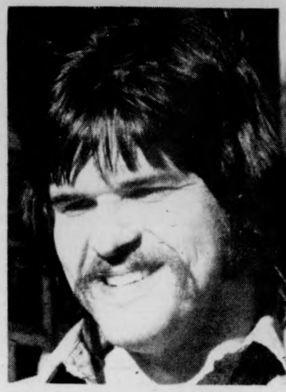
UMass Music Theatre Guild presents

GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S PIRATES of PENZANCE

APRIL 3, 4, 5 at 8pm APRIL 6 at 3:30 pm
BOWKER AUD, Stockbridge Hall, U.M.
$2.00 students & under 18 $2.50 others
Tickets go on sale March 17 at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter

545-0202
reservations and information

Savini, Dukakis meeting to concern education budget cut, related issues



Rick Savini

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

Student Government Association President Rick Savini said yesterday he will meet with Governor Michael Dukakis and Secretary of Education Paul Parks April 17 at the Governor's office to discuss issues on public higher education.

"At least five weeks ago," Savini contacted the Governor's office to arrange the meeting, but because of "scheduling problems" the two leaders have not been able to synchronize connections until yesterday.

Representative Jim Collins, (D-Amherst), acting as a middle man between Savini and Dukakis, said the Governor has been "looking forward" to meeting with Savini.

Dukakis is scheduled to visit the UMass campus May 5, but Savini said he'd rather meet with the Governor before the May date to let the Governor know "where we (students) stand." Savini said he does not want to have a "confrontation". with the Governor, but "just to let him kmow how the budget cut and other related issues affect the students."

Parks proposed recently to cut the public higher education budget 10 per cent. His action was questioned by Savini and UMass President Robert C. Wood. "I'm perplexed at the secretary's reasoning," Wood said. Wood and Savini believe a 10 per cent budget cut cannot be made without affecting the university's academics and eliminating student programs.

Savini hopes to discuss this matter with the Governor, and overall, "to discuss public higher education in the state of Massachusetts."

Dukakis was not available for comment last night.

Five College proposal

Deans consider resident exchange

By NANCY DAWSON
Staff Reporter

The Five College Student Coordinating Board (FCSCB) is planning to meet with the Deans of Students at all five colleges to discuss a residential exchange proposal recently submitted by the board.

The meeting should occur "hopefully within the next two weeks," according to Susan Kerins, Smith College representative to the FCSCB.

She said the Deans "basically agree" with the proposal, which states that "residential exchange would offer the alternative to live at another college while not totally losing contact with the home institution...Living at another school, students not only benefit from sharing the resources of that college, but also contribute a varied perspective and spirit to the host campus."

Kerins spoke of UMass Dean Field as being "very optimistic" in considerations about the propose change.

Brenda Goodman, a Smith College representative to the FCSCB in 1974, originated the idea of a residential exchange. She explained that "This exchange offers students an opportunity to expand the Five College sharing of academic, cultural and social activities by allowing them to participate actively in the living environment."

Kerins said the response of the Five College Deans at the time was "If you can prove sufficient student interest, we're willing to give it a try."

A poll consisting of seven questions was sent out to all the colleges in October. An FCSCB report of the results from this questionnaire indicated "Over 90 percent of the students polled agreed that residential exchange would augment Five College cooperation." The report also noted "that less than ten percent of the student body was reached at each college."

Hampshire College did not respond at first, Kerins said. But following a repeated attempt to determine interest at this school, students were shown to "unanimously favor the option of an exchange."

"The problem here is that no one really wants to leave Hampshire," said Kerins.

Another problem encountered was one of equal tuition. Since UMass is a state institution, its tuition is cheaper than that of the other four private colleges.

"It's very important to have a free exchange," Kerins said. "That's the nature of Five College cooperation."

She said it was decided to have the student on exchange pay the tuition of his home institution, while room and board would be paid to the host institution.

She said the next step in affairs after meeting with the deans will be to establish a selection board of one student representative from each of the five colleges and one administrative representative of the dean of students' office from each college.

"As soon as the selection committee is set up," Kerins said, "Five College will clear out." She emphasized that residential exchange "will not be run by FCSCB."

"All we're responsible for is getting it started and providing publicity," she said. "Basically we won't be involved in exchange selection at all."

Selection will be up to the students primarily. Kerins said that the administrations "do not want selection to go through an office."

The FCSCB hopes that the realization of a residential exchange will come about next spring.

Staff Photo by Bob Stevens

IT'S POURRRRING! Branch in foreground sprouts berries of rain while students squeeze into bus outside of Hasbrouck. The Morrill Weather observatory reported the barometric pressure of 955 millibars at 3 p.m. yesterday was lowest ever recorded on that date, and that over two inches of rain had fallen by that time.

Whitmore may repeal 21-year dorm regulation

By LARRY KORNFELD
Staff Reporter

The administration is considering repealing the rule that exempts students over 21-years-old from the dorm residency requirement, according to Ken Dean, acting Director of Residential Life.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said, "We're in discussion with the Student Senate on this. It's just part of the ongoing discussion that will be going on through the summer and into the fall."

Dan Fitzpatrick, associate dean of student affairs, said, "The consideration there is from legal council. It's sort of a response to a law suit filed by the Student Organizing Project."

"If the system stays mandatory, it will have to be looked at by legal council to see if this is viable (keeping the same residency requirement). It may be viable," said Fitzpatrick.

Vice-Chancellor Robert Gage is out of town for a convention and not available for comment.

Asked when a decision will be made on this Fitzpatrick said, "The only thing I can say for sure is, for billing purposes we must make a decision some time in the middle of the late part of April."

The change in the residency requirement will not affect seniors or married students.

As to the rent increase Dean said: "Seventy dollars is as good a figure as any."

Dean described the probability of non-mandatory dining commons as "fifty-fifty." He said a decision will be made over the weekend.

The administration has set a target date of April 10 for submitting its budget to Wood's office, but Dean said he will announce his proposed budget to the Residential Life Board on the 8th.

Arthur Warren, director of Food Services said he doesn't think the chances of the D.C.s going voluntary are very good. He said the outside companies brought in to tour the D.C.s recommended keeping the system mandatory.

Outside companies might be brought in to help run the D.C.s only if they go voluntary according to Dean.

The Rents and Fees Committee of the Student Senate is totally opposed to any rent increase according to its chairman, John Marcineac.

"If they tighten up the manditory thing the exemption process is going to be horrendous," Marceniac said.

"I think you'll see the same residency requirement as we already have," said Ken Somers, chairman of the universal fee task force.

Fitzpatrick said, "The whole damn thing (Residential Life situation) is a swamp of conflicting information."

Warren said if the D.C.s go voluntary, food services will need "a lot less staff." However, he pointed out that a seven-day meal program would offset that somewhat.

Asked whether food services will use more convenience foods, he said, "I'm totally against convenience foods whether we've got the same staff or not." Convenience foods are foods prepared by outside companies and delivered frozen to this campus.

Demands for Thieu overthrow sweep Saigon

Shoot-to-kill orders mandated for city

SAIGON, South Vietnam [AP] – Calls for the quick overthrow of President Nguyen Van Thieu swept Saigon yesterday as his government issued shoot-to-kill orders to maintain security in the capital and 50,000 Communist-led troops massed only 45 to 55 miles away.

The Viet Cong said they had taken the district town of Chon Thanh, 45 miles north of Saigon, after weeks of heavy siege, and Hanoi radio said action had been taken to "punish diehard commanders" in Tuy Hoa, the capital of coastal Phu Yen Province that fell Wednesday. No details of the punishment were given, but the broadcast indicated some aspects of the takeover of Tuy Hoa were bloody.

Calls for an anti-Thieu coup coincided with the first open attack on the president by the country's ranking Roman Catholic, Saigon Archbishop Nguyen Van Binh. Thieu, a Catholic himself, up until six months ago had counted on the two million Catholics in South Vietnam for his only substantial popular support.

Volunteer agencies trying to airlift Vietnamese orphans to the United States from South Vietnam, now three-quarters controlled by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, appealed to the U.S. government for an airlift of jumbo jets. "I don't want my babies to die," one Vietnamese mother wailed.

In other Indochina developments:

– President Ford said in San Diego, Calif., that despite serious and dramatic setbacks in Vietnam, "No allies or time-tested friends of the United States should worry or fear that our commitments to them will not be honored ... We stand ready to defend ourselves and support our allies as surely as we always have."

– Saigon's representatives at the United Nations said the American people had closed their eyes, ears and consciences to the plight of South Vietnam, but appealed to them not to close their hearts to the "human tragedy."

– Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., in a television appearance in Washington, called for a temporary cease-fire to provide relief for thousands of refugees and urged President Ford to send an envoy to try to negotiate a new truce.

– Field reports said Cambodian government troops pushed back a new rebel bulge on Phnom Penh's northwest defense perimeter about eight miles from the center of the capital, and a government official claimed that thousands of soldiers and civilians previously feared lost were still holding out near fallen Neak Luong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

At a military checkpoint for buses north of Saigon, a refugee mother and her child are directed by a policeman. Refugees fleeing from the fighting in South Vietnam began reaching the capital city Tuesday.

Requests for orphans flood State Department

By United Press International

Thousands of Americans yesterday opened their hearts to South Vietnamese orphans and flooded agencies and the State Department with pleas to adopt one or more of the victims of war.

"The attitude seems to be 'Oh my God, these poor children, somebody has to take care of them'," said Mrs. Louise Cooper of the Miami Catholic Services Bureau.

As the Communists thrust deeper into South Vietnam, the gamble of saving the children has become almost an hour-by-hour agony.

At the United Nations, South Vietnam officials issued an appeal to the American people: "For God's sake, don't close your heart to the human tragedy of Vietnam."

"The situation is desperate," said Mrs. Sally Bergner, a coordinator of Friends for Children of Vietnam which arranged for Wednesday's airlift of 60 orphans from Saigon. "We don't know how long we'll continue to get cooperation from the South Vietnamese government.

"I'm sure they, the North Vietnamese would stop our support of the children. What they would do after that, I don't know..."

From coast-to-coast, families sat down together to decide if they could manage with another child at the dinner table.

Even First Lady Betty Ford, terming the predicament of the orphans "tragic, tragic," said she was so upset she would like to adopt one of them. She added, however, that with four children of their own, she doubts the President wants any more.

Cambodia halts Communist drive but another offensive expected

PHNOM PENH [UPI] -- Government reinforcements yesterday halted a Communist rebel breakthrough less than five miles from Phnom Penh, but a large new insurgent force was reported converging on the danger point.

Heavy fighting was reported continuing yesterday night in the penetration area on the capital's defense perimeter just 4.8 miles north of the city.

Despite the government containment of the initial rebel push, another force af about 2,000 Communist-led insurgents, some of them on bicycles, was reported moving Thursday toward the soft spot on the northern defense perimeter.

Official sources said government troops, supported by helicopters and armored personnel carriers, were preparing to drive into the see-saw battle.

Two planeloads of U.S. Embassy personnel and humanitarian workers, meanwhile, were flown to Bangkok Thursday after the embassy Wednesday decided to reduce its staff by about 15 per cent.

At Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport, where the evacuation planes were taking off, rebels shelled the airstrip with about 30 rockets, but the American supply airlift to the isolated capital continued.

Two Cambodian T28 propeller-driven bombers were hit by rockets and destroyed, the official sources said.

Ford says he does not expect fall of Vietnam 'at the moment'

cont. from p. 1

Without being specific, Ford then pointed to what he said were commitments made by the United States when the Paris peace agreements were signed in 1973.

"Unfortunately, we did not carry out" all the responsibilities the United States undertook then, in giving South Vietnam the aid allowed under the accords, Ford said.

In mid-1973 Congress banned the use of any American military force, direct or indirect, in Indochina, an action Ford said removed a "potential" deterrent to North Vietnamese aggression.

Over the last two years, Congress has cut back on administration requests for military aid, including a refusal to date to add $300 million to the $700 million appropriated for this fiscal year.

Ford refused to rule out the possibility of sending U.S. military forces into Saigon to pick up Americans if they become trapped there. He said he believed the new War Powers Act - limiting what a President can do militarily without a declaration of war - would permit at least that.

The President declined to assess blame for the sudden deterioration of the Saigon government's position in the last two weeks.

He noted, however, it started with the "unilateral decision" of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to withdraw from some northern provinces in the Central Highlands. The decision to withdraw, he said, "created a chaotic situation."

He was asked if he would call on Thieu to resign if he felt that would help save the situation.

No, said Ford, "I don't believe it's my prerogative to tell a head of state - elected by the people - to leave office."

NOW TWICE AS BIG
The Mercantile
CLOTHING GIFTS
CARDS POSTERS BEADS
11 E. PLEASANT ST. 549-1396
(Next Door to Where We Were)

APPLICATIONS

for the position of Affirmative Action Officer are available in the Student Attorney General's Office, 422 Student Union, for all interested undergraduates.

For job description and more information see Cindi Iris. Student Atty. Gen. Deadline for applications is Thursday, April 10th.

St. Regis Restaurant
28 Pleasant St., Northampton
Quality food at very reasonable prices. Also very comfortable surroundings.
A little place, with a LOT to offer.

Vermont gets nuclear power veto

Legislature can stop building of plants

MONTPELIER, Vt. [AP] – Despite personal objections to the measure, Gov. Thomas P. Salmon signed into law yesterday a bill giving the Vermont General Assembly final say on the construction of nuclear power plants in the state.

"I hope no Vermonter, indeed no American, regards this decision as a nuclear moratorium. It is not a nuclear moratorium. It is a bill requiring a greater public presence in a critical public policy area. No one in public office should misconstrue the duty to consider for the power to postpone," Salmon told newsmen.

The measure received strong support in the legislature, which finished work on it Monday.

The bill had 45 House sponsors and passed that chamber on a vote of 106-39. The Senate voted 20-10 in favor of it.

The governor opposed the bill when it was in the legislature, arguing the final say on nuclear power plant construction should rest with the executive branch.

Salmon has also opposed President Ford's proposals to remove any state say in the siting of atomic plants.

Salmon said he considers the bill he signed to be on shaky legal ground, and promised to introduce amendments during the 1976 legislative session.

"This act is born out of the total frustration of Vermonters with rising electrical costs, their distrust of utilities and distrust of government or lack of an awareness of the capacity of our federal and state regulatory agencies to conduct the public review of nuclear siting on a basis compatible with society's interests," he said.

Salmon said the bill underscored for him the need for a single state department to handle energy matters, as well as the need to push for alternative energy sources.

Vermont has one nuclear power plant, Vermont Yankee at Vernon. Vermont Yankee President James E. Griffin told the legislature there were no plans to build additional plants in Vermont.

The measure would require an affirmative vote of the House and the Senate before a new atomic plant could be constructed.

Rhode Island has similar legislation, requiring legislative approval of atomic plants and oil refineries.

State House gives OK on death penalty bill

BOSTON [AP] – The Massachusetts House gave final approval yesterday to a bill that would reinstate the death penalty for nine categories of first degree murder.

The measure now goes to the Senate, where it also was expected to win approval.

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has promised to veto any death penalty bill and legislators do not expect the House and Senate to be able to override such a veto. Similar vetoes have stood up in the past two years.

The current Massachusetts capital punishment statute has not been considered constitutional since 1972, when the U.S. Supreme Court struck down most death penalty statutes because they were administed arbitrarily.

The current bill attempts to remove any arbitrary application of the law by making it mandatory in the following types of first degree murder:

Murder of a policeman or prison guard; murder during the course of an armed robbery or during a breaking and entering; murder during a kidnap, hijacking, rape or sexual assault; murder for pay; or murder with extreme cruelty.

An identical bill was enacted in both branches last year and vetoed by former Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

Connally paid $10,000 testifies Jacobsen

WASHINGTON [UPI] – Attorney Jack Jacobsen testified yesterday he paid former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally $10,000 in milk lobby money in 1971 and later conspired with Connally to cover up the payoffs.

Jacobsen, the star prosecution witness in Connally's bribery trial, stated the very heart of the government's case in testimony delivered under Connally's steady, scowling gaze. Connally has pleaded innocent and his defense has alleged Jacobsen is lying to save himself from further prosecution.

Led through his testimony by federal prosecutors on the third day of the trial, Jacobsen, an old friend of Connally's, touched all the bases of the government's allegations. Defense cross-examination begins Monday.

He said he paid Connally $10,000 in cash provided by the Associated Milk Producers Inc. in two installments, on May 14 and Sept. 24, 1971, as a reward for Connally's help in persuading President Richard M. Nixon to raise federal milk price supports.

"He told me how helpful he had been in getting the price support decision and that he understood AMPI was raising a lot of money for political contributions," Jacobsen, then an AMPI attorney, testified.

"He said in effect, why didn't I get them to raise a little money for him."

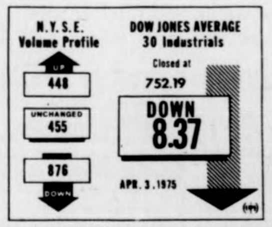
Unemployment hits 11% in Massachusetts

BOSTON [AP] – Unemployment hit 11 per cent in Massachusetts in February, 1.1 percentage points above the January rate.

The figures take account of seasonal variations.

Before adjustments for seasonal variations, according to the Thursday announcement from the Division of Employment Security, 11.9 per cent of the state's workers were unemployed in February compared to 9.9 per cent in January.

The agency reported that there were more than 320,000 persons unemployed in February, compared to some 276,000 without jobs in January.



news summary

Viet Orphans arrive

SAN FRANCISCO [UPI] – The first handful of Vietnamese war orphans brought to the U.S. in a save-the-children flight from Saigon climbed aboard planes yesterday for a new life far from the horrors of war.

Five of the 62 tiny refugees flown from besieged Vietnam spent the night with their companions in a makeshift nursery at a truck maintenance, shop of an Army base here, then flew to their new homes in the United States.

Officials refused to say where the children were going, but they and their companions, who had fled Saigon less than 24 hours before in a cargo plane, were the few lucky ones as their homeland neared collapse under Communist assault.

Gun bill advances

BOSTON [UPI] – Despite continued pressure from Massachusetts' powerful gun lobby, the House by a 2-1 margin yesterday overturned an unfavorable committee report and resurrected a measure banning the sale of Saturday Night Specials.

The Saturday Night Special bill, backed by Public Safety Committee House Chairman William Hogan, D-Everett, was the only one of six gun control measures to survive House debate.

Vietcong ask for aid

GENEVA [UPI] – The Viet Cong yesterday asked the International Red Cross and the United Nations for emergency aid for six million war refugees now under Communist control, the Red Cross announced. It said two million of the refugees were children.

The Viet Cong, now officially called the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, made its request to the Red Cross and the U.N. Children's Emergency Fund. It requested top priority for cloth, drugs and fortified foods.

9% jobless expected

WASHINGTON [UPI] – Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted yesterday the unemployment rate will reach 9 per cent this year but said recovery from the recession is coming on strong and fast.

His outlook contrasting with the heavy official gloom of two months ago, Simon said: "We are more certain about the recovery than we were any time in the past."

Air Force ROTC...The college scholarship program with sky-high benefits.
Some people might need to be coaxed with more than a full college scholarship to enroll in the Air Force ROTC Program. So, if free tuition, lab and incidental fees aren't enough... the Air Force offers a monthly allowance of $100.00, tax-free, in your junior and senior years, even if you are not on scholarship.
And flying lessons to those qualified provide the most exciting benefit of all. Interested?
Contact Air Force ROTC
At Dickinson Hall, Univ. of Mass. Call 5-2437
PUT IT ALL TOGETHER IN AIR FORCE ROTC

Friday
Happy Hour
3 — 6
with Doc Sullivan
9 — 1
The Fabulous D.J. playing oldies — sing-a-long dancing
Saturday
9 — 1
DISCOTHEQUE
with
All Dancing Music
NO COVER CHARGE
Sunday
Goodtime Hour
4 — 8
Hot Dogs 25¢
Popcorn 10¢
Qt. Pitchers of Budweiser
$1.25
THE PUB
EATING & DRINKING
AMHERST

HOW TO TURN ON YOUR CAR - AND NOT YOUR WALLET

Each fully warranteed...fully guaranteed - and each dollars off our regular low prices. And each Pioneer reconditioned... and if we didn't tell you, you'd never know it.

EXAMPLE 1. of our turn on values:
PIONEER TP-800 Deluxe 8-Track with FM Stereo- illuminated indicators, fast forward- volume, balance, tone controls.
Regularly $129.95
Sale price $90.00

Not Pictured (But same as TP-800 without FM Stereo) Pioneer TP-828
Regularly $89.95
Sale $61.00

Pioneer KP-333 Auto-Reverse Cassette Player (fits in glove compartment) Regularly $79.95
Sale $49.97

And here's our Pioneer TP-232
Mini 8-Track - automatic and manual track change.
Regularly $49.95 Special sale priced at only $36.00

AND two non-auto PIONEER 8-Track values:

HR-99 Pioneer 8-Track Record/Playback Deck automatic, manual track change... pause, fast forward, time counter... 2 VU meters... walnut finished cabinet.
Regularly $169.95
Sale $118.00

H-2000 Pioneer 8-Track AM/FM Stereo System, 8 watts RMS power output, B.S.R. 4800 Turntable with base, dust cover, cartridge, 2 speakers.
Regularly $209.90
Sale $165.00

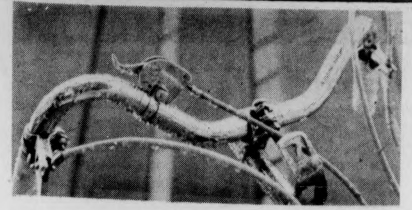
Seiden Sound/Lafayette

With 8 stores - 79 Central Avenue, Albany, 462-9501; Latham Shopping Center, 783-9301; Northway Mall 459-7550; Erie Blvd, Schenectady, 346-6111; Upper Glen Street, Glens Falls, 792-9992; 1415 Oriskany, Utica, 732-2166; 42 Summer Street, Pittsfield, 499-1420; 15 East Pleasant St, Amherst, 549-1105.

American Express Master Charge and BankAmericard Welcomed

rain.

Text by Jim Paulin



Conlon

The rain clouds charged into the valley like advancing chariots, bombing the earth with puddles. Legions of puddles infiltrated the campus landscape, creating an archipelago.

Cars drove through puddles, spraying sheets of water onto the sidewalk like a water skier with a slalom ski.

Athletic fields became cleat resisting sponges.

A professor mumbled that classes should have been canceled.

Eyeglasses yearned for windshield wipers.

People ran from building to building.

Rain is inspirational--for late sleeping.

Sopping shoes sought sultry radiators.

Stevens

Stevens

The bus driver pleaded "have pity for these rain soaked people. PUSH BACK!" Students collectively grumbled: "fuckin' rain." Overheard from a long distance phone cal: "fuckin' raining like a bastard out here." The outdoors was generally viewed as a no mans land.

Psychology students, familiar with the concept of delayed gratification, profoundly realized: "April showers bring May flowers."

Our outstanding skyscrapers were partially obscured by fog. Viewed from a distance, they seemed detached from the present; eroded fantasies of yesterday, phosphorous ghost ships on the horizon about to fall off the edge of the Earth.

Aquatic umbrella bugs skated past the library.

Conlon

Conlon

Photos by Bob Stevens and Dennis Conlon

Election Forum

Statement by

Diana Romer

Candidate for Selectman,
Amherst Town elections

The University of Massachusetts is, in many ways, the dominant force that determines the character of Amherst. If our town government is to represent the needs and attitudes of all our residents, members of the university community (students, faculty and staff) must participate in town affairs.

Many students, and faculty members and staff are voting residents of Amherst. They must be encouraged to participate in town affairs as voters such as involvement by serving in town meeting and on town committees. My own particular concern has been to help those who are just beginning to get involved in political activities, to "learn the ropes", and to become effective in influencing the decisions of town government. Last month the League of Women Voters published a booklet, "Know Your Amherst Government". As chairman of the town finance committee, I helped to write the sections on finances and citizen participation and encouraged the League to see that the book is readily available in Town Hall and at the University. As finance committee chairman I have also helped individuals and groups to become involved in town affairs and to communicate their needs and feelings to the Town Meeting, the selectmen, and the school committee.

The University and town must achieve greater cooperation and coordination in matters of common concern — housing, public transportation, and human services, for example. It has been suggested that a joint student-staff-faculty-administration committee be formed to represent the university's interest and concerns to the town. Such a committee could act in an advisory capacity to the coordinator of community relations and might meet with the Amherst selectmen as the needs arise. The possibility of a joint committee with representatives of both the university *and*the town should be investigated.

Concerning Education

Loren S. Howell, Candidate for School Committee

The Amherst school system is known for its innovative modern forms of education. Yet many parents would like to see a more traditional approach to teaching the basic skills within our classrooms. These skills of communication and computation are not getting across to a good number of students. Slighting the purpose of educating a student in basics so that he or she will be able to function well in our society should not be tolerated.

Dealing with the school system budget is a difficult task. A balance must be found between available funds and desired funds. The taxpayer's pocket is not bottomless.

I feel that the amount of input to the school committee by the employees of the school system far outweighs the input by the parents and residents of Amherst. I would like to see a more active effort made to encourage all segments of the community to express their views to their elected representatives.

PCP people to answer questions
Rm. 903 CC 12 noon today

Vote on April 8th

OPEN HOUSE PARTY
Phi Mu Delta
featuring
The Smiling Washington Band
Sat. Night April 5
Frat.-Sor. Park Off East Pleasant St.

Hornfisher advocates more public awareness of school funding

By DAVID R. HORNFISCHER
School Committee Candidate

There is nothing that will highlight a communication problem between taxpayers and schools more than the threat of a large tax increase. The love affair in Amherst between schools and the public, though not over, was put to the test this year. For the first time in several years, the taxpayers told the schools they would not pay for everything the schools felt was worthwhile.

Vague statements by school staff couched in terms of "quality education" or some other educational jargon are no longer accepted as justification for fund requests. The public has asked for, and has a right to be told, what its tax dollar is producing in terms of educational programs. (eg-an expenditure of x thousand dollars for salaries, materials, and field trips will make it possible for 800 elementary school pupils in grades 4-6 to be exposed, in groups of 20, to a foreign language twice a week for one hour.)

If such explanations are not provided, the educational dollar becomes an unknown currency and as such, is subject to unrestrained growth or arbitrary cuts. The school budget must be presented in terms which are understandable to educators, taxpayers and parents. To improve communications between these groups, I believe it is essential that the budget be presented in a program format. This will show costs of programs (elementary foreign language, elementary math, regional high industrial arts, etc) as well as the traditional item format (salaries, travel, texts etc.). In addition to program costs, the budget should also show the numbers of students enrolled in each program, number of class sections, average class size and where possible, standard test results of those in the program.

I believe the teachers in our system want to serve the pupils and parents and that they are proud of their past accomplishments. It is important that their efforts (the way they spend their school day) be described to the public in the budget process. Some say teachers should spend more time teaching math and reading and enforcing classroom discipline. We must first determine the per cent of their effort spent currently on these activities; is it 40 per cent, 60 per cent, or 80 per cent? If we are to ask that it be increased, we must be ready to define what they shall do less of or be prepared to hire more staff.

In concluding, as a parent, citizen and, hopefully, as a future member of the School Committee, I feel that Amherst citizens are willing to support funds for public schools. Unless, however, the communication gap between taxpayers and school staff is reduced, we may face a crisis situation which will further reduce school staff morale and public confidence.

Dollars and cents do not come easy. Consumers of education want to know what they are buying. The budget is the document, that in the final analysis, represents the sales agreement between schools and taxpayers. A program format will improve understanding and help in making the difficult choices in the years ahead.

Robert J. Garvey, candidate for Town Selectman

I would like to see student representatives, representatives from the University, and town officials meet on a fairly regular basis, not just when faced with a crisis. This would give both sides an opportunity for reaction and input. I believe this is particularly important when the University develops policies which will have an impact on the town, or when the town develops policies that might affect University life.

DIANA ROMER
FOR SELECTMAN

Amherst Town Election — April 8.
Polls open noon to 8 p.m.

DIANA ROMER SUPPORTS:
— Continuation of a high level of citizen participation.
— Improved human services with the town acting as coordinator, outside agencies providing funds and services.
— SCOG goals on conservation and open space.
— Improved public transportation via transit authority.
— Measures to insure adequate housing for families and individuals at all income levels.
— Stabilizing the property tax at a level consistent with our ability to pay.

Sponsored by Pearl Claunch
27 Hills Rd., Amherst

CORNELL FOLK FESTIVAL '75 cornell university
barton hall, 8:00pm
FRIDAY-APRIL 18
• ARLO GUTHRIE
• TRACY NELSON & MOTHER EARTH
• JOHNY SHINES
• BRYAN BOWERS
• JIM ROONEY & PARTNERS IN CRIME

SAT. AFTERNOON
MINI-CONCERTS WORKSHOPS
SQUARE DANCE
CRAFTS FAIR

tickets: $6.50

SAT.-APRIL 19
• JAY & LYN UNGAR
• DAVID AMRAM
• FURRY LEWIS
• VASSAR CLEMENTS
• TOM PAXTON
• LOUDON WAINWRIGHT

*must be received by april 10

* ORDER FORM
IMPORTANT All mail orders must be sent to: P.O. BOX 907
ITHACA, N.Y., 14850
Please send me______ tickets for the folk festival. Enclosed please find $______.
ALL-FESTIVAL TICKET - $6.50 ea.
Make all money orders payable to: Willard Straight Hall.
A self-addressed, stamped envelope must accompany each order.
NAME ______
ADDRESS ______
CITY ______ STATE ______ ZIP ______

Officials pleased with local reaction to Kennedy Library

By FRED GOSIEWSKI
Staff Reporter

Dan Fenn, director of the John F. Kennedy library and Robert Burke, member of the JFK library corporation, yesterday visited UMass to assess community reaction to building the library in Amherst.

Burke, in an interview said he was encouraged by the reactions and that final decision on where to place the library will come "within sixty days."

"We're looking for reaction from all concerned students, faculty, residents of Amherst, South Hadley and of the Five College Area," Burke said.

Chancellor Randolph Bromery said, "I think there will be a positive reaction" to the library once people understand it.

Burke and Fenn, who came to Amherst at the request of Bromery, stressed that they were "seriously considering" Amherst for the location of the library.

Fenn and Burke spoke to a group of 20 faculty members and students in SBA. They included a slide demonstration on the details of a presidential library.

The library was originally scheduled to be built in Cambridge, but local opposition to the idea forced the library committees to look for another site. Residents of Cambridge initiated legal action to block the library, and Fenn said after the costs of legal battles that would have to be paid, they could build no more than "another Quonset hut."

Burke and Fenn are studying the area for the technical aspects of building the library here. Some of the problems that might arise would involve traffic congestion, parking, visitors, and services for the visitors.

Fenn said that the library "is not going to be constructed to build a lot of tourist traffic."

Burke noted that since residents of Cambridge did not want the library in that city, the JFK search committee decided they may split up the tourist and archives aspects of the library. Under this proposal, the archives would be located in Cambridge, and the rest of the library would be located at another site.

He added that no other presidential library is split up in this manner, and that "no one ever thought of the idea of splitting the archives and the museum."

Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

Dan Finn spoke in the SBA, on the history, organization, and purposes of the JFK Library Corporation, yesterday.

20% Savings
on all footwear
ANNIVERSARY
SALE
the SHOE BIN
AMHERST
FOOT FASHIONS
IN THE MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL

Sylvan boogie features

By MARA KLEIN
Staff Reporter

Sylvan area will be presenting the Luther Johnson Chicago Blues Band at its second annual Big Bad Boogie in Worcester Dining Commons this Saturday evening at 9 p.m.

According to John Bohn, chairman of the boogie, Johnson's group is "one of the finest boogie bands in the east."

The boogie, open to the University, as well as Sylvan residents, has a two dollar admission, which includes all the beer, punch or soda you can drink, plus "top notch entertainment," said Bohn. "Even if you don't drink, it's worth coming, just to hear the entertainment," he added.

Bohn and his assistants, Margie Stockford and Keith Girad, along with 100 Sylvan volunteers, hope to keep the beer flowing, so that there aren't lines for beer, as there were last year. They plan to do this by having five kegs going at all times.

Twenty kegs of beer have been ordered, with an understanding that more can be ordered as needed, so Bohn anticipates no lack of beverage. He added that "it's a good bargain, with entertainment and beer for only two dollars."

Volunteers will be serving drinks and taking tickets and money. Bohn is hoping to get Sylvan house council members to serve as volunteers, with area residents.

Although they haven't had any incidents in the past, a security force will be circulating to prevent problems.

Last year Ed Vadas' band played to a turnout of 980 people at the boogie, termed successful by Bohn. Financially Sylvan broke even for the evening.

All in all, Bohn is hoping to provide "a party-type atmosphere for a bargain."

Open booze bash at Smith

A Smith College dorm will hold an open "mixed music and drinks" evening tomorrow 8 p.m. in Davis ballroom at Smith.

Jazz, bluegrass and folk can be heard for a 75 cents donation to the Service Organization at Smith, a charity group.

The event, sponsored by Clark House is open to the public.

Spring Madness Sale

APRIL 9, 10
from 10AM to 4PM
20% OFF ALL SCHOOL SHIRTS
(with student i.d.)
from 4:30 PM to 11 PM
20% OFF MARKED PRICE ON ALL SHIRTS
from MIDNIGHT to 3AM
BUY TWO SHIRTS, GET ONE FREE
THE COVER UP
amherst carriage shops
233 n. pleasant st.
THE T-SHIRT SHOP

SKI CLUB
ELECTIONS
This is your chance to have your say about your Club.
Nominations
Are Open
Mon. Nite April 7
Thompson 102
8 p.m.

BNS Special Report: Chilling facts about cancer & women

By MELVYN BAULKMAN
Black News Service

This is part one of a two part article concerning women's health and cancer. Part two will appear Monday.

I can remember when I was about 9 or 10 years old. I guess I (as did others on my block) thought I was the roughest and the "toughest dude" to every walk on this planet. To prove myself I used to try and say the coolest phrases or quote a spellbounding speech. I can recall on one occasion I told a "bully" that he was fool if he had the idea of messing with me. I can remember saying something to the effect that messing with me was like messing with cancer. Back then I had no idea what this word (cancer) meant. I had heard grown-ups use it after they had chased me out the room so I thought it was a bad word, and I used it to show my friends that I was almost grown.

Well, years go by and so do childhood ideas and today my perception of the word cancer is quite different from my previous one.

Life begins with a tiny unit called a cell. One cell divides to form two cells which divide to form four and so on. Along with this cell division goes the process which differentiates some cells from others — that is, cells differing in types develop to form the tissues which make the organs of our bodies (e.g., lungs, heart, stomach).

Even after we are fully grown new cells come to replace the old ones, heal injuries, and keep our bodies in good shape. Sometimes a single cell or a group of cells begin to grow in an unnatural and disorganized manner — uncontrolled by normal body processes that usually govern the growth of new cells. In time, these changed cells form a colony of cells called a tumor is benign (mild) or malignant (dangerous). Cancer is a malignant tumor.

A cancer may grow slowly and stay put for some time or it may grow rapidly and spread quickly. It spreads in several ways. It may invade surrounding tissues and destroy that part of the body or it may spread directly to nearby organs. Cells from the cancer may enter the blood or lymph channels and be scattered throughout the body. Wherever these cast-off cells settle, a new colony of the same cancer may begin.

What is cancer? Is it a chronic infection? A mutated gene? No one really knows the answer. However, many types of cancer do exist. Two such cancers which are very prevalent in women are that of the uterus (the womb) called uterine cancer and cancer of the breast.

The most common sympton of uterine cancer is a change in the usual pattern of menstrual bleeding or bleeding after menopause.

Characteristic symptoms are bleeding between periods, irregular, prolonged or heavy periods, and bleeding after bowel movements or sexual intercourse.

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.
AFROTC
An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.
- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Community Notices

Women Health

The 1975 conference on women and health will be held on April 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th at the Harvard Medical Area, the Boston Latin School and Simmons College. Admission is free and all women interested in the issues affecting women seeking and giving health care are invited to attend.

This will be the first time that community women and women health workers will be learning and working together on the many different aspects of women's health and health care.

At the conference, concrete projects and proposals for the improvement of health care and health care delivery for women will be developed for presentation to legislatures, hospitals and community organizations. Among the guest speakers and resource women coming from all over the country are: Dolores Huerta, Dorothy Brown, Doris Haire, Barbara Ehrenreich, Barbara Seaman, Estelle Ramey, Linda Bennett, and Carol Downer. For further information and registration forms, please call 546-1128.

Bicultural Events

A wide variety of cultural, educational, social and artistic events will mark the celebration of Latin American Week at the University of Massachusetts. The activity, scheduled for April 14th to 19th, is sponsored jointly by AHORA the Hispanic Students' organization, the Bilingual Collegiate Program, the Hispanic Faculty Association, the Bilingual-Bicultural Education Program, by both the UMass and the five-college Spanish Departments.

Activities will be open to all of the community. For further details please call (413) 545-1968.

翰林 chinese restaurant
homemade mandarin cuisine
dine with our ethnic treats and out of the way finds in chinese cookery
call 586-4562
open 11a.m.-10p.m. tues.-sun.
193 locust st. (route 9)
florence, mass.
the han lin

Four Seasons

MILLER'S BEER
12 oz. cans
$5.19 Case

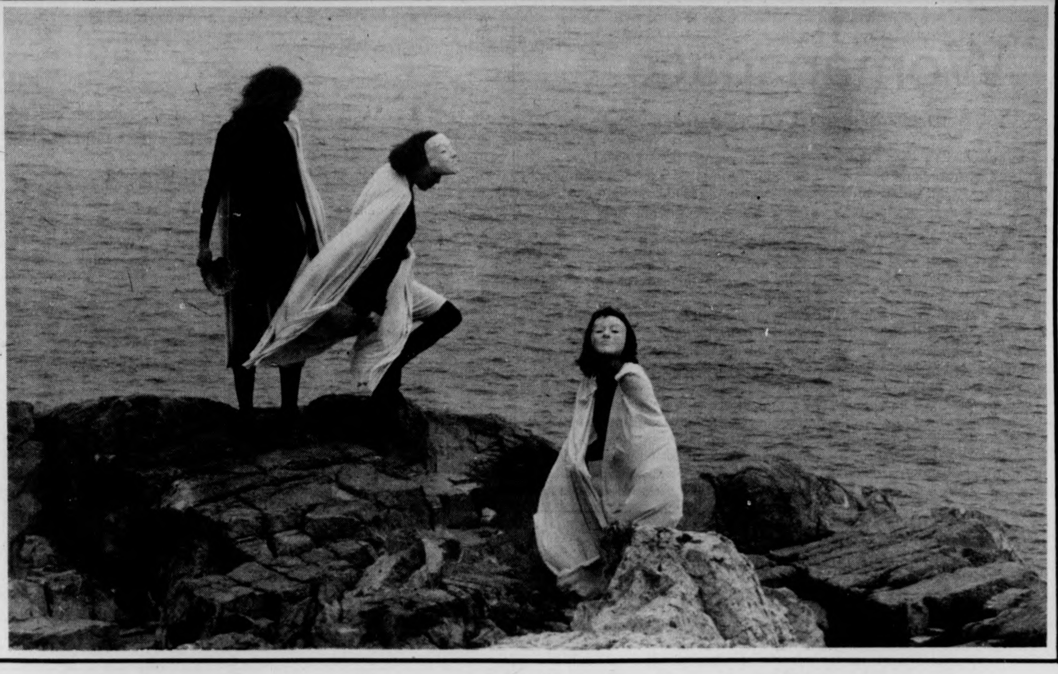
MATEUS ROSE
$2.29
25 oz. bottle

FOUR SEASON'S VODKA
80 Proof
$3.89 ½ Gal.
$3.99 Qt.

OLD GERMAN BEER
12 oz. N.R. bottles
$3.79 Case

Wednesday 4/2/75 to Saturday 4/5/75
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES

Hampshire will present 'Behold Icarus'



On Saturday, April 5, 1975 at 8:00 p.m. Hampshire College proudly presents the opening of BEHOLD ICARUS, a full length mimeodrama accompanied by a twelve piece chamber ensemble. The mimes involved in the production are John Seitz and Carla Montagno and the music has been composed by Christopher Yavelow and will be performed by the Annex Players of Creative Media, Incorporated.

Weekend events fete Israeli independence

In honor of Israel's 27th Independence Day (April 16) a series of events and celebrations have been planned. "Israel on My Mind" will start with an Israeli Folk Dance Party on Saturday night, April 5, in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union. It will be an evening of dancing for both beginners and advanced dancers, starting at 8:00 p.m.

On Sunday, April 6, Beynosh Melamed, the UMass swim coach and a member of the ill-fated 1972 Israel team at the Munich Olympics, will speak on "Israelis, Jews, and Sports: From Munich to Manyana." The brunch will begin at 11:00 a.m. in the Colonial Lounge.

Also, on Sunday, April 6, at 2:00 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge, the UMass Israel Aliyah Group has invited David Roizenblitt to speak. Roizenblitt is the director of the Israel Aliyah Center in Boston. He will show a short film, "Israel as a Challenge," and will talk and answer questions about possibilities for Americans to settle in Israel.

Yom Hashoah V'hagevurah — the day of remembrance of the Holocaust, is on Tuesday April 8. It will be marked by a memorial service in the Colonial Lounge at 7;00 p.m. At 8:00 p.m. the documentary film, "Let My People Go", will be shown in Campus Center 174-6. The film includes actual footage of the flight from Europe to the struggle of the survivors to settle in Israel.

Thursday, April 10, is a special day devoted to kibbutz, the Israeli collective settlement. During the day, the "Kibbutz Caravan" will be distributing information about short und long term work projects and settlement possibilities on kibbutzim. At 8:00 p.m. there will be a movie and slide show about kibbutz life. The evening activities will be in Colonial Lounge.

The culmination of the "Israel on My Mind" events will take place on Sunday, April 13, with the Five College Israel Independence Day Celebration. The festivities will start at 3:00 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge with entertainment by the "Zabarim," a top Israeli trio, followed by felafel and other refreshments, and Israeli dancing. That evening at 8:00 p.m. the award-winning Israeli film, "Three Days and a Child", will be shown in Campus Center 101. The film focuses on the emotions of a graduate student who finds himself in a trying situation. "Three Days and a Child" was filmed in Jerusalem. It is in Hebrew with English subtitles.

All events in the "Israel on My Mind" festival are open to the public.

Now . . .
FREE Ear Piercing
Clinic With Purchase of 7.50 Earring Starter
EASY! PAINLESS!

24 Kt. Gold applied directly to Surgical Stainless Steel. A Safety Shoulder lock prevents irritation caused by pinching. This method is safe even for people with metal sensitivity.

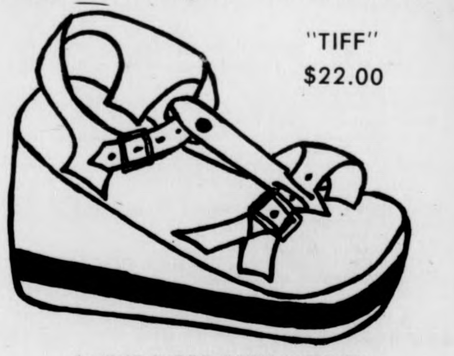
MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL, HADLEY
Saturday, April 5th, 11 a.m.-8 p.m.

PEERLESS

All we ask is that you sign a special consent form. If you're 18 or under you must have your parents' written consent.

APRIL 4 & 5 ONLY 9:00 P.M.
THE "PROVINCETOWN JUG and MARCHING BAND"
A FIRST TIME PERFORMANCE IN WEST. MASS, THE "P-TOWN JUG AND MARCHING BAND" WILL BRING YOU THEIR BEST WITH MUSICAL VARIETY IN A WIDE RANGE OF INSTRUMENTATION FOR A DEFINITE GOOD TIME AND A REFRESHING CHANGE, DON'T MISS THE CAPE'S BEST HARD DRIVING BAND — THIS WEEKEND AT —
red pantry playroom
RTS. 202 & 21 • • BELCHERTOWN, MA.

Bare Traps of California



"TIFF"
$22.00

Available in RED, NAVY or BROWN
Leather with matching stripe on off white cushion crepe sole.

MANY MORE BARE TRAPS AT:
Bolles Shoes
✱ 2 Locations
✱ 8 Main St., Amherst
Hadley Village Barn Shops, Rte. 9

Womanspace

Editorial and Commentary

The Feminist Printed Media Project has recently been involved in an effort to obtain bulletin board space in the Campus Center for specifically women-oriented information and announcements. It has had difficulty in getting the space from the Board of Governors, (see commentary below), and now needs the support of students.

The Collegian sees the institution of WOMANSPACE as being a positive step for the Board of Governors to take. WOMANSPACE would provide women with a centralized forum for information, thus resulting in better communications for women on campus.

It is perhaps a small action, but a significant one, in recognition of the fact that women represent half of the student population.

The list of endorsements exemplifies the fact that the request is not outrageous, but a valid one; the sooner it is accepted by the Board of Governors, the better.

The proposal printed below, was presented to the Campus Center Governing Board, on March 18, by members of the Feminist Printed Media Project. At that time the Governing Board refused to act on the proposal. The reason given was that the petition was from a "special interest group" and that the bulletin board space could not be alloted until all requests for space had been received from other "groups." The Board indicated that while some decisions could be made rapidly by them, this decision might take several months.

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Board of Editors

Needless to say, we do not believe that the female half of the UMass population constitutes a "special interest group." We, the members of the Feminist Printed Media Project, have already delayed any action so that as many groups representing campus women could be involved in establishing WOMANSPACE, and so that proper Campus Center procedure could be followed. In the meantime, University women still do not have a coordinated and central space for gaining information relevant to our lives, and the bulletin boards available are posted with duplicates of announcements and ads of debatable relevancy.

We have decided that until such a time as the Governing Board makes its decision, we will proceed with the informal establishment of WOMANSPACE. WOMANSPACE will be located on an open board outside of the coffee shop in the Campus Center. Any announcements or general information of specific interest to women can be posted there and we welcome your contributions. Care will be taken to relocate announcements presently posted on the board.

We the undersigned urge the Campus Center Governing Board to accept and implement the following proposal:

A priority concern expressed by a majority of women who attended the 1975 University Women's Conference, (representing over 700 women, at least 50 per cent of which were students), was the need for a communication network, to serve women's organizations and to provide information on activities and services for University-connected women. The means by which we propose to meet this overwhelming need, is the creation of a women's bulletin board, in a suitable location in the Campus Center-Student Union complex. The function of this vehicle, to be referred to in the future as WOMANSPACE, will be to provide free space for exclusively women's announcements, political issues, art and all other items that pertain to women's interests and needs. In order for this wall to serve its described function, it must be easily accessible to and visible by all women of the community. For this reason, we are requesting the wall space located across from the Hatch, between SU206 and the stairwell next to the Crafts Shop entrance. We have assessed the needs of the women's community and have determined that this area will best suit our purposes. The WOMANSPACE will be maintained by the ongoing women's groups listed below. This project was initiated by 'The Feminist Printed Media Project', which will assume responsibility for the initial implementation of the WOMANSPACE. In the past, access to the media has been systematically denied to women. One positive step towards rectifying this appalling situation would be the establishment of a central place where women could consistently find news for and of themselves.

Group Endorsements:

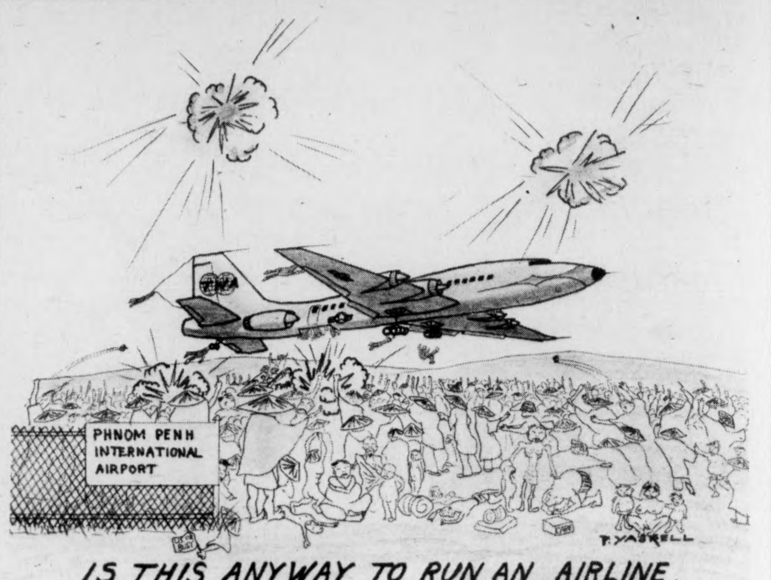
University Women's Caucus
Everywomans Center-Goodell
Northeast Women's Center
Orchard Hill Women's Center
Southwest Women's Center
Women's Media Project
University Women's Communication Network
The Sylvan Press
University Without Walls
The Sunday News Collective
Gay Women's Caucus
University Women's Studies Program
The Progressive News Service
Veterans Coalition
Student Organizing Project
Pioneer Valley Women's Union
Student Socialist Feminists
Graduate Women's Caucus

Individual Representatives:

Rick Savini-Student Senate plus 15 signatures
Robin Jacobson-Women's Affairs Director of WMUA Radio
Beatrice Blain-Director of Univ. Day School
Cathy Portugues-Co-ordinator of Women's Studies Program
Ben Clancy-Southwest Securities Co-ordinator
B. J. Roche-Executive Editor-Collegian

Student Signatures

Over 250 signatures have been collected — documentation of which is available in the Southwest Women's Center.



IS THIS ANYWAY TO RUN AN AIRLINE, ... YOU BET IT IS ... !!

Conflict and consent

By BILLY STEWART
WMUA Sunday News Collective

Over the last three weeks, the war in Vietnam has reached its most militarily accelerated level in twenty years. It is important to understand why this acceleration is happening:

The National Liberation Front (NLF) and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of S. Vietnam (P.R.G.) both whom the American Government has consistently propagandized as, "The Communists," are the combined liberation forces of all Vietnam. The Vietnamese people did not divide Vietnam into North and South, the U.S. Government's foreign policy surrounding the early 1950's Geneva Accord elections under the Eisenhower Administration was instrumental in this division. Vietnam is one country and is fighting for its survival as a United people and as a nation against the repressive puppet regime of Nguyen Van Thieu.

The sudden, united military successes of Vietnam's liberation forces have come as no surprise. According to Col. Giang of the PRG, "We knew the time would come when the Thieu clique would be so rotten it would collapse quickly."

When asked who was in the Thieu clique, Giang replied, "anyone who follows, and serves as an instrument of neo-colonialism, and recent developments in Vietnam have shown that this clique does not include a large number of people."

We are hearing about the political reprisals and killings in areas now controlled by Vietnamese National liberation forces from the Amerikan press, radio and television services. The sensationalism and emotionalism surrounding these reports does little in presenting the real facts involved in this current military struggle. One has only to look at the pictures being furnished daily to understand the extent to which the media will go in its emotional misrepresentation of what is happening in Vietnam.

There has been no audio or visual presentation in the media making clear the fact that in the last three weeks Vietnamese liberation forces, frequently with very little fighting, have taken over or found abandoned to them, most of the northern two-thirds of S. Vietnam. It was reported two weeks ago in the media that these provinces were abandoned by the Thieu government prior to the anticipated arrival of Liberation forces. The press makes no mention of this fact now.

The Vietnamese liberation forces have established newly appointed provisional officials in many of these provinces. Shops and stores have re-opened and business is generally resuming. The "re-education" of many S. Vietnamese soldiers who have laid down their weapons without a fight has begun.

Thousands of refugees have returned to their homes to live under the Provisional Revoluntionary Government of S. Vietnam until "free and democratic elections" take place. The PRG is now aiding these people in their return. The PRG has urged fleeing refugees, primarily the ½ million seeking evacuation from Da Nang, to return to their homes and villages.

The Thieu government has contributed heavily through its anti-communist propaganda to the existing refugee situation and the accompanying hardships these people currently face. Thieu has spared no tricks and no methods of murder or repression to force these refugee people to run to his aid. The S. Vietnamese soldiers, who are forcibly recruited, and their lack of organizational, committed military support for the Thieu Government have been responsible for most of the deaths that have occurred among the refugee women and children. Not the liberation "communist" forces.

What the Thieu governments' policy towards S. Vietnamese refugee people will ultimately lead to is a human buffer zone around Saigon and the ultimate, unnecessary deaths of thousands of Vietnamese people on both sides of this conflict. And when this human buffer zone fails to stop the combined liberation forces of Vietnam, Nquyen Van Thieu and family will exit the rear door of The Saigon Palace and enter the side door of some U.S. sponsored aircraft on their way into exile.

Amherst Town Elections are April 8.
Don't forget to vote!

Steve Tripoli

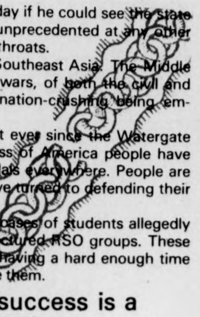
What chance have we now?

Adolf Hitler would be proud of the world today if he could see the state of the place. It seems that we are in a period unprecedented at any other time in history for people being at each other's throats.

Internationally the symptoms are obvious. Southeast Asia. The Middle East. South America. Africa. There are either wars, of both the civil and international type, or more subtle forms of nation-crushing being employed, such as economic blackmail.

At home things are no better. It seems that ever since the Watergate debacle left its dirty mark on the consciousness of America people have left their morals behind them. There are scandals everywhere. People are ripping each other off at a record rate. They have turned to defending their own greedy interests over everything else.

Right here on campus we have seen several cases of students allegedly ripping off money from various real or manufactured RSO groups. These people are ripping off fellow students who are having a hard enough time surviving as it is, but it apparently doesn't phase them.



> 'The very first essential for success is a perpetually constant and regular employment of violence.'
>
> Adolph Hitler, Mein Kampf

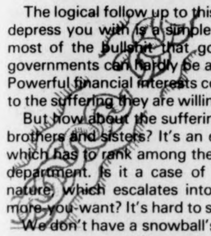
The logical follow up to this whole mess that I've gone out of my way to depress you with is a simple question — Why? It would still appear that most of the bullshit that goes on is perpetrated by governments, and governments can hardly be accused of representing people in most cases. Powerful financial interests control them, and there seems to be no bottom to the suffering they are willing to cause in their own interests.



But how about the suffering that people are causing to happen to their brothers and sisters? It's an especially important question in this country, which has to rank among the most ruthless in the people screwing people department. Is it a case of the possible inherent rottenness of human nature, which escalates into a vicious circle of the-more-you-have-the-more-you-want? It's hard to say, but one thing's for certain.

We don't have a snowball's chance in hell of surviving if it doesn't stop.

Steve Tripoli is a Collegian columnist.

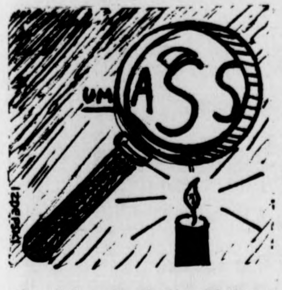
B. J. Roche

What's a student to do?

When our present system of government was designed, three branches, Executive, Legislative and Judicial, were instituted in order to provide a system of "checks and balances." The idea was to prevent an aggregation of power in the hands of one group. The separation of powers was a good idea at the time and still is, but the result of it has been not a mere separation, but a diffusion of powers. This can be more accurately described as the "I take the responsibility but not the blame" syndrome, so prevalent in politics on a national, state, campus and local level.

The syndrome is the very essence of the problems we encounter on a day to day basis, both in terms of bureaucratic brouhahas and political issues. At UMass, there are no Harry Trumans; the buck never seems to stop, and if it does it may well be in someone's pocket.

Wednesday I was among the students attending the much heralded Board of Trustees meeting. Gray flannel was the order of the day, except for some priests and women, although a few of the execs compromised by wearing earth shoes or hush puppies. It was an exercise in showmanship comparable to a Student Senate meeting, although less entertaining; later, a Trustee explained to me that all the work had been done previously in Committees. The votes taken were mere symbols, "All in favor say aye." "Aye." "All opposed say no." The nos were skimmed over, since they seemed to agree on practically everything, "motion passed."



Perhaps it was naive idealism to think that something would be responded to at the meeting, forgive me, I'm a political science major, but it was truly frustrating to experience the attitudes of the Trustees toward students. A representative from the People's Coalition for the Budget spoke briefly at the end of the meeting as the Trustees eagerly eyed their trenchcoats and briefcases near the exit and were clearly contemplating that "long ride home to Boston." Technically the speaker was "out of place," but when it takes 70 days to get a chance to speak before the Board, it stands to reason that sometimes the rules must be compromised.

We have the dubious honor of being the "people without a campus." On one side, we are convinced that Governor Dukakis is the villain, on another side it is Robert Wood. And on yet another front, the fault lies with the administration. What's a student to do?

The Trustees meeting had been suggested as an alternative means to air student grievances on the budget cuts and where they were going. It was "going through the proper channels," something which we have been advised to do for so long. It was politics. But that elusive "buck" just kept being passed.

As I was leaving, a Trustee explained the whole situation to me: "What you have to do is get people to write the Legislature."

B.J. Roche is Executive Editor of the Collegian.

Opinion

Vietnam - R.I.P.

By MIKE IZDEPSKI

Monday morning Amherst's public radio station dropped its 8 o'clock news report and aired instead Mozart's requiem mass. Indeed, there was no need for news that day: Everybody knew that the new news was the old news and nobody was much inclined to listen to either, for the news was depressing, shameful and sad. It was about Cambodia. And it was about Vietnam.

"The war", the nightmare we managed to live with for over a decade, the one event that so radically influenced what and how we are today, has finally collapsed on its deathbed, ready to exhale its wretched spirit once and for all. Isn't it what so many of us have waited, fought, even died for? Why then have the cheers of joy, the sighs of relief failed to surface, why are we left only with a feeling of anger, bitterness and utter frustration? What went wrong?

It's been over 10 years now that the U.S. Congress passed the infamous "Gulf of Tonkin resolution" by the embarrasingly large margin of 533 to 2 and thereby gave President Johnson a blank check to ship American soldiers by the hundreds of thousands to the jungles of Southeast Asia.

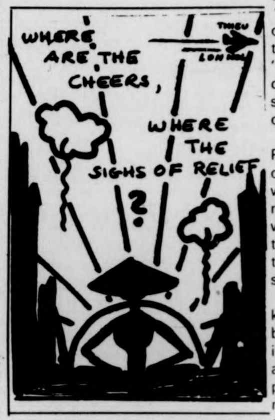
Oh yes, the tough kid on the block was going to show those "commie chinks" all right, what happens to people who dare raise a finger against a "friend and ally" of Uncle Sam. But as it turned out, the slit-eyed weaklings from the North weren't man enough to come out and fight in the open, where everyone could see them. Instead, they quite sneakily set booby traps, buried themselves in underground tunnels like rats, and slowly sapped the bustling vigor, morale and ultimately the very life from many an American fighting boy..

So we got tough and tore their women and children limb from limb with napalm, cratered their rice paddies with bomb blankets and made sure that their schools and hospitals were eradicated from the face of the earth. We even threw some of their less suspecting civilians into ditches and massacred them in cold blood to prove that we meant business.

Then, when we no longer could pinpoint who we meant by "them", when we found ourselves killing "friend" and "foe" alike and spreading the misery from Vietnam into neutral Cambodia, we just turned our backs on the whole mess and left.

We left with our dead, our wounded, our cripples and crawled back to a shaken and disillusioned homeland, little comforted by the hypocritical suggestion that a "peace with honor" had been achieved.

And still we had learned nothing.



For when the bloodshed in Southeast Asia continued without us, we could not understand why.

Only now that Da Nang, Hue, Nha Trang and all those other familiar places American GI's once bravely sacrificed themselves to protect, are being thrown over to the communists like hot potatoes by the Saigon government, are we starting to ask ourselves the question we should have asked 15 years ago: Which blindness has ever allowed us to so fervently support and defend regimes as ruthless and unrepresentative of the general populus of those of Thieu and Lon Nol?

As it turns out, the only reason we are able to scratch up is the classic one of having to protect the world from communism at all costs. The old "domino theory".

But does communism really have to be as wicked as the "witch hunts" of the fifties, the orgies of McCarthyism lead us to believe? If one takes a closer look at the mentality of the eastern mind, it is soon evident that Asians have always sought to obey one emperor, king or Mikado, an absolute form of government rather than one elected democratically.

A communist take-over of South Vietnam at least would provide the peace and stability that three decades of war have failed to grant the tired peasants of the Mekong. A "red" Saigon would be in no worse off a situation than it is now under the exploitive and oppressive fist of "President" Thieu with the slight difference that members of the same people wouldn't be at each others throats anymore.

Also, the paranoid concern of our Pentagon officials that the fall of one country into communist hands would inevitably lead to the fall of neighboring nations, is completely without foundation, as long as those nations have a government that is truly representative of and sensitive to the needs of its citizens.

In fact, had the United States kept out of Cambodia from the very beginning, instead of throwing itself around the neck of Lon Nol and his junta regime like a prostitute in heat, Phnom Penh might well have remained the more or less neutral country it once was under the diplomatic statesmanship of Prince Sihanouk.

We must understand that in war the first step encompasses the last, the means coincide with the ends, only then will we learn to avoid taking that all fatal first step again.

As it stands now, the billions worth of American weaponry left behind in Da Nang, the animalic fights for survival among soldiers and refugees, the silent exit of those responsible for the years of misery through the back door into self-imposed exile, are simply the final links in a chain that has broken long ago.

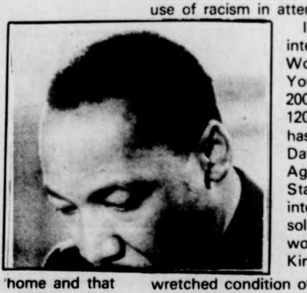
Mike Izdepski is a Collegian Commentator

In memory of a struggle

By NORMA FARIS

Today marks the seventh anniversary of the assasination of Dr. Martin Luther King. It is a day that commemorates the death of a man whose love and concern for people inspired him to dedicate his life in the fight for human rights. His role in the Civil Rights Movement, in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in the peace movement, in the struggle against slum conditions in Chicago, in the product-boycott coordinating organization---Operation Breadbasket, and in the union support for striking sanitary workers in Memphis, Tennessee, all demonstrate the developing perspective of this historical figure in the movement toward the realization of freedom and equality.

Dr. Martin Luther King and the work and events that mark his life stand in front of a backdrop of the long struggle of Black people in this country. A struggle that has consistently fought for the eradication of injustice to all oppressed people. When the Civil Rights Movement began to focus attention on the riots in the northern cities, Dr. King saw connection between the violence at home and that carried on in Viet Nam---he denounced Johnson's war on poverty as long as the U.S. continued genocide abroad. His final activities with the striking sanitation workers showed his understanding that the struggle must be a mass movement of all working people---Black, Chicano, Puerto Rican, Native American, Asian American, and white; that racism is a weapon used to keep people from united struggle for common needs.



The conditions surrounding Dr. Martin Luther King's life continue today. With Massachusetts having one of the highest unemployment rates in the country, with unemployment among Black and Latin youth near 50 percent, and with the intensification of the use of racism, as exemplified in Boston, there is still little united effort to combat this offensive on human rights. Conditions, here, on campus, with the impending rise in tuitions and cut in financial aid, which will most directly effect those people who are least able to afford to attend this university, necessitate the unity of all, and the rejection of the use of racism in attempts to divide us.

Inspired by the example and internationalism of Dr. King, the World Federation of Democratic Youth, which represents more than 200 million young people from over 120 countries and organizations, has declared today as International Day of Solidarity with Youth Against Racism in the United States. Its purpose is to step up international support, through the solidarity of youth all over the world, to continue the work of Dr. King on working to eliminate the wretched condition of the oppressed by demanding that the tens of billions of dollars being spent on militarism and war be converted to finance a campaign for peace, equality, and economic security.

Norma J. Faris is a Collegian guest commentator and a member of the Young Workers Liberation League.

More letters to the editor

Is this really progressive news?

To the Editor:

I found Ms. Driscoll's commentary a bit excessive. Is this really progressive news? The zipless fuck is not every woman's sexual goal and Ms. Jong is not trying to convince her readers that this is so. Indeed, she is confronted at the end of the book with her own zipless fuck and discovers that it disgusts her. (a reflection on the nature of sexual fantasies)

The point is, any book which portrays woman's struggle to find meaning in life, and does it as frankly and humorously as Ms. Jong, is worthwhile. Ms. Driscoll may not have gotten anything valuable out of Fear of Flying, but I found many of Jong's perceptions of reality for a woman in a man's world to be very acute. The particular form of oppression a woman suffers does not matter. And the book was not all about sex, although it was marketed on its sexual aspects. One has only to look at the cover of the paperback edition or read the carefully selected comments and quotes printed on the back. It is stretching a point to say that Erica Jong's sexual appetites are kinky. She is clearly an author of fine talent and wit, and if she can get her works published, I say more power to her. Driscoll's article should have been printed in the April Fool issue.

Barbara W. Cormack

Oppressive, blantant sexism in Collegian

To the Editor:

I have been reading the paper for three years now, and every semester it seems that the quality of printed news and miscellaneous is becoming less and less newsworthy and more and more objectionable as media coverage that reaches a wide audience.

The blatant sexism depicted in news coverage and inserts is the mark of a very unprofessional staff and editor. One would expect to find bigotry in maybe a high school newspaper, but not a college edition. You have an obligation, as a student funded media, to print news that is not offensive or oppressive to any of your reading audience. Women make up a large part of that audience and sexist attitudes offend an element of which I am a part of. The paper in good journalistic terms, should be concerned with reporting news not ventilating sexist, racist attitudes on its staff. It seems that some of the staff is not capable of simple, unbiased news coverage. It's a shame considering all there is that could be said unoffensively.

Maria Larsen

MUA airs defense against hits

To the Editor:

In response to Andy Simon's letter of April 2 ("The Foolish Forty"), I'd like to thank you for the complimentary remarks you expressed in regard to WMUA's "Great April Fool's Day Grossout". We're really glad you enjoyed it. Yes, we did, too.

However, Dear Friend, you fail(ed) to realize four critical factors in your analysis of the "Grossout" and "regular old WMUA".

First, it sure as hell was planned to be "plainly entertaining", not just "plainly stupid". The "Grossout" was devised and executed by some 35 or 40 psyched-up people with the expressed intent of producing an absurdly enjoyable presentation. Please, we deserve a little more credit than that.

Secondly, I'd like to comment on behalf of those many people you ignore who try their damndest TWENTY HOURS DAILY to provide good alternative radio to the UMass, Five College and Pioneer Valley communities on a regular basis. Your failure to acknowledge their listeners is rather bogus,-a,-um, to say the least.

Thirdly, I'm positive WMUA's audience is more intelligent and aware than your average WHYN-AM listener. To suggest an end to such informative and entertaining programs as "Gaybreak", "Original Stardust", and "The Sunday News Collective" is nothing less than a subtle insult to the people of this area who enjoy using their brains every now and then.

And, finally, you've got to realize that most of the "Grossout's" appeal was in its novelty. But, Andy, if you really feel you wouldn't be bored by a "much more professional sounding" WMUA devoted entirely to a Top 40 format, I promise I'll play a Donny Osmond record once an hour my next airshift.

Al "Pat Spencer" Feinberg
Marc "Muck" Bauman
of WMUA

Some landlords are concerned

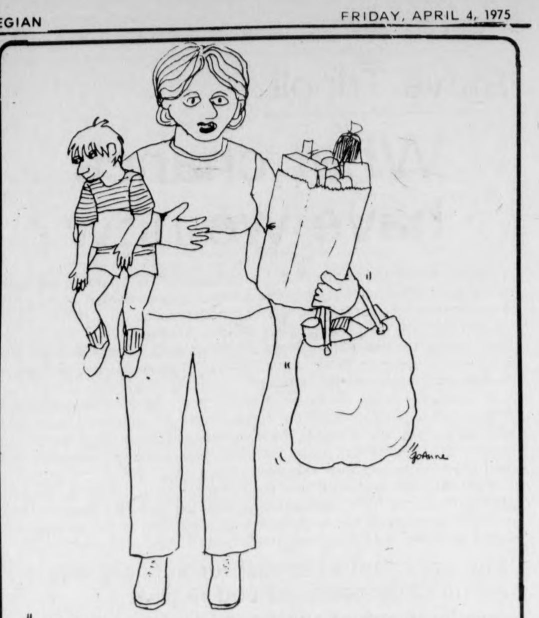
To the Editor:

My purpose in writing the editorial entitled, "History Repeats Itself" of March 31st, 1975, was to express my truest and most sincere frustrations about the problems I have encountered as a tenant of Brittany Manor.

Shortly after the printing of my editorial, I was contacted by Mr. Art Boothby (a court-appointed trustee) of the management, who requested that I speak with him. After meeting with him, I came to find that Mr. Boothby is not only working towards a restoration of Brittany Manor's reputation, but towards total improvement of the apartment complex. He is personally concerned with tenants problems and would really welcome any tenant to speak to him personally about their particular gripe.

I would like to wish Mr. Boothby much luck in his efforts toward the betterment of Brittany Manor!

Debbe Marchetto



"THEY TOLD ME THEY COULDN'T HIRE ME BECAUSE THE BOXES WERE TOO HEAVY FOR A WOMAN....."

The Four Leaf Window

presents

"MAD ANGEL"

THURS.-SUN.

Campus Center Food Services presents:
Entertainment for the Weekend
April 4 – 7

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
– Big Screamin McGrew and Bill Colwell in the Hatch 9 – 1
– Forest in the Bluewall 9 – 1
– Pzazz Dixieland Jazz Band at the T.O.C. 9 – 1

SUNDAY
8:00 p.m. in the Bluewall
Heavy Weight Champion Fights
30 min. flick with Ali, Frasier, Forman, Liston, and more!
9:00 p.m. come to the
JAZZ JAM SESSION
in the Bluewall

MONDAY, April 7
Irish Night in the Bluewall with Jack Geary

London
PARIS
ROME

*Spend the Entire Summer in Europe for just $377

BOSTON — PARIS — BOSTON

If you are a member of any of the 5 colleges within this area you may qualify for this low group fare

FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION CONTACT MR. RICHARD PINI — 253-7766

 air fare only

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

The inside of our shoe is unique. Like your foot. That's why we've developed a heat sensitive footbed that molds to your feet. Birkenstocks don't feel like conventional shoes, because they aren't.

Birkenstock®
the original footprint sandal exclusively offered by:

GOLDEN TEMPLE EMPORIUM
178A N. Pleasant St./Amherst/256-0360

GOLDEN TEMPLE EMPORIUM
Across from Whole Wheat Trading Co behind Brown's
Brown's
Amherst Professional Building
N. Pleasant St.

'Spring-Fever' colloquia focus on the outdoors

Warm weather is here and so is "Spring Fever"....The Outdoor Interest Group is sponsoring a program of "Spring-Fever" Colloquia this April. The Outdoor Program is intended to break down the traditional classroom structure and introduce students to a learning experience in the outdoors. Education can be a many faceted experience, involving intellectual, physical and personal development. These colloquia are a specific attempt to incorporate all these facets into a single learning experience in an outdoors environment. Colloquia include experiences in Nature Photography, White Water Canoeing, Natural History of the Connecticut River Valley, Whales Study group, Bicycling and Bird Watching.

Registration for "Spring-Fever" Colloquia is now taking place in the Student Activities Office, 2nd floor Student Union.

The Boston Scene

Racism an American problem

Special to B.N.S. from the Five College Student Coalition against Racism

On Friday, April 4th, two films commemorating Martin Luther King will be shown at 7:30 in Campus Center 113. "From Montgomery to Memphis" and "Martin Luther King: The Man On the March" will be sponsored by the Five College Students Coalition Against Racism.

April 4th is the anniversary of the assassination of Dr. King, whose life-long struggle is an inspiration to people around the world fighting against racist repression. The National Students Coalition Against Racism singled out this date at its founding conference to begin a series of actions leading up to the national demonstration against racism in Boston on May 17th.

This day was chosen for an international day of solidarity with U.S. youth fighting racism by the World Federation of Democratic Youth, the world wide anti-imperialist youth organization.

Why is this day important: Because today we should rededicate ourselves to the job which Dr. King had to leave unfinished, that of a movement of all people firmly united against all forms of racism and for a society of true freedom and justice.

That his work needs to be finished is one of the political realities of our country at this time. Nowhere is that clearer that in this state, Massachusetts has one of the highest unemployment rates in the country, with unemployment among Blacks and Latin youth near 50 per cent. Boston is the focus for one of the most intensified racist offensives against the right of Black children to education since the early sixties. It is an offensive which is organized out of the offices of the highest officials and politicians and has already created an atmosphere of extreme racist violence in Boston, on the streets and in he schools.

We, in the Pioneer Valley, are not immune from this at all. Here they are trying to raise tuition and cut back on financial aid. For the first time in years, the still small number of Black students at UMass is decreasing. The racist attitudes which have led to continual outbreaks of violence against the Black community in Boston, are scrawled on the walls and newspaper here as well.

THE

BIG BAD BOOGIE! II

featuring the

LUTHER JOHNSON

Chicago Blues Band

****

$2 admission includes:

ALL THE REFRESHMENTS YOU CAN DRINK!

(Soda, Punch, 20 Kegs of Beer)

TOMORROW NITE!

Plenty of Room to Boogie!

9 P.M. – 1 A.M. WORCESTER DINING COMMONS EAST ROOM

VOTE
Vera Joseph Peterson
For
Trustee of Jones Library

AMHERST TOWN ELECTION
Tuesday, April 8, 1975

Quality Library
Fiscal Responsibility
Responsive to the Needs of a Pluralistic Community

Margaret Gage
7 Hills Road, Amherst

Agencies investigating School of Ed refuse to disclose progress of probes

By JAN ALEXANDER
Staff Reporter

Spokesmen for three different agencies involved in the criminal probe of the School of Education funds scandal have refused to comment on their investigations.

However, David Booth, secretary of the faculty senate said the senate ad-hoc committee to study academic standards and procedures at the School is making "fine progress," and a report would be coming out this month.

Special Agent James Newpher of the FBI Boston office said "there's nothing to tell," and that he wasn't sure when his investigation would be completed.

Richard Bachman, head of the criminal division of the district attorney's office in Boston when asked if he will issue any more subpoenas said, "I can't discuss the investigation in any fashion."

Hampshire-Franklin District Attorney John Callahan said, "I can't comment until our investigation is finished." He added that his assistant David Maskaly is in charge of the probe and that "he won't comment either, I assure you."

Last month, the faculty senate appointed an ad hoc committee which will also investigate the relationship between School of Ed and campus administrators.

Booth said the committee was meeting regularly but there was nothing definite yet in terms of specific findings.

A five-member Blue Ribbon committee composed of nationally prominent educators was also approved by the Board of Trustees in March. Their investigation is centering around identifying areas of weakness at the School of Ed. and making recommendations concerning corrective changes.

Acting School of Ed. Dean Louis B. Fischer could not be reached for comment on the progress of this committee.

★ Transients' exclusion asked

cont. from page 1

impact on the Progressive Candidate Party's campaign, according to Levitan. He said, "the main trust of the party's campaign is getting people to vote who haven't voted before because they were not represented.

Kerrie Jones Clark, town meeting member candidate who is a transient listed on this petition, said "I think this is outrageous, a transient is a person who is going to be in a community for only three or four months, not four or five years." According to her, a person who has been living in a community for four or five years has a right to representation. Clark, who is not a student, said she did not think the town was being properly represented. "The town is being run by too many boards. The town and Planning Boards are running the town," she said.

"I am surprised that anyone in Amherst would act that way," said Michael Sullivan, chairperson of the Amherst Board of Selectman, when he was informed about this petition for the first time last night.

Persons opinion was in consensus with the views of petitioners; Southwick, Bates, Ruder, and Jones. Southwick said, "I don't think people who don't own property and pay taxes should vote to raise our taxes then leave." Bates said students who are running for town meeting members would "vote for grandiose projects and leave tax payers with high taxes."

Jones failed to explain why newly registered candidates who plan to reside in Amherst should not be elected town meeting members.

Only three of the five transient candidates are students according to Levitan. Jones said there was no way of differentiating those candidates from those who are transient.

★ WSYL broadcast controversial

cont. from p. 1

Both the UMass Police and the FCC were unavailable for comment.

"From the Police Station I went to see Bob Fowler (Assistant Area Director in Sylvan) who the Police said they had contacted," Collotta said.

After talking with Collotta about the alleged broadcast Fowler said, "I tend to think he was trying to emulate WMUA (referring to their April Fool's Day broadcast) and didn't realize the ramifications of it. I think it was poor judgement on his part, but that he was not trying to be malicious."

After conferring with Narkewicz, Collotta said he assumed he was about to be dismissed.

He was later notified by WSYL Radio Director Kathy Tierney of his suspension.

Talking about Wednesday night's controversial broadcast Collotta said, "it's too bad that some people simply refuse to accept what they were told was a practical joke. I hope the future of WSYL radio and TV won't be hurt by what was said."

As far as WSYL's future is concerned, Sylvan closed circuit TV made its first broadcast from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. last night.

For details on the broadcast that enabled Sylvan residents to watch themselves on television refer to yesterday's Collegian, Page 3.

Other future programing will include a WSYL radio and TV simulcast to be aired April 17.

dvp

Applications at S.U.B. Rm. 415 or at C.C. Information Desk

The Distinguished Visitor's Program is financed and operated by the undergraduates of UMass. for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists. It seeks to bring to campus those persons whose experiences in domestic humanities quality them to interpret, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions.

Come work with us.

Deadline April 6

RECORDS

CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK

The New RECORD SHOP

197 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-5394

university of massachusetts arts council presents
M'BOOM
ROY BROOKS
JOE CHAMBERS
OMAR CLAY
MAX ROACH
WARREN SMITH
FREDDIE WAITS
RE:PERCUSSION
MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM
TICKETS: $4 & $3 general $2 & $1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202
ONG

HUNGRY-J
PIZZA
SUBS
McGILVRAY
We deliver, fast.
call:
256-8914 OR 256-0473
55 UNIVERSITY DR.
103 N. PLEASANT ST.
TRY OUR MUSHROOMS!

50¢ OFF Large Pizza

Offer Good on
Deliveries Only
on Fri. & Sat. Night Only
April 4th & 5th

25¢ OFF Small Pizza

Offer Good on
Deliveries Only
on Fri. & Sat. Night Only
April 4th & 5th

Famed Marionetteers in Amherst

The prize-winning National Marionette Theatre, one of the country's outstanding professional puppet companies, will present a single performance of "The Art of the Puppeteer" on Sunday, April 6 at 2 p.m. in the Amherst Regional High School Auditorium.

The event is under the sponsorship of the Amherst Parents Fine Arts Council. Tickets for the program, at $1.00 will be on sale daily at the Jones Library beginning on March 24 or can be purchased by calling Pricilla Smith, 256-0359, Sharla Friedman, 549-1414, or Therese Donohue, 253-9802.

"The Art of the Puppeteer" in the hands of David Syrotiak and his troupe is unique theater for all ages from the pre-school child to the senior citizen. Having toured the country from Maine to California, appearing in colleges, elementary, junior and senior high schools, civic auditoriums and Town Hall and Macy's in New York City, Syrotiak and his stringed marionettes "have caused wonder, delight, disbelief and incredible excitement," according to the director of the Museum of Natural History in New York, where the company annually appears.

DAVID SYROTIAK holds one of his marionettes.

Did You Miss Our Grand Opening?

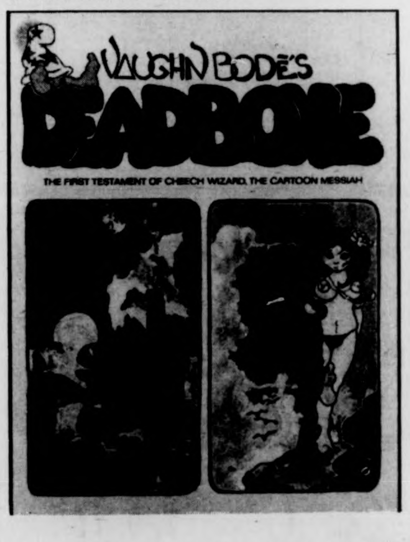
That's O.K.!

We still offer Steak, French Fries, Garlic Bread, and choice of Salad or beverage, every night from 5 — 8 p.m. in the Bluewall for TOC members and their guests, all for $1.99.

Even if you missed our opening you can still enjoy our discount; just bring this ad for 10% off.

(offer good till 4/15/75)

CHEECH WIZARD PRESENTS—



VAUGHN BODE'S
DEADBONE
THE FIRST TESTAMENT OF CHEECH WIZARD, THE CARTOON MESSIAH

Now brought together and beautifully printed in a deluxe hardcover volume by Northern Comfort Communications! Cheech Wizard takes you on a high consciousness trip to Deadbone Mountain, a billion years ago, where dark unknown forces work Earth's first attempt at Organic Sanity atop a black volcanic mountain four miles high! From Whispering Wind Hook down through Moaning Cry Gallery, into the labyrinth depths of Deadbone, Cheech narrates the incredible experiment of strange beings, lizards, and broads trying to become something like we are today.

"DEADBONE is becoming a standard classic of cartoon art."

Printed on high quality stock and hardbound in a 9" x 12" format, combined halftone & line reproduces this universe according to Bode's original vision. It is now available direct from Northern Comfort Communications, Dept. C, Main St. Smithers, B.C. Canada V0J 2N0 at $14.95 postpaid. Send cheque, M.O., or Bankamericard/Mastercharge number and signature.

Clip and mail with payment enclosed

Name: ____________________
Apt. no. _____ Address: ____________________
____
____________________ Code ____________________
No. of copies: _____ (at $14.95 ppd.) DEADBONE
Total encl. $ ________ M.O., Cheque, or please charge my Bankamericard, Chargex, or my Mastercharge, no. ____________________
Expires: ________ Signed: ____________________

A Limited Edition is available, numbered 1-250, luxuriously bound in simulation leather and individually signed by Vaughn Bode, at $75.00 a copy. Either edition refunded within 10-day return period ©NCC

UMass women hold caucus

On Saturday, April 5, the University Womens Political Caucus will hold its third meeting in the Campus Center. At that time, the groups will gather the various signatures collected for its position paper, decide on the appropriate way of delivering it to the administration, and discuss further plans of acttion.

The Caucus represents a large and diversified grouping of women staff, faculty, and students from all parts of campus and form a wide variety of political orientations. The groups purpose is twofold: 1) to provide a communications network for women throughout campus and 2) to provide a way for these women to take political action to insure that in this period of financial stress, support for programs and services for women be, not only continued, but increased.

The Caucus is open and welcomes all women. The meeting is from 10:30-12:00 on Saturday, April 5, 1975.

notes & quotes

Racism coalition shows free films

The Five College Coalition Against Racism today will sponsor two films commemorating Dr. Martin Luther King. "From Montgomery to Memphis" and "Martin Luther King: The Man On The March" will be shown free of charge at 7:30 in Campus Center 113.

A discussion is planned for after the films. Representatives from different organizations have been invited to take part in the discussion and answer questions. Rick Savini, president of the Student Government, will speak on budget cuts. Others include Norman Oliver, Socialist Workers candidate for Mayor of Boston, Ray Sherbil of the National Students Coalition Against Racism, and members of the local branch: the Five College Students Coalition Against Racism. Paul Mischler of the Young Workers Liberation League will also be there.

Free local government books available

It's bright green, free and flips up. What is it? It's the newly revised edition of Your Amherst Government distributed by the Amherst League of Women Voters.

The 44 page booklet includes a brief history of Amherst, structure of town government, community services, and election information. New features include citizen participation, an index, and references.

Though the booklets cost $.40 each, they are distributed free to the community as a public service. Booklets can be picked up at the following locations: Amherst Savings Bank, Louis' Foods, Hamilton Newell, D.H. Jones, First National Bank, Rowe's, Town and Country Realtors, Bill's Arco Service Center, Blair, Cutting and Smith, Cronopios Books, and Ralph T. Staab. These local businesses helped defray the costs of the booklet and are listed in it. In addition, the booklets will be given to contributors in conjunction with the League Finance Drive being held April 1-16.

The booklet was revised by Esther Dimock, Elaine Mange, and Kathy Masalski. They were assisted by Nancy Eddy, Diana Romer and Allen Torrey. The cover design and illustrations are by Dorothy Fraser.

Rep. Collins holds office hours in CC

Representative James Collins will hold his regular monthly office hours on Saturday, April 5th in Room 801 of the Campus Center. Collins, who is chairman of the special committee on nuclear energy and a member of the Education Committee will be in rm 801 from 11:45 to 1:15.

GIBBS
SELF SERVE
SAVE AT THIS SIGN

Gibbs saves money for those who help themselves.

WEEKEND SPECIAL (Lower than our usually low prices)

FRIDAY and SATURDAY ONLY

Regular Gasoline Only

45.9¢

Includes all taxes

110 Russell St. (Rt. 9)
Hadley

Appearing
TONITE
Real Tears

SAT. & SUN.
Mitch Chakour

at

Rusty Nail Inn

Rte. 47 Sunderland
665-4937

notices

ALPHA ZETA

Monthly meeting, election of new officers on Tuesday, April 8 at 6:30 p.m., Room 164 C.C. Attendance mandatory.

AMHERST SINGLES

Amherst singles is having a drop-in on Sunday, April 6 at 8:00 p.m. at the Farley House just north of the University Stadium on the UMass campus. Please join us.

BOOGIE

At the party you've heard all about. Direct from Boogieville the Thundering Luther Johnson Chicago Blues Band. Tomorrow nite at 8 p.m. Guaranteed to be better than last year's bash.

BICYCLE REPAIR COLLECTIVE

The BRC is open for business at 51 So. Prospect St. in Amherst. We'll fix your bike for you or teach you how. Open 10-6 Mon.-Sat. Call 256-6852.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST

Slide show "God in Nature", slides from across the country showing God in nature. 7:00 tonight in Room 101 C.C.

CAR WASH

Saturday, April 5, 10 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Zayre's parking lot, Rt. 9. Sponsored by the J.O.E. Program. Clean a winter's-worth of dirt from your car and help the kids. Only $1.00.

DO YOU SHOP AT THE CASUAL CORNER

If you like the merchandise Casual Corner offers, come hear an executive from the company tell the "behind the scenes" details, and what Casual Corner can offer you. Small gifts and refreshments. April 8, 7:00 p.m. Skinner Rm. 119,

EASTER WORKSHOP

Easter has 50 days, celebrate it with us. Informal Lord's Supper, dinner, fellowship at the ARK 758 N. Pleasant St. Sunday, 5:30 p.m.

FREE FILM

Peter Watkins, controversial film maker will be here as a DVP guest next Tuesday and Wednesday, April 8 and 9. On Tuesday his film "Punishment Park" will be shown free in Mahar at 4:00. Wednesday in SUB at 7:00 it will be shown again with his lecture.

GSS PLEDGE MEETING

Important pledge meeting Sunday night in CC 802 at 8 p.m. All pledges of Gamma Sigma Sigma must attend if you wish to continue as a pledger.

HOUSE CHURCH – UCF

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Pete's house, 559 South Pleasant (5th house on the right south of Jeffrey Lane, exactly one mile south of Rte. 9 intersection). For ride or info, call UCF at 545-2661. United Christian Foundation offers this as a part of its ecumenical campus ministry to the whole campus. All welcome.

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

The sisters and pledges of Iota Gamma Upsilon invite all university women to a grinder supper on Sunday, April 6 at 4:30 p.m. 406 North Pleasant St. Call for rides 5-0082. Come and bring your friends.

ATTENTION

St. James's Gate will not be at Hampden Dining Commons tonight. Sorry – it was cancelled.

OPEN INVITATION

Come hear Christian rock group Joshua. Friday 8:30 p.m. at Hampshire College, Paterson Hall, East Lecture Hall. Saturday 8 p.m. at Smith College in the Gamut.

OPEN RUSH WEEK

Pi Lambda Phi will officially be starting Rush Week on Tuesday, April 9. All UMass men are invited. We're on 14 Elm St. at 256-6837, please call for info and rides.

POLISH AMERICAN CULTURAL ASSOC.

Will hold meeting on Wed., April 9 at 7:30, C.C. 165, lower level. Topics will be: formal dance, raising funds, new budget for next semester.

RECREATION SOCIETY

Come and hear Sally Hamilton speak on communications! April 7, 7:30 (7:00 Rec Society general meeting) Rm. 162-175 C.C. Please come. We want a good turn out.

SOP

There will be a meeting of the Art Support Group for Student Unionization at 8 p.m., Sunday, April 6. Hampden Dining Commons SW organizing Cntr.

SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY

Will present "Million Dollar Movie Themes" on April 6, 3:00 in Springfield's Symphony Hall. This nostalgic afternoon will include selections from "Funny Girl", "The Sting", and many others. "Tubular Bells" will also be performed. Student tickets are available and can be obtained from the Symphony office 739-4728.

UNITARIAN SOCIETY OF AMHERST

On Sunday, April 6, Jacqueline Van Voris of Northampton, Women's Federation speaker, will conduct the morning service at 11 a.m. Her subject is entitled, "Women Hold Up Half the Sky." Coffee hour at 12.

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARY

University Judiciary will meet tonight at 6 in Room 901 C.C.

LOST

Female black labrador, front white toes, named SOMA, Belchertown license No. 298. Lost near Quabbin in Belchertown. Please call Scott at WMUA, 545-2876. Leave message.

LOST

Sedwick, Conversation in Spanish and yellow composition pad. Also, a red notebook was found at Candy Counter on Monday, March 31. Call 253-3966 and ask for Mary.

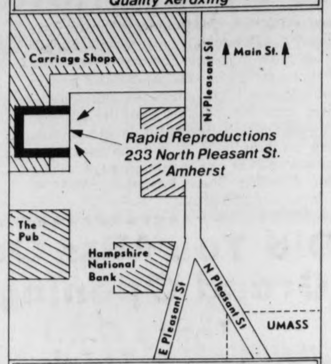
OPPORTUNITIEU IN FILM

Any students interested in a summer opportunity in film – a Warner Bros. Observation Program (June 23-August 15) stop in the Student Activities Office, S.U.B. or call 545-2351 for info before April 9.

Legal studies applications

Applications for legal studies major must be complete by April 25. Materials for those interested in applying can be obtained from the Legal Studies Office, 219 Hampshire House. Students should begin their negotiations with a faculty member in the Legal Studies Program in time to submit their proposals by April 25.

Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing



Mon·Fri 9·9/Sat 9·6
Sun 11·7
549-0566

Rapid Reproductions·
QualityXeroxing

High Grade Thesis Reproduction
BOND PAPER · RECEIVE YOUR COPIES BY AN ASSURED DATE

CLEAN
CONCISE CORRECT
COPIES

Call in advance and reserve a date for your copying: 549-0566

Amherst Carriage Shops
233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst
Mon Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6/Sun 11-7

SALE

FABRICS
25¢ per yd. & up

CURTAINS
50¢ per pair & up

MADRAS SPREADS
Sale Priced

BROWN'S
178 No. Pleasant St.
(Across from Wearhouse)

come see

• This Saturday •
April 5, 1975 at 8 p.m.

MADAME BUTTERFLY

A CHICOPEE OPERA CO. Presentation

starring: Dolores Vincent & N. Y. Company chorus & orchestra - Pasquale Ruisi, Conductor

EDWARD BELLAMY SCHOOL
Pendleton Ave., Chicopee

ADMISSION
$10.00 & $8.00
Senior Citizens & Students $5.00

Reserve Seats..
call 532-3266

Tickets On Sale At The Door
DOORS CLOSE AT 8 p.m.

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426

NOW

Thursday thru Monday

Elvis was the god, James Dean the martyred hero and people still spoke of Sandra Dee.....

That'll Be The Day
PG
DAVID ESSEX
RINGO STARR
KEITH MOON
MEL BROOKS'
BLAZING SADDLES

Plus

Eves: Blazing Saddles — 7:00; That'll Be The Day — 8:45
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

Deerfield Drive-In
Route 5 & 10 So. Deerfield

"A fun drama about a swinging lady!"

NO ONE UNDER 18 ADMITTED!
X

RUSS MEYER'S
VIXEN.
IN EASTMANCOLOR
RESTRICTED TO ADULT AUDIENCES
PRODUCED / DIRECTED BY RUSS MEYER. AN EVE PRODUCTION

ALSO

RUSS MEYER presents
'COMMON-LAW' CABIN
Love that doesn't wait on ceremony! EASTMANCOLOR a shanty with dirt floors ...and STEAM HEAT!
an EVE PRODUCTION
formerly
HOW MUCH LOVING DOES A NORMAL COUPLE NEED?

Showtime — 7:30
No One Under 18 Admitted
Police Officer Will Check I.D.

SAT.
7, 9, 11
CCC

SAT.
7, 9, 11
CCA

Jimmy Cliff
THE HARDER THEY COME

OPEN HOUSE

featuring

Slippery Elm

at

QTV Fraternity

Corner of N. Pleasant and Fearing St.

Friday, April 4 8:00 – 1:00

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

DOLLAR NIGHTS MON & TUES
ALL SEATS $1.00

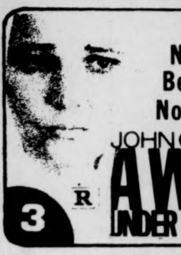
1
MEL BROOKS'
7 & 8:45
R

BLAZING SADDLES

or never give a saga an even break!

2
"THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT"
It's more than a movie. It's a celebration.
7 & 9
G

3



7 & 9:45
Nominated:
Best Director
No Dollar Nite
R
JOHN CASSAVETES'
A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

• To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily – $.35 per line
Weekly – $.30 per line
Monthly – $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $660. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers; high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

Nikko 4040 stereo or quad receiver. 20W rms-channel, or 11 WX4 channel (quad). 3 mos. old. List $350. Sell $190 or hear and make an offer. Matt 6-7009. Also, smaller advents for $120.

A brand new Polaro ID 440 camera with flash. Used only once. Best offer takes it. Call 253-3707. Keep trying.

Minolta SRT-101, 58 mm F1.4, case and extras, ex. cond., $190, 788-4678 aft. six.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

Commodore Calculator – 4 basic functions, invese, sq. root, memory, percnt. $40. K. Hanson. 6-4897.

Pair Dynaco A25, 7 months old, perfect condition. 546-6727.

Sanyo refg. Best offer. Call 6-7209.

Come blow your horn! "Olds" trumpet, excellent cond. $100 or best offer. Call 6-9548, Steve.

Head tennis racket. A. Ashe Competition. Hardly used, orig. $60, sell $40. 549-3857.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Used apt. furniture for sale. 256-8068.

Golden Retriever puppies. AKC registered, beautiful championship stock. Wonderful family dogs. (802) 257-7028.

AKC German Shep. pups. Top champ. lines. Excel. temper. $125. Call 253-7610.

Black and white 16" ZENITH. Almost new, has WARRANTY! Call 256-8997.

Going Out of Life Sale, April 5, Grove Street off N. Whitney. Everything goes.

SR-50 Calc. Tex. Ins. TR, $75. Judy, 253-5054.

1964 VW, good cond., recently tuned, 30 mpg. Asking $375. Call 773-7960.

Black bean bag, $15; blow dryer, 400w, $5. Call Crystal, 6-8393.

FOR SALE

Bundy, S. Model clarinet, $50. A1. 253-7687.

Gibson ES-335, good cond., $275. 253-5745.

Framus 5-string banjo and accessories, $160; Toshiba reel to reel tape deck and 30 tapes, $60; paint and brush case and 30 tubes oils and more, $20. Call eves. Scott, 542-3119.

ORGANIC FERTILIZER, composted cow manure, $25 a truck load, delivered. Call 665-4198 after 8 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

Great 70 Fiat 850 Coupe looking for good home. 40 mpg. $695, cheap! 253-7967.

68 Chev., Seedy looking, great running, good transportation. $395. Bob 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new exhaust, runs well. $250 or best offer. 253-7967.

58 Peugeot 403, sunroof. Bring a battery and drive it away! $100. 253-7967.

64 Corvair convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer takes. 253-7967.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

Wanted – Volvo P1800 in good repair. Joan. 256-8989.

'67 VW $400 or B.O. Call 247-9358.

'68 Dodge Dart, 20 and 23 mpg., 74,000 miles. Old, w-AM-FM stereo radio. Asking $775. W-out radio, $675. Call after 6. 253-3344.

'64 Volvo, 18005, 4 sp., overdrive, body gd., runs exc. 57,000 mi., 25 mpg. $850. 256-6319.

1968 Pontiac Catalina, 4 dr., hardtop, cosmetically and mechanically good. Low mileage. Asking $650. 542-5563. Ask for Henry.

'69 Dodge, auto., p.s., exc. condition. $600. 256-8487.

1970 Toyota Corolla, exc. mech. cond. Allan. 253-3107.

1964 Dodge panel truck. Rebuilt eng. Must see. $550. 527-9410.

4 Sale – Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

'62 Jaguar 3.8 MKII, excel. cond. 253-5560.

1968 Ford custom 500 st. wgn., excellent running cond. 18-21 mpg., nw. brakes & clth. Asking $575. Call Bill at 549-0803 after 5. Leave name.

1965 Chevy Belair, $125. 665-2882 after 5.

1967 Ford Cntry Sqr., $600 neg., good cond. Judy, 253-5054.

For Sale – 1966 Buick Skylark, good cond., new bat. and exh., $300. Call 545-2163, ask for Dennis B.

1966 VW square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Honda 450, eng. totally rebuilt. $700 or best offer by April 14. 253-7637.

1967 Honda 305 – motor ex. cond., new batt. $300. Call Gary 253-2892 or 546-8505.

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

'65 Honda S-90. 7700 mi. Runs well. 253-7610.

Amh. – New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw. disp. tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

Motorcycle tires, used. All will pass inspection. $4 to $10. Call for sizes. Russ at 256-0544.

For Sale – 1970 250cc, Yamaha Street. Ex. condition. Call 665-2893.

1974 Honda, XL250, 680 miles, like new! Call Russ at 256-0544 for more info. $935.

FOR RENT

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

One bedroom efficiency on bus route. All utilities. June 1 - Sept. 1. Call 665-3367.

Cape Cod. Falmouth. 2, 3 and 6 bedroom cottages, winterized, furnished. Walk to beach. Full season only. Owner. 1-203-521-6841.

Room in house. Lg. fire-pl., pri. bath and storage. 2 mi. to cam. on bus rte. Sub. Apr. & May w-opt. $115. All util. inc. Call 256-8271.

Four bedroom house in Northampton for Sept. Rent $275.00. Call Skibiski Realtors, 584-3428 between 3-5 p.m.

Room for male student – country living, share bath, kitchen, lounge. 4 miles from UMass, $75 mo. Call 253-7841.

TO SUBLET

Apt. to sublet, 2 to 4 needed. $70, util. 3 bedroom, kitchen, piano, lovely view of sun. From June 1 til Sept. 1. Call 549-1275 right now.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

Four bedroom apt., util., furn. inc. June - Aug. Neg. Amherst 253-2433 on bus. 2 miles to U.M.

Sublet June 1 to Sept. 1. Brandywine Apt. Furnished. 549-6547.

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month on bus line. June 1-August 31, opt to renew. 546-6333.

To sublet: 2 bedrm. apt., Cliffside, in Sunderland, June 1-Aug. 31; tennis, pool free. Security deposit. 665-4310. Call evenings. Keep trying. Late.

Sublet with option to renew two bdr. townhouse, Squire Village, June 1. $170 per mo. plus utilities. Call 665-3280.

Beautiful Townhouse apt. available June-Sept. with option to renew. 3 bdr., w-w carpeting, AC, swimming pool, ever green enclosed patio, fully modern kitchen and plenty of room to roam. Will rent furnished if desired. Call 549-6804 evenings.

TO SUBLET

June-Sept., 2 bdrm. $175. Pool w-utl. 665-3953.

Apt. Squire Vil. Sunderland. June 1 thru Sept. 1. Call 665-4871. $240 including util.

Sublet June 1-Aug. 31. Lg 3 rm. apt with extra lg. bedrm. Brandywine, heat and a.c. incl., opt. to renew lease. Call 549-4577 anytime.

Lge. 3 bedroom apt. available June 1st in Amherst. Call 256-8435.

Puffton, 2 bdrm. apt. Start June 1. 549-6385.

3 bdrm. Squire Vlg. Sublet June 1, option to renew. 665-3821.

House from Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0521 anytime. B.O.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

Female – Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedrm., furnished apt. on Bus line. $110. 253-7967.

Own room in Puffton Apt. All utilities. $75 mo. 549-4524.

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer – close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

M or F wanted for summer cottage in Dennisport. 15 wks. $375. 549-1365. Dana.

Own lg. room in Hatfield. Country home w-land. 10 mi. from Amherst. No lease. $61 plus utilities. 247-9358.

1 or 2 roommates wanted. Lg. rm. in Deerfield. Country home. Garden space. Rent negotiable. Call Laura 247-9358.

ROOM WANTED

Priv. spacious room in country near UMass by June 1. Call grace 545-0790.

HELP WANTED

Applications are now available for employment with conference housing. 25 positions available including clerks, housekeepers, and night mgr. Further information and application forms may be obtained at off. of Residential Life, 233 Hills N. Deadline for returning applications – 4-14-75. SCH is an affirm. Action Employer.

Typist wanted to transcribe tapes. Must have cassette recorder. Call Dave at 549-6804 or at the Collegian, 545-3500. Rates negotiable.

WANTED

Wanted tires for '71 Pontiac Catalina, J78, 15". Also sell new, (500 miles), 14" radials. 542-5101.

Want to buy '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant Slant -6. $225. Call Jeanne 549-1312 eve.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $, for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

TYPING

Students. Avoid last minute rush. Have papers etc. typed early. Call 253-7454 or 253-7145.

PERSONALS

Judy. Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis. 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Cape Cod anyone? We need one or two more people to share a house in W. Yarmouth. If interested, call Dave 6-7008 before noon.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0600.

Wanted Prospective wife, green and white. Call 617-335-2591 or write Apt. 11, 10 Mediterranean Dr., Weymouth, 02188.

$300.00 in prizes! Dance Marathon for Muscular Dystrophy. Call Kitty, 253-9034.

To Doll – Number six was for nix, but number seven will be heaven – Hun.

Al – I'm tired of the Hatch. Let's go to the Big Bad Boogie. It'll be less $ and we'll have a better time for sure!!!!

Lala – happy birthday. Hope they're happy forever. Jude.

Cindy – thanx shitloads for all that typing! Mary – thanx for machine and moral support – in dreamland. Love, Roomie, Bell.

Little Kid – things look better all the time. You're such a sweety. Pigeon.

Gay Catholics – Your church cares, do you? For info, counsel, rap, write to Dignity, Box H488, Forest Park Sta., Springfield, Ma. 01108.

Congratulations Linda and Dick, with all my best wishes, Judy.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

So America and Galapagos Is., 1-4 month experiences, low cost. For brochure write: NEW WORLD EDUCATIONAL TRIPS* P.O. Box 2131, Salinas, Ca. 93901.

SERVICES

Yogapiano. 549-6321. Carole Shanti.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS – All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

SERVICES

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job to small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR – expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

UMass Music Theater Guild will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance", April 3, 4, 5 at 8 p.m. and a Sunday, April 6 matinee at 3:30 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $2.00 students and under 18 years, $2.50 others. On sale at Arts Council Box Office, 125 Herter Hall, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and two hours prior to performance at Bowker Box Office. Reservations and information – 545-0202.

THIS WEEK IN THE BLUEWALL. Tuesday, April 1, Fat. 9-1. Wed. and Thurs., April 2 & 3 Night Hawks. Fri. and Sat., April 4 & 5 Forest. 9-1. Sunday, April 6 Jazz Jam Session. At the Toc. Thurs. Sat. Pzazz Dixieland Jazz Band.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Blues week in the Hatch. Bill Colwell and Luther Johnson, Wed. & Thurs., April 2 & 3; Big Screamin' McGrew & Bill Colwell, Fri. & Sat., April 4 & 5, 9-1.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

Party of the Century – 25c beers, peanuts, music, prize. No cover. 19th floor, Washington. Fri., Apr. 4th. 9:00. Win a case of Heiniken!!

Need we remind you of the Big Bad Boogie tomorrow nite at 9 p.m.?

FREE

Puppies. Free. 253-6380.

MISCELLANEOUS

Wanted bird nests for cash, resident 110, Cliffside, Sunderland. 03175.

Hand-tamed hooded rats, light and dark. M & F. 50c ea. 549-6449.

To those interested in Christian Community: Contact the Wesley Cooperative. We are located at 10 Pleasant Ct. in Amherst, a 10 min. walk from UMass. Call 549-6663 or come to an open house April 4th, starting at 7:45 p.m.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10. Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

Vietnam speaker set for meeting of Valley Peace Coalition in CC

On Sunday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m., the weekly meeting of the Valley Peace Coalition will host Louise Bruyan. She will speak on the current situation in Vietnam. The meeting will be open to the public and will take place in Room 813 of the Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst.

Louise Bruyan was last in Vietnam two months ago, on the second anniversary of the signing of the Paris Peace Accords. While there, she visited and talked with Madam Ngo Ba Than, a well known political prisoner of Thieu. Additionally, on the day of the anniversary, she and eight other Americans staged a demonstration in Saigon in solidarity with the Vietnamese people, and against Thieu's failure to honor that agreement.

Classics talks are scheduled in Herter Hall

The Classics Society will present a series of informal talks by members of the UMass Classics department and guest speakers.

Tuesday, April 8 Prof. David Dickinson, UMass Math Dept.: "Metaphor"

Thursday, May 1 Prof. Elizabeth Will: "Roman Amphoras and Underwater Archaeology"

Thursday, May 15 Prof. John Marry: "Power Politics and Education: Problems for the University in Plato's Time and Our Own"

All talks will be at 4:30 in Room 301 Herter, followed by refreshments and discussion. All are WELCOME!

Pearls of WISDOM

BY THOMPSON

With the wisdom of a scientist, Louis Pasteur called wine "the most healthful and hygienic of all beverages." And Pasteur knew what he was talking about, since his discoveries about [illegible]ization revolutionized the [illegible] industry.

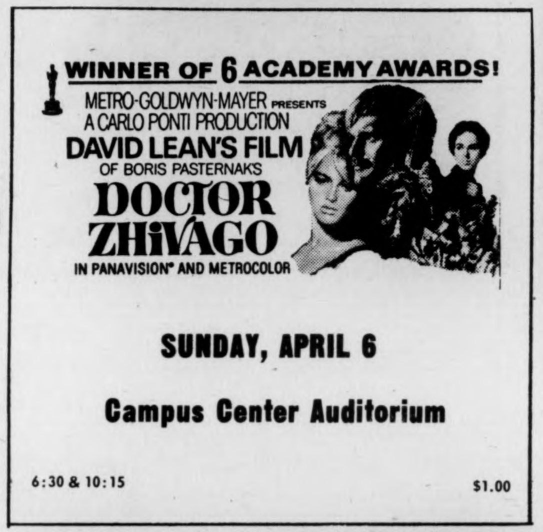
* * *

The philosopher Plato, with the wisdom of vast experience, called wine "the remedy for the moroseness of old age."

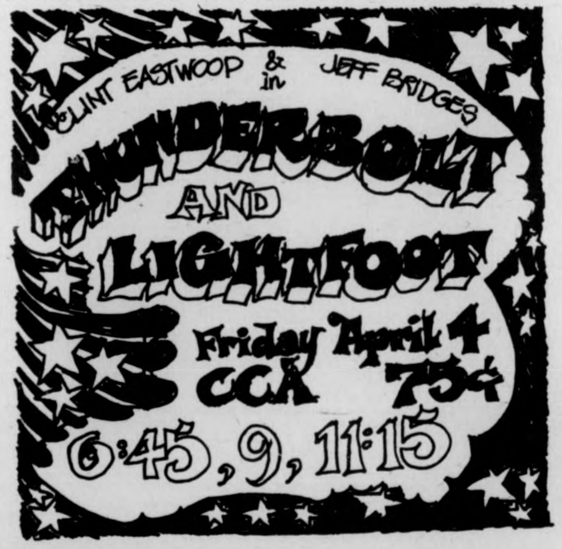
And many lesser philosophers among us have seen it also as a treat for the young, a pleasure for the middle-aged--a luxury item for men and women of all seasons.

* * *

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
only area showing
Mat. Sat.-Sun. — 2:00
EVES — 7:00 & 9:00
NORTHAMPTON MASS 584-8435
WALT DISNEY'S FANTASIA



WINNER OF 6 ACADEMY AWARDS!
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS
A CARLO PONTI PRODUCTION
DAVID LEAN'S FILM
OF BORIS PASTERNAK'S
DOCTOR ZHIVAGO
IN PANAVISION AND METROCOLOR
SUNDAY, APRIL 6
Campus Center Auditorium
6:30 & 10:15 $1.00

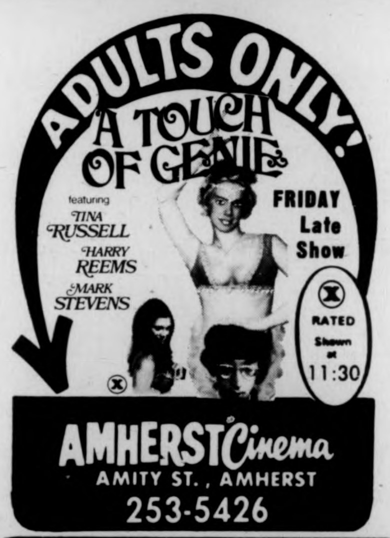


CLINT EASTWOOD & JEFF BRIDGES in
THUNDERBOLT AND LIGHTFOOT
Friday April 4
CCA 75¢
6:45, 9, 11:15

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS
BEST PICTURE · BEST DIRECTOR
...all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
"THE STING"
4:45, 7:15, 9:45
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:15-4:45 Only
1 PG
They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
2 PG 5:00, 7:30, 9:45
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:30-5:00 Only
DAVID O. SELZNICK'S PRODUCTION OF MARGARET MITCHELL'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
STARRING CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
3 G 7:45
No Twi-Lite Hour
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny"
4 R Nominated For 6 Awards
5:00, 7:30, 9:45
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 4:30-5:00 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST. NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW NOW
Nominated for 11 Academy Awards
The Godfather PART II
Best Picture Best Actor Best Director
R RESTRICTED
2nd SMASH WEEK!
Eves: Godfather II — 7:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES · ALL SEATS $1.00

BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR
NEW YORK FILM CRITICS
JUDITH CRIST
ROGER CORMAN Presents
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
Directed by FEDERICO FELLINI Produced by FRANCO CRISTALDI
STARTS WEDNESDAY
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR THEATRES



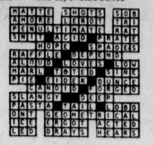
ADULTS ONLY!
A TOUCH OF GENIE
featuring TINA RUSSELL HARRY REEMS MARK STEVENS
FRIDAY Late Show
X RATED Shown at 11:30
AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST., AMHERST
253-5426

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5·6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
· CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE ·
STREISAND & CAAN How Lucky Can You Get! Funny Lady PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00
warren beatty julie christie · goldie hawn SHAMPOO R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30
NOMINATED FOR 2 ACADEMY AWARDS YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:35; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:45
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny" A Bob Fosse Film Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 10:00; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50
Nominated for 8 Academy Awards THE TOWERING INFERNO PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:15; Fri., 7:00, 10:15; Sat., 1:30, 4:15, 7:00, 10:15; Sun., 1:30, 4:50, 8:15
What could be better than The Three Musketeers? THE FOUR MUSKETEERS PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:45; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

UNITED Feature Syndicate

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved

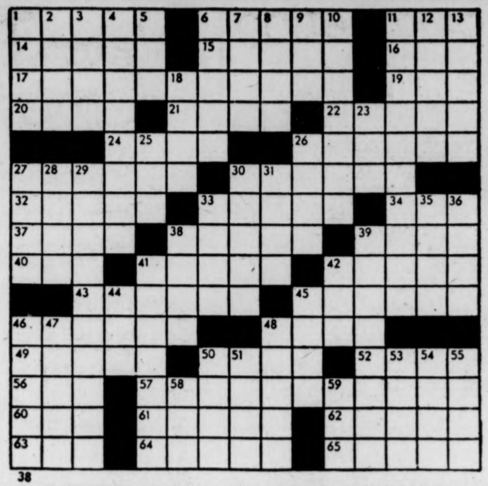


ACROSS

1 Lending institution
5 Display garments
10 Vehicles
14 Drug plant
15 Siouan language
16 College exam
17 Singer ---- Bennett
18 Famed instrument maker
20 Rock
22 Outer limit
23 Bookkeeping entry
24 Stove chambers
26 For every
27 London area: 2 words
30 Utter in a silly way
34 Have in mind
35 Postal material
36 Comedians Bob and ---
37 Ending with gang and gag
38 Gain skill
40 Helper
41 "--- Joey"
42 Elaborate dinner
43 Nervous giggle
45 Servile
47 Football players
48 Reply: Abbr.
49 Flat-bottomed vessel
50 Large fishing net
53 Finished first
54 Chou -- ---: Chinese VIP
58 Prices paid for entry
61 Curse
62 Turkish generals
63 Negative phrase: 2 words
64 Give off
65 Hebrew letter
66 Miniscule
67 Groove

DOWN

1 Nocturnal mammals
2 "Thanks - ---!"
3 Taboo joke: Informal
4 Convention speaker
5 Time periods: Abbr
6 Seaport of Belgium
7 Mends
8 Mild oath
9 Was in first place
10 Hidden
11 Semite
12 Italian seaport
13 Long narrow cut
19 Goal
21 Flat
25 Infinite
26 Computer part
27 Fleeting traces
28 Inner: Anat
29 Inscribed upright stone
30 Equal footing
31 Hackneyed
32 Cargo stower
33 Starers
35 Feminine name
39 Ordinal suffix
40 Ministered to
42 Imposes a penalty
44 "Gloomy Dean"
46 Fade to nothing
47 Artillery piece
49 Actor Richard -----
50 W. German state
51 Sharpness
52 "-- -- sure as I can be"
53 Erudite
55 Asian monk
56 In the center of
57 Preposition
59 Occupy a chair
60 Low place



38

Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

FRIDAY, April 4 — Born today, you are an exceptionally stable individual who should have little or no difficulty adjusting to whatever life brings you. This is especially true when it comes to your personal relationships, for no matter how close the ties of friendship, how fearful the awareness of enemies, you are able to adapt your behavior as well as your thinking to the attendant situation or circumstance. You understand the difference between fact and fiction when it comes to success or failure; you never mistake one for the other and you know to live with either.

You have keen intuitive powers in combination with a great deal of common sense and the kind of good judgment that should lead you to considerable success well before your middle years. What you need, however, is a partner who can put the results of your intuition, your good sense, and you judgment to some sort of profitable use. You need to learn how to sell yourself and your product, how to bargain for and protect your own interests.

Because you may impulsively select your companions, you must be on guard against the wrong choices. In spite of your good judgment, you are somewhat susceptible to flattery — which means that another can get the best of you simply by playing up to the worst in you. A good observer, you nevertheless sometimes make the mistake of weighing another's character according to what you wish, not what you see. Fortunately, you know how to live with mistakes.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Saturday, April 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Move quickly — but carefully — today if you would get done all that is on the agenda. Don't be afraid to enlist the aid of friends and neighbors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Though the day may seem to move forward slowly, by late afternoon or evening you should be able to realize the kind of gain you've been hoping for.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Take into consideration all aspects of the current situation on the home front before you make up your mind about younger family members.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — A job well done begins to pay dividends this weekend. Be ready to grant credit to others, even as you are ready to take credit for yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Keep to routine activities this morning, but make the afternoon something of excellence. Where children are concerned, speak softly — and directly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't take things as representative of what they merely seem to be. Make an effort to get to the bottom of things before judging them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Take care that too much activity does not tire you in excess. You need to keep reserves of energy intact for participation in evening adventure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — The later you complete a project, the better it should be in the long run. Don't expect others to come to your rescue unless you call for aid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — This is a Saturday which could prove to hold the key to all your future success. Make yoursif responsible for your own actions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Take things slowly and easily early in the day. Afternoon hours are favorable for new activities; evening hours bring new contacts.

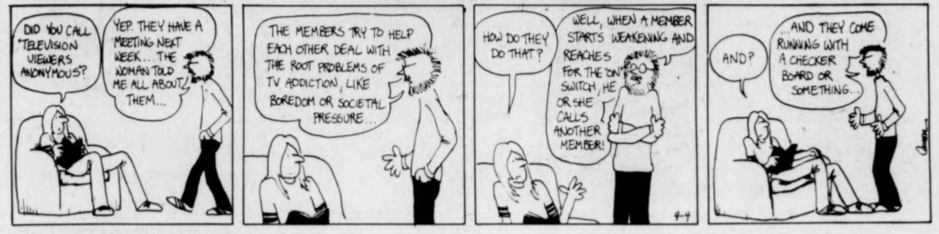
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Get the most out of existing conditions surrounding a new project. Adapt to changing circumstances late in the day. Children bring new joys.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — If you are inventive, you may be able to solve the day's difficulties in a new and highly successful manner. Seek peaceable encounters.

United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

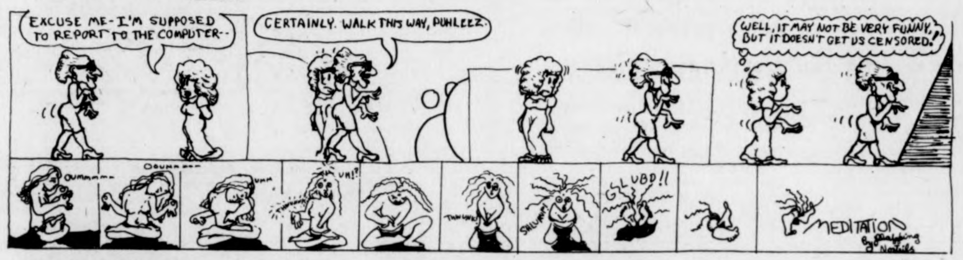
DIZZY & PAUL



DID YOU CALL "TELEVISION VIEWERS ANONYMOUS"?
YEP. THEY HAVE A MEETING NEXT WEEK... THE WOMAN TOLD ME ALL ABOUT THEM...
THE MEMBERS TRY TO HELP EACH OTHER DEAL WITH THE ROOT PROBLEMS OF TV ADDICTION, LIKE BOREDOM OR SOCIETAL PRESSURE...
HOW DO THEY DO THAT?
WELL, WHEN A MEMBER STARTS WEAKENING AND REACHES FOR THE "ON" SWITCH, HE OR SHE CALLS ANOTHER MEMBER!
AND?
...AND THEY COME RUNNING WITH A CHECKER BOARD OR SOMETHING...
4-4

By Kris Jackson

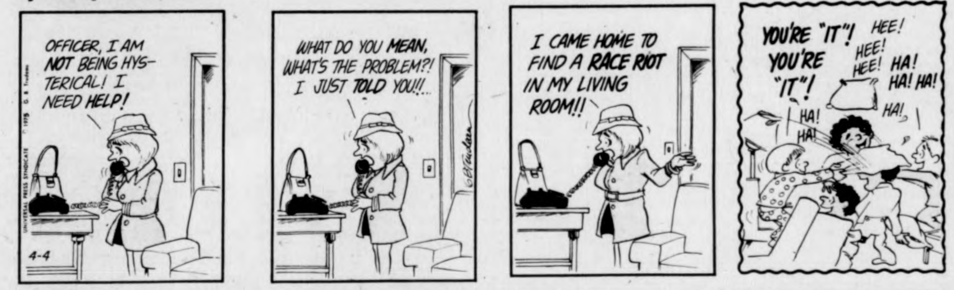
KAMPUS KAPERS



EXCUSE ME- I'M SUPPOSED TO REPORT TO THE COMPUTER--
CERTAINLY. WALK THIS WAY, PUHLEEZ.
WELL, IT MAY NOT BE VERY FUNNY, BUT IT DOESN'T GET US CENSORED!
OUMMMM
OOUMMMM
UMM
UH!?
THWUNK!
SHLURP!
GLUBD!!
MEDITATION

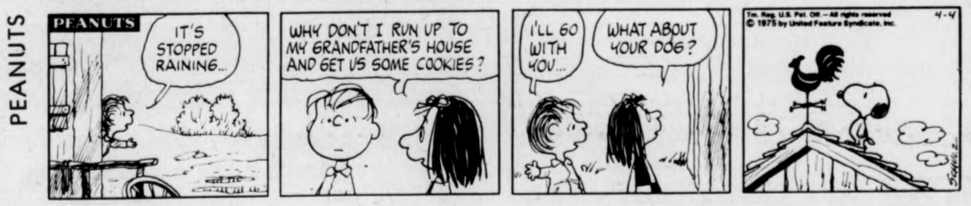
by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY



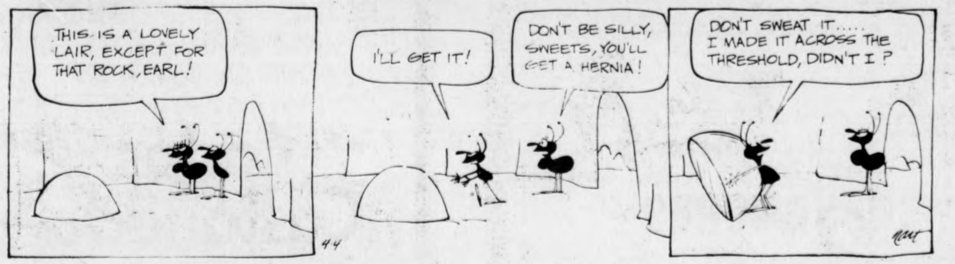
OFFICER, I AM NOT BEING HYSTERICAL! I NEED HELP!
4-4
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, WHAT'S THE PROBLEM?! I JUST TOLD YOU!!...
I CAME HOME TO FIND A RACE RIOT IN MY LIVING ROOM!!
YOU'RE "IT"! YOU'RE "IT"!
HEE! HEE! HEE!
HA! HA! HA!
HA! HA!
HA!

PEANUTS



PEANUTS
IT'S STOPPED RAINING...
WHY DON'T I RUN UP TO MY GRANDFATHER'S HOUSE AND GET US SOME COOKIES?
I'LL GO WITH YOU...
WHAT ABOUT YOUR DOG?
Tm. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. — All rights reserved © 1975 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.
4-4

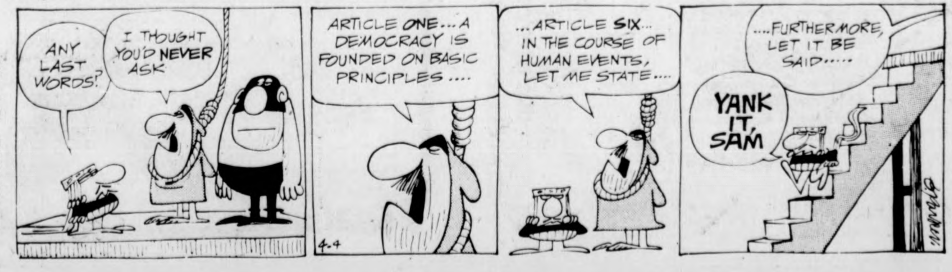
B.C.



THIS IS A LOVELY LAIR, EXCEPT FOR THAT ROCK, EARL!
I'LL GET IT!
DON'T BE SILLY, SWEETS, YOU'LL GET A HERNIA!
DON'T SWEAT IT..... I MADE IT ACROSS THE THRESHOLD, DIDN'T I?
4-4

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID



ANY LAST WORDS?
I THOUGHT YOU'D NEVER ASK
ARTICLE ONE... A DEMOCRACY IS FOUNDED ON BASIC PRINCIPLES....
...ARTICLE SIX... IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN EVENTS, LET ME STATE....
....FURTHERMORE, LET IT BE SAID.....
YANK IT, SAM
4-4

Graduate students can help choose Ed School dean

In accordance with University policy, the Faculty Assembly of the School of Education proposed that Chancellor Bromery appoint a Search Committee with the charge of conducting a thorough search for suitable candidates for the position of Dean of the School of Education. The Search Committee for a new Dean will convene in early April. The School of Education graduate students will be part of the overall committee. The nomination and selection of two graduate student representatives is now in progress.

The criteria for nomination are:

--Student must be available to serve through, at least, the Fall 1975 semester.

--Student has ability to represent a broad cross-section of opinions within the School and be committed to soliciting the opinions of others.

--Student has demonstrated his-her commitment to the School of Education (e.g. participation in school governance, cluster committees, teaching, etc.)

Student has an awareness of the major issues that have confronted the School of Education over the past six years.

School of Ed

Course interviews to be next week

The interviews will be held April 7-11 for the following programs at the School of Ed.

Integrated Day Teacher Education Program. Call William Masalski for appointment, 545-1577, or sign up in Room 208 School of Education. Interviews will be held Tuesday, 10:00-12:00; Wednesday & Thursday, 1:00-3:00.

Juvenile Justice. Call Janice Gamache for appointment, 545-3620, Room 466 Hills South.

Math Education. Call Portia Elliott for appointment, 545-3190, Room 212 School of Education.

Media Specialists. Call Ann Harris for appointment, 545-2455, Room 14 School of Education.

Off-Campus Teacher Education Program. 545-1538, Room 100 School of Education. Drop-in interviews Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10:00-12:00; Tuesday, 1:00-3:00. Call for appointment at any other time.

Science and Social Studies Program. For program information and advising call Leverne Thelen (Science), 545-1572, Room 404 Hills North; and Albert Anthony (Social Studies, 545-1570, Room 405 Hills North.

UMass' 'Big Lu'

Freshwoman standout

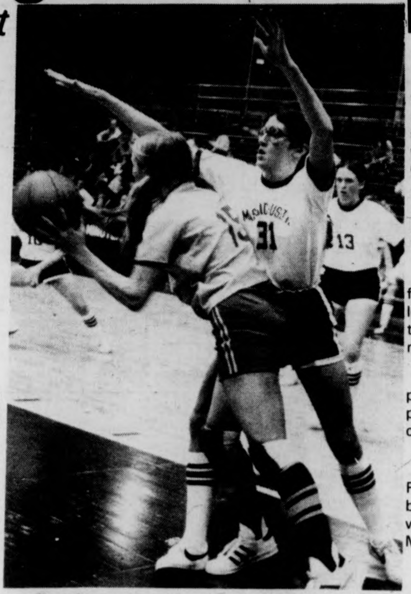
By GREG LEVINS

Throughout this past basketball season cries were heard echoing through Nope's partially filled gymnasium saying "Go Big Lu!". But contrary to pupular belief Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (alias Lew Alcindor) was not the recipient of these encouraging cheers. The real subject of these outbursts was Lu Ann Fletcher, a 5'11" freshwoman center from Auburn, Mass.

The two time Auburn High School MVP and senior tri-captain immediately made her presence known by nailing down the starting center position. In only her first season for the 'Minutewomen Lu Ann established herself as a constant offensve threat and a top notch rebounder. When the season came to a close the first year performer had led the team in 8 of 13 major categories, and finished second in the other five. Lu Ann canned 158 points (second to Nancy O'Neil) for a 11.3 average and ripped down 172 rebounds (12.3 average) while playing in all 14 of the UMass games.

Lu Ann described the transition from high school ball to college as "Not too difficult. The play in high school is more individually oriented while in college you must learn to play as a team to win." She also felt that because she was given the opportunity to step right into the starting lineup she became a better player. "Because I played so much I became more aware of what I was doing both right and wrong."

Looking ahead to next season, Lu Ann foresees a vast overall improvement in the team. "I really hope we can get into the Nationals. I think that we have the potential if we play up to par. We have a lot of young players and this year's experience will help us just that much more." Personally Lu Ann hopes to "improve my defense an all around play."



Staff Photo by Debbie Schafer

Freshwoman standout LuAnn Fletcher forces action inside defensing earlier this season. Kate Stanne (13) is on the left.

Her coach, Carol Albert, noted that Lu "didn't have a strong start. Her inexperience showed in the first part of the season and she lacked self-confidence. But after the Worcester State game she began playing more aggressive and instinctively and from then on in she became one of the team's leaders."

A stylistic center rather than overpowering, Lu Ann will be counted on heavily in the next three years to control the boards and provide some inside offensive punch. Coach Albert also says of Lu Ann that "She's very interested in improving her skills and works hard at it. If she continues she'll have an excellent shot at being an All-American." Without a doubt Lu Ann Fletcher is an exceptionally talented basketball player.

Foreman to fight five

NEW YORK [UPI] - If Muhammad Ali can defend his championship against a stiff, then George Foreman figures he can take on five men on the same night.

And that is exactly what Foreman, making his first ring appearance since losing his heavyweight title to Ali in the predawn hours in Zaire last October, plans to do.

The sacrificial victims, who'll be put on public display April 26 at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, are Pedro Agosto, Terry Daniels, Mac Foster, Alonzo Johnson and Boone Kirkman.

"This will be something new," said the Towering Foreman. "I'll make it quick, one round for each man. That's five rounds of boxing."

The Canadian Boxing Commission has sanctioned the promotion as an exhibition, but the promoters still hope to clear $150,000 with a ringside ticket costing $20.

Foreman said he decided to fight five men on the same day, "So I can show the public I have the stamina to do it."

Daniels, who was knocked out in four rounds when he challenged Joe Frazier for the championship in 1972, said, "The promotion may be labelled an exhibition, but we have our pride. We'll be wearing competition gloves and I'll be aiming to ram my fist down his throat."

"If George is not taking this thing seriously, he could get hurt."

Daniels, however, conceded the promotion could take on all the trimmings of a "Carnival."

Foreman's five victims will each receive $7,500 and expenses for the exhibition, which will be shown live on ABC television in opposition to the CBS screening of the $250,000 winner-take-all tennis match between Jimmy Connors and John Newcombe.

The promoters declined to say how much Foreman will be paid.

Asked if he believed Ali would give him a shot at the title this year, Foreman said, "Who can say with that man. I really don't know.

"But I'll keep myself in shape and up there as a leading contender. I'll force his hand, just like I forced Frazier's and Norton forced mine. The public will demand we meet."

Hank Schwartz, vice president of video techniques, the outfit which has had a hand in the promotion of recent heavyweight championships, said it was not his idea for Foreman to meet five men on the same day. "George manages himself and it was his idea. We just went along with him."

Marathon is set for 17th

BOSTON [UPI] - The confusion level is mounting as fast as the pile of entry forms. Marathon madness is here again.

In two weeks, approximately 2,000 persons will answer the noontime gun at Hopkinton Center to romp 26 miles, 383 yards through the streets of eight Eastern Massachusetts Communities in the 79th running of the Boston Marathon.

As usual, no concrete information on names or numbers of entries is available concerning the April 21 Patriots' Day jaunt. But then, for most, the idea of running in the annual event is to gain personal achievement and display good fellowship rather than to set records.

The marathon used to be open to every would-be plodder but tighter qualification rules have been instituted over the past few years to keep the number of entries down. All entrants must show proof they have run a full marathon distance in less than 3½ hours in the past year.

"If we didn't have qualification standards, we'd have 5,000 entrants," said marathon director Will Cloney. "As it was, 1,388 runners finished in under 3½ hours last year."

One runner, Neil Cusack of Ireland via Tennessee State, covered the hilly course in 2:13:39-- the second fastest time in history. England's Ron Nill won the event in 2:10:30 in 1970.

Cusack, who won a Gold Sundust Medal with an inset diamond, is expected to run again along with twice runnerup Tom Fleming of New Jersey.

Water Polo season resumes at Boyden

By D. H. PUCK

UMass men's and women's water polo teams are returning rested and psyched to resume the second half of their '74-'75 season with matches against Boston College and Rensellaer at 9:00 a.m. at Boyden. After two weeks of preseason practice, Coach Bill McCafferty says, "this is the strongest team ever."

The women's team left off this fall with a record of 5 wins and 1 loss. They return this spring with all the old regulars and several new members.

Coach McCafferty is emphasizing hard shooting and pinpoint passing. Also the team's good condition has paid off.

They have already beaten Radcliff in a pre-season game before vacation, 7 to 4. Jane Welzel was high scorer, with Kathy MacDonald, and Deb Hoxsie also putting in goals.

The men's team is coming back after their first half record of 15 and 4. They also finished a close second in the New Englands' Division II Tournament at Brown this fall.

Julius Erving, a performer here at UMass during the '69-70 season and also in '70-71, has the team record to his credit for the four highest single game rebound totals. They are: 32 (Syracuse, 2-22-71), 30 (St. Mikes, 11-29-70), 28 (Providence, 11-2-69) and 28 (Maine, 2-21-70).

TIRED OF THE OLD TANK?

TRY A KAWASAKI THIS YEAR!

VALLEY MOTORSPORTS

348 King St. Northampton

584-7303

Grand Opening

Super Music

From the Discotheque begins at 8:00 p.m.

Poor Richards discotheque

500 new ludlow rd.
south hadley
route 20
westfield

AND NOW —
belchertown rd.
AMHERST

exchange this ad at the door of Poor Richards III, AMHERST, between 8-10 p.m. on 4/2 or 4/3 for coupon worth one drink.

Now available in low-priced Pocket Book editions

THE TEACHINGS OF DON JUAN
A SEPARATE REALITY
JOURNEY TO IXTLAN

three magnificent works by

Carlos Castaneda

author of
TALES OF POWER

Hailed by the N.Y. Times as "Utterly fascinating" and by Book World as "Staggeringly beautiful."

POCKET BOOKS $1.50 ea.

PAUL'S
Old Time Furniture
Millard Fillmore's Birthday Sale!

Paul's Old Time Furniture is having a sale on specially marked sofas, chairs and tables. In addition our usual complement of bureaus, beds, pictures, rugs, lamps and weird stuff. Located in the heart (the left ventricle to be exact) of Amherst.

57 E. PLEASANT ST.
(Corner of E. Pleasant & Triangle)
549-3603

SOPHOMORES

If Your Major Is:

Computer Technology
Aerospace Engineering
Civil Engineering
Electrical Engineering
General Engineering
Industrial Engineering
Mechanical Engineering
Mathematics or Physics

You may be eligible for a two-year scholarship and a commission in the Air Force — Call 5-2437 or stop by Rm. 205, Dickinson Hall.

UMass bowler has national status

By BEN CASWELL

Dave Dimmick, the leading member of the UMass bowling team will be competing in the Association of College Unions International (ACIU) national championships being held in Dayton, Ohio this weekend.

Dimmick earned the chance to compete in the National championship by winning the ACIU region I championships earlier this year. Region I is made up off all of New England, part of Canada and England.

Dimmick, a senior, Bachelors Degree in Individual Concentration (BDIC) major, has been bowling for 16 years, the last four coming at UMass.

"My BDIC is in bowling management," said Dimmick, "it's a business-oriented major and last semester I was on Outreach as an assistant manager of some bowling lanes in Northampton.

The athletic department does not give any funds the bowling team and it is actually qualified as a club.

"I prefer to call it (the club) a team," said Dimmick. "We've been working very hard to get it a varsity sport status and we're bowling for more than just a good time," he continued.

Dimmick has been running the bowling club-team for the past three years in addition to being one of its leading bowlers.

The national competition that Dimmick will be rolling in will include 32 contestants, two from each of the 16 ACUI regions. The 32 bowlers will roll six games in doubles and singles. The top 8 individual scores for those six games will go on to the finals.

"There is an interesting thing about the lanes that the competition is at," said Dimmick. "The condition of the lanes are usually ones that no one has seen so that no one can have an advantage over anyone else," he said.

Last year UMass sent Brian Elsden to the nationals and the year before Wayne Kowalski was sent. Elsden didn't make the finals and Kowalski finished sixth.

This year's qualifying scores for the nationals were somewhat low, Dimmick said. "A guy from California was the big shooter," said Dimmick, "but scores out of California are misleading because most of the houses block their lanes."

Blocking lanes is a oiling technique that is a little easier to catch a pocket for a big hit. The oil is heavy at the beginning of the alley and then tapers to the middle of the lane as it gets closer to the pins. A ball thrown too much to the outside of the lane could be pulled in by the oil which a ball thrown too close to the middle could be held out to catch the pocket anyway.

This year's Men's and Women's bowling teams from UMass both won their respective Region I ACUI championships. The men's squad were the Regional champs last year.

Along with Dimmick, other leading members of the men's team are Elsden, Kowalski, Bill Fisher, and Barry Witt. The women's team is made up of Cyndy Adams, Barb Holt, Nancy Heglin, Ilene Dishler, and Karen James.

Dimmick said of his chances in the Nationals, "I know that I can go there and bowl my best, and if it's high enough I'll win."

Staff Photo by Stuart Eyman

Dave Dimmick

Staff Photo by Stuart Eyman

Jim Beard puts best foot forward during recent Minuteman practice. UMass meets SMU tomorrow in the "Corsair" tournament.

Weather,SMU Foes in Corsair Tourney

By STEVE SARACENO

A man stuck his head into UMass coach Dick Bergquist's office yesterday and demanded: "It's almost three o'clock. Why aren't you out at practice?"

Replied Bergquist: "Okay. Have you got any life preservers?"

Yes, that old bugaboo of New England college baseball — rain — was around again (quite abundantly) yesterday, bringing with it the disruptive effect of forcing workouts once again inside under "The Dome" — as the locals are wont to call the Cage.

So it comes as no surprise that the Minutemen, having already completed one southern trip to escape the grouchy weather (and coming back from down North Carolina way with a poor 2-5 mark) now esconse on another one — that is, if you call Dartmouth, Ma. south.

They'll be competing tomorrow and Sunday in the Corsair Tournament at Southeastern Massachusetts University, along with New Hampshire, Eastern Connecticut, and the host SMU.

UMass takes on SMU Saturday at 12:00, and who they play Sunday will be worked out from there.

SMU, though a college division team, is no slouch. Last year they went 22-9. "They've got a good program," says Bergquist. "Bruce Wheeler (SMU's coach) has come down there and really pushed baseball."

Though the tournament games will count in the overall record, they're not do-or-die affairs and should the Minutemen meet UNH, the game wouldn't count in the Yankee Conference standings.

"We want to be prepared for the really important games, starting Tuesday," says Bergquist. That will be when UMass meets AIC in the home opener.

But before then, it'll be interesting to see how some question marks progress.

One of the biggest — the catching situation — appears so far to be a case of you - can't - always - get - what - you - want, but - sometimes - you - get - what - you - need. Co-captain John Healy is out with a shoulder injury ("He's taking cortisone shots now. Looks like ligaments" — Bergquist), but junior Jim Black has filled in capably enough to date — leading the club in hitting.

And we should get an inkling as to how the biggest question of all, pitching, is coming along. Allegrezza's much maligned arm is supposedly healed, and though he didn't set the world ablaze down south, he would've fared better but for some unearned runs.

In fact, it'll be interesting to see how it goes with the pitching staff in general, because last year when the Minutemen went 9-16 it just plain, well stunk, and this year it's been more of the same. But the stalwarts are back and will probably see action this weekend — Allegrezza, John McManus, Jeff Reardon, et al — and a year's experience has been known to produce effects.

But all the pitching in the world doesn't help if there's no offense, and though hitting heretofore has never been a UMass problem, to date, only Black, centerfielder Pete Backstrom (.379), first baseman John Seed, and third baseman Jerry Mondalto sport decent averages.

And everyone gets a chance to improve their respective marks, starting tomorrow at noon.

Crew opens spring slate

By BOB NORTON

The UMass Rowing Association will travel to Worcester and Lake Quinsigamond tomorrow for their first regatta of the spring season. The defending National Collegiate Champions will race with Trinity College (a Dad Vail Cup rival), and Worcester Polytechnical Institute.

A new and young coach, Bill Mahoney, has arrived on the scene after the departure of Mike Vespoli last spring and is conservatively optimistic concerning the crew's success. Mahoney indicated that "Trinity usually has many oarsmen with high school rowing experience. We hope to offset that advantage with better conditioning."

Rumor has it that Trinity Coach Graff is optimistic knowing that Bill Mahoney is a rookie coach and feels that he (Mahoney) may have cut out too big of a chore. Bill Mahoney hopes to bring an end to that myth by "defeating them soundly on Saturday." Trinity will race a varsity, J.V., and first and second freshman eights against UMass and a lightweight varsity eight against W.P.I.

W.P.I. will race their varsity four against UMass' third varsity four, and will enter a J.V. and freshman eight. Mahoney added that "W.P.I.'s varsity four has been training in Boston with some competition and contains some strong oarsmen."

The varsity boat coxwain is Andy Burton, sophomore, and will be stroked by junior Steve Loomer, with sophomore Dave Ferguson at seven seat, senior Peter Berg at six, sophomore Mike Melvin at five, senior co-captain Paul Gowen at four, senior co-captain Bill Fitzpatrick at three, senior Bill Vose at two, and senior Jim Bouzianis in bow seat. The J.V. eight will be coxwained by sophomore Mark Lyle and stroked by junior Jonathan Hill, with junior Ray Maagero at seven, junior Doug Frost at six, junior Kevin Connor at five, sophomore Dick Suess at four, sophomore Dave Burke at three, junior John Moynihan at two, and sophomore Dave Snyder in bow seat. The third varsity four will be coxwained by sophomore Rich Berg, stroked by sophomore Ted Mone, with junior Ron Brooks at three, junior Dave Assad at two, and sophomore Bob Cullen in bow seat.

Yankee Conference whistles 'travelin' tune'

BOSTON [UPI] — Yankee Conference football teams hope to play nine exhibition games in Western Europe in June 1976 to introduce the sport overseas, the league's athletic directors announced Thursday.

The plan must be approved by officials of the six individual schools.

Proposed cities for the nine game tour are Milan and Rome, Italy; Barcelona and Madrid, Spain; Munich and West Berlin, Germany, Vienna, Austria; and Istanbul, Turkey.

The proposed program, already approved by the NCAA, will be sponsored by sports promoter Robert Kapp of Dallas, who hopes to start an "Intercontinental Football League" in Europe.

The participating schools are the Universities of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maine, and New Hampshire and Boston University.

GRAY'S SUGARHOUSE

Pancakes, Waffles, Country Sausage & Bacon,

Homemade Apple Pie.

Beaver Meadow Farm — 2 mi. north of
Ashfield Center — 625-6559
Serving Weekends 9-6

Come Saturday — Avoid the Crowd

Each member account insured to $40,000
NCUA
by Administrator, National Credit Union Administration

UMASS Student Federal Credit Union is
NOW OPEN
*10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Weekdays

*Each member account FULLY insured up to deposits of $40,000 by the National Credit Union Administration.
*Food Stamp operations begin in 2 weeks.

If you have any questions or desire information concerning interest rates on loans, savings, etc., PLEASE do not hesitate to call us at 545-1994 or stop in Room 166 of the Campus Center.

CARLO of Naples State Street, Northampton

54th Member of the World Famous Restaurant International

B.
Y.
O.
B.

Our menu consists of 62 items (Italian Food only) and an average spending of $2.25

Your Host, Carlo, is a special student at UMass

WINDSHIELDS REPLACED

COMPLETE GLASS SERVICE
VALLEY Auto Trim
and Glass Shop
798 N. King St., 'Hamp.
584-4837 1 mi. no. of Godfather's Rte. 5
Installation WHILE YOU WAIT!

Gym men at Nationals; fair showings

UMass men's gymnastics competitor's in the Nationals in Terre Haute, Indiana Bill Brouillet, Peter Lusk, and Steve Marks last night opened their bids for national honors, competing in the compulsory events.

Brouillet performing on the parallel bars, did the best of the three in scoring an 8.65.

"Bill did a pretty good job," said Coach Tom Dunn in a long distance telephone interview. "He is in 14th place right now and he has a good chance to move into the top six to make the finals," Dunn said.

Peter Lusk did not fare as well. His compulsory score was 7.85 only good for about 25th place.

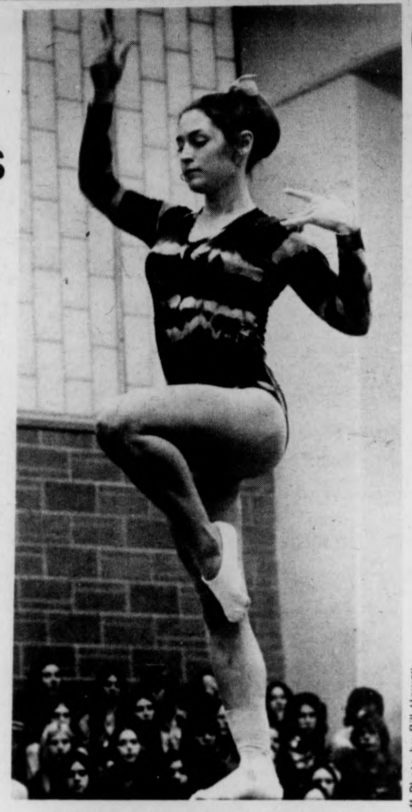
Dunn only commented on Lusk's performance by saying that, "he did not do his best."

UMass' third competitor Steve Marks equaled Brouillet's point total of 8.65, Marks' score coming in the long horse vaulting.

"I thought his score was a little low for how he did," said Coach Dunn. Marks' performance was enough for a 19th place standing after the compulsories.

The optional events begin at 1:00 p.m. today the top six scorers in each event after combining the compulsory and optional scores will move into the finals on Saturday.

FLYING FINISHES--The leading team scores after the compulsories were as follows: UCal-Berkley-213, Louisiana State University-211, Southern Illinois-208, University of Michigan-208, and Indiana University-205...Nebraska got snowbound in Chicago and was not able to make it to the meet...Dunn said that if Brouillet and marks hit their optional routines they could sneak into the top six and make it to the finals....Jay Whelan, brother of former UMass gymnast Gene Whelan was given the Nissen Award, the Heisman Trophy of gymnastics...The Southern Connecticut gymnast was honored for a combination of sportsmanship, academic excellence, and gymnastics ability.



Staff Photo by Bill Howell

Jeannine Burger on the balance beam. Jeannine and her teammates hope to propel themselves into national prominence by winning the Nationals.

Gymwomen set, Nationals begin

By BILL DOYLE

Hayward, California — "The nationals are it."

So said Coach Virginia Evans about tonight's association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) national gymnastics championships in which UMass will be seeking its second championship in three years.

Tonight at 6:30 the Minutewomen will try to forget about the injuries that have been nagging them all season. The aches and pains will be put aside for one last time, in hopes of regaining the title.

Senior all-arounder Jeanine Burger, who will be competing in the last meet of her career, said that she hopes to peak in her last effort.

"I might as well because after the nationals, I'm through competing forever," she said.

Evans said that UMass would have to peak in order to take the championship and that a score of at least 108 would be necessary to win.

After the Easterns she said that the team hadn't even peaked yet, and now she said that she hopes it will tonight and she thinks it can.

All-arounder Ann Olson said that she thinks the team will come through with its best effort of the year.

"Whether that is enough to win, I don't know," she added.

Evans lists the top four schools in the championships as UMass, Southern Illinois, Southwest Mississippi Junior College and Springfield College.

"It should be extremely close among those teams," she explained, "or there is always the possibility that one team will put it all together and that the others will all break."

It will be a match of depth, the strong point of all four teams, Evans said.

For the first time, UMass will have six gymnasts competing in all four events in the Nationals, which allows more room for error.

Burger, Olson, and Susan Cantwell will compete in the all-arounds for UMass. Pam Steckroat, usually an all-arounder instead of Olson, is out with a compressed fracture of her vertebrae.

In vaulting UMass will have Linda Nelligan, Gail Hannan, and Cherl Smith. Margie Magraw, Debbie Law and Nelligan will compete on uneven bars. Hannan, Maraw and Smith will be on the beam, and Alicia Goode, Law and Smith will be on the floor.

Five of the nine gymnasts have competed in the Nationals previously, with Cantwell, Smith, Law and Magraw all competing for the first time.

"We have a young team," Evans said, "and it's the first team that myself and Mike Kasavana, assistant coach, have really had a strong influence in recruiting, so in a way I'd like to win this one a little more."

But in order to do so, UMass will have to overtake Southern Illinois and Southwest Mississippi, the defending champions and runners-up, respectively.

The top 12 gymnasts in each event tonight will qualify for the individual finals which will be held at 7:00 p.m. tomorrow.

Any gymnast who scores a 35.0 or better in the all-arounds tonight will be eligible for the United States Gymnastics Federation (USGF) elite compulsories, which are the qualifications for the Pan American games, International World Games, and Olympics. The compulsories will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:00 p.m.

Garber's Gorillas anxious to play, face Dartmouth in home opener

By BEN CASWELL

The UMass Minutemen lacrosse team, better known as Garber's Gorillas, will try once again to open their 1975 home season this time tomorrow at 2:00 p.m. against Dartmouth.

Yesterday the Gorillas were washed out of their contest with the University of Connecticut. That game has been postponed to one of two dates, either April 14 or April 29. The decision on the date will come next week. The game will still be a home contest for UMass.

The Big Green of Dartmouth used to be one of the top lacrosse powers in New England but the last few years have been ones of mediocrity, according to UMass Gorilla head coach Dick Garber.

Dudley Hendricks, the Dartmouth coach, said that he was optimistic about a good season for his team this year.

Hendricks is in his third year as the Dartmouth coach. He came to the Hanover school from Navy, a perennial lacrosse power.

Last year in their final game of the season the Gorillas demolished Dartmouth, 25-5.

The postponement of yesterday's game because of the weather was somewhat disappointing to the Gorillas. "It's been a week since we played those games on Long Island," said Garber, "and now the team is just looking forward to playing again."

Although the Dartmouth squad may not provide top notch competition Garber said that he still expects a good match. "I always expect a tough game," he said, "I think that our team is probably a better one than their's but if we play well we should win the game."

SCOOP SHOTS — In the injury department, Garber reports nothing but a lot of bumps and bruises ... Garber hopes that the field will be in good condition because as he puts it, "bad field conditions are a definite equalizer of good and bad teams." Game time tomorrow behind Boyden is 2:00 p.m.

Inside Sports

- Minutemen have star on the rise
- Baseballers take to the road.
- UMass bowler in nationals

Trackmen home; open with quadrangular meet

By SCOTT HAYES

Like a sprinter trying to get a good start out of the blocks, the UMass track team will approach the starting line of the 1975 season, Saturday, when they host Boston College, Boston University and Amherst College in a 1:00 p.m. meet at the UMass track.

Boston College, a team which had the capability to have won the indoor New Englands but finished second behind Northeastern, should enjoy an edge in frist place finishes. The Eagles boast some talented individuals including Keith Francis, Phil Hazzard, Neal Green, Joe Dray and Jerry Leppo. The versatile Francis will be competing in either the mile, the 880-yard run or the quarter-mile. Hazzard captured IC4A (Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America) 50-yard dash honors and Green placed second in the New England dash. Leppo is a 6-6' high jumper who is capable of scoring points in his event. The Boston College sprinters give the Eagles relay strength as well.

Dray appears to be a triple threat in the weight events. The BC weightman was third in the New England discus last year and is one of the top hammer throwers with performances like his 180-5 heave. According to coach Ken O'Brien, Dray can't be matched by any of tomorrow's competitors and should receive little opposition in his quest for a triple victory.

The Eagles also have a strong half-mile and middle distance crew that is comprised of Ed Becker, Neal Vercollone, Steve Lowell and Bill Charland. The BC mile relay team placed first at the indoor New Englands.

BU's top individual performer is Jim Taylor, an exceptional miler. The Terriers have several good hurdlers, a few impressive sprinters and quarter-milers, but O'Brien doesn't feel BU will be in the running for the meet's number one team. "BU will steal some points, but they shouldn't be a threat," commented O'Brien.

Amherst has a team that is very similar to BU's squad. Captain Darryl Hendricks is a good all-around athlete who will probably compete as a sprinter, hurdler and jumper, but the Lord Jeffs are a relatively weak team. Mark Stadler is the only other outstanding individual for Amherst. A solid decathlon competitor, Stadler should pick up some points for Amherst in the 440-yard hurles.

The jumping events will be important for the Minutemen because BC, BU and Amherst are weak in the long jump, triple jump and pole vault. Along with the discus and javelin, where UMass has considerable depth, good performances in the jumping events may help decide the outcome of the meet.

The trackmen will have several team members competing in two events and Joe Martens will be taking part in three. Martens will high jump, run the 220-yard dash and one leg of the 440-yard relay. Curt Stegerwald will run the hurdles and the mile relay while Mark Healy will see action in the 440 and mile relay. Bob and Ken Adamson will compete in the long and triple jumps and as always, are expected to contribute their share of points.

Of course, everyone knows that a good jump at the gun is critical, so tomorrow's meet will be an important part of the eight week sprint to the New England Championships.

Staff Photo by Jim Hunt

Curt Stegerwald (right) hands off to Steve Crimmin, one of the tri-captains for the outdoor season, in relay action last month. The trackmen open their Spring schedule when they host Boston College, Boston University and Amherst, tomorrow at 1 p.m. at the UMass track.

VC gunners shell Saigon

Marines, fleet ready evacuation

From wire services

SAIGON — U.S. Marines are prepared to land in Saigon to evacuate Americans and some Vietnamese if major fighting or chaos breaks out, informed sources told the Associated Press yesterday.

At the same time, four U.S. helicopter carriers capable of evacuating all Americans from South Vietnam in two waves stood by off the Vietnamese coast southeast of the capital.

The four huge ships normally carry a total of 8,000 combat-ready U.S. Marines.

Meanwhile, Viet Cong gunners firing from as close as eight miles outside the center of Saigon hit the capital's suburbs early today in the first shelling of the Saigon area in the current offensive.

All recent shellings of the capital and its suburbs have been minor — 10 or 15 rounds of rocket at the most. Saigon command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said government artillery hit suspected Communist gun sites shortly after the attacks began at 2:25 a.m. (2.:25 p.m. EDT) yesterday.

turn to page 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 42 AMHERST, MA. MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1975

weather

Oh where art thou Spring, the Wise Man asked;
It may come Tuesday with 50's high,
But for today wind and 40's will be the uncomfortable facts of the day.

dorm move possible

Over 21 rule may end

By LARRY KORNFELD
Staff Reporter

The University rule that exempts students over twenty-one from mandatory dorm living will probably be eliminated, according to Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert Gage.

However, he said that no final decision will be made until April 11. Gage said yesterday that legal complications are involved with keeping the dorms system mandatory.

"Our attorneys have reminded us of this ever since last spring, so this is nothing new. This has been supportive of the move for a voluntary dorm system," he explained.

The decision on whether the dining commons will be voluntary next year has been postponed until April 10. Gage said he "doubts" right now that the dining commons will be voluntary but emphasized that it is still an "open issue."

The future of the residential life system will not go before the Board of Trustees until their June meeting. The Trustees make all final decisions.

On why the decision has been postponed, Gage said, "We need more reaction from the students."

The obstacles he mentioned to voluntary dining commons is "somehow we have to be sure it will be used by enough students to pay off the debt service." He added, "It presumably will require a utilities fee."

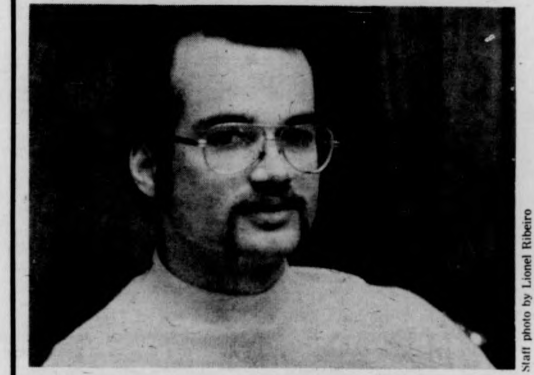
Gage rejected the idea of having the administration absorb the cost of making the dorms or dining commons voluntary saying, "Costs that have to be picked up by the university will be picked up by the students one way or another anyway."

"People talk glibly about cutting the administration. By doing that at some point you cut down on the University's ability to respond to the students," he claimed.

He also said the registrar's office now has to be closed one day a week in order to process all the students requests. If we dismiss more administrators, we will have to have days when offices are closed, said Gage.

Inspite of the fact the voluntary dorm system has been postponed till January '76. Gage said, "We should still move to a voluntary dorm system as soon as possible."

The principle administrative officers will discuss the voluntary dining commons issue today. The student residential life task force will be meeting with the administration on dining commons, the proposed rent increase and including students over twenty-one in the dorm requirement this week, according to Gage.



Staff photo by Lionel Ribeiro

Mike Narkiewicz, station manager of WSYL, still awaits word from the FCC concerning a broadcast of a false news item last Wednesday. (story p. 2)

Staff photo by George Withers

David Booth, Secretary of the Faculty Senate, wants more student contact. (story p. 2)

SCER's Magid defends transient candidates

By JUNE VALLIERE
Staff Reporter

"Transients pay a phenomenal amount of taxes through rent," said Lawrence Magid, director of Student Center for Education Resource.

The reason given by six Amherst residents that students do not have the same interests as town people because they are not taxpayers is a false assumption, according to Magid. These six people, who felt students would boost taxes by voting for "grandiose projects," sent a list of candidates to voters in Precinct I listing the candidates who they felt were transients.

The list of town meeting members stating each candidate's address, age, occupation, and if they were registered in Amherst last year was sent Thursday to all voters in Precinct I by six residents from that district.

Printed at the bottom of the list was a statement saying that the petitioners felt town meeting members should not be "transients."

Magid said, "Students contribution in taxes is far larger than the taxes paid by residents, in accordance to incomes." Apartment renters pay 24 per cent in property taxes, according to a survey taken in Boston. "Therefore, Magid said, "$24 of the $100 students pay in rent would go toward property taxes." The Average student's income is $3000 and ten per cent of this would be

turn to p. 3

Wood sets new guidelines for management of grants

By BILL DENSMORE
Staff Reporter

A tough new set of guidelines to faculty holding grant contracts for federal funds, put into effect last week, will eliminate lax policy which resulted in alleged misuse of funds at the School of Education.

The guidelines, put into effect with trustee approval Wednesday, were written by President Robert C. Wood's staff with the advice of Treasurer Kenneth W. Johnson. They apply to all grants and contracts with outside funding agencies, public or private.

Under the new rules, any grant worth more than $100,000 per year must be reviewed by campus Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery before acceptance. If it is more than $500,000 per year it must be OK'd by the President's office.

The overall effect of the rules, contained in a six-page, single-speced document dated March 26, will be to centralize grant operation within Whitmore and the President's office, instead of with faculty.

Wood told trustees in a statement: "Some who have reviewed these guidelines in draft form have commented that their implementation could add significantly to the administrative burden associated with even a relatively small grant.

"While I agree that there will be some procedural burdens resulting from these guidelines, clearly the University's interest in maintaining confidence in its grants and contract administration is overriding."

Wood described the rules during a press briefing after Wednesday's trustees' meeting and put them in the context of a response to possible funds abuse at the School of Education. He said the new policies will:

—"focus in the Chancellor's office responsibility for research and development management."

—move "large and unique" projects to the President's office.

—force both academic and administrative supervisors to countersign payments.

—place absolute fiscal responsibility for the acceptance and management of grants with the Treasurer's office.

Funds abuse at the School of Education provide an example of eight ways the new policies will alter grant responsibility. In his trustee report, Wood said misuse at the School was partly because it allowed grant managers to administer their own funds.

A grant manager - technically called a "principle investigator" - is the UMass faculty member in whose name a federal grant of funds has been obtained.

The grants under FBI scrutiny at the School had listed former Associate Dean Atron A. Gentry as

turn to p. 3

Staff photo by Henry Doldoi

The UMass women's gymnastics team is pictured here holding their plaques they received for finishing second in the nationals this past weekend. (See story page 20.)

More funds for Spectrum denied by Student Senate

By SUSAN LARNED
Staff Reporter

With $89,000 cut from the Student Activity Tax Free (SATF) budget request from student organizations and projects have been cut and appeals for more money denied.

Spectrum, the student literary and fine arts magazine, requested $31,100, a $17,900 increase over this year's budget. Spectrum received $15,000 without an inflationary increase of $2,000.

Chip LaLonde, editor of Spectrum, appealed for more funds before the executive committee of the student senate.

The appeal was denied last Monday. LaLonde said, "This is illogical, off-base. They don't take into consideration Spectrum's importance."

LaLonde said he requested a big increase because Spectrum "is the only outlet on campus for creative purposes and has been disproportionally cut.

Before the executive committee LaLonde presented facts, figures and a petition with 412 signatures collected in one day in the Campus Center.

"This meant nothing to them," he said, "They had their minds made up."

At present, Spectrum is rejecting 94 per cent of the work submitted by students. In 1970 their percentage of the budget was 4.4 per cent, and they now stand at 1.3 per cent. "All we ask is to be maintained at 3 per cent of the budget. The $2000 increase doesn't even keep up with inflation rates."

In a rebuttal, Jon Hite, a member of the budget committee, agreed that the magazine is a "vital part of the University community," but "the committee does not feel that they can allow the increase."

Given the $89,000 cut, it is necessary for the committee to decide where the funds are going to go, said Hite. "This large cut was made," Hite added, "because the Senate feels that any decreases in the money spent would help the students."

"The group is dealing with a "subsistance" or "maintenance" budget, and no area has received any drastic increases. "We were told that the magazine could exist with this lower amount and publish one issue per year," said Hite.

LaLonde says, "I can't leave any stones unturned. I'll go to a higher source if there is one. I don't know why in the past Spectrum has been singled out, but I'm going to use every opportunity to find the money."

Staff photo by Berta Martone

Bracing themselves for the infamous UMass wind tunnel, these three students hope, in vain, for some Spring weather.

No word from FCC on WSYL Kissinger 'report'

By DIANE UNGAR
Staff Reporter

No word has come from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in response to the formal complaint made against a WSYL disc jockey last Wednesday, for his airing of a false broadcast.

The Collegian contacted the FCC office in Boston, Friday, at which time a spokesperson claimed to be unaware of Wednesday's incident.

Dean Collotta, who made the alleged broadcast that said Henry Kissinger was assassinated in Washington, D.C., was suspended from WSYL for the semester, according to Station Director Kathy Tierney.

FCC regulations demand suspension of operator's license for transmitting "false or deceptive communications." WSYL, the Sylvan Area Radio Station, is an amateur station and does not require licensing of any kind for its sixty disc jockeys.

Speaking of the FCC regulations Michael Narkewicz, WSYL Station Manager, said sessions are held at the beginning of every semester for all prospective D.J.s. Copies of station rules are then distributed, citing what can and cannot be done on the air.

The pending notification from the FCC is not expected to alter any of WSYL's present policies.

David Booth wants to know his students

By HEIDI STEPNO
Staff Reporter

The secretary of the Faculty Senate has a lot of work to do and the present secretary says the work cuts into time he used for getting to know his students.

David A. Booth, a political science professor said the only "disappointment" in the job as secretary is not becoming acquainted with his students in an informal way.

Academic affairs is the primary business of the Faculty Senate. They must approve courses, correct possible errors and improve curriculum. When asked for his opinion on the academic courses offered at UMass Booth said, "The University is in the front rank compared with other schools and it offers a wide range of opportunities. The quality of the faculty and the instruction prove to be a credit to its administration."

profile

The professor said he praises programs like OUTREACH and BDIC. Booth said he thinks they are "highly inventive" in their origin and help to provide a public service. "Not only are the students learning but they gain a sense of involvement within the community," he said.

He also approved of the courses offered in residential areas. He feels that this is one area in which educators need to concentrate. The classroom can often create an antagonistic atmosphere for students; residential areas are more relaxed and therefore help to provide a more valuable learning experience for some students, he said.

Every two years the Faculty Senate chooses a secretary from among its members. The job includes numerous duties which he assumes on July 1 of the year he is appointed.

Booth was chosen this year; prior to his appointment he had served a two year term as the presiding officer.

He came to UMass in 1967 after leaving his position as an assistant professor with tenure at the University of Kentucky. When he first arrived Booth was an assistant professor. He then acquired tenure after two years and became a full professor three years later.

The secretary serves as the administrative officer of the senate. He coordinates all its activities, concerning the councils and committees and ensures the observance of the constitution and its by-laws.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	BJ Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson
Associate Editors
Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth
Business
Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas
TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor	David M. Eibel
Darkroom	George Withers, John Stewart, Lionel Ribeiro
	Roberta Martone, Stu Eyman
Sports	Bob Higgins, Ron Arena
Night Staff	Susan Blethen, Nancy Delaney, Cut E. Shark

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

DPS at UMass honors Scuba Rescue Team

By ROBERTA MARTONE
Staff Reporter

The Department of Public Safety at UMass honored its Scuba Rescue Team Friday, for outstanding performance under extremely difficult conditions, said Captain Robert Joyce of the UMass Police.

Sergeant Richard Grader, and patrolmen David Grader, Robert E. Hawkins, and Jon C. Schmitter, all members of the team, received awards for their performance on Dec. 1, 1974.

At this time, a request was made to the UMass Police Dept. for the use of the team to assist in the recovery of two bodies allegedly present in Leverett Pond.

Thomas F. Weishel, 29, and his daughter, Shelburne, 3, had fallen through the ice while crossing the pond, according to reports.

The first of two dives was made by the officers in sub-zero temperatures, poor lighting conditions, and minimal radio contact, according to Joyce. The dive was unsuccessful.

On Dec. 2, another dive was made by both the UMass team and the Brattleboro Scuba team.

The body of the father was discovered by David Grader, of the UMass team, submerged in 15 feet of water. The body was then removed by boat.

"There was a great risk factor involved in these dives," the Captain said.

The Scuba Team evolved approximately ten months ago, and is the only police scuba team in Western Mass., commented Joyce.

"We feel they provide a valuable service to the surrounding community," he said.

The members of the team were certified by Robert Foote, a trainer affiliated with UMass when the team was first formed.

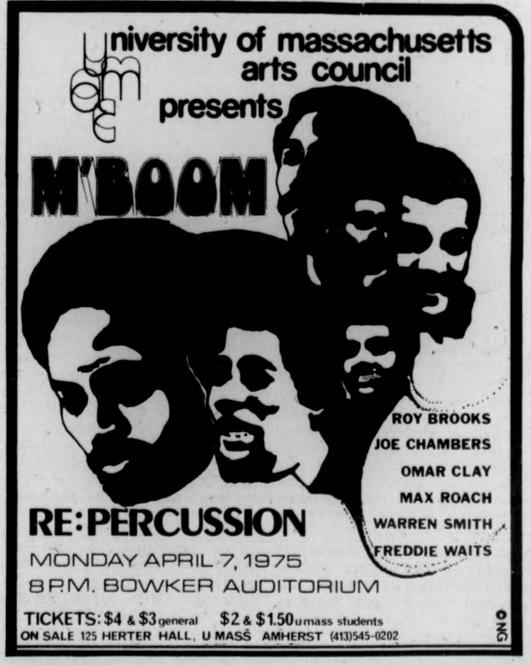
They are under continual training and make a minimum of one dive a month. The team practices at Lake George, Spafford Lake in Shelburne, Fall River, and Cape Cod, Joyce added.

"The team was formed because the men were already interested in diving, and because a lot of investigation people feel more comfortable if they know the divers are police. They know what to look for when it comes to evidence," Joyce said.

The men provide their own equipment.

Joyce said the team had no plans for expansion, as yet. They will be "weighing the value of the team when the weather changes."

"Hopefully, the team won't have to be used more often, but it's nice to know they're available," Joyce said. The December dive is the only such call the team has had this far.



university of massachusetts arts council presents

M'BOOM

RE:PERCUSSION

ROY BROOKS
JOE CHAMBERS
OMAR CLAY
MAX ROACH
WARREN SMITH
FREDDIE WAITS

MONDAY APRIL 7, 1975
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

TICKETS: $4 & $3 general $2 & $1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

PCP candidates claim they've been smeared

By BILL GONET
Staff Reporter

Town Meeting candidates from the Progressive Candidates Pool (PCP), charged Friday that PCP candidates have been victimized by a smear campaign.

The object of the PCP protest was a petition circulated Thursday in precinct one which, according to Floyd Bailey, a PCP candidate from precinct one, "tacitly labelled" as transients own meeting candidates not listed on a 1974 Amherst street list.

"It's unfortunate that a minority chose to imply that first year residents are not good material for public office," said Jim Starr, a precinct one PCP candidate who works for UMass Student Legal Services.

Starr was among six PCP candidates whose names appeared on the petition with "Not listed in 1974" printed next to them. PCP is a coalition of candidates interested in promoting the interest of tenants, students and similar groups.

"We think Town Meeting members should not be transients," appeared at the bottom of the petition which listed the names, residences, ages, and occupations of all precinct one Town Meeting candidates.

In a fifteen minute discussion, the eleven PCP candidates at the press conference Friday each attacked the petition from different angles.

"Transient connotes hobo or bum," said Bailey, who was listed as a "transient" on the petition.

Jim Starr described the petition as a "smear campaign" and said that precinct one PCP candidates will release a rebuttal on today.

Several PCP members at the meeting felt that the petition "unfairly" implied that short term residents and students aren't qualified to hold office because they lack responsibility, and adequate stake in the community, and sufficient background on public issues.

In response to this implied allegation, Carrie Jo Gershin cited the 24 town meeting warrants prepared by the PCP and the PCP's public issue data center as proof of the seriousness of PCP candidate commitment to the community.

A survey taken at the meeting revealed that 16 of the PCP's 44 candidates are non-students, many whom hold full-time jobs in Amherst.

John Pepi, a PCP candidate in precinct one added that transients have a right to be represented because "one-fourth of their rent goes to pay the landlord's property taxes."

Precinct spokesman reported the details of the campaigns in their respective precincts during the closing minutes of the meeting.

To win the PCP's 10 candidates in precinct one need 150 to 200 votes, the eight in precinct 2 need 200, the 10 in precinct 3 need 500, the eight in precinct 6 need 300, and the five in precinct 7 need 175.

To meet these estimates, prepared by the PCP from 1974 election results, PCP candidates are conducting door to door canvassing campaigns among tenants, students, and other voters whom the PCP feels are under-represented.

Precinct spokesman each reported that they are planning to provide transportation to the polls for voters who need it.

Michael Best faces decision on tenure

By KATHERINE A. WEYGAND
Staff Reporter

Michael Best, a controversial figure since coming to UMass in 1969, may or may not be recommended for tenure today.

Best, an economics professor, said he is "skeptical" about his chances for tenure.

"I think it could go either way, but the highest probability is negative," said Best. He feels that a negative decision has its roots back in his first years at UMass.

"Being on the left, I was labeled at that time incompetent and that label has stuck with me," he said.

Student pressure that Best said was "extreme" and "unprecedented" kept him here in his first two or three years when "tremendous struggle within the department" was taking place to have him re-appointed.

"I had a commitment to diversity ... students stood up and fought the issue and they were successful." Because of this friction, Best said, "I feel that the decision not to give me tenure was made back then."

Chairman and department personnel, as well as the Provost and Chancellor recommended to the board of trustees who should be tenured. However, all recommendations for tenure will be considered in the context of the overall needs and long range plans of the department, the School or College and the campus as a whole.

Best feels that according to these policies there is no real basis for a decision against him. In terms of his tenure, he feels that he has built a strong case in his favor, citing his many publications over the last two years, the fact that he has generally been in the top five to ten per cent of the faculty in course evaluations, and his numerous talks outside of the classroom.

Provost Robert L. Gluckstern, Best said, is under "pressure" to concoct an argument against Best since he can't appeal to bad teaching, lack of research, or lack of service. The administration, he points out, tends to insulate itself against democratic decision making; there is a lack of knowledge of the individual departments which creates a lack of understanding.

Phrases about "institutional needs" are excuses often used by the administration, said Best.

In Best's own opinion, he has done a good job in his years at UMass, having been instrumental in the transition of the economics department from a "mediocre" part of UMass into a very "exciting" and "interesting" one.

If there were student participation in the decision to give him tenure, Best feels "I'd get affirmative votes and strong support. People thought in the past that I manipulated and directed everything, but in fact I didn't. I just rode the wave."

He considers an appeal to a negative decision a "humiliating process. It's very important to me and always has been to maintain my dignity. I'd much rather leave UMass, with the accomplishments I'm very proud of than to have to be around here with the thought in the back of my mind that I had to get down on my hands and knees and beg."

Staff Photo by Mark Biletch

In preparation for the tri-centennial the University donated this statue of the 1975 UMie to the town.

Task Force issues its list of demands

By DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporter

The Task Force yesterday listed seven demands to be submitted to the University administration this week.

The demands, according to Tony Armelin, spokesman for the Task Force are no mandatory housing, no mandatory board plan, no increase in fees, no decrease in human services, improved academies, and re-examination and re-evaluation of the Office of Student Affairs.

"If a "satisfactory compromise" is not reached, said Ken Somers, Chairperson of the Task Force, "we are considering a strike as one of our alternatives."

The Task Force which has recently organized itself into three subcommittees, is "trying to educate the public to the ramifications of rent hikes, the proposed $40-$50 facilities fee, and proposed budget cuts by the Governor," according to Armelin.

We are trying to rally student support for the Task Force and its goals, through the liason committee.

"I know students are opposed to a $140 increase in their semester bill, and I am sure many students would like to help us organize that opposition," said Armelin.

According to Armelin, a combination of the facilities fee and rent increases would total to a $140 more than students will have to pay next semester.

The other two committees, media and strategy, are designed respectively, to establish an ongoing repoire with on-campus and off-campus media, and to develop a time line and tactics for dealing with the seven demands.

They are also working with the Coalition for a Peoples Budget, because "with the Coalition asking for an expanded budget and the Task Force asking for a general house cleaning, I think our combined philosophies indicate that students want the highest quality education at the lowest possible cost," said Armelin.

★ Management of grants set

cont. from p. 1

"principle investigator." But the grants were in fact run by another faculty member, Cleo Abraham, Collegian sources have indicated.

—Wood's new guidelines would appear to eliminate such third-party arrangements, forcing administrators like Gentry to take active control of grants.

—Since one grant in question, the Brooklyn-based Career Opportunities Program (COP) was for over $100,000 a year, it would have to be approved by the Chancellor's office and then continuously monitored by the Treasurer.

—Check requisitions must be signed by the grant manager, in this case Gentry, and the School of Education Dean. Third party faculty investigators can no longer initiate check requests under the new policies.

—Bills sent to sponsoring agencies must be prepared by the Bursar's office payable to the University of Massachusetts. Under investigation at the School of Education is a $13,000 check from the Malcolm X College in Chicago for which no bill from UMass was ever issued, news reports say.

—No university employee may open a private bank account to handle grant funds, under the new policies. Under investigation at the School is an "uncontrolled" private bank account in New Haven, part of an HEW funded Model Cities program there, sources say.

—Any faculty member preparing a grant request for an outside funding agency must send copies of his-her submission to the Whitmore Accounting office, the Treasurer's office in Whitmore, and to the office of Associate Graduate Dean Pat W. Camerino.

—All grant awards must be to the University of Massachusetts, the policy says. The campus and name of the principle investigator may be listed second for reference purposes. Some grants under question by the FBI were believed to have been awarded in the names of individuals.

The effect of this stipulation will be to prohibit grant managers from claiming grant funds as their own to do whatever they want with. It will mean grants are run by Whitmore or the President's office for legal purposes.

—Any changes in grants must be agreed to in writing by the sponsoring agency and a copy of the agreement added as an "amendment" to the original grant award filed in the Treasurer's office, the policies say. At the School of Education, changes and counter-changes in grant purposes arrived at verbally have made determination of appropriate and inappropriate spending difficult.

Wood, during the Wednesday press briefing, said the changes are needed because federal funds are scarcer than in the sixties and must be more carefully administered.

Collegian staff — Check blackboard in newsroom today for important notice.

★ Transient candidates defended

cont. from p. 1

People who live in dormitories also pay taxes, Magid added. He said the University pays a certain percentage of property taxes out of the board fees paid by student residents. In addition to that, Magid said, Amherst merchants who pay large property, thrive on students' patronage.

Maurice Bates, one of the petitioners, is a professor at UMass and Clarence Parsons, initiator of the petition, lives in Florida for two and a half months a year, the Collegian learned.

When asked in a telephone interview if he felt that professors who lived in Amherst for a few years should also be considered transients and did the same apply to them about running as town meeting members, Bates replied "no comment" and hung up the telephone. Bates is a mechanical and aerospace engineering professor.

Parsons said he lived in Florida from January to March. "I was asked to be a town meeting member but abstained because I did not feel it was right for me to represent the town since I was gone for part of the winter," he said. "The two and a half months I am gone, Parsons added, "is immaterial to the six months that students are not here."

Communists shell Phnom Penh from all sides

Still seek to cut airport supply link

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel Communist forces yesterday attacked this beseiged capital from all sides and rained rockets on its airport in another attempt to sever the city's lone remaining supply link to the outside world.

The government also learned that its defeat Tuesday at Neak Luong, 31 miles down the Communist-controlled Mekong River, cost it some 5,000 troops and their commander, Gen. Lim Sisaat — all captured by the rebels.

Rebel troops entrenched five miles from the city sent more rockets thundering into Pochentong Airport and launched simultaneous assaults on virtually all sides of the capital's defense perimeter, field reports said.

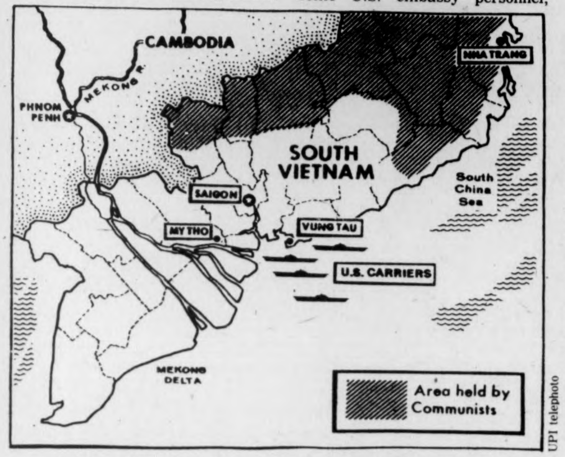
But the rocket attack still failed to stop the American airlift which has become Phnom Penh's only way to bring in supplies. At least two of the U.S. planes left with some U.S. embassy personnel, including Cambodian workers.

The embassy — the lone diplomatic mission still operating in Phnom Penh — was reduced to about 30 or 40 staffers, down from the nearly 200 of just a week ago, embassy sources said.

"We have taken out just about as many people as we could and still function," one source said.

In yesterday's fighting, government troops lost 17 killed and 96 wounded. Rebel gunners also shot down a Cambodian Air Force C47 gunship west of Phnom Penh. The seven-man crew was presumed either killed or captured.

Government troops also abandoned another eight positions west of the capital, along Highway 4, and failed again to push back a new insurgent threat to the southeast. Government forces at Svay Rolou, six miles southeast of here, came under heavy attack, and suffered two killed and six wounded.



UPI telephoto

A force of U.S. helicopters was sighted off the South Vietnamese coast yesterday where they could be used to evacuate Americans from Saigon. In ground action, the South Vietnamese recaptured the coastal city of Nha Trang.

U.S. Marines prepared to land

cont. from pg. 1 ★

Far to the northeast, South Vietnamese troops triking back reoccupied the coastal city of Nha Trang yesterday. Other government military units and police began boarding refugee ships and killing suspected Viet Cong agents on the spot, an American witness said.

The development came as the United States continued building up its 7th Fleet ships and forces off Vietnam, with at least one aircraft carrier, three destroyers, a half-dozen other amphibious ships and elements of a Marine division standing by.

The 7th Fleet buildup included three aircraft carriers within the zone, including the nuclear-powered Enterprise, the AP said.

The buildup was disclosed in part in news releases from the U.S. Embassy and by other independent sources. Specific locations of the various vessels were not given.

In Washington, a Defense Dept. spokesman said, "there is absolutely no foundation" to stories "which suggest that the evacuation of Americans from Vietnam is imminent."

However, sources told the AP that the 7th Fleet was on station to evacuate Americans and some Vietnamese if major fighting or chaos broke out and that Marines were prepared to land in the city of 3.5 million.

There are approximately 6,000 Americans still in Vietnam, although some have left by commercial means.

U.S. Embassy spokesmen would not comment on the 7th Fleet buildup but news releases from the embassy on refugee evacuation disclosed that the commander of the Fleet's amphibious force, Rear Admiral Donald B. Whitmire, was on station near Saigon with his flagship the U.S.S. Blue Ridge.

The same release also disclosed that the destroyer U.S.S. Reasoner and scores of Marine helicopters were within only a short distance of Saigon.

In fighting, the South Vietnamese military command said the Communists hit Nha Be, six miles southeast of the center of Saigon, with recoilless rifle and mortar fire, which has maximum range of about two miles.

Today's shelling of Nha Be, site of South Vietnam's largest oil storage facility, was the first attack on the capital area since the beginning of the current North Vietnamese and Viet Cong drive March 10.

Spokesmen said six persons were wounded in the two-hour attack which involved about 60 rounds of artillery.

The shelling barrage continued for more than an hour and a half before the Communists apparently pulled back. Damage, if any, by the government artillery was unsubstantial.

The spokesman said four South Vietnames soldiers, a policeman and a civilian were wounded by the Communist shellfire, and two fuel pipelines were ruptured.

Initial reports indicated the fuel pipelines were not important to the overall Nha Be supply line, Hien said.

Near Saigon, heavy fighting was reported yesterday near Binh Phucc district capital, 26 miles south of the capital, spokesmen said. Hien said 18 Communists and three government soldiers were killed in the fighting and another six South Vietnames forces were wounded.

Many Vietnam orphans found 'acutely' sick

By United Press International

An "acute medical situation" developed yesterday among the 319 orphans flown Saturday night from Vietnam to San Francisco.

Doctors disclosed that 47 babies from the flight that was welcomed by President Ford were being treated in hospitals. Some were survivors of last Friday's crash of a military plane that killed 178 persons in a rice paddy near Saigon.

The children were being cared for as hundreds of other orphans crossed a 10,000-mile air bridge from war-ravaged Vietnam to a new life in America.

"This is an acute medical situation," Dr. Alex Stalcup said at the Presidio military base in San Francisco where most of the babies were taken after leaving their airlift plane late Saturday.

"Our resources are now stretched to capacity.

"Of the infants at the Presidio right now, by American standards, at least half should be in a hospital right now."

About 300 children were being cared for at the temporary facility while awaiting processing before joining their adoptive parents.

Stalcup said more than 30 of the babies were "unquestionably near death" when taken off the Pan American 747 about 12 hours earlier.

Each member account insured to $40,000
NCUA
by Administrator, National Credit Union Administration

UMASS Student Federal Credit Union is
NOW OPEN
*10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Weekdays

- Each member account FULLY insured up to deposits of $40,000 by the National Credit Union Administration.
- Food Stamp operations begin in 2 weeks.

If you have any questions or desire information concerning interest rates on loans, savings, etc., PLEASE do not hesitate to call us at 545-1994 or stop in Room 166 of the Campus Center.

dvp

The Distinguished Visitors Program is financed and operated by the undergraduates of UMass. for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists.

It seeks to bring to campus those persons whose experiences in domestic and international affairs, sciences, arts and humanities qualify them to interpet, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions.

Come work with us.

Applications at S.U.B. Rm. 415
and C.C. Information Desk.
Deadline April 10

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officer's commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Attica inmate found guilty of murder

Prisoner convicted for death of guard

BUFFALO (AP) — The state has won its first convincing victory in its effort to prosecute persons indicted in the 1971 Attica prison rebellion.

John B. Hill, 23, of Buffalo was convicted of murder Saturday in the beating death of guard William Quinn. Codefendant Charles J. Pernasilice, 22, of Syracuse was convicted of an assault charge.

Quinn was attacked by rioting inmates on the first date of the Sept. 9-13, 1971, uprising and died in a Rochester hospital of head injuries two days later. He was one of 43 men — 32 inmates and 11 prison employes — to die in the revolt.

Hill and Pernasilice were both charged with murder, but State Supreme Court Justice Gilbert H. King, the trial judge, instructed the jury to disregard the murder count against Pernasilice and consider only lesser charges.

King also gave the jury of 8 men and 4 women the option of considering lesser charges against Hill, but allowed the murder charge to stand.

Defense and prosecution attorneys spent three days summarizing the case for the jurors, who returned to court six times to have portions of testimony read to them during their 23 hours of deliberation.

Jury forewoman Rose Moore read the verdicts and Hill sat with a stunned look on his face. Pernasilice turned quickly to look at the spectators, and then looked back at the jury.

When King ordered bail on the defendants revoked and remanded them to the Erie County Holding Center, setting sentencing for April 30, there was an immediate and angry response from defense attorneys William Kunstler and Ramsey Clark, the former U.S. attorney general, who shouted that the action was "vindictive."

"There is no justice in America," Kunstler shouted. Returning the defendants to jail was the same as "signing their death warrant," he said.

"Those two will be killed in jail. Every cop in this city has it in for them," he said.

Hill faces up to life imprisonment on the murder conviction. Pernasilice could receive up to four years. Both are former Attica inmates.

Democrats to recruit minorities as members

BOSTON (AP) — The Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts has voted to recruit members of 10 minority groups into party activities. But it delayed action on a proposal to expand its own membership to make room for them.

The committee's action Saturday in adopting an affirmative action plan is required of all state committees by a vote of the national party's mini-convention in Kansas City last December.

Chairman Charles F. Flaherty, a state representative from Cambridge, said exclusion of members of minority groups from the state committee would amount to institutional racism.

But members objected that the nomination procedure under discussion for 20 more committee seats would violate party bylaws and overbalance the committee in favor of persons living in the eastern part of the state.

When the presence of a quorum was challenged and only 28 of the 80 committee members were counted present, Flaherty suggested postponing action.

The recruitment procedure calls for the establishment of special committees to seek out, among others, women, youth, the elderly, blacks and Spanish-speaking people.

UPI telephoto

South Vietnamese soldiers in Vung Tau, near Saigon, check the papers of refugees who have just arrived from Cam Ranh Bay by U.S. transport.

Taiwan mourns death of Chiang Kai-shek

TAIPEI (UPI) — Taiwan began a one-month period of official mourning yesterday for Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek, leader of China for half a century who was defeated and driven from the mainland by Communist forces.

Within hours after the 87-year-old generalissimo's death Saturday night, Nationalist Chinese military headquarters flashed alerts to all army and navy garrisons on the off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu, located within eyesight of the Communist-ruled China mainland.

But Communist military forces, which bombard the islands with shells containing leaflets on alternative days, gave no sign that they would attempt a new military adventure in the 100-mile wide straits that separate China from the island fortress of Taiwan, held by the Nationalist Chinese government.

Vice President C.K. Yen, a 70-year-economist who helped turn Taiwan from a semitropical island of rice and sugar cane into an industrial enclave, was sworn in as president about 12 hours after Chiang's death.

But the real power passed to the generalissimo's eldest son, Russian-educated Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, 65 who has been running the Nationalist government since 1972 for his ailing father.

Premier Chiang submitted his resignation to the Kuomintang Central Committee as a sign of grief over his father's death, but it was immediately rejected.

The government organized a committee to plan a state funeral whose date may take as long as one week to arrange.

news summary

Kennedy harassed

QUINCY (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was jostled and poked by a crowd of antibusing demonstrators yesterday as he tried to elbow his way to his car outside a junior high school where he had given a speech.

The crowd would not let him get to his automobile, and aides and police had to encircle Kennedy and link arms as they walked several blocks to a subway station.

The crowd of about 300 angry adults followed him all the way, shouting and waving pickets ripped from fences.

The Massachusetts Democrat has been a target of white parents since school busing to achieve racial integration began under a federal court order last September. Antibusing leaders say they are upset with Kennedy because he declines to condemn busing.

Pay raise hinted

BOSTON (AP) — A legislative committee will soon propose that at least some state employes get an automatic cost-of-living pay raise, despite opposition by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

A pending 11 per cent raise for all 63,000 workers may be reduced to 6.9 per cent, and limited to low wage earners, by the Public Service Committee.

The panel wants to match raises being awarded to employes by municipalities and private industry yet cut the price of the 11 per cent increase from about $70 million to $40 million, according to committee sources.

Dukakis has said he will veto any increase because the state lacks the money and that any raise approved by the legislature over his veto will result in massive layoffs.

Candidates criticized

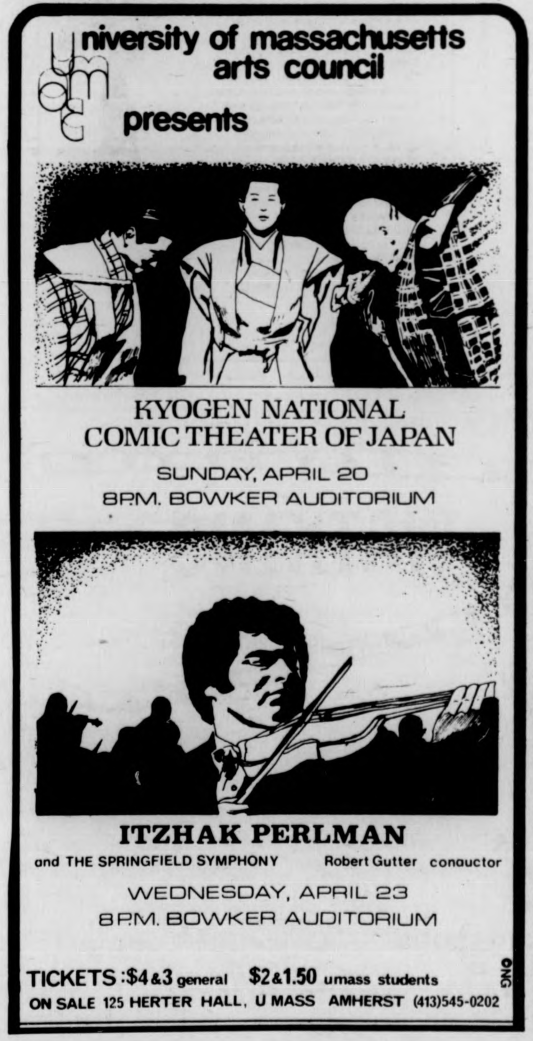
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Gary W. Hart, D-Colo., who directed George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign, said yesterday no present Democratic presidential prospects seem able to "capture the imagination" of the new politics activists.

"I think the conditions of the times are such that the possibility of a genuine dark horse emerging is very strong," he said.

7 die in Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — Bullets and bombs killed nine persons and injured at least 75 more in the bloodiest weekend in Belfast in two years, leaving the nine-week-old Irish Republican Army cease-fire in shambles yesterday.

Police reported two fatal shootings around midnight Saturday, following bomb attacks on a Roman Catholic pub and a Protestant tavern that killed six persons and injured at least 75 others earlier that same day.



niversity of massachusetts arts council
presents

KYOGEN NATIONAL
COMIC THEATER OF JAPAN
SUNDAY, APRIL 20
8P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

ITZHAK PERLMAN
and THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY Robert Gutter conductor
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23
8 P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

TICKETS :$4 & 3 general $2 & 1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

St. Regis
Restaurant
28 Pleasant St. Northampton
Place of Home Style Food and Quality Service presents:
Tuesday Night
Spaghetti Special
Spaghetti & Meat Balls, Jello or Pudding, both with Whipped Cream, and Coffee or Tea.
$2.25
from 5 — 9 p.m.

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.
AFROTC
An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.

- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Part two: Cancer hazards & women

By MELVYN BAULKMAN
Black News Service

This is the last part of Women's Health and Cancer; part one appeared Fri., 4, 1975.

What is cancer? Is it a chronic infection? A mutated gene? No one really knows the answer. However, many types of cancer do exist. Two such cancers which are very prevalent in women are that of the uterus (the womb) called uterine cancer and cancer of the breast.

The most common sympton of uterine cancer is a change in the usual pattern of menstrual bleeding or bleeding after menopause.

Characteristic symptoms are bleeding between periods, irregular prolonged or heavy periods, and bleeding after bowel movements or sexual intercourse.

Daughters and sisters of patients with breast cancer may have a somewhat greater risk of developing breast cancer than women without such a history. The risk of developing breast cancer is somewhat lower for married women who have borne and nursed children.

In dealing with breast cancer, prompt action results in better chances of a cure. If the cancer is localized to the breast about eighty-five per cent of the treated patients show no evidence of disease at the end of five years (five years after treatment has been given and no trace of the cancer is found, then the patient is considered cured).

Treatment for breast cancer can follow the route of surgery or radiation treatment. In radiation the cancerous breast is exposed to X-rays. Most women with breast cancer go the route of surgery by means of an operation called Radical Mastectomy. In this operation the breast, muscles underneath the breast and the lymph nodes are removed. This operation is intended to remove all cancer bearing tissues in the local area and is designed to prevent recurrence or arrest spreading of the disease.

So the next time someone says to you, "Hey baby! Why are you messing with me, Don't you know that I'm as bad as cancer?" You may feel good when you reply, "Yes, but like cancer you too can be stopped."

Seven warning signals which everyone should be aware of concerning cancer hazards; unusual bleeding or discharge, a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere, a sore that does not heal, change in bowel or bladder habits, hoarseness or cough, indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, change in size or color of a wart or mole. If you signal lasts longer than two weeks, you should see a doctor.

For additional information on breast self-examination, please contact your Peer Sex Educator.. Members of the Third World Peer Sex Educators team are: James Adams, 341 Pufton Village, Ph. 549-1696; Melvyn Baulkman, 114 Mackimmie House, Ph. 546-9742; James Beverly, 1006 G. Washington, Ph. 546-9060; Hector L. Vega-Palacin, 1718 G. Washington, Ph. 546-9182; and Herman Wilkinson, 2015 J.F. Kennedy, Ph. 546-7893.

Workshops including breast cancer information and the breast self-examination is being offered by sisters Pearl Lewis and Mary Gould. You can get further information by contacting Pearl Lewis, at Ph. 549-4520, 560 Pufton Village.

Black woman court martialed

This article is special to the Black News Service from the Liberation News Service, New York.

credit by B.P.P.

Babette Peyton, a Black woman in the U.S. Army stationed in West Germany, faces a court martial for being absent from her base without leave. Peyton went AWOL after the army ordered her to submit to a psychiatric examination — a result of her complaint against job discrimination.

Peyton's problems in the Army started in August, 73. After working for two weeks in the children's psychiatry clinic where she was also training as a social worker, she was ordered to fill in "temporarily" as a receptionist. Fifteen months later, however, she had still not been returned to her first job.

In September, 74, Peyton filed an official complaint after discovering a discrepancy in her first job evaluation. In one area, her work was rated "superb", but the computer rated section of the evaluation described her work as below average. Instead of considering her complaint, however, the Army disciplined her for wearing her hair in cornrows.

A month later, Peyton complained to the Equal Opportunity Office about the Army's harassment. At the meeting, an Army psychiatrist termed her "a chronic schizophrenic", and Peyton was subsequently ordered to submit to psychiatric examination. When she requested an investigation, the commander-in-charge said she would first have to comply with the order.

Having exhausted legal channels, and familiar with psychiatric methods in the Army, Peyton decided to go AWOL.

In reference to the Psychiatric ward Peyton explained, "I know that if you're not crazy when you go there, you're crazy when you get out."

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New
RECORD SHOP
197 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-5394

Ski Club
ELECTIONS
TONIGHT
This is your chance to have your say about your Club.
Nominations are open.
Thompson 102 8:00 p.m.

Assistant RSO
Business Manager
Student Activities Office

QUALIFICATIONS:
— Bachelor's Degree in Business Management (or comparable experience)
— Working knowledge of Electronic Data Processing
— Substantial Student Service Orientation

BENEFITS:
Standard Full-time professional position benefits

Applications should be made no later than Fri., April 11, 1975 to J. Paul Margossian, Search Committee Chairperson, Rm. 420.

1975 summer program of goddard college
ALTERNATE ENERGY
AND AGRICULTURE
wind, water, methane, solar
social ecology studies

June 2-August 22 15 credits

An intensive 12 week program in social ecology and environmental sciences, exploring alternative technologies, a no-growth economy, organic agriculture, urban decentralization, the politics of ecology, and the design and construction of experimental models for wind, solar, and methane-powered energy production.

Goodard is located in a rural Vermont community, rich in both natural and human resources, in a state noted for its progressive environmental legislation.

The summer program is directed by MURRAY BOOKCIN, author of Post Scarcity Anarchism, Our Synthetic Environment, and Limits of the City. Visiting Faculty will include outstanding national experts in the fields of alternate technology and communities such as KARL HESS, Community Technologies, SAM LOVE, Environmental Action, JOHN and NANCY TODD, founders New Alchemy Institute, WILSON CLARK, author of Energy for Survival, STEVE BAER, Zomeworks, JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH, publisher of Mother Earth News, ROBERT REINES, Integrated Life Support Systems Labs, and STEWART BRAND, publisher of The Whole Earth Catalog.

For detailed illustrated brochure write:

D. Chodorkoff
Social Ecology Program
Goddard College Box SE 3
Plainfield, Vermont 05667

dvp presents (with pride)
PETER WATKINS
"controversial"
"documentary film maker"
"a must to see" "amazing"
Tuesday, April 8
4:00 — 5:30 — Movie "PUNISHMENT PARK" Mahar — Free
Wednesday, April 9
1:30 — 3:30 — SEMINAR — "FILM CENSORSHIP" Colonial Lounge
7:00 — 10:00 — Movie — "PUNISHMENT PARK" and lecture
ALL FREE

'Swingshifters' hold reunion before graduation

By BILL DENSMORE
Staff Reporter

It might seem a little strange to have a class reunion before graduation, but there's a group here that wants to do just that.

But then again, if you're part of an extinct breed, it makes sense to get together and reminisce once in a while. That's what Steven Casper and Janice Blauer are trying to do.

Casper and Blauer are seniors. But they are also graduates of the "swingshifter" class of summer 1971 and they plan a reunion party for classmates. What is a "swingshifter?"

In the early sixties, UMass was still pretty small, with a freshman class of only 2,600 and 12,000 applications from high school seniors wanting to come to Amherst. A lot of good students were turned away because there weren't enough spaces for them.

So the University came up with the swingshift program and it worked like this: About 300 freshman were sent acceptances, but were told they would have to begin school in June and complete their first semester during the summer.

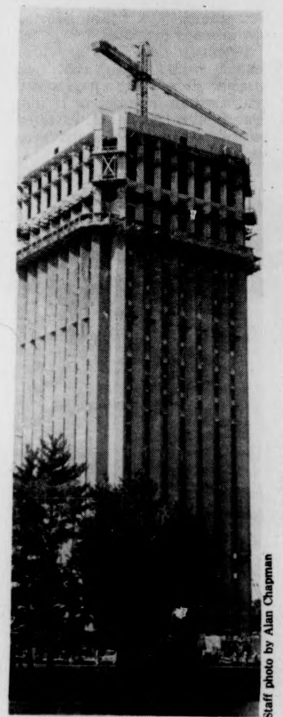
Going to school during the summer proved to be a rewarding experience for swingshifters.

Then they would take summer vacation during the fall semester, returning to campus in January as second-semester freshmen. The rooms they occupied in the dorms had been vacated by about 400 first-semester freshmen who dropped out.

"It worked out beautifully," admissions director William D. Tunis said last week. "The profile was slightly lower than the regular freshmen who came in, but these kids were perfectly acceptable and well qualified."

The program ran successfully for eight summers, adding an extra three or four hundred students to each freshman class at a time when applications to UMass skyrocketed to 21,000 in 1971 for only 3,600 freshman spaces.

But by 1972, UMass had stopped growing, applications had begun to drop off, and Whitmore decided the program was too expensive to run. So after the summer of 1972, the swingshift program was discontinued.



Staff photo by Alan Chapman

In summer '71 the library was only a construction site.

"It was for budgetary reasons," Tunis said. "First we had to cut back on the number of weeks of summer school and students could not earn a minimum number of twelve credits... a student couldn't pick up a full semester of credit during the summer."

Now it's four years later and some of the swingshifters from that next-to-last summer are still on campus. So Casper, a twenty-two year-old first-semester senior from Beverley decided to have a party for them.

He and Blauer placed advertisements in last week's Collegian saying "Swingshifters of '71 reunited." And by the end of the week twenty or thirty classmates responded.

Casper says no records are available, but of about 350 swingshifters that summer, he figures about 200 are still on campus. And of those, about half will graduate this spring.

The party is going to be April 25 — a Friday night. The two seniors have reserved a room in the Campus Center and they're going to set up a bar to sell drinks.

Why have a reunion? "A lot of people have just really wanted to remeet who they went to school with the first semester," says Casper. "There were some pretty smart people that went during the summer."

According to Tunis, swingshifters were picked after the rest of the freshman class was chosen. Although academically acceptable, they were similar to applicants private colleges place on "waiting lists." But he said the summer was good for them.

"You got closer to your classmates," he said. "You maintain contacts over the years and I suspect that this is what happened with the swingshifters — they developed great spirit."

Tunis said he still gets letters from swingshifters thanking him for their experience during the summers. All were housed in the central area dorms of Gorman and Hills House. Hills House is no longer a dormitory.

Tunis said applications are down now from the 1971 peak. He said about 17,000 students have applied to UMass this year so far — an increase of about 1,000 over last year. But still the entering class will be only 3,600.

Now to take up the overflow, some will be admitted under a deferred plan to arrive for the first semester next January and graduate one-half-year later than their classmates.

Casper said of the '71 swingshifters, many will graduate one semester late anyway, and others are no longer on campus.

"I went over to the registrar's office and tried to get a list, but Mr. (Ralph D.) Jones was pretty upset about giving it to me," he said. "I have to talk to Dean (William C.) Fields this week."

He said the party is definitely on, but swingshifters should call him or Blauer to give them an idea of how many will show up on the 25th. Blauer is at 256-6457 and Casper's number is 253-5260.

Women's Com Network to meet tonight

The University Women's Communication Network, a group of university women who are involved in various aspects of the operation, evaluation, and development of campus media outlets, will meet tonight at 5:00 at Everywomen's Center. The meeting is open to all campus women who are interested in the media as a forum for issues pertinent to women.

Women's Workshops

The following workshops are being offered to all interested women on campus. Although there is a specific focus for each workshop, the exact content will depend on the professional interests of the women attending. Please fill out this form and return it in person by April 10 to Carnegie Project, 507 Goodell or call us at 5-2809.

Name——————
Professional Interest————————

I will attend the following workshop(s):
———Tues. April 15, 3:30-6:00 Sex Role Stereotyping
———Wed. April 16, 3:30-6:00 Marriage, Career, & Family
———Thur. April 17, 3:30-6:00 Resume Writing, Interview Skills

Fun City Fast!
Catch A Ride With Continental Trailways.

A Continental Trailways Deluxe Motorcoach leaves Springfield for New York City every hour from 6:15 A.M. to 7:15 P.M. daily.

Peter Pan Bus Lines provide direct connecting service from:

■Amherst–leaving at 5:00 A.M. then hourly from 7:00 A.M. on through 6:00 P.M.

■South Hadley–leaving at 7:20 A.M., 9:30 A.M., 12:30 P.M., 2:30 P.M. and 4:15 P.M. . . . (7:20 A.M. by advance reservation–no reservation needed for other departures).

■Northampton–leaving at 5:20 A.M., then hourly from 7:20 A.M. on through 6:20 P.M.

Average running time to New York (George Washington Bridge Terminal) is just 3 hours . . . 30 minutes additional to midtown New York.

Minor variations in schedule on Sun. consult your local terminal.

Ride with Peter Pan and Continental Trailways. You'll meet interesting people like yourself, have time to read, relax and contemplate.

Ticket Offices:
Amherst
Peter Pan Bus Lines
79 South Pleasant St.
256-0431

Northampton
Peter Pan World Travel
Old South St.
586-1030

South Hadley
Peter Pan Bus Lines
25 College St.
533-7115

NEWMAN LECTURE PROGRAM
presents
PROF. GERALD BROPHY
of
The Geology Dept., Amherst College speaking on
The Geology of the Valley
April 7 8:00 p.m. Front Lounge

SGA
PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS
Tuesday, April 22, 1975 — Student Union Ballroom at 7:00 p.m.

- Nominations have been open for the past six weeks and will close on Friday, April 11, 1975.
- Any UMass undergraduate is eligible to run for this position.
- Information and nomination papers available in room 420, Student Union, or call 545-0341.
- These are Electoral College Elections in which the Student Senate and the seven area governments take part.

Election Forum

Staff photo by John Stewart

Anything but bored, people from the Progressive Candidates' Pool pictured as they prepare for tomorrow's town election.

PCP reaction to 'transient' charge

We think it is unfortunate that a small minority of people in Precinct 1 chose to circulate information about a number of town meeting candidates which is not only inaccurate but very misleading. They imply that those not listed in the 1974 street list are "transients" when in fact, some of us have lived in Amherst for at least five years. We also think it is deliberately misleading to imply that because we have not lived in Precinct 1 for over a year, we, for that reason alone, will not make good, consciensciоus town meeting members.

We, as first year residents of our precinct, are as likely as long-term residents to realize the positive aspects as well as the inadequacies of our neighborhood environment. In fact, we are able to bring in many experiences from other precincts which are useful here in Precinct 1. We do not consider ourselves to be "transients" as the derogatory literature which is being circulated implies. Most of us intend to remain in Amherst for a number of years and we consider it our civic duty to become involved in town politics because we feel we have something positive to offer to the process. We have clearly stated our positions on the issues which are relevant to the upcoming town meeting. The unfortunate result of waging a smear campaign as Mr. Parsons and his friends have chosen to do is that those other candidates not implied to be transients are never called upon to state their positions.

One of the mainstays of the democratic process is the continual infusion of new, innovative ideas into the system. Misleading, inaccurate campaign propaganda such as that circulated by this small group of people can only serve to mislead those who try to intelligently exercise their franchise.

One final observation. Mr. Parsons should learn not to throw stones if he lives in a glass house... does not migrating to Florida for five months of every year make one a "transient"?

George B. Scheurer

Fighting rising rent

George B. Scheurer, a 1971 graduate of UMass, is the Democratic Candidate for Housing Authority in Amherst. His opposition is Robert Graham, a local realtor.

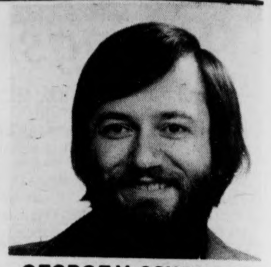
Scheurer, who has been an Amherst area resident for 12 years, is the Program Representative for the Experimental Housing Allowance Program, which is a non-profit corporation charged with developing the Administrative Experiment for the Research and Development Component of the HUD to help set National housing policy for Low-Moderate income persons. Scheurer has hald this position for two years.

On the availability of housing for low and moderate income persons in the Amherst area, Scheurer feels it is first important to consider the obstacles that exist, such as inflation, the problem of student populations competing with low income families for housing, a low vacancy rate produced by both the large number of students seeking housing in the area, as well as the apartment moratorium, and existing state and federal programs which are not designed to operate in this context. Therefore, according to Scheurer, Amherst may soon price itself out of the existing program's rent levels for low and moderate income housing.

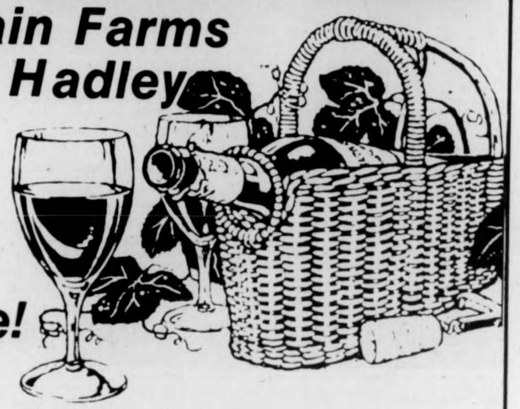
Scheurer has also been a participant in the National Conference on the Administrative Agency Experiments. He was author of the working agenda on the issues of housing low and moderate income persons.

Concerning extension of special legislation to extending rent control to Amherst, Scheurer said that rent control assures a return on an investment that does not exceed a fixed amount which is determined by a board utilizing one of many formulas.

Scheurer said "It provides tenants with a fair rent and property owners with a guaranteed return on an investment. If rent control were fairly administered for both protagonists, I would favor such legislation."



GEORGE V. SCHEURER



IT PAYS TO SHOP THE FINAST WAY

Mountain Farms Mall in Hadley

Beer and Wine Shoppe!

Schlitz Beer

case of 24 12 oz cans 5.69

Donelli	Lambrusco	4/5 btl	1.79
Costa do Sol		qt btl	2.49
Yago Sangria		24 oz btl	1.49
Folonari	Lambrusco	68 oz btl	3.29
Manischewitz	Sangria	24 oz btl	1.79
Great Western	Cream Sherry & Cocktail Sherry	4/5 btl	1.79

Gunther Beer

case 24 - 12 oz cans

4.09

Finast SUPERMARKETS

Prices Effective thru Sat., April 12

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

Jeff built a fence around himself. With no gate.

world wide pictures presents

time to run

eastmancolor

starring ed nelson/randall carver/barbara sigel

also starring joan winmill/gordon rigsby/special screen appearance billy graham

Starting April 9 at the GARDEN THEATRE

Greenfield, Mass.

For 1 week only. Advance discount tickets available. Call 774-5147.

Cashin house counselors may opt for credit

By MARA KLEIN
Staff Reporter

Cashin House council members selected this semester were given the option of taking one academic credit for participation in dorm government.

Nine of the eighteen floor representatives opted for this plan in dorm government structures.

Sandy Anderson, head of the residence said, "the objective of this experimental plan is to develop organization and leadership skills, get the representatives more involved with the dorm of 460 residents and to have the representatives become resource persons for people on their floor.

The requirements of the floor representatives include mandatory house council attendance totaling ten hours, taking part in two workshops of two hours each, and chairing a house council program, consisting of 2-4 hours of work. Finally a short self evaluation is also required," she also said.

One workshop has already been given on alcohol education. It was presented by E.T. Miller of Room to Move. The workshop "went over well and acted as a preview for the dorm," according to Anderson. Another workshop, on leadership training will be given soon by house moderator Armand Amendola. In the future these workshops may be open to dorm residents, "since the reps are finding them very beneficial," she added.

Among the activities chaired by floor representatives are: Newt Night, a ski trip, phone-a-thon, bus trip to Rockport, elections, a pool tournament and a dorm dinner at the TOC. Amendola sees this new plan as "going well, since duties get delegated, and people have chairmanships."

Anderson who agreed, said she is seeing it as "a little reward plus an educational experience."

Response among residents and floor representatives has generally been favorable. Cathy Callahan 4th floor representative said she "would have done it anyway," adding she's "not doing anything more for the credit."

There were always a "few people that did everything" added Weston Lant, representative, but "now the work is distributed evenly."

One of the floor representatives not working for credit felt that "it took the personal aspect out of being a floor rep." She also felt that she's "doing at least the credit requirements anyway."

Anderson said the new system is an "incentive for more people to run for house government, making the elections competitive." The program, which she believes," is unique to the university", has increased house council attendance and made dorm residents more aware of their dorm government through the activities planned by the group.

A unique opportunity to travel and teach

The Off-Campus Teacher Education Program offers the unique opportunity for students wishing to become certified elementary and secondary school teachers to combine living in a culturally different setting with student teaching at reasonable cost. The Off-Campus Program has sites in British Infant schools in England, American International Schools in Italy, Spain, and Germany, the Pueblo schools in New Mexico, and both traditional and innovative schools in California and Colorado. Students are visited by a UMass faculty member during their internship.

A three semester commitment to the program is required. The first semester consists of a four (4) credit hour preparatory course, the second semester is the fifteen (15) credit student teaching experience off-campus, and the third semester is a variable one to five (1-5) credit follow-up on student teaching. Also during the first and third semesters of the program, students have the opportunity to take Foundations and Methods courses.

Interviews for students interested in admission to the Off-Campus Program will be held in Room 100 at the School of Education during the week of April 7-11. Following are interview times: Monday 10:00-12:00; Tuesday 1:00-3:00; Wednesday 10:00-12:00; Thursday 10:00-12:00; & Friday 10:00-12:00. For further information call 545-1538.

Also available through the Off-Campus Teacher Education Program are one year placements in Israel and Australia. Students will student teach one semester and attend the respective local university and colleges of the University of Haifa in Israel and Sturt College of Education in Australia during the other semester. One full year of credit is granted to participating students.

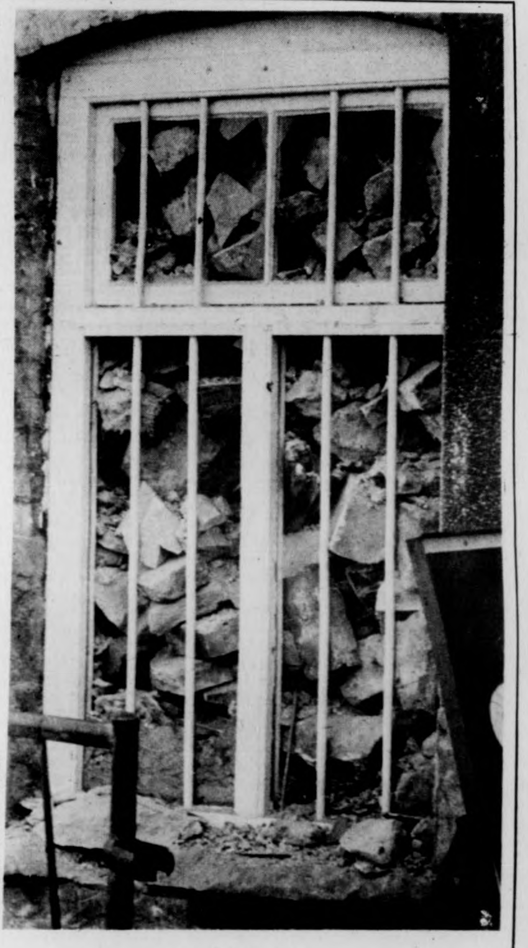
W.M.L.S. offers free legal aid

Western Massachusetts Legal Services provides free legal assistance to low-income people in civil matters. W.M.L.S. has eight (8) offices in four counties of Western Mass. There are offices in Springfield, Holyoke, Northampton, Greenfield, Pittsfield, Great Barrington, Northampton State Hospital and North Adams.

Staff people from the program also spend 3 or 4 days a week providing legal services to mainly Spanish speaking people in a community agency in the North End of Springfield.

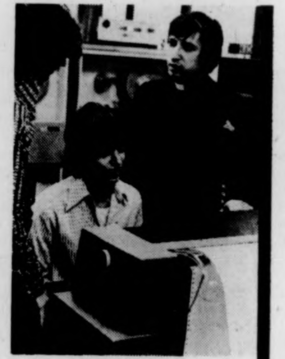
The staff of W.M.L.S. is composed of forty full-time paralegals, 24 attorneys, and 12 secretaries. The program is currently recruiting for students to work with the program from June 1975 to late January, 1976. Students working with the program will be trained in one or two specific areas of the law, and with this newly acquired knowledge, will, under the supervision of an attorney, assist clients with their legal problems.

April 8,9,10 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., there will be on the Concourse level of the Campus Center, a booth staffed by paralegals currently working in the program.



Staff photo by John Stewart

Stoned again!



You've been there. Now you can help them.

They've got a long way to go. In a world that isn't easy. But with someone's help, they'll make it. What they need is a friend. Someone to act as confidant and guide. Perhaps, it could be you as a Salesian Priest or Brother.

The Salesians of St. John Bosco were founded in 1859 to serve youth. Unlike other orders whose apostolate has changed with varying conditions, the Salesians always have been — and will be, youth oriented. Today we're helping to prepare youngsters for the world that awaits them tomorrow. Not an easy task but one which we welcome.

And how do we go about it? By following the precepts of our founder, Don Bosco. To crowd out evil with reason, religion and kindness with a method of play, learn and pray. We're trying to build better communities by helping to create better men.

As a Salesian, you are guaranteed the chance to help the young in a wide range of endeavor . . . as guidance counselors, technical and academic teachers, as coaches, psychologists . . . in boys clubs, summer camps . . . as missionaries. And you are given the kind of training you need to achieve your aims.

The Salesian family is a large one (we are the third largest order) but a warm one. A community with an enthusiastic family feeling where not only our talents are shared but our shortcomings, too. If you feel as we do, that service to youth can be an important mission in your life, we welcome your interest.

For more information about Salesian Priests and Brothers, mail this coupon to:
Father Joseph Maffei, S.D.B. Room B-212

Salesians OF ST. JOHN BOSCO
Box 639, New Rochelle, N.Y. 10802

I am interested in the Priesthood ☐ Brotherhood ☐

Name______ Age______
Street Address______
City______ State______ Zip______
Phone______
Education______
Your Current Job______

LOWEST JET FARES TO EUROPE

of any scheduled airline

See how much you save via Icelandic Airlines' daily jets from New York to Luxembourg, June thru August, against lowest comparable round-trip fares of any other scheduled airline:

Under 21?

THEIR FARE	OUR FARE
$476	$410

YOUTH FARE, ages 12 to 21, for stays of up to 365 days. Show proof of age. Confirm within 5 days of flight. Save $66 via Icelandic!

Over 21?

THEIR FARE	OUR FARE
$846	$600

NORMAL FARE for stays of 46 to 365 days. Save $246 via Icelandic!

Similar savings from Chicago!

Enjoy lowest jet fares to Europe no matter when you go or how long you stay. Get details about all of Icelandic's fares & tours. SEE YOUR TRAVEL AGENT. Fares subject to change and gov't. approval.

To: Icelandic Airlines • (212) 757-8585
630 Fifth Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10020

For local toll free number dial (800) 555-1212

Send folders on over/under 21 fares.

Name______
Street______
City______
State______ Zip______

ICELANDIC AIRLINES

REWARD !

for old high school rings

Trade in your high school ring towards your college ring during ring days.

Plus . . .

get a 5% discount

on your college ring if you order it during ring days.

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
10 a.m. til 4 p.m.

APRIL
9th & 10th

ring days at the university store campus center

university of massachusetts/amherst

editorial

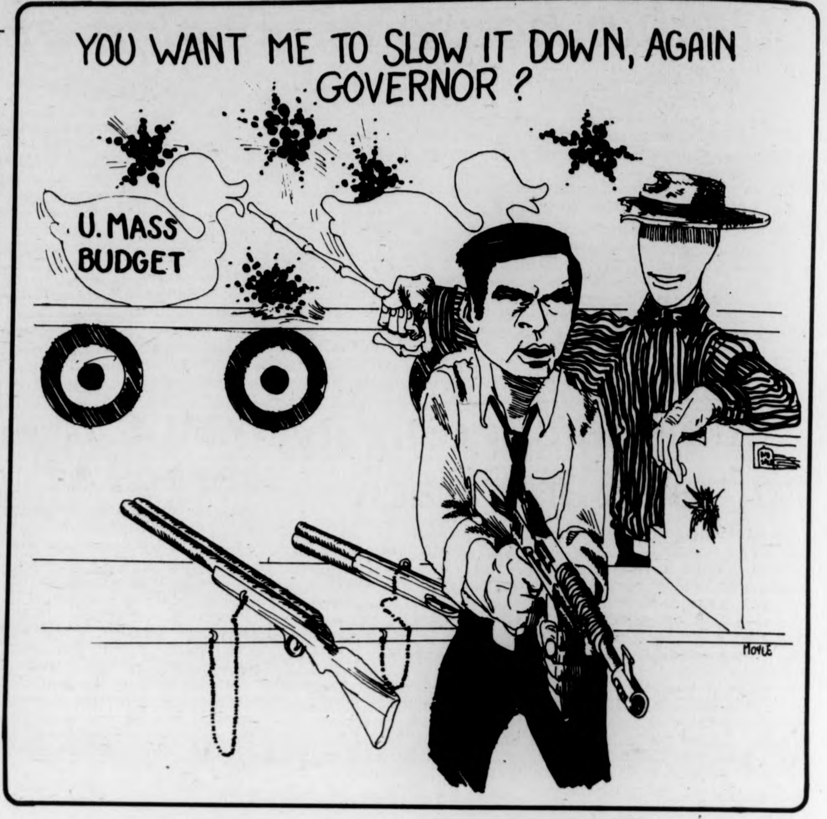
Vote PCP

Tomorrow marks the first Amherst Town Election in which students, working people and tenants have become involved in an organized manner. The Progressive Candidates Pool was formed to begin achieving equal representation for those segments of the diverse Amherst community that do not have a fair share of the power in the town. Federal Law explicitly states that students are residents and eligible voters in the town where they live, and that there is no residency requirement.

If, in a town, there are 20,000 residents that simply are not represented at the local level, then there is a power vacuum - a dangerous situation to be sure. The PCP is the first organized group in Amherst to come to grips with the problem of representation for the voiceless residents of Amherst, and it has developed and supported issues that reflect an emphasis on human rights, liberty and "people over property."

If you are a registered voter in Amherst, then hopefully you have been contacted by the PCP candidates in your precinct. You have been encouraged to use YOUR RIGHT to vote in this election. The PCP is not attempting a takeover of Town government. The PCP is running one Town-wide candidate (Doug Phelps for Moderator) and have only fielded candidates for half of the 80 available town meeting seats. Those 80 seats are only one third of the total town meeting membership.

There are approximately 4,000 registered students and tenants in the town. If the townspeople send their usual 25 per cent to the polls tomorrow, that will mean only 1500 votes (and we have no way of knowing who those votes will be for). If we students and tenants can come up with 50 per cent of our votes, then PCP stands a chance of winning the seats they are running for. But it won't happen unless every student voter has it in mind that every vote counts, and that it does no one any good to stay home on election day.



YOU WANT ME TO SLOW IT DOWN, AGAIN GOVERNOR ?
U. MASS BUDGET
MOYLE

letters to the editor

Consideration for voting

To the Editor:

A flyer being sent and distributed to some registered voters in Amherst is signed by six people who think Town Meeting members should not be transients. The flyer includes a list of candidates for Town Meeting in Precinct I and "years of age and occupation where available have been taken from the 1974 Street List."

The League of Women Voters of Amherst would like to remind your readers that any registered voter in Amherst may run for Town Meeting or any other local office. In order to register to vote, a citizen must be 18 years of age or over and must provide residence, date and place of birth, and occupation at least 20 days before a local election.

Massachusetts has no residency requirement on the books because of a court ruling that the previous six month residency requirement was unconstitutional. Each person listed on the ballot has been registered to vote and therefore has the legal right not only to run for but also be elected to Town Meeting.

The League also supports an open governmental system that is representative of and responsive to all segments of the population. An informed vote is one that considers as many factors as possible and we urge voters who cast their ballots on Tuesday to consider more than just the length of residency of the candidates.

Kathy Masalski
League of Women Voters

Faulty reporting on Senate

To the Editor:

In an article in the Collegian on Page 3 headlined "Senate fails to act on unionization bill" in the April 3, 1975 issue, Staff-reporter Charles O'Connor stated, "In a non-productive session, the Senate took care of much old business but failed to act on the Student Union Enabling Policy." I would like to take issue with the phrase "non-productive session." In that session of April 2, 1975, which was convened at 7 p.m. and adjourned at 11:15 p.m., a total of 22 bills were dealt with. Of the 22 bills, 6 were withdrawn and 4 were special business, therefore, discounting the bills which were withdrawn the average time spent on a bill was approximately 16 minutes. The average does not take into account the numerous reports and announcements made during the meeting however, which totalled approximately 1 hour and 15 minutes in time. I would not call that unproductive.

If the issue that Mr. O'Connor wishes to make is about the Enabling Policy for a Student Union then I believe he has dealt with it ineptly. The Enabling Policy is some 4 3-4 pages long and single spaced. The language of the policy is necessarily legalistic and somewhat difficult at first reading. The Policy, essentially sets the structure of the potential union and is therefore one of the most important items to face students and the Student Government this year. I would be hard pressed to advise a quick judgment on the structure of a union which is to represent the students of this community. Even if a student chooses not to join the union she-he will be affected by its activities. This is not an item for unconscious acceptance by students. A union is an important move yet it should not be done in a vacuum nor with the attitude that a union is a panacea for all student problems. The Senate is taking the time it needs to at least think about and discuss the policy before setting it in cement.

The Policy has much well deserved support but that does not mean that all contemplation and debate on the subject should be set aside. The vote will come next week, after those voting have had a chance to examine the policy and talk with members of their constituency.

Rick Savini
President of the Student Government Association

Comments on the Union Leader

To the Editor:

The Manchester Media Menace commentary in a recent edition expressed much needed criticism on the sorry situation in N.H.

Ostransor's analysis of the Loeb monopoly is excellent but he only briefly mentions Gov. Meldrim Thompson's totalitarian tactics. Consequently, the following footnote is in order.

Two very recent representative antics of Loeb's puppet include threatening to fly the state flag at half mast if amnesty was given to Vietnam war resisters and refusing to accept a federal grant financing poetry readings because, he said, "there were no proper safeguards against unacceptable poetry being read."

The liberation of N.H. will be achieved when the people of that state realize how their perspectives are being manipulated. This awareness will not come from the Union Leader.

J. Mahoney

Campus Travel replies

To the Editor:

We are very sorry for the impression that may have been given in "Travel service too much in the air," but we would like to set the record straight relative to Campus Travel Center.

All three of us here are constantly providing both the University as well as the greater Amherst community with travel, tour and entertainment information at no charge. From the moment we come into the office, we are constantly furnishing domestic and world-wide flight and fare information, checking out itineraries, researching travel inquiries — hotels, Amtrak, European Rail (Eurailpass-Student Rail Pass), car rentals (domestic and foreign), passports, visas, international health requirements and a myriad of other travel related items. In addition, we provide Ticketron information for concerts and sporting events.

There is absolutely no charge for any of the information which we dispense, nor is it either impressed or implied that in order to obtain this information you must purchase from us any of these services. However, when it comes to instance more specifically flight reservations, we can make them only for those who intend to pick up the tickets at our office, and for those already holding tickets. (Incidentally, our prices are identical to the prices at the airport — there are no "add-ons.") It is our obligation to the public as well as to the airlines to keep "airport no shows" as low as possible. When we need space during peak periods, the airlines cooperate in furnishing space. Only by exercising diligence in reservations and ticketing can this be done. Bear in mind, of course, that a "no show" seat may have been the one you needed but couldn't get because it was "occupied" by a "phantom" passenger who never cancelled the reservation and did not show up for the flight. We enjoy our work; we wish to be helpful. We are here to fill a need and to provide you with service.

Pat, Nel & Steve
Campus Travel Center

Gallo and self determination

To the Editor:

A representative of Gallo wineries spoke at UMass recently and tried to defend his company's treatment of farm workers, (Gallo has signed a sweetheart contract with the Teamsters in an effort to break United Farm Workers' organizing in its grape fields.) The Gallo rep repeatedly pointed out that Gallo farmworkers' wages are just as good now as under UFW contract; that money fringe benefits are equal if not better; and that practices required under UFW contract, such as toilets in the fields, have been continued without the UFW.

The strict "dollars and cents" mentality of the Gallo rep allowed him to think that this is all that farm workers need — he completely misses the subtle needs of working people who have been pushed around all their lives.

Farm workers, like all people, need the right to self-determination. That means the right to make their own decisions, to make their own mistakes, to work out their own solutions and to win and enjoy their own victories.

The Gallo rep and pro-Gallo literature went over and over points to the union hiring hall saying that it had a lot of problems, and that many farm workers were dissatisfied with it. This was probably true although not as bad as the company would have u believe. The Gallo solution to this was t smash the hiring hall, bring in outsiders (th Teamsters) who were more "efficient" an reimpose the labor contractor system.

One problem with this "solution" is tha while the labor contractor system may b more convenient for the company, it onl aggravates any abuses that the hiring ha might have allowed. Secondly, this probler was not for Gallo to solve — it was for th farm workers themselves to work out. Th UFW is one of the most democratic unions i the US. It is decentralized to let workers o each ranch make their own decision control their work places and enjoy, for th first time, those intangibles — strength, sel respect, and humanity — that workin people reap from control of their own live

The battle between the UFW and th Teamsters is not the average unio "jurisdictional dispute." It is a battle be ween the farm workers' own union that the can control themselves and the company selected union imposed upon the far workers from above. We must support th farm workers against the Corporate Whi Father which claims to know what's best f workers and certainly does know what best for Big Business.

BOYCOTT GALLO.

Alice Sunshi
Sunday News Collecti

Tomorrow is election day in Amherst. vote!

luis manuel medina

Student awareness

Students at this campus are entering into the political arena, a renaissance that will lead them into the first steps to off-campus decision-making process.

Students are a large segment of the consumer-society, and as such their rights have been denied several times. It is natural that the increase of student participation in these affairs could bring many changes in the power structure of this campus and the town.

Last week, at the Trustees' meeting, we saw that a more active and aggressive student input is necessary if students want to accomplish some of their goals of obtaining a higher education.

There are many factors that affect the quality of education; many outside forces shape the quality and philosophy of that education. Some of those forces are housing, rent control, town laws, job market, cost of life and proposed zoning by-laws for example.

One alternative to increase effective student input in shaping the type of education that we should have is to participate in the decision-making process; that is to run for positions in the town government as an alternative to exercising control in campus life style and quality of education.

Now that UMass students are running for town meeting offices, the rest of us, the masses, have a right and a duty to fullfill: Vote for them.

Luis Manuel Medina is a Collegian columnist.

What worker Unionization can achieve

By MICHAEL BARDSLEY

The struggle of the Union of Student Employees to attain collective bargaining recognition and negotiate a contract is not an isolated occurrence. The Graduate Employees' Organization at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor has recently been involved in a similar struggle. The GEO was certified as the exclusive representative of 2,200 teaching and research assistants in April 1974. On February 11 of this year, the GEO voted to go on strike against the University in order to force the Board of Regents to negotiate. Demands concerned pay, hours, job security, affirmative action, classroom size, among others.

The strike last 29 days during which time the University threatened to fire all striking graduate student TA's and RA's and ordered the Ann Arbor police to intimidate and harass picketers. Fifty-seven students were arrested and several pickets assaulted. One major factor which added critical support to the strike was endorsement from organized labor, including the Michigan AFL-CIO, the Teamsters, and the American Association of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME). A large portion of the student body actively supported the strike as well. By March 11 the University was forced to yield and negotiate a contract with the GEO.

Major gains in the new contract include:

— An 8 per cent salary increase, retroactive to Sept. 1974.

— An agency shop clause that requires all graduate student assistants to either join the union as a condition of employment or pay a service fee.

— A rebate on this year's tuition and a reduction and freeze on future tuition payments.

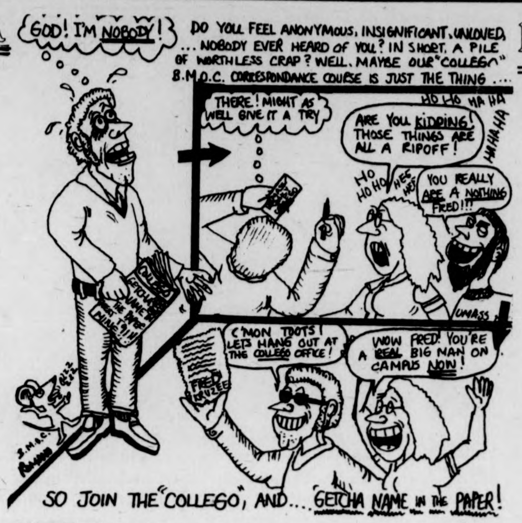
— A provision fobidding employment discrimination because of race, creed, color, religion, sex, age, sexual preference, or any nonrelated mental or physical handicap.

— A nonreprisal clause specifying that no academic reprisals will be taken against any participant in the strike.

The demands contained in the GEO's newly-won contract are essentially the same as those made by the Union of Student Employees being organized here at UMass. These rights to job security and fair conditions of employment can only be assured through a written contract. That is why it is essential that the U.S.E. achieve recognition immediately. The present organizing drive in the Campus Center is entering its final stage. The support by student and hourly employees has been impressive. Each day new names have been added to the authorization cards, and new faces have been participating in union activities.

Because the Union has the potential to represent the interests of all student and hourly employees, it is important that all Campus Center workers support the Union's effort to achieve recognition by signing the authorization cards. These cards will be presented to the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission and can now be obtained at the U.S.E. table on the concourse level, or from area representatives.

Michael Bardsley is a guest commentator and writer for the Progressive News Service.



GOD! I'M NOBODY!
DO YOU FEEL ANONYMOUS, INSIGNIFICANT, UNLOVED, ... NOBODY EVER HEARD OF YOU? IN SHORT, A PILE OF WORTHLESS CRAP? WELL, MAYBE OUR "COLLEGO" B.M.O.C. CORRESPONDANCE COURSE IS JUST THE THING ....
THERE! MIGHT AS WELL GIVE IT A TRY
ARE YOU KIDDING! THOSE THINGS ARE ALL A RIPOFF!
HO HO HA HA
HA HA HA
HO HO HO
HEE HEE
YOU REALLY ARE A NOTHING FRED!!!
UMASS
C'MON TOOTS! LETS HANG OUT AT THE COLLEGO OFFICE!
WOW FRED! YOU'RE A REAL BIG MAN ON CAMPUS NOW!
FRED KRUZEE
ZZZ
S.M.O.C.
SO JOIN THE "COLLEGO", AND.... GETCHA NAME IN THE PAPER!

a poem to the editor

That it breethes
of common air

hook line and sinker
another stinker

a finely feathered dawning barnyard cock
did hemming and hawing
did serve up words

eating crow words

servile
croud gathering cutting the fat
firming up words

rolling with it
a gallery of nit wits
did bow and curtsy
laugh and applause

shake hands with the next Govonor

he sniffed
we sneasdd

it was a kind of heel and toe
flat kick in the ass routine

loosely liberal empty of pfomise

trust me
cock and bull

we people hook line and sinker served up another stinker

ENGLISH

kyriakos karoutsos

Life goes on...

There is an alley behind Boylston Street in Boston. For the restaurant and night club owners this alley is a convenient space to place the trash which invariably accumulates within their establishments. For others, this alley is their "home". These "others" are the outcasts of society who come up to you while you are either taking a leisurely walk, or going to work, and ask you very politely, "Excuse me sir, can you spare a quarter?" Sometimes the response is a negative shake of the head, other times most times, the response does not come at all and the "sir" just walks by looking away, and very few times a benevolent soul will stop, search in his or her pockets, and come up with a couple of coins. These coins are always received with a smile and a "thank you." And life goes on.

These "others" are the "bums" and "winos" who are being constantly shoved, pushed, and spat upon by many, too many, of the more fortunate individuals. They are subject to ridicule, harassment, and cruel treatment. The reason for that? They are unproductive, useless parasites, lazy, and alcoholic. They live off others - others who work for their money. They are beggars and they are despised. And life goes on.

Whenever they accumulate the necessary amount of coins, they eagerly walk into a liquor store and their hungry eyes scan the hundreds of "life-giving" liquids. Their gaze stops at a particular spot and their trembling hands pick up a bottle of wine which costs whatever they have. They put it in their pockets and they walk contently away.

And life goes on.

Where do they get their food, and where do they sleep? This is where the alley comes into play. All day long, they walk through the alley, go through the trash disposals owned by different restaurants, and they come up with the necessary "food" which will keep them alive. They are not very particular about the quality of their food, you know. Everything which can be eaten is devoured. Whatever the patrons of the restaurants have refused, the "others" will eat. And life goes on.

...and on

Their clothes are mostly rags which have been picked up here and there, or just stolen from Jordan Marsh or Filenes. It is not unusual to see an "other" in the middle of the summer wearing a heavy winter overcoat. It doesn't make sense, does it? Overcoats in the summer? Their minds must really be messed up. NO, their minds are not messed up, they are just being practical. Winter is just around the corner and since they do not have a safe place to keep their coats for the duration of the summer, and since it is very difficult to get another overcoat, the best way to accommodate themselves is to keep their coats on. And life goes on.

The "others" are men and women who have been reduced to lowly creatures by this "affluent," "democratic," and "free" society. They are the peripheral members of our society whom we try to ignore — try to convince ourselves that they do not exist. If we "see" them, if we acknowledge their presence, our grand model of our great society will suddenly collapse. So, we just do not "see" them — it is a very simple solution indeed. And life goes on.

When time comes to welcome the god of sleep, the alley is their home, a few rags or cartons are their beds. They lie down, finish their wine, and sleep. They sleep now but they will awaken at some time or another, and their vengeance will be justice, their revenge will be furiously expressed, their voices will rise, and they will no longer beg: "Excuse me sir, can you spare a quarter?" And a new life will go on.

Kyriakos Karoutsos is a Collegian columnist.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes all letters to the editor. They must be signed and include the author's address and phone number. Also, all letters must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces per line, and no more than two pages.

Organizations may submit letters, but they must include a name and phone number for reference purposes.

All letters are subject to editing, for either content or space, according to the judgement of the editors. Due to space limitations, there is no guarantee that all letters received will be printed.

Students display unfavorable reaction to enforced dormitory housing.

Big Bad Boogie II draws mixed reaction

By MARA KLEIN
Staff Reporter

Reaction from people who attended Sylvan's Big Bad Boogie II, Saturday night was mixed. Many people felt crowded, since there were over 1000 people in Worcester DC's East Room. Even though there were 84 Sylvan volunteers working, lines for beer were long and service was slow, however 24 kegs of beer were consumed.

"For two dollars, I didn't expect this many people," said Fred Masterton, one Sylvan resident at the Boogie. Many people shared this view, so at 10:45 John Bohn, chairman of the Boogie closed the doors, and declared the evening sold out due to the large crowds.

At this time five more kegs were also ordered, which Bohn expected would last the rest of the evening, but at 12:15 the beer ran out.

Many of the volunteers were disgusted with the way the pople who attended the Boogie acted toward them. Michael Parkhurst, a shift supervisor said, "the people here lacked manners and the alcohol didn't help." Another volunteer said that, "people were obnoxious and swearing." "It was alot of aggravation, but it was worth it, since everyone had a good time and that was the point," added another volunteer. Most of the volunteers agreed that the aggravation was "par for the course."

The Luther Johnson Chicago Blues Band provided the music for the evening. "They were acoustically lacking, but dynamically all right," said Mark Betz, a student attending the Boogie.

Luther Johnson said that he "liked playing at the Boogie, better than at the Hatch, TOC or Bluewall." He felt that "people came to "get high and have a good time" and that his band enjoyed playing for the crowd, that was apparently enjoying itself.

WSYL-TV covered the Boogie live with one hour of music and interviews.

"The show will probably be aired Thursday night, "according to station manager, Mike Narkwicz, "along with highlights of the latest Ali fight, a Stevie Wonder concert and commercials, previously taped."

Bohn said that the Boogie ran "better than he expected." He was especially pleased with the hard work provided by volunteers, who manned the kegs and then cleaned up until 5 o'clock that morning.

Fund-drive for Daniels

The Belchertown State School Friends Association has received a $500 contribution to the Russell Daniels Legal Defense Fund. The gift has been made by the Fernald League for Retarded Children, a group of citizens concerned about residents of the Walter E. Fernald State School in Belmont, Massachusetts.

The Belchertown Friends are seeking to raise $10,000 to pay legal fees and expenses for expert witnesses being called in the Daniels trial. Russell Daniels, for 13 years a resident of the Belchertown State School, was convicted last spring of murdering an elderly Springfield woman. In January, the State Supreme Court reversed this decision and ordered a retrial, stating that Daniels had been the victim of a "miscarriage of justice."

The trial raised moral and legal questions about the handling of mentally retarded suspects. The only evidence against Daniels was his own confession, obtained after several hours of interrogation by the police. Daniels, who functions on the level of a nine-year-old child, could not read the confession.

Staff photo by John Stewart

Every semester UMass students travel abroad and student teach in a foreign country through the Off-Campus Program at the School of Ed. Pictured here is Carol Chagnon at work in Bristol, England.

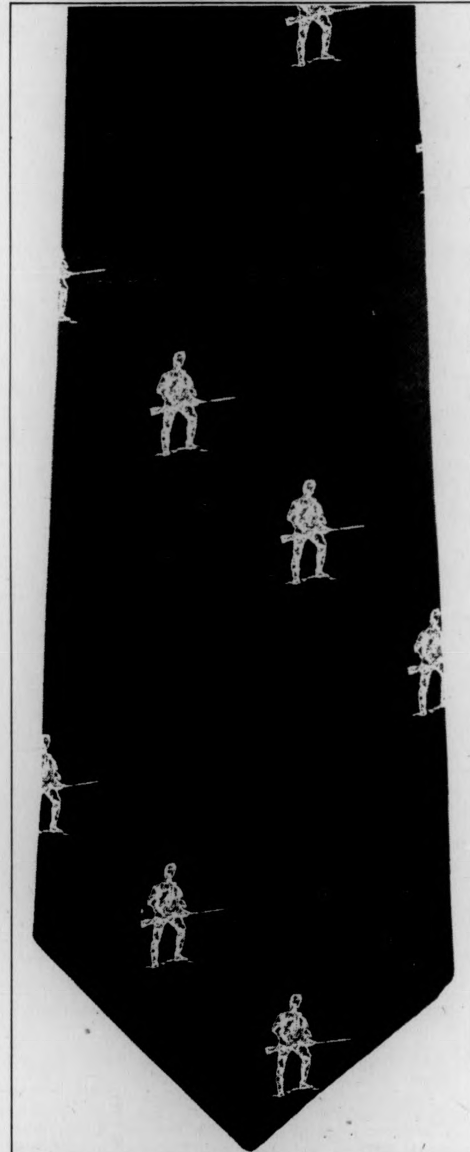
Lonely?

Everywoman's Center at UMass will sponsor a workshop on loneliness on Saturday, April 19. This workshop is intended for women who are currently experiencing heavy daily dosages of loneliness to share and discuss their feelings and ways of dealing with them.

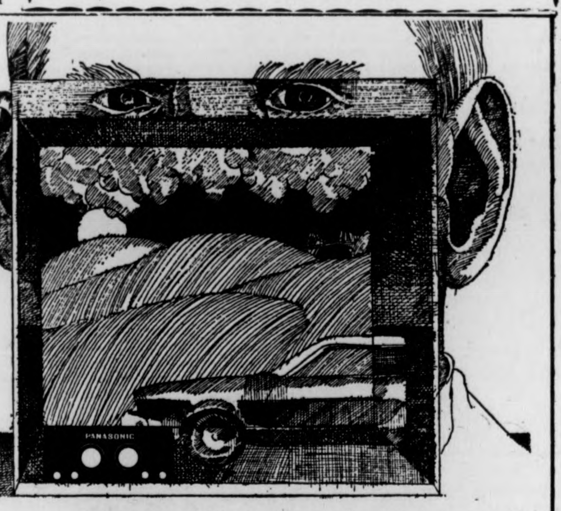
The cost of the workshop is $12. Women must register by Wednesday noon, April 16. More information may be obtained by contacting Everywoman's Center, 506 Goodell Hall, UMass, 545-0883.

Upcoming workshops in the Days and Weekends for Women series are A Day of Massage on April 26 and a backpacking trip on May 3-4.

THE WOK RESTAURANT
"Chinese Home Style Cooking"
Open 7 Days — 5-10 p.m.
No Reservations Take Out Service
Tuesday Special: Dinners $2.99
Rte. 9, Hadley 586-1202
Across from Cumberland Farms



TIED TO TRADITION
BICENTENNIAL TIE
Our BICENTENNIAL tie is here now. Join the spirit of '76 and tie one on.
Just one of several great "idea" ties you've come to expect from the area's finest men's store. $7.50
A.O.WHITE
Rt. 9, Hadley
We Accept American Express-BankAmericard & Master Charge



TELEVISION THAT WON'T ROT YOUR MIND TODAY
★ FREE ★
WONDERLOVE ★ Stevie Wonder in Concert
HEAVYWEIGHT Champion Fights 1947-74
shows continous from 12 noon to 3:00 p.m.
STUDENT UNION in the CAPE COD LOUNGE

Health Ed sponsors Women's Health Series

The Health Education Division of the University Health Services is sponsoring a series of programs on topics in women's health, to be held on Tuesdays from April 8 through May 6, from 12 noon to 1 p.m., in the Student Union.

These sessions are intended to be informational and will generally be structured with brief presentations by the speakers, followed by a question-and-answer period. All members of the University community and other interested persons are welcome to attend. Please join us to share in the knowledge, worries, joys and experiences related to women's health issues!

What is DES (diethylstilbestrol)? We will discuss DES primarily as it pertains to the daughters of women who took DES during pregnancy. What does it mean to be a DES daughter? Also included will be information about DES as a post-coital method of birth control. April 8, Commonwealth Room.

What exactly is involved in a pelvic examination? How do we do breast self-examination?

Ann Grose, a nurse practitioner and member of the Health Education Staff, and Penny Falconer, Contraception Clinic nurse practitioner at UHS, will explain and answer questions about these important aspects of women's health care. Audio-visual materials, including the "Gynny" and "Betsi" teaching models, will be utilized in this presentation. April 22, Colonial Lounge.

How can you obtain the best health care for your needs? Where can you find out what you have to know, and how can you insure the quality of health care? What should you be doing for yourself to insure optimal health? May 6, Colonial Lounge.

EXTRA!
WIFE LANDS ON STRAYING HUSBAND
PRAGUE—Vera Czermak jumped out of her third-story window when she learned her husband had betrayed her.
Mrs. Czermak is recovering in a hospital after landing on her husband, who was killed.
There's more
★MUCH MORE!★
in
COMMON KNOWLEDGE
(Or, Can of Foot Powder Elected Mayor of Ecuadorian Town)
The new book edited by Robert Ornstein
Paper: $3.50
GROSSMAN PUBLISHERS
A Division of The Viking Press
625 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022

Thesis Binders
and Thesis Paper
at
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St.
AMHERST

M'boom to blast tonight

The UMass Arts Council will present one of the most electrifying musical groups to come upon the American scene in many years, "M'BOOM re: percussion," tonight at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The group has been called a new, rare and most provocative dimension in percussion composition. In its European debut last year, M'BOOM performed to standing room only audiences in Holland, Belgium and on the French Riviera. M'BOOM's versatility and melodic sounds of complex multi-rhythms can be best described as music of the African continum.

The group was founded in the summer of 1970 in New York City of six of the country's most gifted percussionist-composer-arrangers. Roy Brooks has performed and recorded with Horace Silver, Yusef Lateef, Charles Mingus, James Moody, Wes Montgomery, Sonny Stitt, and teaches privately on the faculty of the Harlem Music Center.

Omar Clay's credits include performing and recording with Sarah Vaughn, Roberta Flack, Dionne Warwick. He teaches in the New York City Public School System and is one of the staff at the Third Street Music Settlement. Freddie Waits, who has performed and recorded with Ivory Joe Hunter, Percy Mayfield, Stevie Wonder, Ray Bryant, Sonny Rollins, Donald Byrd, Lena Horne, Lee Morgan, Melba Moore, teaches and gives percussion clinics and seminars in the New York City Public School System.

Joe Chambers has performed and recorded with Eric Dolphy, Freddie Hubbard, Herbie Hancock, and Archie Shepp. He is currently teaching at the Harlem Music Center.

Warren Smith performs and records in all phases of African-American Music as well as Broadway shows and TV and radio. He has worked with Aretha Franklin, Nat "King" Cole, Sammy Davis, Jr., Sam Rivers, Harry Belafonte and many others. He also teaches at the State University of New York at Old Westbury.

ROY BROOKS

Celebrate!
IRISH NIGHT
in the Bluewall every Monday
Jack Geary hosts the festivities
Monday, April 7.

Ariouilh's 'The Cavern' to open Thursday

Jean Anouilh's comic mystery The Cavern, University Theater's third production of the Spring semester, opens Thursday (April 10) for a fifteen performance run in the Studio Theater of the new Fine Arts Center.

Set in the Paris mansion of a noble family at the turn of the century, The Cavern, as Anouilh tells us through his alter-ego, the character of the Author, is a play he's never succeeded in writing. Yet, as persuasively as he addresses his audience, telling us that his old skills as a dramatist have deserted him, a play begins to take shape. Half-created characters bloom into full life and, what began as the simply story of a murdered cook ends in a character play of high comedy.

Assistant Professor in Theater, and Director, Jon Farris heads a cast of seventeen actors. Scenery for The Cavern was designed by John Gailbreath, with costumes by Helen O'Brien and lights by Susan Blaser.

Performance dates for the Anouilh play are April 10-13, 15-20, and 22-26. The curtain for all shows — except the Sunday 2:00 p.m. matinees of April 13 and 20 — is 8:00 p.m. Tickets for The Cavern, at $2.00 for students and $3.00 for non-students, may be reserved by calling the University Theater Box Office at 545-3511 any day after 12:00 p.m.

CASH & CARRY WHOLESALE!
VW Bugs
$16.99!
& FET Installation Available
5.60 - 15 Summer & Snow
Plaza Shell
Rte. 9 (west) Amherst
Next to the Steak-Out Restaurant

Rape hotline
— 545-COPS

Spring Clean-Up Sale
at the
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
Cloth Editions (Values to $25) $1.95
Paper Editions (Values to $10) 19c, 59c, 99c old editions, non-returnable books, new and used LIMITED QUANTITIES — ALL SALES FINAL
Textbook Annex
Physical Plant Bldg.
OPEN DAILY 10-4

TAPE SALE
25% OFF your next purchase of recording tape and accessories
Scotch MAGNETIC TAPE 3M
stocks are limited on some items ... so shop early. sorry no rain checks.
SALE ENDS APRIL 19!
university store campus center
university of massachusetts/amherst

Veterans reflect on current state of war

By JIM KASSNER
Staff Reporter

For most of us, the Vietnam war is something far from home, seen on television news, and read in the newspapers. As the situation in South Vietnam worsens, the end cannot be far away. But for one group, the Vietnam veterans, the last days represent more than that.

"I'm just relieved that it's all over with, and that the suffering is finally going to end," said Patrick Power, a member of the Veterans Coalition here at UMass.

"The United States can't admit its failure, and is just passing the buck," he continued. "We've lost a lot of buddies over there, but generally we're glad that it's almost over and done with."

The Vietnam veterans are a bitter group, bitter because their efforts appear to have been in vain.

"We never should have been there," Power explained. "They (the South Vietnamese) didn't like us... they had absolutely no will to fight."

The United States government officially recognizes about 55,000 US troops killed in Vietnam. But that figure is hardly accurate.

commentary

"They didn't consider the men who were in the hospitals, or the men who came home maimed and wounded. They didn't consider the men who developed severe depression and committed suicide. They (the Government) just lied; there are more like 100,000 on that list," Power said.

Another Vietnam veteran, Jim Reardon, felt that the pictures coming out of Vietnam were distorted, and the United States government lied to the public to cover up for itself.

"The Government sensationalized everything," he said. "We were the killers, not the Viet Cong. Before we entered Cambodia, the Cambodian government used to export rice. Now they're starving."

The two men agreed that the fall of Saigon was imminent, possibly within 2-3 weeks.

"We should stop all military aid except for food," Power said. "It's too late to do anything now. The South Vietnamese are fighting themselves for room on the airplanes that are going South... in some situations they (South Vietnamese troops) would run even when they had more arms than the Viet Cong. Just no will to fight," he said.

"Originally, we went in under the auspices of saving South Vietnam from Communism. But we were really helping the bourgeoisee, the upper class. We began exploiting the country with our imperialist attitudes," Power said. "I'm just relieved that it will all be ending," he added.

New exchange program announced

The Off-Campus Program announces a new Exchange Program with Sturt University in Adelaide, Australia. Adelaide is a small city of approximately three quarters of a million people. Sturt College itself is situated eight miles from the center of the city and shares the same campus as Flinders University.

Students from UMass will leave for Australia in mid-August, 1975 and return August, 1976. The students will have the opportunity of enrolling in a range of term length courses offered in three main areas, namely; Education, Curriculum and General Studies. American students will also be able to select courses according to those offered at the time and according to the individual needs of the students. Students should plan to take two terms of professional and academic courses and a third term of supervised practice teaching.

Interested Sophomores and first semester Juniors should contact the Director of OCTEP, Dr. William Fanslow or any member of his staff for additional information... Education Building Room 100.

Priest School returns to structured classes

By PHILIP THOMASON
Staff Reporter

Modern education is making a turn backward to the "structured classroom" at the Priest School at The College Church in Northampton. The school, presently, covers kindergarten and nursery school and is planning to expand to all twelve secondary school grades.

In a questionnaire directed toward the parents of the children at the school, Deirdre Cronin says she hopes to find out if the expansion would be practical. A Home Economics major at UMass, Cronin is student-teaching at The Priest School.

In a recent interview, she said that "most of the parents don't belong to the church." One possible reason for nonchurchmen to send their children to the school is that the school is not totally based on religion. The children are, however, brought up to "believe God is alive and in our everyday life."

The teaching technique is also turning away from the present day "free school" ideas to the old fashioned way of a "structured classroom," she said.

"I like working at the school but I'm going through a lot of 'red tape' for the survey. The minister must o.k. the questionnaire before it is sent to the parents. Then it must go to the school committee. The process is taking a long time," she said.

While the survey asks the parents why they brought their children to the school, it also intends to find out whether they have seen any change in their children, since attending the school.

"I think the survey can serve to guide the school's future," she said. "It may also serve as a source of publicity for the school if the results are published."

UMass artist on exhibit

An exhibition of prints by Fred Becker of UMass Art Department will be shown at the Bitten End Gallary in Northamptom to April 23.

Becker's work is represented in such outstanding collections as those of the Metropolitan and Brooklyn Museums and the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, the Philadelphia Museum, the Fogg Museum in Cambridge, the Rockhill-Nelson Museum in Kansas City, the Seattle Museum, the Library of Congress, the National Gallery and many others.

A member of the UMass art faculty since 1968, he has also taught at Temple University and Washington University in St. Louis.

The Bitten End Gallery, at 111 Pleasant St., Northampton, is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON

starts WEDNESDAY
at 7:00 & 9:00

"It represents some of the finest work Fellini has ever done — which also means that it stands with the best that anyone in films has ever achieved."
—Time Magazine

R FELLINI'S AMARCORD
presenting the Original Version!

½ Subs For All You Light Eaters

University Pizza

Pizza Taste
We've Improved On Our Own Recipe!

- Sound System
- Color Cable T.V.

Rich Taste — More Cheese

Come and watch the Stanley Cup Playoffs
ALL PRICES DROPPED BY 5%
(now include tax) due to a decrease in some of our food prices

Fearing St. (across from UMass Southwest dorms)
253-9363
Open from Noon Everyday Till the Wee Hours

PHOTO SPECIAL

April 30th the Collegian will run a special issue on photography. All undergrads are invited to submit photographs in one or more of the (3) following categories:

Portrait, Still life, and Abstract.

Prizes will be awarded for first place in each category and first, second and third place will be published in that issue.

Appearing
TONITE
East Wind
at
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47, Sunderland
665-1937

painters pants
the jeans store
WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st./amherst
Fairfield Mall/chicopee
10% OFF PAINTERS PANTS WITH THIS AD!

With this coupon and a $5 purchase.
C Cain's Mayonnaise
Quart Jar 99¢
Wow! What a fantastic value.
Limit one jar per customer. 270
Good Mon., April 7-Sat., April 12.

With this coupon and a $5 purchase.
C Salada Tea Bags
100 count 89¢
Finest orange pekoe blend ... a good buy.
Limit one box per customer. 271
Good Mon., April 7-Sat., April 12.

With this coupon and a $5 purchase.
C Crisco Salad Oil
38 oz. bottle $1.39
Perfect for all your cooking needs.
Limit one bottle per customer. 272
Good Mon., April 7-Sat., April 12.

With this coupon and a $5 purchase.
C Minute Maid orange juice
12 oz. can 39¢
100% orange juice from Florida
Limit one can per customer. 273
Good Mon., April 7-Sat., April 12.

With this coupon and a $5 purchase.
C Banquet Pot Pie
Turkey, Beef or Chicken
10¢
8 oz. package 274
Limit one package per customer.
Good Mon., April 7-Sat., April 12.

ONE OF THE STOP & SHOP COMPANIES
Stop & Shop SUPERMARKETS

Coupons & good specials ...good time to get your Stop & Shopsworth!

Featured this week
Americana Hearthside hand painted stoneware cup 29¢ ea.
with each $5 purchase

Exquisite hand painted Americana Hearthside stoneware dinnerware that goes from oven to table to freezer. This week, you can purchase the tea cup for only 29c with each $5 purchase*. You have a choice of three lovely designs. These patterns are like those you would find in exclusive china shoppes, and represent an outstanding value in every respect of the word.

Complete your service for 8 for only $11.60 in just 15 weeks!
*With a $10 purchase get 2 cups for 58c, with a $15 purchase get 3 cups for 87c, etc. The cup will be sold again in 5 weeks. Next week the saucer will be featured. Completer pieces available for $2.99 and $3.99 each.

Bartlett Pears Stop & Shop halves or slices 16 oz can 39¢
Cut Green Beans Stop & Shop 6 8 oz cans $1
Bathroom Tissue Vanity Fair-4 pack 500 sheet 2 ply rolls 79¢
Vanity Fair Facial Tissues 134 Sheet 3 ply box 45¢
Cold Power Detergent 49 oz box $1.19
9 Lives Cat Food Assorted Varieties 5 6 oz cans $1

Save
All-week freezer specials!
Lowest price since November 1972
Stop & Shop Frozen Vegetables 5 pkgs. $1
French Green Beans 9 oz. pkg.
Peas 10 oz. pkg. Cut Corn 10 oz. pkg.
Cut Green Beans 9 oz. pkg

Sun Glory French Fries–5 lb. bag 99¢
Taste O'Sea Haddock Dinner 9 oz pkg 59¢
Taste O'Sea Cod Fillets 16 oz pkg 99¢
John's Pizza Cheese or Sausage 14 oz pkg 79¢
Morningstar Farms Breakfast Links, Slices or Patties-8 oz pkg 79¢
Fleischmanns Egg Beaters 16 oz pkg 79¢
Eggo Waffles 11 oz pkg 59¢
Sliced Strawberries Stop & Shop 3 10 oz pkgs $1
Sara Lee Layer Cakes Assorted Flavors 18 oz package $1.49
All Natural Ice Cream Stop & Shop ½ gal tub assorted flavors $1.49
Hendrie's Fudgecicles 27 oz pkg 89¢

Values from our dairy dept.
Minute Maid Orange Juice ½ gallon carton 69¢
Mrs. Filberts Margarine Golden Quarters 1 pound package 59¢
Mrs. Filberts Marg. Family Size Bowls Soft or Corn Oil-1 lb cont 79¢
Cracker Barrel Spread 8 oz cont 69¢
Fruit Flavored Yogurt Columbo asst flavors 3 8 oz cups 89¢
Cottage Cheese Breakstone Stay N Shape 24 oz cup 99¢

From our own ovens!
Daisy Sliced White Bread 3 16 oz loaves 95¢
Buttermilk Bread Stop & Shop 3 16 oz loaves $1
English Muffins Stop & Shop Flavored 2 11 oz pkg $1
Apricot Danish Stop & Shop New York Style 15¼ oz pkg $1.09
Cherry or Blueberry Pie Stop & Shop 22 oz pkg 89¢
Countrystyle Donuts Stop & Shop 2 11½ oz pkgs $1
Maple Walnut Cake Stop & Shop 15 oz package 89¢
Brownies Stop & Shop Butterscotch or Chocolate-9½ oz pkg 89¢
Dinner Rolls Stop & Shop Brown N Serve 2 11½ oz pkg $1

Save on health & beauty aids!
Dial Deodorant Anti-Perspirant 2 6 oz pkg $1
Miss Breck Hair Spray 13 ounce can 69¢

Available in stores featuring a service deli
Large Bologna Armour Star Old fashioned quality 99¢ lb.
White American Cheese Land O Lakes ½ lb 59¢
Stop & Shop Cooked Corned Beef Brisket New York Deli Style $1.59 ½ lb
Chicken or Tuna Salad ½ lb 89¢
Chocolate Sundae Pudding
BONUS PAK! Buy one pound for 69¢ get a half pound FREE! per lb. 69¢
Mini Sahara Bread 8 oz pkg 59¢

From our Kitchen to yours
Meat Loaf 2 lb. package Frozen $1.69
Stop & Shop Chicken or Beef Pies 10 oz. pkg 69¢
A quick and easy meal.
Cooked Chickens White Gem Roasted or Barbecue Style 89¢ lb.

Catch these great values!
Pollack Fillets 59¢ lb.
Delicious fillets to broil, bake or fry. Frozen
Boneless Rainbow Trout Frozen per lb $1.69
Dressed Smelts Frozen per lb 69¢
Cooked Fish Cakes Taste O'Sea 1 lb package 69¢

Fresh fruits & vegetables from our garden of eatin'.
Juice Oranges 5 lb. bag 69¢
From Florida Indian River
Florida Cucumbers Crisp 2 for 39¢
Calif. Carrots 2 1 lb. Bags 39¢
Fiesta Salad 6 oz. jar 49¢
Foliage Plants Assorted hearty plants. 4" pot 99¢ ea.
Fluffy Ruffle Decorative fluffy leaves. 3½" Pot $1.29

Prices effective Mon., April 7 - Sat., April 12
In fairness to all of our customers, we reserve the right to limit sales to three packages of any item except where otherwise noted. Items offered for sale not available in case lots or to other retail dealers or wholesalers. Most items specially sale priced some at our everyday low prices. Bakery prices effective Monday thru Saturday.

Stop & Shop Great Beef ... Naturally Aged
Chuck Steak Beef Blade (bone in) 49¢ lb.
When you spend dollars for beef ... make sure you get Stop & Shop great beef.

Beef Shoulder Steak
Boneless-Chuck for London Broil $1.49 lb
Stop & Shop great beef ... naturally tender beef, you can buy only at Stop & Shop.
QUALITY PROTECTED Stop & Shop beef

Shoulder Lamb Chops
Frozen New Zealand 89¢ lb
Here's lamb with the delicate flavor that makes a family dinner memorable.
Loin Lamb Chops Frozen New Zealand $1.39 lb
Rib Lamb Chops Frozen New Zealand 99¢ lb
Lamb Legs–Whole Oven-Ready Frozen New Zealand $1.09 lb

Large Savings ... On Large Quantities!
We know how important specials are to you. They save you money, help you buy a little more. So we work to make our specials really good values.

Family Pack–White Gem U.S. Grade "A"
Chicken Wings 2½ 3 lb. pkg. 49¢ lb.
U.S. Grade A White Gem chickens, the sweetest tasting chicken money can buy.
Lean* Ground Beef 3 lb. package or more 84¢ lb
* Simply Super lean ground beef is not more than 24% fat.
3 lb box Italian Sausage Primo $2.99
Tasty Ten Franks Colonial 3 lb. pkg. $2.19
6 lb. box Breaded & Cubed Veal Steaks $3.99
Frozen Made Rite ... Box of 24–4 oz. Steaks
Liverwurst Stop & Shop 2½-3 lb. pc. 79¢ lb.
3 lb box Pork Sausage Countryfine $2.99

Buy Stop & Shop Great Beef the whole way ... save!
Whole-Boneless Beef Rib Eye $1.99 lb.
8-10 lbs.–Fabulous gourmet eating, steak house quality. The very heart of the rib. Let us cut it into steaks and roasts to your satisfaction.
QUALITY PROTECTED Stop & Shop beef

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
ALL THE WILDNESS... THE LOVES...THE SEX... THE BUSTS... THE MAD HUMOR... ALL THE BRILLIANCE OF THE MAN HIMSELF.
SPECIAL Midnight Show Friday & Saturday
"BERNIE TRAVIS PLAYS LENNY WITH DEADLY PRECISION." PLAYBOY
Dirtymouth
The Lenny Bruce Story
R RESTRICTED
DIRTY MOUTH: FRIDAY & SATURDAY — 12:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
NOW
Thursday thru Monday
Elvis was the god. James Dean the martyred hero and people still spoke of Sandra Dee....
That'll Be The Day
PG DAVID ESSEX RINGO STARR KEITH MOON
Plus
MEL BROOKS' BLAZING SADDLES
Eves: Blazing Saddles — 7:00; That'll Be The Day — 8:45
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS
WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS — BEST PICTURE • BEST DIRECTOR
all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
"THE STING"
1 PG 6:00, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON • WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
2 PG 6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
DAVID O. SELZNICK'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
3 G 6:45
No Twi-Lite Hour
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny"
4 R Nominated For 6 Awards
6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
NOW — ends TUES! at 7:00 & 9:00 and TONIGHT IS DOLLAR NIGHT!!
INCOMPARABLE!
Walt Disney's FANTASIA
Now at Popular Prices!
Music Conducted by the Great STOKOWSKI!
IN TECHNICOLOR

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1·2·3·4·5·6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD. WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
• CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE •
STREISAND & CAAN How Lucky Can You Get! Funny Lady PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00
warren beatty julie christie • goldie hawn SHAMPOO R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30
NOMINATED FOR 2 ACADEMY AWARDS YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:35; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35, 9:45
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny" A Bob Fosse Film Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 10:00; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50
Nominated for 8 Academy Awards THE TOWERING INFERNO PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:15; Fri., 7:00, 10:15; Sat., 1:30, 4:15, 7:00, 10:15; Sun., 1:30, 4:50, 8:15
What could be better than The Three Musketeers? THE FOUR MUSKETEERS PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:45; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:30, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $650. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers; high efficiency. 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

SR-50 Calc. Tex. Ins. TR. $75. Judy, 253-5054.

1964 VW, good cond., recently tuned. 30 mpg. Asking $375. Call 773-7960.

Black bean bag, $15; blow dryer, 400w, $5. Call Crystal, 6-8393.

AKC German Shep. pups. Top champ. lines. Excel. temper. $125. Call 253-7610.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

Sanyo refg. Best offer. Call 6-7209.

Head tennis racket. A. Ashe Competition. Hardly used, orig. $60, sell $40. 549-3857.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Used apt. furniture for sale. 256-8068.

Teac 250 Cassette deck, exc. cond., must sell. $180. Caroll 546-4441 after 6:30.

Electric Stove in good condition $45 or best offer. Call Steve at 586-4134.

Microphone Shure 588A new $30. Smith Corona typewriter $25. Peter 253-2713.

Women's 3 spd. Eng. bike. Good make needs work $25. Call Barbara 546-5185.

Sleeping bag North Face 10" loft $165. New, perf. cond. $110, or offer. 549-6559.

Calc. Bowmar MX100 all funct. 549-0013.

Yamaha Classical Guitar, 1 year old. 549-6226.

Garrard model SL55B Turntable! Base, Dust cov., cart. Fine condition. $30. Call 665-4368.

Framus 5-string banjo and accessories, $160; Toshiba reel to reel tape deck and 30 tapes, $60; paint and brush case and 30 tubes oils and more, $20. Call eves. Scott, 542-3119.

FOR SALE

ORGANIC FERTILIZER, composted cow manure, $25 a truck load, delivered. Call 665-4196 after 8 p.m.

Bundy S Model clarinet, $50. A1. 253-7687.

Speakers Frazier black box refinished pair 30 watt, $100. Exc. cond. Nancy 542-5837.

Gibson ES 335, good cond., $275. 253-5745.

AUTO FOR SALE

'67 VW $400 or B.O. Call 247-9368.

'68 Dodge Dart, 20 and 23 mpg., 74,000 miles. Old, w-AM-FM stereo radio. Asking $775. W-out radio, $675. Call after 6. 253-3344.

1968 Pontiac Catalina, 4 dr., hardtop, cosmetically and mechanically good. Low mileage. Asking $650. 542-5563. Ask for Henry.

'69 Dodge, auto., p.s., exc. condition. $600. 256-8487.

1970 Toyota Corolla, exc. mech. cond. Allan. 253-3107.

1964 Dodge panel truck. Rebuilt eng. Must see. $550. 527-9410.

4 Sale Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

1968 Ford custom 500 st. wgn., excellent running cond. 18-21 mpg., nw. brakes & clth. Asking $575. Call Bill at 549-0803 after 5. Leave name.

1965 Chevy Belair, $125. 665-2882 after 5.

1967 Ford Cntry Sqr., $600 neg., good cond. Judy, 253-5054.

For Sale 1966 Buick Skylark, good cond., new bat. and exh., $300. Call 545-2163, ask for Dennis B.

1966 VW square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

58 Peugeot, sunroof, bring a battery and drive it away! $100. Bob 253-7967.

64 Corvair Convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer. 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new. Exhaust runs well. 6 cyl., $250. Bob 253-7967.

68 Chev. No Beauty, but SUPER RUNNING. Small 8, automatic. p-s, $395. 253-7967.

Great 70 Fiat coupe, looking for good home. 40 mpg., $695 takes it. Bob 253-7967.

67 Ford Galaxie 6, auto $395. 253-7967.

Buick Wildcat, 4 dr., 425 cu. in 3 spd auto. 4bbl. Air condition, posi mint cond., 17 mpg. Must be seen. $700 or best offer. John 6-1167.

69 VW Exc. cond., sunroof, new clutch, brakes; rebuilt engine. $1000. 253-9285.

For sale 1972 SAAB 99E Exc. cond., new injectors. Tires air cond., $2400 or best offer. 413-774-4289 evenings.

Honda 450 eng. totally rebuilt $100, or best offer by April 14. 253-7687 eves.

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM-FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

Honda 450, eng. totally rebuilt. $700 or best offer by April 14. 253-7637.

1967 Honda 305 — motor ex. cond., new batt. $300. Call Gary 253-2892 or 546-8505.

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

1974 Honda, XL250, 680 miles, like new! Call Russ at 256-0544 for more info. $935.

69 Honda 175cc $225. 253-9502.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

'65 Honda S-90. 7700 mi. Runs well. 253-7610.

Motorcycle tires, used. All will pass inspection. $4 to $10. Call for sizes. Russ at 256-0644.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

FOR RENT

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

One bedroom efficiency on bus route. All utilities. June 1 - Sept. 1. Call 665-3367.

Cape Cod. Falmouth. 2, 3 and 6 bedroom cottages, winterized, furnished. Walk to beach. Full season only. Owner. 1-203-521-6841.

Room in house. Lg. fire-pl., pri. bath and storage. 2 mi. to cam. on bus rte. Sub. Apr. & May w-opt. $115. All util. inc. Call 256-8271.

Four bedroom house in Northampton for Sept. Rent $275.00. Call Skibiski Realtors, 584-3428 between 3-5 p.m.

Room for male student — country living, share bath, kitchen, lounge. 4 miles from UMass. $75 mo. Call 253-7841.

WANTED TO RENT

F23 Piano dog need home. Cris. 253-3975.

1 bedrm. apt. Northampton vicinity. 91S. Beg. May 1. Bus Phone. Call Patty 545-3139.

SM House in countryside. Isolation and work space. Resp. craftsman. Refs. avail. now sum. Call collect 617-868-4430.

TO SUBLET

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month. On bus line. June 1. August 31. Opt. to renew. 546-6333.

Brandywine June-August. 2 bedrm. 549-1864.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

Four bedroom apt., util., furn. inc. June - Aug. Neg. Amherst 253-2433 on bus. 2 miles to U.M.

TO SUBLET.

June-Sept., 2 bdrm. $175. Pool w-utl. 665-3953.

Apt. Squire Vil., Sunderland, June 1 thru Sept. 1. Call 665-4871. $240 including util.

Sublet June 1-Aug. 31. Lg. 3 rm. apt. with extra lg. bedrm. Brandywine, heat and a.c. incl., opt. to renew lease. Call 549-4577 anytime.

Puffton, 2 bdrm. apt. Start June 1. 549-6385.

3 bdrm., Squire Vlg. Sublet June 1, option to renew. 665-3821.

House from Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0521 anytime. B.O.

To sublet pri. bedroom. Squire Village. Can occupy immediately if needed. 665-3571.

Sublet June 1 — Sept. 1. Opt. to renew. 2 bedrm. apt. Belchertown, on bus route, lake. 323-6213.

Sublet room June — Sept. Great apartment and on bus route. Large windows. Call 256-8834 Sharon.

2 bedroom apt. in Brandywine. June 1st to August 31. Negotiable 549-0112.

Apt. available June-August, 4 rm. furnished, reasonable. Opt. to renew. Northampton, Smith Col. area 586-1130.

Sublet with option to renew two bdr. townhouse, Squire Village. June 1. $170 per mo. plus utilities. Call 665-3280.

Sub 2 bedrm. Brandywine apt. $220. Call 549-4474, 2 bus lines.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedr., furnished apt. Bus line. $110 w-utilities. 253-7967.

Grad. Stud. seeks sunny room for Sept. 1. 256-8247 eve.

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

Own room in Puffton Apt. All utilities. $75 mo. 549-4524.

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer — close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

M or F wanted for summer cottage in Dennisport. 15 wks. $375. 549-1365. Dana.

Own lg. room in Hatfield. Country home w-land. 10 mi. from Amherst. No lease. $61 plus utilities. 247-9358.

ROOM WANTED

Priv. spacious room in country near UMass by June 1. Call grace 545-0790.

HELP WANTED

MANAGEMENT TRAINEES — Nationwide Co., No. 1 in its field seeks college graduates for entry level positions in its expanding sales management operations. Major function involves marketing of insured savings and investment programs for college seniors and graduates on local campuses. Company paid training, 2 yr. training bonus program, great health, retirement and other fringe benefits. For interview call Psnl. Dept. 256-8354 bet. 10:00 and 4:00.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Townhouse apt. to sublet option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate rent for summer months if interested, call 549-0895.

Wanted tires for '71 Pontiac Catalina, J78, 15". Also sell new, (500 miles), 14" radials. 542-5101.

Want to buy '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant Slant -6. $225. Call Jeanne 549-1312 eve.

TYPING

Regular and technical typing. Reasonable rates. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 665-4982.

I will do your typing accurately and promptly. Call Bev. — 545-2735 or 253-9215.

PERSONALS

Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

Gay Catholics — Your church cares, do you? For info, counsel, rap, write to Dignity, Box H488, Forest Park Sta., Springfield, Ma. 01108.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

FALMOUTH VOTERS: Write home for your ABSENTEE BALLOTS. Vote for Caterine Norton for school committee.

Crazy Indian — this one is for you, with love — good things come in small tight packages.

Bob B. Happy Birthday. You're over the hill now. Love the Phantom.

Interested in obtaining info. on communes, past or present. 253-5490 or 546-1219.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

PERSONALS

Wanted: Prospective wife, green and white. Call 617-335-2591 or write Apt. 11, 10 Mediterranean Dr., Weymouth, 02188.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS — All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX YOUR CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Wooden chair seats recaned. Call Lin — 546-7274.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

MISCELLANEOUS

Hand-tamed hooded rats, light and dark. M & F. 50c ea. 549-6449.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95, HP-21, only $119.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

UNITED Feature Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Rock ledge
6 Streetcar
10 Outdoes
14 Lowest point
15 Dance of Israel
16 Paris airport
17 Ally with a group: Var.
18 European river
19 Horse color
20 Exclusive titles
22 Hot southerly wind
24 Feels eager: Informal
26 Intoxicated: Slang
27 Tough
30 Hard water
31 Handle: Fr.
32 Of equality of measurement
37 Marital vow: 2 words
38 Worried
40 Tokyo's old name
41 Beverage
serving group: 2 words
43 Bier cover
44 Cease
45 Was important
48 Golfer's concern
51 Vowed
52 Wicked act
54 Gave as merited
58 Ending with inc and int
59 Celebes Sea gulf
61 City on the Nile
62 Ripening agent
63 Impetuosity
64 Throw out
65 Soaks
66 Depress
67 Sleeps

DOWN
1 Center a football
2 Pacific pine tree
3 Blue-pencil
4 Striated
5 European language
6 October
"World" madness: 2 words
7 --- and reel
8 Son of Zeus
9 -------- Provinces: Eastern Canada
10 Small crown
11 As hard as -----
12 Location
13 Council of churches
21 God: Prefix
23 Moved rapidly
25 Methods
27 Secular
28 Within: Prefix
29 On a specific date: 2 words
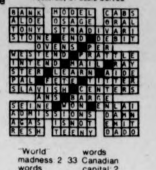
33 Canadian capital: 2 words
34 Hind part
35 Useless
36 Frigid
38 Be evasive
39 Converted into cash
42 Auto parts
43 Nobility
46 Pull along behind
47 Kind of bullet
48 Vilification
49 Affect slightly
50 Resources
53 Ration
55 Ceases to live
56 Prefix with while
57 Morse Code units
60 Managed

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved



BANK MODEL CABS
ALOE OSAGE ORAL
TONY STRADIVARI
STONE END DEBIT
OVENS PER WESTEND PRATTLE
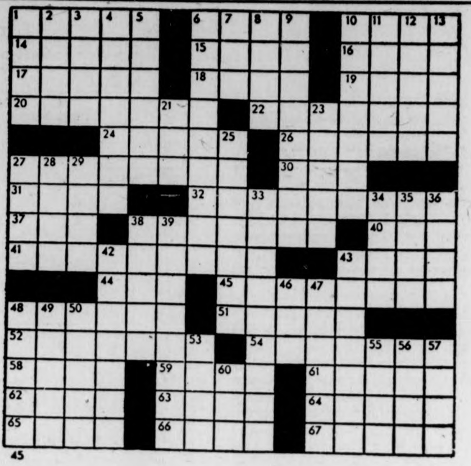
INTEND HAIL RAY
STER LEARN AIDE
PAL FETE TITTER
SLAVISH CENTERS
ANS BARGE
SEINE WON ENLAI
ADMISSIONS DAMN
AGAS ISNOT EMIT
RESH TEENY DADO



Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

MONDAY, APRIL 7 — Born today, you are inclined toward wishful thinking on the one hand and doomsday thinking on the other. You tend to see what you want to see, to find your fears realized in the most ordinary of circumstances, while yet believing all will ultimately be well -- if you can only get your will at work on these situations which cause you displeasure. You are extremely self-confident, in spite of your many fears, for you fully believe yourself capable of mastering whatever you set out to master, afraid or not.

Generous by nature, you nevertheless believe in independence, your own and other people's, and for this reason are not prone to indulging your instinct for generosity except as it can be served by moral support. You are not one to support other's ambitions, talents, and aims through material offerings, for you truly believe that no prize is well received that is not also well earned through the sweat on one's own brow.

You must take care not to carry too far your insistence upon other people's independence, for such insistence, demonstrated in a refusal to aid another even when the cry for help goes up, could well earn you animosity, resentment, and even retaliation. It is true that friends are not always well served by a helping hand -- but it is certain that they are ill-served by rejection, and that they know it.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Tuesday, April 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Take care that difficulties with relatives do not arise as a result of morning argument. Take your time; don't try to criticize the work of another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If you make an effort to associate with one or two people with successful experience in your field, you can make exceptional gains by evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Begin now to prepare for your next move on the employment scene. There's plenty of time -- but only if you are willing to follow a leader.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Unless your technical knowledge is up to par early in the day, you will have a failure on your hands by nightfall. Study in early morning.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Clarify your own situation. You may not be able to get another to listen to reason -- but you can surely get him to listen to the sound of profit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If possible, clear away business matters before the noon hour. You might be able to make headway with a budding friendship during evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Don't allow yourself to be persuaded by one of great charm into actions or decisions you will later regret. Avoid making promises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Take care that you are not talked into a purchase you neither want nor can afford. Guard against a friend's enthusiasm early in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Reconsider a move made yesterday. You may wish to begin all over again where a new project is concerned. Don't be afraid of hard work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Success marks your dealings with others -- but not until relatively late in the day. Take care not to lessen your efforts too soon.

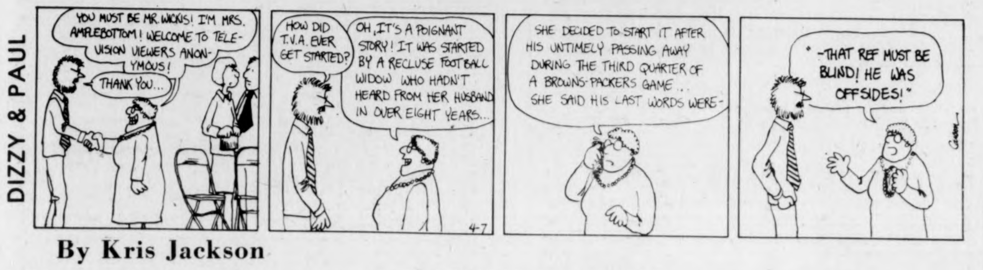
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — This would be an excellent day to begin a journey. Be sure you can catch another in the right mood before you ask a favor of him.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Keep mentally and physically alert throughout the day. If you fail to notice the approach of opportunity, you may lose out on gain later in the week.

United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

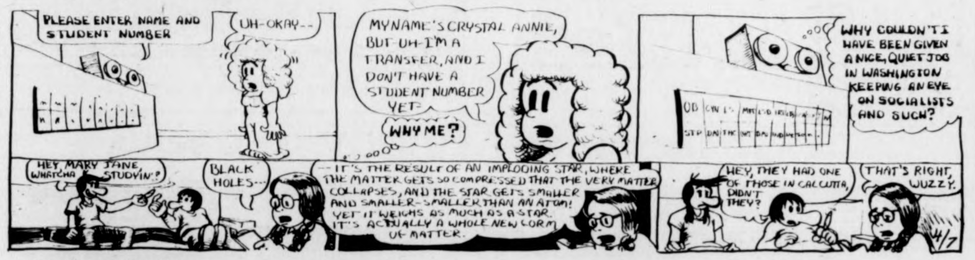
DIZZY & PAUL



YOU MUST BE MR. WICKS! I'M MRS. AMPLEBOTTOM! WELCOME TO TELEVISION VIEWERS ANONYMOUS!
THANK YOU...
HOW DID T.V.A. EVER GET STARTED?
OH, IT'S A POIGNANT STORY! IT WAS STARTED BY A RECLUSE FOOTBALL WIDOW WHO HADN'T HEARD FROM HER HUSBAND IN OVER EIGHT YEARS...
4-7
SHE DECIDED TO START IT AFTER HIS UNTIMELY PASSING AWAY DURING THE THIRD QUARTER OF A BROWNS-PACKERS GAME... SHE SAID HIS LAST WORDS WERE-
"-THAT REF MUST BE BLIND! HE WAS OFFSIDES!"

By Kris Jackson

KAMPUS KAPERS



PLEASE ENTER NAME AND STUDENT NUMBER
UH-OKAY--
MY NAME'S CRYSTAL ANNIE, BUT-UH-I'M A TRANSFER, AND I DON'T HAVE A STUDENT NUMBER YET-WHY ME?
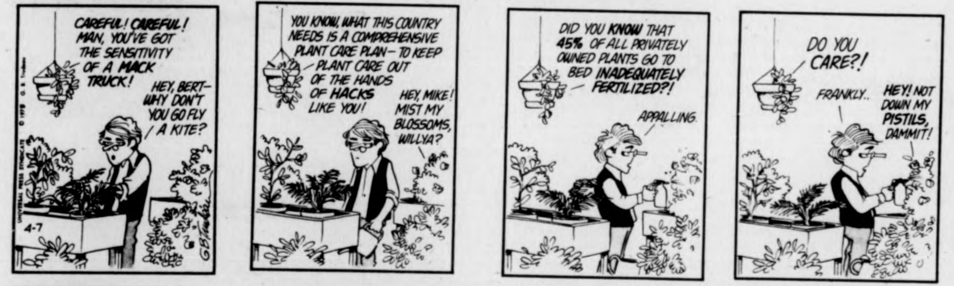
WHY COULDN'T I HAVE BEEN GIVEN A NICE, QUIET JOB IN WASHINGTON KEEPING AN EYE ON SOCIALISTS AND SUCH?
HEY, MARY JANE, WHATCHA STUDYIN'?
BLACK HOLES--
--IT'S THE RESULT OF AN IMPLODING STAR, WHERE THE MATTER GETS SO COMPRESSED THAT THE VERY MATTER COLLAPSES, AND THE STAR GETS SMALLER AND SMALLER-SMALLER THAN AN ATOM! YET IT WEIGHS AS MUCH AS A STAR. IT'S ACTUALLY A WHOLE NEW FORM OF MATTER.
HEY, THEY HAD ONE OF THOSE IN CALCUTTA, DIDN'T THEY?
THAT'S RIGHT, WUZZY.
4/7

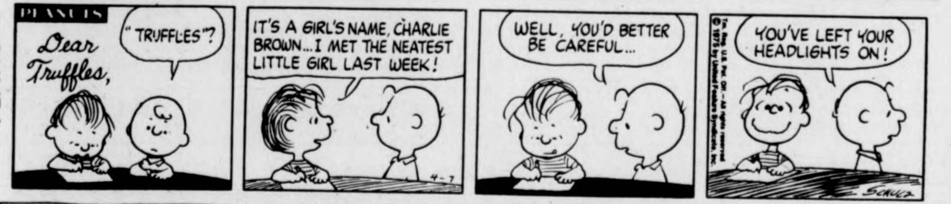
by Garry Trudeau

DOONESBURY



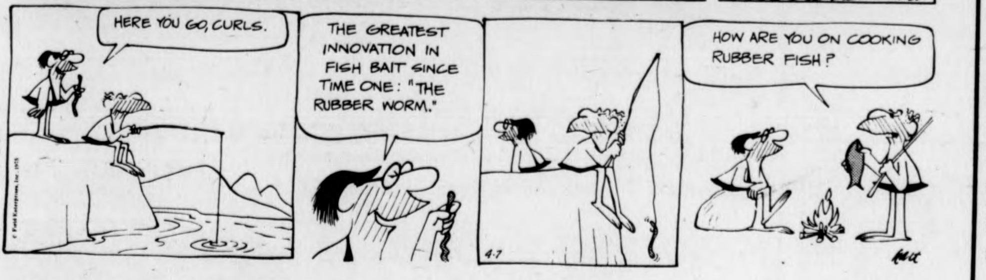
CAREFUL! CAREFUL! MAN, YOU'VE GOT THE SENSITIVITY OF A MACK TRUCK!
HEY, BERT-WHY DON'T YOU GO FLY A KITE?
4-7
YOU KNOW, WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A COMPREHENSIVE PLANT CARE PLAN—TO KEEP PLANT CARE OUT OF THE HANDS OF HACKS LIKE YOU!
HEY, MIKE! MIST MY BLOSSOMS, WILLYA?
DID YOU KNOW THAT 45% OF ALL PRIVATELY OWNED PLANTS GO TO BED INADEQUATELY FERTILIZED?!
APPALLING.
DO YOU CARE?!
FRANKLY..
HEY! NOT DOWN MY PISTILS, DAMMIT!

PEANUTS



PEANUTS
Dear Truffles,
"TRUFFLES"?
IT'S A GIRL'S NAME, CHARLIE BROWN...I MET THE NEATEST LITTLE GIRL LAST WEEK!
4-7
WELL, YOU'D BETTER BE CAREFUL...
YOU'VE LEFT YOUR HEADLIGHTS ON!
SCHULZ

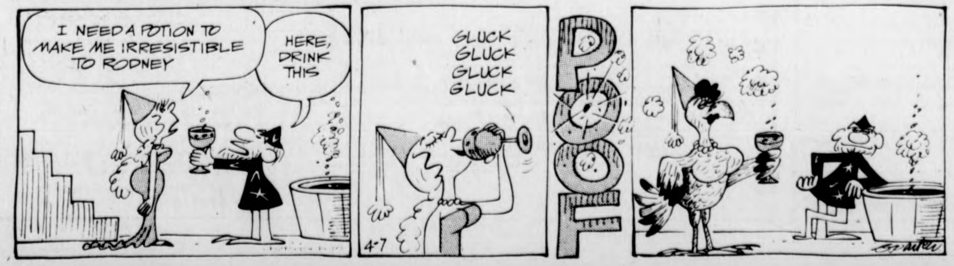
B.C.



HERE YOU GO, CURLS.
THE GREATEST INNOVATION IN FISH BAIT SINCE TIME ONE: "THE RUBBER WORM."
4-7
HOW ARE YOU ON COOKING RUBBER FISH?

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart

WIZARD OF ID



I NEED A POTION TO MAKE ME IRRESISTIBLE TO RODNEY
HERE, DRINK THIS
GLUCK GLUCK GLUCK GLUCK
POOF
4-7

notices

BEEN TO CASUAL CORNER LATELY?
If you have, you know all the great clothes and accessories they have. Come hear an executive tell the "behind the scenes" story and answer questions. Small gifts and refreshments. Tues., 4-8, 7:30, Rm. 119 Skinner. Questions? Call 546-9622.

DVP MEETING!
There will be a DVP meeting in CC 102 at 7 p.m. Discussion of upcoming programs. All members are urged to attend.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
How reliable is the Bible? Come and find out tonite when Dr. Isbell of the UMass faculty speaks. 811-815 CC at 7:30.

IRISH POET
Thomas Kinsella, Irish poet and translator, will read his poems tonite at 8:00, Herter 231. Tues., 4-8, he will speak at Hampshire College, Patterson Hall, East Lecture Rm., 3 p.m.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA
Welcomes all university women to our Rush Party, Tues., 4-8 from 7-8 p.m. at 32 Nutting Ave. Call for rides 5-0320 or 5-0321.

LS & S MAJORS
Come and hear Sally Hamilton speak on communications! April 7th (7:00 general meeting of the Rec. Society), at 7:30. Please come, we want a good turnout.

LIVESTOCK CLASSIC
Sheep clinic, 7 p.m. at the sheep barns, Mon., 4-7. This meeting is mandatory. If you are unable to attend please call 546-9896.

NAIADS SHOW
Naiads aquatic art performance will be April 9, 10, 11, 12 at 8 p.m. in North Physical Education Building (NOPE). Tickets now available at Student Union and NOPE.

ONE WEEK LEFT!
All persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th. Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 CC.

OPPORTUNITIES IN FILM
Any students interested in a Summer opportunity in film - a Warner Bros. Observation Program (June 23-Aug. 15) or a Film Production Workshop (July 20-Aug. 15) Stop in at the Student Activities Office, Student Union, or call 545-2351 for info before April 9th.

OUTING CLUB
Tonite, at the general meeting, there will be a movie on White Water Canoeing and a surprise slide show. Come see what it's about! 7 p.m., 101 CC.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE BOARD
There will be a meeting tomorrow at 7:00 in the Commuter Lounge.

UMASS WOMEN'S COMMUNICATION NETWORK
Will meet Mon. at 5:00 at Everywoman's Center. Any women interested in campus media are welcome.

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARY
Will meet tonite at 7:30 in Rm. 174 CC.

VETERANS
BX meets tonite, 8 p.m., 186 King Philip, Sunderland, Spring Day, Paul S. L'Heureux.

WOMEN'S TRACK
Field events needed: shot put, discus, javelin, high jump, long jump. Contact Julie, 6-5977, anytime.

LOST
Orange, female cat, Priscilla, in N. Amherst. Call 549-6696.

LOST
Set of keys in leather case, between Bluewall and CC. Call 323-4483.

LOST
An artist tackle box with drafting and artist supplies. It was left on the floor of an old green Chevy Sedan in front of the Fine Arts Center. Call Bruce Wiggs, 253-3781 or Art Dept. in the Fine Arts Center.

LOST
Many colored shoulder bag, with wallet, keys, meal ticket. Lost at Mtn. Farms Theatre Thurs. nite. Call 546-8424.

Help us help you.
Use Zip Code.
Your Postal Service
U.S. MAIL

Netmen face tough schedule in debuts

By BILL EDELSTEIN

The UMass tennis team is getting ready to do their impersonation of the UMass track team this week. The Raqueteers (it still has more charisma than "netmen") will be running continuously as they face Tufts today at home (3:00 start), Amherst here tomorrow (another 3:00 start) and Rhode Island in R.I. on Wednesday (yet another 3:00 start). The Minutemen then receive a two day rest before travelling to Vermont to do battle with those nasty Catamounts. One of those two days of rest may, however, be filled with — you guessed it — a match (at Middlebury). On Sunday, the Raqueteers get to return to UMass and promptly collapse from exhaustion.

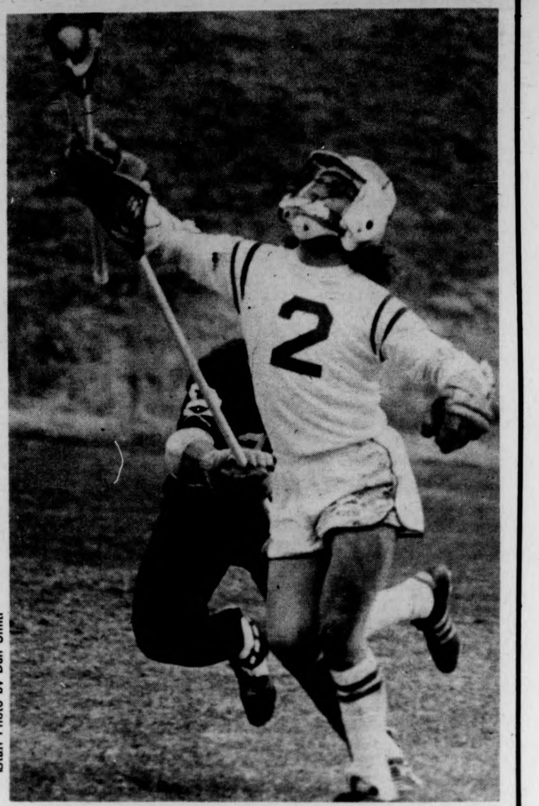
Coach Kozakowski is as yet unsure of the exact order of his lineup for today's match. Kevin Garrahan, Bill Karol, Marc Ouellet, Barnaby Kalan, Chris Post, Dave Abramhoff, Tom Doyle and possibly John Beals will paly, but which positions they will beat can only be today's audience participation question on Match Game '75. "We'll practice before the match," the coach declared. "And I'll figure out the order then."

Tufts defeated UMass last year, 6-3, and everyone that played on that club last year is returning (must be the food).

"If everybody plays the game he's capable of, we should beat Tufts," stated Kozakowski.

"We'd like to get off to a good start," the coach said of today's season openeer. The Minutemen's last match was a practice against Boston University, which the good guys won, 5-4. "The team should have beaten them by more than that, but I was experimenting with different combinations," added Kozakowski.

LETS, FAULTS AND OTHER ABSURDITIES — Tomorrow's meeting with Amherst was to be the original season opener, yesterday but it was "frozen-out". The match was first scheduled for the end of March, but at that time it was rained out ... Amherst had another match scheduled before tomorrow's encounter with the Minutemen, but it too was postponed due to inclement weather conditions — the gentlemen from across town may not get to hit a ball this year ... The pairings for today's doubles matches are set even if nothing much else is. They will be: Garrahan-Doyle, Ouellet-Karol and Abramhoff-Kalan. (These pairings, of course are not in any special order, but then again, neither is this portion of the article.)



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

UMass' Bill O'Brien lunges for a pass in action against Dartmouth Saturday. O'Brien was a key in the win as he scored two goals and had four assists.

Water polo; men split pair, women victorious in tournament

The UMass men's and women's water polo teams hosted a tournament with Boston College and RPI on Saturday morning at Boyden Pool. The first game began at 9:30 and matches continued until 2:00.

In the first game UMass men's team failed to break the BC "spell" which has haunted them since last season. Last fall they beat BC in their first meeting and then fell to them twice in the next two matches.

After two quarters BC held a strong 6-3 lead. In the second half the UMass play jelled and they picked up four goals to BC's three, and ended up losing by a close 9-7 score. For BC the outstanding player was their goalie Quigley. For UMass Henry MacLean scored three goals, Ron Boucher one, Duncan Lomas one, and Russ Yarworth one and Kevin McGill one.

The second game of the morning was won by the UMass women's team 7-5 against BC. Coach McCafferty attributed this to strong swimming and spread-out play. For UMass, Jane Welzel scored two goals, Kathy MacDonald one, Jeannie Abrahamson one, and Deb Hoxsie one, and Penny Noyes one.

BC's men's team and RPI played the third game which BC won, and in the final game of the day UMass men faced RPI.

UMass had no trouble holding on to a healthy lead after scoring four quick goals in the first quarter. The final score was 14-8. Duncan Lomas and Ron Boucher each scored five goals with Henry MacLean and Kevin McGinn each scoring two.

Coach McCafferty was pleased with the three games UMass played. Of the loss to BC McCafferty said, "They had us down 6-1 in the first quarter, but we came back in the second half and closed the score to 9-7. We lost, but that second half wasn't bad."

The next men's games are against Dartmouth and Yale next Saturday at Boyden and the women's team is still waiting to hear from Wellesley about their upcoming match.

Knicks drop Braves to gain playoff spot - pairings set

The New York Knicks captured the 10th and last berth in the National Basketball Association playoffs on the final day of the regular season by beating the Buffalo Braves 105-93 Sunday, then watched on television as the Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 95-94.

Those results left New York and Cleveland tied with final regular-season records of 40-42. But the Knicks got the wildcard playoff berth in the Eastern Conference because they beat Cleveland 3-1 in the season series between the two clubs.

Defending NBA champion Boston, which had the best record in the Eastern Conference, and Golden State, with the top mark in the Western Conference, drew byes for the first-round of the playoffs.

In the East, Houston will meet New York in a best-of-three series, the winner of which will play Boston in a best-of-seven set.

Meanwhile, Buffalo will face Washington in a best-of-seven series. In the West, Seattle faces Detroit in the best-of-three series, with the winner meeting Golden State in a best-of-seven set.

At the same time, Chicago will be playing Kansas City-Omaha in a best-of-seven series.

In each conference, the winners of the best-of-seven series will meet to determine the playoff finalists.

The first playoff games are set for Tuesday night.

Golfers greet Rhody in debut

By RON ARENA

The UMass golf team tentatively opens its spring season tomorrow afternoon with a 1:00 home contest versus the University of Rhode Island. However, the match may be postponed due to the conditions of the golf course, Hickory Ridge C.C. in Amherst.

The opening of the course is currently slated for Wednesday, which creates problems since the match is tomorrow. Due to the recent rain, a river has backed up onto the course resulting in the delay.

The match, if played, should be just a tuneup for Thursday's big match with Yale, a team which tied UMass for the Eastern title last fall. Coach Fan Gaudette admits, "I'm not too concerned about this match anyway. "I'm looking more towards Thursday." He added that Rhody was scheduled for the purpose of getting ready for the big Yale match.

URI should have one advantage if the course opens on time. The Rams have already engaged in a Southern trip where they played against North Carolina and Citadel. According to Gaudette, "They played very well. All the scores were close." He mentioned that the URI squad had one player shooting a 73, a couple at 75, and another at 77.

As for the Minuteman squad, their action has been limited to basically "just hitting some balls," according to the coach. Tomorrow should be a test as to how well they've been hitting those balls.

Gaudette will play Joe Artman and Howie Terban as his top two players. John Lasek, Tom Toski, and Rick Olsen will be rounding out the top five, though not necessarily in that order. The final two performers will be chosen from a group consisting of Jim Moriarty, Dave Grochmal, Paul Feeney, Blaine Samson, Tim Kurty, Jim Haggerty, and Bill Locke.

the BLUEWALL presents
Tuborg Movie Night
featuring
"The Lone Ranger"
Tuesday, April 8, 9:00 p.m.

DIANA ROMER
FOR SELECTMAN

Amherst Town Election — April 8.
Polls open noon to 8 p.m.

Chairman, Amherst Town Finance Committee, member since 1971
Land Acquisition Review Committee, member
Town Meeting member since 1961
Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts, Hampshire County Chapter, vice-chairman
Committee on Housing, Hampshire Community Action Commission, 1968-69
Graduate Student, University of Massachusetts, Planning and management in higher education
Resident of Amherst for 20 years

Sponsored by Pearl Claunch
27 Hills Road, Amherst

LEO BOUCHARD
Candidate For
SELECTMAN
RESPONSIVE TO ALL THE PEOPLE OF AMHERST VOTE ON TUESDAY,
APRIL 8.
POLLS ARE OPEN 12:00 Noon until 8:00 p.m.

Precinct — Poll Location
1 N. Amherst Parish Hall
2 Fire Station, N. Pleasant St.
3 Odd Fellows Hall, Kellogg Ave.
4 Masonic Hall, Main St.
5 Fort River School
6 Munson Library, South East St.
7 N. Amherst Auction Gallery

Political Advertisement paid for by Jerome M. Mileur 164 Columbia Dr.
Amherst

Staff photo by Rob Carlin

Members of the UMass men's crew team splash their way through practice earlier this season.

April weather threatening as baseball season opens

(AP) - Baseball's 1975 season, battling hectic early April weather and arriving just as the hockey and basketball playoffs begin, gets started with four games Monday.

Midwest storms have already postponed two of Tuesday's openers, forcing Pittsburgh's game at Chicago back to Wednesday and delaying Baltimore at Detroit until Thursday.

By then, the season will be well underway. It begins in Cincinnati where the Los Angeles Dodgers battle the Reds in a matchup of National League West title contenders.

The Dodgers-Reds game will jam Riverfront Stadium with 52,000 fans including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, who will handle the first-ball chores. The real first-ball job belongs to Reds' left-hander Don Gullett, who will oppose Dodger ace Don Sutton.

The sellout is the 10th straight for the two division rivals. And after their three-game series in Cincinnati, the Reds will help the Dodgers open their home season in Los Angeles a week from Monday. The Dodgers expect 45,000 — their best Opening Day crowd in 11 years — for that game.

Cincinnati, which finished four games back of the NL champion Dodgers last year, will face Los Angeles seven times in the new season's first 10 days and the NL West pattern could be established in those two series.

After watching the Dodgers and Reds, Commissioner Kuhn will rush to St. Louis to attend the night opener at Busch Stadium between the Cardinals and Montreal Expos.

Bob Gibson, baseball's winningnest active pitcher with 248 career victories, will open for St. Louis against Dave McNally, making his National League debut after 12 seasons with the Baltimore Orioles.

The National League's other Monday opener will be in Houston's Astrodome with the Atlanta Braves facing the Astros. The Braves will use 20-game winner Phil Niekro against Larry Dierker for the Astros.

For Houston, it will be the 10th season in baseball's only domed ball park.

The American League's 75th season gets started in California Monday night with the Angels' Nolan Ryan facing Steve Busby and the Kansas City Royals.

Busby has pitched no-hitters in each of his first two AL seasons and Ryan has three no-hitters to his credit, including one in his final start of the 1974 season. If he pitches another Monday night, he'll match the record established by Johnny VanderMeer in 1938.

Tuesday's AL schedule has New York at Cleveland, Milwaukee at Boston in day games and Minnesota at Texas, Chicago at Oakland and Kansas City at California at night.

David Thompson, the premier college basketball player in the country stands proudly beside Coach Norm Sloan after accepting Naismith Trophy, emblematic of being the top player.

Crew stunned- second defeat in two years

By BOB NORTON

WORCESTER — "They were looking for us and we were overconfident. It was really poor," said senior co-capt. Paul Gowen in summing up UMass Crew's opening loss to Trinity College on the windswept, cold, and choppy Lake Quinsigamond.

In a triangular regatta (last Saturday) the varsity heavyweight Crew lost only its second race in the last two years. This defeat like the last (U. Penn. '73) was by a mere deck length as Trinity rowed the 2000 meter course with a strong tailwind in 6:11.3 while UMass finished with a time of 6:12.8 — only 1.5 seconds off the pace. W.P.I. didn't enter the heavyweight light event.

Coach Bill Mahoney was not very pleased in the varsity's showing. "We didn't race aggressively enough — Trinity jumped out to a couple seat lead as I had anticipated but we failed to come back adequately. With 500 meters to go, we were understroking Trinity by two." Mahoney videotaped the races and felt that he had "learned a lot about the team's personnel." He emphasized that "there will be more seat racing to determine who the best racing oarsmen are." The coach added that "I'm not all bent out of shape over the loss but there will be some changes made." He commented that there may have been a communication breakdown. UMass will get a second chance as they meet Trinity in the Dad Vail Championships, the second week in May.

On a happier note, the JV and first frosh eights as well as the third varsity four, powered their way to convincing victories in their debut. The JV jumped out to a two length lead at 500 meters and went on to demolish Trinity by over dorty seconds. Mahoney indicated that he "was really pleased by the way the JV boat rowed. They rowed the way I wanted them to, and had the race won by the 500 meter mark."

The freshman first eight, stroked by Frank Miconi, rowed the 2000 meters in 6:28.3 to Trinity's 6:42.3. The second frosh boat didn't fair as well as they bowed to Trinity by three boat lengths. The first frosh looked impressive in their first race and first win.

The third varsity four for UMass topped off the day with a decisive victory for WPI's first varsity four. In the only other race of the day, Trinity sunk WPI's lightweight varsity winning by nine lengths.

Baseball tournament; track meet cancelled

The Corsair Tournament, a baseball meeting in Dartmouth, Mass. between UMass, New Hampshire, Eastern Connecticut, and Southeastern Massachusetts U., scheduled for this past weekend, never took place, never can take place, and never will take place.

"We were snowed out," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist. "We were encouraged to come down, but on the way it started to snow." The rest, as some say, is history.

Elements permitting, the Minutemen will open their home slate Tuesday at Earl E. Lorden Field at 3:00. Tuesday, incidentally, is the same day the Red Sox open at home with Tony C. and Henry Aaron, so discriminating baseball fans will have a choice.

As for the Corsair Tournament '75, it is thus sentenced to an eternity in perdition. "None of the teams have any open dates that all coincide" said Bergquist, "so the Tournament has been cancelled."

Remember that ill-fated economy car of a few years ago? Perhaps the tourney should be renamed the Corvair Tournament. And then again, perhaps not...

Cold and windy weather conditions forced the cancellation of the UMass track team's opening meet, a four-team affair against Boston College, Boston University and Amherst, which was scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

According to coach Ken O'Brien, it's doubtful that the meet will be rescheduled. O'Brien noted the improbability of the four teams agreeing on another date to hold the meet.

The trackmen will face Holy Cross in an away meet on Wednesday, the return home for a Saturday meet against Colgate and a strong Dartmouth team.

Tony C. starts as Sox open

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, coming back after being out of baseball for 3½ years, was listed Sunday as the Boston Red Sox' designated hitter for the 1975 American League opener against the Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday in Boston.

Manager Darrell Johnson had no surprises as he released his probable lineup a few hours before the Red Sox broke camp and flew to Boston.

The only question mark was Juan Beniquez, who twisted his ankle last week. Beniquez will test his ankle in Boston Monday. If given the medical okay, he will play left field and lead off in the batting order.

Collegian sports

Ali starts publicity campaign for TV fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali and Ron Lyle began the publicity campaign for their May 16 World Heavyweight Title fight Sunday with low-key performances which suggested they were preparing for a tea party.

Ali avoided any bombastic predictions about what he would do to the 32-year old challenger when they meet in Las Vegas, Nev., denied he would make out Lyle to be "a tool of white men" and characterized his opponent as "a gentleman ... a fine associate of mine."

Ali made his comments at an ABC-TV press comment at which he appeared along with Lyle, promoter Don King and sportscaster Howard Cosell. Both Ali and King emphasized that the bout would be televised on home TV affording millions of aged and under-privileged people to see the action without paying closed circuit prices.

Asked if he would train as lightly for Lyle as he had for Chuck Wepner, who he stopped in the 15th round in his last defense, Ali replied:

"I train the way I want to train. I'm not really sure how good Lyle is. I have to see more pictures of him fighting. I'm going to have to do some spying."

Lyle, who has a 32-2 pro record including 21 knockouts, had an answer ready when asked to defend his right to challenge for the title inasmuch as he has lost to fifth-ranked Jerry Quarry and unranked Jimmy Young.

"Ali is a boxer and I'm a fighter," said Lyle. "Ken Norton lost to George Foreman but Norton broke Ali's jaw and Ali beat Foreman. I don't think it's what you do when you're coming that counts. I think it's what you do when you get there.

"Ali is a great champion and I know he has been an inspiration to many people," Lyle added. "But why should one pro be afraid of another man in your profession?"

Lyle then got a laugh from newsmen at the conference when he turned to Cosell and asked, "Are you afraid of other sportscasters in your profession?"

Think even smaller.
Over 50 mpg.
on a
KAWASAKI
VALLEY MOTORSPORTS
348 King St.
Northampton — 584-7303

"Professional Hair Styling"
HAIR PORT INC.
$1 OFF OUR SERVICES
(With This Coupon)
18 Bridge St.
Northampton
584-9683
Good April 1 thru 31

Gymwomen second in nation

By BILL DOYLE

UMass, not even mentioned in any of the pre-meet press releases issued by the tournament publicity committee, fell just short in its guest of the women's national gymnastics championship, finishing second behind Southern Illinois with a total of 105.50, at the University of California State at Hayward Friday night.

Southern Illinois, who also took the title last year, had too much depth for UMass as the champions totaled 107.35. Although Southern Illinois had two gymnasts who received All-American status, the team had gymnasts in eight spots in the finals on Saturday night.

UMass' Jeannine Burger became an All-American for the fourth straight year by finishing fourth in the floor exercise and Susan Cantwell also received All-American status by finishing in a fifth place tie on floor. The top six-placed gymnasts in each event received All-American Status.

Burger scored a 9.05 Saturday after avegaging a 9.15 in Friday's preliminaries. Cantwell scored a 9.10 Saturday and a 9.05 Friday.

In the team competition, UMass fell victim to harsh judging on the uneven bars and two costly falls on the balance beam.

Coach Virginia Evans said, "We had some good routines on bars but they didn't receive the scores they deserved. Every team was judged strictly on bars, though, not just us. On beam, you just don't expect gymnasts like Jeannine (Burger) and Susan (Cantwell) to fall."

But they did, so even though UMass led off by scoring the meet's highest floor total of 27.10 and had strong vaulting (26.65), the Minutemen never did peak as Evans said she hoped the team would.

Although UMass did still finish second in the entire country, the team seemed unsatisfied after the meet.

Senior Gail Hannan said, "We wouldn't have minded if we hit and lost, but we didn't so we're not happy with second."

One gymnast who did peak was freshwoman Cheryl Smith, who reached the finals in vaulting and on beam, and had her best meet ever. Smith scored a 9.0 in vaulting, an 8.9 on beam, and an 8.9 on the floor. She scored another 9.0 in vaulting Saturday to place in a tie for twelfth and she averaged an 8.85 on beam in Saturday's finals to finish in a tie for seventh.

Evans said that she thought the team did a terrific job all season and that the strong showing topped it all off.

"We had a young team but everyone came through all season," she said. "If we had peaked at nationals, we could have won."

On floor, Debbie Law (8.55), Alicia Goode (8.55), and Ann Olson (8.65) all came through with strong, clean performances but their scores didn't count because Burger (9.15), Cantwell (9.05), and Smith (8.9) outscored them to total UMass' highest floor score of the season.

Vaulting also proved to be a strong event for the Minutewomen as Smith scored a 9.0, Cantwell scored an 8.85, and Olson scored an 8.8. Burger (8.65), along with Linda Nelligan (8.6-her highest score of the year for a hand spring with a full twist), and Gail Hannan (8.75) also had good vaults but again their scores didn't count.

The team appeared to lose its momentum after receiving low bar scores. Susan Cantwell, Jeannine Burger (who had an incredible save by landing on the lower bar to prevent a fall), and Ann Olson especially seemed to be underscored.

Staff photo by Henry Doldoi

Jeannine Burger (3rd from the right) and Susan Cantwell are shown with their plaques they received at the gymnastics nationals. Burger finished fourth Cantwell fifth on the floor.

Cantwell did score an 8.65, good enough to reach the finals where she scored a 9.05 (the fourth highest of the finals) to finish tenth overall.

The beam competition saw Margie Magraw score her best total of the year (8.55) to make-up somewhat for Burger's 8.2 score as a result of breaks in her routine including a fall. Smith's 8.9 and Cantwell's 8.65 also counted.

In the all-arounds, Cantwell totaled 35.2, Burger totaled 34.6 and Olson totaled 33.9 (last year for Oregon she totaled 34.0).

Southwest Mississippi JC finished third with a 104.85 total; Springfield finished fourth with 103.70;

Southern Connecticut's Cole Dowaliby won the all-arounds with a 36.50 total. She also took the beam title with scores of 8.90 and 9.30. Penn State's Karen Schuckman won the floor total, scoring a 9.40 and 9.45. She also tied to first in valuting with Clarion's Karen Brezack and Seattle Pacific's Laurel Anderson by totaling 18.35 after both days. Diane Sepke of Univ. of Illinois at Chicago took the bar title by scoring a 9.25 and a 9.20.

GYM GEMS — The two-day championships drew over 7,000 fans. The team possibly could have used injured gymnast Pam Steckroat on bars. She had qualified on bars in Easterns.

Garber's Gorillas gouge Green

By BEN CASWELL

Garber's lacrosse Gorillas completely demolished the Big Green of Dartmouth Saturday 22-4, but will lose the services of midfielder Bill Collins for possibly the rest of the season.

The win proved to be very costly as the senior co-captain Collins suffered a shoulder separation after being battered by a Dartmouth defender in a scramble for a loose ball midway through the second period.

Collins said he was going down to scoop a loose ball right after a face-off when he was rapped in the shoulder area by a charging Big Greener. "I stayed in the game for a few more minutes," said Collins, "but when I came out my shoulder definitely wasn't feeling right."

Dr. Snook, a university surgeon, looked at Collins' shoulder and immediately put it in a shoulder harness with his diagnosis being a bad separation that would take approximately eight weeks to heal.

Other than the Collins injury the game was a satisfying one for the Gorillas.

The stickers put on an awesome show of offensive power. Attackmen Kevin Patterson and Frank Garahan were the scoring leaders with six goals and five goals respectively. Bill O'Brien had two goals and four assists while Jeff Spooner was getting one and three.

Dartmouth was never really in the game once it got started. Mike Lettera opened the Gorillas' scoring after about three minutes of play and in the next four minutes UMass boosted itself to a 5-0 lead and Dartmouth would never even get close.

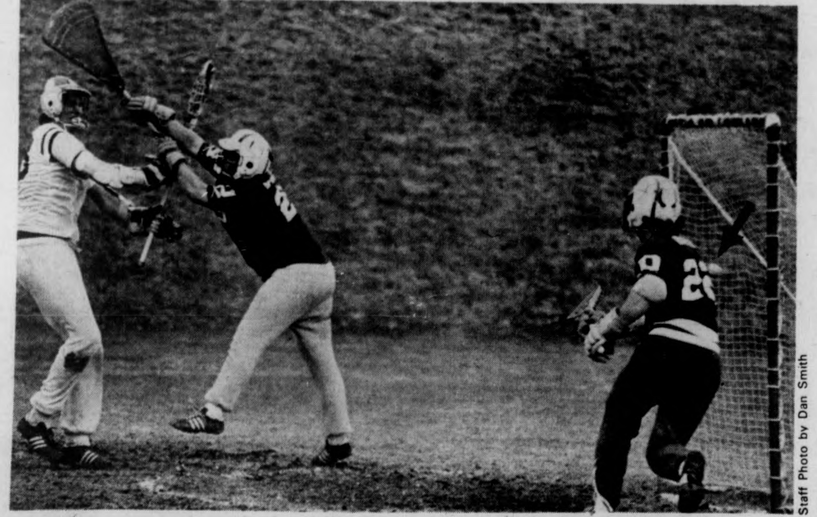
While the Gorillas' offense was having a field day, to say the least, the defense was playing adequately although they were never severely tested.

At midfield the passing was very sharp and the checking was very tight. Freshman Mike Lettera showed exceptional hustle and every unit seemed to have good continuity.

The goalies, Bob Durland and Jim Hadaad, made the saves that they had to. Durland also started one of the best fast breaks of the day, hitting midfielder Bill Arnold with a sharp, long pass at the mid-field line. Arnold made a couple of nice fakes in his rush, then flipped the ball to Bill O'Brien who faked towards the net then fed off to Kevin Patterson who finished off the play for the Gorillas' second goal.

"I told you that this was a good team," said coach Dick Garber after the win. "We looked good out there today, I thought we had a lot of zip. We were really hustling for loose balls and we did a lot of running. That's what I like to see," said Garber.

SCOOOP SHOTS — Coach Garber was not sure exactly what would be done to remedy Collins' loss... Attackman Bill O'Brien had some fine fancy passes and Frank Garahan had a beautiful behind the back shot for one of his five goals. The Gorillas next game is against tough Cortland State on Wednesday in New York.



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

Arrow shows one of Kevin Patterson's six goals zipping past the Dartmouth goalie in Saturday's game.

Brouillet shines

By RON ARENA

UMass gymnast Bill Brouillet led a trio of Minutemen gymnasts in the nationals placing 13th in the nation on the parallel bars. Steve Marks earned a 21st place finish in the optinal vaulting, while the final UMass entry, Pete Lusk, placed 26th on the rings.

Brouillet, after scoring an 8.65 in the compulsories on the parallel bars, came back with an exceptional 9.3 in the optionals, the seventh best optional score in the nation for the event. Coach Tom Dunn was pleased with Brouillet's performance commenting, "He couldn't have done too much better."

Marks also scored a 9.3 in the optional vaulting. Dunn noted that this score may have possibly been a little low for his performance. His score was nonetheless the 10th highest in the nation in the vaulting. Marks had received an 8.65 in the compulsories, a score which damaged his chances for a higher placing. Remarked Dunn, "His compulsory was fair, but not really good enough."

Lusk was the only disappointing performer of the three. Lusk earned only an 8.25 for his performance in the optionals for the rings. Coupled with his poor showing in the compulsories, Lusk's performance was far from satisfying. Dunn had no explanation for his showing. "He just didn't do very well," he stated. "He could have done much better, but he just didn't have a good meet. I don't know why."

The competition was totally dominated by Western schools. University of California in Berkeley, captured the team title, edging LSU, 437.325-433.7, with Southern Illinois finishing third.

In the individual competition, Wayne Young, of Brigham University was crowned the all-around king with a 109.65. California's Tom Weeden and Mike Carter of LSU, finished second and third respectively in the individual running.

South Vietnamese plane bombs Thieu palace

Compiled from Wires

SAIGON, North Vietnam — A camouflaged F5 jet warplane of the South Vietnamese air force bombed the downtown palace of President Nguyen Van Thieu on Tuesday morning.

Witnesses said the single plane swooped low over the modern four-story building and dropped at least two and possibly four 500-pound bombs.

Palace sources said Thieu and his family were not injured. Thieu is under intense pressure to resign because of the collapsing battlefield situation.

There was no immediate indication if the bombing was the act of one angry pilot or part of a larger plot to oust Thieu.

"I can see windows blown out on the top three floors of one wing of the palace," a witness said. Others reported one bomb hit a sandbagged tent used by members of Thieu's white-uniformed palace guards, but there was no report of casualties.

Soon after the bombing, small arms fire was heard in the vicinity of the concrete and steel palace but it ended quickly. Police cordoned off the palace, located in a walled park the size of several city blocks, and 20 mm anti-aircraft guns were wheeled into position beside the walls.

Ambulances and fire trucks were seen leaving the area.

Radio Saigon urged the residents of the capital city, jittery over reports of a new Communist offensive in the Mekong delta south of Saigon that could threaten the city's food supply, to remain calm.

The plane was an American-built F5 supersonic Freedom Fighter which is a mainstay of the South Vietnamese air force. It appeared suddenly over Saigon, swooping low over the presidential palace and then returning a second time through anti-aircraft fire thrown up by palace guards.

On the second pass, the plane dropped two bombs and then sped away toward the northwest.

Opposition politicians have been demanding that Thieu step down. They blame him for failing to halt the month-long Communist-led offensive that has captured three-

turn to p. 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545 3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 43 AMHERST MA TUESDAY, APRIL 8, 1975

Gage calls demand 'irresponsible'

By DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporter

Student assertions that any dormitory rent increase would be unacceptable were labelled "irresponsible" last night by Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert Gage, in a Collegian telephone interview.

Gage's remarks came one day after a task force of undergraduates appointed by Student Government Association President Rick Savini, listed seven "demands" that will be presented to the administration this week.

The Task Force, formed several weeks ago to originally study the Universal Resource Fee has recently expanded its directions to include studying budget cuts and tuition and fee increases.

Yesterday demands included: no increase in any fees, non-mandatory housing, non-mandatory board, no newly instituted fees, no decrease in human services, improved academics, and re-examination and re-evaluation of the Office of Student Affairs.

Gage said that without a rent increase there will be no furniture replacement, or repairs in the dorms.

Gage said, "If we don't raise the rents we can let the place deteriorate."

"Last year the University absorbed the increased costs by cutting down on repairs. This year we must absorb the increased cost of utilities."

The University has proposed a $50 to $100 rent increase for next year, and a $40-$50 facilities fee to cover the debt service on the dining commons.

The exact figures will be made known tonight by Ken Dean, director of Residential Life, at a meeting with the Student Seante Rents and Fees Committee. Gage said the Rents and Fees Committee holds "human services in the dorms as low priority. They (Rents and Fees) would readily cut human services."

According to John Marciniec, chairman of Rents and Fees, "My first priority is to take care of the necessities, fuel, repairs, maintenance and labor — the physical surroundings."

"There is a need for human services, but whether we should pay for it in rent money is a different story."

He said human service costs (counseling, heads of residence, peer sex ed, etc.) should be pulled out of the rent fee. "Why isn't the University paying for those services."

Gage said alternatives like cooperative housing were "great" and "I'm willing to try it" but cooperative housing doesn't work in groups larger than 60 or 70 people and the smallest dorm has 120.

He said the Task Force demand to reorganize and re-evaluate the Office of Residential Life was "fine, doesn't bother me at all."

"The University has to be constantly reorganized to improve efficiency."

Campus Center fee held at present level

By DAVE KOWAL
Staff Reporter

The Campus Center (CC) fee will remain at $64 next year as a result of several proposals decided upon last night at a Board of Governors meeting with CC management.

Mark Bennett, vice-chairperson of the board, said, "The proposals include eliminating the reserve for repair and replacement in the Building Operation Department, as well as the Food Services Department, for one year; eliminating the vacant grade six, senior clerk position in the Food Services Department; closing the Hatch bar on Wednesday nights; and opening the Hatch at 9 a.m. instead of 7 a.m."

Bennett said these proposals will save each student $3.11 next semester, temporarily eliminating the repair and replacement reserve will save each student $2.58. Eliminating the senior clerk position and closing the Hatch bar on Wednesday nights will save students 39 cents and opening the Hatch at a later hour will save 14 cents.

These proposals were decided at an executive session of the board from which the Collegian was barred.

Bennett said, "The board is not considering personnel hiring or firing at this time as a means of further cutting the Campus Center budget."

John Corker, director of the Campus Center, said the board worked very effectively. "The function of the meeting," said Corker, "was to get the budget down so that the $64 fee could be maintained, and this function was realized."

"Everyone put a lot of time into it, using common sense, and a realistic budget was the result," he added.

Craig Stuart, business manager of the Campus Center, presented a payroll analysis for the 1976 fiscal year. The analysis includes a "trim" of nearly two per cent; from 40.03 per cent for 1975 to 38.08 per cent for 1976, in payroll.

Bennett asked for an additional five per cent cut in the Campus Center permanent payroll.

Bennett said, "In this operation, unlike any other food service operation in the country, we have a lot of permanent payroll positions that we're stuck with, due to contracts and administrative procedures. The permanent payroll is far too high. Cutting their budget is one solution to this problem."

Phil Amiço, director of Campus Center food services, said, "We're playing games. The job has to be done. If we didn't have the permanent employees, the jobs would probably be filled by hourlies."

Corwin enters plea of 'not guilty' at trial

By DEBBI DiMASSIMO
Staff Reporter

At a Student Judiciary hearing last night, Bruce Corwin, former treasurer of Rainbow Productions, pleaded not guilty to nine charges brought against him by the student attorney general's office. He was arraigned on violations of the Student Code of Conduct, activities regulations, and the Financial Policy Act.

Defense advocate J. Michael Parkhurst entered a pre-trial motion dismissal of all charges on the premise that the executive order allow — Rainbow Productions to function as an RSO expired on January 11. The motion was taken under advisement and later denied because Corwin continued to avail himself of RSO services after the expiration.

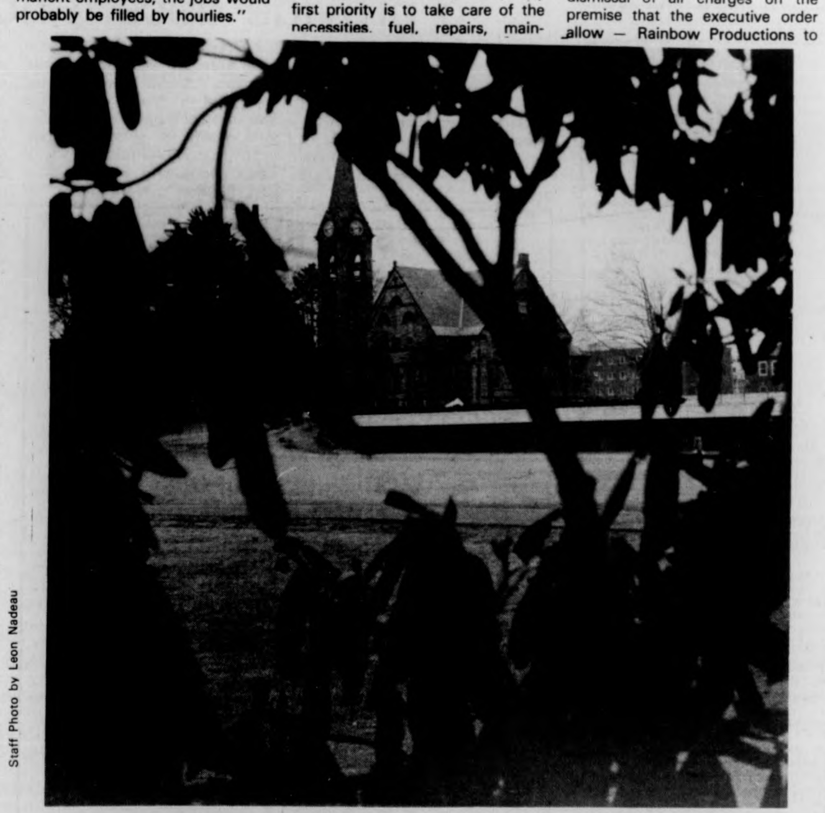
Witness for the prosecution Cindy McGrath, speaker of the Student Senate, explained that it was a matter of policy that Rainbow was allowed to continue as an RSO. "We work in good faith," said McGrath. "If governmental affairs has not had the time to approve a group's constitution we allow them to continue operating."

Prosecutor Cindy Iris documented the alleged violations of the financial policy act and discrepancies between actual revenues and RSO deposits. Introduced as evidence was a copy of a letter sent to Chancellor Randolph Bromery by Hurlock Cine-world, Inc. stating that "Cabaret" was shown by Rainbow Productions three times after the group had contracted with the company to show the film once.

The letter also said that a field representative had counted approximately 1100 viewers at three showings. Tickets sold for $1 and $716 was deposited with RSO following the showings according to RSO documents.

The prosecution rested its case after soliciting testimony from McGrath, Paul Yanowich, assistant prosecutor; Craig Ghidotti, Senate chairperson for governmental affairs; and Bud Demers, RSO business manager who ran a complete audit on the Rainbow Productions account.

The student Judiciary will reconvene tonight at 7:00 in Room 172 of the Campus Center to hear Corwin's defense.



Staff Photo by Leon Nadeau

Leaves add a new dimension to the mystique of the old chapel.

weather

Partly sunny but chilly still,
But not cold enough to stifle the din
For Hammerin Hank and Tony C
In Fenway Park as the Sox begin.

Election Forum

Vote today

Sample Ballot for Town of Amherst, Mass., Town Election, April 8, 1975

DIRECTIONS FOR VOTING

1. Move the Red Handle to the Right.
2. Turn the Lever over the name of each candidate you wish to vote for from this position to this position and leave the levers DOWN.
3. Turn Down Lever over the "Yes" or "No" for each Amendment or Question.
4. Move the Red Handle to the Left.

The Voter Moving the Red Operating Lever to the Right.

Each candidate's voting lever is located just above the name; a voting lever must be turned down over the name of each candidate for whom you wish to vote. Leave voting levers down.

The machine is so arranged that you can turn down only the proper number of voting levers for each office.

No votes are registered until the curtain lever is moved to open the curtain, and so you can make as many changes as you desire while the curtain lever is at the right side.

No one will know how you have voted because the movement of the curtain lever returns the voted voting levers to the unvoted position before the curtain begins to open.

The Curtain Closed. Voter Inside Voting.

1 1 A	MODERATOR 1 YEAR VOTE FOR ONE	Douglas H. Phelps		870 S. East
2 2 A		William F. Field	Candidate for re-election	20 Hills
3 3 A	SELECTMEN 3 YEARS VOTE FOR NOT MORE THAN TWO	Leo E. Bouchard	Candidate for re-election	203 Middle Street
4 4 A		Diana H. Romer		155 Woodside
5 5 A		Robert J. Garvey	Candidate for re-election	51 Blue Hills
6 6 A	MEMBER SCHOOL COMMITTEE 3 YEARS VOTE FOR ONE	Loren S. Howell		460 Middle
7 7 A		David R. Hornfischer		279 West
8 8 A	ELECTOR UNDER OLIVER SMITH WILL 1 YEAR VOTE FOR ONE	C. Clifton Winn	Candidate for re-election	21 Taylor
9 9 A	TRUSTEE OF JONES LIBRARY 3 YEARS VOTE FOR NOT MORE THAN TWO	William D. Tunis		270 Alpine
10 10 A		Nardi Reeder Campion		501 Station
11 11 A		Vera Joseph Peterson		54 Red Gate
12 12 A		Horace W. Hewlett	Candidate for re-election	71 Middle
13 13 A	TRUSTEE OF JONES LIBRARY 1 YEAR VOTE FOR ONE	Judy Arkes		66 Woodside
14 14 A		Eugene C. Worman, Jr.		125 Montague
15 15 A	MEMBER HOUSING AUTHORITY 5 YEARS VOTE FOR ONE	Robert E. Graham		29 Justice
16 16 A		George B. Scheurer		53 Colonial Village

QUESTION NO. 1

Shall the town purchase additional group life and group accidental death and dismemberment insurance for employees in accordance with the provisions of chapter thirty-two B of the General Laws with no premium contribution by the Town?

SUMMARY

A "Yes" vote is a vote in favor of permitting the Town to provide additional group life and accidental death and dismemberment insurance to Town employees with the premiums to be paid by the employees, at no cost to the Town.

QUESTION NO. 2

Shall licenses be granted in this Town for the operation, holding or conducting a game commonly called Beano?

SUMMARY

If a majority of the votes cast in the Town in answer to said question is in the affirmative, the Town shall be taken to have authorized the operation, holding or conducting of a game commonly called beano in accordance with the provisions of sections thirty-eight and thirty-nine of chapter ten of the General Laws.

Faculty, staff — subscribe to the Collegian. $5 per semester gets New England's Largest College Daily by 11 a.m.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief Bill Parent
Managing Editor Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor BJ Roche
News Editor Richard Wright
Sports Editor Ben Caswell
Photo Editor Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager Gary Williams
Production Manager Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor Steve DeCosta
Night Staff Nancy Grusheck, Debbi DiMassimo
Darkroom Bob Gamache, Fran Glavin, Leon Nadeau, Jay Saret, Stu Eyman
Sports Tom Crowley, Steve Tetreault
Ad layout Lynn Frost

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

The issues affect you

The Progressive Candidates Pool has submitted twenty-four proposals to be put on the Town Warrant at the May 5 Town Meeting.

These issues affect you and your relationship with the Town of Amherst.

The proposals call for rent control, an energy-use study commission, control of the Town growth, town-wide bikeways, hitching lanes, a regional (town-University) bus system, and a 100 per cent sewage treatment and fertilizer plant.

The PCP stands against nuclear power plants, the JFK library being located in Amherst, and dum dum bullets.

Other warrants include non-enforcement of victimless crimes, the repeal of the by-law prohibiting five unrelated people to live in the same household, twenty-four hour child care facilities, and a planned flow of students to off-campus housing.

A Town University Board for joint decision making on issues that affect both is also on the Town Warrant.

They also call for a university property "tax" at full valuation to reduce off-campus taxes and rents, opening the dorms to non students, and supporting tenants unions.

These issues affect you, so get out and vote today. The Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m.

PCP candidates

Precinct 1, Parish Hall, North Amherst — Floyd Bailey, Sandra Brayton, Ellen Gavin, Deborah Ortlip, Carrie Jo Gershman, Rubie James, John Pepi, Brian Sabel, Jim Starr, Ellen Caracciolo (one year seat).

Precinct 2, Fire Station at center of Amherst — Mark Benoit, Philip Sellinger, Robert Gilbert, Catherine Hopkins, Pamela Houmere, Douglas Stanley, Robert Weiner, Lawrence Kornfield (one year seat).

Precinct 3, Odd Fellows Hall — Lisa Marie Alberghini, Adam Auster, Donna Marie Fusco, Randy Grodman, Ellen R. Regal, Jonathan Speigel, Charlotte Walters, Janet Webber, Lynn Washburn, Mark Levitan.

Precinct 4, Masonic Building — Daniel Reich, Nina Reich.

Precinct 6, Munson Memorial Library Building — Marc Lee Berman, Jane Fleishman, Mary Nesta King, Fred Landes, Jack Leader, Don Michak, William R. Price, Jr., Terence Tierney.

Precinct 7, Amherst Auction Gallery — Mary J. Vinette, Marcus R. Gardner, Eric Walgren, Jean Marie Murray, Robert R. Gardner.

Robert E. Graham

To provide decent housing

By ROBERT GRAHAM
Candidate for Housing Authority

The Housing Authority is a body made of appointed and elected officials who are charged with the responsibility of providing decent and safe housing for families of low or moderate income and elderly persons.

A Housing Authority is needed in order to assist in elimination of substandard, decadent or blighted areas and to develop such areas into acceptable housing from those who qualify for such assistance.

The Housing Authority is a local agent cooperating with the state and Federal government. The authority is empowered to receive loans, grants and other contributions from public, federal and other sources. The board is also responsible for making studies and conducting investigations relative to housing needs and living conditions from those who are in need of the type of assistance offered by the Authority.

Special emphasis by a local authority must provide: (1) an effective response to housing needs and provide dwelling units of both quality and quantity so as to meet those needs. (2) Insure that the units have competent management, efficient city services, appropriate supportive social services and active resident involvement in the management and maintenance of their homes so decent comfortable living and an accepted standard and quality of life is always provided. (3) Administer Chapter 705 funds effectively so that additional housing units can be purchased in residential areas and thereby offer assistance to those large families who have a proven need. The authority should be the administrative machinery to insure that all programs on the local level are carried out effectively and efficiently on a consolidated and coordinated basis.

My position as a Realtor and Insurance Broker, my past position at the University of Pennsylvania and UMass have given me a broad background in all areas of dealing with people and financial matters which I feel gives me the needed experience to add to the strengths of the present Housing Authority.

SOUTHWEST VOTERS
THESE PEOPLE WILL NEED YOUR HELP TODAY:
TOWN MEETING CANDIDATES
ROBERT GILBERT
MARK E. BENOIT
PHILIP R. SELLINGER
CATHERINE L. HOPKINS
PAMELA D. HOUMERE
DOUGLAS A. STANLEY
ROBERT WEINER
LAWRENCE KORNFELD
Time: April 8th 12 Noon — 8 p.m.
Place: Fire Station, next to Louis' (Amherst Center)
Take Belchertown or S. Amherst Bus
Bring this list to the polls with you!
— Thanks, Progressive Candidates Pool

Grad Senate cuts budget, raises student fee

By AL COLARUSSO
Staff Reporter

The Graduate Student Senate (GSS) voted last night to cut 20 percent from the proposed budget for fiscal year 1976 and raised the graduate student senate fee from $9 to $13 per semester.

The GSS voted to appropriate $12,750 to the Legal Services Office (LSO) to help pay the cost of an increase in the number of attorneys.

The LSO presently has a staff of two attorneys and one paralegal. The new budget appropriation will increase the staff to three full-time attorneys for the next fiscal year.

The Senate also voted to fund the Collegian $6,000 during the 1975-76 academic year.

A majority of senators felt that the GSS should not be required to contribute their "fair share" towards the paper's support since no graduate students can hold editorial positions.

The GSS appropriation will cover the cost of Collegians that graduate students read.

In other GSS news, the Graduate Dean Search Committee announced the nominations of three candidates for the position of dean.

The three candidates are:

— Leonid F. Azaroff, 50, current director of the Institute of Material Studies at the University of Connecticut. Azaroff is the son of a former Soviet ambassador who defected to the U.S. in the 1920's. He is a professor of Mechanical Engineering at UConn.

— J. Ray Bowen, 42, associate vice-chancellor at the University of Wisconsin. Bowen is currently a legislative liason of the chancellor. He is also a professor of Chemical Engineering.

— John M. Thompson, 45, director of the Social Science Research Center and professor of history at the University of Indiana.

The three names have been sent to Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery for consideration. The Board of Trustees will make the final appointment.

Workshops to explain student unionization

By DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporter

The implications of student unionization will be topics for a series of workshops in dormitories all around campus beginning today in Leach House lobby.

Student Organizing Project (SOP) staffer Nesta King said yesterday the workshops will explain the benefits of unionization "and discuss its implications with interested students." She said the workshops are being run by the SOP's mobile organizing center.

The workshops will begin about noon and climax with evening presentations "What Collective Bargaining Can Do For You" at 8 p.m. The meetings will be held in McKimmie tomorrow, Van Meter North Thursday and Pierpont Lobby Friday.

Questions the workshops will seek to answer, according to King, include: What would happen after a union is formed? Why not demand from trustees the right to unionize instead of ask? How will collective bargaining work?

King said yesterday the SOP will follow up the workshops with door-to-door personal canvassing of students and student groups for support of unionization.

In a memorandum to campus media released yesterday, SOP staff coordinator Douglas Phelps, a UMass graduate, said that the "first phase" of the SOP's "ultimate agenda" is drawing to a close because the group will present a policy document on unionization to trustees over the next two months.

Phelps said in the memo that the trustee Student Affairs Committee, chaired by Alan Shaler of Easthampton, will consider the unionization-enabling policy at a Boston meeting next Tuesday.

All University policy must be approved by the trustees. The Student Affairs committee studies and recommends for action by trustees all student-initiated policy, such as a proposal to unionize.

Staff Photo by Fran Glavin

This plot is part of a parcel of land allotted by Hampshire County for community gardens.

Community gardens plan blossoms

By JOE MAHONEY
Staff Reporter

The recently revived concept of community garden projects is providing a means to combat double digit inflation in the supermarkets for hundreds of area residents.

Hampshire County commissioners have devised a plan in which cultivatable land is parcelled in plots to those with no land of their own.

"Community gardens are definitely enjoying a new popularity," according to Hampshire County Planner, Richard Gaffney.

The response to the Hampshire County plan has been "excellent," Gaffney said. "With the recession and the increased number of people living in apartments, it is very timely," he added.

Last year Massachusetts became the first state in the country to open state and county owned lands to gardeners.

Several acres adjacent to the Northampton State Hospital facing Burt's Pit Road have been secured for the Hampshire County project, according to Gaffney.

Garden plots will generally be 20 X 20 feet square; individual accommodations will be made if possible.

Gaffney said that although 120 plots have already been alloted, "we have plenty of land and there will be no shortage."

The Town of Amherst Recreation Office is coordinating a similar project for town residents for the second straight year at Amherst Community Gardens on Mill Lane.

Some 200 plots will be available, 20 by 20 feet square, for a $3 registration fee. The Recreation Office will begin accepting applications Monday, April 14.

Apparently, the garden idea has caught on with several local apartment complexes, including Brittany Manor.

A Brittany spokesperson said the initiation of their garden project has brought "tremendous response — of course."

Budget meetings set

A flurry of budget planning meetings has been scheduled between representatives of the UMass administration and individual "unit directors" beginning April 17.

According to Warren W. Gulko of the office of budgeting and institutional studies, a unit director is anyone who heads one of the various "major budgetary units" that make up the university. The academic and professional schools, the university library and physical plant, as well as the wide range of student affairs and services (residential life, public safety, health services) are all considered major budgetary units.

From April 17 to April 22, the individual directors will meet briefly with either Robert W. Gage (Student Affairs), Robert L. Gluckstern (Academic Affairs), David Bischoff (Professional Schools) or Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery. A recent memo from Bromery has indicated that the meetings are to be budget planning sessions rather than formal budget hearings. Budget planning for next year and the following years will be discussed.

Credit union serves Five College workers

By ELIZABETH TEMBY
Staff Reporter

The first student-run federal credit union in the Northeast began operations at UMass recently. There is however a federally chartered credit union on this campus which serves the employees of the five colleges and the medical college at Worcester.

According to Virginia Lacombe, assistant manager of the UMass-Five College Federal Credit Union, the purpose of the union is to "systematize saving and borrowing for the employees."

The employee credit union is "governed by the same rules and regulations as the student union. All federally run credit unions are, so the concepts are the very same as those that the students have publicized," Lacombe said.

The union has a potential membership of approximately 7,700 members but, at the moment has only 3,600. Lacombe attributed low membership to the high turnover rate in employment and to the fact that the other four colleges have been involved in the union for only the last 1½ years.

The union was federally chartered in 1967 under the title University of Massachusetts Employees Federal Credit Union.

The organization is run by an 11 member board of directors comprised of seven directors from UMass and one each from the four other schools. They are elected annually with a maximum term of three years.

Karl Broekhuizen served five years on the board before becoming president of the union.

At the March 17 meeting of the board of directors John H. Dutcher, recently assistant vice-president of the Franklin County Trust Co. in Greenfield, was appointed manager of the union.

At that same meeting the Board declared that the union would pay 5½ per cent annual dividends to be paid quarterly.

SCER focuses on housing crisis at UMass

By JOYCE KOSOFSKY
Staff Reporter

This is part one of a three part series, two and three deal with cooperative housing and tax reform.

The Student Center for Education Research (SCER) has just recently published a report concerning the housing crisis at UMass. Called "In Pursuit of Shelter" the report focuses on rent control, tenants unions, cooperative housing, and if students can manage their own housing.

In 1970 the state legislature passed Chapter 842 of the Massachusetts General Laws that enabled cities and towns with a population in excess of 50,000 to enact local rent control ordinances. Excluded from the act were "rental units in any hospital, convent monastery, asylum, public institution or college or school dormitory, and federally subsidized housing."

Amherst, with a population under 50,000 is automatically excluded from the act.

The 1970 act is about to expire. It was intended as an emergency act for a five year period. Presently, there are numerous proposals to renew or rewrite the rent control act, says the report. One proposal, by Governor Michael Dukakis, would extend the act as a permanent measure but in every other way keep it the same. Thus, according to SCER, Amherst would continue to be unprotected. The report also says that other proposed acts would change it in a variety of ways. Some would make it available to all cities and towns regardless of size. Others would include federally subsidized housing and other forms of housing now excluded. One proposal, says SCER, from an Amherst organization, the Progressive Candidate's Pool, would call for rent control in Amherst and include University housing as eligible for protection.

SCER says that if rent control were made available to the people of Amherst, it would then become a local option. According to the report this proposed legislation simply empowers the town to enact rent control; it does not create it.

Yet, rent control is not a panacea, says SCER. Since its inception in Cambridge, Boston, Lynn, Sommerville, and other cities, it has saved tenants thousands of dollars in rent increases, says SCER, but it has not prohibited all unfair practices nor has it changed the basic power relationship between landlords and tenants. The report says that the rent control body is "a political body, and like other political bodies, it is subject to various pressures, contradictions, errors, etc." To achieve fair rent control, says SCER, it is usually desirable to have some kind of tenants union or organization which can lobby and maintain community pressure as well as to negotiate with landlords on behalf of organized member tenants. A tenants union is presently being organized in Springfield, says the report, and there are several efforts to organize tenant unions and associations in Amherst.

SCER says that the Commuter Assembly has information about various tenants unions and is interested in creating one. Other tenant organizing is going on through the Student Organizing Project, and Married Students Association.

SCER's report also shows that there are, in addition to tenants unions and organizations, various groups in Amherst that represent landlords, tenants, towns committees, etc. The Pioneer Valley Housing Association is a group of landlords active in promoting landlord tenant relations, says the report. There is also the Town's Landlord Tenant Relations Committee, the UMass housing Office, and the Board of Selectmen's Committee on the Control of rents.

CIA recovered sub's torpedoes, paper reports

Glomar Explorer is to return in July

LOS ANGELES [UPI] — The CIA spy ship Glomar Explorer recovered the body of a Russian nuclear weapons expert with his personal journal and two nuclear-tipped torpedoes from a sunken Soviet submarine, the Los Angeles Times reported yesterday.

The salvage crew was threatened at one point by radioactivity because the nuclear weapons aboard had leaked and contaminated parts of the sub, the Times said.

The journal was the first documentary evidence of the nuclear potential of the Golf class submarine, the newspaper's source said.

The newspaper said the Glomar Explorer is scheduled to return this July to the site 750 miles north of Hawaii where the submarine sank in 1968, to raise the rest of the sub if possible, including its nuclear armed missiles.

The Times quoted intelligence sources and sources with independent knowledge of the project, including at least one member of the ship's crew.

The project, which has been criticized as too expensive at an estimated $400 million, was actually "a stunning success," the newspaper quoted an intelligence source as saying.

"Two nuclear tipped torpedoes were brought up with the 38-foot forward section that was salvaged," the Times quoted an independent source as saying. The operation also recovered "a 2-inch thick journal kept by a young Soviet naval officer being groomed as an expert on the nuclear capabilities of the vessel (and) ... The young officer's body, curled as if asleep in his bunk, and so well preserved that intelligence agents were able to establish his identity."

The Times said that contrary to previous reports, the giant claw of the Glomar Explorer and its accompanying barge took hold of the entire Russian submarine and lifted it 5,000 feet before the sub broke and two thirds of the vessel sank again.

The 38-foot forward section that was retrieved was contaminated from warheads aboard the sub that loosed radioactivity "either when it sank or during the years it had lain rusting on the bottom," the Times said.

The recovery ships crew had spent weeks training for just such an eventuality, and worked in "space suits" to protect themselves, the Times quoted one crewmember as saying. Despite the precautions, the source said, he personally "sustained radiation burns and an expensive pair of his boots were ruined."

The newspaper quoted him as saying a radiation detection device "went all the way to the peg" when he entered a scrub room, and "I had to shower for an hour and a half."

The Times said most of the 140-man crew were southerners, mostly recruited from the ranks of oil field workers with offshore experience chosen for their skills and patriotism.

"The man the CIA wanted didn't have extreme intelligence or book learning, but he did have a great sense of loyalty to his country and his family," the Times quoted a source "familiar with CIA hiring procedures" as saying.

"He was patriotic, loyal, flag-saluting, apple - pie - eating, mother-loving, tobacco-chewing, and he swallowed the tobacco juice."The crew members, now mostly scattered to their homes along the Gulf Coast, say they are still under surveillance by the CIA and agents visit them occasionally "To remind you that when you get hooked up with a project like this sometimes you can't ever get untangled from it, or them," one crewman told the Times.

Communists threaten Phnom Penh airport; Cambodia troops retreat

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — Communist-led rebel forces, firing rockets as they advanced, pushed to within 3½ miles of Phnom Penh's vital airport yesterday and hurled government troops back from yet more positions along the city's defense perimeter.

The situation for the Cambodian government appeared increasingly grim.

Other insurgents battled their way into the province capital of Kompong Speu, 24 miles west of the capital, and an official source said "it could very well fall."

Another province capital, Prey Veng, about 15 miles east of Phnom Penh, was threatened when government forces abandoned five positions to its north.

With the Khmer Rouge rebels controlling about 90 per cent of Cambodia and besieging Phnom Penh, Pochentong Airport was the capital's sole supply link with the outside world.

One diplomat who fled the city said the insurgents may launch a major attack against the airfield within a week.

Communist rocket and artillery fire appeared to be increasingly accurate. The rebels hit a napalm bomb storage area and fired other rockets in a pattern that covered all sides of the airport terminal.

The Communists routed more defenders from the airfield's vicinity, and their assault line 3½ miles away put the airport within extreme range of their heavy mortars.

Thieu palace bombed by South Viet plane

cont. from p. 1

quarters of South Vietnam from government troops and left the military demoralized. The Viet Cong also has demanded Thieu's resignation, saying it would not negotiate peace with his regime.

The palace had been bombed before by two government planes in 1961 in an aborted coup against civilian President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Associated Press newsmen Carl Robinson and Arnold Zeitlin reported that the presidential guard took up positions in bunkers and army reinforcements converged on the palace area after the Tuesday morning attack. The streets were quickly deserted by persons en route to work.

North Vietnamese-Viet Cong forces have made no major move against Saigon, but they increased their attacks yesterday on district capitals in the Mekong Delta, the southern quarter of the country still under Saigon's control.

Although the attack was another jolt to the city's nerves, the Communist attack in the populous Mekong Delta to the south, which is the country's main source of food, was ominous.

Mansfield asks no military aid

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield yesterday called on the United States to provide speedy humanitarian aid through international organizations for South Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

Speaking to reporters after a session of the Democratic Policy Committee, Mansfield also reported that the 14-member group had reached a consensus against further military aid to Cambodia and decided to withhold judgment on further military aid to South Vietnam until President Ford addresses Congress Thursday.

"We think, through an international agency, the chances are better of aid reaching little children holding out their cup and mothers holding out their hands," Mansfield said after the two-hour Democratic strategy session.

SOPHOMORES

If Your Major Is:

Computer Technology

Aerospace Engineering

Civil Engineering

Electrical Engineering

General Engineering

Industrial Engineering

Mechanical Engineering

Mathematics or Physics

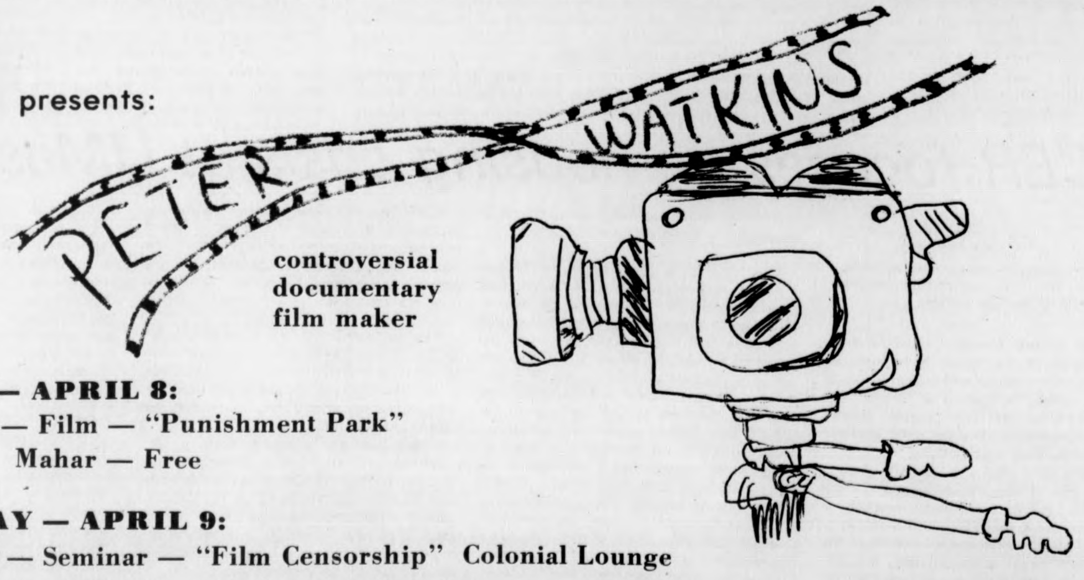
You may be eligible for a two-year scholarship and a commission in the Air Force — Call 5-2437 or stop by Rm. 205, Dickinson Hall.

ONE WEEK LEFT!!

ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.

Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

dvp presents:



controversial documentary film maker

TUESDAY — APRIL 8:
4:00 — 5:30 — Film — "Punishment Park"
Mahar — Free

WEDNESDAY — APRIL 9:
1:30 — 3:30 — Seminar — "Film Censorship" Colonial Lounge
7:00 — 10:00 — Film "Punishment Park" and Lecture S.U.B.

ALL FREE

Brown students ask new budget goals

PROVIDENCE [AP] — Brown University students aren't feeling powerless any more.

Like their predecessors of the 1960's, they are talking about becoming "politicized."

They are talking about changing the priorities of the university and about forcing it to meet social responsibilities.

And this week they are talking about unsheathing a student weapon of the Vietnam War era - the student strike.

But unlike the students of the 1960's, who were motivated by opposition to U.S. military presence in Indochina, today's Brown students are concerned about the university's reaction to the financial pressures of a national recession.

Brown students have challenged an austerity budget designed by the school administration to keep Brown "financially viable."

That budget proposes cuts in financial aid, faculty positions and student services. And it recommends an 11.4 per cent tuition hike.

The Student Coalition, which last month marshalled 2,500 students to a rally demanding more student input for the budget, says Brown has its priorities wrong.

The students say the budget retrenchment, like the recession generally, would hurt blacks the most.

They say the cut in financial aid would mean fewer black students admitted, and the reduction of junior faculty positions would affect minority professors.

"The administration has conceded that one result of the financial aid cut would be a student body that's richer and whiter," said Tony Affigne, president of the Student Caucus and a coalition member.

Fred Carr, an officer of Brown's black student group and a coalition member, sees the retrenchment as a way to erase gains made by earlier black protests at the Ivy League school.

"High on the list of the university's priorities is to lower the number of black folk here," Carr said. "What the university is doing is objectively racist even if they are not conscious of it being racist."

The coalition's specific goal has been to alter the budgetary priorities, and last month it won permission from the Brown Corp. to work on an alternative budget.

The students, however, say they have been denied financial data needed to make intelligent recommendations. The students contend this denial of information is an act of bad faith and a major reason they are preparing for a strike.

"We wanted change, and what we offered was rational, reasonable and coherent," Affigne said. "But the refusal to give us information is an example of the university's cold war mentality."

N.Y.S.E.
Volume Profile
UP 378
UNCHANGED 403
1,015 DOWN

DOW JONES AVERAGE
30 Industrials
Closed at 742.88
DOWN
4.38
APR.7,1975

Appearing
TONITE
MAY APPLE
at Rusty Nail
Inn
Rte. 47
Sunderland
665-4937

UPI Telephoto

A Cambodian girl waits at a refugee center in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, in this picture taken by White House photographer David Hume Kennerly. The White House released the picture Sunday.

Third Connally payoff hinted by Jacobsen

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Prosecution witness Jake Jacobsen testified yesterday he may have made a third $5,000 payoff to former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Under cross examination, Jacobsen was vague about a possible third payment but concluded he must have given the money to Connally since the records show he received it from counsel Bob Lilly of Associated Milk Producers Inc.

Connally's defense lawyer in the bribery trial, Edward Bennet Williams, did not have an opportunity before the fourth day of the trial ended to show why the defense, rather than the prosecution, raised the possibility of a third payoff.

Earlier in his cross-examination, Williams tried to show that Jacobsen once offered to testify against former President Lyndon B. Johnson in a plea-bargaining arrangement.

Jacobsen testified under direct examination last week that he had a clear recollection of making two 1971 payoffs to Connally totaling $10,000, provided by Associated Milk Producers, in return for Connally's help in persuading President Richard M. Nixon to increase the federal support prices for raw milk.

Jacobsen said that initially he was unable "to recall any of the events surrounding a third payment. Now looking at the record I conclude I had received the money from Lilly," he said.

news summary

NAACP defends march

NEW YORK [AP] — The executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says a planned march in Boston May 17 will be a sign of solidarity rather than a show of force.

The march from Fenway Park to the Boston Common marks the 21st anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court's Brown decision, which supported desegregated education.

NAACP executive director Roy Wilkins said, "Boston is the cradle of the revolution but it appears to be fighting the Constitution because it wants to be the last holdout of desegregation."

Threat to MD's seen

WORCESTER [AP] — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D—Mass., said yesterday that doctors are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain malpractice insurance. Those who can "are facing exorbitant liability premiums."

Kennedy, who chaired a public hearing of a Senate subcommittee on health, said "these problems impose a threat to the financing and delivery of health care" in Massachusetts and the United States.

In a statement prepared for delivery at the hearing, Kennedy said "doctors who can't obtain malpractice insurance or who find the cost too high to pay may be forced out of practice."

'Babylift' reopens

By United Press International

An Air Force plane with 65 Vietnamese orphans flew toward California yesterday and the lifting of Saigon's brief embargo on "Operation Baby-lift" reopened the air bridge that was expected to bring thousands more to the United States.

In South Vietnam authorities said 18,000 children were being processed for adoption in the United States and other countries.

Prisoners revolt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. [UPI] — Four "dangerous" maximum security prisoners yesterday grabbed more than 23 hostages and held them at knifepoint in a windowless cluster of offices at the Tennessee State Penitentiary.

At mid-afternoon they released three of the hostages and negotiations started on a list of grievances.

What really happens at a Weight Watchers® class?

Friendly persuasion.

Agawam
Amherst
Amherst-Hadley
Chicopee Falls
East Longmeadow
Greenfield
Holyoke
Ludlow

Northampton
Palmer
Springfield
South Hadley
Westfield
West Springfield
Wilbraham

New Members Accepted At All Times
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL 786-6611
WEIGHT WATCHERS
WEIGHT WATCHERS AND ARE REGISTERED TRADEMARKS OF WEIGHT WATCHERS INTERNATIONAL, INC., GREAT NECK, N.Y. ©WEIGHT WATCHERS INTERNATIONAL 1973

Applications for the position of Student Attorney General are available in the Attorney General's Office, 422 Student Union, for all interested undergraduates.

For job description and more information see Cindi Iris, Student Atty. Gen.

Deadline for applications is Friday, April 18th.

DIANA ROMER
FOR SELECTMAN

Amherst Town Election — April 8.
Polls open noon to 8 p.m.

Chairman, Amherst Town Finance Committee, member since 1971
Land Acquisition Review Committee, member
Town Meeting member since 1961
Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts, Hampshire County Chapter, vice-chairman
Committee on Housing, Hampshire Community Action Commission, 1968-69
Graduate Student, University of Massachusetts, Planning and management in higher education
Resident of Amherst for 20 years

Sponsored by Pearl Claunch
27 Hills Road, Amherst

VOTE
Vera Joseph Peterson
For
Trustee of Jones Library

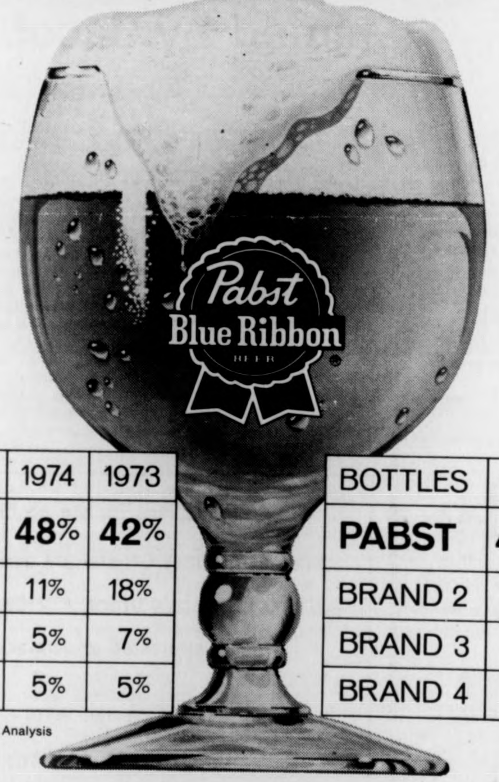
AMHERST
TOWN ELECTION
Tuesday, April 8, 1975

Quality Library
Fiscal Responsibility
Responsive to the Needs of a Pluralistic Community

Margaret Gage
7 Hills Road, Amherst

#1 in the beer capital of the world.

For years we've been telling you that in Milwaukee, beer capital of the world, Pabst Blue Ribbon is the overwhelming favorite.



CANS	1975	1974	1973
PABST	53%	48%	42%
BRAND 2	12%	11%	18%
BRAND 3	5%	5%	7%
BRAND 4	5%	5%	5%

BOTTLES	1975	1974	1973
PABST	46%	46%	43%
BRAND 2	10%	9%	11%
BRAND 3	8%	7%	8%
BRAND 4	6%	9%	10%

SOURCE: Milwaukee Journal Consumer Analysis

More beer is brewed in Milwaukee than any other city in the world. So to be the #1 selling beer in Milwaukee means you've got to be brewing the best beer money can buy.

And Pabst must be doing just that. Look at the charts. Blue Ribbon accounts for more than half the beer sold in Milwaukee. It outsells the next brand nearly five to one.

That's why we feel we've earned the right to challenge any beer. So here's the Pabst challenge: Taste and compare the flavor of Blue Ribbon with the beer you're drinking and learn what Pabst quality in beer is all about. But don't take our word for it. Taste our word for it.

PABST Since 1844. The quality has always come through.

PABST BREWING COMPANY Milwaukee, Wis., Peoria Heights, Ill., Newark, N.J., Los Angeles, Calif., Pabst, Georgia.

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.

AFROTC

An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.

- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Fine delinquencies result in arrests

By ROBERTA MARTONE
Staff Reporter

Non-payment of parking fines resulted in the arrest of two UMass students, this weekend, according to UMass Police repoots.

Vaughn G. Jefferies, 29, of Rolling Green apartments, was arraigned Saturday in court for non-payment of $76 in parking violations.

Jefferies pleaded guilty and paid the fine.

Another UMass student, Barry T. Williams of Moore Houue dorm, was also arraigned Saturday for non-payment of parking fees.

Williams pleaded guilty and paid the $64 fine.

According to Captain Robert Joyce of the UMass Police, the department has received a letter from the Northampton courthouse citing 1,000 outstanding non-payments in parking fees.

"We're going to have to start picking up three and four violators every day now," Joyce said.

An assault on a UMass student occurred Saturday night in the Campus Center Blue Waal, by an unknown male, according to reports.

He was taken to the Infirmary for treatment of cuts on his face, and released.

There are witnesses and a suspect, said Joyce. The case is currently being investigated by the UMass Police.

Larcency cases this weekend included two separate incidents of stolen pocketbooks from students who had stopped to pick up hitchikers.

In both cases, the amount of money tolen was approximately $25.

In two separate incidents at Washington Tower, purses were stolen from unlocked rooms while the victims were asleep. The amount of cash stolen, in both cases, was approximately $30, reports said.

In motor vehicle accidents this weekend, a visitor to UMass was arrested Sunday morning on charges of driving under the influence, driving to endanger, speeding and driving an unlicensed and uninsured vehicle, police reports stated.

Frederick E. Smith, 23, of Wilbraham, Mass., was picked up on Massachusetts Ave. while traveling 80 miles per hour.

According to reports, Smith collided with the median strip on Mass. Ave., hit the curbing, slid across to Kennedy Tower, hit a sign post, knocked over two trees, skidded over the top of a third tree, hitting two parked vehicles and a trash can on landing.

One passenger asked for an ambulance, but declined medical treatment upon arrival.

The entire skid was estimated at a distance of 517 feet, Joyce said.

75¢ OFF Any Large Pizza Except Plain with this Ad Tuesday Only

1 Ad/Pizza

TO ALL DORM DELIVERIES OR PIZZAS PICKED UP.

Free Hot Delivery

DOMINO'S PIZZA

at 363 Main St.
Amherst
or
71 Pleasant St.
Northampton

is as close as your phone.

CALL NOW
Amherst 256-8587
Northampton 586-2700

Open till
1:30 Week Nights
2:00 Weekends

Social critic to show award-winning film

By ELLEN GAVIN
Progressive News Service

Peter Watkins, a British film-maker and outspoken critic of what he terms "the mind-numbing image of superficiality and escapism" of contemporary Western cinema will be on campus today and Wednesday.

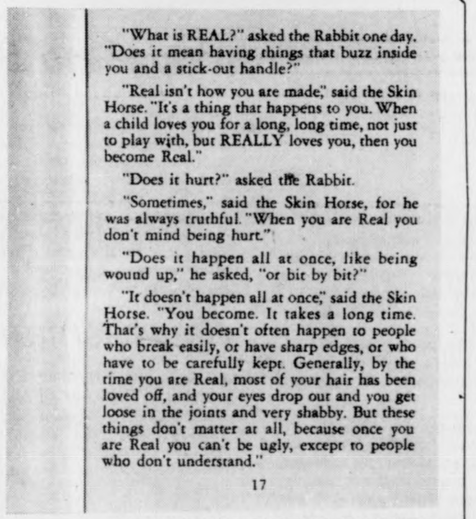
He will show his latest film, Punishment Park, which, although it has been shown throughout France and at various international film festivals including London, New York, San Francisco, Venice, and Moscow, remains banned in the United States. After it had received two awards at the Atlantic Film Festival in 1971, Punishment Park was withdrawn from public viewing when it was decided by vote at a seminar of American public television producers and executives that they would not show the film on their stations.

The drama documentary is one of the first full-length political feature films ever made in America. It is an indictment of the moral corruption within the existing American political system, set within the framework of an escalating "law and order" repression in the United States.

Watkins has produced a series of controversial films including the Gladiators, The War Game, and Privilege, all of which have been directly or indirectly removed from circulation by various European governments.

Watkins will discuss the implications of the censorship of his films as well as the broader aspects of what he calls "the extreme crisis which exists within Western cinema as a whole." He will take part in a seminar entitled, "Film and Censorship" on Tuesday at 1 in the Colonial Lounge, and he will be available for discussion after the presentation of Punishment Park on Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program with help from the English Department, Watkins will be meeting with Legal Studies majors at 7:30 tonight in Rm 905 of the Campus Center. Punishment Park will also be shown at 4 p.m. today in Mahar Auditorium.

Now in paperback!



"What is REAL?" asked the Rabbit one day. "Does it mean having things that buzz inside you and a stick-out handle?"

"Real isn't how you are made," said the Skin Horse. "It's a thing that happens to you. When a child loves you for a long, long time, not just to play with, but REALLY loves you, then you become Real."

"Does it hurt?" asked the Rabbit.

"Sometimes," said the Skin Horse, for he was always truthful. "When you are Real you don't mind being hurt."

"Does it happen all at once, like being wound up," he asked, "or bit by bit?"

"It doesn't happen all at once," said the Skin Horse. "You become. It takes a long time. That's why it doesn't often happen to people who break easily, or have sharp edges, or who have to be carefully kept. Generally, by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, and your eyes drop out and you get loose in the joints and very shabby. But these things don't matter at all, because once you are Real you can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand."

17

THE VELVETEEN RABBIT
by Margery Williams
$1.50 Camelot Books published by Avon

Commissioner of Youth Services to speak tonight

Tonight, Joseph M. Leavey, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services, will speak in room 917 of the Campus Center.

Leavey's appearance is being sponsored by the following UMass Crime and Delinquency programs:

J.O.E. (Juvenile Opportunities Extension Program)

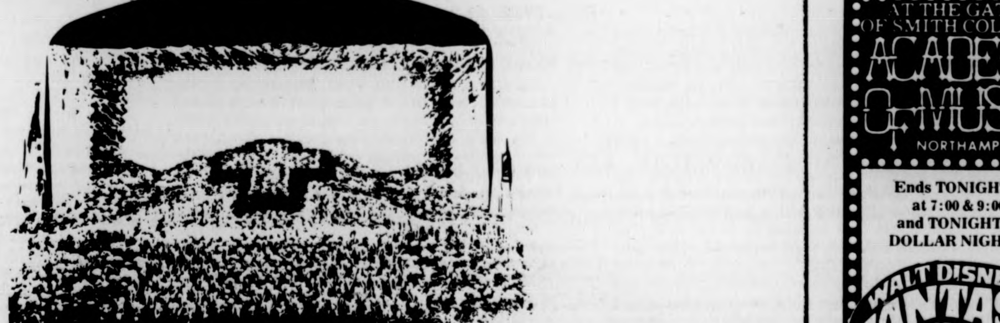
M.A.R.Y. (Massachusetts Association for the Reintegration of Youth)

Advocates for the Development of Human Potential

Teen Learning Center

Public is invited.

Films/Events



tuesday, april 8
richard serra: color aid/frame/hand catching lead/hand lead fulcrum/ hand scraping/hands tied/tina turning/paul revere/ richard serra translates to film his investigation of the sculptural verb.

hasbrouck 20, 8:00 p.m.
$ .50 for umass students with ID's: $1.00 for all others university of massachusetts fine arts council

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON

Ends TONIGHT!!
at 7:00 & 9:00
and TONIGHT IS DOLLAR NIGHT!!

WALT DISNEY'S
FANTASIA

Music conducted by the Great STOKOWSKI!

The Ultimate Experience Tonight!

commentary

Nuclear economics

By GREGG WILSON

No other technology in the postwar era has promised such grand returns in exchange for such enormous potential risks as nuclear power. It has created an extremely technical as well as ideological debate in this country. The dominant force in nationwide energy policy, Gerald Ford, is a strong supporter of extending our nuclear power generating capacity. From this viewpoint it appears that his decision to have 1000 nuclear power plants operating in this country by the year 2000 was hasty, and ignorant of the drawbacks. Regulations governing the transportation and disposal of nuclear materials are lax and in many cases non-existent. Ecological hazards through the emmission of heat into rivers, lakes and oceans and the enormous risks of radioactive emmissions seem likely reasons for a moratorium on nuclear power.

Arguments based on these statements have been debated and rehashed by proponents and opponents of the nuclear power issue. In Western Massachusetts the main forces have been MassPIRG and Northeast Utilities, proposed builder of the Montague plant. Their literature on the subject has caused many to make their decisions in favor of or against nuclear power. Most times these stands are taken after consulting only one side of the argument. Indeed at UMass it is the "in" thing to be against nuclear power. How many of you have really studied the problem before reaching your conclusion? In my opinion very few.

Both forces released reports outlining their positions in 1974. Much to the dismay of this writer, neither was prepared in a straightforward or truthful manner. MassPIRG, an extremely important consumer advocate statewide, fell into the same trap as many of the groups they criticize. Its report contained many statistical inaccuracies as well as resorting to the use of statements out of context to prove its point. To someone who believes in PIRG's basic objectives and consistently has designated two dollars each semester to its cause, this subtle propoganda should be disturbing.

Northeast Utilities, who issued its report in response to MassPIRG's, also reverted to these practices. Because of the wide range of opinions and scientific data available on the subject, it is easy for either side to construct an argument in its favor. Both also included many valid points. Most university opinions have been formulated by the pressure and influence enjoyed by MassPIRG here, without seriously examining the opposite side. Despite its good intentions, MassPIRG has shown themselves as capable of distortion as a Ron Zeigler. It has seriously damaged their influence on me. It is wrong to assume that because PIRG operate under a consumer oriented banner that its word is always accurate or morally correct.

Perhaps we should look at the real reason behind the push for nuclear energy - economics.

Yet the arguments presented dealt mainly with nuclear power as a national subject (each side hopeful of an all encompassing victory) and are far from the minds of most Montague residents. The decision to allow the plant to be located there has been influenced more by economics than these larger concerns. These are reasons which most anti-nuke groups seemed to ignore. Putting a plant in Montague has the potential for saving each homeowner $40,000 over the next twenty years.

A recent study by Harbridge House, a consulting firm in Cambridge, has castigated the university community and its anti-nuke groups for concentrating on nationalized concerns and ignoring the effect which the plant would have on Montague's residents. It claims this attitude has forced the townspeople to retreat to the seclusion of their town government for advice. In other words their decisions have been made for economic and primarily selfish reasons.

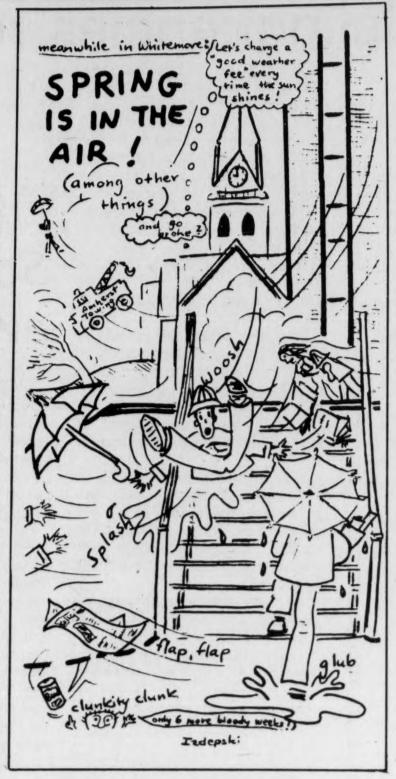
Not many among us realize the impact a power plant has on the tax base of a community. The study predicts that once the project is completed it will result in a savings in excess of $100 on the Montague tax rate. Without it taxes would be $117 (per thousand of valuation) in 1985. The $900 million in real improvements, which the plant will incur on its property, would scale this figure down to a paltry sum of $13. Confronted with this potential savings, most homeowners are agreeable to the plant's construction.

Secondly, in the terms of jobs and monetary impacts, the benefits are even more tantalizing. During the construction stage, Montague would receive 430 jobs and a payroll somewhere between $6-8 million. Ask any storekeeper if he would be agreeable to this financial stimulation and I assure you his answer would be yes.

In light of these economic arguments, how should anti-nuke groups now confront the problem? My recommendation is a legislative bill which would re-route the tax paid to the town of Montague by the utility to the state treasury. Not only would this change many pro-nuke attitudes in Montague, but it would also serve to prevent other Massachusetts communities from wanting a plant located in their town.

Action of this type could set a precedent for other states powerless to initiate a moratorium against nuclear power plant construction. It will not be too late in Massachusetts. If MassPIRG had focused their attention on this type of action instead of its national approach, the problem might have been solved sooner.

Gregg Wilson is a Collegian Commentator



editorial

Vote today!

As a result of the relaxed residency requirement and an intensive voter registration drive, over four thousand students are now registered to vote in Amherst. This factor, along with the standard 25 per cent voter turnout in past town elections, may determine to what extent students influence the area in which they live.

There are over 45 students running for town office under the Progressive Candidates Pool, which the Collegian endorsed in yesterday's issue. The endorsement, as well as the efforts of these students will be futile, however, unless there is a full turnout of registered student voters. The PCP platform relates directly to the quality of life in Amherst, rent control, enforcement of non-victim crimes and other student oriented issues.

Last week, it was found that flyers had been distributed in certain precincts telling voters not to elect "transients," that is, people who were not registered to vote in 1974. This constitutes a questionable campaign tactic, but also demonstrates a fear expressed by townspeople that students may take over the town for their own uses. We ask that you seriously consider for whom you vote, whether it be a student or townsperson. We also would like to stress the fact that it is necessary to work together to solve the problems of Amherst as a town with a history and a future.

Registering to vote was but one step in the participation process; take the next one today and vote!

All unsigned editorials represent the majority of the Board of Editors.

letters to the editor

What? No Spring Concert?

To the Editor:

As concerned members of the Program Council Music Committee, we are worried that there will be no Stadium concert this Spring. Due to reorganizational and recruitment problems, the plans for the concert have been later than usual in getting started. There is now a very serious threat that there will be no concert. We need people now to show the university whether or not they are interested in having a Spring concert. It will take a time commitment on people's part to set up staging, run security, and make arrangements. There will be a recruitment meeting Tuesday night [April 8] at 7:30 in the S.U. Council Chambers. If you are interested in working on the Spring concert or for the Music Committee as a whole, we need your help desperately, come to the meeting or if you can't make the meeting stop by the Music Committee office [Room 415 S.U.] before Tuesday.

Debi Huisken
David Osepowicz
Neal Trousdale

Representation in School of Ed

To the Editor:

Attention School of Ed Undergrads:

You now have a vote in the Faculty Assembly and Cabinet through student reps, but the power comes from all 1500 of us. It is time for you to get involved in your future. Reduction of funds is causing a cutting back of all undergraduate programs, undergraduate advising, flexibility, experimentation, etc. If you don't speak out we all are going to lose. There are plenty of places for you to express your ideas and concerns. We need your help to be effective. Give us a call. Betsy Thornton 253-7656, Tepar Stevenson 665-3222, Dave Mintz 546-7685, Debbie Loman 546-6573, Tim Masloski 253-5550.

Dave Mintz

More comments on April Fools

To the Editor:

This letter comes in criticism of some portions of the April 1 issue of the MDC. The article in question is the "Pigs hassle Indians" fiasco that appeared on P.3.

The criticisms base themselves in the personal vindictiveness, racism and lack of literary worth inherent in the piece. A few points along these lines ...

While the assemblers of the Fools' issue were occupied with the creation of their dynamite -for - traditional - ceremony fairy tale, four persons died violently on the Pine Ridge Reservation. As the authors and readers indulged themselves in the placating of reactionary fantasies, legal workers and American Indian Movement supporters were and are at this moment confronting the constant threat of rifle attack by government supported goon squads. The writers' insistence on misunderstanding the So. Dakota situation is evident in their employment of the dangerously stereotypical "police brutality" routine.

While we do not hold this situation to be exempt from satire, we would hold that the struggle of the American Indian people not be treated in the fool-hearted, mocking tones of schoolboy journalism. But it is as satire that the attempt failed and as satire it should be criticized ...

Primarily, the authors failed to present an insight into the relationship between the Native peoples and the US government agencies in South Dakota. This process is and has been for the past 100 years one of Indians, individually and collectively, dodging the bullets and "white tape" of an authority bent on genocide. Had the writers captured this in absurdist literary form, their satire may have more closely approached success. Bruce, Clemens and Swift delighted in getting in underneath the superstructure of a sallow, decaying culture and irritating everyone with medicinal needles of verbal jibe. While one can sense such intent somewhere in the murky diarrhea of the Fools' issue, it never quite surfaces.

Why the implication that the PNS is involved in irresponsible reporting and the gathering of porous fact?

Why did the MDC indulge in a giggle-drooling affront to two such conscientious and incisive news persons as Ellen Gavin and Gail Sullivan?

We fear that much of what has been posed will be defended, not answered, with cries of you - can't - take - a - joke from people who appear to know little of the nature of literary humor. One would wish the writers cooler heads to reflect on the words of the literary critic R. Bruce Warren:

"Any pretense to professionalism in this rag has been thoroughly and thoughtfully put to rest in this disaffected reader's mind by the foppish pedantry of this foolish genuflexion."

Michael Downey
Lu Ann Robinette
Dee Almeida
Jim Jordan

Reid Fishman and Joyce Kosofsky come out of the wall tomorrow. Don't miss them!

Ellen Gavin

Another world

If South Dakota has an armpit, it may very well be Rapid City.

Truckin' out to the Colorado Rockies for Spring break, our carload of people and skis stopped there to pick up another passenger. A long time sister and fellow traveller, Gail was in Rapid City working for the Wounded Knee Legal Defense-Offense Committee (WKLDOC), an ad hoc committee of legal workers and attorneys from all over the country who have assisted in the Wounded Knee trials as well as a multitude of cases involving Native Americans. She had returned to South Dakota after a six month return to UMass, and prior to that she had been a legal worker at WKLDOC for a full year.

Driving through Rapid City to the poor (Indian) section of town where WKLDOC workers live, one is struck by the fact that there is no less than twenty bars on the main drag, drinking is the only escape for many poor Indians and whites, and it serves as a major past time for other Rapid City residents as well.

We arrive at Gail's home, a shabby white house just up from rows of empty houses and shacks which, destroyed by a flood a few years back, now sit with large numbers scrawled on their fronts for identification, waiting to be torn down.

Gail greets us cheerfully at the door, hugs and kisses go around, and she ushers us quickly inside. "Have I got a job for you all!" she says, "How would like to view an autopsy?"

Two people, both members of the American Indian Movement, had been shot in Manderson on Pine Ridge Reservation. One was dead, the other had been shot in the throat. Although they were close friends, the BIA maintains that one shot the other, then shot himself in the throat. This man had reported to the committee earlier in the week that he had been offered $800 by the BIA to testify concerning another murder which had taken place on Pine Ridge.

An autopsy was to be performed on the body that night and the members of the committee had been calling lawyers, doctors, and judges to attain permission to view the autopsy. One of our group was a lawyer, and he made a last attempt to gain that permission, to no avail. It was feared that evidence that could be attained from the autopsy would be tampered with, and the family of the murder victim could not be reached to register their objections to the autopsy. (By some mysterious error the FBI had informed the family that they should go to Rushville, Nebraska where the body would be sent.

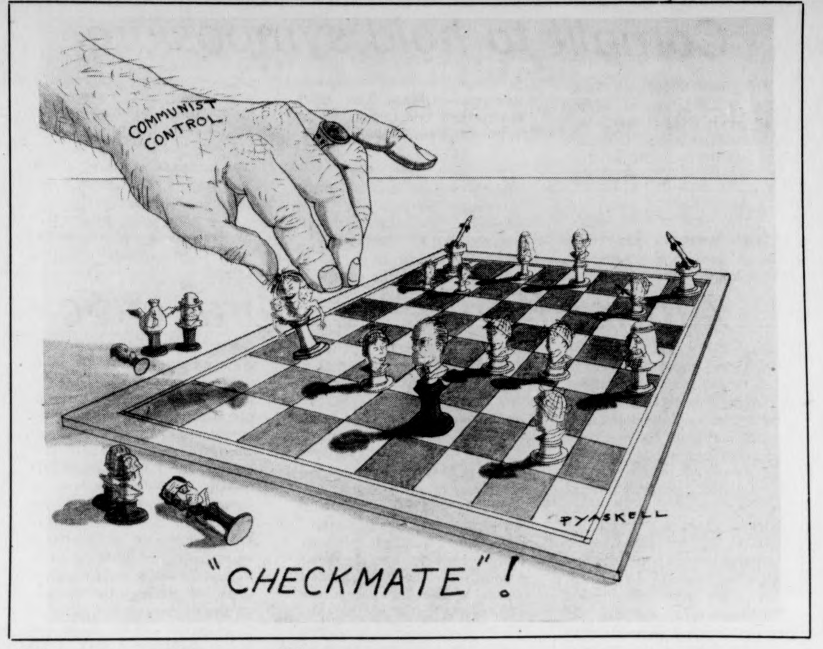
Meanwhile tensions in Rapid City had been mounting and a Federal grand jury was sitting in Rapid City at the request of the legal committee, calling in witnesses to testify concerning the recent violence on Pine Ridge. Gail explained how the local goons had followed them home the night before: up until that point they had managed to keep their residence unknown. Because of the fact that only a few legal workers were in town, coupled with the fact that the goons had recently broken a long-standing tradition of not harming white legal workers and attorneys, they had spent the night before our arrival in fear of an attack by the goons, who would be in search of entertainment after the bars closed. They had a semi-automatic rifle on hand for protection.

The "goons" are officially tribal policemen. In reality they are Indian flunkies who gladly exchange their loyalty and brawn to Dick Wilson for hefty supplies of alcohol and money. Over the past three weeks they had been indiscriminately attacking AIM members and traditional people on the reservation — shooting up houses and automobiles, harassing and brutalizing people.

Since Saturday night promised to be the most dangerous night and because it was obvious that there was little more to be done, we headed out of Rapid City for Colorado and our long awaited vacation. Three days of fresh mountain air and the kicks of cross-country skiing were enough to mellow us all out.

While we were spacing out in the Hot Springs, a total of four more people had been killed on Pine Ridge. Returning from the funeral of Stacey Courttier, the man who had been murdered before we left, Jeannette Bissonette was murdered. She was a relative of Pedro Bissonette, who was murdered at Wounded Knee. Three other people, including a four-month-old child, were killed when the vehicle in which they were travelling was run off the road on the way in to Pine Ridge.

Ellen Gavin is a Collegian Columnist



Zamir Nestelbaum

Good boy gone bad

"Who's dat dere in mah kitchen. Who's dat wid his han in mah cookie jar? Lord Almighty strike me down if dat ain't no other but little Johnny Connally sneakin out wid mah milk money! Come back heah you little wormy chicken thief. Yo' daddy owns half the state of Texas an you still after wat little Ah have to feed mah babies. Scat you little varmint fo' I hang you out t' dry!"

This was a scene that took place in a hot steamy dustbowl Texas town during the Depression. Little Johnny Connally always got by on his wits. Despite his affluence, he liked to sneak around and get some more. It wasn't the petty change that he was interested in, it was the act itself.

Little Johnny had lived in this dirty Panhandle town for all of his childhood. He had acquired quite a name for himself, despite his few years. He had risen to the level of one of the top honchos of his gang — the Jets. He had always loved the Jets and the Jets always loved him. Little Johnny even got knifed in the big ambush years before when the then Great Chief of the Jets was killed. Johnny was right beside him during the whole thing and earned a lot of respect for it. Little Johnny truly epitomized the Jets motto: "When You're a Jet, You're a Jet All the Way; From Your First Cigarette, To Your Last Dying Day! Little Johnny had everything — power, respect and money.

And then things changed. The Jets suddenly went on the decline. For years they had been the dominant gang in town, and now they were losing ground to the Sharks, a rival gang from the other side of the railroad tracks. The Sharks were filthy and vicious. Their leaders would do anything to get what they wanted. Any dirty trick to anyone was their credo. There was no stopping their attack, and the Sharks quickly took control of the town.

Despite controlling the town, the Sharks were not content. They still sent out raiding expeditions to beat on any loose Jet they could find. This was eventually noticed by the local Police, who decided to come down on the Sharks for their excessiveness. Meanwhile little Johnny Connally was unhappy. He sulked constantly — the Jets a had lost power and so had he.

But soon little Johnny Connally started negotiating with the Chief of the Sharks. The Chief Shark wanted little Johnny Connally to become a Shark and lead all the little Jetsies who followed him over to the other side of the railroad tracks. For this, the Chief Shark offered power and the possibility of one day becoming the biggest Shark in the town.

This was too much for little Johnny Connally to resist. He renounced his Jetsmanship and became a Shark. He soon became a big Shark and did manage to lead many Jets over the tracks, and the Sharks really tightened their already firm grip on the town.

But all was not well. The Police began to crack down hard on the Sharks. They were after the Chief Shark himself. To get to him, they had to knock off most of his underlings. Luckily, little Johnny Connally was not involved. But dealing for so long with the Sharks, he had taken on some of their ways. For no apparent reason he began to roam the town, stealing milk money from cookie jars — usually just nickels and dimes. As things got worse and worse for the Sharks, little Johnny Connally hit more and more cookie jars, wishing he were still a Jet.

Without their milk, babies began to cry louder and louder, and finally one day, the Police picked up little Johnny Connally. Being a Shark had caught up with him.

Zamir Nestelbaum is a Collegian Columnist.

commentary

A question of moral indigestion

By JIM PAULIN

The pedantic lecturing of the prune and molasses eating dieticians has been rejuvenated, except now their self-righteous morality travels under the nom de plum of "health" food.

Candy and coke and potato chips have been traditional targets of alimantry alarmists, whose self righteous harangues decried the nutritional deficiencies of juvenile oral hedonists who spent their lunch money on goodies in palm size packets that seduced the tongue, but not the stomach, which rejected the advanced of sugar and chocolate and a string of multi-syllabic chemical names. This indulgence was sternly discouraged by parents who listened to the warnings of medical authorities. Often it was parentally outlawed, causing the child to rebel to preserve his oral freedom of choice. Like other restrictions, it would vanish when the child left home.

But now in college, if you choose to buy a candy bar or a Coke while with a disciple of Adelle Davis or J.R. Rodale, you hear the same theme cloaked in its own unique vocabulary. Either it's "inorganic" or "spiritually and nutritionally empty" or "not conducive to self enlightenment" or it produces tension and reduces potency. Instead of stentorian warnings, we hear guilt arousing moralizing.

These verbal prohibitionists are just as boring and extraneous as Reader's Digest anti-pot articles or tea totalers inveighing against insidious booze, urging stronger liquor control laws. (I don't think they've spawned a Carrie Nation figure yet, one who'll go after candy machines with a hatchet.)

The old dieticians said meat was good for you. But the new "organic" people say it's not good, "Because it releases all sorts of chemicals into your system." ("especially after I've done my yoga.")

Prior to "health foods," we ate "unhealthy foods". Everything from the supermarket was unhealthy because it wasn't "health food." That was before the malice of them scientific perverts injecting all them chemicals into cows, making them cows inorganic, making them synthetic robots, if you will. All the vitamins were intercepted by bogey men who snuck into canneries and slaughterhouses disguised as Green Giants. Those were the dark ages, before the Minimal Daily Requirement, before statistics began appearing on cereal boxes.

The pristine stomach purists stoutly maintain the purity of their systems. Fuck the system; I'll take a Big Mac and a large Coke, if you please. (No ice please. Aside — no ice, more coke.)

"One man's meat is another man's poison."

"Some like it hot, some like to cold, some like it in the pot four days old."

Jim Paulin is a Collegian Commentator.

Complit to hold symposium

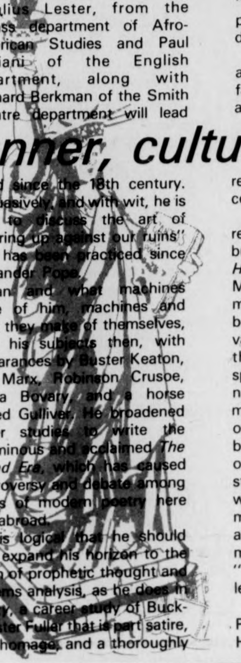
The departments of Comparative Literature at UMass and Smith College will jointly sponsor their annual Literature Symposium Thursday, April 10, 1975 in Room 227 Herter Hall, UMass.

The theme of this year's lecture series is "American Modernism" and will be presented by four speakers; two from UMass, one from Smith, and one guest lecturer from Johns Hopkins University.

Julius Lester, from the UMass department of Afro-American Studies and Paul Mariani of the English department, along with Leonard Berkman of the Smith Theatre department will lead discussion on "International Contexts of American Modernism" at 8:30 in 227 Herter and guest lecturer Hugh Kenner will speak on "American Modernism" at 4:00 p.m. in the same room, same day.

The symposium is opened to all Five College students and faculty and all are urged to attend.

Author Kenner, cultural critic



Hugh Kenner has written and edited more than a dozen works of literary and cultural criticism, including critical-life studies of Joyce, Beckett, Wyndam Lewis and Ezra Pound. He has been the major interpreter of English and American modernism for more than two decades and has recently added to his list of specialties, the art of cultural criticism ... he contributed several articles to Life Magazine before its folding.

With his brief brilliant The Counterfeiters, (1968), Mr. Kenner began a series of what are trenchant historical and interpretative works which examine milieux, cultural themes and major figures on larger than life scale. In the Counterfeiters and the Stoic Comedians (a study of Flaubert, Joyce and Beckett) he develops a survival theory of comedy based on the industrialized world since the 18th century. Persuasively, and with wit, he is able to discuss the art of "shoring up against our ruins" as it has been practiced since Alexander Pope.

Man and what machines make of him, machines and what they make of themselves, were his subjects then, with appearances by Buster Keaton, Karl Marx, Robinson Crusoe, Emma Bovary, and a horse named Gulliver. He broadened earlier studies to write the voluminous and acclaimed The Pound Era, which has caused controversy and debate among critics of modern poetry here and abroad.

It is logical that he should then expand his horizon to the realm of prophetic thought and systems analysis, as he does in Bucky, a career study of Buckminister Fuller that is part satire, part homage, and a thoroughly readable examination of Fuller's complex apocalyptic thought.

Most recently, Mr. Kenner returned to earlier concerns, but with new perspectives, in Homemade World: American Modernism, published last month. Mr. Kenner speaks on behalf of a recognition of values, of an attempt at synthesis in an increasingly specialized world, of the art and need for comic posture when miscalculation is the calculated order of things. Kenner embodies the themes and subjects of his work; his language and stance are those of the creative writer. Indeed, he is that unique mind who defies categories of all types. As he quotes Pope, so might one speak of him, "Those move easiest who have learned to dance."

Mr. Kenner is currently Professor of English at Johns Hopkins.

UMass percussion ensemble to play

How about humming voices matching the pitch of a vibraphone, or, instead of instruments, hands clapping in four part harmonies? What do you think of music being performed by groups of 50 instruments — entirely percussion?

Tomorrow night in Bowker Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. you can hear the musicians who play this type of unique music as part of the Sixth Annual Concert of Music for Percussion Instruments. Performing will be The University of Massachusetts Percussion Ensemble directed by Peter Tanner and assisted by The University of Massachusetts Trombone-Tuba Choir directed by Joseph Duchi. David Neubert, double bassist, is also performing as a guest artist. This concert is the second appearance of The UMass Trombone-Tuba Choir since its formation last Fall.

Music for percussion ensemble is quite new in the field and the concert will feature one of the earliest pieces ever written (which incidentally when first performed in Paris in 1927 caused such an outrage that police were needed to restore order to the concert hall), and one of the newest, being permiered only last month at the Eastman School of Music.

The concert will open with a composition of very soft music, uncommon for a full percussion ensemble, by Warren Benson. Other selections will include works by Bach, Marini, Haydn, and a duo for xylophone and double bass by William Sydeman.

The concert will close with a piece of trombone choir and percussion ensemble, the only music known written for those instruments combined.

The UMass Percussion Ensemble has made appearances at the Isabella Gardner Museum and the Shelburne Falls Festival for the Arts.

The concert is open to the public without charge.

COMING SOON

NAIADS

Aquatic Art Performance

April 9, 10, 11, 12

8:00 p.m.

North Physical Education Building (W.O.P.E.)

Tickets now available at Student Union and W.O.P.E. (or at the door).

Students: 50c with I.D.

Orchard Hill, Black Musicians to sponsor panel discussion

By JOE BARON
Special Correspondent

Tomorrow, April 9, the Orchard Hill series, in conjunction with the fourth annual Black Musicians Conference will be sponsoring a panel discussion on Black Music in America. The panel will feature guest artists Jimmy Garrison, Grachan Moncur III, Nat Hentoff, and University professors Max Roach and Archie Shepp.

Hentoff is a free lance journalist and critic whose writing has appeared in the Village Voice, Commentary, Down Beat, and the Real Paper. His writings have focused on many diverse aspects of American society; ethnicity, political harassment, music and civil liberties. He has produced many recordings by such prominent Black Musicians as Max Roach and Dizzie Gillespie. Hentoff is probably the most respected white critic of not only Black American music, but of the overall culture of America. He will begin the discussion by delivering a paper on "Charlie Parker, Black Music and America" which was originally scheduled for the Charlie Parker Memorial Residency.

The backgrounds of the other panel members is as follows: Jimmy Garrison is a bassist, mostly known for his contribution to the John Coltrane Quartet including pianist McCoy Tyler and percussionist Elvin Jones. Mr. Garrison has also performed with Ornette Coleman, Charles MacPherson, Archie Shepp, and the Jazz Composers Orchestra Association. He presently has hiw own group, the New World Ensemble.

Grachan Moncur III is a trombonist who has played with Archie Shepp, Lee Morgan, Jackie McLean and Wayne Shorter. He has performed all over the world with the artists such as above and with his own group. He has many albums to his credit.

Garrison and Moncur will also be guest performers in concert with pianist Lonnie Luton Smith, Friday night April 11 in the Student Union Ballroom.

Hopefully professors Roach and Shepp need no introduction to this community. Professor Roach is a percussionist of international repute. He was one of the founders of the music called "Bop".

Shepp is a composer, playwright, poet, and saxaphonist. Besides the many recordings to his credit, most notably "Fire Music", he has recorded with John Coltrane and the Jazz Composers Orchestra. He is in the forefront of the modern Black Musicians Movement.

The program should prove to be as exciting as it is educational. It will take place in the Noah Webster dormitory in Orchard Hill. It will begin at 7:30 and is free to the public.

First Annual UMass CAR RALLY!

SATURDAY, APRIL 12

PRIZES:
Rusty Scupper
Steak Out
Sound Scope
Old Weird Harold's
Faces of Earth
Bell's
Hungry U II
Papa Gino's
Dominoe's

Registration — 9 a.m. in front of Alumni Stadium. $3 per car. For further info call 6-7801, 6-7791, 6-7794, 6-7728, 6-7761.

ALMOST PLANTING TIME

Get a head start
at Earthwares
- seeds & seed flats
- vermiculite
- gardening books
- plant lites for seedlings

EARTHWARES

103 N. PLEASANT AMHERST 256 8810

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall 545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS WOW THESE SPECIALS WHILE THEY LAST.

Nyquil Syrup 6 oz. Reg. Price $1.87 — $1.35

Sure Deod. 6 oz. Scented, Unscented Reg. Price $1.21 — 77¢

Vanquish 60's Reg. Price $1.16 — 79¢

Wilkinson Bonded Razor Reg. Price $2.19 — $1.39

J & J Dental Floss Waxed, Unwaxed Reg. Price 89c — 54¢

Head & Shoulders Lotion & Tube Reg. Price $1.69 — $1.05

UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER

notes & quotes

New York Law

Representatives from New York Law School will be on campus Thursday, April 10 to solicit applicants for admission to the class of September, 1975. They will be available to meet with students at 3:30 p.m., in room 808 C.C. Anyone interested is invited.

Nu? staff meets today

NU? The Five College Jewish Monthly invites you to attend our official five college family staff meeting; today at 4:30 in the campus center room 176. Everyone is welcome, bring along friends, writers, reviewers, photographers, artists, business managers, staff workers, typists, or anyone interested in helping, no experience necessary just the desire to work, for a growing Jewish newspaper.

Holocaust Day memorial

Holocaust Day, in memory of the Jewish victims of the Nazis, will be marked at UMass by a memorial service tonight in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union at 7 p.m. At 8:00 p.m. the documentary film, "Let My People Go" will be shown in Campus Center 174-6. The film includes actual footage of the flight from Europe and the struggle of the survivors to settle in Israel. The service and the film are open to all interested persons.

THERMAL HOODED SWEATSHIRTS red grey navy

dk. green

the jeans store

WEAR-HOUSE

Fairfield Mall chicopee
201 n. pleasant st. amherst

10% OFF SWEATSHIRTS WITH THIS AD!

Clip coupon

campus carousel

No more pepsi for Barnard

By TONY GRANITE

PEPSI GENERATION DEAD at Barnard College in New York City is the word given prominent display on page one of a recent Columbia Daily Spectator.

Henceforth, Pepsico soft drinks will not be served in cafeterias and residence halls at the woman's college. The action results from petitions by the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry, which is conducting a nationwide boycott of Pepsico. They are protesting the corporation's dealings with the Soviet Union.

Coca-cola: sic 'em!

- - -

TAKE A HOOKER TO LUNCH is the headline on an editorial in a recent Pirate's Log of Modesto (Calif) Junior College.

The piece (oops) takes the government to task for failing to legalize the "oldest profession" and collect taxes from the $7 billion industry.

Uses for the windfall? To fund social security programs (even hookers get there), welfare, schools and the police "to tend to more important duties."

Out of the mouths of babes, eh?

- - -

ENGLISH MAJORS GOING VOCATIONAL is the word from Westfield State (teacher's college). In a recent Owl, the chairman of the English department there was quoted as saying that "English majors have shifted their interest from teaching to more vocational objectives."

To meet the need, a concentration in Journalism-Communication is being offered. Elective courses include creative writing, history of the motion picture, journalism and literary criticism.

The journalist as a man of letters?

- - -

12 PER CENT SALARY HIKE has been recommended by legislators in Washington for state employees and higher education faculty.

That's the word passed in the Washington State U. Daily Evergreen.

The House there has approved an increase of 11.43 per cent plus $7.50 a month increase in employer contribution to medical insurance payments. It also approved a 10 per cent increase on merit for higher education faculty.

Mr. Dukakis, are ya listenin'?

notices

ALPHA ZETA
Important monthly meeting tonite, Rm. 164 CC at 6:30. Election of new officers and speaker after. Attendance mandatory.

AMATEUR RADIO LICENSE CLASS
Will meet tonite at 8:00 (not 7) at the ham shack, Elab 109.

ANTHRO FILM SERIES
Free Anthropology films: tonite at 7 and 9 showings of "Deadbirds" and "Flatland". Goessman Auditorium.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Mandatory meeting tonite in Hasbrouck 22 at 7 to elect officers for next year. If you have a star finder, please bring it.

CASUAL CORNER FANS
Come hear Ms. Bambi Azarian speak about the behind the scenes action at Casual Corner. Question and answer period following. Small gifts and refreshments. Tues., 4-8 at 7:30 p.m. in Rm. 119 Skinner Hall.

CHESS CLUB
We chess players are finally organized. Join us at CC 162 tonite at 7 or 7:30. Anybody is welcome to join.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
There will be a testimony meeting tonite at 6:15 in Rm. 911 CC. Everyone is lovingly invited.

COFFEE HOUSE
Starting this Friday nite, and continuing every Fri. nite, the OH Coffee House, in Dickinson Lounge, Orchard Hill, will feature live music and good food, free admission, beginning at 8 p.m. If you're interested in playing or helping us out call Deb or Paul at 546-6616.

COMPLIT LECTURE SYMPOSIUM
The depts. of Comparative Literature at UMass and Smith College will host their annual joint lecture symposium on 4-10 in 227 Herter Hall. Hugh Kenner, prof. of English at John Hopkins Univ. will speak on the "American Modernism" at 4 p.m. and "International Contexts of American Modernism" by UMass and Smith faculty members at 8:30 p.m.

DANCE AND MOVEMENT
Tues. evening classes in movement for the self for imagery and exploration. Thurs. evening workshops in technique, improvisation with music. For the experienced or beginner. Men welcome. Call 253-5114, 256-8828.

FASST
Federation of Americans Supporting Science and Technology will meet Wed., 4-9, Rm. 901 CC, 7:30 p.m. We will discuss our future. All are welcome.

FINANCIAL AID INFORMATION
General information meeting on Financial Aid for '75-'76 at 12 noon today in Colonial Lounge, Student Union.

FIRST ANNUAL UMASS CAR RALLY
Have a good time and win prizes Sat., 4-12 and enter the first UMass car rally. Registration begins at 9 a.m., Sat. morning in front of Alumni Stadium. For more info call: 6-7801, 6-7791, 6-7728, 6-7761.

HOLOCAUST DAY
Holocaust Day will be marked by a memorial service this evening in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union at 7 p.m. Following the service there will be a screening of the documentary Let My People Go in CC 174-6 at 8:00.

IRISH POET
Thomas Kinsella, Irish poet, will speak on Writing Poetry in Ireland Today. Hampshire College, Patterson Hall, East Lecture Room, 3 p.m., Tues., April 8.

NU? STAFF MEETING
All those interested in working for a Jewish Newspaper are invited to attend. CC 176 at 4:30 today.

OPEN RUSH
Pi Lambda Phi invites all university men tonite for an open rush, beginning at 8:30. We are at 14 Elm St., please call 256-6837.

PETER WATKINS
Today in Mahar at 4:00 Peter Watkins Film: "Punishment Park" will be shown free. Wed. at 1:30 he will hold a seminar on film censorship in the Colonial Lounge and at 7:00 his movie and lecture will be in the S.U.B.

PRE DENTS
Important meeting of the Pre Dent Club tomorrow, 4-9 at 7:30 p.m. in CC 803. Club activities to be planned, dues will be collected, raffle to be organized, DAT's will be discussed.

SAILING CLUB
Meeting Tues. at 8 p.m. to discuss upcoming spring sailing. Movie will be shown. Rm. 163 CC.

SOCIAL WORK
Beginning 4-9 and every Wed. and Thurs. evening thereafter, CASIAC will be offering pre-graduate advising on graduate study and careers in social work and related areas in the social sciences (i.e., psychology, sociology). See Lou Boudreau in E20 Machmer Hall, Wed. and Thurs. 7-9 p.m.

SPRING CONCERT
All those interested in working on any aspect of production of the Stadium Concert are urged to attend a meeting tonite in the Council Chambers (Student Union Building) at 7:30.

SWINGSHIFTERS '71
For party info contact Janice 256-6457 or Steve 253-5260.

TRAVEL GUIDE
Annual Shovel Race, Buzzard Festival. Pumpkin Show. Fiddlers' Convention. Read about these and other far out festivals in America: The Datsun Student Travel Guide. Free from the Outdoor Interest Group on Wed. 4-9, at Collegian distribution places in the S.U. and C.C.

TUCKERMANS OUTING
A trip is scheduled for 4-26, 27 provided the weather looks good and the ravine is open at that time. Everyone interested should attend patrol meeting on 4-24 at 6:30 p.m., CC.

UNDERGRAD BUSINESS CLUB
Meeting on Tues., 4-8 at 7:30 in CC 169 for all those interested in going on the trip to Montreal (4-19-21).

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARY
Will meet tonite at 7:00 in Rm. 172 CC.

WOMEN'S HEALTH SERIES
DES (diethylstilbestrol) is the topic of this first session on Tues., 4-8 from 12 noon to 1 p.m. in the Commonwealth Room, Student Union. Come and ask questions.

YOU CAN MAKE THE JS PROGRAM BETTER
Journalism Undergrad. Committee will meet Thurs., 4-10 at 7:30 in CC 164 to form committees that will initiate new programs in the department.

LOST
Red moroccan wallet — gift from parents, lost 4-4, a.m. Tel. 323-5191 or return to CC Lost and Found.

LOST
Red Austrian felt hat with two charms. Lost Sat. nite sentimental value. Call 546-7329.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON

starts WEDNESDAY at 7:00 & 9:00

"It represents some of the finest work Fellini has ever done — which also means that it stands with the best that anyone in films has ever achieved."
—Time Magazine

ROGER CORMAN Presents
R FELLINI'S AMARCORD

presenting the Original Version!

TV tonight

6:00 EYEWITNESS NEWS (3)
ACTION NEWS (8)
SECRET AGENT "Not So Jolly Roger." (18)
THE BIG NEWS 90 (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
SERGEANT BILKO "Viva Bilko."
NIGHTLY NEWS (30)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW (38)
BONANZA "Jonah." (40)
LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE (56)
6:30 ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
NBC NIGHTLY NEWS (22) (30)
ZOOM! (24) (57)
MOVIE "The Weapon." (27)
BEWITCHED (38)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 CBS EVENING NEWS WITH WALTER CRONKITE (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "Harrison B. Harding of Camp Crowder, Mo." (18)
THE BIG NEWS 90 (22)
THE ROMAGNOLIS TABLE (24)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
WOMAN IS.. (57)
7:30 CELEBRITY SWEEPSTAKES (3)
LET'S MAKE A DEAL Monty Hall, host (8) (22)
MUSIC PLACE (18)
THE FOURTH ESTATE (24)
MASQUERADE PARTY (30)
THE ANDY GRIFFITH SHOW "A Medal for Opie." (38)
ROOM 222 "No Island Is an Island." (40)
DRAGNET (56)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
8:00 GOOD TIMES (3)
HAPPY DAYS "Goin' to Chicago." (8)
PASTOR'S PERSPECTIVE (18)
ADAM-12 "Teamwork." (22) (30)
SOLAR ENERGY (24)
MAGICAL MYSTERY TOUR (27)
THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES (38)
DEALER'S CHOICE (56)
THE HABITAT PROJECT (57)
8:30 MASH (3)
TUESDAY MOVIE OF THE WEEK (8) (40)
BOB HOPE PRESENTS THE GILLETTE CAVALCADE OF CHAMPIONS AWARDS (22) (30)
AN EVENING OF CHAMPIONSHIP SKATERS (24) (57)
JOURNEY TO ADVENTURE (27)
GREEN ACRES (38)
DINAH! (56)
9:00 HAWAII FIVE-O "The Two-Face Corpse." (3)
GREATEST SPORTS LEGENDS (18)
THE JACK BENNY SHOW (27)
9:30 AMERICAN SKI SCENE (18)
ASSIGNMENT AMERICA (24) (57)
GOMER PYLE "Old Man Carter." (27)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW (38)
10:00 CBS NEWS SPECIAL (3)
MARCUS WELBY, M.D. (8) (40)
PUBLIC POLICY FORUM (18)
1975 ACADEMY AWARDS PRESENTATIONS (22) (30)
INTERFACE (24) (57)
WORCESTER NEWS (27)
MOVIE "Border Incident." (38)
PERRY MASON (56)
10:30 THE JOE HYDER SHOW (27)
THE COMPASS WEEKLY (57)
11:00 EYEWITNESS NEWS (3)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (8) (18) (27) (40)
THE BEST OF GROUCHO (56)
THE CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS (57)
11:30 TUESDAY STARLIGHT MOVIE "The Counterfeit Constable." (3)
WIDE WORLD MYSTERY "Legacy of Blood." (8) (40)
MOVIE "Here Come the Marines." (27)
LAUGH CLASSICS (38)
THE BEST OF HOLLYWOOD (56)
12:00 NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (22) (30)
12:30 TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
1:15 NEWS, WEATHER (3)

FOR LIGHTNING FAST DELIVERY ON ANY OF OUR DELICIOUS PIZZAS OR SUBS CALL THE HUNGRY-U

PIZZA PATROL

THE HUNGRY-U

SUNDAY N.I.T. SPECIAL

50c off any large pizza Tues. night April 8th on deliveries only.

TEL. 256-0473 or 256-8914

TONIGHT
The Bluewall
presents
Tuborg Movie Night
featuring
The Lone Ranger
9:00 p.m.

DVP honors King

The UMass' Distinguished Visitors Program presents its eighth annual lecture series in tribute to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, a leading civil rights activist and minister, assassinated at Memphis, Tennessee, April, 1968.

Beginning today there will be presentations including a panel discussion focusing on contemporary problems facing the Black Community. According to committee spokeswoman Ann Alston, "this year we will concentrate on the specific issues Dr. King so eloquently articulated - in sum, the political, economic and social realities of the Afro-American struggle."

The panelists include Massachusetts state representative William Owens, economist Lloyd Hogan, attorney and activist Louise West. In addition, Dr. Levi Watkins, M.D., will present a paper on "Hypertension - Killer in the Black Community". The discussions are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. tonight in the UMass Bartlett Auditorium.

Another attraction of the three-day tribute to King's memory will be presented on Thursday, April 10 in the Campus Center Auditorium. A night of Gospel music and song featuring the internationally acclaimed Dorothy Love Coates Singers and including the well-known Ronnie Ingram Chori, will begin at 8 p.m.

All events are open to the public and admission is free.

Assistant RSO
Business Manager
Student Activities Office

QUALIFICATIONS:

— Bachelor's Degree in Business Management (or comparable experience)

— Working knowledge of Electronic Data Processing

— Substantial Student Service Orientation

BENEFITS:
Standard Full-time professional position benefits

Applications should be made no later than Fri., April 11, 1975 to J. Paul Margossian, Search Committee Chairperson, Rm. 420.

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
Tuesday 4/8 Only
DUSTIN HOFFMAN "LITTLE BIG MAN" Panavision Technicolor PG
RICHARD HARRIS in "A MAN CALLED HORSE" PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR
Eves: Man Called Horse — 7:00; Little Big Man — 9:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
ALL THE WILDNESS... THE LOVES...THE SEX... THE BUSTS... THE MAD HUMOR... ALL THE BRILLIANCE OF THE MAN HIMSELF.
SPECIAL Midnight Show Friday & Saturday
"BERNIE TRAVIS PLAYS LENNY WITH DEADLY PRECISION." PLAYBOY
Dirtymouth
The Lenny Bruce Story
R RESTRICTED
DIRTY MOUTH: FRIDAY & SATURDAY — 12:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 - HADLEY MASS
WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS — BEST PICTURE · BEST DIRECTOR
all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
"THE STING"
6:00, 8:30
1 PG Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
6:15, 8:30
2 PG Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
DAVID O SELZNICK'S
"GONE WITH THE WIND"
CLARK GABLE VIVIEN LEIGH LESLIE HOWARD OLIVIA de HAVILLAND
Winner of Ten Academy Awards
3 G 6:45
No Twi-Lite Hour
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny"
4 R Nominated For 6 Awards
6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $550. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers, high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

SR-50 Calc. Tex. Ins. TR. $75. Judy, 253-5054.

AKC German Shep. pups. Top champ. lines. Excel. temper. $125. Call 253-7610.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Framus 5-string banjo and accessories, $160; Toshiba reel to reel tape deck and 30 tapes, $60; paint and brush case and 30 tubes oils and more, $20. Call eves. Scott, 542-3119.

Microphone Shure 588A new $30. Smith Corona typewriter $25. Peter 253-2713.

Women's 3 spd. Eng. bike. Good make needs work $25. Call Barbara 546-5185.

Teac 250 Cassette deck, exc. cond., must sell. $180. Caroll 546-4441 after 6:30.

Calc. Bowmar MX100 all funct. 549-0013.

Yamaha Classical Guitar, 1 year old. 549-6226.

Garrard model SL55B Turntable! Base, Dust cov., cart. Fine condition. $30. Call 665-4368.

Speakers Frazier black box refinished pair 30 watt, $100. Exc. cond. Nancy 542-5837.

Gibson ES-335, good cond., $275. 253-5745.

Suede desert boots. Worn once. $15. M sz. 8; W sz. 9. 546-8331.

Cabart Oboe. Good condition. $325 or best offer. 549-0825.

110 lb. weight set. $30. 253-2241 aft. 9.

Beaut. Sierra design 300 sleeping bag, $90. Optimus 11B stove, $20. Seiko watch, new, guar. $55. Call Doug 6-5620.

Camper: 67X97. Fits pick-up longbed. Dbl. bed, fridg., excel. cond. Call 584-7803.

Pr. Vasque Glacier Hiking boots, lk. new, cost $65. Sell $45. Back pack, ex. cond, welded frame divided pk. $20. 546-4746.

ORGANIC FERTILIZER, composted cow manure, $25 a truck load, delivered. Call 665-4198 after 8 p.m.

AUTO FOR SALE

'67 VW $400 or B.O. Call 247-9368.

1968 Volvo 144S, needs work. Will consider any offer. Call 549-0929.

1974 Mustang II, red, lk. new. 253-7307.

1966 Ford station wagon – just tuned. Good condition. $250. Call 256-0259.

'71 Fiat 124, good condition, radials, 30 mpg. $1195. Call Mrs. Roberts 5-0150.

Want to buy, '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant, Slant 6, 225 c.i. Call Jeanne, 549-1312, eve.

VW Sqbk. '69, good cond. 74,000 mi. 25 mpg. $695. 1-628-3367.

1968 Pontiac Cataline, 4 dr., hardtop, cosmetically and mechanically good. Low mileage. Asking $650. 542-5563. Ask for Henry.

'69 Dodge, auto., p.s., exc. condition. $600. 256-8487.

1970 Toyota Corolla, exc. mech. cond. Allan. 253-310.

1964 Dodge panel truck. Rebuilt eng. Must see. $550. 527-9410.

4 Sale – Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

1968 Ford custom 500 st. wgn., excellent running cond. 18-21 mpg., nw. brakes & clth. Asking $575. Call Bill at 549-0803 after 5. Leave name.

1965 Chevy Belair, $125. 665-2882 after 5.

1967 Ford Cntry Sqr., $600, neg., good cond. Judy, 253-5054.

For Sale – 1966 Buick Skylark, good [illegible] new bat. and exh., $300. [illegible] 163, ask for Dennis B.

1966 VW square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

58 Peugeot, sunroof, bring a battery and drive it away! $100. Bob 253-7967.

64 Corvair Convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer. 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new. Exhaust runs well. 6 cyl., $250. Bob 253-7967.

68 Chev. No Beauty, but SUPER RUNNING. Small 8, automatic, p-s. $395. 253-7967.

Great 70 Fiat coupe, looking for good home. 40 mpg., $695 takes it. Bob 253-7967.

67 Ford Galaxie 6, auto $395. 253-7967.

Buick Wildcat, 4 dr., 425 cu. in 3 spd auto. 4bbl. Air condition, posi mint cond., 17 mpg. Must be seen. $700 or best offer. John 6-1167.

69 VW Exc. cond., sunroof, new clutch, brakes; rebuilt engine. $1000. 253-9285.

For sale 1972 SAAB 99E Exc. cond., new injectors. Tires air cond., $2400 or best offer. 413-774-4289 evenings.

Honda 450 eng. totally rebuilt $100. or best offer by April 14. 253-7687 eves.

SAAB 1972 99E Fuel injection, AM FM, blue, 48,000 mi. perfect. $2400. 1-369-4685.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1967 Honda 305 – motor ex. cond., new batt. $300. Call Gary 253-2892 or 546-8506.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

Triumph 650 Bonne. Completely rebuilt and repainted. Stock. Asking $825. Call 584-0026. It's ready for the road.

69 Honda 175cc $225. 253-9502.

'65 Honda S-90, 7700 mi. Runs well. 253-7610.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

Amh. – New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

Motorcycle tires, used. All will pass inspection. $4 to $10. Call for sizes. Russ at 256-0544.

1974 Honda, XL250, 680 miles, like new! Call Russ at 256-0544 for more info. $835 or best offer.

FOR RENT

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days, 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

One bedroom efficiency on bus route. All utilities. June 1 - Sept. 1. Call 665-3367.

Cape Cod. Falmouth 2, 3 and 6 bedroom cottages, winterized, furnished. Walk to beach. Full season only. Owner. 1-203-521-6841.

Room in house. Lg. fire-pl., pri. bath and storage. 2 mi. to cam. on bus rte. Sub. Apr. & May w-opt. $115. All util. inc. Call 256-8271.

Four bedroom house in Northampton for Sept. Rent $275.00. Call Skibiski Realtors, 584-3428 between 3-5 p.m.

Room for male student – country living, share bath, kitchen, lounge. 4 miles from UMass, $75 mo. Call 253-7841.

2 Rms. in country house. All privileges, near UM bus, includes all util. 665-3623. $90.

For rent – 2 bdrm. apt., views, woods, $180 per mo., util. incl. Call 665-3972.

Room in house, util., wash, dry. 256-8456.

Room to rent in Pelham. In country home. Call David 253-2686.

WANTED TO RENT

1 bedrm. apt. Northampton vicinity. 91S. Beg. May 1. Bus Phone. Call Patty 545-3139.

TO SUBLET

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month. On bus line. June 1, August 31. Opt. to renew. 546-6333.

Brandywine June-August. 2 bedrm. 549-1864.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

Four bedroom apt., util., furn. inc. June - Aug. Neg. Amherst 253-2433 on bus. 2 miles to U.M.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Sublet – June 1. One bedroom apt., Sunderland, all conv., util. included. $160. mo. 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

Great 2 bdrm. apt. for June – Sept. w-ac, util. inc., pool, on bus route. 256-8252.

3 bdr. Townhouse, sublet, June 1. Opt. to renew. On bus rte. Call 665-4166.

2 bedroom Riverglade Townhouse. Start June to Sept. Call 253-2562.

3 bedroom apt. on bus rt., air cond. For summer sublet – option to renew. Call 665-3687.

TO SUBLET

June-Sept., 2 bdrm. $175. Pool w-utl. 665-3953.

Sublet June 1-Aug. 31. Lg. 3 rm. apt. with extra lg. bedrm. Brandywine, heat and a.c. incl., opt. to renew lease. Call 549-4577 anytime.

Puffton, 2 bdrm. apt. Start June 1. 549-6385.

House from Jn. 1 – Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0521 anytime. B.O.

To sublet pri. bedroom. Squire Village. Can occupy immediately if needed. 665-3571.

Sublet June 1 – Sept. 1. Opt. to renew. 2 bedrm. apt. Belchertown, on bus route, lake. 323-6213.

Sublet room June – Sept. Great apartment and on bus route. Large windows. Call 256-8834 Sharon.

Apt. available June-August, 4 rm. furnished, reasonable. Opt. to renew, Northampton, Smith Col. area 586-1130.

Sublet with option to renew two bdr. townhouse, Squire Village, June 1. $170 per mo. plus utilities. Call 665-3280.

Summer – Central Amherst, 4 bedrooms, guest room, 1½ baths, large sitting room, kitchen, dining room, garage. Suit two or three couples. Only $275 P.M. Call 5-0308 (days), 256-8472 (night).

2 bdrm. at King Philip, Sunderland. All electric, $205, inc. util. Avail. June 1 til Aug. 31. 665-3688.

Sublet – June 1. 1 bdrm. Puffton Vil. Apt. Furnished, AC, tennis cts., pool. On bus line, option to renew. $174 per month. 549-0825.

Close walking to campus and town. 2 bdrm. furn. apt. with phone. Negot. 256-6750.

Cliffside, 1 bdrm. Sublet June 15 (app.). Opt. to renew. 665-3249.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedr., furnished apt. Bus line. $110 w-utilities. 253-7967.

Grad. Stud. seeks sunny room for Sept. 1. 256-8247 eve.

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

Own room in Puffton Apt. All utilities. $75 mo. 549-4524.

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

M or F wanted for summer cottage in Dennisport. 15 wks. $375. 549-1365. Dana.

Own lg. room in Hatfield. Country home w-land. 10 mi. from Amherst. No lease. $61 plus utilities. 247-9358.

Roommate wanted for June 1 – aug. 253-7307.

Air cond., 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. on bus rte. Tennis, basketball courts, pool, dishwasher. $60. 549-1866 for summer.

ROOM WANTED

Priv. spacious room in country near UMass by June 1. Call grace 545-0790.

Female – Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

HELP WANTED

MANAGEMENT TRAINEES – Nationwide Co., No. 1 in its field seeks college graduates for entry level positions in its expanding sales management operations. Major function involves marketing of insured savings and investment programs for college seniors and graduates on local campuses. Company paid training, 2 yr. training bonus program, great health, retirement and other fringe benefits. For interview call Psnl. Dept. 256-8354 bet. 10:00 and 4:00.

Person to assist in developing film – print making. Photo experience required. Apply Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst. 20 hrs per wk.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Townhouse apt. to sublet option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate rent for summer months if interested, call 549-0895.

Want to buy '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant Slant 6. $225. Call Jeanne 549-1312 eve.

Double bed or larger wanted to buy. Either both mattress and spring or just mattress. Will pick up. Call 256-8056.

TYPING

Regular and technical typing. Reasonable rates. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 665-4982.

I will do your typing accurately and promptly. Call Bev. 545-2735 or 253-9215.

PERSONALS

Judy, Happy Anniversary. Hope for many more. Love your shaygets. Michael.

FALMOUTH VOTERS. Write home for your ABSENTEE BALLOTS. Vote for Caterine Norton for school committee.

Gay Catholics – Your church cares, do you? For info, counsel, rap, write to Dignity, Box H488, Forest Park Sta., Springfield, Ma. 01108.

Interested in obtaining info. on communes, past or present. 253-5490 or 546-1219.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

Hillary Martick, Staff Reporter: Twenty-two years ago today was a very nice day for me, because you were born. I hope today holds sunshine, blue skies and smiles for you all day. Please be happy, hopeful and satisfied with me and you and everyone and everything. Let's go fly a kite together sometime. Happy B-day. I love you. Ben.

For only $20 (special university price), you can protect your car, tires and its contents with a "Bradley ghost" automatic burglar alarm. Electricity's newest marvel. Or install it yourself for only $15. For more info and a demonstration, call Larg at 546-9621 or Bruce at 546-5663.

Wanted: Prospective wife, green and white. Call 617-335-2591 or write Apt. 11, 10 Mediterranean Dr., Weymouth, 02188.

TRAVEL

Interested in no frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info call educational flights toll free 800-223-5569.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR – expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS – All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX YOUR CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Wooden chair seats recaned. Call Lin 546-7274.

DON'T JUST GO THERE. Learn something. Meet people. SUMMER STUDY ABROAD lists dates, subjects, prerequisites, costs for over 600 credit and non-credit programs worldwide. Send $3 to Institute of International Education, Box CC, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017.

LOST

Lost. Artist supplies in a green Chevy. Urgent. Call 253-3781 or Art Dept.

Lost. Set of keys. Brown leather case, btween B Wall & CC. Call 323-4483.

Lost. Orange fem. cat, Priscilla, in N. Amherst. 549-6696.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $65. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $65. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

MISCELLANEOUS

Hand-tamed hooded rats, light and dark. M & F. 50c ea. 549-6449.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

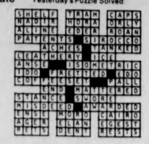
CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available. Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95, HP-21, only $119.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

UNITED Feature Syndicate

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved

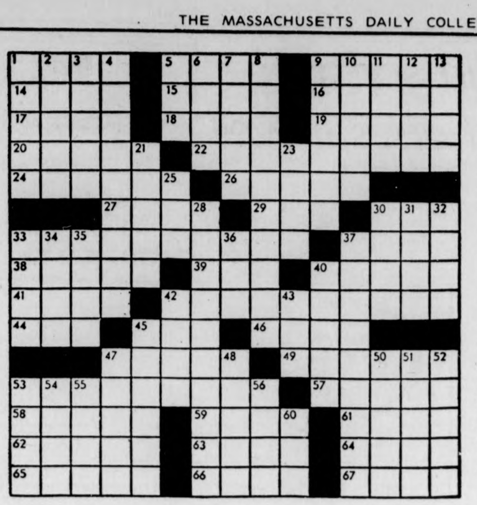


ACROSS

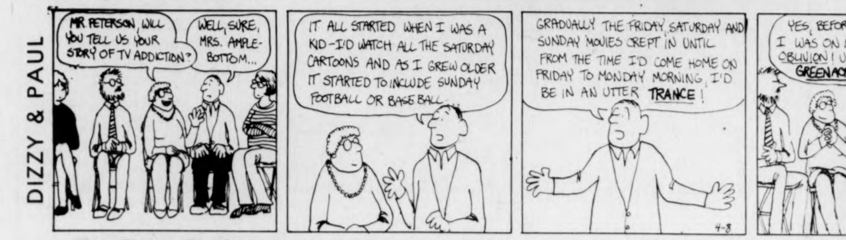
1 Antimony Prefix
5 Turkish titles
9 Islam supreme being
14 Feminine nickname
15 Famed Hindu mountain
16 Lasso
17 Med course
18 Distress
19 Charles H. ---- Bridge author
20 Superficial brilliances
22 Recoiled
24 Named: Archaic
26 Earring sites
27 Repents
29 Yugoslavian city
30 That girl
33 Authoritative control
37 Uncordial
38 Secret -----
39 Undivided
40 Assembly place
41 Fastener
42 Office supplies
44 Snakelike fish
45 Cheer
46 Particle of dirt
47 Santa's reindeer
49 Strut
53 Protected
57 Express contempt
58 Spartan serf
59 "How sweet -- --!"
61 Waste allowance
62 Get up
63 ---- Scotia: Canadian province
64 Commune near Padua
65 Electrical amplifying device
66 Erode with the teeth
67 Cervine animal

DOWN

1 Artificial
2 Carbonated beverage
3 -- --- cases: Always
4 Last extremity: 2 words
5 Elect. unit
6 Ship's rigging
7 "The Tempest" character
8 Summer head coverings
9 Disputes
10 Detroit or Vancouver team
11 Rendered hog fat
12 To ----: Perfectly
13 Round of applause
21 Forcible gush of water
23 Last word
25 --- cent store
28 Suffocating
30 Tender
31 ---- glass
32 Full of certain trees
33 Taro
34 Brutish person
35 Menu item
36 Alfonso's queen
37 Communicated with
40 Rowing teams
42 Equivalent
43 Imperial: Abbr.
45 Cad
47 Crowded
48 ----- Range: Wyoming mountains
50 Of old Scandinavia
51 Mediterranean island
52 Penetrate
53 Empty pretense
54 Greek goddess
55 Old Olympic site
56 Singer
60 Tool

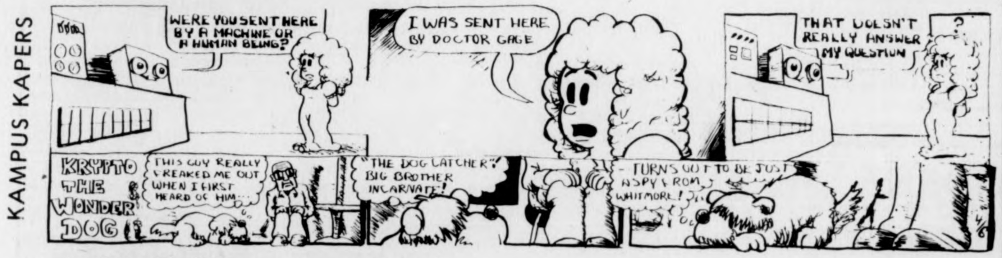


By Jim Carson



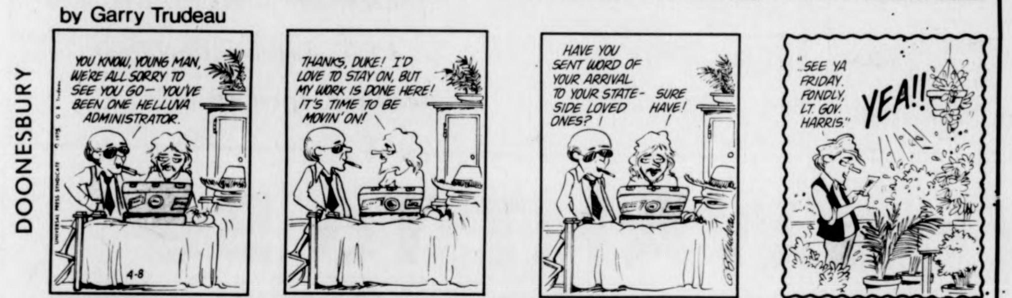
DIZZY & PAUL
MR. PETERSON, WILL YOU TELL US YOUR STORY OF TV ADDICTION?
WELL, SURE, MRS. AMPLEBOTTOM...
IT ALL STARTED WHEN I WAS A KID–I'D WATCH ALL THE SATURDAY CARTOONS AND AS I GREW OLDER IT STARTED TO INCLUDE SUNDAY FOOTBALL OR BASEBALL...
GRADUALLY THE FRIDAY, SATURDAY AND SUNDAY MOVIES CREPT IN UNTIL FROM THE TIME I'D COME HOME ON FRIDAY TO MONDAY MORNING, I'D BE IN AN UTTER TRANCE!
YES, BEFORE TVA RESCUED ME, I WAS ON MY WAY TO COMPLETE OBLIVION! VIDEO NEVER-NEVER LAND! GREENACRESVILLE!!
4-8
Carson

By Kris Jackson

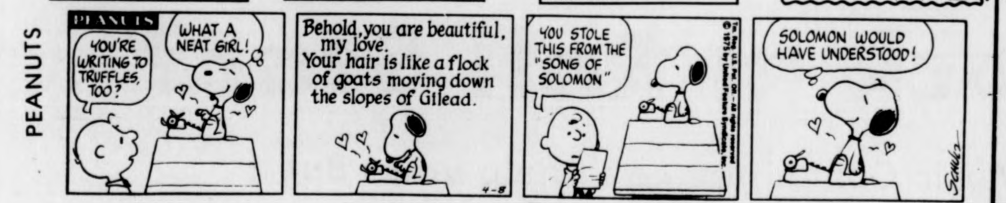


KAMPUS KAPERS
WERE YOU SENT HERE BY A MACHINE OR A HUMAN BEING?
I WAS SENT HERE BY DOCTOR GAGE
THAT DOESN'T REALLY ANSWER MY QUESTION
?
KRYPTO THE WONDER DOG
THIS GUY REALLY FREAKED ME OUT WHEN I FIRST HEARD OF HIM...
"THE DOG CATCHER"? BIG BROTHER INCARNATE!
TURNS OUT TO BE JUST A SPY FROM WHITMORE!

by Garry Trudeau



DOONESBURY
YOU KNOW, YOUNG MAN, WE'RE ALL SORRY TO SEE YOU GO– YOU'VE BEEN ONE HELLUVA ADMINISTRATOR.
THANKS, DUKE! I'D LOVE TO STAY ON, BUT MY WORK IS DONE HERE! IT'S TIME TO BE MOVIN' ON!
HAVE YOU SENT WORD OF YOUR ARRIVAL TO YOUR STATE-SIDE LOVED ONES?!
SURE HAVE!
"..SEE YA FRIDAY. FONDLY, LT. GOV. HARRIS."
YEA!!
4-8



PEANUTS
YOU'RE WRITING TO TRUFFLES, TOO?
WHAT A NEAT GIRL!
Behold, you are beautiful, my love. Your hair is like a flock of goats moving down the slopes of Gilead.
YOU STOLE THIS FROM THE "SONG OF SOLOMON" SOLOMON WOULD HAVE UNDERSTOOD!
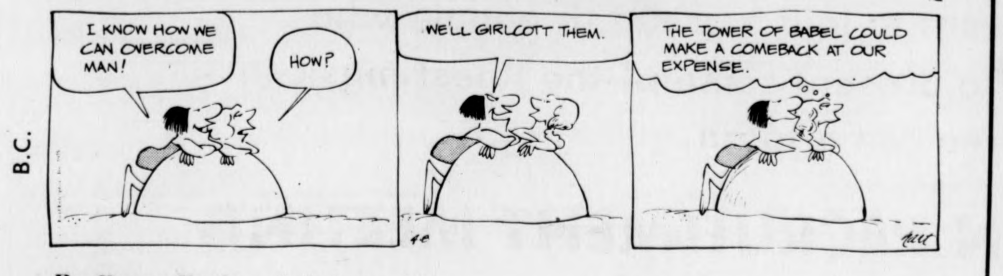
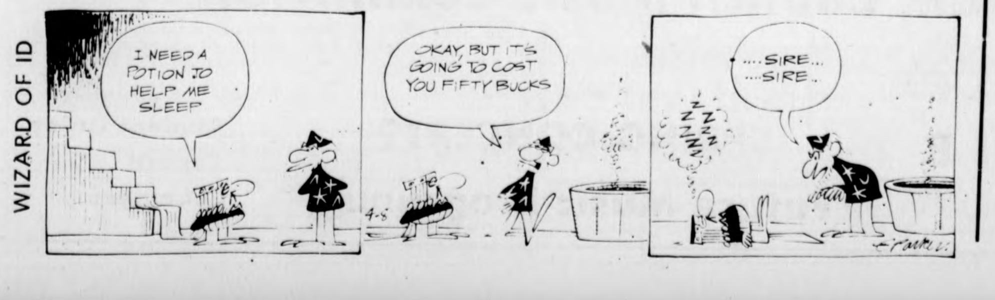
4-8
Schulz



B.C.
I KNOW HOW WE CAN OVERCOME MAN!
HOW?
WE'LL GIRLCOTT THEM.
THE TOWER OF BABEL COULD MAKE A COMEBACK AT OUR EXPENSE.
4-8

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart



WIZARD OF ID
I NEED A POTION TO HELP ME SLEEP
OKAY, BUT IT'S GOING TO COST YOU FIFTY BUCKS
ZZZZ
....SIRE... ....SIRE..
4-8

Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

TUESDAY, APRIL 8 — Born today, you are, if a man, a natural-born limelight seeker. You cannot in fact, do you even find it easy to share the center of attention with others, though this latter is something you will have to learn to do -- and do gracefully -- if you are to be admired at the same time that you are attended. You do your best work in the presence of a live audience; if a live audience is unavailable, you need at least to know that word of your labors, and their results, will get around.

You women, conversely, find public acclaim completely unnecessary either to your personal happiness or to the successful progress of your career. All that is necessary for you is the personal knowledge that you have done your work well, that the results of your labors are worth whatever effort it took to produce them. You do, however, enjoy occupying a position of power behind a throne, and for this reason you relish thoroughly any admiration directed toward your husband.

Whether men or women you are highly sensitive to your surroundings, especially to those intangible moods of other people which seem, somehow to fill the atmosphere around you, making the very air you breathe either helpful or detrimental to your efforts to succeed in whatever you're doing at the time. You need to feel an atitude of friendliness and encouragement around you to do your best.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Wednesday, April 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Remember to keep outside interference to a minimum today. You would do well to make all major decisions strictly on your own.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Don't depend on one less knowledgeable than yourself for the facts and figures you need. Make sure your mentor is up to the job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Though you may come off second best in a family argument, you should do very well if you become involved in a quarrel on the employment scene.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Take your time when it comes to making up your mind regarding your friendship with another. Take care not to jump to either good or bad conclusions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Smooth over personal relationships before you attempt to make them serve you at this time. There is much to do -- and not much time to do it in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Keep your emotions under control, especially early in the day when co-workers may annoy you with irritating habits. Moderation pays off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Keep to plans already made. Whatever activities you may involve yourself in on a spur-of-the-moment basis are bound to fall short of par.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Don't rush into a tense situation either at home or on the employment scene. Be satisfied with the benefits you are already receiving.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Make an effort to overlook what you take to be slights, insults, angry attitudes, and general hurts. Motives are what count today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- You possess good basic instincts; employ them now in the interest of continuing a friendship of old standing presently in jeopardy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) -- Let your own reason rather than another's whim of the moment be your guide to action today. Don't allow yourself the luxury of resignation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) -- You would do best to make this a routine day. Any new deeds or decisions could well be based on false reasoning at this particular time and place.

United Feature Syndicate

Travelling on a pittance

UMass is one of 150 campuses around the nation selected to receive a free travel magazine. America: The Datsun Student Travel Guide, now in its second year of publication, contains information, ideas and suggestions for low-budget student travelers interested in finding unusual points of interest to visit in America.

One million copies of the 72-page travel guide will be distributed around the country from late March through May. Local campus sponsors will give free copies of the magazine to students on a first-come, first-served basis.

This year a large part of America was written by students themselves. Articles by three winners in the 1975 Datsun Student Writing Competition are featured. Also included are seven award-winning advertisements designed by students in a national advertising contest and chosen through on-campus test marketing.

Descriptions of six different adventure trips--from backpacking to a whitewater canoe trip--comprise "Outdoors Getaway", an article which helps students visualize what such action trips are like and plan their own.

The special 14-page section, "Excursion Sourcebook '75," is designed to provide students with a number of places to explore in America. Wine tours, tombstone rubbings, covered bridges and rodeos are among the topics covered.

A description of America's celebrations, contests, feasts and other annual events can be found season-by-season in the "Festival!" section of America.

Other features include "Sun Sources: A Directory of Student Beaches," "Cheap Thrills: A Collection of Free or Inexpensive Things To Do in 15 Cities," and "Radioland U.S.A.," a coast-to-coast list of AM and FM radio stations.

New colloquium

Charles Majeed Greenlee, professional musician and orchestrator for over twenty years, is offering, through Orchard Hill Residential College, a one-credit colloquium entitled "How to Write Music Manuscript." This colloquium is open to a limited number of University and Five-College students, not all of whom need to be musicians.

Music copying is a lucrative, relatively open occupation. Anyone who can do a professional job can augment their livelihood or work when performing or composing and arranging is slow.

The colloquium will concentrate on reading scores, transposing music, and the use of the writing pen in forming musical characters. There will be three five-hour sessions (or equivalent by arrangement with the class). A leaf sheet, score, or an arrangement copied in a professional manner will be required.

For further information, please contact Greenlee through the Orchard Hill Academic Affairs Office, 103 Eugene Field House, 545-2882, or by calling 546-4544.

Basketball in winter, golf in spring; Gaudette keeps busy and does it well

By RON ARENA

For Fan Gaudette, the winter sportscene at UMass was long and tiring. Gaudette was a double-duty man; he was an assistant varsity basketball coach while also being the head coach of the JV squad. But now with the winter season over, it should be a time of relaxation for the coach, right?

Wrong! For Coach Gaudette, it's a new season. The sport is different now, the atmosphere has changed, and he has a new group of players. But his duty remains the same, as once again Gaudette tackles the task of being the coach, this time as the skipper of the golf team.

Golf does not compare to basketball in terms of strategy, so obviously Gaudette's techniques must alter somewhat. He won't be working on the fastbreak, and his players will not be forced to practice foul shots. But basically Coach Gaudette's goal remains the same - to prepare his players for competition.

"The major difference between coaching golf and basketball," he explains, "is that in golf, all coaching must be done before the match. You can't talk to a player once the match has started."

So what does the coach do prior to the match? "What I basically do is get the boy's head together" answers Gaudette. "I try to make them think and keep their composure, rather than simply teach them how to hit the ball."

So basically his job is to coordinate the team. A match can be lost on mental errors as well as physical miscues. In golf, concentration is vitally important. An angry player will never succeed.

Adds Gaudette, "I play with the kids, and talk about what they're doing. I try to prepare them to meet anything that happens on a golf course.

I think you need a responsible person in charge, someone who knows the game and can help the kids."

Gaudette fits both these categories. He had never played golf until he was 26, and still has a handicap of only 4. "I played baseball and basketball throughout college", says Coach Gaudette. "I have bad knees, so I wanted to play a sport where I could still get the competitive aspect of the game. Since then, I've developed into a decent golfer."

As for helping the kids, Gaudette feels he has "a good relationship with the golf team." He explained that when a player is bothered by something, he is welcome to come to the coach's house to talk about it, and many take advantage of the opportunity.

Fan Gaudette is a dedicated coach. He dedicates his time and his knowledge. Unlike some, Coach Gaudette has earned the title of "coach".

ONE WEEK LEFT!!

ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.

Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

dvp

The Distinguished Visitors Program is financed and operated by the undergraduates of UMass. for the purpose of keeping the university community sensitive to the world in which it exists.

It seeks to bring to campus those persons whose experiences in domestic and international affairs, sciences, arts and humanities qualify them to interpet, explain and raise questions about life in all its dimensions.

Come work with us.

Applications at S.U.B. Rm. 415
and C.C. Information Desk.
Deadline April 10

STUDENT JOBS
SWITZERLAND-AUSTRIA
FRANCE-GERMANY
Resorts - Hotels - Office
Restaurants - Hospitals
SEND 25¢ — APPLICATION INFORMATION
TRANSWORLD OVERSEAS
STUDENT OVERSEAS SERVICES
10 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MA. — 617-723-7675
TRANS WORLD

So You WANT To Be A Rock 'n Roll Star?

The Music Committee can't help you. But if you want to join a group of people who want to present some of the finest music in the area come to an

OPEN RECRUITMENT MEETING
Program Council Music Committee

Tues., April 8
7:30

SPRING CONCERT?
Future Music Programs?

Student Union Council Chambers

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

Frank Garahan gets ready to swipe at the lacrosse ball before an unsuspecting Dartmouth player. The senior attackman caught the Big Green goalie unaware as he scored six goals last Saturday. Kevin Patterson (33) also scored six goals.

Emphasize stick, position

Skateless netminders

By SCOTT HAYES

Imagine a hockey goaltender attempting to stop a puck with ordinary hockey gloves, elbow pads, a mask, a stick and possibly a chest protector. Or picture a goalie trying to make a save with no leg pads. It's hard to believe that anyone would even think about playing hockey's key position without maximum protection.

There are goalies, however, who play with very little equipment and face situations similar to those in hockey. These players are lacrosse goalies and coach Dick Garber has a pair of athletes who are capable of frustrating opposing shooters. Both UMass goalies, Jim Haddad and Bobby Durland have gained Garber's confidence and the thrust of their teammates.

According to Garber, whose stickers were ninth best in the nation last season, a lacrosse goalie faces about as many shots as a hockey netminder. Lacrosse has become a more sophisticated and more offensive-oriented game in recent years and goalers have had to stop an increasing number of shots. Just as skating ability is essential to a hockey goalie, stickhandling is a vital factor to lacrosse netminding.

The stick is the most important piece of equipment for goalies. Position is also important, but Garber tells his goalies that the stick is the first line of defense and getting your body in front of the ball comes next.

One of the reasons lacrosse goalies wear so little equipment is because they must be very mobile. Moving in and out of the net area and getting offensive plays started by running upfield or passing off is a big part of the game for goalies.

The toughest shot for a goalie to stop is the bounce shot. This is due to the fact that bounce shots are unpredictable and a goalie must be quick to get his stick down to stop the ball. "You can't tell where a bounce shot is going," commented Garber.

Lacrosse goalies must defend a larger net (the lacrosse goal is 6'X6'). Screen shots also cause problems for goalers.

The goalies in lacrosse have no catch mitt, just two regular gloves, so they can't catch the ball. The amazing thing is that lacrosse's version of a "breed apart" utilizes practically no body protection. It takes courage to step in front of a shot that you know is going to hurt, but as goalie coach O.J. Rutledge put it, "If it prevents a goal it's worth it."

Women's crew led by dedicated duo

By TERESA HANAFIN

Dedication, determination, and drive characterize the co-captains of the UMass women's crew this year. Joanne Andreas and Debbie Kirchmer epitomize the total commitment necessary to members of this team.

Joanne is a sophomore in only her second year of rowing. She opted for UMass because it was a large school with lots of opportunities. It also had her major, which is Agriculture and Food Economics. She became interested in the team through her sister Barbara, who is a senior on the team. "I never did ask her if she voted for me," joked Joanne. She feels crew is a different type of sport, one in which you really have to work together as a team or else the whole boat will be off, in timing as well as balance. "Crew is a lot of hard work," Joanne explains. "It's fun to row on the river, but it is a strenuous sport." She emphasizes that crew is not just for men. "We're not paddling around out there. We couldn't compete with men, but we can be just as competitive."

Joanne sees her role of co-captain to be that of a mediator. She would like to be available to bring to the coach any problems which team members would feel awkward about bringing themselves. "But I don't always have the answers either," she admits.

She is anxiously looking forward to a junior exchange next year to the University of Idaho where she will pursue her agricultural studies. She only regrets that Idaho doesn't have women's crew team.

Rowing on crew has become an integral part of Joanne's life. As she puts it, "If I ever had to quit crew, four o'clock would roll around, and something would definitely be missing."

Debbie Kirchmer's involvement with crew is such that she can matter-of-factly say, "I will continue to row for the rest of my life."

Her freshman year was the first year for women's crew at UMass, at which time there were twelve girls and one eightsboat. It was also Debbie's first time at trying crew, but she progressed rapidly. So rapidly that last summer she made the renowned Vesper Rowing Club of Philadelphia.

Vesper went to California and won the Nationals, and thus represented the United States as the U.S.A. Women's Rowing Team in Switzerland. They came in a disappointing last place (because of faulty equipment), but Debbie found rowing in Switzerland "just beautiful."

Debbie enjoys crew because it is something she can excel at. It is hard work, but "if you want to be good, that's the price you have to pay."

She also feels that women can be as competitive as men on the national level. "Society hasn't taught women that they can be totally dedicated to a sport," Debbie claims. "And they definitely can be."

With her record of experience and excellence behind her, Debbie's future choices after graduation this spring will be difficult ones to make. "It no longer becomes a choice of where you want to row, because if you want to be good and get noticed, you must go to where you will get the best coaching and the most exposure," she explains.

For someone who is again aiming for the Nationals, and who says about the 1976 Olympics, "Definitely — I'm shooting for it," such exposure is essential.

Rowing is not just an activity for Debbie Kirchmer. She is a totally dedicated athlete whose sport has become a part of her. "Rowing is in me. I love it. Life without rowing wouldn't be life."

Bruins, Hawks clash

BOSTON [AP] — The Chicago Black Hawks and the Boston Bruins, two fallen giants in the National Hockey League, launch a fight for survival Tuesday night in the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Hawks are coming off a third place finish behind Vancouver and St. Louis in Division II during the regular season, while the Bruins wound up a distant second to Buffalo in Division IV.

The Bruins enter the best-of-three series winless in their last seven games. They managed just four ties down the stretch finishing in a 4-4 deadlock with Toronto in the regular season finale.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Thursday in Chicago. A third, if necessary, will be played in Boston Friday night.

Sox opener today; face Aaron, Brews

BOSTON [AP] — Hank Aaron, the greatest home run slugger in baseball history, makes his American League debut with the Milwaukee Brewers against the Boston Red Sox Tuesday in an American League opener.

Aaron, who hit 733 homers with the Braves in Milwaukee and Atlanta before electing to finish his playing career with the Brewers, will be the team's designated hitter, taking aim on Fenway Park's famed left field wall after the usual opening game ceremonies.

The Red Sox will counter with their own "new" attraction, Tony Conigliaro. Tony C., out of baseball for 3½ years but only 30, will be Boston's designated hitter after winning the job in the final days of Florida training. Conigliaro began his career in Boston in 1964 and the next year became the youngest ever to win the American League home run championship.

With Aaron as team leader, the Brewers have high hopes this year, with some club officials predicting a penant. Manager Del Crandall is more cautious, but says "We'll be the most exciting club to represent Milwaukee since the team's move from Seattle in 1970."

While the brewers were playing .500 ball with a 12-12 exhibition record, the Red Sox had preseason troubles, compiling an 11-20 mark in Florida.

audio loop
STEREO TAPES
8-track & cassettes
• over 1000 rock & popular titles
• only $1.99 each
• free brochure
write: AUDIO LOOP CO.
DEPT. 542 P.O. BOX 43355
CLEVELAND, OHIO 44143

PERSONAL GROWTH THROUGH MOVEMENT
Summer Group
8 Week — $45.00
Call 628-3367 in p.m.

UMass Sportsline 5-2210

UMASS SOPHOMORES

IF YOU –

- Possess qualities of initiative, intelligence, and high ideals.
- Are self-disciplined and willing to set the example.
- Want to join an elite group of people who are developing leadership abilities.

AND IF YOU QUALIFY –

- Leadership training begins this summer.
- You will receive $100.00 per month during your Junior and Senior years.
- Plus a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve.

YOU SHOULD –

- Get the facts about the two-year Army ROTC program.
- Drop by the Department of Military Science (located between Boyden Gym and Southwest) or call 545-2321 or 2322.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO GET THE FACTS.

18,000 readers see MDC classifieds — try them they work!

SPRING SALE
APRIL 1 thru 15
33½% off on all
Plants and Accessories
Pots — Seeds — Soil — Etc.
Willowbrook Gardens plants & flowers
pottery
23 East St., Granby
467-2641
Amherst Carriage Shops
549-1493 — 235 No. Pleasant St.

Racquets were flying

Netmen dropped, 5-4

By BILL EDELSTEIN

The stiff wind that blew through Boyden courts yesterday during UMass 5-4 loss to Tufts managed to accomplish two things; any lob that left any racquet was guaranteed to land any place on (or frequently off) the playing surface, and the people who braved the frosty weather quickly discovered which way the air was moving as the breeze from the barns was almost as overpowering as a Bill Karol service ace.

Karol was the UMass standout in the match just as he was in the Boston University practice meeting last Wednesday when he was victorious at court one (you might call that the "supreme court" ... then again, you might not). Bill played number three yesterday, though, and won convincingly, 6-1, 6-4. In the first set, Karol took games one through four, while allowing his opponent only two points. By the start of game five, Bill's adversary was reduced to talking to himself and suggesting obscene activities to his racquet while he flung said racquet about the playing area.

Captain Chris Post garnered second court for the Minutemen, coming out on the right end of a 7-6 tie-breaker and then splitting the next two sets, 4-6, 6-2, for his victory. After one extended rally in the premiere set which was finally botched by Post's opposition, another Jumbo racquet took to the air. It performed a perfect triple somersault with a one and one half twist (difficulty factor — 2.9) before clattering to the concrete (besides being good tennis players, the Tufts' folks were also expert racquet throwers — the toss scored an 8.5).

Barnaby Kalan nailed down court four for the racqueteers (although it was already well attached to the ground) with a comeback effort, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"Barnaby was really down after losing his last match (Wednesday; B.U.)," said coach Kozakowski. "And I think this has got to help him a lot." He's participating in a bunch of outside activities, so I'm not getting 100 per cent from him, but whatever I do get, I'm thankful for; he's a very good tennis player."

Kevin Garahan was overwhelmed on first court, while Marc Ouellet and Dave Abramhoff dropped five and six respectively.

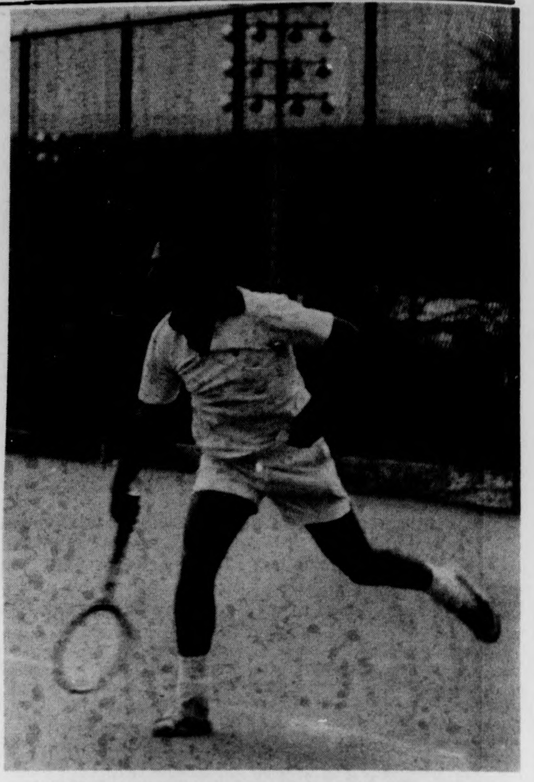
Ouellet took a tough opponent to a tie-breaker in the final and deciding set before succumbing.

The competitors then caught their second winds before the doubles matches (even though one wind scented with the barnyard aroma was bad enough).

The duo of Abramhoff-Kalan took third doubles in straight sets of 6-1, 7-5, but the sextets-minus-four of Garahan and Tom Doyle (first doubles) and Karol-Ouellet (second doubles) were both defeated (4-6, 5-7 and 0-6, 2-6).

"Our doubles let us down," Kozakowski lamented.

TUFT TIMES — Coach Kozakowski stated that, in his opinion, the wind made no difference in the outcome of the match. "The weather conditions were the same for both teams," the coach stated ... The Jumbos' fifth court performer, Tod Kaufman, debated coming to beautious Amherst to donate his talents to UMass when he came out of high school, but he chose Tufts, claiming that UMass was too big. "It's a shame that Kaufman didn't decide on UMass," Kozakowski reflected. "He's a hustler.' ... The racqueteers will search for their first victory today versus Amherst at home (3:00) in a make-up, make-up match ... UMass didn't play Amherst last year in a regular season match; the Minutemen though, were defeated last annum by Amherst in a practice encounter.



Staff Photo by Jay Sarat

Captain Chris Post watches his rally after he just smashed the ball. Chris won the second court yesterday, but the team lost to Tufts, 5-4.

Successful women gymnasts to have difficulty next year

By BILL DOYLE

After finishing second this past weekend in the women's national gymnastics championships, UMass has placed fourth, first, third, and second in the nationals over the last four years, but the team may be hard pressed to do well next year.

Mike Kasavana, assistant coach of the UMass women's gymnastics team for five years, announced that he probably won't be returning next year as coach.

Kasavana has been at UMass for ten years including his four years as an undergraduate, two of which he captained the men's gymnastics team and one year as men's coach.

He is considered an excellent coach with a special ability for spotting gymnasts during their routines.

He explained that there will be no position for him in his field, Hotel and Restaurant Management, so he must reluctantly leave UMass to obtain a teaching position.

He said that Michigan State has offered him a position and that he probably would take it.

Head coach, Virginia Evans, said that as in the case of all teams losing coaches, UMass will miss Kasavana.

Kasavana isn't the only one leaving the team, as four year All-American Jeannine Burger, Gail Hannan, and Marian Kulick are all graduating, and exchange student Ann Olson is returning to Oregon.

Evans said that Burger was the best woman gymnast that UMass ever had who competed in the all-arounds for four years.

Burger, who ended her career by finishing fourth in the nation in floor exercise last Saturday night, said that she was pleased with her performance.

"Fiinishing fourth on the floor was a good way to end four years of competing," she said. "I always liked floor the best of all the events."

Hannan and Kulick were hampered by injuries throughout their college careers. Hannan came through for the team in the Easterns though, qualifying for the finals in vaulting. She also scored an 8.75 in the nationals in vaulting.

"Gail had a good comeback year," Evans said.

Kulick never seemed to fully recover from a severe leg injury that she suffered last year, but she still started to come around at the end of this season with some good performances.

In this year's nationals, the team's four freshwomen came through with good performance.

Cheryl Smith had the best two meets of her career in the nationals and Susan Cantwell won All-American status by finishing in a fifth place tie on floor. Debbie Law impressed Evans by leading off the floor exercise with a strong routine (8.55) and Margie Magraw had her best beam score (8.55), which counted, and about her best bar routine (8.10).

A few of UMass' scores were raised after protests from Evans. Burger's floor was raised .1 to 9.15. Smith's beam was changed from 8.8 to 8.9 and Cantwell's bar score was upped from 8.5 to 8.65.

The judges worked from 9:00 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Friday and 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday, judging 188 gymnasts.

The east had three of the top five teams in the nationals.

Even though they have been practicing since September, many team members said that they couldn't wait for next year and that they would probably start working out in about a week.

Yellowjackets face UM in home opener

By STEVE SARACENO

If that low pressure area stalled over the Gulf of Maine finally moves out to sea by 3:00 this afternoon, the UMass baseball team will open its northern slate here at Earl Lorden Field vs. American International College.

Big Craig Allegrezza will start for UMass, which so far has compiled a 2-5 mark in games played down south. Allegrezza was scheduled to pitch last Saturday at Southeastern Massachusetts U., but that game went the way of iron-jaw acts, having been cancelled because of snow.

Co-captain John Healy won't start — at least not at catcher, where Jim Black will fill in. "He's not progressing," says UMass coach Dick Bergquist about Healy's shoulder ligament injury. "I may put John at designated hitter, but we'll have to see how he is tomorrow."

If the senior is at DH, then Mark Fontaine will play rightfield. If not, Fontaine will probably designate-hit, and Paul Abramowicz qill get the nod in right. "Abramowicz is listed as an infielder (usually plays short), but he can play outfield too," explains Bergquist.

At any rate, it'll be a family reunion for Minuteman reliever Jim Bedard. The AIC head coach is none other than Rich Bedard, Jim's brother.

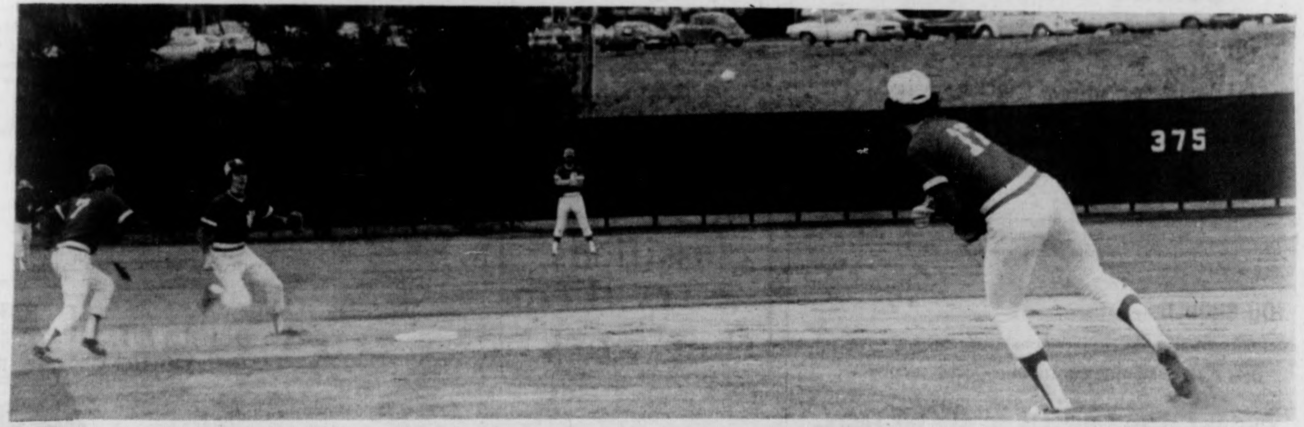
Bedard's team played the first games in New England Sunday, a doubleheader split with the University of Hartford, and he's got the players frozen ice-blocks to prove it.

The Yellowjackets used their top two lefties in the twin-bill, so a righthander, Bill Mazur, will be on the mound against Backstrom, Koperniak, Mondalto and Co.

"I was talking to Bedard (Rich) about the games Sunday," related Bergquist, "and he thought the pitching was ahead of the hitting." Of course, everyone says that in the spring, but the statement was born out by the scores — 2-0 and 4-2.

"Down south, though," Bergquist went on, "I don't think that was the case for us. But coming back north ... that's when it gets tough."

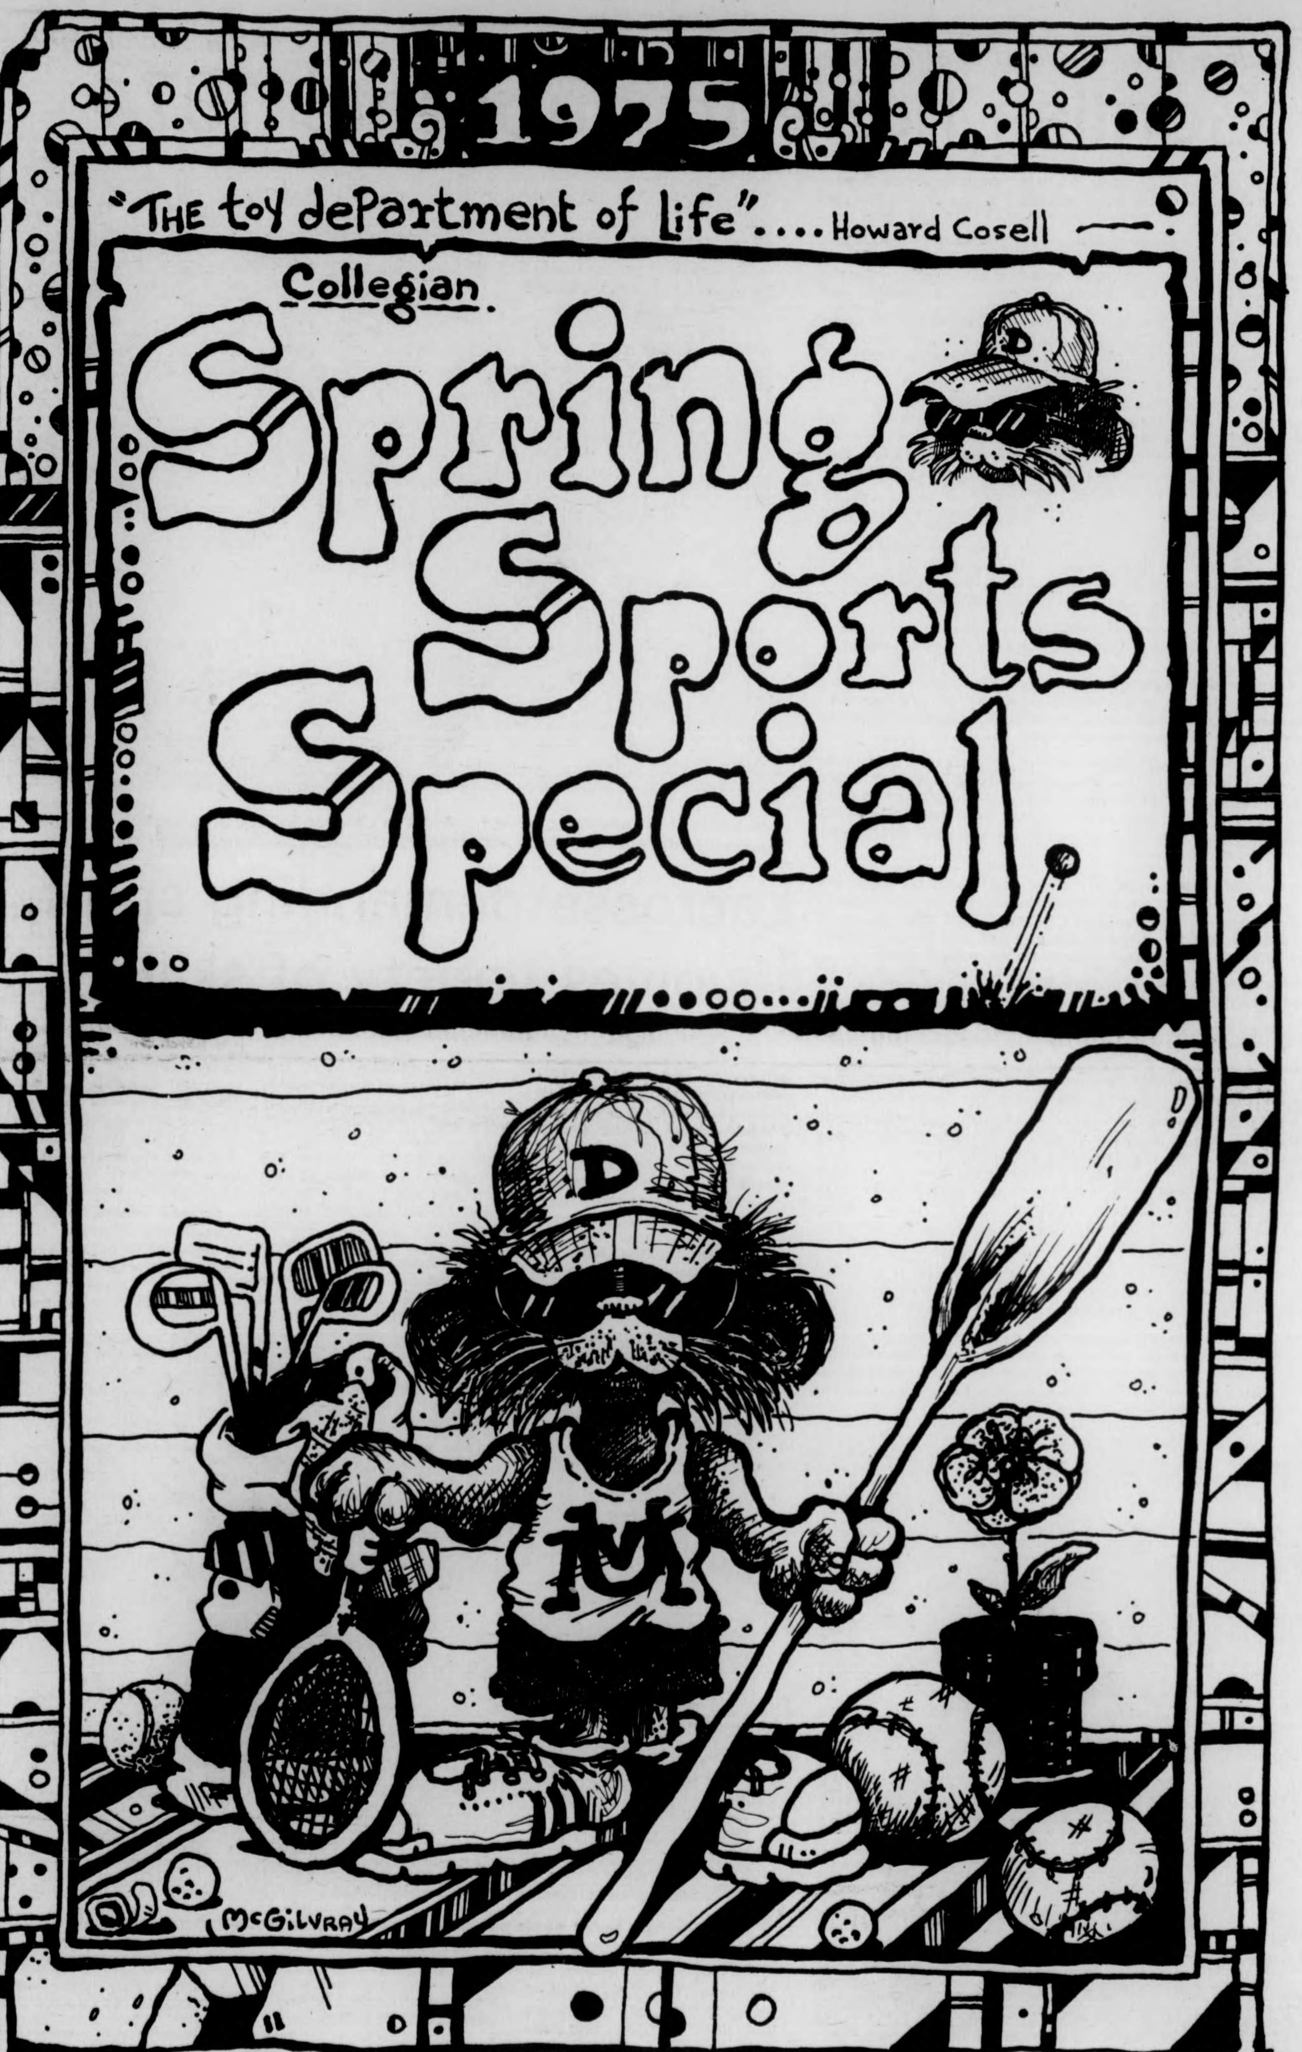
Yet, it is a bit difficult to hit a ball moving at 90 mph when the wind-chill factor is five degrees and dropping. But, if that low over the Gulf suddenly decides to mosey-on ...



Staff Photo by Stuart Eyman

Pitcher Jim Bedard practices pick-off play to second: Shortstop is Jim Cullen and runner is outfielder Steve Wright.

Collegian Supplement 4/8/75



Defending New England champs

After playoff spot

Gorillas hope to duplicate 1974

by Ben Caswell

Last year will be a tough act to follow for this year's UMass lacrosse team, but coach Dick Garber plans on being the director of a fine performance.

"This year we have similar strengths to last year's team," said Garber, "except that last year we had a lot of guys that had played together for two years and this year we have a lot of guys that have not played together too much."

Last year's Gorillas had one of the most successful seasons in the history of UMass lacrosse. Graduation, though, cut heavily into the team's wealth of talent and you can't help but wonder what this year's team will be like.

"We lost some good ones," said Garber, "Seidman, Lally, Rutledge, Moran and McVey were all guys that were leaders on our squad last year."

People might say that this is a rebuilding year said Garber. "But we don't have time for rebuilding years. This year is this year, it's for those guys that are playing this season and we have to make the most of this one and not worry about the future," said the head Gorilla.

The depth that keynotes this year's lacrosse squad may make up for the players unfamiliarity with each other.

At attack Jeff Spooner, a stand-out as a freshman, (50 goals, 23 assists) is back. Spooner teamed well last season with Harry McVey, another stand-out, who did not return to school this year. Peter Connolly, a three year veteran will add some experience to the offense.

New to the attack corps are Bill O'Brien, a transfer from Nassau Junior College, Kevin Patterson, a massive sophomore and Paul Martin, a freshman from Needham.

O'Brien is a fast moving, quick stick, sharp passer that may take up the slack left in the goal-setting up department by McVey's departure. Patterson should be a premier goal scorer with the combination of his size and unusually good moves for a man that big.

Frank Garahan also was not a member of last year's team although he is by no means a newcomer to UMass lacrosse. Garahan was the leading scorer two years ago for the Gorillas but sat out last season with eligibility hassles. Frank should prove to be an important cog in the Gorilla scoring machine this season with his experience of previous years and his great scoring touch in the crease.

The Gorillas greatest depth is at midfield. John Martin, Bill Arnold and Bill Collins did make up one unit until Collins' injury in Saturday's game. Terry Keefe, Vinnie LoBello and Steve Pappas are still playing together after a very successful freshman season as a unit. And Gene Hardiman, Andy Scheffer, and Mike Lettera comprise another midfield team.

"I don't consider any one of the midfield units our number one unit, which ever unit is doing the job that day will be playing," said coach Garber.

Collins, Keefe and Hardiman are the respective face-off and crease middies of each of their units. Arnold and Martin get their share of the scores on their shift while Pappas, LoBello, Scheffer, and Lettera are in those roles on other units.

On defense the Gorillas have "really looked good" according to coach Garber. Bill Blaustein, an all-New England for three years, lead the defense with his fine one-on-one play. Curt Olsen and Ken Michaud are the other two Gorillas that play with Blaustein. Other defensemen include Rich Donovan (who has played real well in preseason, says Garber), John McCarthy, an experienced crease defenseman, Tim Murphy, who played well last year and just rejoined the team after recovering from a broken leg; Dick Carnall, Dave Pattison, Bob Morse and Walter Foley.

In goal, the Gorillas will probably utilize the services of both Bob Durland and Jim Hadaad and it is hopeful that they can fill the hole left by John O. J. Rutledge who is now assistant coaching the stickers.

This year's schedule will prove to be as tough as last year's. The Gorillas started out their season in similar style to last year, losing their first two games to tough competition. Last season they then went on to win the last eleven games of the year and win the New England championship in a last second effort against Brown University.

Similar occurrences this year wouldn't bother coach Garber a bit. But as he says, "We don't set goals, we'll hope to do the best that we can and wherever that takes us that's where we'll be."

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

A battle of the eighteens — Jeff Spooner is checked by Big Greener Bob Farmer. Spooner had a goal and three assists in the Gorillas 22-4 demolition of Dartmouth.

Staff Photos by Dan Smith

Number 23 Steve Pappas and Number 20 Vinnie LoBello chase after a loose ball in Saturday's action against Dartmouth.

Lacrosse demanding sport; involves variety of skills

by Mike Berger

Lacrosse isn't your ordinary game. It's, as described by sophomore attackman Jeff Spooner and roommate sophomore mid-fielder Vinny LoBello as, the fastest and one of the toughest games on foot. "Lacrosse involves the open field hitting of football and the finesse of basketball, using such strategy as picks and screens."

New York is the home of developing lacrosse players witnessed by the fact that there are 16 out of 32 players on the varsity team from New York. And to perhaps prove a point that athletes that come out of Long Island aren't just baseball players (Carl Yastremski), or basketball players (Julius Erving or Al Skinner) comes sophomore attackmen Jeff Spooner.

Scoring is nothing new to Jeff. Beginning in his sophomore year as an attackmen, he accumulated 45 total points. In his junior and senior years, he scored 72 and 122 total points respectively. Already this past season, Jeff opened up with three goals against nationally ranked Cornell and two against Hofstra.

Although Jeff is quick to point out that attackmen are "the glory guys" in lacrosse, he also admits that a lot of the credit should also be given to midfielders Bill Arnold, Steve Pappas, John Martin, Terry Keefe and Vinny LoBello.

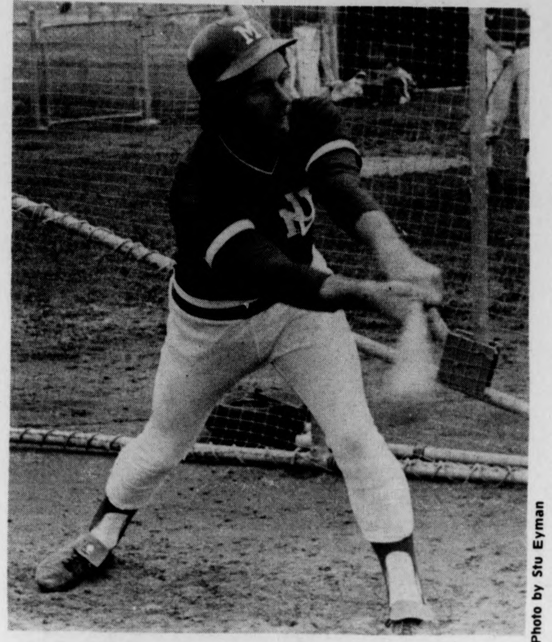
For it is the midfielders who have to play two ends of the field both offensively and defensively.

What is quite impressive about Jeff is that as a freshman, he achieved the feat of scoring 50 goals and 23 assists in a season. These statistics were good enough to place Jeff the honors of being named All New England, second in most goals in a season by a UMass lacrossemen and 8th alltime in career goals.

But what was especially notable through the interview was the enthusiasm that Jeff and Vinny had for the social benefits that the game offers. Both admitted that the greatest group of people that both have met have been associate with lacrosse. Vinny adds, "If yo see someone with a lacrosse stick no matter if his is on your team c not, you go and talk with hi Everybody's friendly."

Midfielder Terry Keefe pursues the ball and a Dartmouth defender as attackman Bill O'Brien moves up to help out. Both will be key factors in the Gorillas NE title quest.

Baseballers can go nowhere but upward



Staff Photo by Stu Eyman

Different strokes for different folks....several new players at new positions will try to improve on last year's 9-16 record.

by Steve Saraceno

Last season, the UMass baseball team slid from superiority to inferiority, by-passing mediocrity, in compiling the worst record of recent years — a dismal 9-16. What's more, the Minutemen failed to win a game in the Yankee Conference, going oh-for-eight.

Twelve lettermen are returning from the squad, but that raises the biting question: "Is this necessarily good?" More on this later.

One letterman, however, is not returning. Ron Beaurivage, the excellent first baseman who led the club in everything, passed up his senior season to sign with Oakland.

Two other key lettermen are question marks.

The first is catcher co-captain John Healy, who two years ago was All-Yankee Conference as a sophomore. Poor Healy. First, it was found he had only one kidney, and it took nearly an Act of Congress for him to be allowed to play last year. Then he suffered a hand injury which hampered play somewhat. And this year, he's having shoulder miseries.

"He's taking cortisone for it now," says coach Dick Bergquist. "He's going to need surgery for the ligaments sooner or later, but we're gonna try to nurse him through this season, since it is his last year."

Jim Black, a 6'5" junior, has filled a capably to date as catcher, and should the injury jinx extend, junior Bob Moore is back-up.

The second key question mark is second baseman Mike Koperniak, who had an off-year in 1974 after being switched to shortstop, where he made 15 errors and dropped 45 percentage points from his sophomore batting average.

Still, Koperniak hit .300 and was named All-YanCon as well as third-string All-New England. This year he's back at second base in the Minuteman "New Look" infield, combining with sophomore shortstop Jim Cullen ("an exceptional arm" — Bergquist).

At first base is junior John Seed, switching from third where he hit .284 last year. So far, Seed is one of the few Minutemen hitting.

And at third is junior Jerry Mondalto (whom you might remember as a halfback on the football team), making the change from second base. "The fellas call him 'Sal', after Sal Bando of the A's," says Bergquist. "Jerry does look like Bando, except he's not as big." And Bergquist hasn't pulled a Finley and offered to sell Mondalto for $2 million either.

In the outfield, co-captain Pete Backstrom has made centerfield the most solid position on the team. Last year he hit .294 and stole 14 bases in 25 games. This year he's hitting well over .300.

"Yes, he's been meeting the ball well," says Bergquist. "And he's following breaking pitches especially well."

The other two outfield positions are manned by juniors Mark Fontaine (who with Backstrom comprise the only lefty batters on the squad), and Steve Wright.

"Wright has paid his dues with two years on the jayvees," says the coach. "He showed some power down south, and should be a good No. 2 hitter."

As far as the designated hitter is concerned, it probably won't be just one man all the time. Craig Allegrezza could DH when he's not hurling, or it could be the back-up infielders Joe Marzilli and Paul Abramowicz, or whoever might be the No. 2 catcher at the time.

For pitching situation, see story elsewhere on page????????.)

Pitching staff has to improve for UMass to better record . . . . staff has the potential

By Steve Saraceno

When the Great Bullpen Catcher up there in the sky made people, he didn't design them for throwing hard sliders, or even hanging curves — at least not without ill effects. So it's no surprise that pitching is one of the most unnatural physical activities in sport.

Hence came the Minutemen pitching woes last year — arm trouble from two main cogs, John Olson (since departed) and Craig Allegrezza. That was much of the reason for the club's 9-16 showing. The rest was that the staff had a combined ERA 5.24, so it's astonishing UMass even won as many as nine.

This year, the 6'5, 230 lb. junior Allegrezza is back and intact, along with the two other workhorses from 1974, sophomore Jeff Reardon and junior John McManus.

Allegrezza had a decent southern trip (three earned runs in eleven innings), but the big question is his arm. "He's not getting any pain from it," says Coach Dick Bergquist. "In fact, as far back as last summer when Craig played in the Cape league, he was throwing well. Many people who saw him down there said he looked good."

It was no secret last year that some members of the squad were dissatisfied with the way Bergquist kept starting Reardon (1-4 3.95 ERA), McManus (4.73) and Allegrezza even after it had become apparent they weren't doing the job. This year, of course, it'll be the same three as the nucleus of the staff.

"All I've got to say," comments Bergquist with a shrug, "is that when you lose, everybody grumbles. When you win, they can't grumble. I just hope our staff can be more consistent this year."

And that will be tougher, because there is not a lefthander to be found on the staff...unless you count freshman Rick Kelly as one. But of course, you silly bird, he only bats left and still throws righthanded.

Anyway, on the frosh Kelly and Pete Rankowitz (also a tight end on the frosh football squad) have impressed Bergquist enough to be kept on the varsity roster, and will undoubtedly see their share of the action.

Rounding out the seven-man staff are sophomore Jerry Erb, who throws curves at you all day, then throws more curves at you, and Jim Bedard (up from two years of JV ball), who has among other things, a knuckler that is absolutely scary.

The outlook in a nutshell? "Let me just put it this way," says Bergquist. "I'll be disappointed if we go 9-16 again."

And even if it is like Lincoln saying he'll be disappointed if the Union forces keep performing like they did at Bull Run, it's undeniably logical and a feeling shared by just about everyone concerned.

Staff Photo by Stu Eyman

John McManus, (above), is counted upon this season to provide depth for the Minuteman baseball team. McManus, Allegreza and Reardon will be the workhorses of the squad this year.

Coach Bergquist an optimist - "our team should be a winner"

By STEVE TETRAULT

UMass baseball coach Dick Bergquist is an optimistic person. "We won the Yankee Conference in 1967, 1969, 1971, and 1973, so I figure we must have an odd-year thing going here," he says.

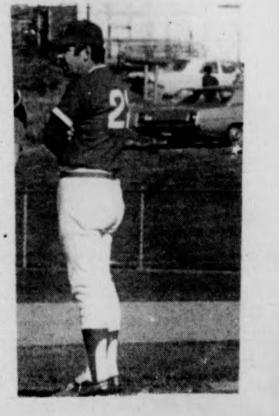
Since winning the YanCon baseball crown in his freshman year as varsity coach in 1967, Coach Bergquist has accumulated a record of 133-82. Last year's 9-16 record marked his first loosing season. In order to avoid that this year, Bergquist worked his pitchers harder than usual during spring training.

Although coaching is his main job, Bergquist is an active person around the calendar. According to the coach, he is President of the New England College Baseball Association and a member of several national baseball committees and federations. He was chosen to head coach a US national team in an international baseball tournament to be held in Canada this summer.

Bergquist supervises the fall baseball program at the University and spends his winters travelling to high schools for recruiting purposes. Although financial help to baseball players is limited (one scholarship), Bergquist sells the University to prospective players by emphasizing a vigorous schedule, about 20 fall games, and a trip South in the spring. He admits that his various baseball contacts out, and he frequently keeps track of summer leagues when schools out.

Bergquist and his staff, have sent seven players into pro ball, including two who played in major leagues camps this spring, Mike Flanagan with the Orioles and Bob Hansen with the Brewers. Bergquist's staff this year includes graduate assistant Phil Rollins and JV coach Jeff McKay.

Fan support was disappointing last year according to Bergquist. He attributes this to the fact that the baseball field is isolated in a corner of the campus and to the fact that the team simply did not play winning ball. He says that, hopefully, the team will be a winner this spring. Besides bringing home another YanCon crown, it will keep the odd-year superstition intact.



Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

Coach Dick Bergquist — four Yankee Conference titles in his eight year tenure as UMass baseball coach.

Ovalmen attempt to defend NE title

by Scott Hayes

"Youth keeps experience honest and experience keeps youth honest." — Ken O'Brien.

Balance should be a key word throughout the outdoor track season. The Minutemen appear to have a near-equilibrium that includes an ideal combination of youth and experience, depth and individual excellence. Team depth may be a critical factor as the trackmen will be up against one of the toughest schedules in recent years. There will be no breaks or easy meets during the season according to Coach Ken O'Brien, whose tracksters will face tough opposition week after week for the duration of the schedule. "We face the same teams as we have in the past, but most of them have really improved," explained O'Brien.

Several added events that were not part of the indoor meet format should aid the trackmen, who will be led by tri-captains Mike Geraghty, Tom Beland and Steve Crimmin. These different events include the discus, javelin, six-mile run, steeplechase, 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes.

UMass has four strong discus throwers in George Ennis, John Willis, Steve Mason and Tom Lonergan. Mason placed in the Yankee Conference meet a year ago and Lonergan was the top weightman of the indoor season.

In the javelin, Jim Shea, Todd Holt, Bob O'Neil and Kevin Hall compose a quartet of solid throwers. Shea captured third place in last year's YanCon meet while Holt was the New England runnerup as a high school senior. The six-mile and the steeplechase are not a part of the dual meet program, but are held on the championship level.

The team's group of sprinters, which is "longer-sprint oriented," according to O'Brien, should be helped by the longer sprints of the outdoor meets — the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes. Toney Pendleton and the rest of the spring corps will probably contribute to the squad's success with stronger performances.

This years's track team is similar to the 1974 UMass squad that compiled a 7-2 record, won the Boston College Relays and won the first New England title in school history. O'Brien does feel, however, that his present team is a little stronger, deeper and has a few more outstanding individuals.

The team's strengths lie in the distance events. One of the leading distancemen, Paul Segersten, graduated last May but a group of fine freshmen runners should more than compensate for his departure.

In fact, there were only two other seniors on last season's track squad and O'Brien believes he has a better group of freshmen competitors this spring.

The jumping events should be another strong point for the Minutemen. Pendleton, Bob and Ken Adamson, Joe Martens and Rusty Kendall combine to give UMass a stable jumping crew. The pole vault, once a major weakness for UMass track, is vastly improved due to a foursome of vaulters. Eric Gudmand, Dan Grigus, Ted Powers and Jay Grammolini provide the trackmen with scoring potential in their respective event.

The 440-yard dash should be a very strong event for O'Brien and his charges. Crimmin, Curt Stegerwald, Martens, Mark Healy and John Richards give the team a talented collection of quarter-milers. Stegerwald is an experienced hurdler and Healy and Richards are expected to see some hurdling action as well.

The majority of trackmen were members of the indoor squad which was fairly successful, winning the Yankee Conference championship and finishing with a 4-3 mark. The success will probably carry over to the outdoor season and although UMass is not the most talented team in New England, it should give all its opponents a run for their money.

O'Brien — success a habit

by Scott Hayes

Track coach Ken O'Brien believes that as a coach you have to try to instill a high but relatively realistic goal of achievement within each particular individual. His philosophy is correct, especially if a coach's success is measured by his team's performances.

O'Brien, a native of Foxboro, won 13 letters in football, basketball, baseball and track as well as captaining all four sports during his senior year at Foxboro High. While an undergraduate at UMass he was a top performer on the cross country squad that won three consecutive conference titles and the New England Championship in 1961. He was an outstanding track competitor and his 1:52.7 conference half-mile record stood for ten years. O'Brien served as track coach at the University of Bridgeport for one year and returned to UMass as an assistant coach. The knowledgeable O'Brien was named head coach in 1967 and was named New England Coach of the Year in Track and Cross Country in 1971-72 and Cross Country Coach of the Year in 1973. He has compiled an impressive record of 55-20-2 as cross country coach and his harriers have gained national recognition over the past two seasons. His 1974 track squad captured the first New England title in school history and also won the Boston College Relays en route to a 7-2 dual meet record.

Profile

"You have to keep them striving for goals so they learn more than just taking part in track," commented O'Brien in reference to his relationship with team members. "You have to take into account the mental and physical requirements of each event. The individual skills and characters are different as well," stated the UMass coach.

O'Brien assumes most of the responsibilities of running the track program himself, but receives help from Mike Muska, a graduate student.

Track presents multiple problems from a coaching standpoint because of the size of the team and the amount of time required to do an adequate job of coaching. "A coach interested in people can overcome problems," added O'Brien. You have to relate the differences in events to the kids. You never really seem to find enough time for an individual unless you have a large staff," O'Brien continued.

O'Brien feels that the ideal coaching set-up for a track team would be to have four coaches. There would be one coach for sprints and hurdles, one for the jumping events, one for the throwing events and a middle distance and distance coach.

Ken O'Brien

Photo by Mike Gillen

Staff Photo by Joe Martins

Jim Shea, the track team's leading javelin thrower, limbers up in preparation for his specialty.

Freshmen add strength

by Mike Berger

If you see coach Ken O'Brien clutching his head or complaining about migraine headaches, ask him what type of headache he has. If he says Excedrin number 189, go no further. For this is the headache of having an extremely talent-laden freshman group and wondering who to run in each event.

For starters, in the decathlon, Track's premier event which requires entrees to be in superb condition, coach O'Brien has two promising freshmen in Todd Holt and Joe Martens. Martens is known for his indoor seven-foot high jumping and for his record-tying 5:4 clocking in the 50-yard dash. Coach O'Brien notes that Martens had done a 9:6 100, a 22 second and 48.6 440 in highschool. From Attleboro, comes Todd Holt who achieved a 200-foot (UMass freshman record is 191-8& ¼) javelin throw in high school. In addition Holt has shown good speed and durability with his performance as a cornerback on the varsity football team this year.

According to Coach O'Brien, Holt in addition to George Ennis will add much needed strength in the throwing events for the outdoor team. Ennis was the leading discus thrower in New Jersey consistently throwing in the 175-178 foot region.

Formerly, Dan Grigus held the outdoor record of 14 feet in the pole vault. However, O'Brien expects both Ted Powers and Marty Clevenger to break that perhaps before the end of the season. Both have cleared 13-6 in high school.

To complement the like of upperclassmen Toney Pendleton,L Larry Whitfield, and Tom Beland in the 100, 220 and 110-relay comes first year men Russ Coffey, Dave Hinds, Doug Frazier, and Todd Bausely.

For Coach O'Brien, Excedrin headache 189 could possibly be one of those persistent but pleasant headaches that lasts for four years.

COLLEGETOWN
BARBER SHOP
183 No. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-9884

EVEN RK
THE WORLD'S BEST PRODUCTS ARE NOT FOR EVERYONE

IF YOUR HAIR HAS THE WINTER BLAAAS LET US PROGRAM IT FOR THE SUMMER SEASON

NEW DISCOVERIES ARE BEING MADE THROUGH YOUR HAIR PROFESSIONALS. STOP IN AND TALK WITH HAL AND PREPARE FOR A SWINGING SUMMER SEASON

RK
SCIENTIFIC HAIR CARE CENTER

Hal of C'Town

Labels for Less

"fine fashions at reasonable prices"

Amherst Carriage Shops

Golfers look to Nationals

Eastern titleists optimistic

by Ron Arena

After an inspiring fall season in which they captured the New Englands and shared the Eastern title, the UMass golf season approaches the spring campaign with high hopes. With every member of the fall squad returning, their sights will be focusing on the Nationals at Ohio State.

Qualifications for the Nationals will not be until the second week of May, and the squad has a long season in front of them before worrying about competing in the NCAA Championships. However, with the potential there, a National appearance seems likely. Claims Coach Fan Gaudette, "We have players capable of playing on a national level."

Any doubts of that were erased last fall. The golfers initiated their season with an impressive win in the Toski Invitational Intercollegiate championship, consisting of twelve colleges.

They placed second out of ten teams in the Western Connecticut State Golf tournament.

Then, in an incredible performance, UMass won the New England championship by a runaway 22 strokes. Fourty-two teams comprised of 210 golfers entered the tournament, so the results clearly reflect the Minutemen talent. Also, Rick Olsen became the first Minuteman to win the New England individual golf championship since 1957.

The ECAC was the next UMass hurdle, and they cleared it with another great performance, trying Yale for the title. Said Gaudette after the match, "These kids stay together, and get along great. There are no individual stars. Each and every man can carry the load."

Captain Joe Artman and Howie Terban will pace the balanced squad this season. Both seniors, they will be sharing the one-two position throughout the campaign.

Rounding out the top five will be John Lasek, Tom Toski, and Rick Olsen. In tournament play, each team plays five players, but in regular season play, seven are played. The next two spots will then be filled from the rest of the squad: seniors Dave Grochmal, Paul Feeney, and Blaine Samson, junior Tim Kurty; or sophomores Jim Moriarty, Jim Haggerty, and Bill Locke.

Tough teams on this year's schedule, according to Coach Gaudette, will probably be Dartmouth (in a four-team match with Amherst and WPI) and Salem State (in the Salem State Tournament). Also, they have a tri-match with Yale as one of the opponents.

One amazing fact about the team is that their success has come without the major recruitments of other schools. Gaudette explained that only a couple golfers were recruited each year, as compared with a school like Temple, which had twelve golfers on full scholarships. Even with all their recruits, Temple was beaten by UMass in the ECAC.

Senior Dave Grochmal (above) and Howie Terban (below) will pace the Minuteman golf squad along with Joe Artman (right). The first match at home for the team will be this afternoon against Rhode Island.

Staff Photos by Stu Eyman

JOE ARTMAN

Artman labeled

by Jay Luppold

UMass golf captain Joe Artman is one of those guys who some people may describe as "yeh, well the reason he's such a good golfer is because he grew up down South and that's all they do down there".

Well, Joe Artman is a very fine golfer but as far as the above stereotypical excuse is concerned, it would be more appropriate to say that the talents of this senior linkster would have emerged sooner or later if he had grown up in Anchorage, Alaska.

Presently calling his hometown Grenwich, Conn., Artman's childhood itinerary resembles that of a fugitive fleeing from the law: Tulsa, Okalahoma; Dallas, El Paso, Albuquerque, and Framingham, Mass before landing at UMass.

"When we were in New Mexico we lived on the edge of Albuquerque where if you looked across the street you wouldn't see anything but cactus for 65 miles. So I'd just go across the road and whack the ball in the dirt all the time, and it was the same way in Oklahoma", Artman explained.

This is Artman's fourth year as a varsity golfer and his third semester as captain of the best golfers in New England.

As captain Artman thinks of last year as the best in his four year stint when the UMass team won the New Englands with a team cumulative edge of 22 strokes over the nearest runnerup, but it wasn't his best personal year.

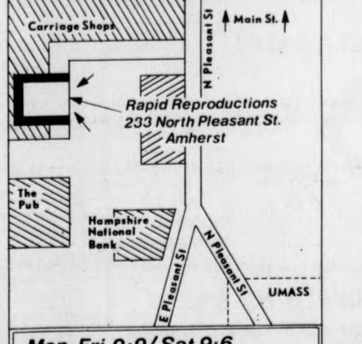
"I was quite erratic last semester and last year, I don't think I was playing and concentrating enough on my golf game", he said

But he still was the team MVP last year as well as the year prior, when as a sophomore Artman had his best year. He qualified for the ECAC finals in Dartmouth with a 74 and then went on to Cooperstown where he finished ten strokes behind the winner.

In addition, even though Artman had an erratic campaign UMass still won three tournaments (NE's, ECAC's, Hickory Ridge Invitational). He was still effective enough to place 3rd in the YC for individual standings.

Artman attended high school at Framingham South in Massachusetts and captained the golf team there to three straight league titles in the Bay State League (one of the best school-boy leagues in the state). Among other accomplishments to his credit Artman played in the Portacup (2nd largest amateur tourney in the country) where he narrowly missed qualifying for the finals. He is the Club champ at Bruce C.C., his home course, and last year he won the Tournament of Club Champions in Connecticut equivalent to the state title.

Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing



Mon-Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6
Sun 11-7
549-0566

Rapid Reproductions
Quality Xeroxing
High Grade Thesis Reproduction
BOND PAPER · RECEIVE YOUR COPIES BY AN ASSURED DATE

CLEAN
CONCISE CORRECT
COPIES

Call in advance and reserve a date for your copying: 549-0566
Amherst Carriage Shops
233 No. Pleasant St., Amherst
Mon Fri 9-9/Sat 9-6/Sun 11-7

Tennis Rackets

Tennis Balls

Baseball Gloves

Frisbees

at

A. J. Hastings

Newsdealer and Stationer

45 S. Pleasant St.
Amherst

Breakfast Special
24 HRS.

Juice
2 Eggs 99c
Home Fries
Coffee

Also — Sandwiches, Dinners, and Creamy Rich Country Style Ice Cream

— No Artificial Flavors —

Tues.-Sat., 24 Hours
Sun and Mon. till 11 p.m.

168 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst

253-2291
Take Out Service

The One, The Only

BART AUTO

Paint & Body Specialists

When you make contact — contact us.

- Foreign and Domestic collision work
- Windshields replaced
- State license insurance estimates

Rte. 9 Belchertown

256-8712

Look for the sign.

2½ miles past Rusty Scupper on the left.

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
University of Mass. presents for students, faculty and friends.

HOLIDAY IN SPAIN

4 WEEKS $459 * 6 WEEKS $499

Prices complete per person double occupancy via on a DC-10 (a certified Supplemental Carrier).

At this AMAZINGLY LOW PRICE your trip will include:

- First class apartment-hotel accommodations and
- Round-trip jet airfare

Weekly departures from Boston and New York — June, July and August departures add $100.

Contact: 545-0500

* Effective May 1975 through April 1976.

PLISSE PRINTS

Great for cool, crisp dusters, little girl's dresses or blouses. Many floral designs to choose from. Machine wash, permanent press. 100% cotton.

35"/36" wide.

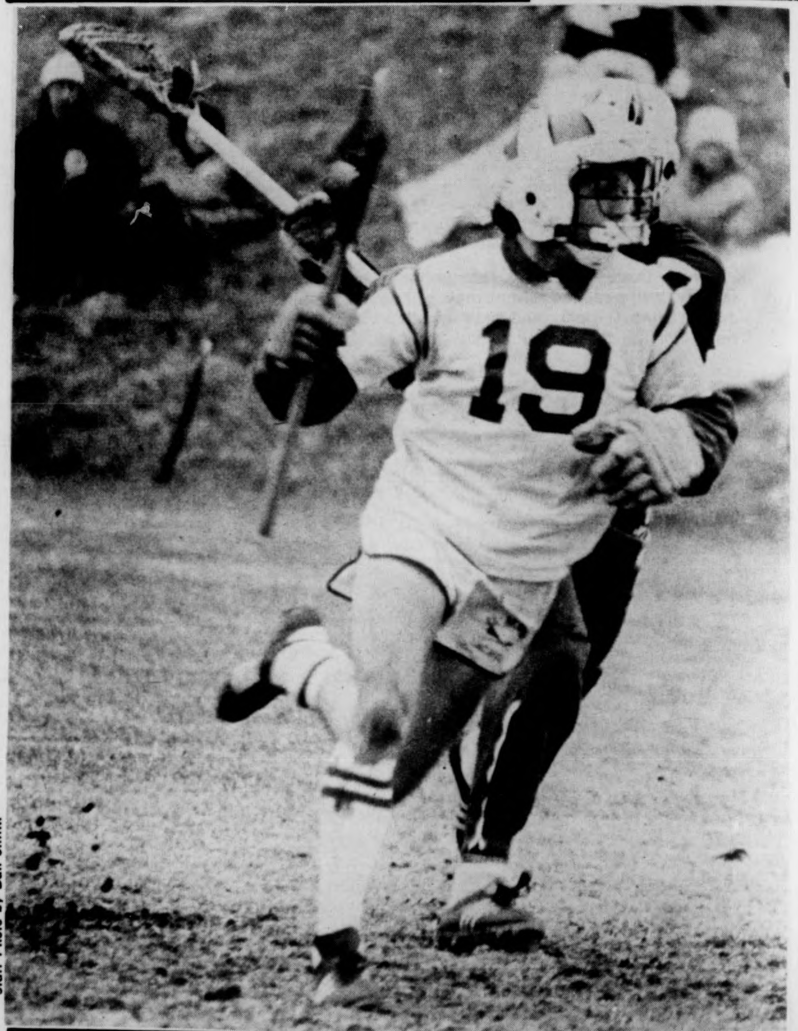
.98 YD.

SO-FRO FABRICS
always first quality fabrics

Mountain Farms Mall

Hadley
Open 10 9:30
586-1075

M-C BAC



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

½ Subs For All You Light Eaters

University Pizza

Pizza Taste

We've Improved On Our Own Recipe!

- Sound System
- Color Cable T.V.

Rich Taste — More Cheese

Come and watch the Stanley Cup Playoffs

ALL PRICES DROPPED BY 5%

(now include tax) due to a decrease in some of our food prices

Fearing St. (across from UMass Southwest dorms)
253-9363
Open from Noon Everyday Till the Wee Hours

PAUL J. LANDRY

HOURS
Mon.-Wed. 8am-9pm
Fri.&Sat. 8am-11pm
Sunday 10am-3pm

LANDRY'S MARKET
The Oldest Grocery in Amherst

711 Main St. Amherst 253-5387
On the Belchertown Bus Route
CHECK OUR WEEKLY SPECIALS
ON BEER

'75 Spring Sports

LACROSSE
Apr. 9 Cortland — Away 3:00
Apr. 16 Harvard — Away 3:00
Apr. 21 Boston College — Home 2:00
Apr. 26 Williams — Away 2:00
May 3 Univ. New Hampshire — Home 2:00
May 7 Brown — Away 3:00
May 10 M.I.T. — Away 2:00
May 14 Springfield College — Home 3:00
May 17 Middlebury — Away 2:00

TRACK
Apr. 9 Holy Cross — Away 3:00
Apr. 12 Colgate, Dartmouth — Home 1:00
Apr. 19 Boston College Relays — Boston 10:00
Apr. 25-26 Penn Relays — Philadelphia 10:00
May 3 Yankee Conference — Burlington, Vt. 10:00
May 7 U.R.I. — Home 3:00
May 10 Northeastern — Home 1:00
May 17 New Englands — Home 11:00
May 23-24 IC4A's — William & Mary, Va. 11:00

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL
Apr. 17 Bridgewater State College — Away 3:30
Apr. 22 Westfield — Home 3:30
Apr. 24 Springfield — Away 2:00
Apr. 28 Boston State — Away 3:30
Apr. 30 Southern Connecticut — Away 3:00
May 3 Keene State — Home 3:30
May 7 Smith (JV game) — Away
May 13 Springfield — Home 3:30

TENNIS
Apr. 9 Univ. Rhode Island — Away 3:00
Apr. 12 Univ. Vermont — Away 1:00
Apr. 15 Univ. New Hampshire — Away 1:30
Apr. 17 M.I.T. — Home 3:00
Apr. 18 Springfield — Away 3:00
Apr. 21 Boston College — Home 2:00
Apr. 22 Holy Cross — Away 3:00
Apr. 25-26 YanCon Championship — U. Vermont
Apr. 29 SUNY at Albany — Home 3:00
May 2-3 New England — Middlebury Vt.

BASEBALL
Apr. 8 American International College — Home 3:00
Apr. 12 Northeastern Univ. (2) — Home 1:00
Apr. 15 Boston College — Away 3:00
Apr. 16 Springfield College — Away 3:00
Apr. 19 Univ. New Hampshire (2) — Away 1:00
Apr. 22 Dartmouth College (2) — Home 1:00
Apr. 23 Holy Cross College — Home 3:00
Apr. 26 Univ. Maine (2) — Home 1:00
Apr. 30 Springfield College — Home 3:00
May 3 Univ. Rhode Island (2) — Home 1:00
May 5 Fairfield Univ. (2) — Home 1:30
May 7 Amherst College — Away 3:00
May 13 Dartmouth College (2) — Away 1:00
May 17 Univ. Connecticut (2) — Away 1:00

JUNIOR VARSITY BASEBALL
Apr. 9 Berkshire C.C. — Home 3:00
Apr. 10 Quinsigamond C.C. — Away 3:00
Apr. 16 Greenfield C.C. (2) — Home 1:00
Apr. 21 Connecticut (2) — Away 1:00
Apr. 22 Dartmouth (2) — Home 1:00
Apr. 29 Holyoke C.C. — Away 3:30
May 3 Springfield (2) — Home 1:00
May 8 Worcester Acad. — Home 3:30
May 10 Springfield (2) — Away 1:00
May 13 Dartmouth (2) — Away 1:00

GOLF
Apr. 8 Rhode Island — Home 1:00
Apr. 10 Yale, Columbia — Yale 1:00
Apr. 15 Univ. New Hampshire — Home 1:00
Apr. 17 B.C., Holy Cross-H.C. 1:00
Apr. 22 Amer. International College — Home 1:00
Apr. 23 Amherst, W.P.I., Dartmouth — Amherst 1:00
Apr. 25 YanCon at Stowe Acres, Stowe, Ma. — Home 1:00
May 2 Coast Guard — Home 1:00
May 5 Salem St. Tournament — Away 2:00

JUNIOR VARSITY LACROSSE
Apr. 16 Harvard — Away 3:00
Apr. 19 Dean Jr. College — Away 2:00
Apr. 23 Yale — Home 3:00
Apr. 30 Brown — Away 3:00
May 6 Amherst — Home 3:30

25c off any pizza with coupon

DINO'S of Sunderland

25c off any pizza with coupon

PIZZA MENU
- Tomato & Cheese
- Hamburg
- Mushroom
- Peppers
- Dino's Special

Cocktails and Wine Available!

DINNER MENU
- Spaghetti
- Chicken
- Casserole Dishes
- Steak

Rt. 47 Rt. 47
Lights
Rt. 116 N. Dino's

Expires 4-13-75
Clip Out

Expires 4-13-75
Clip Out

BONANZA mountain farms mall

"GO GET EM"

Spring Sports

Teams

We're "staking" our wager on you.

adventura travel

at the Carriage Shops, Amherst

Good Luck UMass
Spring Sports Teams from the people who make worldwide travel
EASY.

Tel. 549-1256

Buy, Sell, & Trade Used Albums

SUNSHINE RECORDS
No. 9 E. Pleasant St. (4 doors from the Pub)

tech hifi
Quality Components at the Right Price

WISHES

THE UMASS SPRING SPORTS TEAMS THE BEST OF LUCK THIS SEASON.

259 Triangle St., Amherst
549-2610

BELL'S PIZZA HOUSE
65 University Drive

PIZZA — SPAGHETTI — GRINDERS

Try some GOOD food from the GOOD sports at Bells.

Call for FAST service.

Free delivery on campus.

Call 256-8011

No. 9 E. Pleasant St. Amherst

ALL SINGLE ALBUMS $4.17 EACH
Latest Releases — Top Artists
SUNSHINE RECORDS

Garrahan, Post top netmen; potentially strong squad

by Bill Edelstein

The UMass tennis team is looking forward to another successful season despite the loss of last year's captain, Fred Brailey and the top three players: Bob Speizer (still attending the university, but he chose not to play for the team), Don Douglas (who won last year's ECAC award for scholastic and athletic excellence by sporting a 3.8 cum.) and Mark Brass (I really don't have any information to add on Mark in these parentheses, but it's only fair to give him a set too).

Court number one will be occupied by Kevin Garrahan, at the start of this campaign. Garrahan, an aggressive sophomore, "has great potential, but is a little erratic at the present time," according to Coach Steve Kosakowski.

Captain of the squad, Chris Post, will take his swats on second court for the...uh...raquetteers. Post, an exceptional athlete, used to play for the baseball team as well as the tennis squad. This is Chris' third year under coach Kosakowski.

Staff Photo by Stu Eyman

Chris Post, tennis team captain, winds up to serve.

The order of courts three, four and five is going to be hotly contested by Barnaby Kalan, Bill Karol and Marc Quellet.

Kalan, a sophomore who was a steady performer last year, is "the only one of the six singles men unproven this year," Kosakowski remarked. "If he comes along like last year, we'll have a hell of a club.

"Karol, (a freshman) is the most outstanding prospect that's ever come here," enthused the coach. "He's a real scrapper too."

A second year, transfer student, Ouellet has more experience than Karol and is an equally ferocious competitior.

Court number six will be patrolled by Dave Abramhoff, another freshman. Abramhoff never played tennis in high school and , in the opinion of Kosakowski, is a little bit impatient and tends to take bad percentage shots at this stage of his game. Obviously, if Dave doesn't like being number six, he'll have to take his case to a higher court.

Seeds for doubles teams are undecided (for although tomato and corn seeds can prosper in the spring, they grow in bunches, not pears), as are most of the doubles teams themselves. Kalan-Abramhoff is the only certain pairing, while the duos of Karol-Ouellet and Garrahan-Doyle are only probables.

"We're much stronger in doubles this year than last," stated Kosakowski. "Last year we had no strong doubles team at all."

Vermont should be the team to beat this season as its entire conference championship team is returning. The Minutemen figure to provide the strongest competition and could conceivably be Top Yankee in place of UVM.

"Most of the teams we'll play are as good as we are (both in the YanCon and out), but I think we'll be right up there for the conference title," the coach predicted.

UMass won't face UConn in a duel match this season (they'll see each other in the conference tournament) much to the dismay of coach Kosakowski.

"I'd like to play them," the coach said, smiling. "Last year's match was rained out and this year they claimed that they couldn't fit us in their schedule."

If every raquetteer performs up to potential this season, success will sit with the team so often that it (success that is) could be arrested for vagrancy.

Stats speak for 'Koz'

by Bill Edelstein

Steve Kosakowski, coach of the UMass tennis team, has a most impressive record to his credit. He has been in charge of tennis at UMass since 1949 and in 1950 his team garnered its first championship. Winning the conference title in one's second season as coach is quite an accomplishment, but the feat was even greater in that it was the first YanCon crown ever won by a UMass team. The coach has taken a slew of such championships, including six in the last eight years.

Now, all these statistics are indeed phenomenal, but the stats become even more phenomenal when one learns that coach Kosakowski is blind.

He began to lose his sight about ten years ago due to gloucoma, but still managed to take his club to those six YanCon titles in eight years. In all his annums at UMass, his teams have finished with a losing record but one season.

This is the coach's first year with an assistant (Teddy Donahue), but his decisions are still final.

Last season UMass was second in the conference, which is usually where coach Kosakowski's teams have found themselves at the end of a season when not occupying first.

"I always tell my players that we've had a poor season if we don't win the conference," said the coach.

Steve Kosakowski is a successful coach, demanding much of his players and much of himself.

IN STOCK OVER 10,267 ITEMS

BEST THING SINCE WHOLESALE

PAYSAVER DISTRIBUTORS

THE CATALOG /SHOWROOM /WAREHOUSE

Come in for a free copy of our new ....

SPRING & SUMMER CATALOG

PAYSAVER "Gold Book" CATALOG

AS SEEN ON PAGE 24

SPALDING

(B) SPALDING DAVE STOCKTON GOLF CLUBS. Endorsed by Dave Stockton Professional-style lightweight steel shafts. composition comfort grips Woods have power-ply laminated heads Irons are powerweighted for performance and power. chrome-plated heads have straight line scoring Men's right hand set

Set of 3 woods (1-3-5) 2804-13/SN 47.97

Set of 8 irons (3 thru 9; pitching wedge) 3804-18/SN 85.37

AS SEEN ON PAGE 25

SPALDING 15-1025/SN

JOHNNY PALMER 8-PIECE TOURNAMENT SET FOR HIM 52.97

Tournament set for men with 2 woods, 5 irons, sturdy vinyl golf bag. Provides beginning golfer with best equipment. Woods (#'s 1-3) have black cycolac heads, flexaction shafts. Irons (#'s 3-5-7-9, putter) have Perma-Plated chrome shafts with scientifically contoured blades; scored to USGA specs. Slip-free composition grips. Right hand.

SPALDING 15-1095/SN

TOURNAMENT QUEEN 8-PIECE SET FOR HER 52.97

Attractive golf bag and a set of perfectly matched clubs . . . an excellent choice for beginners. Two woods (#'s 1-3) have dark blue heads, gleaming chrome-finished shafts, blue rubber grips. Five irons (#'s 3-5-7-9, putter) feature carefully contoured sand-blasted blades; light-weight steel shafts; composition grips. Right hand set.

In addition to PAYSAVER LOW PRICES enjoy FACTORY REBATES on APPLIANCES from G. E., SUNBEAM and TOASTMASTER.

SPRINGFIELD
1351 MAIN ST
Daily 9 30 AM to 5 30 PM
Mon & Thur til 9 P M

WEST SPRINGFIELD
BURT'S-CENTURY CENTER
Daily 9 AM to 9 PM
SAT 9 to 5 30

HOLYOKE
1504 NORTHAMPTON ST
Daily 10 AM to 9 PM
Sat til 6 PM

NORTHAMPTON
HAMP PLAZA
Daily 10 AM to 9 PM
Sat til 6 PM

GREENFIELD
87 MAIN ST
Daily 10 AM to 6 PM
Fri til 9 PM

master charge BankAmericard

WE DEVELOP and PRINT YOUR PHOTOS FOR LESS!

Members of the UMass crew team include (left to right) Jim Bouzianis, Bill Vose, Bill Fitzpatrick, Paul Gowen, Mike Melvin, Pete Berg, Dave Fergusen, Steve Loomer and coxwain Andy Burton.

Staff Photo by Rob Carlin

Crew seeks third Dad Vail

By BOB NORTON

For the past seven months, through football and basketball seasons, out of the limelight and applause, the UMass crew team has been preparing for what promises to be its toughest and most ambitious schedule ever. The crew will face some of the nation's top crews in quest of its third straight Dad Vail title.

Last September, Bill Mahoney (Harvard's 1973 crew co-captain and fresh from the 1974 World Games), opted to take the reigns of a successful rowing program left vacant by Mike Vespoli last spring. Bringing with him a new rowing style and healthy enthusiasm, Mahoney hopes to spur UMass beyond its previous successes.

In the fall, the crew rowed many nights with flashlights taped to the bow, and in some frigid weather, adapting to the new coach and his style. After Thanksgiving they went inside; lifting weights, running the Grad-research stairs, circuit training, rowed the tank (for technique), and ergometer (rowing machine for endurance). They worked on a rigorous training program during intercession before coming back a week early for double sessions. The last week in February some forty-five oarsmen braved the last of winter when the ice broke, to row on the Connecticut River. Since then, the field has narrowed down a bit and the remaining oarsmen trek to Hadley six days a week. During spring break, when many were basking in the Florida sun, the crew stayed in Amherst as double sessions began once again (Try 7:00 a.m.!!). The crew hopes to reap the fruits of its dedication on April 5th with their first regatta against WPI and Trinity College.

In asking co-capt. Bill Fitzpatrick (one of the three seniors from the first championship eight), how this year's team differs from the past, he related that "we are rowing a lot smoother and there are many more skilled oarsmen." He added that "the fastest boats don't necessarily contain the biggest oarsmen as has been the case in the past." Co-capt. Paul Gowen agreed that "the varsity boat is smaller in size" (the varsity oarsmen average 185 lbs. and the J.V. 187 lbs.). Gowen continued that "this year's boats are more controlled and have more experienced oarsmen." He also feels that "the team will row a higher stroke," (row a higher number of strokes per minute). Coach Bill Mahoney commented that "the rowing is much improved over that of the fall." He said that "it will be difficult to determine just how fast the boats are since we haven't been able to time the boats over any 500-meter distances. This Saturday we'll know for sure." Mahoney indicated that "the rowing can be better," and hopes that the team will peak by the second week in May (Dad Vail Championship).

Overlooking the coming season, Mahoney said that "Harvard (defending National University Champion) will be the team to beat." Co-capt. Paul Gowen feels that "we should be competitive in every race and although it would be nice to beat Harvard and Northeastern, our goal is to defend the Dad Vail Championship and be invited to the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championship in Syracuse."

The crew will get a good indication of their strength before they head to the Dad Vail in Philadelphia, since they will race three top Dad Vail competitors during the regular season.

Unfortunately there will be no regattas on the Connecticut River this spring.

Drifting by... by record The UMass Crew Club has been the winningest team on campus the past two years.

Staff Photo by Rob Carlin

Men's crew squad rows on the Connecticut River.

Spousta women's crew boss

by Beth Rose

Decked out in army fatigues and shouting orders over the roar of the launch engine, Bob Spousta leads the women's crew team through another practice. Crew is not something new to Spousta, yet he is relatively new at coaching women's crew, this being only his second season. Spousta took the reins of the women's team two years ago at the urging of two members, when their coach resigned. Although he had no intention of coaching women when he came back to UMass as a grad student, neither Spousta nor the women seem to have any regrets.

Spousta attended UMass as an undergraduate from 1966-70. While attending he was a member of the wrestling team and joined the crew club as a junior. Since that time his enthusiasm and love for crew has grown. He rowed at the Union Boat Club in 1970 and while stationed in Washington, D.C. in the army in 1971 he continued rowing for the Potomac Boat Club.

1973 brought a lot of changes for Spousta and ultimately the women's crew team. It was in this year that Spousta got married, which proved to have much impact on his ability to coach. Spousta credits his wife, Dianne, for his present involvement in crew. "If it weren't for my wife I wouldn't be coaching. I don't get paid for coaching women's crew and if it weren't for her tremendous support my time would have to be spent at a 'real paying job' ".

Bob Spousta approaches coaching by, "trying to get each person to perform at their absolute best." Spousta also approaches training strategy in a somewhat unique way. Instead of working hard everyday, he alternates hard and easy practices thus placing more emphasis on the recovery process necessary for training to take place.

Like a number of other organizations on campus women's crew is hindered by an inexcusable absence of recognition and financial support by the Athletic Department.

To the uninitiated, rowing may seem monotonous, each stroke may seem like the same, but each stroke takes real concentration and control to be effective. "Eight people rowing along at full power in perfect harmony is not only a thing of beauty but generates a feeling of exhileration in the work that is unique in the sporting world." This is how Spousta feels about crew, and it is evident on the faces of the women rowing on the Connecticut everyday that they feel the same way.

Spousta who originally had no intention of coaching women's crew, plans on making coaching his career.

Staff Photo by Rob Carlin

The women's crew team, which boasts only three returning varsity members, opens its season April 12 on the Charles River.

Women's crew ready to row

by Beth Rose

"We have a very strong team, I'm very optimistic about this spring." This was coach Bob Spousta's reply when asked about the prospects of the women's crew team. "They have been working out very hard on their own, running, lifting weights, and rowing since last fall, we should do very well." Although there are only three returning varsity members from last years squad, the new women have been rowing and working out since last fall and have gained strength and confidence in rowing together.

Women's crew has improved over the last four years. Last fall they were 7th in the Eastern Sprints out of 15 and 6th in the Head of the Charles competition. Last year the women were at a slight disadvantage, they didn't know they would be racing in the spring, and consequently didn't train as hard. In previous years before they separated from men's crew and became their own club, the women only rowed in the fall on mornings when the men weren't using the equipment. This year though, things have been different, they've been working all year and have obtained some new equipment as a result of raising money through the row-a-thon. They have been going through numerous types of practices, including blindfolded practice. As the name implies, the women row blindfolded, which purpose Spousta claims is "to increase the use of other senses besides vision that will enable them to row at a higher level of efficiency."

Perhaps one disadvantage the women may have is that they still row in a shell built for men, which has a tendancy to slow them down a few seconds. "It only takes a few feet to lose a race." pointed out Spousta, "in fact we lost one by that much last year."

Looking ahead to the upcoming season, the coach says everything is aimed towards doing the best at the Eastern Sprints regatta on May 11 on Lake Beseck in Middlefield Connecticut."

Although Nationals are almost three months off, the thoughts of competing have been floating around. The biggest factor concerns expense. Spousta is willing to coach anyone who wants to go, but because some of the women may be working he doesn't think there will be more than enough for a four-woman shell.

The immediate interests of the coach and team are on the upcoming meets that commence April 12 at 9:00 and 11:00 in the morning on the Charles River. The remainder of the schedule is as follows: April 20 — On the Charles River vs. B.U. and Connecticut; April 27 — home on the Conn. vs. Dartmouth; May 3 — New England Open Championships; May 11

Buy, Sell, & Trade Used Albums

SUNSHINE RECORDS

No. 9 E. Pleasant St. (4 doors from the Pub)

New coach Elliot; returning veteran softball women set

by GREG LEVINS

Along with the arrival of spring in the Amherst area this year, a new varsity softball coach has appeared on the scene. Jackie Elliot is the person tabbed by assistant athletic director Dr. Vivian to propel the Minutewomen on to bigger and better things.

Coach Elliot is currently working on a master of science in adapted Physical Education at nearby Springfield College. Previously she had completed her undergraduate work at the University of Miami in Oxford, Ohio. While attending Miami, Jackie participated in both intercollegiate softball and a summer softball league.

After graduating from Miami, she remained in Ohio nabbing a position as coach of basketball, volleyball, track and field and swimming at an elementary school.

To improve on last years 6-3 record won't be an easy task for the first year coach, but she does feel that it is within their grasp. "We have returning some poised and skilled softball players and we only lost four members of last year team." Two of the clubs who defeated the Minutewomen last year (Bridgewater and Springfield) are scheduled in the first three games of this year so the UMass squad will be tested early.

In addition to the returning veterans Coach Elliot feels that she has some freshwomen and sophomores "with a lot of potential and skill" who could help the club greatly.

One of the things which have impressed Coac Elliot the most is the battery situation. Returning pitcher Mickey Locke and freshwomen Lu Ann Fletcher head a strong mound crew while behind the plate Barb Doucet provides UMass with a solid frontline catcher. Jackie calls Barb "tremendous, nothing gets by her and she's got a peg to second that's just great!"

Overall if the team plays as well as they look on paper Coach Jackie Elliot's first year at UMass should be a memorable one. As the enthusiastic coach put it "I'm optimistic about everything except the weather!"

Staff Photo by Stu Eyman

Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz

Rugby Football

April 12 versus UNH — home
April 19 versus Mystics — away
April 20 versus Williams — away
April 26 versus Brown — home
April 27 versus Hartford — home
May 3 versus Amherst — home
May 10 New England Rugby tournament
May 17 versus Dartmouth — away
May 31 versus Quincy — home
June 6 Portland Tournament

Golfer Rick Olson tops in NE

By JAY LUPPOLD

As the upcoming spring season opens for the UMass golf team Rick Olson, among others, has a tough act (of his own) to follow. As a junior last fall he topped the field at the New Seabury, C.C. on the Cape, leading UMass to the New England championship.

Shooting the best golf in the NE's surely has placed Olson in an expectant position where the interested on-looker will be looking at the top scores in future tournaments for his name, but at the same time, winning the NE's also topped any prior achievements by the Dedham, Mass. native.

"Winning the New England's was the ultimate so far, a great feeling, a feeling of accomplishment", he said. Olson shot a 72 par in the first round for an early lead, then a 78 in the second round after sinking a double bogey on the last hole for a total score of 150, four strokes ahead of the second individual high.

Described by Coach Fan Gaudette as "being very serious about his game", the concentrated Olson maintains a subtle competitiveness both on and off the golf course, which is one of the attributes of his tough comeback ability. "Olson has a good head for the game and is a competitor", Gaudette said and then added "and his good comeback ability is there also".

What Gaudette says about Olson, who will usually be shooting third in a five man rotation during the season can more explicitly be understood looking at past performances of the "good swinger".

Coming to UMass as a swing shift freshman after finishing second in the schoolboy tournament in 1972 as captain of Dedham High School, Olson started playing second semester of his freshman year. He has been playing ever since and will still have three more semesters of eligibility after this spring semester.

Not to mention, it hasn't been the typical "fine performance" for Rick the past two years. He has played admittedly erratic at times and has not played to his full potential the whole time either.

Freshman year was a kind of "get your feet wet" time for "Olsie," getting used to the different and better competition. He played poorly and had a tough time in the ECAC's last year, (which UM tied for first with Yale.), but then buckled down. "Just look at what he did for us in the NE's", pointed out Gaudette.

"I just had one of my best rounds in windy weather which made me play harder and smarter and think more," Olson explained.

In the first round he started with two pars, a triple bogey and bogey, then played four under par for the remainder of the round including four birdies and ten pars - 72 even par for first round, which pretty well set the precedent the rest of the way.

Rick does not simply carry a competitive spirit but a confident one also, which he openly displayed when questioned about expectations for the whole golf team this spring. "We'll have everyone back from last year and I think we can be No. 1 in the Yankee conference and go from there," he said. UMass finished second last year in the YC to Maine.

No wonder when Coach Gaudette replied to a question concerning the character of Olson when he said, "Rick, along with Joe Artman (capt.), exemplifies the rest of the players on this team."

One can see that Olson is certainly prepared for the spring season by simply watching him on the softball field. His first three times at bat he popped out with the prettiest golf swings you ever did see.

Men's Crew

APRIL 5 — Trinity and WPI at Worcester.
APRIL 12 — Marist College at Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
APRIL 19 — Harvard and Brown at Boston.
APRIL 26 — Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn.
MAY 3 — Northeastern at Boston.
May 9-12 — Dad Vail Championship at Philadelphia, Pa.

Your Complete Neighborhood Bicycle Shop
Peloton
Spring Special HERCULES $99.95
We Repair
Raleigh
Columbia
Peugot
Gitane
all european and domestic models
We Sell Fuji Araya Dawes Concorde
Special Services ★ Athletic Sportwear
★ 24 hour repair
★ Maintenance Clinics
★ Used Bicycles
★ Childrens Bicycles
★ And we're available to schools and clubs for qualified Lectures on Bicycle Safety, Touring and Racing.
Jerseys Warm Up Suits
Brooks and Bata Sport Shoes
Peloton
1 E. Pleasant St. Amherst

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

"I'd like to see every individual accomplish their best." "I'd like to see our team do the best that we can." — Coach and head Gorilla Dick Garber whose stickers are the best in New England from last season. Garber has one of the best won-loss lacrosse coaching records in the nation.

Coach Garber: be your best

by Tom Crowley

In the everchanging atmosphere of UMass, Coach Dick Garber has been a constant in UMass athletics.

Coach Garber, 46, has been coaching Minuteman lacrosse since 1955. In that span, he has had only two losing seasons and was New England Champion eight times, the last six years straight. His overall record is 154-69-4.

But strangely, Coach Garber has the team winning by not stressing winning.

"That statement is usually misinterpreted," the tall lacross mentor said.

"All those cliches about winning being everything is hogwash, especially college athletics. I tell them that to try and realize their potential. Then to come together as the best possible team."

"It's good to win but they should have fun playing," the Springfield College graduate said.

Coach Garber's attitude toward playing has not changed since he began twenty-one years ago, but the conditions he has worked under has. During the first ten years, only three players came to UMass having played lacrosse in either high school or prep school.

Presently, lacrosse has grown so much that most of the players on the varsity have had prior experience.

"We're getting better players, good athletes with experience. But we're not getting the players we formerly got," Coach Garber said.

Coach Garber used to recruit on campus during those early years. "We're not getting the former football or basketball player who didn't play up here.

"The captain of the '66 team, Dick Brown, played in the North-South All Star game. He was in a volleyball class of mine. He moved well and he played football and baseball in high school. He never played lacrosse. Three years later, he was playing in an all-star game."

But the growth of lacrosse has made it more difficult to do this. "This year we had 96 people out for the team. I have a policy of not cutting anybody. I keep the top thirty on the varsity and the rest on the JV.

"There are other athletes on campus that can play lacrosse, but I can't look around like I used to."

This personal approach has, in its way, helped in the growth of lacrosse. Twenty of Coach Garber's former players coach now, both college and high school. Russ Kidd is the Gorillas assistant and JV coach and played under Coach Garber. Forty former charges are also referees in New England.

It is this individual concern for his players that has made UMass a consistent winner at lacrosse.

"I want them (the players) to realize their potential," Coach Garber said. "Strategy is no good if the players can't run or shoot."

This idea of being more concerned with players than winning has been Coach Garber's long-standing philosophy. That philosophy makes UMass lacrosse what it is today.

Spring season Intra-murals; something for everybody

By RUSS SMITH

I want all of you out there in UMieland to use your imagination. Picture the weather up here; the sun shining high in the sky with temperatures in the low seventies, and a warm spring-like breeze whistling o'er the campus. Ignore the fact that we've been having snow flurries off 'n on now for a week, the temps. have been more reminiscent of winter, and the winds haven't exactly been cool breezes, especially when walking past our 'Rocket Ship' Library.

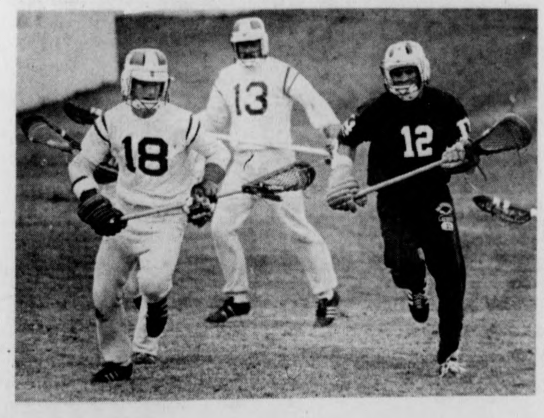
If by some fluke of Mother Nature, Amherst should start getting weather conditions proportional with this season of the year, it'll make a few thousand people here at UMass happy, particularly we intramural participants.

Most of us would agree that playing soccer, softball, or tennis after a rough day of classes (especially physical education majors) is not only relaxing, but a convenient outlet for your frustrations, and even makes more sense than picking on your freshman roommate. However, playing in thirty degree weather, with mud for bases, and an outfield that resembles the Florida Everglades minus the alligators, tends to cut down on the laughs. Winning, though, makes the playing more fun.

The intramural spring season is off to a better start than the 1974 season. Some of us remember returning to the campus last year from spring break, only to find the fields soaked from a late March snowstorm. As if that wasn't bad enough, the April showers arrived, not bringing with them May flowers, but instead, an abbreviated intramural season, and a couple hundred unsatisfied students. So far this year, only one day's scheduled games have had to be postponed because of rain. If this is an indication of the way things are headed this spring, happy faces will be all over campus.

Softball, the most popular sport in the intramural program, again has a record number of teams participating. Many a student can be seen throwing a ball around in the afternoon, or getting in a little batting practice. Maybe the reason this sport is the favorite is everyone's on a somewhat even level: being six foot four, and two hundred forty pounds (playing catcher) doesn't necessarily make you a better player than some puny kid who's 5'7" and weighs 145 (except I'd rather slide into the shrimp, as opposed to the ex-football player). Softball doesn't take as much skill as soccer, which few people had played in their high school days. Tennis also needs some previous experience if you want to enter that intramural activity (which you can't get on your own because the gym class comes out and takes all the courts, after you've waited an hour to get on one). Tennis is also a little hard to play with nine people on a side.

In any case, the warm weather is hopefully on its way here. Softballs will take to the air, in competition with an occassional frisbee in the Quad, a tennis ball up in Sylvan, basketballs on the Hill, kite flying in Central, and down in cement city Southwest-intramural chair throwing (they're a little strange down there).



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

Jeff Spooner and Kurt Olson, two key Gorillas on the move.

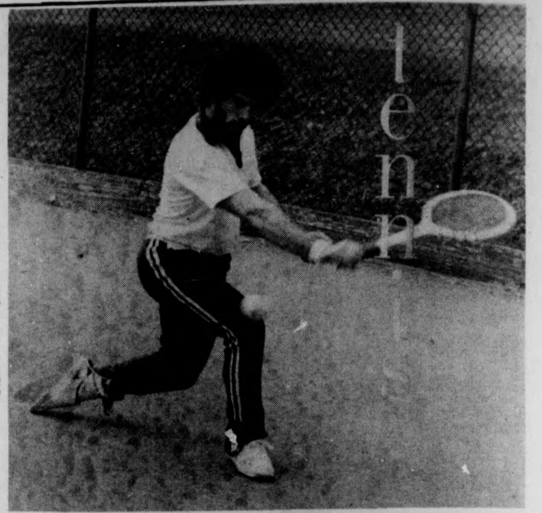
CREDITS

The entire staff contributed to this special supplement to make it what it is. The following people put it together and provided you, the reader, with the final copy (for whatever that's worth): Scott Hayes, Ben Caswell, Chas O'Connor, George Whithers, John Stewart and Dick Leonard. The cover was done by the dynamic Donald McGilvary.

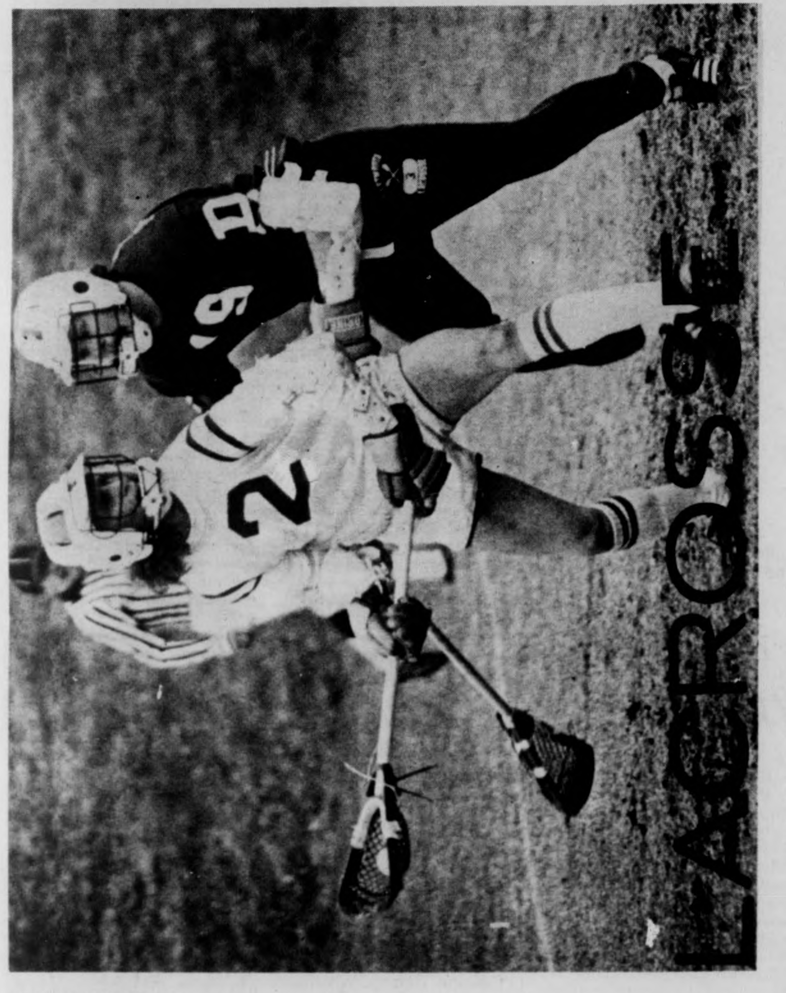
VILLAGE·INN
The place that made Amherst famous!
40 International Beers
Food and Drink
'til 1 a.m.
·DRAKE·

No. 9 E. Pleasant St. Amherst
ALL SINGLE ALBUMS $4.17 EACH
Latest Releases — Top Artists
SUNSHINE RECORDS

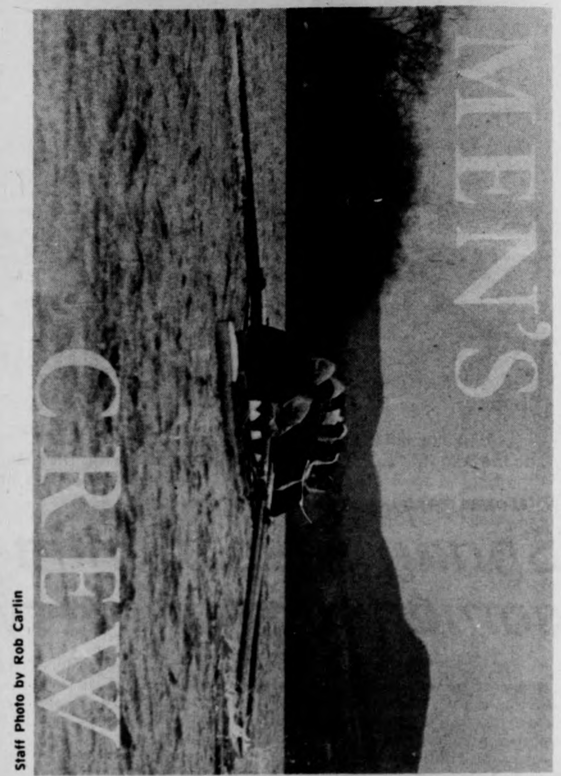
Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz



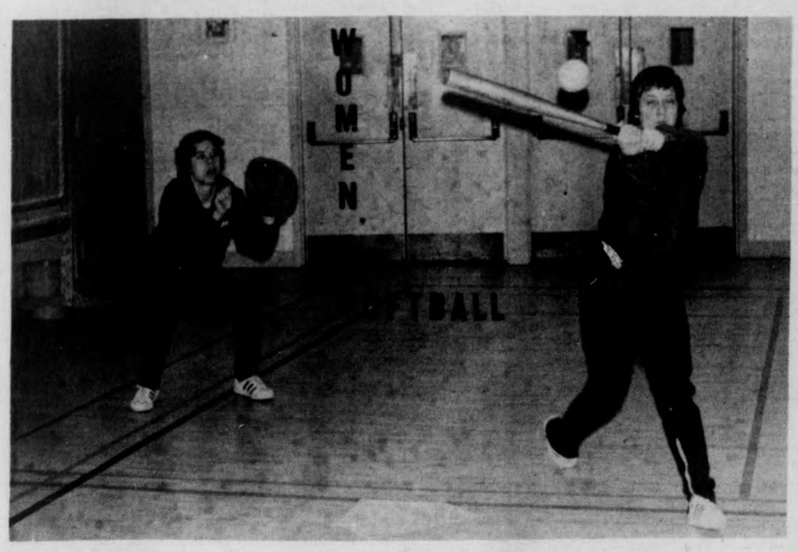
Staff Photo by Stu Eyman



Staff Photo by Dan Smith



Staff Photo by Rob Carlin



Staff Photo by Stu Eyman

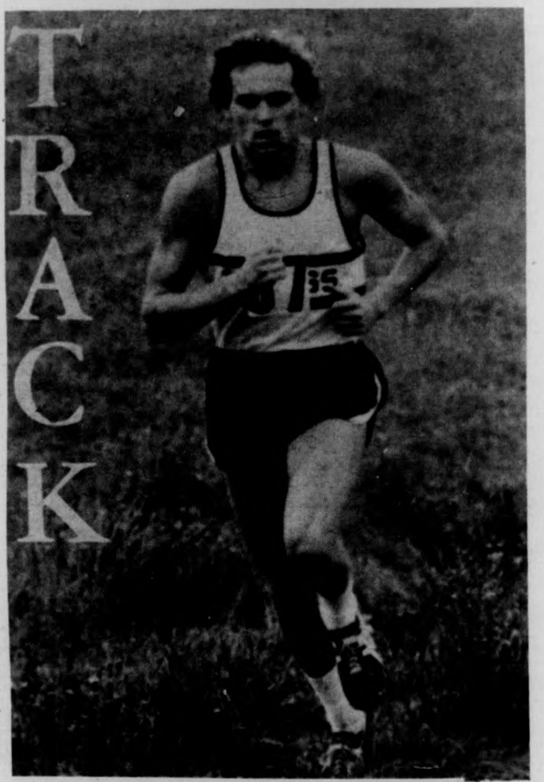


Photo by Mike Gillen

Unhurt in palace attack

Thieu decides not to resign

Compiled from Wires

SAIGON, South Vietnam — President Nguyen Van Thieu vowed to hold onto power yesterday after a lone South Vietnamese air force plane bombed and rocketed his palace. Opposition politicians interpreted the attack as a warning to Thieu to change his policies or leave office.

"I am determined to continue leading this country," declared Thieu, who is widely blamed for the military debacle that has lost three-fourths of South Vietnam to Communist-led forces in a month.

The pilot of the F5 Freedom Fighter, identified as North Vietnam-born Lt. Nguyen Thanh-Trung, 26, probably flew the plane to a Communist-occupied base inside South Vietnam and defected, military sources said.

Thieu escaped unharmed and said he viewed the attack as an isolated incident and not a coup attempt. But three persons were killed and four wounded by the single bomb that exploded. Thieu immediately ordered a 24-hour curfew in the capital.

The curfew was lifted six hours later, but it curtailed the human traffic on the daily airlift of orphans and civilian refugees from Saigon. At least one U.S. Air Force C141 Starlifter flight between Saigon and Clark Air Base in the Philippines was cancelled and passenger traffic on two others totaled only 31 persons.

Thieu made a broadcast calling the attack "an act of a group of people aimed at killing me with the intention to change this legal and constitutional regime." However, air force commander Lt. Gen. Tran Van Minh and several politicians

turn to p. 4

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 44
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1975

weather

So you thought Spring was on it's way, huh? Well, forget it! Winter's lease has yet to expire and spring hasn't even paid a down payment.

26 student candidates elected

Romer, Garvey take selectmen seats

By JUNE VALLIERE
Staff Reporter

UMass graduate student Diana Romer and incumbent Robert Garvey were elected to the Board of Selectment in yesterday's town election. A large turnout propelled many students into town meeting slots.

With 2244 votes, Dean of Students William C. Field glided into his fifth term as Town Moderator. Thirteen UMass students and nine UMass professors won Town Meeting seats. George Scheurer, a UMass graduate, won a position on the Housing Authority by a slim margin of 122 votes.

Romer, winning the election by 1875 votes, ousted incumbent Leo Bouchard who polled 1771 votes. Garvey was reelected to the board with 2149 votes.

Incumbent Field won the Town Moderator seat over Progressive Candidate Pool Douglas Phelps by 1311 votes. Town officials speculated earlier that Field would "run away with the election."

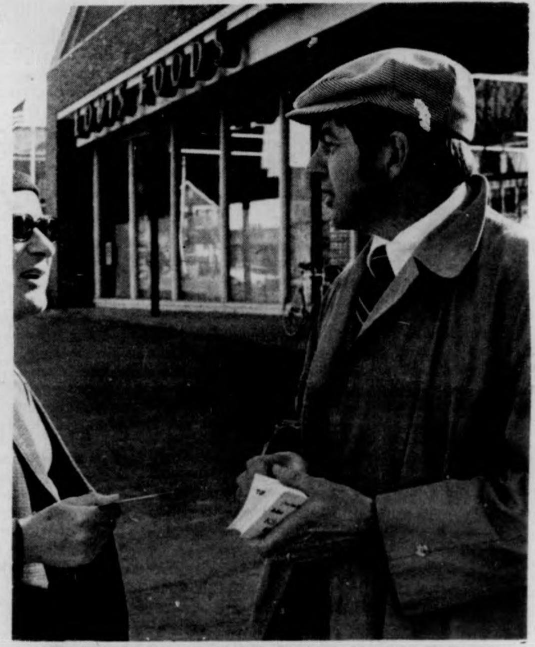
Twenty-six students out of 81 persons running for Town Meeting members in the seven Amherst precincts were candidates.

Ten professors, three Hampshire College students, and 3 affiliates of UMass were also Town Meeting Member candidates.

Joseph Frank, UMass English Professor and president of the Massachusetts Society of Professors, was elected to a one-year term as Town Meeting Member in Precinct two. Lisa Alberghini, Peter Freisem, Donna Fusco, Randy Grodman, Ellen Regal and Charlotte Walters were students in Precinct three who won the Town Meeting member election.

UMass professors elected to the Town Meeting in precinct three were Joyce Berkman, Alfred Boiscot, Herbert Rollason and Jack Wolf. Glora Hosford, Robert Joy, Sandra Knightly, Phyllis Paige and John Sherman are other victors in that precinct.

turn to p. 3



Staff Photo by Jim Higgins

Hard work pay's off! Bob Garvey won his re-election to the seat of selectman in Amhersts' "day of decision", Tuesday, finishing ahead of opponents Romer and Bouchard respectively.

ACADEMY AWARDS — PAGE 9

12 of PCP group now Meeting members

By BILL GONET
Staff Reporter

Although the Progressive Candidates Pool (PCP) hoped that its 43 members would be elected in yesterday's town election, only 12 PCP candidates were voted into office as Town Meeting members.

Douglas Phelps, the defeated PCP candidate for Town Moderator, attibuted the poor results to a "backlash vote by townspeople against students."

Polling the highest tallies in precinct two, all of the PCP's eight candidates from that precinct were elected by a heavy turnout from the Southwest dormitories.

The PCP's eight precinct two victors were: Mark Benoit, Phillip Sellinger, Catherine Hopkins, Robert Gilbert, Pamela Houmere, Douglas A. Stanley, Robert Weiner and Lawrence Kornfeld.

Kornfeld won election to one of the two-year seats, while the other PCP candidates won seven of the 12 three-year seats conteuted in precinct two.

In precinct three, where 13 three-year seats were contested, four PCP candidates out of a slate of ten were elected. The PCP victors in precinct three were: Lisa Marie Alberghini, Donna Fusco, Ellen Regal and Charlotte Walters.

Re-elected Town Moderator William Field said in an interview last night that the strong showing for the 4 student victors in precinct three was "surprising."

In all of the six precincts where PCP candidates ran, all candidates polled roughly the same number of votes.

In precinct seven, where the PCP estimated that 170 votes would carry their slate of five candidates, the PCP's highest vote getter, Jean Marie Murray received 167 votes. The biggest winner in precinct seven, Mary V. Szala received 247, while the lowest winner, Leon A. J. Barkowski polled 167 votes.

Defeated candidate for a precinct seven seat, Eric Walgren, said, "Last year's biggest winner in precinct seven received only 170 votes. The big turnout this year was due to a heavy anti-student backlash."

Stefano wedding food bill remains unpaid

By DAVE KOWAL
Staff Reporter

The food bill for the August wedding of Deborah Stefano, daughter of Campus Center Purchasing and Produce Manager Stephen Stefano, has not yet been paid, the Collegian has learned.

John W. Corker, director of the Campus Center, said "I was not aware of the unpaid bill until I read about it in the Collegian. I have not had a chance to get back and work out any arrangement with Mr. Stefano."

The Collegian reported on March 6 that the bill for the August 16 wedding, which took place on the tenth floor of the Campus Center, was "unprocessed."

Corker said, "Mr. Stefano has been out of work for the past two weeks with phlebitis." Stefano received the bill before his illness.

When trying to contact Stefano last night at his home in Enfield, Conn., the Collegian was told he was not at home.

Craig Stuart, Campus Center business manager, said the food bill for the wedding comes out to "about $2,400" while everything else has been paid for.

The Collegian was denied access to the bill. Corker said after he had consulted with UMass attorney Sidney Myers and the bill was not shown "because of the invasion of privacy law."

Myers said he had interpreted access to the bill as being an invasion of privacy and "anything that Mr. Corker says is reliable."

When asked if Stefano was billed at discount rates, Corker said, "Because many of the items at the wedding were not typical of our menu, we had to cost it out and come up with a price. The price we charged included all of the costs plus an overall cost."

Part of the costs, he added, were absorbed by the time people donated. According to Corker, "Several people volunteered their free time to help out at the wedding.

In addition Stefano has not been charged interest because of his outstanding account. Corker said "No one pays interest. There have been many distinguished people with outstanding accounts at the Campus Center."

Vice-Chancellor Robert W. Gage said he is leaving "everything up to Corker."

High administration sources said Gage has discussed the bill with Corker, and asked for a report.

Milton Kerstein, a member of the board of governors, said the board charged Corker two and a half weeks ago to investigate the affair and come to some conclusions.

"He has had plenty of time to get to the bottom of this," Kerstein said, "and there's no reason why he couldn't have."

Corker said, "The board of governors can charge all they want. I can make no recommendations until I've interviewed everybody, which I have, and talked to Mr. Stefano, which I have not."

Corwin cited for contempt

By DEBBI DIMASSIMO
Staff Reporter

Bruce Corwin, treasurer of Rainbow Productions was cited for contempt of court last night after he defiantly left the second session of his trial before the Student Judiciary. He is charged with violations of the Student Code of Conduct, Activities Regulations, and the Recognized Student Organization (RSO) Financial Policy Act.

Corwin walked out after reading a statement in which he contended that he was being denied "due process" and called the hearing "a mockery of justice."

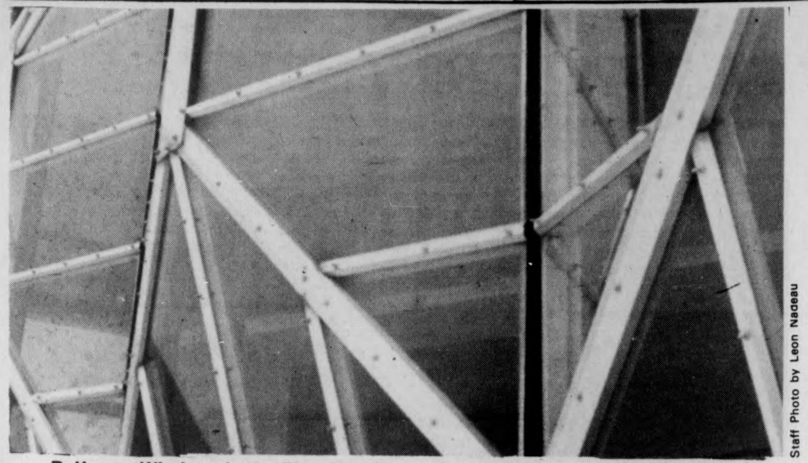
The trial was adjourned pending further action on the contempt citation. Corwin will be formally charged with contempt and subpoenaed by the student attorney general's office.

Corwin's advocates opened his defense by asking the judges to reconsider their Monday denial of a motion of "demurrer." This would dismiss all charges against Corwin on the premise that he cannot be prosecuted for violations of RSO regulations which occurred after Rainbow Productions ceased to exist as an RSO group. The motion was again denied.

Rainbow Productions was operating under a Student Senate executive order pending approval of their constitution by the Senate governmental affairs committee. The executive order expired on January 11, but the group continued to use RSO services. The motion was again denied.

The defense then moved into each of the nine charges, dismissing individually on the basis of insufficient evidence and vagueness of the charges.

turn to p. 9



Staff Photo by Leon Nadeau

Patterns: Windows in the Fine Arts Center form a myriad of angles. See story in tomorrow's Collegian about the water closet problem in the FAC.

Percussion ensemble

M'Boom explodes in Bowker

By JACK CAHILL
Below the Salt Staff

The reason why Monday night's concert by the M'Boom percussion ensemble struck the audience so solidly and totally is that percussion is the most basic musical-rhythmic expression, common to everyone.

And with the seven virtuosi that comprise M'Boom manipulating and altering all the diverse elements at their command, we were taken along on a journey, the like of which none of us had ever known, some of it unfamiliar, but none of it truly foreign.

The Bowker auditorium stage was filled with an awesome collection of percussion instruments: drum kits, timbales, chimes, gongs, cabasa-afuche, marimba, tympani, more than one could imagine. As the lights dimmed, someone onstage began beating out a rhythm, being joined by another instrument and another, led by Max Roach on a primitive pitched drum. The African heartbeat, the mother rhythm, undulated throughout.

Slowly and unannounced, the other musicians took the stage — Roy Brooks, Joe Chambers, Omar Clay, Ray Mantilla, Warren Smith, and Freddie Waits. There are no identities lost in M'Boom (OOM-BOOM) and there is certainly a collective one found. Each man moved from instrument to instrument with an ease born of mastery.

The pieces were not identified. The constant flow of sound and moods was made more effective by the lack of verbal interruption, but a few of the titles might shed some light on the feelings they conveyed: "Elements of a Storm," "Rise and Fly," "Jihad est Mort," "Jumalai," "Heaven Sent."

A few of the innumerable high points of the performance were Warren Smith's superb tympani-bass drum work, some perfectly synched three-way marimba-xylophone passages, Roy Brooks' musical saw, and a wonderful all out wham bash that really excited two kidlings sitting behind me. Having proved their expertise on the more exotic percussion instruments, each musician had a chance to work out on the regular drum kit. Every offering was stellar in a different way. Freddie Waits shifted accents subtly during a beautifully tensioned flight. The brushes and blow tube devices of Roy Brooks made his solo truly unique without being gimmicky.

The audience had been waiting for Prof. Max Roach to step into the spotlight and really deliver and this he did. The structure of his solos pivot on a clear, repeated phrase; here it was a scarcely believable hat riff that would have made Jo Jones look askance. The rounddelays that followed were phenomenal, dizzing the audience who applauded wildly. Max is not the leader of M'Boom, but rather the elder statesman whose presence is always felt. Ray Mantilla's Latin rhythms were radiant on both congas and timbales and the contrast to the trap sets was more than effective.

The concert ended with 14 hands pounding and slapping harder and harder at an accelerating tempo until Roach held up one hand to signal the others. When it came down, the entire ensemble stopped as one man except for a ride cymbal that fell to the floor with an abbreviated splash. Perfect. Four hundred people stood up and shouted.

Leon's case proves 'equal justice under the paw'

By BERNIE DAVIDOW
Staff Reporter

Leon was having trouble getting into the School of Business Administration library until his owner Edward Jacobson intervened in his behalf.

Leon, half German shepherd, half beagle-terrier recently gained the honor of being the only animal ever given written, authorized permission to enter the library.

In a memorandum distributed to all SBA faculty, Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery, Provost Robert L. Gluckstern, Associate Provost David D. Bischoff and SBA Dean George S. Odiorne granted special permission for Leon to attend the library when accompanied by his friend and life-long companion Jacobson.

According to Jacobson, a junior majoring in management, Leon has been accompanying him into the library since he was a freshman. Last week, library authorities refused Leon access.

"I stood up against them," Jacobson said. Following an argument, library authorities suggested that Jacobson take his request to Frank A. Singer, supervisor of the library," he added.

After Singer refused permission, Jacobson took his case to Odiorne, who gave his approval.

Jacobson, who submitted a formal request to Odiorne, claimed Leon as "a vital adjunct to my professional development as a manager." Jacobson argued:

"Leon has been visiting the Library with me for three years without a single disturbance or untoward event.

"He is gentle, well-behaved and by numerous outside testimonies, is of superior moral, mental and personal qualities.

"Because he accompanies me to class (and has done so for three years) I consider him intellectually, personally and socially stimulating, and a necessary accompanist in my scholarly endeavors."

Student assaulted, robbed in SW dorm

By BRUCE FREDERICK
Staff Reporter

A Southwest student was the victim of an armed robbery and assault and battery Monday night, according to Captain Robert Joyce of the UMass Department of Public Safety.

The student was not injured seriously, though he lost $160. The robbery, which took place in Cance House, was reported at 8:15 p.m. The student's identity is being withheld, and the UMass Police have suspects in the case.

In other police news, three UMass students have been placed under arrest in the past three days on default warrants stemming from various motor vehicle and parking violations.

A default warrant is issued when an individual fails to show up for a court appearance.

Ronald R. Williams and Diane Hale, were arrested Tuesday, and Russell L. Coffey was arrested Monday. Williams was originally summoned to court for operating a motor vehicle on an Amherst sidewalk, and he was turned over to Amherst Police. Coffey and Hale were originally summoned for a substantial backlog of unpaid parking fines. Hale turned herself in.

Also on Tuesday, a 1972 Fiat, registration No. 82132, was stolen from Lot 44.

In Webster dorm, a pocketbook was stolen from an unlocked room. No value was set because the owner had no idea what she had in it.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief — Bill Parent
Managing Editor — Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor — BJ Roche
News Editor — Richard Wright
Sports Editor — Ben Caswell
Photo Editor — Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor — Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor — Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors — Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor — Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor — E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors — Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor — Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor — Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors — Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor — Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager — Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager — Gary Williams
Production Manager — Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager — Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers — Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor — Dan LaBonte
Darkroom — Dan Smith, Jim Higgins, Carol DeSousa
Sports — Scott Hayes, Steve Saraceno
Good Spirits — Jack Daniels, Jose Cuervo, Paula Jean

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

GSS bill asks for graduate on Trustees Board

By AL COLARUSSO
Staff Reporter

A bill requesting that a graduate student be appointed to the University Board of Trustees was submitted to the Education Committee of the State House of Representatives on Monday.

Graduate Student Senate President James Lindsey, who presented the bill along with Representative James Collins, (D—Amherst) said the bill is "pretty sure" of going through the Education Committee.

If passed by the Education Committee, the bill will go on to the Committee on Ways and Means and then to the floor of the House for a final vote.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery said last night that a graduate student appointment to the Board of Trustees is a "good idea."

Poor Richard's
Discotheque
Every Wed.
GREEK NITE

D.V.P. presents
M.L.K. week
April 10
GOSPEL NIGHT
Ronnie Ingram Singers
Dorothy Love Coates
Campus Center Auditorium
8:00 p.m.

Staff Photo by Carol DeSousa

Contemplating the chapel, the man and dog sat in yesterday's afternoon sun.

Proposed food budgets:
Mandatory Dining Commons, weekend services possible

By LARRY KORNFELD
Staff Reporter

Two proposed budgets for the food services provide for meal plans that offer weekend service and a mandatory dining commons policy.

The proposed budgets were presented to the Student Senate Rents and Fees Committee last night.

The budget for the voluntary system would close down all the dining commons except two and provide no money for renovations or fast food services.

"I think it would be foolish to build a large cash cafeteria and expect a lot of students to eat in there," said Arthur Warren, acting director of food services.

Warren criticized the proposed voluntary dining common plan option saying that it was too risky and would require a $40 to $50 utilities fee.

The proposed budget for the mandatory plan included three meal plans:

— a ten-meal plan Monday through Friday at $335 per semester.

— a 14-meal plan seven days a week at $375 per semester.

— a 19-meal plan seven days a week at $410 per semester.

Kenneth Dean, acting director of the office of residential life said, "I was quite pleasantly surprised when I saw the figures."

Greek Area representative Roy Ostrovitz said, "If we have to start paying a utilities fee or a residence hall fee we're going to fall. That will hurt the town of Amherst since we pay $125,000 in taxes."

The three residence hall proposed budgets were all for mandatory systems.

The first projected a $75 to $100 a year rent increase and 94 per cent occupancy. The plan assumed the exemption for students over 21 would be eliminated.

The second plan projected a $40 to $50 rent increase by not including 6 per cent inflation.

The third assumed juniors would be exempt from mandatory board plans and included a $120 rent increase. Dean said that this plan would make it possible to save money by closing down some dorms.

The budget figures are being revised all the time. "It will probably be a whole different ball game tomorrow," said Dean.

"Normally fast-food operations like McDonalds' will not even consider installing a unit unless there is a population of at least 30,000 students," Dean said.

Dean said Vice-Chancellor Robert Gage sent him a memo saying there will be a 6 per cent cut in state funds for the residence hall system.

A final decision on whether the dining commons will be voluntary and which of he three dorm options will be used will not be made until Friday.

Student Activities Tax Fund restricted by SWA

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

Southwest Assembly (SWA) last night passed a controversial bill to restrict Student Activities Tax funds from Southwest dorms unless the dorms have on-going programs in the understanding of racism and sexism.

By a vote of 16-5, SWA adopted a bill which will "combat racism and sexism "in Southwest even though more than half of the Assembly's executive candidates opposed the bill.

By passing the bill which has been before the Assembly twice before, SWA will not appropriate any funds to dorms unless the dorms have such programs in racism and sexism, according to Jeff Hamilton, the bill's proposer. Hamilton also said grants and loans will not be appropriated and that the bill is to be effected next semester.

Hamilton said, during the hour-long debate on the issue last night at the Hampden Student Center, "No one has the right to be oppressive and this is what we'll (SWA) be doing by defeating the bill."

Fran Brock, an executive committee member who voted against the bill, aid, "I don't think the bill will really do anything for anybody."

SWA President Craig Sanderson supported the bill saying, "Combatting racism and sexism is an important goal of the Southwest Assembly, and I don't think we've achieved this goal."

Concurring with Sanderson, Thomasina Yuille, a floor counselor working in Southwest, said before the Assembly meeting, "I can't effectively work as a counsellor if Southwest Assembly doesn't pass this bill."

Ann McLean, an Assembly member who opposed the bill, said she could not agree with the bill as it is written "I wanted to propose an amendment to the bill," McLean said, "because I didn't agree with a few of the bill's proposals."

One advantage to the bill, according to Hamilton, is that it would "strengthen Southwest (Women's and Racial Understanding) centers by necessitating dorms to seek assistance in establishing racism and sexism awareness programs."

★ Three UMass profs elected

cont. from p. 1

Three UMass professors won in precincts four, five and seven. They are George Bain, for a one-year term as Town Meeting member and Harold Gatlick, Larry Roberts and Gerald Grady to three-year terms. In Precinct four, the newly elected town meeting members are Mildred Beals, Helen Collery, Violet Durgin, Patricia Fisher, Evelyn Goldenberg, Chapin Harvey, Mitchell Jacque, Roger Jacque and Marietta Pritchard.

Duane Cromack, Marion Crossmon, Stephen Keedy, Donald Thayer, Henry Walas, William Weaver and Fred Wentworth were the other candidates elected Town Meeting members from Precinct five.

In Precinct six, where no students were elected, the victors are Elizabeth Bernhard, Norman Brown, Linwood Buczala, Isabelle Callahan, Robert Davis, John Haywood, Myrna Hewitt, Elsa Hornfischer, Lorens Howell, Simon Keochakian, Jack Leader, Louis Mannheim, Deborah McKean, Tracy Mehl, John Ritter, James Schott and Dana Snyder.

William Annable, Leon Barkowski, Katherine Decker, Mary Szala and Cecil Thomson won seats from Precinct Seven.

In Precinct one, where a flyer was sent to votes in that district by area residents telling them not to vote for transients, all the candidates that they classified as transients lost the election. The winners are Leigh Andrews, Frank Bukoski, Kirby Hayes, William Mullin, Kenneth Padelford, Robert Patterson, Sarah Plantinga, Stephen Puffer, Joanne Talbort and Victor Zabruske.

In other election results, Loren Howell was elected School Committee member. Horace Hewlett, Amherst College secretary, and Eugene Worman Jr. were elected trustees of the Jones Library.

The town was granted authorization to purchase additional group life and accidental death and dismemberment for town employees by a vote of 167 to 254. Another question on the ballot, voted in by 1243-751 permits the town to license organizations to conduct beano.

Health help —
call 253-7200

Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

What is it? Anyone who correctly identifies this photo wins a prize. Prizes will be given out on the 29th floor of the library at 3:30 A.M. on April 31st. Be there!

SCER report offers co-op plan for student housing

By JOYCE KOSOFSKY
Staff Reporter

This is part two of a three part series on a report from SCER concerning the housing crisis at UMass. Part two deals with cooperative housing.

The Student Center for Educational Research (SCER) offers another type of housing for students in their recently published report concerning the housing crisis at UMass.

The report states that there is no law that limits the ownership of rental housing to private landlords and large institutions. People can gather to purchase, take-over or build their own housing, says SCER. The options for student or community controlled and owned housing are varied, which include student-owned cooperatives and "arm's length co-ops" which are owned by the University but managed by the students, the report suggests. The SCER report also says that there are community land trusts where the land is owned by the town or the University, but the building is owned by a student organization.

SCER suggests that students could design plan, and build their own housing, or take over ownership of dorms or private apartments. "While all of these ideas may seem far fetched for Amherst," says SCER, "they have all been tried elsewhere and have worked successfully."

The report cites an example of student co-op housing. In 1934 a group of students at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor rented the basement of a local minister's house. This group of eight students formed the Rochdale Co-op and rented their own house to 22 students the next year. By 1970, says the report, the group, now known as the InterCooperative Council (ICC), operated 24 cooperative houses worth $2.5 million. The ICC has maintained excellent relations with the University, says the report, because of the University's liberalized dormitory policies. The University has no trouble filling its halls. ICC continues to grow, says SCER, and provides students with low cost housing at about 20-30 per cent below the cost of University owned housing.

The report also cites an example from the University of Minnesota where students have taken over the complete management of at least one University owned housing complex. Through a contractual agreement with the University, students assume most aspects of management. SCER says that the rent for a one bedroom apartment in 1970 was $82.00 in that complex while the average rental in Amherst in 1969 for a one bedroom apartment was $140.

A proposal similar to the Minnesota model is now being presented to the UMass trustees by a group of married students living in University apartments, says the SCER. The report also says that another proposal for student management of dorms was suggested to the administration in 1973, which gave the students the option to create an "arms length coop" within the dorms.

"As far as we know," says SCER, "no positive action has been taken on that proposal."

South Vietnam needs military aid, says Weyand

Army Chief of Staff returns after visit

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Assistant Secretary of State Philip Habib said yesterday South Vietnam might survive given more U.S. military aid. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick Weyand said it could not survive without it.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., however, called military aid requests for South Vietnam "a boondoggle," and said the fact Vietnamese troops fled in the face of the Communist onslaught "sickening."

The government officials testified at separate congressional committees in advance of President Ford's major foreign policy address to Congress tomorrow. Ford is expected to announce new decisions in U.S. policy toward South Vietnam and Cambodia.

"There is no question in my mind but that South Vietnam's military will fight," said Weyand, emerging from a three-hour closed session with the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"They have just been through a very traumatic experience. They have a chance to put it back together again, and I think they will. The important thing is that they know someone supports them." Weyand recently returned from an inspection tour of Vietnam.

Asked by reporters if South Vietnam could survive without additional military aid, Weyand replied, "No, they cannot."

Habib, leaving a nearly four-hour closed briefing with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said "there is a chance" that South Vietnam could survive if it received more military aid. The administration had been pressing for $300 million emergency supplemental funds through June 30, and about $1.2 billion in the next fiscal year. Several senators, leaving the session, were extremely skeptical.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey deplored the loss of nearly $1 billion in U.S.-supplied equipment which has fallen into North Vietnamese hands. He also was doubtful Congress would provide more than humanitarian aid.

"It is not only a tragedy in human terms, it is the greatest boondoggle of management of the political and military administration," he said.

"They had the fourth largest air force in the world, and they left it and ran for cover. It's sickening! The military ineptness!"

Sen. Jacob Javits, R—N.Y., said he was against military aid to South Vietnam unless President Thieu steps down. In that case, Javits said, he would be willing to reexamine the question of military aid.

Long Boret returns to Phnom Penh after negotiations with rebels

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — Cambodian Prime Minister Long Boret returned to this besieged capital yesterday from Bangkok, where officials said he met with Communist Khmer Rouge rebel representatives in the possible beginning of a negotiated settlement of the five-year-old Cambodian war.

Officials in Thailand and Cambodia said Long Boret met with the Khmer Rouge for four hours in Bangkok Monday. No results of the Bangkok meeting were disclosed immediately.

As Long Boret stepped off the special plane that brought him from Bangkok, the Communist-led insurgents were barely 3.3 miles from Pochentong Airport and getting closer, yard by yard, by the day. Phnom Penh itself was surrounded by the rebels who now control 90 per cent of the country.

Shortly before Long Boret arrived, rebels again hit the airport with both artillery and rockets in more than 30 attacks. One Cambodian air force C123 was damaged and two pilots injured.

Thai Foreign Minister Chartchai Choonhaven said in Bangkok he believed another meeting between Cambodian government representatives and the Khmer Rouge might be scheduled.

"I can't tell you anything about the Monday meeting," Chartchai told newsmen. "I arranged it but I did not participate in it because it is not our business."

Curfew imposed after Vietnamese palace attack slows evacuations

cont. from p. 1

termed it an individual act.

Barrages of artillery, rockets and mortars made up most of the action reported in the Mekong Delta to the south of Saigon. Communist side activity has picked up there this week in possible preparation for a major push on Saigon or to cut roads, seize control of land and people and cut food supplies to the capital.

Former Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, a former commander of the air force and one of the leaders of the political forces in Saigon demanding that Thieu step down, denied that he was involved in the bombing attack on the palace. Ky said he favored an orderly change of leadership but not a coup.

In Washington, the Pentagon announced it had transferred a battalion of Marines from Okinawa to the Philippines in case it was needed to help evacuate other Americans from the Indochina war zones. Marines already are being used to help keep order aboard refugee ships operating in South Vietnamese waters.

Trung was believed to have had only enough fuel in his F5 to fly 100 miles after his attack. But military sources said he might have been able to make it to Da Nang or another base somewhere in the 19 of South Vietnam's 44 provinces occupied by the Communists.

Thieu's government made unprecedented moves to tell the people the bombing was an isolated incident and not a coup attempt against the president, who observed his 52nd birthday three days ago.

A spokesman at the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government compound at Tan Son Nhut denied any Communist participation in the bombing. Hanoi Radio broadcast news reports of the attack, but quoted Western news agencies and gave a straightforward account.

There were indications from government intelligence officers the Communists might begin shelling Saigon within two weeks if Thieu does not quit or is not ousted from power. The last rocketing of Saigon was on Dec. 21, 1971, when two projectiles were fired into the capital.

Applications for the position of Student Attorney General are available in the Attorney General's Office, 422 Student Union, for all interested undergraduates.

For job description and more information see Cindi Iris, Student Atty. Gen.

Deadline for applications is Friday, April 18th.

student Government Association is an Equal Opportunity-Affirmative Action Employer

FOURTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT

"A Tribute to Cal Massey"

Lonnie Liston Smith and the Cosmic Echoes
also Jimmy Garrison — Bassist
Grachan Moncur — Trombonist
Zane Massey — Reeds

Friday, April 11, 1975
Student Union Ballroom 8:00 p.m.
Admission Free

Sponsored by:
Afro-Am Society
Harambee
Union of 3rd World Women
3rd World Caucus of Central Area
Commuter Assembly
Orchard Hill Music Committee
Program Council Executive Comm.
Malcolm X Room
Provost Office
New Africa House

REWARD !

for old high school rings

Trade in your high school ring towards your college ring during ring days.

Plus . . .
get a 5% discount
on your college ring if you order it during ring days.

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
10 a.m. til 4 p.m.

APRIL
9th & 10th

ring days at the university store campus center

university of massachusetts/amherst

university of massachusetts arts council presents

KYOGEN NATIONAL COMIC THEATER OF JAPAN
SUNDAY, APRIL 20
8P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

ITZHAK PERLMAN
and THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY Robert Gutter conductor
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23
8P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

TICKETS :$4&3 general $2&1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

Dukakis concedes tax hike possible

'75 campaign pledge may be abandoned

BOSTON [AP] — Gov. Michael S. Dukakis conceded yesterday that he may have to seek new taxes to balance the state budget for the next fiscal year that begins July 1.

Dukakis also said at his weekly cabinet meeting that his 10 cabinet secretaries must cut spending during the next fiscal year by 10 per cent, compared to present funding levels.

Even so, the governor said, the key to the tax question is how much money the state can save in the annual $1 billion welfare appropriation. At the same time, Dukakis' staff was circulating a list of options that would reduce welfare spending by about $300 million.

Dukakis said he must decide if that reduction, along with other budget savings, will be enough to stave off taxes.

"If not, obviously I'm going to have to make a recommendation for revenue taxes," he said.

The governor has tried to keep a campaign pledge that he would not raise taxes in calendar 1975.

But yesterday he said it will be about a month before he knows whether the fiscal 1976 budget can be balanced, without more revenue.

On May 1, Dukakis said he will "make a recommendation (to the legislature) on how to deal with the deficit" for fiscal 1975 that ends June 30. The governor has said previously that he will float bonds to cover the anticipated $350 million shortfall.

The estimated $90 million in annual interest payments on the bonds over a four-year period would be paid for through future budget cuts, Dukakis has said.

Also on May 1, Dukakis said he will have "some reasonable estimate on whether the fiscal 1976 budget will be balanced." This, he said, will depend on the anticipated welfare savings.

Dukakis has submitted only a skeleton outline of his fiscal 1976 budget to the legislature, and he was not planning to file the official and final request until after Labor Day.

AMHERST PUBLIC ACCESS TELEVISION FORUM

Next Meeting

April 9th, Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. at the FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, 165 Main Street, Amherst in the gallery room (parking at the rear of the church).

On the Agenda

Discussion of proposed by laws for governing public access
1) amendments to adoption of the by laws
2) selection of name for the public access community group
3) incorporation as a non profit group
Election of support committee
1) nominations and election
2) the support committee would:
a. initiate incorporation
b. study and initiate grant applications for funding (facilities and programming)
c. set up training sessions in video porta-pack and studio equipment uses
d. arranging for use of area video facilities for access workshop members
e. participate in the cable system franchising negotiations with the Amherst select persons and the cable commission
Discussion of program ideas
1) establishing crew rosters

Other
1) upcoming meetings in April
a. regional cable television meeting
b. educational conference on CATV
2) time for next meeting

All people interested in working with video through the public access television channel-facilities should attend this meeting.

Anti-busing group vows to discredit Kennedy

BOSTON [AP] — The leader of an antibusing group says it intends to destroy Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., politically.

"We'd like to destroy him politically, and we will," said Elvira Palladino of East Boston, an executive board member of Restore Our Alienated Rights (ROAR).

"He's voting his conscience instead of the will of the people," she said. "If you read that, then it is no longer a representative government.

"He said let the chips fall where they may, and the chips are coming down like a snowstorm. We told Sen. Kennedy many months ago, until he changes his position on busing, we'd be everywhere he would be. He refuses to acknowledge what we're all about."

Thousands of Boston public school students are bused to classrooms daily under a court-ordered desegregation plan put into effect last September.

"We don't wish the man any harm, basically -- we only wish he'd get out of politics," Mrs. Palladino said.

Kennedy was confronted by approximately 200 antibusing demonstrators Sunday after he left a Knights of Columbus breakfast in Quincy. He was poked, grabbed and jostled.

James King, a Kennedy aide, said Monday that the senator was "absolutely unhurt, was not struck to my knowledge, and his clothes were not torn as some reports claimed."

N.Y.S.E. Volume Profile
UP 709
UNCHANGED 453
622 DOWN

DOW JONES AVERAGE 30 Industrials
Closed at 749.22
UP 6.34
APR. 8,1975

news summary

Jacobsen leaves stand

WASHINGTON [UPI] — John Connally's lawyer stacked $10,000 in cash before prosecution witness Jake Jacobsen yesterday in an attempt to discredit his testimony that Connally accepted the money in bribes.

Under final cross examination by defense lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, Jacobsen stuck by his statement that he paid Connally two installments of $5,000 each in return for help in obtaining higher price supports for raw milk. Jacobsen said Connally returned the money and conspired with him to cover up the payoffs.

Jacobsen was followed on the witness stand by milk producer lobbyist Bob A. Lilly, who testified he raised the $10,000 which allegedly went to Connally.

Africa unity sought

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania [UPI] — African liberation movements called yesterday for the total isolation of South Africa and guerrilla warfare throughout white-ruled southern Africa.

"Africa has nothing to discuss with the Pretoria (South African) regime," Samora Machel, president-designate of Mozambique, told a meeting of African and Arab ministers. "It would be a serious mistake on our part, a betrayal of the struggle of Africa and all oppressed peoples."

Calls for orphans up

BOSTON [AP] — More than 3,000 calls from families wishing to adopt Vietnamese orphans or offer them foster homes have been received by public and private adoption agencies in Massachusetts.

Some families in the area have received Vietnamese children they adopted, and others are awaiting arrival of the children or to be assigned children.

The state Welfare Department's adoption placement unit has received approximately 2,000 calls during the last week.

Secret pact charged

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., charged yesterday that "secret agreements" exist between the United States and South Vietnam which have been hidden from Congress and — until recently — from President Ford.

Jackson said the agreements "envision fateful American decisions," but did not disclose what they entail. Nor did he accept a challenge to make his knowledge available to the Senate.

Aid called for

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Rejecting calls for additional military aid for Southeast Asia, Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said yesterday they would work for massive humanitarian aid to refugees in both South Vietnam and the Communist-held areas.

Humphrey introduced legislation to provide $200 million in speedy humanitarian assistance.

COME ALONG ON A PETER PAN APRIL TOUR RIGHT FROM THE COLLEGES

- University of Massachusetts
- Amherst College
- Smith College (Northampton)
- Mt. Holyoke College (So. Hadley)

Sign up soon and reserve your place on one or more of these attractive tours:

APRIL 12 (Saturday) – 1-DAY NEW YORK CITY SHOW/SHOPPING
This tour takes you to the heart of Midtown New York at Easter season, with about 10 hours to shop, see a matinee, or sightsee. The low price includes a delicious smorgasbord luncheon at the famed Stockholm Restaurant.
Per Person, Just $17.75

APRIL 19-20 (Sat.-Sun.) – 2-DAY WEEKEND IN MONTREAL
Come with us on Patriots' Day Weekend for a wonderful excursion to glittering, cosmopolitan Montreal. Hotel accommodations, included in the bargain fare, are at the LaSalle Hotel in the heart of downtown activities. Plenty of time to enjoy exciting day and evening activities.
Per Person, Just $35.00

APRIL 26 (SATURDAY) – 1-DAY EXCURSION TO EXPO VINO '75
You'll want to attend this unusual, spectacular wine, cheese, and gourmet food show at Commonwealth Armory, Boston. There will be four hours to really enjoy the show, and the low tour price includes admission and ten sampling tickets.
Per Person, Just $10.75

Why not pick up our special brochure today giving further details?

Peter Pan Bus Lines

Campus Ctr. Hotel — UMass.
Tel. 545-2006

Peter Pan — Amherst Center
Tel. 256-0431

Peter Pan — Northampton
Tel. 586-1030

Cannon's — South Hadley
Tel. 533-7115

painters pants
the jeans store
WEAR-HOUSE
201 n. pleasant st./amherst
Fairfield Mall/chicopee

10% OFF PAINTERS PANTS WITH THIS AD!

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New RECORD SHOP
197 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-5394

community announcements

Black Mass Communications Project will be holding their weekly meeting today at 6:00 in Room 114 of New Africa House.

It is imperative that all members attend. The agenda will include the finalization of the newly amended constitution and election of new officers will be discussed for next year.

The Black Scientist Society is having a meeting Thurs., April 9, 75 at 6:30 p.m. in Room 315, New Africa House.

Topics under discussion will be the Honoria, and new Projects of interest to the Third World Community. During the meeting there will be two films presented. "The Quickie" and "The Bed" are films in relation to our Public Health Peer Sex component. All science and non-science majors are urged to attend.

The Malcolm X Room is interested in professional assistant to teach three credit courses for next semester (fall 1975). If interested, you must submit a proposal and a resume to the Malcolm X Center, no later than April 20, 1975. All Proposals should include: the purpose of the course, title, a syllabus, for the semester, a bibliography, exam requirement, and the process by which students can evaluate the course is necessary.

We are requiring that each individual, submit twenty copies of all materials. The courses must be taught by a Grad. student or applicants should have an advisor to report their activities to.

Any Third World individuals interested in applying for the position of advisor of the Malcolm X Center should submit a resume no later than April 18, 75.

The advisor position requires the person to have some experience in programming activities; budgeting and some public relations.

The Malcolm X Center is open from 1:00 p.m. - 1:00 a.m. Mon.-Thur; and Fri. 1:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m.; closed all day Saturday and open Sunday from 1:00 p.m. - 12 midnight. For further information contact the Malcolm X Center, located below the Berkshire Dining Commons. All phones are 545-2819.

Student Volunteer Services in conjunction with the Afro-Am Department will sponsor Tran Van Dinh, as a guest speaker. This is as part of SVS's Film-Lecture Series on Thursday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Malcolm X Center in Southwest. Tran Van Dinh, a former Vietnamese governmental diplomat, fought in the Vietnam People's Army (VPA) during its early inception. His early involvement in the people's struggle makes him an indispensable reservoir of first hand knowledge on the Indochina situation, as well as showing some basic affinity toward the struggle. He will speak on a very timely topic, "Vietnam and the Black Liberation Struggle," which in itself speaks to a phase of the present development in Vietnam today.

Large selection of attaché cases.
at
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St.
Amherst

Springfield police kill Puerto Rican youth

The following is a commentary by Juan Cruz

When there is malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance in the local, or state law enforcement, the FBI has the right to step in and investigate the matter.

It should be obvious to any citizen that the incident that took place on March 29, 1975 in the city of Springfield. Massachusetts is clearly a case of misfeasance. The tragic event took the life of a Puerto Rican youth gunned down by two Springfield police officers.

Why was there misfeasance? According to the news media, and it is now a fact, the officers, although the media did not put it that way, did in fact tamper with the scene of a crime in which they were directly involved. The officers removed their victim from the scene by force. According to a Springfield officer, "The victim refused to get in the police cruiser, and the officers that shot him had to handcuff him in order to remove him from the scene and take him to the hospital."

The victim's injuries were thus aggrevated by the action of the two officers. The big question is, why did the officers tamper with the scene of the crime? Was it out of concern to save the victim by rushing him to the hospital? Obviously that was not the reason, for if that had been the concern, then why did they shoot an unarmed person in the first place?

They tampered with the scene when they suddenly realized they had committed a crime. They removed the incriminatory evidence. Another aspect of the incident was the fact that the officers removed incriminatory evidence from the scene, but also a procedural violation: namely, that when an officer fires his revolver at a citizen, he is immediately to call an ambulance to the scene, summon a superior officer, and notify the detective bureau. He must by obligation remain at the scene, in order to protect it, and to await the arrival of the above mentioned.

These proceedures were not adhered to by the officers involved in the shooting. As to why they failed to do it must be based on the principle of law that says that if there is no corpus delicti, there is no murder. However, there was a corpus delicti, but it turned up at the hospital, not at the scene. Furthermore, the victim was not removed from the scene by the experts needed to prevent aggravation of injuries to the victim, i.e. the ambulance attendants. Neither did the detective bureau get a chance to examine and photograph the victim at the scene. Maybe a picture was worth a thousand words.

One of the things that bothers the FBI is the ignorance of local police in dealing with evidence. The FBI often refers to them as yokels because of their inadequacies. In the Springfield incident however, the officers or the misfeasors knew well what they were doing. Tampering with evidence!

As a former police officer, I recall five incidents in which I was involved in gun complaints. One of them was an attempt on my life. I would have been justified, had I used deadly force, and legally I would have been vindicated. I decided to use no force at the time, but only the threat of force, and it worked. No one died. I noted though, an apprehension that plagued my fellow officers concerning what they would do if they ever shot a person who later was found to be unarmed. Consistently, in two years of police work, the suggestion was to say that they saw something shiny in the victim's hands. By interpretation, that is supposed to save an officer in such situations, and it has. As it appears in this case, the shiny object, namely a screwdriver, was planted at the scene. However this joke used by the killers of man must stop. One hope at exposing these officers is the FBI but greatest of all is the people's support in our endeavor to expose these killers. It could happen to you!

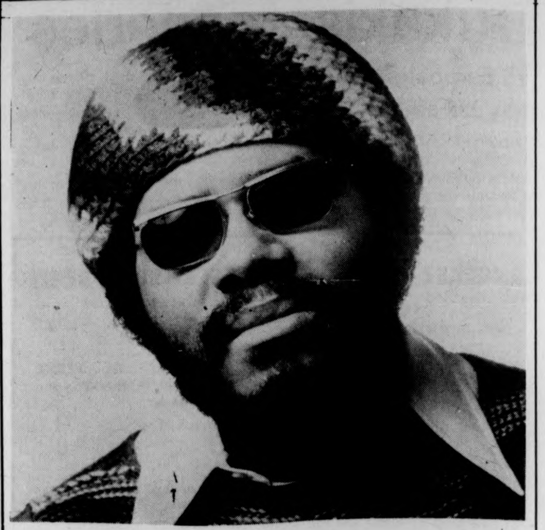
Lonnie Liston Smith & 'The Cosmic Echoes' Concert

Lonnie Liston Smith was born in Richmond, Virginia. He comes from a very musical family. His father is a member of The Harmonizing Four (a spiritual quartet). His brother, Ray sang with The Jarmels. His brother Donald, sang with the University of Illinois Jazz Band and is now a member of The Cosmic Echoes.

Lonnie received a Bachelor of Science Degree in Music from Morgan State College. After college, Lonnie worked with the Royal Stage Band. Seeking a better climate in which to develop musically, Lonnie came to New York City in 1963. He has since evolved into a competent composer and arranger. He is the leader of his own group The Cosmic Echoes.

Until recently, Lonnie was probably best known as the pianist-arranger-composer for the Pharoah Sanders Group and The Gato Barbieri Group. Lonnie has also worked with such Jazz Giants as: Miles Davis, Leon Thomas, Betty Carter, Ethel Ennis, Joe Williams, Art Blakey, Rahsaan Roland Kirk, as well as Pharoah and Gato.

Lonnie records for The Flying Dutchman Label (an affiliate of RCA). His first album, ASTRAL TRAVELING (FD10163) consisted of six original compositions. His second album, COSMIC FUNK has three original tunes on it and his third album, soon to be released, EXPANSIONS has six original compositions.



"I believe that music is the ruling force of the Cosmos. I hope that my music will give each and everyone who hears it a clearer insight into the purposes of life and the reasons for being on this planet at this time in space," explained Lonnie Liston Smith. It should be noted that Lonnie Liston Smith was co-composer for the entire score on Jewels of Thought. On Summun, Bukmun, Umyun (Deaf, Dumb and Blind), Lonnie composed and arranged one entire side "Let us Go Into the House of the Lord". Thembi contains two of Lonnie's original compositions: "Astral Traveling" and "Morning Prayer". Some of his other compositions are: IMANI (Faith), ASPIRATIONS, REJUVENATION, IN SEARCH OF TRUTH, COSMIC FUNK, BEAUTIFUL WOMAN, PEACEFUL ONES, SUMMER DAYS, EXPANSIONS, SHADOWS, DESERT NIGHTS AND VOODOO WOMAN.

Discover the spiritual energetic sounds of Lonnie Liston Smith and the Cosmic Echoes, Fri., April 11, 1975 at 8:00 p.m., Student Union Ballroom. Along with Lonnie Smith will be Jimmy Garrison, Bassist; Grachan Moncur, Trombonist; and Zane Massey, Reeds. The admission is free. The event is sponsored by several UMass organizations.

The Brothers
and
Little Sisters of
PHI MU DELTA
invites all university men to an
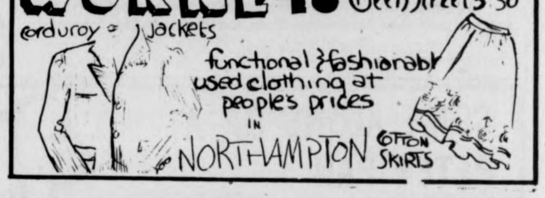
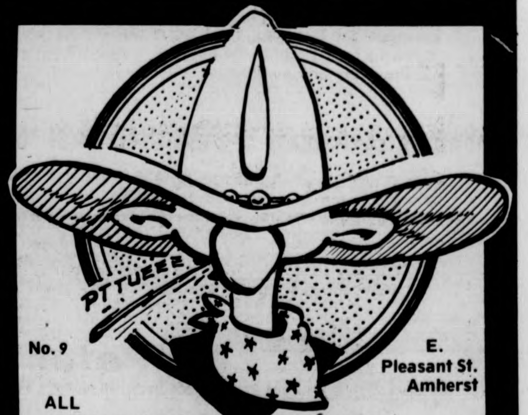
Open Rush
TONIGHT 8:30
FREE BEER



PRAKTIKLY WORNE USED CLOTHES USED CLOTHES
48 Green Street 10 to 5:30
corduroy jackets
functional & fashionable used clothing at peoples prices
IN NORTHAMPTON
COTTON SKIRTS

BELL'S
BELL'S
BELL'S

BELL'S PIZZA HOUSE
PIZZA — SPAGHETTI — GRINDERS
65 University Drive
Amherst is a remarkable place — our pizza house is ONE of the reasons. Bell's Pizza FOR ALL the right reasons.
Free Delivery on Campus
Call 256-8011 for fast service.

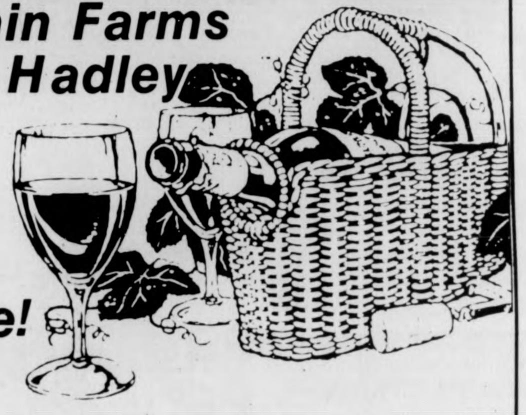


No. 9 E. Pleasant St. Amherst
ALL SINGLE ALBUMS $4.17 EACH
Latest Releases — Top Artists
SUNSHINE RECORDS

PIZZA-RAMA
355 College St., Rt. 9, Amherst
specializing in
PIZZAS, HOT OVEN GRINDERS and SPAGHETTI
STORE HOURS: Sun.-Thurs., 11 a.m.-Midnight
Fri., Sat., 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
Call 253-3808
"EXTRA SPEEDY DELIVERY"
between 5 p.m.-Midnight, every night
Best Food in Town — and the Lowest Prices

Staff Photo by Carol DeSousa

The last bits of lunch are up for grabs as these two fellows decide who's going to reach it first.



IT PAYS TO SHOP THE FINAST WAY
Mountain Farms Mall in Hadley
Beer and Wine Shoppe!
Schlitz Beer
case of 24 12 oz cans 5.69
Donelli Lambrusco .... 4/5 btl 1.79
Costa do Sol .... qt btl 2.49
Yago Sangria .... 24 oz btl 1.49
Folonari Lambrusco .... 68 oz btl 3.29
Manischewitz Sangria ...... 24 oz btl 1.79
Great Western Cream Sherry & Cocktail Sherry. 4/5 btl 1.79
Gunther Beer
case 24 - 12 oz cans
4.09
Finast® SUPERMARKETS
Prices Effective thru Sat., April 12
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

Economic conference to be held tomorrow

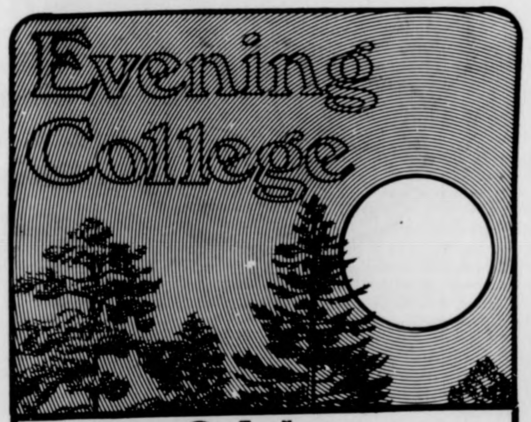
An economic outlook conference at UMass tomorrow will feature an address by Raymond J. Saulnier, former chariman of the Council of Economic Advisors to the President.

Saulnier is professor emeritus of economics at Barnard College, Columbia University. He is a trustee of The New York Bank for Savings, a charter trustee of Middlebury College, a member of the advisory committee for the Secretary of the Treasury, a public governor of the American Stock Exchange, and economic consultant or director of several industrial companies and financial funds.

The Thursday conference is sponsored by the UMass School of Business Administration. Invited to participate are state legislators, bankers, real estate agents, and personnel from private companies. issues to be considered include problems of wages and employment, costs and profits, prices and planning, and capital markets. Meetings will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the UMass Campus Center.

Other conference speakers will include: Dean George S. Odiorne, of the UMass School of Business Administration; and Prof. Sidney C. Sufrin, professor of general business and finance at the School.

Further information may be obtained from Dr. Bertil Liander, Management Development Programs, School of Business Administration, UMass, Amherst 01002.



Evening College
June 24 to August 15
If you like to learn after the sun goes down, you can take advantage of Summer Evening College. 50 courses are being offered in this program, including everything from Art to Zoology. As with all of our programs, we offer those important extras like financial aid, counseling services, and a lot of friendly personal attention. UMass is big enough to provide you with what you want, and small enough to give you what you need.
Registration is by mail or in person at Boyden Gymnasium on Monday, June 23, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. The Evening College is brought to you by the University of Massachusetts' Summer Program Office and Division of Continuing Education. For more information contact Continuing Education at Hills House North or call [413] 545-0905.
UMass/Amherst

SBA offers recession seminars

Marketing, sales management, and the recession are areas to be covered during two April seminars offered by the School of Business Administration at UMass.

The first seminar, tonight through Friday, will be concerned with "How to Cut Marketing Costs and Increase Profits." A "how-to" approach will point to marketing organization and policies needed to trim costly marketing operations and procedures which prosperity has allowed to proliferate. Seminar sessions will detail why unsettled economic conditions provide an opportunity to do something difference and profitable.

Speakers will be: Jack S. Wolf, professor and head of the marketing department at the UMass School of Business Administration; Parker M. Worthing, UMass associate professor of marketing; and Edward E. Emanuel, executive vice president of PLS, a subsidiary of the Penton Publishing Company.

The second seminar will be Wednesday, April 16, on "Sales Management in a Recessionary Period." It is designed for executives concerned with the role of sales in the marketing mix under current economic conditions. Sessions will include lectures, case analyses, problem indentification, and an opportunity for executives to analyze their own company situations and exchange ideas with other participants.

ONE WEEK LEFT!!

ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.

Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

Finast
SUPERMARKETS
IT PAYS TO SHOP THE FINAST WAY

Lamb Chops
Shoulder Chops
Genuine Spring
1.29 lb

Lamb Legs
Genuine Spring
Oven Ready-Whole
The Roast with the Hearty Rich Flavor ... Roast to a Crisp, Golden Brown ... Serve with Mint Jelly and Rice Pilaf
1.19 lb

Rib Lamb Chops Genuine Spring 1.59 lb
Loin Lamb Chops Genuine Spring 1.79 lb
LambCombination Shoulder Chops and Neck 99¢ lb
Ground Chuck Beef Fresh - Any Size Package 98¢ lb

Chicken Quarters
Breast With Wing
Leg With Back
49¢ lb

Center Cut Pork Loin Chops
1.19 lb
Pork Loin Assorted Chops .... lb 89¢
Pork Loin Ribs Country Style .... lb 89¢
Pork Loin Roast Boneless Rib Portion lb 1.19

Treat Your Family to Mr. Deli Favorites and Save at Finast!
Baked Ham
Freshly Sliced to Order
1.89 lb
Roast Beef USDA Choice ..... half lb 1.39
American Cheese .... lb 1.19
In-Store Bake Shop!
Cake Donuts Plain, Sugar Cinnamon .... doz 69¢
Rye Bread or Pumpernickel ..... 1 lb loaf 55¢
Favorites from the Seven Seas!
Rainbow Trout
Frozen Eviscerated
1.19 lb
Cod Fillet Frozen .... lb 89¢

It Pays to Shop for Quality Produce the Finast Way!
FIRST O'THE FRESH
Asparagus
Fresh Tender
49¢ lb
McIntosh Apples
Crisp Aire US No 1 2¼" Min.
3 lb bag 49¢
Grapefruit Florida 23 Size.... 5 for 1.00
Navel Oranges Calif 72 Size 8 for 1.00
Pascal Celery .... 3 stks 1.00
Green Cabbage 2 lbs 29¢

Spring Cleaning Sale the Finast Way!
Corn Broom
Deck Mop
Wet Mop
Your Choice 1.88 ea
Finast Cleanser ..... 6 14 oz cans 1.00
Fantastik Spray with Trigger .... 22 oz btl 89¢
Mr. Clean Liquid Cleaner 10¢ Off Label ..... 28 oz btl 97¢
Fabric Softener Finast ... half gal 59¢
Paper Towels Finast ..... 175 ct roll 49¢
Window Cleaner Finast .. 16 oz can 49¢

Baked Fresh the Finast Way!
Big Round Top White Bread
Finast Fresh 3 20 oz lvs $1
Bakery Items Available Tues. thru Sat.

Hawaiian Punch Red, Grape or Very-Berry 46 oz can 49¢
Shortening Mrs. Tuckers Blended 3 lb can 1.19
Bounty Towels White or Assorted Colors 2 120 ct rolls 89¢
Cold Power Laundry Detergent 10¢ Off Label 49 oz pkg 1.09
Finast Soda All Flavors 48 oz btl 39¢

Stock Up on Frozen Food at Finast!
Finast Frozen Dinners
Turkey, Meatloaf Salisbury Steak or Fried Chicken 11 oz pkg 49¢
Cheese Pizza Chef Boy-ar-Dee .... 12 oz pkg 85¢
Waffles Aunt Jemima .... 10 oz pkg 57¢
Broccoli Spears Finast . 3 10 oz pkgs 1.00
Green Beans Finast French ..... 20 oz pkg 75¢

Sunrise Fresh Dairy Features!
Finast Corn Oil Margarine
Quarters 1 lb pkg 59¢
Frosted Shakes Bordens 3 7½ oz cans 78¢
Biscuits Finast Buttermilk .... 7 8 oz ctns 1.00
Orange Juice Finast 100% Pure ... half gal 69¢
Kraft Philadelphia Imitation Cream Cheese ...... 8 oz pkg 52¢

FREE
One 10½ oz can
Finast Chicken Noodle Soup
With This Coupon and Purchase $5 or More
Limit One Coupon Per Customer
H-176 Valid Thru April 12

15¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) 9½ oz Chipos Potato Chips 52 H113 Valid thru April 12
10¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) 13½ oz Keebler Deluxe Grahams 57 H114 Valid thru April 12
20¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) 17 oz Dow Bathroom Cleaner 62 H115 Valid thru April 12
30¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) 8 oz Sanka Inst. Coffee 67 H116 Valid thru April 12
15¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) 11 oz Easy-off Oven Cleaner 72 H117 Valid thru April 12
15¢ Off With This Coupon on (1) pkg Baggies Trash Bags 77 H118 Valid thru April 12

Check These Low Prices ... More Proof It Pays to Shop the Finast Way!
Instant Coffee Richmond ... 6 oz jar 89¢
Evaporated Milk Finast 4 13 oz cans 99¢
Toaster Pastry Finast .... 11 oz pkg 49¢
Hot Cocoa Mix Richmond .. 22 oz ctn 99¢
Nutter Butter Nabisco .... 13½ oz pkg 79¢
Del Monte Cut Green Beans ...... 16 oz can 35¢
Progresso Imported Italian Tomatoes .... 35 oz can 79¢
Sauerkraut Finast .... 27 oz can 39¢
Potatoes Finast Instant .... 13 oz pkg 59¢
Raisin Bran Kellogg's ..... 15 oz pkg 77¢
Bumble Bee Solid White Tuna in Oil .. 7 oz can 69¢
Finast Saltines .... 1 lb pkg 47¢
Diet Soda Finast ...... 4 28 oz btls 1.00
Fig Newtons Nabisco .... 16 oz pkg 79¢
Nilla Wafers Vanilla Nabisco .. 12 oz pkg 59¢
Kosher Dills Finast Whole .... 32 oz jar 59¢
White Vinegar Finast .... 32 oz btl 29¢
Crisco Oil .... 38 oz btl 1.89
Spaghetti Finast .... 1 lb pkg 39¢
Diapers Finast Overnight .... pkg 12 89¢

Prices Effective thru April 12, 1975
We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities
Not Responsible for Typographical Errors

STUDENT SENATE MEETING

TONIGHT

RM. 113
CAMP. CTR.
7 P.M.

Art Carney surprises academy

Compiled from Wires

LOS ANGELES — Art Carney was a surprise winner at the 47th annual Academy Awards Tuesday night, taking the best actor Oscar for his portrayal of a gallant old man with a pet cat in "Harry and Tonto" and the best actress award went to Ellen Burstyn for her performance as a housewife turned singer in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore."

The best supporting actor and actress Oscars went Tuesday night to a traditional favorite, Ingrid Bergman, and a surprise newcomer, Robert De Niro.

Miss Bergman collected her third Academy Award for her portrayal of a quirky, frightened woman in "Murder on the Orient Express," and De Niro for his role as a younger version of Marlon Brando's Don Corleone in "The Godfather Part II."

Miss Bergman won the best actress award in 1944 for "Gaslight" and 1956 for "Anastasia."

De Niro won by playing the same role that Marlon Brando originated in the first version of "Godfather." By a curious coincidence, both are proteges of dramatic coach Stella Adler, although 20 years apart.

The searing documentary of the Vietnam war, "Hearts and Minds," was awarded the Oscar as best documentary feature.

Producer Bert Schneider read a telegram from Ambassador Dinh Da Thi, chief of the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris political talks.

"Please transmit to all our friends in America our recognition of all that they have done on behalf of peace and for the application of the Paris Accords on Vietnam," the telegram said.

"Godfather Part II" won the Academy Award for best picture of the year last night.

The Oscar for best song went to "We May Never Love Like This Again," the theme from "Towering Inferno," with the Oscars being collected by Al Kasha and Joel Hirshhorn, who wrote the music and lyrics.

"Closed Mondays" won as best animated short subject, "One Eyed Men Are Kinds" as live action short and "Don't" as the best short documentary.

"Earthquake," which employed a low frequency sound wave system to vibrate seats and give moviegoers a small taste of what an earthquake feels like, won the best achievement in sound award and also a special award for visual effects.

A special award also went to French film maker Jean Renoir, son of the master painter of that name, for his contributions to film making and John Wayne gave another honorary award to director Howard Hawks.

The award for best original dramatic score went to "The Godfather Part II" and co-composers Nino Rota and Carmine Coppola, father of Francis Ford Coppola, producer and director of the film.

The award for best adaption of a musical score went to Nelson Riddle's "Great Gatsby" score.

D.V.P. presents
M.L.K. week
April 10
GOSPEL NIGHT
Ronnie Ingram Singers
Dorothy Love Coates
Campus Center Auditorium
8:00 p.m.

PHOTO SPECIAL

April 30th the Collegian will run a special issue on photography. All undergrads are invited to submit photographs in one or more of the (3) following categories:

Portrait, Still life, and Abstract.

Prizes will be awarded for first place in each category and first, second and third place will be published in that issue.

★ Corwin held in contempt

cont. from p.1

Judges John van Tol, David Bennett, and David Carter dismissed the charges of a violation of activities regulations, because the regulation is applicable to an RSO group and not to an individual representing an RSO group.

Motions for the dismissal of the remaining eight charges were denied. The judges said that sufficient evidence had been presented by the prosecution to warrant continuance of the charges.

Prosecutor Cindy Iris documented the alleged violations of the Student Code of Conduct and the RSO Financial Policy Act before the prosecution rested its case Monday night.

Corwin, testifying in his own defense, then read his statement. He continued to read loudly while the judges ordered him to restrain himself because his statement was "out of order." Corwin's defense advocates were asked to explain to him that he would be cited for contempt if he continued to ignore the judges.

A complete text of Corwin's statement follows:

"Thus far in this trial, I feel I have been denied due process. It is obvious to me after last night's hearing and after the proceedings tonight that this hearing is a mockery of justice. I'd like to suggest that I have been singled out, for reasons I don't even know about, to be an example for other RSO groups. Before this so-called court last evening, Bud Demers (business manager of RSO) stated that other groups were in violation of RSO policies, yet I am the only person charges are being brought against. Is that fair? Is this justice? My faith in the SGA judicial system is nil. Last night I sat before this court and watched these three judges, maybe kangaroo judges, Student Code of Conduct Part I, paragraph E4. In an essence, this court, in violation of the constitution is denying me due process.

"You people here are playing with my future life and I don't like it and I won't stand for it. Therefore, I would like to say at this time, that I am withdrawing myself from future proceedings of this court and will take the matter up directly with the administration. Goodnight."

Corwin, with a broad smile on his face, left the courtroom.

CALVIN Theatre
KING ST., NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
NOW NOW
Nominated for 11 Academy Awards
The Godfather PART II
Best Picture
Best Actor
Best Director
R RESTRICTED
2nd SMASH WEEK!
Eves: Godfather II — 7:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

Assistant RSO
Business Manager
Student Activities Office

QUALIFICATIONS:
- Bachelor's Degree in Business Management (or comparable experience)
- Working knowledge of Electronic Data Processing
- Substantial Student Service Orientation

BENEFITS:
Standard Full-time professional position benefits

Applications should be made no later than Fri., April 11, 1975 to J. Paul Margossian, Search Committee Chairperson, Rm. 420.

Student Government Association is an equal opportunity-Affirmative Action Employer

Fun City Fast!
Catch A Ride With Continental Trailways.
CONTINENTAL TRAILWAYS

A Continental Trailways Deluxe Motorcoach leaves Springfield for New York City every hour from 6:15 A.M. to 7:15 P.M. daily.

Peter Pan Bus Lines provide direct connecting service from:

■Amherst–leaving at 5:00 A.M. then hourly from 7:00 A.M. on through 6:00 P.M.

■South Hadley–leaving at 7:20 A.M., 9:30 A.M., 12:30 P.M., 2:30 P.M. and 4:15 P.M. . . . (7:20 A.M. by advance reservation–no reservation needed for other departures).

■Northampton–leaving at 5:20 A.M., then hourly from 7:20 A.M. on through 6:20 P.M.

Average running time to New York (George Washington Bridge Terminal) is just 3 hours . . . 30 minutes additional to midtown New York.

Minor variations in schedule on Sun. consult your local terminal.

Ride with Peter Pan and Continental Trailways. You'll meet interesting people like yourself, have time to read, relax and contemplate.

Ticket Offices:

Amherst
Peter Pan Bus Lines
79 South Pleasant St.
256-0431

Northampton
Peter Pan World Travel
Old South St.
586-1030

South Hadley
Peter Pan Bus Lines
25 College St.
533-7115

dvp proudly presents
TODAY!!!
PETER WATKINS
(documentary film maker)
will hold a seminar on "film censorship" at 1:30 in the Colonial Lounge.
At 7:00 his movie "Punishment Park" and lecture by Mr. Watkins will be in the S.U.B.
ALL WELCOME!! ALL FREE

letters

Detailed commuter budget

To the Editor:

As treasurer of the Commuter Assembly, I feel obligated to elaborate on Ms. Babner's letter to the editor of March 31st, concerning our budget allocations.

Ms. Babner asks several questions that I hope can be answered here regarding the Commuter Lounge renovation fund. I campaigned for the Commuter Assembly on a slate opposed to further lounge renovations. The $2000 plus spent last year for furniture and the $1500 allocated for this year was allocated by the previous Commuter Assembly leadership. A portion of the $1500 in this year's budget has been used to purchase additional lockers for commuting students.

The $14,000.00 "Other Lump Sum" category is the operating-program support for the Commuter Area Government activities. Projects as the Food Stamp Program, New Africa House Choir, Spring Day, Counseling Assistance for Older Students, the Student Auto Workshop, Afro-Am Society cultural events, "Ahora"-Latin American Week, the Springfield Tenants Union, the Tyefa African Dance Society, Indo-China Task Force, Student Activities-Winter Program, Hampshire Day House, U.W.W. Norfolk Prison Program, UMass Day-Care Centers, UMass Music Theatre Guild, the Pioneer Valley Tenants' Association, the UMass Off-Campus Housing Office and student food stamp and welfare services are but a few of the programs-services supported by the Commuter Assembly.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss our budget policy with Ms. Babner or anyone else. Our budget for fiscal 1975-76 will be printed in the Commuter Almanac to be mailed for all commuting students in two weeks.

I hope this information will correct any misinformation that Ms. Babner may have.

Paul Duffin, Treasurer
Commuter Assembly

Cooperation is the key

To the Editor:

Last week something happened in Amherst which may have much more profound consequences than the six people responsible dreamed of. These six residents, all voters and taxpayers, circulated a flyer urging voters in North Amherst's Precinct 1 to vote against candidates which the flyer labeled as 'transients', a catchword for student, radical, apartment dweller, and youth.

Since the age of majority became 18, the vast student body at the University of Massachusetts has been pretty much like a sleeping giant, content to dream on as the town and the university went their separate ways. There was never any reason to believe that student voting in this year's town election would be significantly or dangerously greater than in past years, regardless of the number of student candidates for town meeting.

That was, until six knights in shining armor went out to slay this sleeping menace, in order to protect their town and my town too.

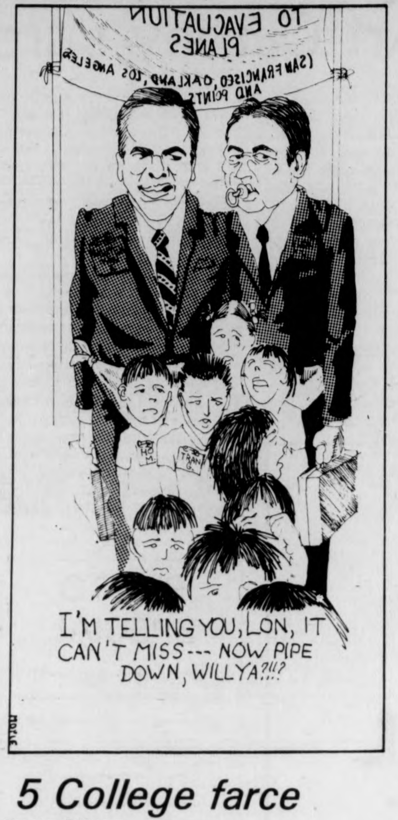
But what could six do against twenty thousand? At best they could only irritate the beast, and that is exactly what they succeeded in doing. The kind of coverage that these actions got in the local press, and particularly that at UMass, was certain only to create a backlash which could actually benefit the intended victims.

Anyway, no great harm was done, at least this year. The distribution of power in the town is going to be pretty much the same after the election as before. What may happen in future years is that the students will react to this kind of irritation, and they will return these courtesies in kind, and potentially, in spades.

I don't see a monolithic student bloc vote ever endangering Amherst, if the town learns to understand its special circumstances. It would do the town a lot of good to have more input from low income, student, and other youthful elements into its governmental processes. But, I worry that the present neutral relationship between this large student body and the townspeople could become an antagonistic one, one which would do no one any good.

I grew up in Amherst, and I always thought that what made Amherst a good place to live, are the people in it. All the people in it. When some of the members start attacking others over insignificant details of their experience here, especially when all parties should have the best interests of everyone in mind, it sort of makes you wonder about your estimation of the place you live in.

Frederic E. Cann



TO EVACUATION PLANES
(SAN FRANCISCO, OAKLAND, LOS ANGELES AND POINTS
HO M.
TRAN G.
I'M TELLING YOU, LON, IT CAN'T MISS--- NOW PIPE DOWN, WILLYA?!!?

5 College farce

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to the Collegian, because I am a UMass student, in the hope that someone will read it and get the message. This is a formal complaint about the so-called Five College "community" and how it is run. I would first like to mention the recent enforcing of bus rules, which consist of not letting anyone out anywhere except at "designated" college stops, even if the vehicle already happens to be stopped at a red light.

I would also like to point out the hassle it creates for people who care to avoid useless detours. Not to mention how nasty some bus drivers are with their anti-student attitudes. Then I would like to ask why both in Amherst and Smith busses stop for ten minutes while they hever stop for more than one minute at UMass.

As a result, some people often miss their bus at these stops. You might call it favoritism, I do.

Then I would like to ask Mount Holyoke College why it is not possible to renew books by phone. I happen to live ten miles away and I just can't truck on up to South Hadley every time I want to renew a book. Is this what they call "cooperation"? At Smith Art library they do everything they possibly can to make it difficult for me to take books out, and always hassle me about returns, fines, etc.

Is it because I'm a male and a UMass student and I happen to look a bit scraggly, or am I just getting paranoid like the administrators seem to be? If anyone has any gripes similar to these [there are many more which I have left out] concerning Five Colleges, Inc. please voice them at once!

Nicholas A. Martin

Action more than thought needed

By BILL FOSTER

Perhaps what I'm going to say won't surprise you but it shocked me. It was caused by the discovery of something very ugly, something I assumed to be nothing more than a sexist cliche, never realizing that to others it could be a very harsh reality. It's akin to the shock of white America on realizing existence of racism. The situation: students who are approached by their instructors with overt sexual overtures just because they happen to be women.

I'm sure at this point, a hush goes around the room. And the reason is that it's automatically assumed that not only would teachers never abuse their power, but that unsavory situations like this only happen in Playboy, the movies and soap operas. What a shock to our modern up-to-date liberal/ victorian morality. course we could apply the same mentality that we give to rape victims. "So your dignity as a human being was slighted, eh? You have a lot of nerve being outraged. Just what exactly is your moral character like?" Once again the victim is blamed for the crime.

The next question to be asked is, how often does this happen?

The more inquiries I made, the more often this sort of situation occured. And to those who still disbelieve, I find it more than a coincidence that almost without exception any woman I asked had been through such an experience or had a close friend who had. Now I'm not too excited about the unquestioned power of teachers anyway, but when that authority presumes into sexual intrigue, it's time to raise some serious questions.

"Why do these cases go unreported?" I asked. One answer was "If nothing but words have passed, who's going to listen?"

Another woman said, "I said no, and didn't want to go (discuss) any further. It was probably going to be trouble for me and the instructor."

I can't really argue with the last comment. It is one thing for someone on the outside of the situation to buck and kick about the unjust sexist implications of it all and quite another to actually be involved in the embarassing scene of trying to report it. Several people I spoke with not only mentioned one department here on campus but even named certain professors as being famous for the "lay for an A" routine. As this is written, a sense of hopelessness prevails. This is old news for those who've been there, and will probably be disregarded by those who find it hard to believe. But in terms of public information, of spreading an alarm and perhaps making more people aware, maybe it is not so futile. If nothing else is done than to start thinking, we're closer to an answer.

Bill Foster is a Collegian Columnist

send a letter to the editor

campus comments

Did you vote in the Amherst town election?
If so, why? If not, why not?

text by William Mills photography by Jim Higgins

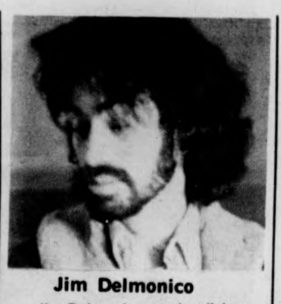
Robyn Rex

Robyn Rex, junior, living in John Quincy Adams — No, I didn't. I really meant to. I guess I lost track of time. It's not that I'm not up on the issues. I'm ashamed I didn't (vote).

Sally Johansson, first semester at UMass, resident of South Amherst — I'm going to vote because I'm a registered voter of Amherst and also because I'm really concerned about the town. I'm primarily concerned about the growth of the town. I think a lot of students aren't aware of what's happening in the community.

Sally Johansson

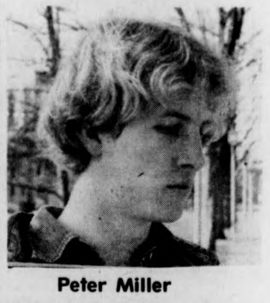


Jim Delmonico

Jim Delmonico, senior, living in McNamara — Yes, I voted because it was the first time I've been allowed to vote being a student here for two and half years. I think it's important to vote. A lot of students don't know about many of the issues because they don't have time ... to search for themselves. I'm particularly concerned about housing, rent, autonomy, student unionization.

Melanie Monsour, freshman, living in Wheeler House — No, because I'm not interested at all. I hate to say it, but I guess I'm apathetic. If it wasn't apathy, I would have taken the time to vote. I'm really involved in my own little world.

Melanie Monsour



Peter Miller

Peter Miller, junior, living in John Adams — No, because the town affairs don't really interest me. I'm more interested in other things. If I wanted to vote I could have, but I just didn't have the time.

reid fishman

A land full of heroes

The pretty princess parades her buttocks daily for the masses who've already seen it on television. In the Student Union Ballroom, Coqueclicot pirouettes for a stranger who's not so sure as everyone else seems to be.

Meanwhile, Benjamin walks through campus singing "Dee, dee dee dee, dee dee, dee dee, dee dee, dee dee, dee; doo, doo doo doo, doo doo, doo doo doo." By the library, he checks out Scarlet and her lovely O'Hara as she prances on by.

The Wicket Witch of the West sells jewelry on the concourse and directs tours of the merry old land of Oz, while Wyatt Earp stands in the bathroom and wonders who really shot Liberty Valance.

James Bond stands in front of the class with his hand in his pocket and his nose in the air and looks suspiciously at his eager young proteges. He wonders when they'll learn the ways of violence.

Captain America comes cruising by on his Harley Davidson, chucking revs at little girls who wish they had a man of their own, and the university keeps moving on.

The Trapp Family sings in the Fine Arts Center on Monday afternoon when nobody is watching. They need the practice.

There's nothing wrong with it all. It's just UMass and the ways of the world. Still there's something typically Hollywood about it all. Maybe it's just the time of year.

And the Keystone crew rides through in their White machines, declaring that it's only in the interest of freedom to kill. It's not so different here.

Don Corleone and his friends are still in control of it all. They supply UMass with crossroads — fuel for the academic fire.

Millions take their tests and learn about what people really do and watch what they'd like people to do and like it better that way so they figure that's the way it should be and they should be so that's the way it is and they are.

So they say, "That's life," and give up after all. It's only Chinatown philosophy and quite effective in the modern, unnecessary world, but somewhat unnecessary in the real world, for we're all stars in our own right.

Every prancing Scarlet and singing Benjamin and hard-driving Captain American can be found right under our very noses ... right here in the bastion of plasticity. It's just a land full of heroes.

> "Oh I wish my life was a non-stop Hollywood movie show, > a fantasy world of Celluloid villains and heroes.
> Because celluloid heroes never feel any pain,
> and celluloid heroes never really die."

Reid Fishman is a Collegian Columnist.

A sad state of affairs

By CHIP LALONDE

Last Monday night the Executive Committee of the Student Senate turned down SPECTRUM's budget appeal. This means that for the third year in a row SPECTRUM will only publish one issue. I find this a very sad state of affairs, and a very sad comment on the value systems of our elected leaders.

SPECTRUM used to be a thriving RSO group and a powerful voice for all creative persons on campus. We published two and sometimes three times a year in a high-quality format which complemented their work. We were the recipient of a National Printing Award, being judged alongside professional four-color publications from across the country. Our reputation among college literary magazines was steadily growing. Then, a couple of years ago, something happened. Our budget was cut almost 50 per cent and then even more the next year. SPECTRUM's powerful voice became a feeble squeak which could quite easily be ignored.

The following is a breakdown of SPECTRUM's funding for the past five years:

1970-71 - $24,615 - 4.44 per cent of total budget.
1971-72 - $26,522 - 4.17 per cent of total budget.
1972-73 - $26,175 - 4.06 per cent of total budget.
1973-74 - $14,075 - 1.62 per cent of total budget.
1974-75 - $13,167 - 1.33 per cent of total budget.

These figures indicate the degree to which SPECTRUM has fallen in importance in the eyes of the Senate. However, it is not SPECTRUM that has lost its value, rather it is the value systems of the senators which are out of line. SPECTRUM is very important. This magazine is the sole outlet of its type on campus that is open to all forms of creative expression by all UMASS undergraduates in the fields of prose, poetry, photography, and artwork. SPECTRUM means new ideas, new perspectives, creative energies, productivity, incentive, imagination, beauty, and the countless other rewards which creativity brings. I'd say that's a pretty handsome return we're offering on their investment.

The easiest charge for the senators to throw at us is that we are not being realistic in our demands. They accuse us of failing to take into consideration the fact that there are new RSO groups being formed who also want a slice of the pie. What they are failing to recognize, however, is the fact that SPECTRUM has been forced to bear more than its fair share of this burden. Surely not all RSO groups have had to be cut 50 per cent to allow for the new ones! In the minds of the senators, SPECTRUM is expendable. The budget cut which SPECTRUM has had to live with is disproportionate and crippling. Our request for funding of two issues would take a little more than three per cent of the total budget. How can this be construed as an unreasonable request?

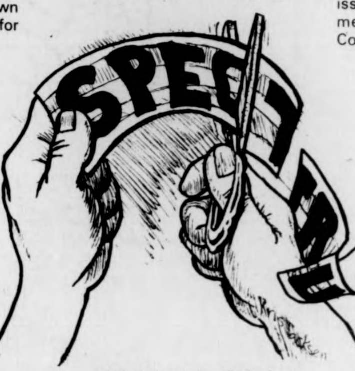
Two weeks ago, we gathered 412 signatures on a petition which read: "We, the undersigned, feel that creative expression should be an important part of the University, and therefore support SPECTRUM's request for $31,135 from the Budgets Committee."

These 412 signatures were gathered almost entirely in one day because we were then also involved in completing the layout for the present issue. This is a considerable number of signatures in a considerably short period of time. I presented this petition to the Executive Committee at our appeal. Sadly, student leaders are not responsive to the feelings of their constituents. It meant nothing to them.

At present, things do not look bright for SPECTRUM. The budget (enough for one issue) which was recommended by the Budgets Committee will next be sent to the whole Senate as a part of a package consisting of all the recommended budgets for all the RSO groups. The Senate must either accept or reject the entire package. To reject it would mean more work for themselves.

Yet, I still have faith in the Senate as a whole. The glaring injustice of SPECTRUM's plight is outstanding — and I cannot believe that the Senate would allow this to continue.

We're SPECTRUM, the voice of creative people on campus. How unfair that we should be reduced to a token gesture.



Chip Lalonde is a Collegian guest commentator and Editor of Spectrum joyce kosofsky

The nonentity tax

In view of such matters as the Universal Fee (although this issue is not a live one, it is far from dead) and Campus Center Fees (which basically allows us to walk through the building) I feel as though these situations are being dealt with properly.

It seems as though the powers that be within this University have taken it upon themselves to make the students pay for debts which the students had never wanted in the first place.

I offer a better solution. Why not just charge students for those resources that they will never use? That would solve everything. At least to the type of logic that is now employed by the administration.

For example, I personally have no use for male athletic supporters that are given at Boyden. Who not tax me $2.00 a year for their non-use?

Or, charge persons that don't have meal tickets $10.00 a semester for not using the facilities of the Dining Commons. That would surely pay off some of the bonds that are held on those buildings.

Charge commuters $50.00 a semester for not living in the dorms and in ten years the University would own every residence hall.

Tax every student a quarter every time they don't go into Herter Hall. What a veritable fortune that would yield yearly.

This system wouldn't be fool proof however. If Food Services were to tax every student for each drink they didn't have, the TOC would need more than a McDonald's Francise to save it.

But if the Campus Center Store were to tax students on every article of clothing not sold there, it would make up for the loss at the TOC.

If the University wants to pay off its debts by taxing students then charge us for not using Pres. Wood's helicopter when we want to commute from here to Boston and vice-versa. Maybe that would pay for his office expenses and save the taxpayers of the Commonwealth some big bucks.

And if the University was into big buck making it would levy a 15 per cent tax on all taxes were to be taxed.

Does this all sound a little far fetched? It's not as off the wall as the Universal Fee, Campus Center Fee, Athletic fee, etc. sounds to me. It sounds more like taxation without representation.

And isn't that what we fought a revolution for?

Joyce Kosofsky is a Collegian Columnist

more letters to the editor

Concrete Paradise

To the Editor:

O.K., so Southwest has the highest rate of damage and crime on campus, but S.W. also contains the largest number of people on campus. We may not be the most perfect place to live, but we do have a lot going for us. It is mainly because of our large size, S.W. contains a variety of people and things to do.

Every other Saturday night, Washington Lower sponsors a FREE coffeehouse featuring some of the best talent on and off campus. The S.W. Women's Center offers a multitude of colloquium ranging in variety from amateur auto mechanics to women's roles and mental health. There is a Pre-couselor training colloque and an abundance of workshops from dance to racism to gourmet hot-plate cooking which come under the Living Skills colloque in Washington Tower.

People call Southwest the "Concrete City" or refer to it as the "Zoo", but S.W. isn't all that different [or any worse] than any place else on campus. Yes, S.W. does have a lot of parties, but with over 5,000 residents of course someone is going to be partying at one time or another. And yes, living in an area almost completely concrete can be tiresome, but I'd rather have a little concrete than a ton of mud. If you ever get really down by the cement, you only have to walk a few yards and you're in the fields. And, I know, some people say that living in a Tower is like living in a pit, well, I don't agree — if a person is going to be a slob, he'll be a slob in Lewis or Brooks just as easily as he'd be slob in Washington or J.A.

I don't mean to say that S.W. is a Utopia — it's not!! But, it certainly isn't the Hell Hole some people think it is. I live in a tower, and I don't think life here is bad at all. The people are friendly, and I feel that's the most important thing. I can't think of a place on campus I'd rather live than Washington Lower.

Bonnie J. Ward

Got a gripe? suggestion? Send a letter to the editor. Over 25,000 will read it!!

Car rally set for Saturday

J.F. Kennedy Middle will sponsor the First Annual UMass Car Rally to be held on Saturday, April 12. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning in front of Alumni Stadium with the rally getting underway at 10 a.m.

A car rally is a unique event and it is not to be confused with a car race. In a car rally all that is needed is a car and the ability to follow a set of directions: You must be able to pick out various objects along the way. Also, you must answer some questions about the route. The winners of the rally will be those who can identify these objects and answer the questions correctly.

There are excellent prizes for the winners. You can win a calculator from Soundscope, or dinners at the Rusty Scupper or the Steak Out. There are also gift certificates from Old Weird Harold's, Papa Ginos, Bells, Hungry U II, and Dominoes. Finally, there is a prize of incense from Faces of Earth.

There is a $3 fee per car to enter the rally payable at registration. The rally will be set on the backroads surrounding Amherst. Students who have cars and want to have a good time, should come down to the Alumni Stadium Saturday.

After the rally come to the 12th floor of Kennedy for a few brews on us. The winners will be announced then.

There will be an Amherst police car entered. Do you think that you are a better driver than the Amherst police? For further information call: 546-7801, 546-7728, 546-7761, 546-7794, 546-7791.

British journalist to speak tomorrow

At noon on Thursday, April 10, Roger Moody, British journalist, will speak at the Center for International Education in Hills South, Room 287, on current problems in Southwest Africa.

Recently returned from the area, Moody will discuss progress and hopes of the Namibian independence movement and its prospects for success. He will also deal with the roles now being played in the situation by the U.S., the United Nations and the Republic of South Africa. All interested are invited to attend and participate in the discussion.

Survey on UMass to be circulated in Amherst area

In the next few days you may receive a survey from the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office. That office is conducting a collaborative project with Hampshire and Amherst Colleges, and you may be one of the UMass students randomly chosen to answer the cycles survey. This survey is of importance in that it solicits your feelings and perceptions about UMass.

We are asking for your assistance in this project. Please complete and return the survey to us as soon as possible. Results of the survey will be sent to the Collegian.

THE PAPER HOUSE
65 University Drive
★ FAST COPY & PRINTING SERVICE
★ BINDING OF REPORTS AND TERM PAPERS
★ BLACK/HALFTONE AREAS I.E. PHOTOS
★ ALL TYPES OF PAPER & PAPER SUPPLIES

Campus Center food services presents:
this week's entertainment
April 9 — 14

The Hatch:
Shiela & Love Flame Wed. & Thurs.
Homecooking Wed. — Sat.

T.O.C.
Stacy Leeds Thurs. — Sat.

Bluewall:
Actual Proof Wed. — Sat.

Sunday 8:00 p.m.
Movie: Wonder Love — Stevie Wonder in Concert

Sunday 9:00 p.m.
JAZZ JAM SESSION
Monday: IRISH NIGHT

FREE BUS SERVICE
To Finast Super Market
Mountain Farms Mall
FREE BUS SERVICE between the Campus Center, U. Mass. and the Finast Super Market, Mountain Farms Mall, Russell and Maple Streets, Hadley
- THURSDAYS and FRIDAYS 4 pm to 9 pm
- SATURDAYS 11 am to 9 pm

Leaves Campus Center Every Hour on the Hour.
Leaves Finast Super Market Every Hour on the ½-Hour.

Finast® SUPERMARKETS

STORE HOURS!
FINAST of HADLEY
Open 8 am to 10 pm
Monday thru Saturday!

BLACK MUSIC IN AMERICA

a panel discussion with journalist —

Nat Hentoff
bassist —
Jimmy Garrison
trombonist —
Grachan Moncur III
professors —
Max Roach
Archie Shepp

Weds., April 9
7:30 p.m.
Noah Webster Lounge
Orchard Hill Residential College

in conjunction with the Fourth Annual Black Musicians Conference

Veterinarian calls for N.E. vet school

Members from the UMass Pre-Vet Club recently attended a meeting with other students from the New England area and the New England Board of Higher Education in Sutton, Mass.

Dr. George Whitney, a veterinarian from Orange, Conn., expressed his concern at the meeting for the need of a veterinary school in New England not only because of the shortage and demand for veterinarians, but for the greater need in the study of animal medicine. More emphasis has been placed on human medicine, while answers to many human diseases have been determined through animals, according to Whitney.

Enough protein to feed the world would result from the control of three diseases: foot-and-mouth, rinderpest, and trypanosomiases. Losses of livestock due to diseases reach 15-20 per cent in the U.S. each year alone. Significant research is being done on lower animals, but due to the shortage of vets, many physicians are doing the research. It is difficult for them because they cannot understand the problems that arise with animals as a veterinarian can, said Whitney.

Whitney urged all students to pressure legislatures and get friends and relatives to write letters in support of the establishment of a veterinary school in New England.

William Gearin, chairman of the committee to establish a veterinary school in New England, showed slides of the lands and buildings at Grafton State Hospital, Grafton, Mass. for a proposed college of veterinary medicine. He also encouraged students throughout the New England area to write to all governors and legislatures and express their desire for a school in New England.

Art Gallery seeks new ad design

Do you need 25 dollars? We need a Design! In the Fall of 1975 the Herter Art Gallery will become a student run gallery with the help and cooperation of the art dept. faculty and administration. In conjunction with the running of this gallery, we need a new design for gallery advertising posters. The Herter Art Gallery needs a design to use for their official logo. The design will be used on the calender poster of events, and publications, stationery and bulletins issued out of the gallery.

Designs should be submitted to Herter Hall, Room 125A before April 25, 1975. For info. call 545-0976. There will be a $25.00 prize for the design chosen.

UMass chosen for National Bicentennial

UMass has been designated a National Bicentennial Community.

Regional Director Georgia Ireland of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission in Boston made the announcement in a letter to Dr. John W. Lederle, chairman of the campus Bicentennial Committee.

The designation was based on an extensive program which Lederle's committee submitted to the commission. The University's Bicentennial activities emphasize the future while recognizing the wisdom of the nation's founding fathers.

Feminist program sponsors play

The Feminist Arts Program of Everywoman's Center is sponsoring "The Girl of Our Dreams", a Satirical Revue, on Monday, April 14 at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

The play was first performed as part of Women's Cultural Week at the University. Due to the overwhelming response, the cast who has written the Revue as well, has agreed to do another performance as a Benefit for Everywoman's Center.

LIQUOR SUPERMARKETS
★ SPRINGFIELD
BRECKWOOD BLVD. - WILBRAHAM RD.
★ NORTHAMPTON
'HAMP PLAZA — RTE. 5, NORTH KING ST.
★ FAIRVIEW
NEXT TO BIG "Y" - MEMORIAL DRIVE from our well-stocked
LIQUOR, BEER AND WINE SHOPPES

SMIRNOFF VODKA 80 Proof Quart $4.99
SCHAEFER BEER 24 — 12 oz. N.R. Bottles $4.49
CASTLE RUBOUN by Luigi Cavalli LAMBRUSCO 24 oz. bottles $1.99
FELLOWS GIN 80 proof ½ gallon $7.79
Paul Mason Burgundy — Rhine Chablis — Rose gallons $4.99
BUDWEISER BEER 24 — 12 oz. cans $5.49

WE RESERVE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITY.
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.
AFROTC
An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.
- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

UMass Wood Science, Tech program to hold student-industry dinner

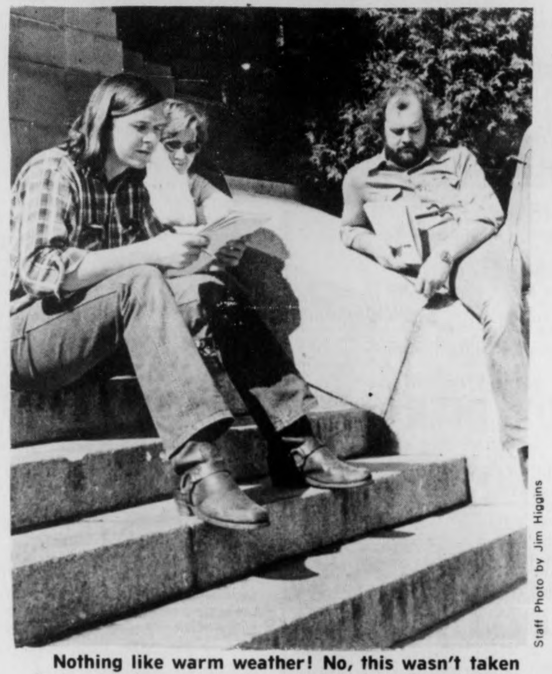
James P. Olmedo, Jr., of the International Paper Co. will be the main speaker at this year's student-industry dinner of the University of Massachusetts Wood Science and Technology program, to be held tonight at the Lord Jeffrey Inn.

Olmedo, an alumnus of the UMass wood science program, was formerly a forest products analyst for Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith. He will talk on "Economic Outlook and Opportunities in the Forest Products Industry."

Also on the program will be the national president of the Forest Products Research Society, (FPRS), Dr. Richard Bloomquist. He will present a charter to the UMass student chapter of the society, the first in the country to be organized by students. He will also present awards to outstanding students.

The following day, many wood technology faculty and students will attend the FPRS Northeast Section Spring Meeting at the Bay State West Motor Hotel in Springfield. The topic is potential and current utilization concepts in wood residues and three from UMass will give presentations.

ATTENTION: Students & Faculty
The Textbook Annex will start returning Spring 1975 unsold books on APRIL 15th
UNIVERSITY STORE Textbook Annex 10 – 4 Mon. – Fri.



Staff Photo by Jim Higgins

Nothing like warm weather! No, this wasn't taken last year, but only a few weeks ago when the old mercury actually climbed above 50 degrees. Don't worry, summer is on its way.

Student Development Center offers career workshops

On the following dates, the Student Development Center will be offering a series of one-session career development workshops focusing on resume writing:

Thurs., April 10; 7-10 p.m.; C.C. 803

Tues., April 25; 7-10 p.m.; C.C. 903

Some of the questions that will be addressed during these sessions include:

"What does a job mean to me?"

"What marketable skills do I have?"

"How do these answers translate onto a resume?"

These workshops are free and open to all interested students. For registration and more information, call Charlene Campbell at 546-4556.

One other person was all he needed. One.
Somehow... it could be everyone's story.
Tel. 774-4881
SAT. & SUN.
MAT. AT 1 & 3
world wide pictures presents
time to run
eastmancolor
starring ed nelson · randall carver · barbara sigel
also starring joan winmill · gordon rigsby · special screen appearance billy graham
GARDEN THEATRE
GREENFIELD, MASS.
Starts Tonite – One Week
Nightly at 7 & 9:15
No Passes – No Bargain Nites

Radio Shack
of Amherst,
'locally owned'
SERVICE . . .
is our most important product
WE HAVE INFORMED INTERESTED SALES PEOPLE TO FILL EVERY AUDIO NEED
We're reliable and know our customers want equipment and parts that work . . . and we're working for you!
'your everything in audio store'
318 College St.(Rt.9) Amherst

Appearing
TONITE — SUN.
Big Screaming McGrew
at
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47
Sunderland

---

notices

cont. from p. 17

POLISH AMERICAN CULTURAL ASSOCIATION

Will hold an important meeting. Topics will include picnic, international fair, next year's activities, future budget, room space, and formation of club library as well as printing club paper. Meeting held Room 165 lower level of the Campus Center at 7:30 p.m.

PRE-DENT CLUB MEETING

There will be a general meeting of the Pre-Dent Club on Wed. April 9 at 7:00 p.m. in CC 808. Plans for a rifle will be discussed and dues will be collected. All are urged to attend.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY

Due to scheduling conflict PMS meetings on 4-10 and 4-24 have been cancelled. In their place a trip is scheduled to UMass Medical School for the afternoon of 4-24. Arrange your schedule now so that you may go — watch for notices for sign up. Meeting 5-1 also.

SCUBA CLUB

No meeting tonight, next meeting Wed. 16th. For information on Rockport Trip April 20 and 21 call 546-5811.

SPECTRUM STAFFERS

Important meeting Thursday night 7:30 in the Spectrum Off.

STRATEGIC GAMES CLUB MEETING

The Strategic Games Club will meet tonight in the CC from 5 p.m. to closing. Everybody welcome.

TRAIL RIDERS

All members and all those interested, meet at 65 McClellan Street at 8 p.m.

UMASS SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB

There will be a class held on April 9 at 7:00 p.m. Room 168-170-172 CC. This is the first class of spring.

UMASS VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT.

Meeting tonight. Wed., April 9 at 7 p.m. in Rm. 908 CC. We're revising our constitution. Show up if you have anything to say about it. New members welcome.

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
Special Midnight Show
Friday 4/11 & Saturday 4/12
"BERNIE TRAVIS PLAYS LENNY WITH DEADLY PRECISION." PLAYBOY
ALL THE WILDNESS... THE LOVES... THE SEX... THE BUSTS... THE MAD HUMOR... ALL THE BRILLIANCE OF THE MAN HIMSELF.
Released by THE FANFARE CORPORATION
METROCOLOR
R RESTRICTED
Introducing BERNIE TRAVIS as LENNY BRUCE
Dirtymouth
The Lenny Bruce Story
DIRTY MOUTH: FRIDAY & SATURDAY — 12:00

film times

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Amarcord 7, 9:15
AMHERST CINEMA
Ruling Class 7, The Producers 9
CALVIN THEATRE
Godfather 7:30
CAMPUS CINEMAS
Stepford Wives 7, 9
That's Entertainment 7, 9
A Woman Under the Influence 7, 9:45
DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN
Show starts at 7:45
EASTFIELD MALL
Reincarnation 7:30, 9:40
MT. FARMS 4 THEATRES
The Sting 6:00, 8:30
Front Page 6:15, 8:30
Amarcord 5:30, 6:00
Lenny 6:15, 8:30
SHOWCASE CINEMAS
Waldo Pepper 2, 7:20, 9:30
Funny Lady 2, 8:00
Shampoo 2, 7:15, 9:30
Lenny 2, 7:30, 9:45
The 4 Musketeers 2, 7:40, 9:30
Towering Inferno 8:15

TV tonight

6:00 EYEWITNESS NEWS (3)
ACTION NEWS (8)
THE CHAMPIONS "Shadow of the Panther." (18)
THE BIG NEWS 90 (22)
THE ELECTRIC COMPANY (24) (57)
SERGEANT BILKO "The Colonel's Promotion." (27)
THE NIGHTLY NEWS (30)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW (38)
BONANZA "Patchwork Man." (40)
LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE (56)
6:30 ABC EVENING NEWS (8)
NBC NIGHTLY NEWS (22) (30)
ITV TEACHER PREVIEW (24)
MOVIE "Home in Indiana." (27)
BEWITCHED (38)
ZOOM! (57)
6:45 ECONOMICS 201 (24)
6:55 NEWSBEAT NEWS (40)
7:00 CBS EVENING NEWS WITH WALTER CRONKITE (3)
TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES Bob Barker, host (8)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW "To Tell or Not to Tell." (18)
THE BIG NEWS (22)
TO TELL THE TRUTH Garry Moore, host (30)
ABC EVENING NEWS (40)
THE ROMAGNOLIS' TABLE (57)
7:30 NAME THAT TUNE Tom Kennedy, host (3)
$25,000 PYRAMID (8)
DEL REEVES COUNTRY CARNIVAL (18)
THE HOLLYWOOD SQUARES Peter Marshall, host (22)
THE NUTMEGGERS ALMANAC (24)
ANIMAL WORLD "Jungle Island." (30)
THE ANDY GRIFFITH SHOW "Barney and the Choir." (38)
ROOM 222 "I Didn't Raise My Girl to Be a Soldier." (40)
MARTIN AGRONSKY: EVENING EDITION (57)
8:00 TONY ORLANDO AND DAWN (3)
THAT'S MY MAMA "Mama Steps Out." (8) (40)
PASTOR'S PERSPECTIVE (18)
LITTLE HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE "The Love of Johnny Johnson." (22) (30)
FEELING GOOD (24) (57)
THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES (38)
DEALER'S CHOICE (56)
8:30 WEDNESDAY MOVIE OF THE WEEK Tba (8) (40)
BEHIND THE LINES (24) (57)
FRIENDS OF MAN (27)
GREEN ACRES (38)
DINAH! (56)
9:00 CANNON "Kelly's Song." (3)
THIS IS THE LIFE (18)
MOVIN' ON "Wedding Bells." (22) (30)
THEATER IN AMERICA (24) (57)
THE JACK BENNY SHOW (27)
9:30 HUMAN DIMENSION (18)
GOMER PYLE "Gomer Overcomes the Obstacle Course." (27)
THE DICK VAN DYKE SHOW (38)
10:00 THE MANHUNTER (3)
BARRETTA "Keep Your Eye on the Sparrow." (8) (40)
FAITH FOR TODAY (18)
LUCAS TANNER (22) (30)
WORCESTER NEWS (27)
MOVIE "I Accuse." (38)
PERRY MASON (56)
10:30 MAYOR'S HALF HOUR (18)
CHARLIE CHAPLIN COMEDY THEATRE (27)
11:00 EYEWITNESS NEWS (3)
NEWS, WEATHER, SPORTS (8) (18) (22) (27) (30) (40)
THE BEST OF GROUCHO (56)
CAPTIONED ABC EVENING NEWS (57)
11:30 WEDNESDAY STARLIGHT MOVIE "Sound of Anger." (3)
WIDE WORLD SPECIAL "Who's News." (8) (40)
THE TONIGHT SHOW STARRING JOHNNY CARSON (22) (30)
MOVIE "High Society." (27)
LAUGH CLASSICS (38)
THE BEST OF HOLLYWOOD (56)
1:00 NEWS (8) (40)
TOMORROW Tom Snyder, host (22) (30)

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE
1. Something strange is happening in the town of Stepford
7 & 9
THE STEPFORD WIVES
PG
2. It's more than a movie.
7 & 9
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents
"THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT"
2 DAYS!
G
Starts FRIDAY!
Emmanuelle
X was never like this.
3 No Dollar Night
5th WEEK 7 & 9:45
JOHN CASSAVETES
"A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE"
R Gena Rowlands
DOLLAR NIGHTS MON&TUES
ALL SEATS $1.00

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9–HADLEY, MASS
WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS
BEST PICTURE · BEST DIRECTOR
...all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
"THE STING"
1 PG 6:00, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
2 PG 6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
BEST PICTURE
NEW YORK FILM CRITICS
JUDITH CRIST
ROGER CORMAN Presents
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
R
3 6:00, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
4 R 6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
MEL BROOKS (The Insane Genius)
The man who brought you "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein" now brings you the funniest of them all.
"THE PRODUCERS"
"O'TOOLE IS FUNNY, DISTURBING, DEVASTATING!" –Jay Cocks Time Magazine
"A BRILLIANT FILM— STUNNING!" Judith Crist New York Magazine
PETER O'TOOLE
ALASTAIR SIM
ARTHUR LOWE
THE RULING CLASS
Eves: The Ruling Class — 7:00; The Producers — 9:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

X-RATED COMEDY
"IS THERE SEX AFTER DEATH?"
Friday, April 11, 1975 C.C.A.
6:30 8:15 10:00 11:45
Promises to be one of the funniest movies of the year.

NEW MANAGEMENT
Call: 584-2645
HADLEY DRIVE-IN
Rt. 9, Hadley
Wed. thru Sun. JACK NICHOLSON SPECIAL:
A COLLEGIAN DISCOUNT!
$1.00 OFF EACH ADMISSION WHEN YOU PRESENT THIS AD TO OUR CASHIER!
A WESTERN MASS. FIRST . . . .
All New... CINEMA-RADIO
No speakers needed. All you need is a car or portable AM radio!
Our Sound is Only As Good As Yours!
"THE LAST DETAIL is a good movie...It is by far the best thing Jack Nicholson's ever done." —VINCENT CANBY,
"The Last Detail" (R)
Second at 9:20
A MASTERPIECE! —REX REED, Holiday
JACK NICHOLSON
FIVE EASY PIECES First At 7:30
KAREN BLACK
"LYRICAL AND BRILLIANT, THE REFLECTION OF ITS GENERATION... LIKE A BOB DYLAN SONG ON CELLULOID!" —Tom Rowe, Washington Post
JACK NICHOLSON
'easy rider'
PETER FONDA / DENNIS HOPPER
Thurs at 11:20 (R)
REGULAR ADM: $2.00

NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE ON FILM EDUCATION:

CURRICULUM DESIGN AND FILM RESOURCES

Saturday, April 26, 1975
University of Massachusetts, Amherst

A one-day seminar sponsored by the University Film Study Center in conjunction with the University of Massachusetts, Amherst that will provide an opportunity for leading film educators and conference participants to discuss the current curriculum and resource problems confronted in structuring and supporting a university film program.

TOPICS
Critical Problems in Organizing a University Film Program
The Departmental vs. the Interdepartmental Film Major Organizing a Film Curriculum Beyond the Basic Course
Resources and Film Study
The Use of Extracts in Film Courses

SPEAKERS
Ted Perry, New York University; Dudley Andrew, University of Iowa; Sam Rohdie, Hunter College, City University of New York; Peter Feinstein, University Film Study Center; Vlada Petric, Harvard University; Audie Bock, Harvard University.

SCREENINGS
LANGUAGE OF THE SILENT CINEMA, a compilation film by Vlada Petric
A PAGE OF MADNESS by Teinosuke Kinugasa

PRE-REGISTRATION IS REQUIRED. CONTACT:

Nancy Legge
University Film Study Center
Box 275, Cambridge, Ma. 02138
617-253-7612

notices

ALCOHOL DISCUSSION GROUP

Will be held Wed. night at 7:30 in C.C. 905-909. Anyone wanting to discuss issues relating to alcohol is encouraged to attend.

ABORTION

Free film and discussion about the legal and sociological aspects of abortion in the U.S. sponsored by the Orchard Hill Women's Center and PSE program.

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Invited to a Little Sister's Rush at Phi Mu Delta Fraternity Sorority Park, Tonight 8:30 for rides call 545-2163.

BIBLICAL EXPLORATION

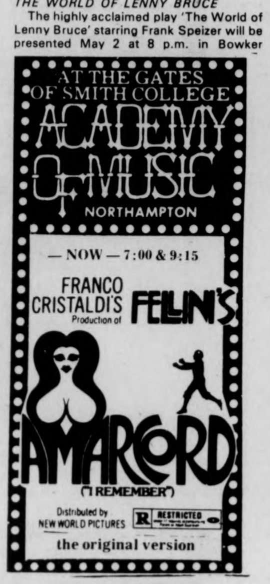
Tonight from 9:45-10:30 p.m. an open, free exploration of a few verses of Scripture; offered by UCF (United Christian Foundation) in 316 Hampshire House as part of an ecumenical campus ministry to the whole UMass community. Anyone is welcome to give this a try; no hidden hooks.

THE WORLD OF LENNY BRUCE

The highly acclaimed play 'The World of Lenny Bruce' starring Frank Speizer will be presented May 2 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets will go on sale April 28 at $1.50 and $2.50 at the door. Sponsored by Greek Council.

turn to p. 17

EASTFIELD MALL
543-3304 Cinema
BOSTON RD / U.S. 20 at RT. 21
Every Eve at 7:30-9:40
Mat. Wed.-Sat.-Sun.
1:30-3:30-5:30
The Reincarnation of Peter Proud
a BCP presentation R
Filmed in Springfield, Holyoke, Amherst, Northampton, Deerfield and other local areas.



AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
— NOW — 7:00 & 9:15
FRANCO CRISTALDI'S Production of FELLINI'S
AMARCORD
("I REMEMBER")
Distributed by NEW WORLD PICTURES
R RESTRICTED
the original version

Deerfield Drive-In
Route 5 & 10
So. Deerfield, Mass.
Russ Meyer's Cherry, Harry & Raquel
COLOR by DeLuxe contemplate the possibilities
X
ALSO
Russ Meyer's Finders Keepers Lovers Weepers
an EVE PRODUCTION in EASTMANCOLOR
Showtime 7:45
Police Officer
Will Check I.D.
Under 18 Not Admitted

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 123456
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
· CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE ·
ROBERT REDFORD IN A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
The Great WALDO PEPPER PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:20, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:35, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50.
Academy Award Winner
Jack Nicholson Roman Polanski Faye Dunaway
"Chinatown" R
STARTS FRIDAY
Towering Inferno
Wed.-Thurs., 8:15
STREISAND & CAAN
Funny Lady PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00.
Dustin Hoffman "Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:15; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50.
warren beatty
Shampoo R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:10, 9:30.
What could be better than The Three Musketeers?
THE FOUR MUSKETEERS PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:10, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:25, 5:20, 7:20, 9:30.

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $550. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers; high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

SR-50 Calc. Tex. Ins. TR. $75. Judy. 253-5054.

AKC German Shep. pups. Top champ. lines. Excel. temper. $125. Call 253-7610.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Microphone Shure 588A new $30, Smith Corona typewriter $25. Peter 253-2713.

Women's 3 spd. Eng. bike. Good make needs work $25. Call Barbara 546-5185.

Teac 250 Cassette deck, exc. cond., must sell. $180. Caroll 546-4441 after 6:30

Calc: Bowmar MX100 all funct. 549-0013.

Yamaha Classical Guitar, 1 year old. 549-6226.

Gibson ES-335, good cond., $275. 253-5745.

Suede desert boots. Worn once. $15. M - sz. 8; W - sz. 9. 546-8331.

Cabart Oboe. Good condition. $325 or best offer. 549-0825.

110 lb. weight set. $30. 253-2241 aft. 9.

Beaut. Sierra design 300 sleeping bag. $90. Optimus 11B stove. $20. Seiko watch, new, guar. $55. Call Doug 6-5620.

Camper: 67X97. Fits pick-up longbed. Dbl. bed, fridg., excel. cond. Call 584-7803.

Pr. Vasque Glacier Hiking boots, lk. new, cost $65. Sell $45. Back pack, ex. cond, welded frame divided pk. $20. 546-4746.

Yamaha Guitar and case. B.O. 253-5088, 6 p.m.

Queen size mattress. $10. Call 256-0696.

Two man tent with floor, waterproof, screened, 4 lbs. Only $30. 586-0714.

Advent Speaker, mirocord turntable, marantz receiver. 6 mo. old. $350. 253-7687.

Earth Shoes — Men's size 8, $75 — Women's 10, $25. Brown, low-cut, good shape. Also track shoes, white, canvas and leather, same size. Call Kris or Denny at 323-4819.

AUTO FOR SALE

'66 VW Van, new paint job, need mech. work. Best offer. 545-2896. Ask for Dave.

'67 Barracuda, V8, 4 spd., $300 or B.O. Four 13 in. tires, Chevy rims. $55. Mack. 549-0491.

1970 SAAB 96, 2 dr., 57,000 miles. New Michelins, FM radio. Ross 256-0687. $1100.

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 Volvo 144S, needs work. Will consider any offer. Call 549-0929.

1966 Ford station wagon — just tuned. Good condition. $250. Call 256-0259.

'71 Fiat 124, good condition, radials. 30 mpg. $1195. Call Mrs. Roberts 5-0150.

Want to buy, '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant, Slant-6, 225 c.i. Call Jeanne, 549-1312, eve.

VW Sqbk, '69, good cond. 74,000 mi. 25 mpg. $695. 1-628-3367.

1970 Toyota Corolla, exc. mech. cond. Allan. 253-3107.

1964 Dodge panel truck. Rebuilt eng. Must see. $550. 527-9410.

4 Sale — Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

1967 Ford Cntry Sqr., $600 neg., good cond. Judy, 253-5054.

1966 VW square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

58 Peugeot, sunroof, bring a battery and drive it away! $100. Bob 253-7967.

64 Corvair Convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer. 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new Exhaust runs well. 6 cyl., $250. Bob 253-7967.

68 Chev. No Beauty, but SUPER RUNNING. Small 8, automatic. p-s. $395. 253-7967.

Great 70 Fiat coupe, looking for good home. 40 mpg., $695 takes it. Bob 253-7967.

67 Ford Galaxie 6, auto $395. 253-7967.

Buick Wildcat. 4 dr., 425 cu. in 3 spd auto. 4bbl. Air condition, posi mint cond., 17 mpg. Must be seen. $700 or best offer. John 6-1167.

69 VW Exc. cond., sunroof, new clutch, brakes; rebuilt engine. $1000. 253-9285.

For sale 1972 SAAB 99E Exc. cond., new injectors. Tires air cond., $2400 or best offer. 413-774-4289 evenings.

Honda 450 eng. totally rebuilt $100. or best offer by April 14. 253-7687 eves.

68 VW bus, good cond., rebuilt, cmpng. pltfrm, $1550. 549-1758. Low mileage.

Ford Van, '64, 6 std., camper top. Must see. New parts, very little rust, very unusual. Buying new one. $500. 773-8108.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1967 Honda 305 — motor ex. cond., new batt. $300. Call Gary 253-2892 or 546-8505.

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

Triumph 650 Bonne. Completely rebuilt and repainted. Stock. Asking $825. Call 584-0026. It's ready for the road.

'65 Honda S-90, 7700 mi. Runs well. 253-7610.

72 Suzuki, TS250J2, 300 mi. 532-6807.

450 Honda, engine totally rebuilt. Have all receipts. $700. 253-7687 eves.

1970 Triumph 500, rebuilt engine, new paint, new rear tire, shop manual. Call 413-498-5571.

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before

FOR RENT

2 Rms. in country house. All privileges, near UM bus, includes all util. 665-3623. $90.

For rent — 2 bdrm. apt., views, woods. $180 per mo., util. incl. Call 665-3972.

FOR RENT

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days. 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

Clfsd., 2 bdr. $190. AC, Dw. 665-3610, eve.

Room in house, util., wash, dry. 256-8456.

Room to rent in Pelham. In country home. Call David 253-2686.

WANTED TO RENT

1 bedrm. apt. Northampton vicinity. 91S. Beg. May 1. Bus Phone. Call Patty 545-3139.

Liveable space in Amherst, shower or bath, cooking facilities. June-Sept. at $50-$60. 542-5837 Nancy.

TO SUBLET

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month. On bus line. June 1. August 31. Opt. to renew. 546-6333.

Brandywine June-August. 2 bedrm. 549-1864.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 — Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

June 1 to Aug. 31. 2 bdrm. Cliffside Apt. $190 per mo., all util. incl., ten. crts and sw. pool. 665-4112 aft. 6.

Lg. semi-furn. one bedrm. apt. in house w-study. Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. $175. B'twn. 323-5551.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-4819.

Great 2 bdrm. apt. for June - Sept. w-ac, util. inc., pool, on bus route. 256-8252.

3 bdr. Townhouse, sublet, June 1. Opt. to renew. On bus rte. Call 665-4166.

2 bedroom Riverglade Townhouse. Start June to Sept. Call 253-2562.

3 bedroom apt. on bus rt., air cond. For summer sublet — option to renew. Call 665-3687.

To sublet w-option to renew. 8 bedroom house, 2 min. walk from N'Hampton Cen. Call 584-5136.

Want to sublet 1 bedroom apt. in Puffton. Would like unfurnished. Call 5-1993 between 11 and 1 a.m.

Apt. for rent. June, July, Aug. Furnished. $175. Phone, util., included. 549-2715, 10 minutes walk from campus.

Townhouse apt. to sublet. June to August. Option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate for summer months. If interested, call 549-0895.

3 bdrm. Townhouse, fully furn. Piano, laundry fac., 2 baths, dishwash. 549-1275.

Rm. in house, Belch. Sub May only. 260 AC. $100 incl. util. Call Rob 253-7887.

2 bedrm. apt., June - August. On busline, pool, tennis cts. w. util. included. Opt. Partially furnished. 665-2253.

2 bedroom apt. at Rolling Green available June 1st-Aug. 31st. Rent is $233 per month, but it includes all utilities: heat, water, air conditioning. Call Glenn or Jay at 253-9845. Best buy in town.

June 1. One or two people for Roll. Gr. Apt. Opt. to renew. Exc. Bus, pool, lge. rms., part. furn., air cond. $60 all inc. 256-6279.

Cliffside, 1 bdrm. Sublet June 15 (app.). Opt. to renew. 665-3249.

Two bed. apt. Pelham. June 1-Sept. 1. Call 253-3302. Bob, Wayne.

TO SUBLET

Sublet June 1-Aug. 31. Lg. 3 rm. apt. with extra lg. bedrm. Brandywine, heat and a.c. incl., opt. to renew lease. Call 549-4577 anytime.

Puffton, 2 bdrm. apt. Start June 1. 549-6385.

House from Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0621 anytime. B.O.

To sublet pri. bedroom. Squire Village. Can occupy immediately if needed. 665-3571.

Sublet June 1 - Sept. 1. Opt. to renew. 2 bedrm. apt. Belchertown, on bus route, lake. 323-6213.

Sublet room June - Sept. Great apartment and on bus route. Large windows. Call 256-8834 Sharon.

Apt. available June-August, 4 rm. furnished, reasonable. Opt. to renew. Northampton, Smith Col. area 586-1130.

Summer Central Amherst, 4 bedrooms, guest room, 1½ baths, large sitting room, kitchen, dining room, garage. Suit two or three couples. Only $275 P.M. Call 5-0308 (days). 256-8472 (night).

2 bdrm. at King Philip, Sunderland. All electric. $205 inc. util. Avail. June 1 til Aug. 31. 665-3688.

Sublet June 1. 1 bdrm. Puffton Vil. Apt. Furnished. AC, tennis cts., pool. On bus line, option to renew. $174 per month. 549-0825.

Close walking to campus and town. 2 bdrm. furn. apt. with phone. Negot. 256-6750.

Begin May 1 or befr. thru Sept. 2 bdrm. Brandywine — negotiable. Call evenings 549-2857; days, 5-0960. Denise.

Avl. June. Option 12 mo. Lease 2 bdrm. Twnhs. Apt. 10 ft. from bus stop. 106 Rolling Green. 253-7641 after 5 p.m.

Beautiful Townhouse apt. available Sept.-June with option to renew. 3 bdr., w-w carpeting. AC, swimming pool, fully modern kitchen, patio and plenty of room to roam. Would like to rent furnished. Call 549-6804 evenings.

House, 4 bdrm., near UMass, furnished, garage, yard. June-Aug. $350 per mon. 549-6417.

Garden apt., Rolling Green, 2 bdrms. June-Aug. Option to renew. Cheap. 253-7332.

One or 2 bedr. $169 mo. Furnished. June 1-Sep. 1. Call 549-0891, anytm.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer — close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

Own room in Puffton Apt. All utilities. $75 mo. 549-4524.

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedr., furnished apt. Bus line. $110 w-utilities. 253-7967.

Grad. Stud. seeks sunny room for Sept. 1. 256-8247 eve.

Air cond., 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. on bus rte. Tennis, basketball courts, pool, dishwasher. $60. 549-1866 for summer.

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

Two roommates wanted for summer months, June through August. Squire Village Apt. On bus route. $58.75 per month. If interested call 665-4753 after 5 p.m.

Woman roommate wanted for quiet house in So. Deerfield on bus line. $90 inc. util. 665-3590.

ROOM WANTED

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $106 per mo. incl. util. 253-6411.

HELP WANTED

Artists — Sell your paintings & sculpture. 598-8673. Now!

Person to assist in developing film — print making. Photo experience required. Apply Lang's Photo, Rt. 116, So. Amherst. 20 hrs. per wk.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Townhouse apt. to sublet option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate rent for summer months if interested. call 549-0895.

Oscilloscope wanted. Will pay $200 or wish to borrow. Call 774-3294. John.

Want to buy '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant Slant 6. $225. Call Jeanne 549-1312 eve.

Double bed or larger wanted to buy. Either both mattress and spring or just mattress. Will pick up. Call 256-8056.

TYPING

Regular and technical typing. Reasonable rates. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 665-4982.

I will do your typing accurately and promptly. Call Bev 545-2735 or 253-9215.

PERSONALS

Gay Catholics — Your church cares, do you? For info, counsel, rap, write to Dignity, Box H488, Forest Park Sta., Springfield, Ma. 01108.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

For only $20 (special university price), you can protect your car, tires and its contents with a "Bradley ghost" automatic burglar alarm. Electricity's newest marvel. Or install it yourself for only $15. For more info and a demonstration, call Larg at 546-9621 or Bruce at 546-5663.

Wanted: Prospective wife, green and white. Call 617-335-2591 or write Apt. 11, 10 Mediterranean Dr., Weymouth, 02188.

Betsy — Happy 22nd. Love Jackie.

Happy belated birthday to a Gelastic Gear. Keep on Meshing. Mama.

Pirate People: To each and everyone — I can only thank you for the beauty and joy of it all! Here's to more at the Cape! Please come? With Luv, Sue.

To the girl who used my Greisheimar Physiology & Anatomy book LAST spring for Zoo 137-138. I need it NOW! Call Ann 5-2297 or 256-6887. Its Important!

What's NV? Come to CC 176 today at 4:30 and find out.

Karen and Beaver. Have a Happy Day!

Lambda, You'll never know how much I love you. The Maid.

Gay Catholics. Your church cares — do you? For info, counsel, rap, write to Dignity, Box No. 488, Forest Park Station, Springfield, Ma. 01108.

Wanna go to Tibet, live in a cave and find the inner meaning? Happy Birthday, Hillary. Love Dick.

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll-free 800-223-5569.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9534.

Guitar lessons. Jaye 546-4068. Start now, summer or fall. Anything you want to know. Beginners to advanced.

Datsun, Toyota, Volvo, Jaquar repaired by Russ Baca. Plenty of experience and equipment. Phone 586-1227.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS — All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX YOUR CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Wooden chair seats recaned. Call Lin 546-7274.

DON'T JUST GO THERE. Learn something. Meet people. SUMMER STUDY ABROAD lists dates, subjects, prerequisites, costs for over 600 credit and non-credit programs worldwide. Send $3 to Institute of International Education, Box CC, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10017.

LOST

Lost: Set of keys. Brown leather case, btween B Wall & CC. Call 323-4483.

Lost. Orange fem. cat, Priscilla, in N. Amherst. 549-6696.

Rd. Morrocan wallet, gft. fm. gparnt. Please call 323-5191 or return CC Lost & Found.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Peter O'Toole & Katherine Hepburn star in "The Lion in Winter" on Fri., April 11 at 7-9:15 and 11:30 in Mahar.

"Chariots of the Gods". A documentary film by Erich Von Daniken is at Mahar on Sat., April 12th at 7:30-9:15 and 11:00.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

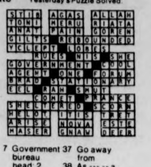
CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available. Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95, HP-21, only $119.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

UNITED Feature Syndicate

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved



ACROSS
1 Nuisance
5 Napoleonic victory site
9 Will's cousin
14 U.S. tennis champ
15 Mine entrance
16 Shin
17 Musial or Mikita
18 Approximately: 3 words
20 Flock
21 Surface measure
22 Sleeps on a perch
23 Former Turkish coin
25 Discard as worthless
27 Vacuum tube: Suffix
29 Weight unit
30 Veal source
34 Mineral spring
36 Downward from
38 Page in a ledger
39 Non-violent protester: 2 words
42 ----- Dvorak
43 Ornamental cord
44 Gelderland city
45 Tall grass
46 Farewell!
47 Emily ----: Canadian artist
49 Wicked person
51 Detecting system
54 Ancient Greek coin
58 Sooner than 60 Overdue
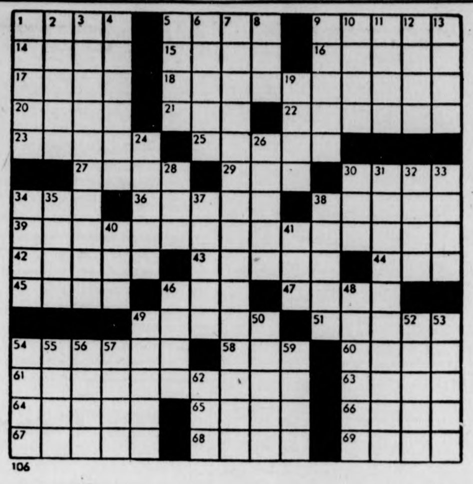
61 Metric measures: Var.
63 Like - --- of bricks
64 Frighten
65 Direction
66 Nobody
67 Taut
68 Miss Maxwell
69 Delineated

DOWN
1 Former Turkish title
2 Colorado park
3 Tang: 2 words
4 Delicate
5 Buddhist monk
6 Fragrances
7 Government bureau head: 2 words
8 Mineral ending
9 Barber's necessity
10 "Hi Lili, -- --"
11 Lincoln and Burrows
12 Itemize
13 Young girl
19 Algerian seaport
24 ----- redbreast
26 Spur part
28 State: Abbr.
30 Romaine
31 Electric generator
32 Told a fib
33 Anterior
34 Pole used as a boom
35 Glass rectangle
37 Go away from
38 As --- -- a fiddle
40 Son of a the old ---
41 Dry
46 English river
48 Actor Gilbert ------
49 Woman: Slang
50 Put on clothes
52 Make amends
53 Take up again
54 Card game
55 Piece of flooring
56 ---- Sues: TV comedian
57 Ivan ----: Moviemaker
59 This: Spanish
62 Driving area



Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9 — Born today, you appear to be talented along two quite different but parallel lines, for both science and the arts interest you and, in fact, take equal shares of your time and effort. Of course, you may well combine an analytical with a creative career and ultimately fulfill yourself and your duality of talent and ambition completely -- but you will not do so without the utmost self-discipline, absolute self-confidence and considerable help from others in the way of spiritual support.

Because you tend to give your complete attention to whatever you happen to be engaged upon at any given moment, you may, if you are not especially careful, make many small gains and miss out on the larger ones. For the opportunity for large gains comes seldom, and when it comes it must be grasped without delay: if you are not attentive to indications of approaching opportunity while you are yet at work on other matters, you may miss it altogether.

It is to be hoped that those responsible for your training and education will urge you toward an early specialization in either or both of the directions you choose to follow. This is especially true should you decide to follow both artistic and scientific careers, for with two areas of dedication to deal with, you will need to set limits to your efforts, boundaries to your directions; otherwise, chaos will result.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Thursday, April 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Plans for self-improvement should get underway at this time. You stand an excellent chance for gain if you are quick to spot an advantage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — The situation on the domestic scene has a considerable bearing on the progress of your career today. Don't think you can separate home from work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — If you wait until late in the day to take advantage of a new opportunity for gain, it may be too late. Try to move forward during morning and early afternoon.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Ingenuity is the name of the game today. Turn your attention to original ways and means to accomplishment. You can make gains by evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — If you keep your head high during moments of adversity today, you will save your pride -- though you may lose out on material gain.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Good relationships with friends means good progress on the employment scene today. There is little to be done late in the day, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Use information recently gained to your advantage and you should be able to see exceptional results by evening. Share facts with another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — There is little risk in today's activities, you would do well to exercise normal precautions. This is a good time for stating your true opinion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — This is a day when your private views may be made public without fear of angering another -- if you can be diplomatic and still be truthful.

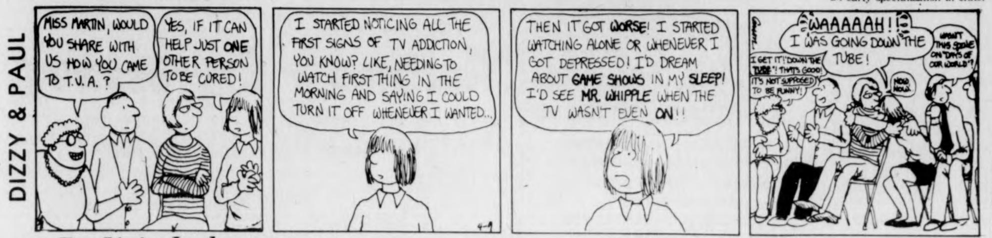
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — A professional opinion is called for if you are thinking of putting present plans into action. Make certain you've covered all possible angles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — The outcome of evening activities is doubtful; make certain, therefore, to take care of important matters during daylight hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — This could be an exceptionally beneficial day on the employment scene -- but only if you are judicious in decisions regarding investments.

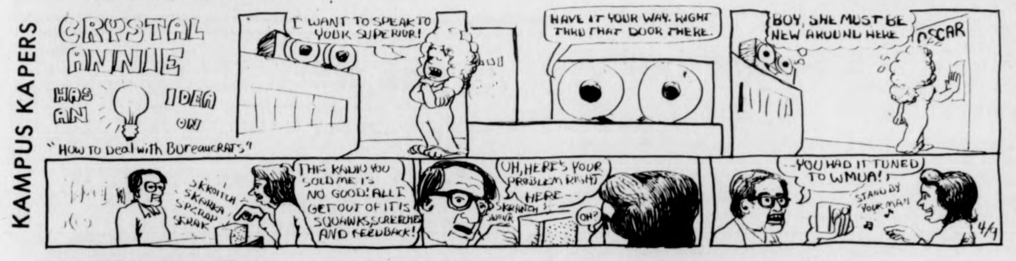
United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson



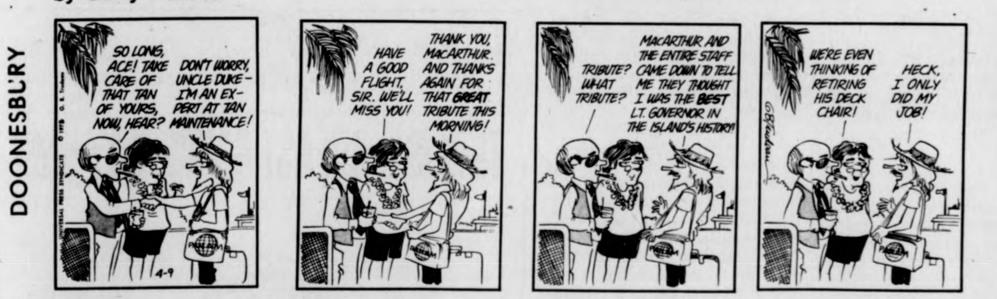
DIZZY & PAUL
MISS MARTIN, WOULD YOU SHARE WITH US HOW YOU CAME TO T.V.A.?
YES, IF IT CAN HELP JUST ONE OTHER PERSON TO BE CURED!
I STARTED NOTICING ALL THE FIRST SIGNS OF TV ADDICTION, YOU KNOW? LIKE, NEEDING TO WATCH FIRST THING IN THE MORNING AND SAYING I COULD TURN IT OFF WHENEVER I WANTED...
THEN IT GOT WORSE! I STARTED WATCHING ALONE OR WHENEVER I GOT DEPRESSED! I'D DREAM ABOUT GAME SHOWS IN MY SLEEP! I'D SEE MR. WHIPPLE WHEN THE TV WASN'T EVEN ON!!
WAAAAAH!! I WAS GOING DOWN THE TUBE!
I GET IT! "DOWN THE TUBE"! THAT'S GOOD!
IT'S NOT SUPPOSED TO BE FUNNY!
NOW NOW.
WASN'T THIS SPOKE ON "DAYS OF OUR WORLD"?
4-9

By Kris Jackson

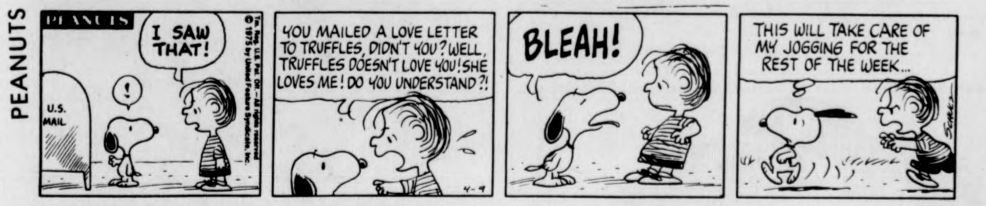


KAMPUS KAPERS
CRYSTAL ANNIE HAS AN IDEA ON "HOW TO DEAL WITH BUREAUCRATS"
I WANT TO SPEAK TO YOUR SUPERIOR!
HAVE IT YOUR WAY. RIGHT THRU THAT DOOR THERE.
BOY, SHE MUST BE NEW AROUND HERE.
OSCAR
SKROITCH SKRIKA SPCRAP SKRAK
THIS RADIO YOU SOLD ME IS NO GOOD! ALL I GET OUT OF IT IS SQUAWKS, SCREECHES AND FEEDBACK!
UH, HERE'S YOUR PROBLEM RIGHT HERE--
OH?
--YOU HAD IT TUNED TO WMUA!
STAND BY YOUR MAN
4/4

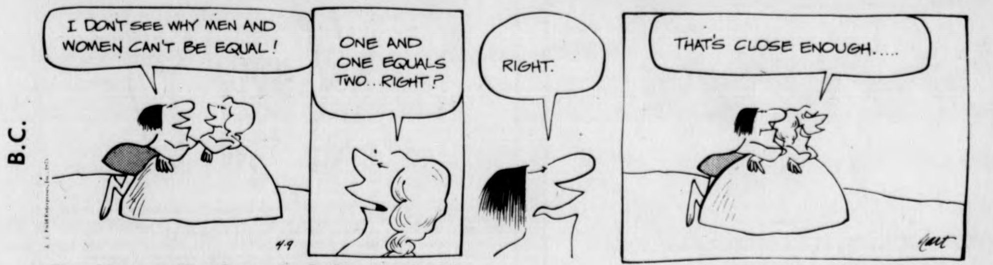
by Garry Trudeau



DOONESBURY
SO LONG, ACE! TAKE CARE OF THAT TAN OF YOURS, NOW, HEAR?
DON'T WORRY, UNCLE DUKE - I'M AN EXPERT AT TAN MAINTENANCE!
HAVE A GOOD FLIGHT, SIR. WE'LL MISS YOU!
THANK YOU, MACARTHUR. AND THANKS AGAIN FOR THAT GREAT TRIBUTE THIS MORNING!
TRIBUTE? WHAT TRIBUTE?
MACARTHUR AND THE ENTIRE STAFF CAME DOWN TO TELL ME THEY THOUGHT I WAS THE BEST LT. GOVERNOR IN THE ISLAND'S HISTORY!
WE'RE EVEN THINKING OF RETIRING HIS DECK CHAIR!
HECK, I ONLY DID MY JOB!
PAN AM
4-9

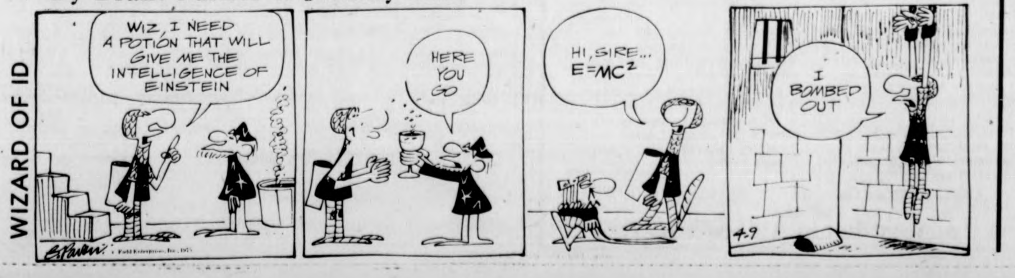


PEANUTS
U.S. MAIL
!
I SAW THAT!
YOU MAILED A LOVE LETTER TO TRUFFLES, DIDN'T YOU? WELL, TRUFFLES DOESN'T LOVE YOU! SHE LOVES ME! DO YOU UNDERSTAND?!
BLEAH!
THIS WILL TAKE CARE OF MY JOGGING FOR THE REST OF THE WEEK...
4-9



B.C.
I DON'T SEE WHY MEN AND WOMEN CAN'T BE EQUAL!
ONE AND ONE EQUALS TWO... RIGHT?
RIGHT.
THAT'S CLOSE ENOUGH.....
4-9

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart



WIZARD OF ID
WIZ, I NEED A POTION THAT WILL GIVE ME THE INTELLIGENCE OF EINSTEIN
HERE YOU GO
HI, SIRE... E=MC²
I BOMBED OUT
4-9

notices

cont. from p. 16

BOTANY DEPARTMENT COLLOQUIUM NOTICE

Dr. James Rodman of the Department of Biology at Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut will be guest speaker at the Botany Colloquium, Thursday, April 10, at 4:30 p.m. in Room 203 Morrill Science Center. His topic will be "The Use of Mustard Oil Glucosides as Systematic Markers." Coffee will be served to the colloquium at 4 p.m.

BREAD AND WINE

You are invited by UCF to a brief, simple sharing of common cup in 316 Hampshire House tonight from 10:30-10:50 p.m. UCF (United Christian Foundation) is an ecumenical campus ministry for the whole UMass community and welcomes all without regard to their background or opinion.

BRIDGE PLAYERS OLD AND NEW

Bridge instruction tonight at 6 p.m. in CC 801. Regular game at 7:15 in CC 174-176. Intercollegiate Tournament this Saturday and Sunday.

CAMPUS SCOUTS

There will be a meeting tomorrow April 10 from 7-9 in Rm. 802 Campus Center. We're having an undress rehearsal for the 1st class dinner so please come.

BOXING CLUB

Important meeting tonite for all members and anyone interested in learning how to box. Professional boxer will instruct club. 7 p.m., 19th floor Washington.

CASIAC STUDENT COUNSELORS

Staff meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. in E20 Machmer. Important that everyone attend.

COALITION FOR ENVIRONMENTAL QUAL.

The weekly meeting will be held in CC 173 at 7 p.m. tonight. An environmental-oriented film will be shown, and we will also plan this weekend's retreat to Mt. Toby.

DANCE AND EXERCISE WORKSHOP

Week session begins today. Two-hour workshop meets 12:30 and 5 p.m. on Weds. and Thurs. at the Valley Women's Center, Northampton. Women only. For info: call Valerie 268-7266.

EASTER WORSHIP

Easter has 50 days; come celebrate them with us! The Holy Eucharist according to Episcopal tradition at the Newman Center Chapel Weds. at 1 p.m.

GALLO BOYCOTT

United Farm Workers Support Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 in C.C. 801. A movie about hospital worker's efforts to organize will be shown.

HEYMAKERS ELECTIONS

Elections will be held next Tues. at 8 p.m. All members must attend ... Also meeting of those going to Convention will be held.

HOME EC MAJORS

10 a.m. is a great time for coffee. Join us in Mitchell Lounge on April 10 from 10-11 a.m. for a student-faculty coffee hour.

A "HUMAN" EXPERIENCE

What is unique about human life? by Meditating on the Knowledge of Guru Maharaj Ji, a human being can realize the true value of life. Programs on this meditation held every Weds. C.C. 903 at 7:30 p.m.

HUMAN RIGHTS COMM.

Meeting tonight to review Affirmative Action Statement from RSO groups. C.C. 805 at 6 p.m.

ISRAELI DANCING

Tonight at 7:30, it's — you guessed it — Israeli Dancing in the Cape Cod Lounge of the S.U.B. Instruction from 7:30-9:00 with advanced dancing to follow. It's free and open to everyone.

KUNDALINI YOGA

Ongoing Yoga classes every Tues. and Thurs. evenings 5-6. Classes will cover yoga postures, breathing, chanting, diet, lifestyle, and healing. All are welcome. C.C., consult daily listing for room.

MOTORCYCLE CO-OP MEETING

All interested in joining motorcycle coop should meet at 7 p.m. tonight in the Coffee Shop in C.C. We will discuss and vote on structure and exec. positions as well as duties. Bring ideas.

PLAY LIBRARY OPEN

Materials available (toys, games, puzzles, play equipment) for all children of UMass students, playgroups, babysitters and parent cooperatives. Located at North Village Laundry center. Hours are: Monday 2-4 p.m., Tues. 7-9 p.m., Fri. 9-11 a.m., First and third Sat. 9-11 a.m. For info 253-2740 Steve Baskowski.

turn to p. 15

Four-minute mile not worrying Thomas

By SCOTT HAYES

The four-minute mile will have to wait another year or two before it becomes a part of the UMass track program ... at least, that's the way Randy Thomas feels.

Thomas, a 4:04.8 miler indoors, won't be training for the mile during the outdoor season. Instead, the outstanding senior distanceman will be running in preparation for the six-mile, a championship event, and a chance to run against the nation's top six-milers in the NCAA Championships.

Because he is readying himself for the demanding six-mile run, Thomas doesn't believe he will be able to knock an added one or two seconds off his time to become the first UMass four-minute miler. His 4:04.8 indoor mile is equivalent to about a 4:02 outdoor mile. "The outdoor mile is easier to run, but a two or three second improvement is improbable," explained Thomas.

Although the senior runner is not training for the mile, he will be running the four-lap event in some meets. Thomas is doing longer intervals in workouts to train for the six-mile, track's most grueling event.

Thomas feels that he has to depend on his strength as a runner rather than speed, and this is one reason he would have problems running a mile in four minutes. "You have to train hard, it doesn't usually come naturally," Thomas added.

"If I don't make grad school, I'd definitely have to consider taking a year off and then training for the '76 Olympics." Thomas does think he'll be able to run a mile in four minutes within the next year, probably in an AAU meet.

Coaches Ken O'Brien and Mike Muska believe that Thomas, along with teammates Bill Gillin and Chris Farmer, is capable of running a four-minute mile, with the proper training.

Don't be disappointed if no one on the UMass track team runs a four-minute mile during the outdoor season ... but then again, don't be surprised if someone comes up with a super performance and achieves the goal of almost every miler.

Staff Photo by Joe Martins

Randy Thomas, premier distanceman at UMass and mile recordholder.

Mets ax Phillies 2-1

NEW YORK [UPI] — Brooklyn-born Joe Toree, making his first appearance in a Mets' uniform, singled home Felix Millan with none out in the ninth inning yesterday to give New York a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies in the season opener for both teams.

Tom Seaver, attempting a comeback after a disappointing 11-11 season, went the distance and allowed only six hits while striking out nine to defeat Steve Carlton for the sixth time in six career meetings.

Carlton allowed only four hits in the losing effort.

Millan opened the ninth for the Mets with a single to right field and John Milner worked Carlton for a walk. Toree, who had failed to get a hit in previous appearances, then lined a clean single to left field to score Millan, who beat Greag Luzinski's hurried throw to the plate.

Dave Kingman, whose long home runs were the rave of the Mets' spring training camp took up from where he left off in Florida by cracking a 410-foot homer in the fourth inning to tie the score at 1-1.

Not so surprisingly, however, a poor defensive play by the lanky outfielder had enabled the Phillies to take a 1-0 lead in the third. A walk to Bob Boone and a sacrifice bunt by Carlton had put a runner on second with two out and Dave Cash promptly lined a drive to rightcenter.

Kingman caught up with the ball, but his long legs got tangled and he dropped it as he fell to the ground with Cash getting credit for a run-scoring double.

Del Unser, another Mets' newcomer, saved the game for Seaver in the eighth inning when he made an over-the-shoulder running catch of a two-out liner by Larry Bowa with two runners on base.

A crowd of 18,527 attended the game, which was played in chilly, 45-degree weather.

Notice

Intramural softball games that were cancelled April 3 will be played on May 6. Soccer contests of April 3 will be played on April 10 and Co-rec softball from April 6 is rescheduled for April 26.

MUST READING ...
For Young & Old
$6.95

AMERICA THE LAND OF MY DREAMS
The Odyssey of a Greek Immigrant
By GEORGE F. STEFFANIDES
NOW AVAILABLE
AT YOUR FAVORITE
BOOKSTORE

'Robby's' debut a hit

CLEVELAND [UPI] — Frank Robinson admitted cheerfully that his debut yesterday as player-manager of the Cleveland Indians was just about perfect.

He hammered a home run in his first time at bat, the 575th of his career, his close frined Boog Powell blasted another, and the Indians defeated the New York Yankees 5-3 before 56,204 roaring fans.

"It was great and a big win and a tremendous win," said Robinson, the first black to manage in baseball major leagues.

His homer came on a 2-2 pitch off Yankee starter Doc Medich and rocketed past the left field fence as he got around on a low fast ball.

"The first two strikes I just couldn't pull the trigger but then he came back with a sidearm motion," he said. "I saw him drop down and — boom. I had no feeling really. I just go blank after hitting. But when I got to third base I thought, 'will wonders never cease?' "

Winning pitcher Gaylord Perry, the first man out of the dugout to congratulate Robinson despite their disagreements in the past, said: "Robbie took the pressure off us all."

NE Whalers aim to stop Saints' hex

HARTFORD [AP] — The New England Whalers, who have never beaten Minnesota on the road, face the pressure of that hex as the two teams prepare for the first faceoff in their World Hockey Association quarter final playoffs.

"We've enjoyed every minute of it," Minnesota Coach Harry Neale said of his team's home ice fortunes.

"But we know the law of averages will be against us with every game we play at home. On the other hand, we have an edge in playing a team we've done well against."

The Whalers earned home ice advantage for the first two games by finishing ahead of the Fighting Saints in the overall standings. The series will open tonight at the Hartford Civil Center, with game two slated for Friday in Hartford. Games three and four will be in St. Paul Sunday and Tuesday.

The Whalers, with 91 points, clinched the east division title but failed to achieve their goal of a second place overall finish.

The Four Leaf Window
presents
"Northeast Expressway"
Best Band that ever played here!
(From R.I.)
THURS.-SUN.

ONE WEEK LEFT!!
ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.
Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

THIS IS A BREAST GAUGE. BUY ONE!

scientific breast gauge and intelligence converter
200 150 100 0 -100 -200
ONLY $3.00

Here is a revolutionary little device which correlates one's breast size to his or her intelligence. It's a great way to get your face kicked in; your hands slapped or never get anywhere. What's more, it's not cheap; 'cause it's classy.
Just put your check for three little old dollar bills ($3.00) in an envelope, mail it to us and we'll send you the most gauche thing since the Whoopee Cushion.
Do it now!

South Shore Novelty Company
Post Office Box 49
Cohasset, Mass. 02025

Yes, send me ________ Breast Gauge(s) at $3.00 each.

Name (Please Print)
Address

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.
Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.
The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.
If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.
Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Trackmen visit HC; Crusaders weak foe

By SCOTT HAYES

Mismatches frequently occur within the boundaries of the sporting world and today's track meet in Worcester against the Crusaders of Holy Cross fits into the category of "nothing - to - get - excited - about - contests."

The meeting will be the season's opener for both squads and a chance for the Minutemen to prepare for tough Ivy League opponent Dartmouth and the Red Raiders of Colgate.

Holy Cross is a team that had trouble winning meets a year ago. The Crusaders were scheduled to compete against the UMass trackmen and Brown last season, but the meet was snowed out.

Outstanding individuals for Holy Cross include Jim Taylor, a first-year 100-yard dashman, sprinter Dan Maloney, half-milers Steve Kiley and Mike Mahoney, as well as distanceman Bobby Dillon. Maloney ran a 5.4 50-yard dash during the indoor slate. Kiley was the New England champ in the 880-yard run while Mahoney finished second in the New England 1,000-yard run and made it to the NCAA's. Kiley and Mahoney combine to give the purple-clad Crusaders a pair of top middle-distancemen.

Defending New England high jump champion, Fred Rom, is only a probable starter for Holy Cross, due to injury problems. Rom is a consistent seven-foot high jumper. Lon Kobza, a shot putter in the 47-foot range, should be evenly matched with Tom Lonergan of UMass. Holy Cross pole vaulter Mike Dunne has cleared 14 feet and the vault should be heavily contested with Dunne and Minutemen Ted Power, Eric Gudmand and Jay Grammolini battling for first.

Joe Martens will be filling the workhorse role for the trackmen, taking part in four events. The talented sophomore, a native of Manchester, Connecticut, will see action in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the high jump and the 440-yard relay. According to assistant coach Mike Muska, Martens is entered in two dashes to prepare for Saturday's home tri-meet.

AROUND THE TRACK ----The events scheduled for today on Holy Cross' cinder rack and the UMass participants are as follows:

100-Toney Pendleton, Joe Martens, Todd Bausley, Dave Hinds, Skip Cobb.

220-Tom Beland, Larry Whitfield, Martens, Doug Frasier

440-Steve Crimmin, Dave Lipinski, Mike Gillen, Dan Christo, John Richards

880-Jim Hunt, Weeden Wetmore, Steve Ridge, Mike Hansen

MILE - Devin Croft, Robb Leary, Frank Carroll, Pete Bloom, Rolf Meyer

2-MILE- Bob Neil, John Scheer, Phil Broughton, Tom Wolff, Matt Mangan, Cliff Staples and Andy Levy.

120 High Hurdles - Pete Famulari, Curt Stegerwald, Al Suprenant, Jeff Browne

440 Intermediate Hurdles - Stegerwald, Cobb, Chris Nelson, Famulari

LJ-Bob Adamson, Ken Adamson, Pete Ryan, Pendleton

TJ-Adamson, Adamson, Ryan, Suprenant

Discus - John Willis, George Ennis, Steve Mason, Tom Lonergan

Javelin - Jim Shea, Todd Holt, Bob O'Neil, Kevin Hall, Jim Golonka

Pole Vault - Eric Gudmand, Ted Power, Jay Grammolini

High Jump - Martens, Rusty Kendall, Ryan

Shot Put - Lonergan, Mason

Hammer-Lonergan

440 Relay- Pendleton, Martens, Beland, Whitfield

Mile Relay - Cobb, Frasier, Hinds, Bausley, Stegerwald, Crimmin, Lipinski, Richards

THE PLAZA SHELL
Ad which ran on Monday was due to an error by the Collegian Advertising Dept. and we would like to apologize to all those people who were inconvenienced by our mistake.

JV baseball opposes BCC

By CHAS O'CONNOR

Jeff McKay, JV baseball coach, sees today's home opener for the squad as a big challenge after the success that the team had in compiling last year's 11-3 record.

Berkshire Community College, the opponent at 3 o'clock is one of few community colleges to go on a Southern trip to prepare for the season as many universities do.

They are reported to have a good team, but coach McKay makes no predictions about the game or the ensuing sixteen game season. "Ultimately, it all comes down to the players. All a coach can do is stand behind third base and wave in the runners."

McKay does expect to do well, though, and sees a lot of promise in his pitching staff. He notes that the team has only been practicing outside for four days now and that means that the pitchers, along with the rest of the squad, are not as sharp as they will be in a week or two.

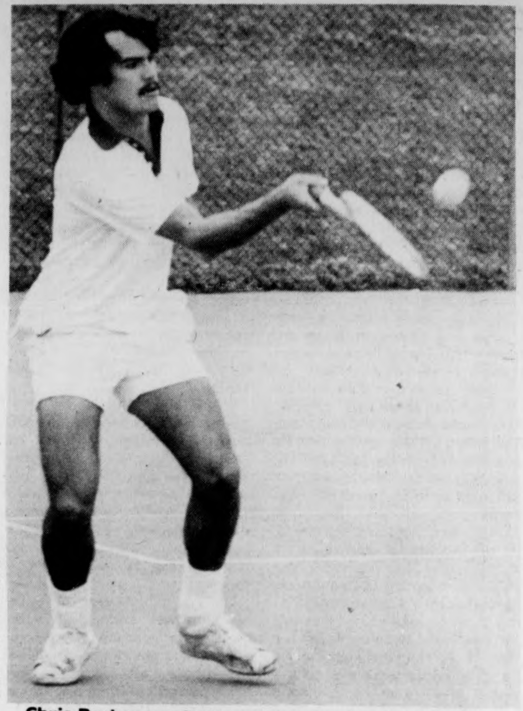
"When the good weather comes we'll get the arms in top shape." McKay also noted that sophomore Mark Battista is out of action for the moment and will be sidelined for a while.

Freshman Tom Nigro, who went South with the Varsity, will start the game.

Bruins rule 8-2

MONTREAL [UPI] — Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets has been been chosen World Hockey Association Player of the Year in the second annual award announced Tuesday by the Hockey News.

Sandy Hucul of the Phoenix Roadrunners was picked Coach of the Year and Bill Hunger, vice president and general manager of the Edmonton Oilers was named Executive of the Year.



Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

Chris Post concentrates on his return in recent tennis action. The netmen dropped a close 5-4 decision to Amherst yesterday afternoon.

Amherst clips netmen

By BILL EDELSTEIN

The score you are about to see is the same as Monday's; only a few players have been changed to make things interesting. The UMass tennis team, searching for its first win of the season, once again lost sight of victory in the doubles competition, dropping two of the three duos, which resulted in their 5-4 setback at the hands (or racquets) of Amherst College. Not only was the final tally identical to that of the Tufts match, but so were the singles winners.

Chris Post made it look easy with a 6-1, 6-4 demolition of an Amherst adversary who appeared shell-shocked after the match.

"Chris (Post) and Barnaby (Kalan) were the standouts today," assistant coach Teddy Donahue offered. "Both of them played excellent matches."

Kalan defeated his opponent 6-2 in the first set and enjoyed it so much that he came back and did the same thing in the second.

Bill Karol needed three sets to do in his opponent from across town. Karol succumbed in a tie-breaker before getting his act together to notch his second win of the season, 6-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Marc Ouellet must be having some nifty conversations with himself during slumber hours, as he lost another multi - rally - make - 'em - run - curse - your - racquet - thriller, 5-7, 6-7.

Kevin Garrahan continued to have his problems on the ... er ... supreme court, getting blown out, 0-6, 3-6, while John Beals, getting his first chance to play (instead of Dave Abramhoff, who yielded to Beals due to his less than adequate showing on Monday) was no more impressive than Dave, coming out on the very short end of a 0-6, 3-6, decision.

In the doubles, the Post-Ouellet combo raced old sol (a.k.a. the sun) to see which would finish its particular activity first. Post and Ouellet beat the huge furnace by about 45 minutes and took the measure of their opponents (about eleven feet, 8 inches), 6-2, 4-6, 7-6, while they were at it.

The team of Garrahan and Karol has yet to straighten things out, as their 5-7, 0-6 loss would indicate, but the surprise loss of the afternoon-evening was that of the Kalan-Abramhoff duo, 4-6, 3-6.

"That loss cost us the match," lamented Donahue.

COURTING WITH DISASTER — "We used different double combinations, and they seemed a little better," noted head coach Steve Kosakowski... The coach went on to say that although doubles com-

Jacobson, who submitted a formal request to Odiorne, claimed Leon as necessary accompanist in my scholarly endeavors."

AMERICAN PARTS AUTO PARTS
IS YOUR CAR READY FOR SPRING? • • • OFFER EXPIRES APRIL 30, 1975
FIRE EXTINGUISHER
1 lb. dry chemical extinguisher for home and auto. Compact for storage in small areas.
$4.43 reg. $7.27 SAVE $2.84
POWEREADY 370-10 IGNITION POWERED TIMING LIGHT
• Pistol Type
• Sharp Focused Beam
• Heavy Duty Cords
A low cost neon timing light that works on a 6-12-24 volt ignition system only.
$6.19 reg. $8.16 SAVE $1.97
CAR FRESHNER
It's a fume broom! Works automatically. Lasts for months. Suitable for home use. When the scent is gone use the case for a coin holder. Easy to hang or mount.
63¢ reg. $1.09 SAVE 46¢
You'll find the things you need nearby at American Parts!
IMPROVE YOUR GAS MILEAGE 20% with POWEREADY top quality, heavy duty TUNE-UP PARTS
POINTS and CONDENSERS CAPS and ROTORS COILS
PROFESSIONAL PERSONNEL TO ASSIST YOU "SHOP WHERE THE PROS SHOP"
SPRAY PAINT HIGH QUALITY LOW PRICE!
For just about anything!
• Wheel Paint • Laquer
• Undercoating • Primer
• Hot Paint • Metal Flake
• Hammer Finish • Fluorescent
• Engine Paint • Tire Paint
• Candy Apple • Enamel
• Heat-resistant
WALKER MUFFLERS and PIPES
Why deal with strangers when your neighbor's an expert?
You know the man who runs your service station or garage. And he knows you. Knows your car, too. He recommends Walker mufflers because they're the most efficient you can buy. And they're built to car manufacturer's exact specifications, for quality and long life.
C/R SEALS
"The best insurance against trouble on wheels."
AMERICAN PARTS
"ALLIED MOTOR PARTS"
319 Main St., Amherst

Amherst Cycle Shop
now at 253 Triangle Street
(near Tech HiFi and Discount Records)
Tel. 549-3729
We have a broad selection of bikes for the whole family, 1, 3, 5, and 10-speeds.
We also service and repair all brand of bikes.
Raleigh-
Bicycle craftsmen of the world

Allegrezza dominates AIC, 9-3

By STEVE SARACENO

Months from now, when people look back on the statistics of Craig Allegrezza's six-hit, full-route 9-3 victory over American International College yesterday, they won't realize what a feat it was.

The UMass win took place in low-40-degree weather with brutal winds gusting from leftfield to right — factors never known to improve a pitcher's control. In addition, Allegrezza has a history of arm trouble, and nothing is worse for tender arms than chilly days, except possibly Doberman pinschers.

"Craig got into trouble early (in the first) with those two unearned runs," said frozen UMass coach Dick Bergquist afterwards. "But he was able to pitch his way out of it, and then in the late innings he turned nicely to his curveball to get people out.

"Actually," Bergquist continued, "I only wanted to get five or six innings out of him. We had (John) McManus warming up around the sixth (after he got loose, he hopped into a car to stay warm, literally), but Allegrezza hadn't thrown too many pitches and just kept moving along. Anyways, with this cold, a reliever is liable to come in and throw one over the screen."

Allegrezza probably considered jumping to the French Foreign Legion in the first when, after two were out, John Seed booted a grounder, Jim Black allowed a passed ball, and then AIC's Dan Dill grounded one toward the hole, which shortstop Jim Cullen did good to knock down.

Cullen threw to the plate, unsuccessfully, and catcher Black pegged the ball back toward second to get the advancing Dill. The throw went by second and then through centerfielder Pete Backstrom. When the Chinese Fire Drill antics ended another passed ball and two walks later, the Minutemen were in the hole, 2-0.

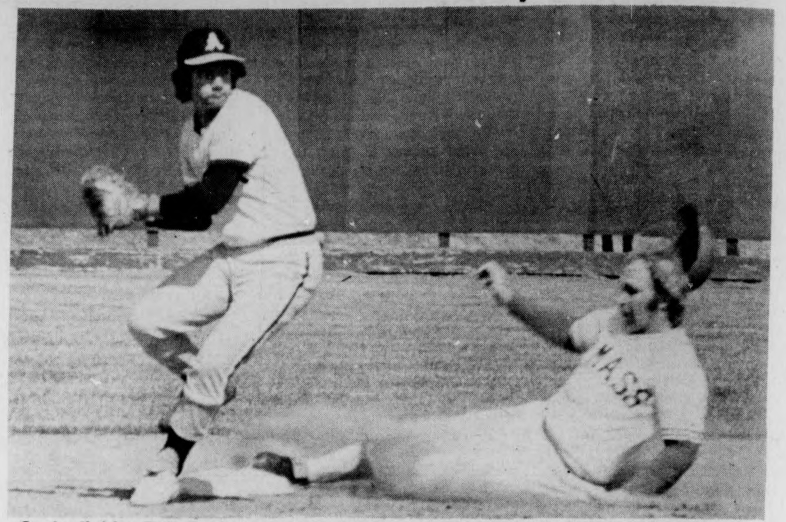
But UMass came back with two runs knocked in by Black's two-out double just inside the first base-line and then took advantage of pitcher Jim Mazzer's wildness in the fourth to go up 3-2. They were never headed.

While the Minutemen were scoring two runs in each the sixth, seventh, and eighth behind the hitting of Backstrom, Seed (two hits), Koperniak (two hits, two runs) and, surprisingly, Cullen (two-for-three), Allegrezza was "setting them up perfect," as one Yellow jacket put it, allowing just one unearned run in the final eight frames.

The big righty's use of control and stuff was exemplified in the sixth, when he struck out the side using a nice assortment of speeds on fastballs and curves kept low.

To paraphrase that old adage, the pitching was ahead of the hitting was ahead of the fielding. AIC committed five errors while UMass topped them with six.

"One thing I wasn't particularly enthused about was the fielding," said Bergquist. "I had hoped for better. But the catch by Backstrom was excellent." And that, folks, is an understatement.



Staff Photos by Dan Smith

Centerfielder Pete Backstrom, who made a great catch in the third, is forced out at second on a Steve Wright grounder in the first inning.

Backstrom got a good jump on a deep drive to leftcenter by the leadoff man in the third, Jay Tkacz (don't try to pronounce it). The wind kept blowing the ball away from the co-captain, but he finally grabbed it with a flourishing leap at the 375 mark.

And if that didn't kill AIC, then leftfielder Steve Wright's mistimed dive to stop a liner in the seventh did. Wright blocked the ball on one-hop with his body, then pegged out AIC's Jack Nelson trying to advance from first to third to end the inning. What was demoralizing for the Yellowjackets was that a runner ahead of Nelson failed to score on the play, not quite crossing the plate before the third out was made.

FROZEN ROPES — UMass is now 3-5, AIC 1-3 ... Firstsacker Seed evoked chuckles from the AIC bench when he practically killed himself going after a foul pop and didn't come up with it, but did come up with a crazy grin.

Steve Saraceno

Not letter-perfect

The good thing about being a sports columnist is that you get the chance to voice your opinions. You're able to disagree in print when, say, the football coach — trailing by six with time running out in the Big Game — calls for a quarterback sneak on fourth and 42.

Or if, by chance, the basketball coach decides to build his set-up offense around a 5'7 center, you get an opportunity to castigate in black-and-white all those involved. Such are the joys of sportswriting.

However, fans don't always agree with you, and there can be a lot of feedback. Like, just the other day I got this batch of correspondence:

Dear Mr. Saraceno,

It just struck me that you haven't said anything about gymnastics being a "deathly boring and minor sport" for nearly a year now. Perhaps you've finally begun to notice how the streets are always abuzz with talk whenever there has been an exciting gymnastics meet on television the night before, or how often people at summer picnics turn to each other and say, "Hey, let's play a game of gymnastics."

Truly, gymnastics is our National Past time.

Sincerely,
Gumby

Dear Steve,

In reference to your recent column on basketball rules ("Words to the Why's", Feb. 26), you are mistaken about the "four corner" stall offense. Killing the clock is a blatant foul, tantamount to homicide in the first degree, and the penalty assessed in most states is life.

— MOE MENTUM
Qualified Official

Dear Jerk:

I don't like you. I don't like your style, I don't like your attitude, and I don't like your picture at the top of your column. I don't read the paper on Wednesdays because your face is in it. In fact, if I ever meet you on campus, I'm gonna bash your face in.

— A. NONYMOUS

Dear Steve,

I really enjoyed your last piece ("Diamond Facelift," Apr. 2) except for one minor error. You see, Alexander Cartwright did not invent baseball. Karl Marx, of course, did that — right after developing his theory of dialectical materialism and just before writing the Communist Manifesto, Also of interest is the fact that our glorious predecessor also invented the electric light bulb, the telephone, television, hot dogs, apple pie, and Chevrolet.

I read your column every week, but not religiously. Keep up the good work, comrade.

— L. BREZHNEV
Moscow

Dear John,

I'm sorry to have to tell you like this, but I've met someone else and we're going to be married in June. Enclosed is your engagement ring.

— CLARA BELLE

Dear Sir:

How dare you criticize Johnny Muldoon? ("Muldoon Blows It Again", Apr. 8). How was he to know the batter would pick such a time (last of the ninth) to hit a fly ball to rightfield? I bet you'd be nervous too, if you had all those people watching you write your column!

— MRS. MULDOON

Dear Subscriber,

We were very pleased when you decided to take advantage of our offer to receive Sports Explicated for five years at the special economy rate by simply checking the box: "Bill Me Later." However, that was five long years ago, bub, so you better fork over the bread now or our lawyers will sue you for all you're worth, and we ain't kidding.

If you have already paid, kindly disregard this notice ...

Stickmen challenge Cortland

By BEN CASWELL

The UMass lacrosse Gorillas will take on Cortland State College at 12:30 this afternoon.

The game will be the first of a fine quality lacrosse doubleheader played at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

The second game, which will begin at 3:30 will have Rutgers taking on Cornell.

Cortland State has an impressive squad this year, according to Gorilla coach Dick Garber.

"Although I haven't seen them play," said Garber, "I know that they had a very successful spring trip and the should be tough."

On that spring trip Cortland played good games against North Carolina (seventh in the nation), North Carolina State, and number 12 in the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) college division, Denison.

Cortland State's opening game versus Geneso State was snowed out earlier this week so this game against UMass will be the start of their regular season.

Last year Cortland and UMass battled through five overtime periods before Cortland finally won 10-9 on a sudden death score. That game was played at UMass.

In that overtime classic Cortland goaltender, Peter Graham, set a major lacrosse division record for the most saves in one game with 39 stops against the Gorillas.

Graham has graduated now and the all-American goalie's absence will certainly be appreciated by UMass.

"They (Cortland) have a good attack and midfield," said coach Garber. "I'm not sure how they will be in goal now without Graham," he said.

"Our teams play the same style of game," said Garber, "we both have running midfields, try to fast break a lot, and strong defenses."

SCOOP SHOTS — Garber plans to alternate Bill O'Bruen and Frank Garahan, both attackmen, in the opening left at midfield by Billy Collins' injury . . . Attacker Kevin Patterson has a calf bruise and may not play, and if he does his mobility will be limited . . . Bobby Durland will be starting in goal, Durland's hometown of Baldwinville is right near Ithaca where the game will be played . . . Cortland State is ranked number four in USILA college division ratings . . . UMass is ranked 13th in the USILA university division rankings . . . Next Gorilla game is versus Harvard at Cambridge one week from today . . . Next home game is versus Boston College on April 23.

Staff Photo by Dan Smith

A befallen Mike Lettera looks upfield in earlier game action. Today Lettera and teammates trek to Ithaca to face a tough Cortland State squad.

Sox win 5-2; top Brewers

BOSTON [AP] — Bob Montgomery doubled home two runs in a three-run third inning Tuesday and Tony Conigliaro made a triumphant return to the major leagues as the Boston Red Sox beat Milwaukee 5-2, spoiling the American League debut of the Brewers' Hank Aaron.

Aaron and Conigliaro, who had been hit in the eye by a pitch in 1967 and had been out of baseball the past 3½ years, received standing ovations when they were introduced and batted for the first time.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 45
THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1975

weather

It will be sunny today
as you go out to play,
it will turn cold tonight,
as you turn out the lights.

Senate backs unionization

by SAMUEL HASSAN
and DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporters

The Student Senate last night overwhelmingly voted to endorse the Student Union Enabling Policy.

The Policy which sets the legal guidelines by which a student union can be formed, has already been endorsed by the Central and Sylvan area governments and numerous student groups on campus. It is being brought before the Orchard Hill, Southwest and Northeast area governments this week.

According to Susan Rivest, chairperson of the Student Organizing Committee," this is merely an endorsement. Nothing is final until a majority of the students voting in a special election vote in favor of a union."

The Policy, together with all the student group endorsements, will go to the Board of Trustees Student Affairs Committee next Thursday.

If approved by the Student Affairs committee, it will go to the Full Board of Trustees on May 7.

The Policy was written by Student Organizing Project staff member and Harvard Law Student Doug Phelps in consultation with noted attorney Leonard Boudin.

It provides for an "exclusive representative" to represent the students in collective bargaining negotiations with the University.

It also provides for a Board of Student Relations to decide all questions which arise under the Policy. The board will consist of the Board of Trustees Chairman of the Committee on Student Affairs, the Vice-President for University Policy, the student trustees from UMass Amherst and UMass-Boston and a "fair and impartial" appointee of the Governor.

The Board was amended last night to also include "one third world student, one graduate student, one non-black third world student, and one woman."

Heavy debate last night centered on the funding of the union. The policy provides for voluntary union dues in addition to a mandatory payment of a service fee (estimated at 50 cents per 2-yr.) to cover the cost of collective bargaining expenses.

An amendment to abolish the mandatory dues, was defeated on the grounds that students can decide if to appeal or to approve it in the special election.

According to Rivest, "nothing in this Policy is hard and fast," it can be continuously be amended."

In other action, the African Student's Association (ASA) had their program statement and rationale denied outright by the Senate. The ASA budget request had previously been denied by the Student Senate Budget Committee.

Senate Communications Committee Chairman Anthony Armelin announced that 16,000 leaflets are to be distributed by Monday, April 14. The leaflets contain information about proposed budget cuts and increases in both room and board fees, and are an attempt to educate the campus community as to the seriousness of the University financial situation, he said.

Student Government Association President Rick Savini discussed the upcoming demonstration to be held on Boston Common opposite the State House on Friday, April 18.

Savini said, "There is no clear way to avoid rent and board increases unless we demonstrate." We're going to have to lobby," he said.

The planned demonstration is slated as a car caravan with buses and is expected to draw 3000-4000 UMass students to Boston Common.

Savini urged the Senate to finance buses for the trip.

CC discriminates against women

By ELLEN GAVIN
Progressive News Service

Inequities exist in the present status and working conditions of Campus Center-Student Union employees, with women workers on the short end of the stick. A Collegian investigation revealed that not only do women get less pay than men, receive fewer raises, and are excluded from certain kinds of work, they also suffer from certain attitudinal pressures from male managers and co-workers.

STATISTICS SHOW INEQUITIES

Out of the 19 professional staff in the Campus Center, three are women. The positions which women hold are: Manager of the Print Shop, Manager of the Textbook Annex, and Beverage Manager of the Campus Center, according to Tim Cox, personnel manager.

Of the classified non-professional staff of 158, 98 are women. This 62.1 per cent figure appears to favor women, but a closer look at the overall salary ranges of women in relation to men is necessary, Cox said.

In response to a request for the information, Cox said he is in the process of compiling updated statistics. The following statistics were compiled from a December 1973 list, when the total number of classified employees was 156.

60.2 per cent of the classified women workers at that time were at a grade level of 3, 4, or 5, which represented salaries from $103.00-$134.00. Only one male was reported at a grade 4, making the statistics for that category (grades three to five) a total of .5 per cent. While a little over half of the male workers were at a grade 7 ($121-146 weekly) or lower, 82.7 per cent of the women were at or below a grade 7. On the other end of the spectrum, 32.8 per cent of the men were at a grade level of 10-14 with salaries up to $230.00 weekly. Only 5.1 per cent of the women were reported at a grade 10 and above, and only 1 per cent were above a grade 11, as opposed to 20.6 of the men.

Tim Cox, the affirmative action director for the Campus Center, claims that "Affirmative Action guidelines have been met." Jane Levin, a student worker who compiled a report on A.A. last January reported that "projected goals for 74-75 were either not fully fulfilled, or not fulfill3d at all."

John Corker, director of the Campus Center says that Affirmative Action is difficult because "the university has not clearly defined what it expects from us."

SEX DISCRIMINATION COMPLAINT FILED

Dorritt Kinder, beverage manager of the Campus Center, and one of three professional women in the building, filed a sex discrimination complaint with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD) last November. The MCAD is the state agency which investigates complaints of discrimination on the basis of sex, race, and nation origin in the hiring, promotion and treatment of employees. She named the management of the Campus Center as respondents.

Two weeks ago she filed another complaint alleging retaliation on the part of the managers in reaction to her filing with the MCAD.

Her attorney, David Burris is currently studying the possibility of other legal actions. In Massachusetts there exists a Private Right to Action clause statute which allows an attorney for a plaintiff to by-pass the overloaded bureaucracy of the MCAD to seek relief in a private action.

ON-THE-JOB HASSLES

There are various ways in which women receive substantially different treatment than male workers, said a C.C. employee.

In the Hatch, women are not allowed to perform certain tasks men perform. Women are advised not to clean the grill, change the milk dispensing machines, clean the large pots or empty the grease from fryolators. The reason for these policies according to a female employee at the Hatch is to "supposedly keep us from potential danger, but what about potential danger to men?"

In the Coffee Shop two grill positions exist — grill cook and grill assistant. There is only one woman compared to eleven men in the former category, and they receive an hourly wage of $2.25. Grill assistants, both men and women, receive a lesser hourly wage of $2.10. Both jobs entail the same work, except that the grill cook on the night shift is responsible for clean-up.

Another job category from which women are excluded is that of "bouncer". Sharon Ross, a woman who has requested the position said that it was denied her on the premise that she could not handle the job, though she considers herself physically capable. The rationale that a woman, because she is a woman, is not capable of adequate defense against attack is one which has been rejected by U.S. courts in relation to women police officers.

Ross will submit another request today.

ATTITUDES OF MALES CITED

Women contacted from all areas of the Campus Center-Student Union complex have cited the "paternalistic" and "demeaning" attitudes of male managers as bothersome.

Referred to as "sweetie" or "honey" a number of student employees said that they resent what they say are the "sexist comments from the management."

In confidential conversations with waitresses from the Top of the Campus and the Hatch Bar, they reported that waitresses are often subjected to "comments of a suggestive nature from several of the Campus Center managers." several of the women waitress from these areas have been asked out on dates by the managers.

Staff Photo by Paul Muzyka

"Gee whizz," say Bronwen Boyer and Lucas Morton, "this is great bubble gum for free, but what are we going to do with all these old cards.

No secret Nam pacts guarantees Ford

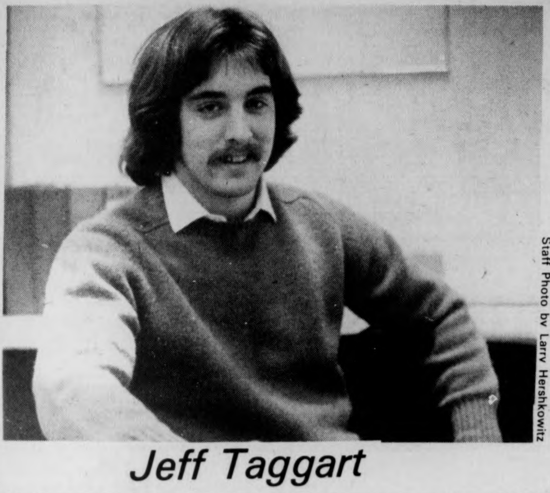
WASHINGTON [UPI] — President Ford assured Congressmen yesterday that no "private agreements" exist between the United Stated and South Vietnam, Rep. John Anderson, R—Ill., said after a conference with Ford.

Anderson's summary appeared to sharpen the White House response to Sen. Henry M. Jackson's charge that the United States entered into "secret agreements" with Saigon in an apparent effort to induce it to sign the Paris peace accords.

In the first White House response to that charge, press secretary Ron Nessen disclosed earlier Wednesday that President Richard M. Nixon had confidentially promised Saigon the United States would "react vigorously" to any major Communist violations of the peace accords.

On Capitol Hill, Jackson called the White House explanation "obviously not satisfactory." He demanded disclosure of "the specific language of the communications" between Nixon and

turn to p. 4



Jeff Taggart

Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz

'Soaring food service costs plague CC management'

By FRED NOBLES
Staff Reporter

Jeff Taggart chairperson of the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOG) said yesterday that "increased operating expenses" in the food services operations is the major problem with the CC fiscal 1976 budget. The budget was presented to the Board by the CC management.

Taggart in a Collegian interview commented on the budget, a recent meeting with Chancellor Randolph Bromery and the function of the BOG.

The BOG is a student policy making body that works "closely with management" in operating and budgeting the Campus Center-Student Union Complex.

"This year the estimated net income from food services will be approximately $95,000 less than last year," Taggart said, "and that's with a projected increase in sales of $200,000."

Pointing out areas where the food services budget could be cut, Taggart noted that the 1976 Campus Center operation calls for both an assistant beverage manager and an auxiliary services manager. Taggart said the "feeling of the board" is that the two jobs could be done by one person, thus cutting $11,000 from the budget.

Taggart also said an $8,000 hourly employee position in the fast food operation which was to be eliminated this year has been requested again on the next budget.

"The increase in operating expenses is what we're worried most about," Taggart said, "We'd like to keep these positions costing an additional $19,000 out of the budget."

Taggart said the food service department projects that it will make about the same amount of money next year as it did this year. But he questioned how it is possible for expenses to go up $110,000 even allowing for increased costs due to inflation.

turn to pg. 9

SCER report concludes

Education finances burden 'average worker'

By JOYCE KOSOFSKY
Staff Reporter

This is the last of a three part series on a report from the Student Center for Educational Research [SCER] concerning the housing crisis at UMass.

In a recently published report from the Student Center for Educational Research (SCER) concerning the housing crisis at UMass, tax reform is cited as one solution to financial problems.

The main burden for financing higher education and all other state and federally supported ventures is on working people, says SCER. Governor Michael Dukakis has indicated that he would like to see the University budget cut to save tax payer's money. But there are other solutions which would provide more money for higher education and other social and educational services while decreasing the tax bill of the average worker, says SCER.

Unfortunately, the report states these solutions involve major tax reforms on the state, local and federal level but are important to consider when analyzing the dilemma of higher education, including residence halls.

In this state, most people pay federal income tax, state income tax, property tax, sales tax, and other "consumption" taxes, such as restaurant meals, alcohol, cigarette, gasoline, etc.

While there are provisions to make the federal and state income tax take a higher percentage of income from wealthy people than from low income people, says SCER, the effect is the opposite. In addition federal loopholes allow many wealthy people to pay little or no taxes.

The state system, which taxes everyone at 5 per cent provides some exemptions for people to ease the burden on low income people. This also has the effect of being regressive, i.e. poor people pay a higher share than wealthy people. The report shows other regressive taxes are sales tax which causes everyone to pay 3 per cent regardless of income on certain items. While Massachusetts sales tax is lower and covers less essential items than other states, it still hurts the lower income people because they spend higher percentages of their incomes on taxable items than do wealthy people.

SCER says that property taxes take a great burden from low and middle income people, and effects tenants also. Even though it is paid by the landlord, it comes directly out of the money paid in rent. Urban Planning Aid, Inc. estimates that the average tenant pays 24 per cent of his or her rent as property tax, which indicates that a person with a $175 per month apartment is paying $504 a year in property taxes. A student paying $90 a month and earning an annual income of $3,000 is paying $259 yearly or 8 per cent of his or her income for property taxes.

While not dealing with specific tax reforms, SCER points out that the entire tax structure within the state provides an unequal burden on lower income people and allows wealthy corporations and individuals to pay far below their share.

"What is important to realize," says SCER, "is that there is a potential for greater income to the public sector without having to further burden those who pay the greatest amount of taxes — low and middle income working people."

SCER raised the issue of tax reform partially to show how the state and federal government's tax systems have evolved in such a way that the people who pay the most are those who can least afford it.

"Now that the University is on the verge of changing its residency requirement," says SCER, "it is again looking to those who can

turn to pg. 9

Debaters rank high in tourneys

By P.J. PROKOP
Staff Reporter

Two teams (four members) of the UMass Debate Union placed high in the Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha (DSR-TKA) national tournament in Kentucky last weekend defeating such top teams as Pace College in New York, University of Utah, University of Alabama and others.

Meanwhile, four other members of the union took honors for UMass at a separate tourney in Buffalo.

The Kentucky tournament, hosted by UMass last year, holds elections annually and this year Howard Steinberg, a UMass junior, was elected president of DSR-TKA, which is the National Honorary Forensic Fraternity.

Steinberg was a member of one of the winning teams, David Donovan, a UMass junior was his partner. The team compiled a record of five wins and three losses.

Another team, Roseann Hynes, a freshman, and Mary Jablonski, also a freshman, compiled a record of two wins and six losses. Coach Marlene Fine, a former UMass debater accompanied the team.

In the Individual Events Tournament (I.E.) held at the State University of New York at Buffalo four debaters, Paul Goslin, a junior, Kathy Eppinger, a junior, Jill Peltin, a senior, and Martha Seif, junior, cumulatively won a total of eight trophies at the Buffalo tournament, which gave them enough total team points to take second place in the Sweepstakes, qualifying the team for a ninth trophy.

There were five categories in the Buffalo tournament, 1) Informative, 2) Persuasion, 3) Interpretive, 4) Extemporaneous, and 5) After-Dinner Speaking. At least one UMass debater placed in each category. This is the first year for the Individual Events team, which has eight members, and has won 36 trophies altogether.

According to Jill Peltin, president of the UMass Debate Union, they will be holding a raffle to raise money for tournament teams and Individual Events participants to go to the nationals.

UYA, Outreach to merge in Ad Hoc proposal

By WILLIAM MILLS
Staff Reporter

An ad hoc committee on intern evaluation will recommend to the faculty senate today that University Year for Action (UYA) and the Outreach program be combined into a single Office of Internship program be combined into a single Office of Internship Programs, according to John Hunt, associate provost.

Early last semester Vice Chancellor Robert Gluckstern requested a faculty senate committee be formed to examine internship programs on the campus. Hunt acted as liaison between the administration and the faculty senate committee. A report has been compiled by the committee detailing its examinations.

One reason why the committee will recommend the integration of UYA and Outreach, according to Hunt, is because Gluckstern is concerned about the "budget crunch."

"The main thing about the report," he said, "is the faculty affirmation of experiential learning. This idea has become an acceptable part of the academic experience," Hunt said.

The committee will also recommend "more effective faculty

turn to pg. 9

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	B.J Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson

Associate Editors

Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth

Business

Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor	Geoffrey Kurinsky
Assistant Issue Editor	P. J. Prokop
Sports Layout Staff	Bill Edelstein, Chas O'Connor
Darkroom Staff	Larry Hershkowitz, Jack O'Neil, Joe Stoddart
Bailor	Dave Eibel

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

Poor Richard's
Discotheque
Every Thurs.
White Lightning Nite

PHOTO CONTEST

As part of a special photography supplement to the Collegian on April 30th the Collegian is holding a photo contest open to all UMass undergrads and grads. There will be three categories, Portrait, Still Life, and Abstract. Please indicate category. All photos should be on 8x10 paper and mounted, no large than 11x14. Black and white only. Entries should be submitted to the Collegian business office between 8:30 and 4:30, April 14 through 25 (deadline). Contest will be judged by nine of the most experienced members of the paper's photo staff and the graphics advisor. Prizes to be announced next Wednesday. Top three photos in each category will appear in the April 30th issue.

'I was told to get out on January 26'

Tartaglia takes employment problem to Gage

By DAVE KOWAL
Staff Reporter

Tony Tartaglia, a student employee who was terminated in January without explanation, will be meeting this afternoon with Vice-chancellor Robert W. Gage and Campus Center Director John W. Corker to discuss his employment problems.

Tartaglia said, "I was told to 'get out' on January 26 by Mr. Corker without any explanation."

Gage said Tartaglia and Corker will present their stories at today's meeting. "I've received information from each," he added, "regarding their perspectives." "It's about time we got the matter settled," he added.

Tartaglia has been attempting reinstatement since his termination.

Tartaglia said, "When I was terminated, I went to the Student Employment Committee (SEC) and appealed the decision."

A representative from the committee, Michael Bardsley, gave the case to Milton Kerstein, a member of the CC Board of Governors, for investigation, he said.

"The SEC tried to get a statement from Mr. Corker," he continued, "but he wouldn't cooperate, so they decided to bring the case before the full board."

The board met in open session, Tartaglia said, and Corker refused to speak. When the board met in closed session Corker again refused to speak, after he was told anything he said could be used for legal action.

"After the first meeting," he added, "the board voted to reinstate me, but the case was sent back for reconsideration by the Graduate Student Senate. They have review power over the Board of Governors.

The Undergraduate Student Senate had approved the board's decision to reinstate Tartaglia.

Tartaglia said, "The decision again was brought before the board, and Mr. Corker still refused to talk, so the board reaffirmed the vote to reinstate me.

"Mr. Corker refused to reinstate me in spite of that," he continued, "so Chancellor Bromery sent it back to the board for 'reconsideration. Again Corker refused to cooperate."

Tartaglia said some members of the Board of Governors then spoke to Bromery, and he agreed to review the case.

Heads Humanities and Fine Arts

The other Dean Allen

By DAVE EIBEL
Staff Reporter

Eleven years ago, an English professor from the University of Colorado found himself in a spacious office with a fireplace on the second floor of South College. He was being interviewed by the-then UMass President John Lederle for a job he admits in retrospect he knew nothing about and never got.

Today, Jeremiah Allen is the Dean of the School of Humanities and Fine Arts one of three schools — the others being Social and Behavioral Sciences and Natural Sciences and Mathematics — that make up the College of Arts and Sciences. He also occupies the office that Lederle used to occupy.

Allen did his undergraduate work at Duke, his master's work at Tufts and earned his doctorate in English at the University of Colorado where he taught until he came to UMass in 1968 as associate provost. Since the fall of 1970 Allen has been the Dean of Humanities and Fine Arts, responsible for 14 departments ranging from Afro-American Studies to Philosophy.

Dean Allen is in charge of a school with an annual budget of $8.9 million of which only $300,000 are in non-salary accounts. Like all UMass administrators, Allen has got to be somewhat worried about any budget cuts UMass might have to shoulder.

"The problem as I see it is a problem of the Commonwealth. We have a $350 million deficit in fiscal 1975 and for fiscal 1976 I've seen estimates as high as $900 million but I think that might be a little high. However, there's no question that the state is in serious financial difficulty. The problem right now," said Allen," is that nobody knows how much the cuts might be."

Although the economy is in a horrid state, the College of Arts and Science has not suffered a reduction in course enrollments with students choosing majors to jobs.

"There is some indication at the national level that this is happening," admitted Allen. "But in our school we still can't take more than a third of the qualified students," he continued.

"If anything, more students are opting for arts and science courses. Classics had a 51 per cent rise in course enrollments between the fall of 1973 and the fall of 1974, while journalism had a 35 per cent rise in enrollments in the same period," he said.

Money problems have left several departments severely shorthanded related Allen.

"The linguistics department has three out of nine faculty positions vacant while the Italian department has two of six and a half positions vacant," explained Allen.

The primary financial resources of graduate students come from being teaching assistants and if Allen allowed departments to add faculty it would put graduates at a financial disadvantage.

"I've had to be very sparing in allowing departments to fill positions," explained Allen. "We're keeping our positions but not filling them and saving them for graduates," he continued.

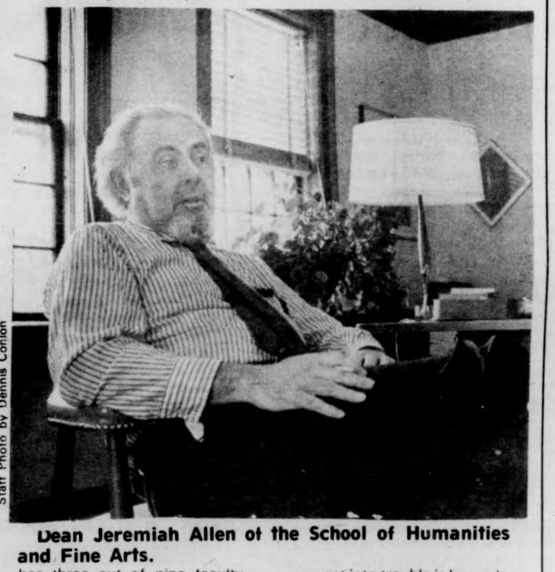
The School of Humanities and Fine Arts receives about $300,000 annually in federal grants, far less than the School of Education.

In touching on the alleged misuse of federal funds by the School of Education, Allen said he'd "be astounded if anything happened in his school."

"The programs are different," he continued. "Most of our grants go to support graduate assistants. The way you get into trouble is by paying consultants," he said.

In the light of what allegedly happened in the School of Education, Dean Jeremiah Allen had some optimistic words about his colleagues in academia.

"When anything goes wrong in the academic world it's an exception. Ninety-nine per cent are conscientious," he concluded.



Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

Dean Jeremiah Allen of the School of Humanities and Fine Arts.

'Parchment' editor resigns

By SAMUEL HASSAN
Staff Reporter

Editor of the Sylvan Parchment, John Deane Leavenworth has resigned his position the Collegian learned yesterday.

Leavenworth cited suffering grades and a lack of co-operation from certain area government people as primary reasons for the resignation.

He said that editing of the weekly publication should be, "completely departmentalized. There should be more money in it for both the workers and the paper itself."

Leavenworth and Ron Chait, a reporter who has shared the editing responsibilities both think there should be two editing positions: a business-managing editor, and an executive editor responsible for content of the paper.

Chait is presenting proposals to the Sylvan Area Government (SAG) tonight that will include; a restructuring of the editorship into two positions, and an exdisclosed revision of the pay scale.

According to Leavenworth, he worked for fifty hours on the eight-page April 3rd issue for his weekly salary of $10. Chait receives $7.50 per week.

The Parchment is funded by the SAG at a cost of about $60 per issue.

Leavenworth said, "They (certain area government people) didn't want me to be an editor. They wanted me to write their minutes. SAG should be financial backers and that's it."

Both Chait and Leavenworth agree that if the Area Government were to publish the Parchment, it would be a "conflict of interest."

Chait said that "while newsreporting is the primary purpose of the Parchment, it does serve to keep SAG honest." They have an understandable self-interest that we're not chained in by.

First issue on November 22, 1971, the parchment is the oldest, most published residential newspaper on campus. It serves 1400 readers printing 600 copies per week, usually six to eight pages.

This week's six page issue is being edited by Ron Chait who says, "There may not be a paper after this week, but I'm leaving that in the hands of the Area Gooernment."

Volunteers organize doubtful concert

By BARBARA HOFFMAN
Staff Reporter

The Program Council Music Committee recruited an additional forty-five volunteers this week to assist with the Spring Concert but Committee members are still doubtful of its reality.

"I don't know if this concern will be used against us," said Committee member Sally Gotschall in a telephone interview with the Collegian.

Gotschall, who is a member of the Campus Center Board of Governors, said she was torn between wanting to stage the traditional concern, and fearing for the committee's future budget.

"How can you justify a $15,000 expenditure and still make next year's budget feasible to the administration?" she asked.

$6,000 of the sum was saved by the committee from not scheduling the usual monthly performances in the Student Union Ballroom. The additional $9,000 has a more controversial origin, according to Gotschall. This sum was originally earmarked for the Winter Carnival concert not held this year. The committee requested the funds be transferred to the Spring concert.

Gotschall said in light of statewide budget cuts, that large an expenditure for one concert could place next year's budget in jeopardy.

Robert Hartford, a committee member, said there was little time left to organize a concern of that scale. The Spring concert has been scheduled for the beginning of May in Alumni Stadium.

Chairperson David Osepowicz said that the committee is working against time and yet he is optimistic. He is considering possible talent including Chick Corea, Hot Tuna, Tower of Power, and Taj Mahal. Osepowicz estimates they will need as many as seventy-five volunteers for the stadium concert, excluding police, firepeople and others.

Refusal by faculty to leave meeting prompts complaint

By JERRY ROGERS
Staff Reporter

Two faculty residents from Orchard Hill have refused to leave an Ored at Monday's OHAG meeting to discuss their budget and have Matt Burns speak about the SGA task force working on forming alternatives to the Universal Resource Fee (URF) and price hikes on campus.

The refusal of Luther Allen of Webster House and Fred Whitmore of Grayson House to leave prompted the body to pass a motion to send a letter to Student Attorney General Cindy Iris complaining about the violation of student rights.

The executive session was requested by OHAG president Mark Kaizerman so that individuals involved in both instances would not be subject to possible adverse publicity.

Iris said, since the complaint does not involve students she would be unable to act on it; but Iris also said once she receives the letter she will study it to see what can be done.

Jim Starr of the Legal Services Office said that if OHAG wished to do something on the complaint level "they would probably have to go to the Faculty Senate."

Under Roberts Rules of Order, only voting or ex officio members of OHAG may remain in the meeting during executive session. Ex officio refers to SGA student senators from Orchard Hill. Guests are also allowed to remain, thus explaining why Burns was allowed to speak.

It became apparent that the discussion of the OHAG budget dealt with discrepancies uncovered by Kaizerman. Bruce Cormier, treasurer during the period being discussed in executive session, apologized for any "mistakes" made and asked to be re-elected when election for treasurer came up at the same meeting.

The refusal of the two faculty residents to leave forced Burns to modify what he was going to say to the group, according to Dave Pike, OHAG vice-president, adding, "what Burns was going to say was exclusively for us (students) to hear."

Paul Cronin, student senator from Grayson and an ex officio member, speaking to OHAG, said, "It's the principle of the matter. You might never know what's not been said."

Allen refused to leave saying he would have to be forcibly removed. Citing that he was a political scientist and as a faculty resident should monitor constitutional procedure, he said this was a change and a week should have been given to judge the possibility of executive session before it was implemented.

When questioned about whether the session was in violation of the "open meeting" law, Starr said that executive session was provided for in certain cases and that this seemed to be a valid case.

In refering to the budget as a reason for executive session he said that discussion of connections between personnel and funds is a valid reason.

Communists attack Saigon defense perimeter

Fighting in capitals may start offensive

SAIGON [UPI] — Communist forces smashed into two more province capitals yesterday and were reported maneuvering 40,000 troops into position for what military sources said could be the start of the battle for Saigon.

Elements of two Communist divisions battled South Vietnamese defenders in downtown Xuan Loc province capital, 38 miles northeast of Saigon. They also captured the southern fringes of Tan An province capital 25 miles southwest of here before they were driven back.

Military sources said the attacks on opposite sides of Saigon indicated the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, although, preferring a political victory, were preparing for a siege and all-out drive on the South Vietnamese capital itself if necessary.

The Communists attacked against the government's weakest defense lines outside Saigon. Most of the South Vietnamese defenders in provinces around the capital are defending the arc from west to north of Saigon.

Field reports said units of the 5th Viet Cong division, most of them North Vietnamese regulars, sent commandos on raids into Tan An, a city of 57,000, from sanctuaries in the Plain of Reeds. The fighting stopped traffic for eight hours on Highway 4, the "Rice Road" to the Mekong Delta.

The attacks followed by 24 hours the bombing of Thieu's Independence Palace. Thieu dismissed the plane assault as an "isolated incident" and reiterated his vow to remain in office.

A spokesman for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government said yesterday the 26-year-old pilot of the F5 Freedom Fighter jet had flown the plane to Communist territory.

The airman, 1st Lt. Nguyen Thanh Trung, was given the Viet Cong's Liberation Medal 2nd class and promoted to captain, the spokesman said. He added he did not know at which occupied base Trung had landed.

The sources said the Communists have four full divisions - about 40,000 men - as well as an estimated 150 tanks and perhaps 5,000 artillery troops with guns, rockets and heavy mortars within the general area around Saigon.

They faced an estimated 35,000 South Vietnamese regulars in the 13 provinces around the capital.

Another 12,000 government troops - remnants of divisions lost when 19 northern and central provinces fell to the Communists - arrived aboard ships yesterday at Vung Tau, 40 miles southeast of Saigon. But most were without weapons, and they fought among themselves for sacks of rice at dockside, field reports said.

Saigon itself remained outwardly calm. Most of its 3 million residents seemed oblivious of the fighting on the approaches to the capital. But Vietnamese employes of the U.S. Defense Attache's Office at Tan Son Nhut Air Base began erecting sandbags around the one-time U.S. military headquarters.

Evacuation of Vietnam orphans declines as criticism increases

SAIGON [UPI] — Although President Ford's Operation Babylift has been officially halted, U.S. planes will continue to fly Vietnamese orphans from Saigon but at a reduced rate and with less publicity, diplomatic sources said yesterday.

The Saigon sources said 1,400 children were flown out last week before the Vietnamese government officially halted the program. They said government officials would keep the program moving so long as parents could be found for Vietnamese orphans.

Another 36 children will be carried out of Saigon very soon aboard a U.S. Air Force jet evacuation flight, the sources said, but they could not give an exact date.

The South Vietnamese government has come under severe criticism from many Vietnamese, particularly members of the opposition to President Nguyen Van Thieu, for sending the children abroad.

For a variety of cultural, religious and political reasons, most Vietnamese officials oppose sending the children from orphanages here to foreign countries.

"They have assured us, however, that they will continue quietly and quickly to approve exit papers for children who do have homes to go to" in the United States or other countries, one source said.

Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister currently touring Africa, denounced the U.S. mercy airlift yesterday as a massive attempt to brainwash future generations of Vietnamese. Criticism also has been voiced by other Viet Cong and North Vietnamese officials.

Mme. Binh, in an interview with the Tanzanian newspaper Uhuru in Dar es Salaam said the airlift was organized on the pretext of helping suffering war orphans.

"But in reality it was an effort by the United States to indoctrinate children who will later be used to try to subvert the revolutionary government," she said.

"No one will believe the United States wants to help the Vietnamese people after slaughtering millions of them," Mme. Binh said.

Ford assures Congress no pacts with Thieu made with secrecy

cont. from p. 2

Saigon officials.

Shortly after Nessen's news conference, Ford conferred with a group of congressional leaders, including Anderson.

"We were assured that there are no private, off-the-record assurances on the part of this government to the government of South Vietnam" regarding the 1973 Paris accords, Anderson told reporters.

In response to questions, Anderson said Ford had assured the group "there are no private agreements" with Saigon, and "no hidden chapters yet to be revealed." He said Ford assured the congressmen specifically that there was no commitment for U.S. military intervention under any circumstances.

"There are no secret, as yet undisclosed agreements between this government and the government of South Vietnam that would in any way require or obligate us to make a military response to the invasion by North Vietnam," Anderson said.

"Assurances to the Republic of Vietnam as to both U.S. assistance and U.S. enforcement of the Paris agreement were stated clearly and publicly by President Nixon," Nessen said.

He said, however, the August, 1973, congressional ban on further U.S. military involvement in Indochina "of course ruled out the possibility of American military reaction to violations of the agreement."

He said there were confidential communications between Nixon and Thieu at a time in late 1972 and early 1973 when Thieu was balking. But he maintained Nixon publicly stated many times the same assurances he gave Thieu.

"The publicly stated policy and intention of the United States government to continue to provide adequate economic and military assistance and to react vigorously to major violations of the Paris agreements reflected confidential exchanges between the Nixon administration and President Thieu at the time," Nessen said.

HUNGRY U
Pizza
Subs
McGilvray
256·0473
103 N. Pleasent
256·8914
55 UNIV. DR.
WeDeliver

COME ONE, COME ALL!

Enter the First Annual UMass Car Rally.

SATURDAY, APRIL 12

Win prizes from the Rusty Scupper, Steak Out, Sound Scope, Old Weird Harold's, Faces of Earth, Bell's, Hungry U II, Papa Gino's, or Dominos.

Registration at 9 a.m. in front of Alumni Stadium. $3 per car. For further info call: 6-7801, 6-7791, 6-7794, 6-7728, 6-7761.

ALMOST PLANTING TIME

Get a head start
at Earthwares
seeds & seed flats
vermiculite
gardening books
plant lites for seedlings

EARTHWARES
103 N. PLEASANT AMHERST 256 8810

My Country 'tis of Free

There are lots of places to see in America.
Lots of ways to get there.
But only one travel guide brings them all together—
America: The Datsun Student Travel Guide.
Created just for students with one eye on the horizon, and the other on the wallet.

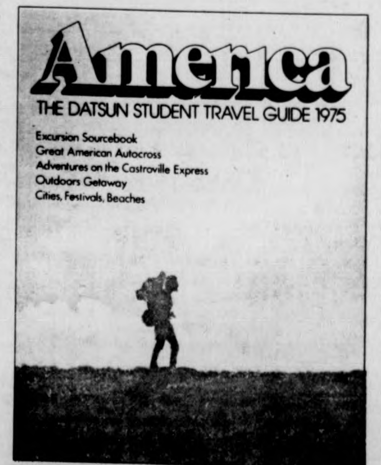
And it's free.

In America you'll find unusual festivals, favorite student beaches, and places to go where others only dream of. Special guides to auctions, rodeos, wine tours, and lots of other tips and trips.

America: The Datsun Student Travel Guide. Just the inspiration you need to explore the nation on your own.

PICK UP YOUR FREE COPY FROM THE STUDENT UNION NEXT TO CANDY COUNTER.

Sponsored by the Outdoor Interest Group



America
THE DATSUN STUDENT TRAVEL GUIDE 1975
Excursion Sourcebook
Great American Autocross
Adventures on the Castroville Express
Outdoors Getaway
Cities, Festivals, Beaches

Phnom Penh suffers under battles

US airlift proceeds despite more shelling

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — Rebel forces battled to within 2½ miles of Phnom Penh yesterday and opened recoilless rifle fire on the beleaguered capital. The city's airport, battered for days by rockets, came under the more accurate shelling of artillery.

On the political front, Prime Minister Long Boret, who returned Tuesday from a one week trip abroad, met with other government leaders. But there was no evidence the government had had any success in drawing the insurgents to the negotiating table.

The Communist-led rebels hold about 90 per cent of the country, have this capital itself surrounded and, yesterday, occupied about half of Kompong Speu, a province capital 25 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

What appeared to be 75mm recoilless rifle shells whistled into the city from both the east and north, official sources said. However, there were no immediate reports of casualties.

For the first time, the rebels rained more artillery shells than rockets on the airport, official sources said. By midafternoon, 11 105mm artillery round and three 107mm rockets had hit Pochentong. Artillery fire is more accurate than rocketing, but there were no immediate reports of damage or casualties.

The vital U.S. airlift of food and ammunition continued despite the shellings, although at what seemed to be a reduced rate. Through midafternoon, official sources said, 17 C130 transports with ammunition and 16 DC8 jets carrying rice had arrived.

Only two weeks ago the airlift involved as many as 54 flights a day.

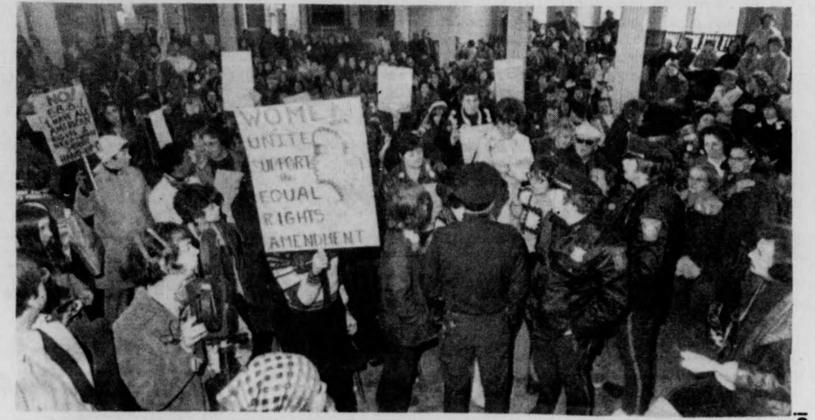
At Kompong Speu, government forces were reported holding their own. Insurgents fought their way into the city earlier this week and field reports said they still held almost half the city. But government forces were putting up stiff resistance.

Insurgents had burned down at least 200 buildings in Kompong Speu, field reports said. As many as 25,000 residents were trapped.

Government forces gave up positions at Stung Kambot, about 4.8 miles north of Phnom Penh at a loss of one dead and 12 wounded.

Insurgents fought through government lines on the east bank of the Mekong river, almost directly across from the city, and set up two new positions, official sources said.

Communications with the outside world from Phnom Penh also were threatened, post office authorities said.



WOMEN UNITE SUPPORT the EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT

upi

General view inside the Faneuil Hall in Boston yesterday as anti-busing demonstrators disrupt a rally organized by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment. Gov. Dukakis' wife was forced to leave the rally because of the protestors. (More New England news, page 6.)

Government seeks to strengthen proof of payoff to Connally

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Watergate prosecutors yesterday produced 10 technical witnesses in an attempt to bolster testimony by their key witness Jake Jacobsen that he and John Connally conspired to cover up a $10,000 payoff to the former Treasury secretary.

The prosecution was expected to complete its case today against Connally, who is charged with two counts of bribery in connection with payoffs from milk producers in return for helping convince the Nixon administration to increase milk price supports.

Jacobsen testified earlier that he paid the money to Connally in 1971 and two years later conspired to hide the transaction from Watergate investigators. Most of the 10 witnesses were called so support Jacobsen's contention that Connally gave him $10,000 in a cigar box to replace the payoff funds.

Seven federal reserve bank officials from across the nation testified that the actual money was put in circulation prior to Oct. 26, 1973, the date Jacobsen said Connally gave him the money. If even one of the 280 bills that make up the $10,000 was not in circulation at that time, it would discredit Jacobsen's story.

Prosecution spokesmen said five more federal reserve bank officials would be among their closing witnesses today in an attempt to seal what they call the "money chain" in the case.

news summary

House bans handguns

BOSTON [UPI] Legislation banning the manufacture and sale of cheap handguns called "Saturday Night Specials" was passed by the Massachusetts House yesterday and sent to the Senate.

The bill was advanced on a voice vote and without debate. It prohibits sale of guns that meet three criteria: they are less than three inches long, less than .32 caliber and made with metal that melts at a low temperature.

OAU delegates split

DARES SALAAM, Tanzania [UPI] — A deeply-divided meeting of black African and Arab ministers tried to patch together a joint policy toward South Africa yesterday, with both moderates and militants claiming majority support.

Zambian Foreign Minister Vernon Mwaanga said he was still hopeful South Africa would pull its forces out of white-ruled Rhodesia within two months despite problems surrounding constitutional talks in the breakaway British colony.

The special session of the 42-nation Organization of African Unity was called to map out a joint response to South Africa's peace overtures to the rest of the continent.

Energy plan killed

WASHINGTON [UPI] — The Senate yesterday voted down a "pay as you go" energy plan that would have let prices float free and controlled profits instead.

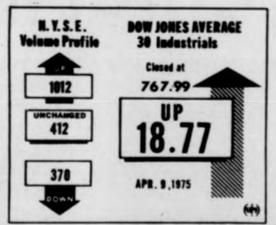
On votes of 68 to 23 and 69 to 21, the Senate refused to amend the Standby Energy Authorities Act with the profit tax, proposals by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and hoped to complete work on the far-reaching bill by day's end.

The legislation would authorize President Ford to order rationing of fuels and energy related materials in a time of emergency shortage, and would require the federal government to set up standards for public and private use of energy.

School vandalism up

WASHINGTON [UPI] — A Senate report charged yesterday violence and vandalism in the nation's schools has reached a crisis level and is worsening rapidly.

A senator who said the problem costs $500 million a year to remedy called it "a vandalism surtax" on the cost of educating America's children.



LAST WEEKEND

GRAY'S SUGARHOUSE

Pancakes, Waffles, Country Sausage & Bacon,

Homemade Apple Pie.

Beaver Meadow Farm — 2 mi. north of
Ashfield Center — 625-6559
Serving Weekends 9-6

Come Saturday — Avoid the Crowd

TELEVISION THAT WON'T ROT YOUR MIND

TODAY

★ FREE ★

WONDERLOVE ★ Stevie Wonder in Concert

HEAVYWEIGHT Champion Fights 1947-74

12:00 Noon

"The Hatch"

TAKE IT EASY BABY

Inventory Sale

20% Off

Everything

FREE WORK SHIRT

with any purchase of $10.00 or more

Jeans — Reindeer Sweaters

Leather Jackets — Cowboy Shirts

Many More Items

Located at: 255 TRIANGLE STREET
Amherst, Mass. 01002
(Between Tech Hi Fi and Discount Records)
413-549-3831
Also Located Circuit Ave., Oak Bluffs, Isle of Martha's Vineyard

State gambling called $2 billion business

Boston FBI chief testifies on crimes

BOSTON [AP] — Illegal betting on sports, horses and numbers is at least a $2 billion annual business in Massachusetts, the National Gambling Commission was told yesterday.

James O. Newpher, special agent in charge of the FBI's Boston office, also told the palen that even at the minimum of eight-and-one-third percent profit of the gross — what he said was earned from sports betting — illegal gambling produces some $166.6 million in Massachusetts for organized crime.

Newpher noted profit from horse betting was 18 percent of the handle while the odds on winning on the numbers were 999 to 1 although the payoff is only 600 to 1.

Newpher said his statistics were based on the projected tabulation of the annual total handle of some $100 million which, he said, the FBI learned of in wiretapping 49 different telephones involving 11 separate gambling operations between 1970 and January of this year.

He said the FBI believes it has not touched on 5 percent of the bookmakers existing in Massachusetts in computing its figures. Nationally, the Justice Department says it has not touched 2 percent of th illegal operations and estimates the annual figure for illegal gambling at upwards of $23 billion.

Newpher recited his figures to the commission in an effort to demonstrate that illegal gambling is an important source of revenue for organized crime.

"We are opposed to illegal gambling because it has been legislated illegal and it is under the control of organized crime," he said. "Nationally and locally, organized crime's source ot income is illegal gambling."

Newpher was joined in his comments by Gerald E. McDowell, chief of the Justice Department's organized crime force in the New England area.

"Gambling is THE racket in New England," said McDowell.

"The men who control gambling — whether it be the four syndicate families in western New England or the family organization and a co-existing independent organization in eastern New England — influence, control and finance all the other rackets in the region," said McDowell.

"The reason the mob has so decisively moved in to control gambling in New England is money," he continued. "Gambling is unquestionably the biggest moneymaker of any form of illegal activity."

McDowell said he personally was opposed to legalization of betting. "In any of the commonly suggested forms it will not significantly reduce organized crime's control over industry," he said.

"By legitimizing gambling the state is opening the whole citizenry to become degenerate gamblers," he said. "If open legalized sports, numbers and off-track horse betting compete to bring in more customers, what provision in the law will protect our society from the collateral criminal consequences stemming from the desperation of new ranks of degenerate gamblers?"

Commission chairman Charles E. Morin, a Washington lawyer, immediately asked:

"Are you saying that the people who play the lottery in Massachusetts are degenerate?"

The state runs its own lottery.

State mental health chief quits, criticizing Dukakis budget cuts

BOSTON [AP] — State Mental Health Commissioner William Goldman left his job yesterday, taking a verbal swipe at the Dukakis administration and predicting his successor will have an impossible job.

Goldman, appointed in September of 1973 by Gov. Francis W. Sargent, was not re-appointed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

He said he plans to move to San Francisco in the summer and in the meantime has applied for unemployment compensation.

He said of the budget-cutting policies of Dukakis: "I don't believe it's necessary and I don't believe it's justified and I am very clearly at odds with the new administration."

In an interview, he said the "proper operating authority of the mental health department has been rapidly eroded and I do not see how a mental health professional in good conscience can participate in or preside over the deterioration or the dismantling or the diminishing of a department that is already offering minimal service."

Dukakis has appointed Lee B. Macht as interim successor to Goldman. Macht assumes his duties today.

"And the striking contrast is that here those policies are called liberal Democrat policies while in California they were conservative Republican. They are indentical."

ONE WEEK LEFT!!

ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.

Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

PIZZA-RAMA

355 College St., Rt. 9, Amherst

specializing in

PIZZAS, HOT OVEN GRINDERS and SPAGHETTI

STORE HOURS: Sun.-Thurs., 11 a.m.-Midnight
Fri., Sat., 11 a.m.-1 a.m.

Call 253-3808

"EXTRA SPEEDY DELIVERY"

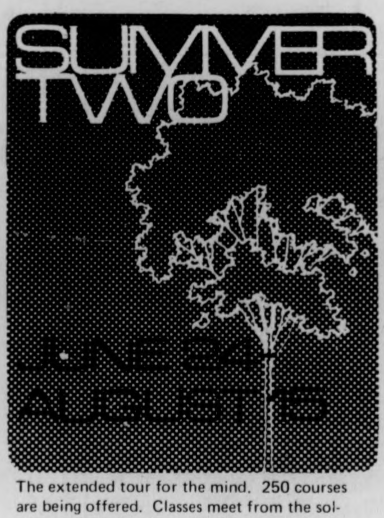
between 5 p.m.-Midnight, every night

Best Food in Town — and the Lowest Prices

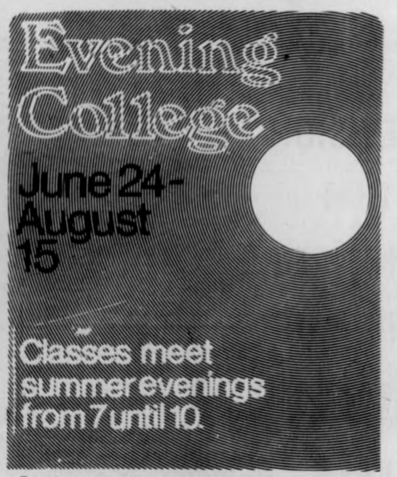
You won't believe what we put together for you this summer.

SUMMER 1
June 2-20
3 credits in 3 weeks

The three week tour for the mind. Registration is by mail or in person at Hills House main lobby, Thursday, May 29, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Counseling and financial aid are available.



The extended tour for the mind. 250 courses are being offered. Classes meet from the solstice to the latter days of August, June 24 to August 15. Registration is by mail or in person at Boyden Gym, Monday, June 23, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Financial Aid and counseling are available.



Evening College
June 24-August 15
Classes meet summer evenings from 7 until 10.

For those who like to learn after the sun goes down. Almost 50 courses including everything from art to zoology. Registration is by mail or in person at Boyden Gym, Monday, June 23, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. This session is from June 24 til August 15. Counseling and financial aid are avialable.

These courses are brought to you by the University of Massachusetts' Summer Program Office and Division of Continuing Education. (413) 545-0905

Please send me information concerning:
CLIP AND SEND TO:
CATALOG REQUEST
CONTINUING EDUCATION
HILLS HOUSE NORTH
UMASS/AMHERST 01002

○ Summer 1
○ Summer 2
○ Evening College

Name ____________ City ____________
Address ____________ State ______ Zip ______

DC

UMASS/AMHERST—Where else?

Residential colleges — diverse opportunities

By LISA FIGLIOLI
Staff Reporter

Living in Orchard Hill or Southwest can be an educationally meaningful experience for students who take advantage of the diverse living and learning opportunities that are offered by these two special communities.

Officially termed by the University "residential colleges," the Southwest and Orchard Hill areas provide experimental and complimentary programs of study as well as basic colloquium courses that are common to the other dormitory areas of UMass.

The initial idea of a residential college community precipitated just before the opening of Orchard Hill in 1963. Unfortunately, the physical plan of the buildings had been completed, and no provision for an eating facility or an auditorium had been made.

Innovators of the idea felt that Orchard Hill should have been an elite educational body with its own admission system, its own faculty, and its own interdisciplinary major; however, this suggestion never did gain substantial support.

The current goal of the Orchard Hill program is to provide alternatives to the traditional classroom experience which is described by Michael Wolff, Master/Director of the area, as "devitalized and fragmented." Although curriculum is devised by concerned students and faculty who try to comprehensively determine the needs of their "college," the true success of the program will come about only if more students are interested in the further development of their own system.

The outstanding courses at Orchard Hill are those which are cross-listed in the University catalogue and those which are strictly innovative and original to the residential college.

Among these 'trial courses," there are six individual "Sector Courses" which collaborate once a week to discuss interrelated topics. The Orchard Hill courses are constantly under revision and many of the experimental courses cultivated on the Hill are eventually adopted by the University departments.

Unlike Orchard Hill, however, Southwest was deliberately designed to have a community college atmosphere. The area is broken down by six instruction centers or dormitory "clusters" each with its own specialized course offerings which are described in Southwest's own course catalogue. Master/Director Richard Green is currently discussing the possibility of even more exciting and "intellectually honest" undergraduate programs in the area.

Because of the large population, the Southwest program may not be as cohesive as its counterpart on the Hill; however, Green feels that the number of people creates a "compliment of interests for a residential college."

A major hindrance to both Southwest and Orchard Hill is the reluctance of faculty to teach in the residential colleges because they inevitably become out-of-touch with their particular department and they are at a consequent disadvantage concerning tenure.

Younger instructors who might provide fresh points of view are understandably hesitant to get involved in the program. An adequate "System of Rewards" adopted by the University would make teaching in the residential colleges more attractive to the faculty and, in turn, would expand and improve the college curriculums.

The programs available in the residential colleges as well as certain offerings in Central, Sylvan and Northeast are beneficial in helping students to "break out of the cocoon of home," according to Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Robert W. Gage.

"Right now it is fashionable to talk about living off-campus," he said. "But if you come right down to it, a lot of people are all talk and no action."

"If dorm living were voluntary," he continued, "the small number of people who make life misearable for the rest would be gone."

There are definitely many people on campus who do consider their dorm a place to live and learn; those who reside in Orchard Hill and Southwest can make the most of an ever-growing educational asset.

Will those demonstrations pay off?

By ROBERT SHEMELIGIAN
Staff Reporter

Mitch Young, the Advertising Manager for the Valley Advocate, smiles a little more than he used to. He recently found out that he may receive $10,000 because he spent three days in jail.

He was a complainant in the civil liberties suit brought against the District of Columbia for the unconstitutional arrests of 1200 persons demonstrating on the Capitol steps in Washington during the May Day demonstrations of 1971.

Young, then a student at Brooklyn College, had heard about the May Day demonstrations going on in Washington, and as he is a pacifist, he decided to leave for the nation's capital. On Wednesday morning he arrived at the Capitol steps and was listening to a speech by Democratic Representative Ronald Dellums when he was arrested by the police.

After three days of incarceration and unbelievably crowded conditions, he was allowed to leave.

Over 14,000 demonstrators were arrested that week, most without being charged or given their rights. President Nixon praised the actions of the Metropolitan Police Department and labeled charges against police for violating constitutional rights as being "exaggerated."

As time went on the issue became worn down. Headlines about Indo-China began to disappear and people started focusing their attention on domestic problems, the economy. Mitch Young remembered the demonstration as a thing of the past.

Last January 16th the American Civil Liberties Union reopened the issue by winning a $12 million damage suit against the District of Columbia for the false arrests and infringements on the rights of 1200 demonstrators arrested on the Capital steps. Suddenly Young, along with 1200 others, became eligible for a part of the award ranging from 8 to 10 thousand dollars.

"I'm not loaning any money on that basis," said Young who isn't sure he will get the award. The District of Columbia is plannning to appeal the case, and even if they win it could take years before anyone receives any money.

Young said he would do it again "if the cause arises." But he admits it's doubtful whether the cause might arise again. The days of the Chicago 7 are over and have been for years. Except for a few exceptions, demonstrations, like the Yippie movement, exist only in memories and history books.

Richard Cremins, a UMass student living in Pierpont dorm, is one of the few students left who were involved in the May Day demonstrations.

He was arrested twice, on Monday and on Wednesday of that week.

Because he was not one of those who were lucky enough to be arrested on the Capitol steps, he is not as yet eligible for any money. He spent six days locked up in various places including the Red Skins practice field, the Washington Colliseum, and the D.C. central lock-up.

During that time he was fed baloney sandwiches and water, he shared his toilet with 120 other people, and he stayed in basement cells with no room to lie down and no ventilation.

Cremins dropped out of school after the demonstrations and was drafted in late '71. He spent two years in Panama and later re-enrolled in the University. Still wearing his Army jacket, he answered questions slowly, trying to remember back almost 4 years.

"The police would drive motorcycles into the crowd . . . a few people got hurt."

When asked about his arrest, he said, "I was arrested for 'concommoting a sidwalk'. I asked the cop to repeat the charge and he said the same thing." Most of the 10,000 demonstrators arrested on Monday and Tuesday of that first week of May weren't told anything, but were ordered into busses and paddywagons.

Richard Cremins was involved in the anti-war movement for years before the May Day incident. He had taken part in several other protests and demonstrations but noted that May Day was a little different. "That's the only demonstration where I could see no violence from the demonstrators."

He hopes those arrested on the Capitol steps get the money they were awarded, but he doesn't think he will ever see any. The ACLU has filed separate damage suits for those who were arrested Monday, May 4th, and Tuesday, May 5th. It will be a long time before the case reaches court.

Barry Marshall, a former UMass student and May Day demonstrator, wrote a headline story for the Collegian about his arrest in Washington. His story was one of the many that appeared on the front pages of the Collegian and other newspapers that week. As many others did, he went down there intending to get arrested. He spent Monday and Tuesday in the D.C. jail.

When asked if he would do it again, he replied, "Definitely, if there was civil disobedience against the oil companies, I'd do it." He said that if he receives any money, he will "give at least half of it to the Indo-China Peace Campaign."

With the anti-war movement on the decline, few people today remember the May Day demonstrations of 1971, but all those who went to Washington that week and were arrested have not forgotten. Some may receive money for their troubles, others will have to be content with memories.

CARLO of Naples State Street, Northampton

54th Member of the World Famous Restaurant International

B.
Y. Our menu consists of 62 items (Italian Food only) and an average spending of $2.25
O.
B. Your Host, Carlo, is a special student at UMass

Fancy used western shirts new & used workshirts

New Denim Shirts $8

New Seafarer Blue Jeans (slightly irreg.) $6

Chino Army Pants $2.50

OLD WEIRD HAROLDS

Gabardine shirts, men's 40's vests, Hawaiian shirts, leather, suede, denim jackets $1.50

Look For Us At 65 University Drive
Next to Bell's & Hampshire Veterinarian
Open Daily 10-6 — Friday Eves til 9

Baker-Winn

Jewelers

a large selection of earrings and other fine gifts and jewelry.

S. Pleasant St.
Amherst

Herter Gallery to become 'classroom' for Art students

By JAN ALEXANDER
Staff Reporter

The Herter Art Gallery is due to become directly operated by the Art Department by this Fall on an "extended classroom basis," according to Frank Cadwell, coordinator of the gallery for the art department. It is presently funded by the Fine Arts Council.

"Students taking art courses will participate in operating the gallery," he said. "They will be setting up exhibits and learning how to coordinate works."

Cadwell said the extended classroom idea is still in the planning stages but he expects there will be an elimination of work from New York, and more emphasis on UMass student and faculty art.

"Expenses will be considerably reduced," Cadwell said, "because we won't have mailing or insurance costs. We'll have to rely on careful supervision by student guards of the work on display."

The coordinator said that the gallery will hold more shows of a shorter duration since the exhibits will not require the long preparation of shows out of New York.

The gallery has opened a logo designing contest, offering $25 for the best design submitted to Room 125 Herter before April 25. The design will be used on the calendar poster of events, publications, stationery and bulletins issued out of the gallery.

New CC security plan requires debugging

By BRIAN COYNE
Staff Reporter

There has been dissatisfaction with the new Campus Center security plan, according to Dudley Bridges, supervisor of CC Building Operations, and Jeff Taggart, chairman of the CC Board of Governors (BOG).

Bridges said, "I'm still not completely satisfied with the new system. I think the problems have been created by the new men's unfamiliarity with the building and the people."

The UMass Department of Public Safety assumed responsibility for Campus Center security on February 23. The building now has two uniformed campus policemen patrolling during the day, and a third guard on duty during the peak night hours.

Bridges said there have been several instances of vandalism in the past few days which probably could have been prevented had the guards known more about the operation of the building.

In addition to efficiency problems, there have been complaints of police harassment of students in the Campus Center, according to Taggart.

"We received most of the harassment complaints when the new guards started, but there was a meeting between the board and the campus police to work things out. We want the people to realize that the security is there for their protection, not their harassment."

David Johnston, director of Department of Public Safety, and Captain Robert Joyce said they had not received any complaints of police harassment in the Campus Center. Joyce said he attended the meeting with the BOG and received no specific information of police harassment.

"In the beginning, the men were feeling their way and there were some efficiency problems, but they have now gotten to know the people at the Campus Center much better and they are working very effectively," he said.

When told of Joyce's remarks, Taggart said the matter would have to go back on the board's agenda for more discussion. He said there would have to be a "continuing dialogue" between students and police to improve the situation.

Bridges said, "Overall, the Campus Center has gained more than we lost. The problems between the students and the guards will lessen as both groups get to know each other better."

The most important gain, Bridges said, is the communications system which the campus police have. "With walkie-talkies, the guards now know where everyone else is, and they can get help when trouble occurs," he said.

PAUL J LANDRY

LANDRY'S MARKET
The Oldest Grocery in Amherst
10% DISCOUNT ON ALL WINES

Prices Effective 4-9, 4-15
All Beer — Warm or Cold

Schlitz, 12 oz. cans	6 pak $1.29, Case $5.05
Munich, 12 oz. N.R.	6 pack 99c, Case $3.95
Ballentine Ale, 12 oz. cans	6 Pak $1.25, Case $4.95
Heineken Beer, 12 oz. N.R.	6 Pak $3.25, Case $12.95
Guiness Stout, 12 oz. N.R.	4 Pak $2.39, (24, 12 oz. Bot.) Case $14.00
Cabot's Triple Score Butter	lb. 89c
Cabot's Vermont Cheddar Cheese	lb. $1.49
Vermont Fresh Milk	½ gal 72c, gal. $1.43
Delmonico Steak	lb. $2.59
Rib Eye Roast	lb. $2.49
Eye Round Corned Beef	lb. $1.39
Homemade Breakfast Sausage	lb. 99c
Peppers	lb. 29c
MacIntosh Apples, 3 lb. bag	39c
Pascal Celery	bunch 29c
Pure Hardwood Charcoal	8 lb. bag, $1.29

Open 8-9, Mon.-Thurs.; 8-11, Fri. & Sat. 10-3, Sun. (No Beer)
711 Main St. Amherst 253-5387
On the Belchertown Bus Route

STUDENT JOBS
SWITZERLAND-AUSTRIA
FRANCE-GERMANY
Resorts - Hotels - Office
Restaurants - Hospitals
SEND 25¢ — APPLICATION INFORMATION
TRANSWORLD OVERSEAS
STUDENT OVERSEAS SERVICES
10 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MA. — 617-723-7875
TRANS WORLD

75¢ OFF Any Large Pizza Except Plain with this Ad Tuesday Only
1 Ad/Pizza
TO ALL DORM DELIVERIES OR PIZZAS PICKED UP.
Free Hot Delivery
at 363 Main St.
Amherst
or
71 Pleasant St.
Northampton
DOMINO'S PIZZA
is as close as your phone.
CALL NOW
Amherst 256-8587
Northampton 586-2700
Open till
1:30 Week Nights
2:00 Weekends

New Experience in Italian Dining
PORTOFINO
SATISFACTION is our best advertisement.
OPEN TUES.-SAT. 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m. LUNCH
5 p.m.-11 p.m. DINNER
SUNDAY 1 p.m.-11 p.m.
Closed Mondays
RTE. 9 LEEDS, MASS. 584-7800

Union of Student Employees holds second meeting tonight

The Union of Student Employees (U.S.E.) will hold its second mass meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. The meeting, scheduled to be held in the Commuter's Lounge in the Student Union, will be a forum for all members of the newly formed U.S.E.

The U.S.E. held an intensive membership drive on the concourse level of the Campus Center for the last two weeks to achieve the signing of union membership cars from 30 per cent or better of the 600 student employees and hourlies in the Campus Center. The drive resulted in the signing of 58 per cent of employees eligible to join the U.S.E.

The agenda for the meeting will include the introduction of newly elected area reps, discussion on the tentative constitution, notice of events and news since the founding meeting, and what steps the Union must take after the membership drive.

Everyone is urged to attend for as long as they are able. The meeting will be open so that everyone will have a chance to attend. It won't be very formal. The main thing is that everyone shows interest in their union.

SCER

cont. from pg. 2

least afford to pay the bill." While there is talk of a Universal Fee, cutting back of human services in the dormitories which would abolish or curtain counseling and educational services, and laying off or firing janitors and other non-professional employees, SCER says there has been little discussion of laying off high paid administrators of faculty. The report says the counselors and heads of residence whose jobs are threatened are among the lowest paid workers on campus, even though many are "professional" employees.

SCER says that the report doesn't have the solution to the dilemma of funding the dorms but, they suggest more ingenious and serious research go on regarding funding.

"Despite the economic crunch," says SCER, "there is enough wealth in Massachusetts, if properly distributed, to more than solve UMass's housing crisis."

Whatever solutions are found, SCER urges that the burden not be placed on working people at UMass.

Internship programs

cont. from p. 2

participation in internship programs." The report demands an explicit faculty recognition of a responsibility to destroy the artificial barrier between the academic and the real world perceived by many of their students."

The report states a strong faculty commitment is essential for the successful operation of any internship program.

After soliciting the views of the internship agencies, the committee found that 77 per cent of the agencies interviewed were "very satisfied" with the overall experience with student interns.

Hunt believes the report compiled by an "extremely conscientious group of people who worked with students is excellent. It does everything I've hoped for," Hunt said.

Taggart and the issues

cont. from p. 2

"The question becomes, do you spend $10,000 to make $5,000. There is a point over which you stop making money." Taggart said.

Taggart characterized a recent meeting he and board Vice-Chairperson Mark Bennett had with Chancellor Bromery as "very productive."

Taggart said that as a result of the meeting Bromery has agreed to meet with board representatives on a monthly basis.

"The Chancellor should not remove himself from student problems," Taggart said, "It is crucial that student leaders be able to meet with the Chancellor on a regular basis to discuss the problems of the day."

Taggart also announced that he expects a full report from Campus Center Director John Corker on his investigation into questionable billing practices involving a wedding reception for Campus Center Manager Steve Stefano's daughter. Taggart expects the report to be completed some time next week and believes that, "people keyly responsible for any wrongdoing should be taken to account."

Taggart also commented on the Campus Center operation in general and the function of the Board of Governors.

"The strength of the board," according to Taggart results from the good working relationship it has with the Campus Center management.

Taggart said the power the board has, "lies in the high degree of cooperation between the board and management, but not to the extent of a hand holding relationship."

"The board has a healthy respect for all managers," Taggart said, "Most of our problems arise when the level of communication is lowered between management and the board; then the pressure inevitably builds up."

According to Taggart, the management "for the most part" has been very helpful and cooperative in dealing with the board. He said "intelligent pressure" is necessary to keep people performing well and the entire operation running smoothly.

Taggart wants to remind any group that has office space in the Campus Center or Student Union that they must have their space requests for next year at the board office no later than Friday.

Campus Center food services presents:
this week's entertainment
April 9 — 14
The Hatch:
Shiela & Love Flame Wed. & Thurs.
Homecooking Wed. — Sat.
T.O.C.
Stacy Leeds Thurs. — Sat.
Bluewall:
Actual Proof Wed. — Sat.

WONDERLOVE
WONDERLOVE
WONDERLOVE
WONDERLOVE
Sunday 8:00 p.m.
Movie: Wonder Love —
Stevie Wonder in Concert
Sunday 9:00 p.m.
JAZZ JAM SESSION
Monday: IRISH NIGHT

Now appearing at the
THE STEAK OUT
forest
Thurs. — Sat.
Happy Hour — Mon.-Sat., 4:30-7:00
in the Speakeasy Lounge

1500 seniors had the right idea
Senior Portraits
APRIL 14-18
Sign up outside
Index Office or call 545 - 2874

editorial

What next?

Reports in today's Collegian of inequities in hiring and work policies at the Campus Center present some disturbing facts and figures. At a University whose priorities supposedly include active action against sexism and racism, the conditions at the Campus Center cite a poor showing.

Women workers within the Campus Center, while high in number, represent a small amount of management and upper grade salary levels. Though, according to the Affirmative Action Director, "Affirmative action guidelines have been met," the figures show otherwise. For student workers there is no affirmative action hiring policy. Student employees are forming a union to work toward alleviating such conditions, but in the meantime,. the situation continues.

Part of the problem lies within the bureaucracy of the Campus Center management, under which it is almost impossible to fire someone once he (she) has been working for a certain amount of time.

The management of the Campus Center has shown itself to be irresponsible toward the Student Body as well as its own staff. These people have been entrusted with running the Center as efficiently and fairly as possible. But from the recent reports of unpaid bills and unfair hiring, the management does not appear to be doing its job.

Students are paying $64 per year to support the CC and it may just be one of history's colossal ripoffs when one looks at the returns.

Information which should legally be available to students has consistently been refused to Collegian reporters. Certain people obviously did not want to discuss the situation. Certain people obviously did not even consider it a problem. It brings to mind the old saying, "If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem."

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Board of Editors.

commentary

Fear of the fees

By PAUL BRADLEY

Fear of mandatory fees has become a disease across the campus. Beset with Campus Center Fees, Athletic Fees, and the threat of a Universal Resource Fee, students react to the words "mandatory fee" with cringing fear.

At least that is what the representatives of the students are thinking. In the name of the student interest, the Student Senate last night spent well over an hour discussing the relative merits of an Enabling Act that is to be submitted to the Board of Trustees for the purpose of forming a Student Union. A proposal included in the enabling act would assess a mandatory fee for the support of the union on all tudents.

The fee would only amount to about 50 cents as it is proposed now, but the idea that the fee should be mandatory sent senators scurrying to protect the interest of their constituents.

This is a legitimate concern no doubt, but heated discussion over an enabling act that is subject to extensive amendment proved fruitless and tiresome.

STUDENT UNITY

All students already have to pay too many mandatory fees-but the paradox that a student union, needing funds to take part in collective bargaining that would prevent the administration from arbitralily assigning fees in the future proved too overwhelming for many senators.

The Senate also attempted some slick manuevering to make the Enabling Act more acceptable to the Trustees.

Part of the proposal would set up a board of 5 people that would decide questions that arise under the policy. An amendment was passed to include on that board representatives from minority groups. A fair move to be sure--but this would upset the balance of administrators to students. The solution offered was to increase by an equal number administrators to sit on the board, thereby keeping the Trustees happy when they read the policy. The motion was wisely defeated.

But when principles give way to political considerations, in the minds of student senators, it is time to re-examine the Student Senate.

letters to the editor

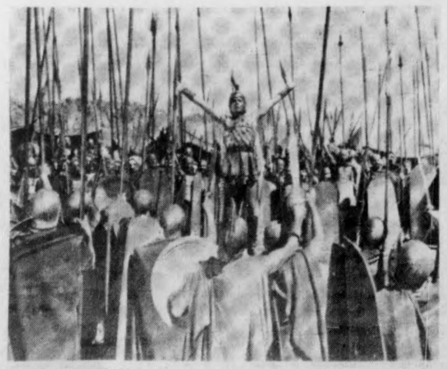
Cereal psychology

To the Editor:

Do you remember way back when you used to rise early, still wearing your baseball glove or clutching your dolly, and head straight for the kitchen table where Mom poured you a large bowl of Cheerios? Ah, sweet days gone by! But listen to this amazing story of rediscovery. Sure, I was just like you, by-passing the so-called "kiddie cereals" on the supermarket shelf simply because college students are too grown up to eat Cheerios. So I spent the greater part of my young manhood shoving Shredded Wheats, Special K's, and an assortment of other adult mushies down my throat. Yes, I had my fantasies about eating Cheerios — I remember waking up one night after having had a particularly disturbing dream about a Cheerios mountain; I was streaming with cold sweat. Next day, I disguised myself as a Rumanian circus-animal trainer, rushed down to the local grocery and bought a box of Cheerios. O what oaty delights did my tongue enjoy therein! Ever since then, I've been indulging unabashedly in this orgiastic feast each morning, going so far as to buy Super Size boxes of Cheerios without the benefit of wearing a disguise to make my purchases. Let the world laugh! They laughed at Herman Spelldincker, did they not?

I'm writing this for all those people in the world who are suffering mental instabilities as a result of world-wide wars, nuclear-infection threats, racial strife, over-population, political corruption, inflation, etc. Here at last is the cure for all of the above and more. Just drop your face into a big Cheerios tomorrow morning, and relive your uncomplicated youth. Yes, live it up, and enjoy, enjoy! And please pray for your mother, wherever she may be.

Ron Paul Masse



Members of the Progressive Candidates Pool hail one of its members after his victory in Tuesday's election.

Keep Michael Best!

To the Editor:

Michael Best is a professor in the Economics Department and he is fighting for his tenure. He has been praised by his students as an excellent teacher and his reputation has helped the positive image which the Economics Department has acquired. The problem with his tenure arises not because of his qualifications, but because of his ideologies. He, like many others, will suffer the consequences of his being a so-called "radical" in a so-called "free" and "democratic" nation. It has come to the point that conformity to the system has become the decisive factor whether you can survive within such a system. You either conform and become meek and passive, or you do not conform and you criticize, question, and adopt "radical" ideologies. If you conform, your reward will be material gains, if you do not conform, your punishment will be unemployment, harassment, and frequent "association" with agencies such as the C.I.A. and the F.B.I.

Michael Best's ideology, which happens to include Marxism as an integral and crucial part, is under question and fire - not his professional integrity and ability.

The administrative apparatus of the University will try its hardest to get rid of Professor Best. He is another reminder for them that their little game is being criticized every day in the classrooms. Michael Best is a threat to them and obviously, threats must be eliminated. It is up to us, the students, to decide whether we will ccept and abide by the dictatorship-like policies of the University administration, or whether we will take action which will, for once, benefit the student and not the administration. Such an action may be taken by writing a letter supporting Professor Best, and sent to the Economics Department, Dr. Gage, Dr. Wood, and Chancellor Bromery.

The benefits reaped from such a project will be worthwhile your efforts. STUDENTS UNITE.

Kyriakos Karoutsos

To the Editor:

We students are getting weary of the political waverings causing delays in the tenure decision on Mike Best of the economics department. For a long time we have strongly supported Mike Best; we know he is a good teacher who is committed to the whole community. Every semester Mike Best's students rate him high in the course evaluations. His published works have been commended by his academic peers and were accepted by his department. People in both the UMass and surrounding Amherst communities know him for his educational services in workshops, lectures, help to others classes, etc., etc.

In dragging their feet, the administrators who must act on this decision demonstrate their disregard for the opinion of students. This whole tenure process is a strange one. Who ever heard of an economy where the consumers have no say in the product they are receiving? Is this the UMass management's-administration's idea of democracy? Why do the people in the tenure decision-making process seem to distrust the integrity, intelligence and competence of students in evaluating their own teachers? Does it make sense for administrators and professors to judge a teacher's value to our community while excluding from the real decision-making power those students who spend 40 hours and more each semester with that teacher?

The economics department approved tenure for Mike Best last semester by a vote of 9 to 1. The College Tenure Committee has approved him 5 to 1. Now the decision rests with Vice Chancellor Gluckstern. After him it must pass through Chancellor Bromery, President's Assistant Lydon, President Wood and finally the Board of Trustees. We ask of all these administrators — What are you waiting for?

The UMass students are becoming more and more concerned with our lack of power and influence over decisions that directly affect our lives and our education. We call on this Administration to end the political gamesmanship. Give Mike Best tenure, now.

Alice Sunshine, Bill Massey and 36 signatures

Campus Center workers meet

To the Editor:

Good news for Campus Center student employees and hourlies!! The U.S.E. [Union of Student Employees] has reached an outstanding goal. 60 per cent of us have signed membership cards and only 30 per cent are necessary to file a petition for an election on the Union. This is an unusually high number for any organizing labor force.

Thursday evening, April 10, from 7:30-9:30 in the Commuter Lounge S.U., there will be the second aanual mass meeting. Everyone is urged and welcome. News of past and future events will be discussed. Those who would like to sign membership cards can do so.

The U.S.E. is making great progress. Come show your interest.

Jane Levin
Acting Public Relations
Coordinator, U.S.E.

bill parent

Campus in uproar as Marxists seize local media

A couple of weeks ago a lot of people sat up through small hours of the morning watching Groucho Marx and Co. fill a ship's state room, lampoon the rich of Newport, and cut up Margaret Dumont.

For the next week, lines about insanity clauses and two more hard boiled eggs filled the campus air. It seems that something magic has returned to a country long depressed ... laughter.

The revival of Mel Brooks, the new popularity of the great comedians and the Lenny Bruce cult symbolize the growing slapstick awareness.

The last real comic-laureate was probably ex-UMass student Bill Cosby. Cosby had that talent to make people laugh at themselves, to laugh at being poor, and to laugh at the roles which sexuality had placed upon them.

But since Cosby has faded away so hasn't the comedy of self depreciation and ethnic heritage. Hopefully that coma has passed, even though a state of national despair brought it on. Americans needed their laughter, they always need vaudeville, the Show of Shows, the Smothers Brothers and Woody Allen. Foolishness is the salt of our sanity.

Perhaps, too, this need spurred the Collegian to do a total April Fool's issue last week. The campus seemed to enjoy the break from the normal every day drab news. Watching people from the balcony of the Student Union Building react to the story about Patty Hearst and listening to the chuckles in the Hatch certainly was proof that the need for laughter was real.

However, there stands a question related to the political awareness of this decade as to what is funny and what is sacred or offensive which calls for a fine line of moral judgement as to the responsibility of the news media.

The day after the issue ran the phones went haywire. The calls fell into three general categories: People who were downright offended and saw the issue as a peice of garbage, people who thought it was the most creative piece of work every to come out of the University and people who were inquiring about whether or not Patty Hearst, the dangerous debutante, had actually been captured by the police in Amherst.

'You think the Collegian's in tough shape now - wait til I get through with it!'

There was, over the next week, enough reaction to warrant response editorially to the edition.

The paper was without a doubt, sexist and highly sexual in its humor. In most cases, this was intentional and should have been. The use of the "chick" advertisement itself was a lampoon on the lack of awareness on the part of the community toward the goals of feminism. Sadly though, the problem came (oops) when the sexual humor was mainly written from a male perspective. On the political side, people seemed to be offended most by the shot at Progressive News Service over the story about the Indian movement in South Dakota. It was offensive especially in the light that the other side did not have any parody on the manner in which the Collegian chooses to report the news.

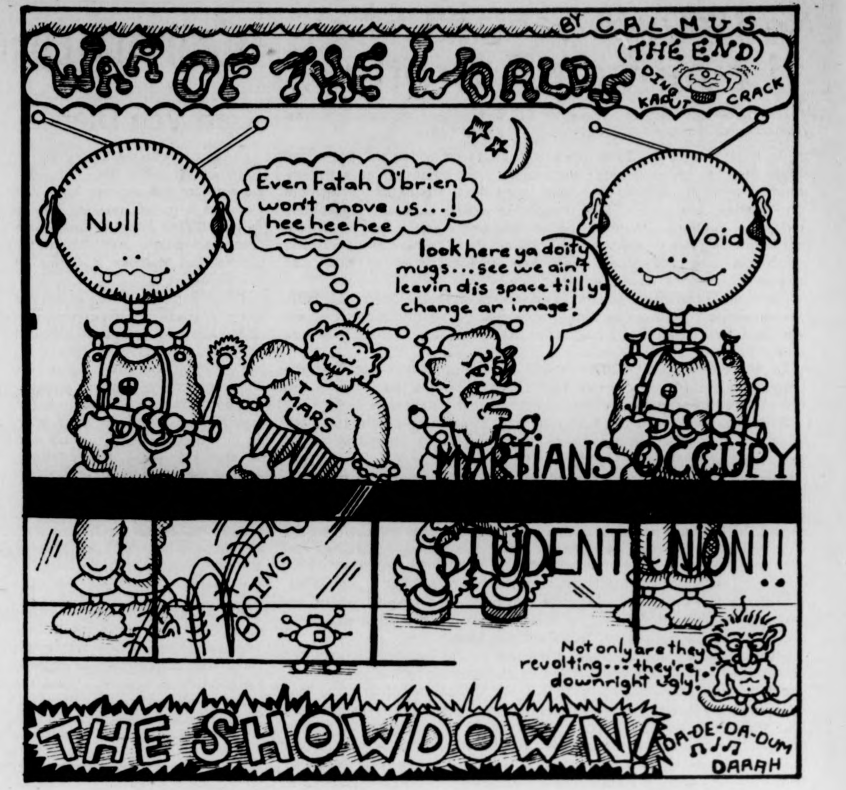
But generally the Collegian issue was one of the finest we have ever printed, and now that two weeks have passed, enough positive feedback has come to support that contention.

The trend toward laughter is the best thing that could happen to the country today and one can only hope it develops into a new renaissance of comedy.

There is nothing in this world that cannot in some form be taken lightly. It would not be a good thing if we all continued to take life seriously. Such philosophy leads to war, murder, suicide and hemorrhoids. As big as the inflatable breasts in Woody Allen's movie "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Sex."

And as far as the critics of the April Fool's edition go, I agree with Mel Brooks who said that he isn't fond of critics because their noise keeps him awake when he sleeps in the country.

Bill Parent is Editor in Chief of the Daily Hard Boiled Egg.



BY CALMUS
WAR OF THE WORLDS
(THE END)
DING KAPUT CRACK
Null
Even Fatah O'brien won't move us...! hee hee hee look here ya doity mugs... see we ain't leavin dis space till ya change ar image!
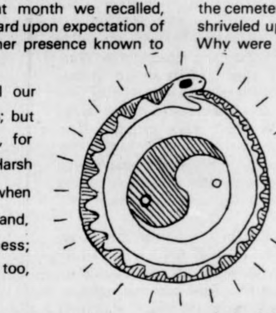
Void
MARS
MARTIANS OCCUPY STUDENT UNION!!
BOING
Not only are they revolting... they're downright ugly!
THE SHOWDOWN!
DA-DE-DA-DUM DAAAH

e. patrick mcquaid

Uroborus

The icy shroud of memory has seemingly lifted and we bask in sunbaked skies, for April, that month for which we long desired, that month we recalled, remembered, and looked forward upon expectation of green landscapes has made her presence known to us. How quickly we let fall our bundled covers, our defenses; but let us not deceive ourselves, for bitter days are still ahead. Harsh winds may cut us through when least we expect and there we stand, shivering in our nakedness; humiliated, for we have been too, too open with ourselves.

Rising through the moist soil, forever virgin — forever tilled, reaching for a piece of sunlight, blossoming; palms open to unseen treachery. Burying the bulb of hyacinth, whose life span was but a mere twinkling in the eye of eternity.



"And do you remember the time we found that snake skin? We were just kids. It was out in back of the cemetery, under that great big pine tree. It was all shriveled up, like dead leaves, and you were scared. Why were you scared?"

This cruel, biting wind causes us to remember cold November days at the playing field; the brass band drowned in the gust and the resounding "Ra-ra-rah!" of the chorus. And now it is finally upon us in full magnificence.

We live in times when one cannot speak the truth of his consciousness for fear of slashing insult or the treachery of betrayal.

Indeed the poet was right, for "April is the cruelest month"; we have been duped by a sunny smile. For blows this wind, this, a too brutal wind, then Fall sees here in shameless nudity.

E. Patrick McQuaid is a Collegian Columnist

commentary

The American Dream: What happened?

By NORMAN ROBINSON

Excuse me, could I have a minute before you go off to the crossword? Have you been wondering what has been going on for the past few hundred years? During the coming Bicentennial many comparisons of America will be made reflecting the past two hundred years. Many people will wonder if times have changed for the better. We have seen much good but then again much bad. Moreover, how have they been balanced?

There seems to be disadvantages as well as advantages to every matter we face today, especially when viewed in the long run. It is very hard not to be pessimistic in these prevailing times. Not only about America, but for the whole world. Because of the vast misallocations, there is much dissent and conflict all around the globe. Everybody wants a chance to be "shah for the day."

To exploit one bruise of America's, one can look at the unemployment level. A real disaster. Since computers have come to heavily influence our lives and increase an already large degree of mechanization, the unemployment level has steadily increased, with temporary lags. Machines contribute so much work output that the value of human labor seems very trivial at times. Physical work is rarely what it was once considered to be. Back when there were no machines there was also no unemployment. One can see an interesting paradox here.

Thus, because of modernization, we have a lot of leisure time, with more likely to come. Will there come a time when machines are so dominant that the human role will be that of a vegetable. Will we serve machines or will they serve us? We in America have taken for granted many things which would be considered luxuries by other people. Because of our laziness, we have invented machines to do all our work, so we can sit on our asses. We come to college because there is nothing better to do, or maybe so we can have less work to do when we seek our careers. What it all boils down to, is that we're spoiled. Only a minority can say they truly have had it rough.

Looking ahead I see only gloom unless a unified effort is made to change matters. Because of shortages of resources our freedome will be limited, because of mechanization, there will be high unemployment, because the rich run big business and big business runs the government, there will be corruption, and because of these influences, democracy will suffer. Many changes have already begun to show. Marriage is disdained by many, and divorce has come on like the plague. The human life has been greatly devalued. This has been evidenced by the laxness of the law and courts towards murderers. The government is more concerned if someone is screwing them out of tax money. More evidence is shown by the ignorance of the massacres taking place in South Vietnam. How to help them is questionable, but they desperately need help.

There is too much emphasis on material objects. Especially money. How many people are willing to offer services for nothing? Just the minority of people who see that "nice guys finish last" only applies to the short run. Happiness doesn't necessarily come with material wealth, as our society would have us believe.

No matter what our country does in the future, there will be tradeoffs. Disadvantages and advantages will accompany most decisions we make. Hopefully, the whole and not the self will get most of the attention. I think it's time that some of our selfishness was converted to patriotism, good will, and helpfulness. Our country is in need of our support. The current world political crisis is putting great strains on America, and it needs our help to save it from decaying. So I ask of you, try and save our country and our people from disaster. Give a damn! You'd be surprised at how much an outstretched hand would bring happiness.

Norman Robinson is a Collegian Commentator

Conspiracy against Levenworth Brothers

The following news is special to the Black News Service from the Leavenworth Brothers News Service, Wicheta, Kansas.

An isolated section of the Black community known as the Sunflower Plaza Area has received racist harrassment from some whites in the immediate white community for several years. After additional harrassment on Monday, March 17, 1975, masses of police cars and helicopters descended on the community. The resulting police attack sent an 18 year old pregnant Black woman to the hospital. Men, women, teenagers and children were maced. A home was broken into and a 16 year old Black was beaten in front of his mother and then jailed.

Community residents reported to police that on Friday, March 14, 1975, several white youths drove through the Black community breaking car windows. Police said they would make a record of it but refused to come to the scene.

On Monday, March 17, 1975, several white youths came back into the community and began to chase Black children. Several Black youths ran one of the white youths out of the community and beat him up.

Residents said they were outside talking about the racist harrassment when police swarmed into the area and stated, "We're not asking you to get into your homes, we're telling you."

Milton Crawford, 16, told police he wanted to say a few words to his girl friend. With this police chased Milton who ran into his home. According to Milton's mother, Mrs. Crawford, police broke the door down and maced herself, Milton, and her children who came out of their bedroom to see what was going on. Mrs. Crawford said police beat Milton, handcuffed and dragged him from his home, hitting him like a punching bag. Later Milton was old by police, "You like to run, then you run now." Milton was jailed for four days and charged with assaulting police and resisting arrest. He was at a local hospital for a human bite in the back and a sprained thumb. Milton stated that police said, "We like to bite apes."

Meanwhile, Marlene Williams, a resident in the community, said her daughter, age 18, was maced in the face and knocked to the ground after people had told police she was pregnant. Ms. Williams went on to say that Donna was on the ground and when she bent over to help Donna she was also sprayed in the face with mace. Donna was kicked while on the ground. Community residents agreed the police did nothing to help Donna but stood around grinning saying things like, "You niggers are always up to something" and "We should have brought cages and put you in the zoo." When Donald Williams became made about what police had done to his sister one cop pulled a gun and pointed in several inches from his head.

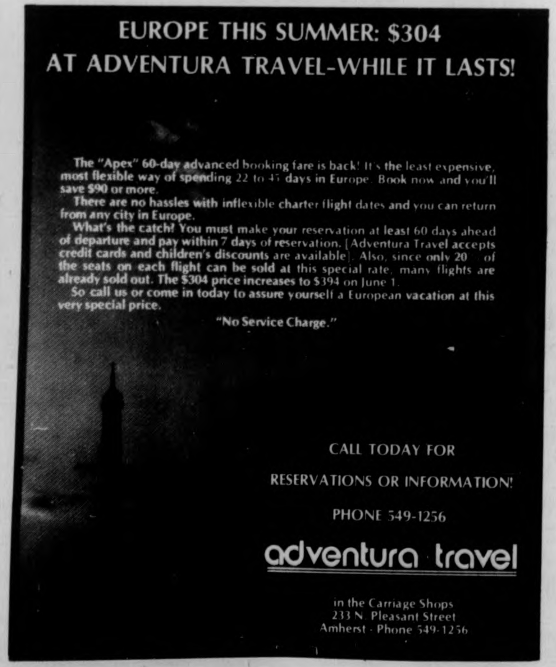
Derick Blacknum, age 15, was hit in the face with a flashlight, bloddying his mouth and breaking his glasses according to eye witnesses. Derick was jailed, charged with assaulting police and resisting arrest, and then releaed.

Police have stated the reason why they entered the community was in response to rock throwing by Blacks and according to newspaper accounts the police suffered nearly all the injuries. Community residents made it clear they had no knowledge of any rock throwing and that police were using this as an excuse to cover up the racist brutality inflicted on the community.

In a statement issued on behalf of the Sunflower Plaza Area by Ms. Crawford, Ms. Rachell Pollard, and Ms. Marlene Williams, called on all people in the community to organize and fight back against three racist attacks.

Members of the Leavenworth Brothers Offense-Defense Committee (LBODC) and the local chapter of Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization (VVAW-WSO) responded to an emergency phone call from the people of the Sunflower Plaza Area and went to the hospital where Donna Williams was taken. Later in a statement distributed in the Black community LBODC VVAW-WSO said in part, "As organizations made up largely of white people we want to condemn the racist attacks on the Sunflower Plaza Area by some white people. We strongly denounce the attack on your people by the racist and fascist police force. We see the right of self-defense by any means necessary as a right that cannot be taken away."

The statement went on to say, "We see racism as a poison that is oppressive and dehumanizing and used as a "DIVIDE AND CONQUER" scheme by those who rule us. We call upon all white people to stand up and fight this oppression. Only in taking up this fight can real unity be forged among working people of different races. Without economic equality there can be no social equality! Without full and equal democratic right for working and oppressed peoples of all races and both sexes there is no justice!



EUROPE THIS SUMMER: $304
AT ADVENTURA TRAVEL-WHILE IT LASTS!

The "Apex" 60-day advanced booking fare is back! It's the least expensive, most flexible way of spending 22 to 45 days in Europe. Book now and you'll save $90 or more.

There are no hassles with inflexible charter flight dates and you can return from any city in Europe.

What's the catch? You must make your reservation at least 60 days ahead of departure and pay within 7 days of reservation. [Adventura Travel accepts credit cards and children's discounts are available]. Also, since only 20% of the seats on each flight can be sold at this special rate, many flights are already sold out. The $304 price increases to $394 on June 1.

So call us or come in today to assure yourself a European vacation at this very special price.

"No Service Charge."

CALL TODAY FOR RESERVATIONS OR INFORMATION!
PHONE 549-1256

adventura travel

in the Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant Street
Amherst · Phone 549-1256

Community Events & Notices

Tran Van Dinh

Student Volunteer Services in conjunction with the Afro-Am Department will sponsor Tran Van Dinh, as a guest speaker. This is part of SVS's Film-Lecture Series presented tonight, April 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Malcolm X Center in Southwest.

Tran Van Dinh is a former Vietnamese Governmental diplomat. he fought in the Vietnam People's Army (VPA) during its early inception. His early involvement in the people's struggle makes him an indispensable reservoir of first-hand knowledge on the Indochina situation, as well as showing some basic affinity toward the struggle.

He will speak on a very timely topic, "Vietnam and the Black Liberation Struggle," which in itself speaks to a phase of the present development in Vietnam today.

All CCEBS students whose family members have accepted the invitation to Family Day must get in touch with the Personal Counseling Component by tomorrow in order to insure accommodations for their family members. Please call 5-0031.

black affairs

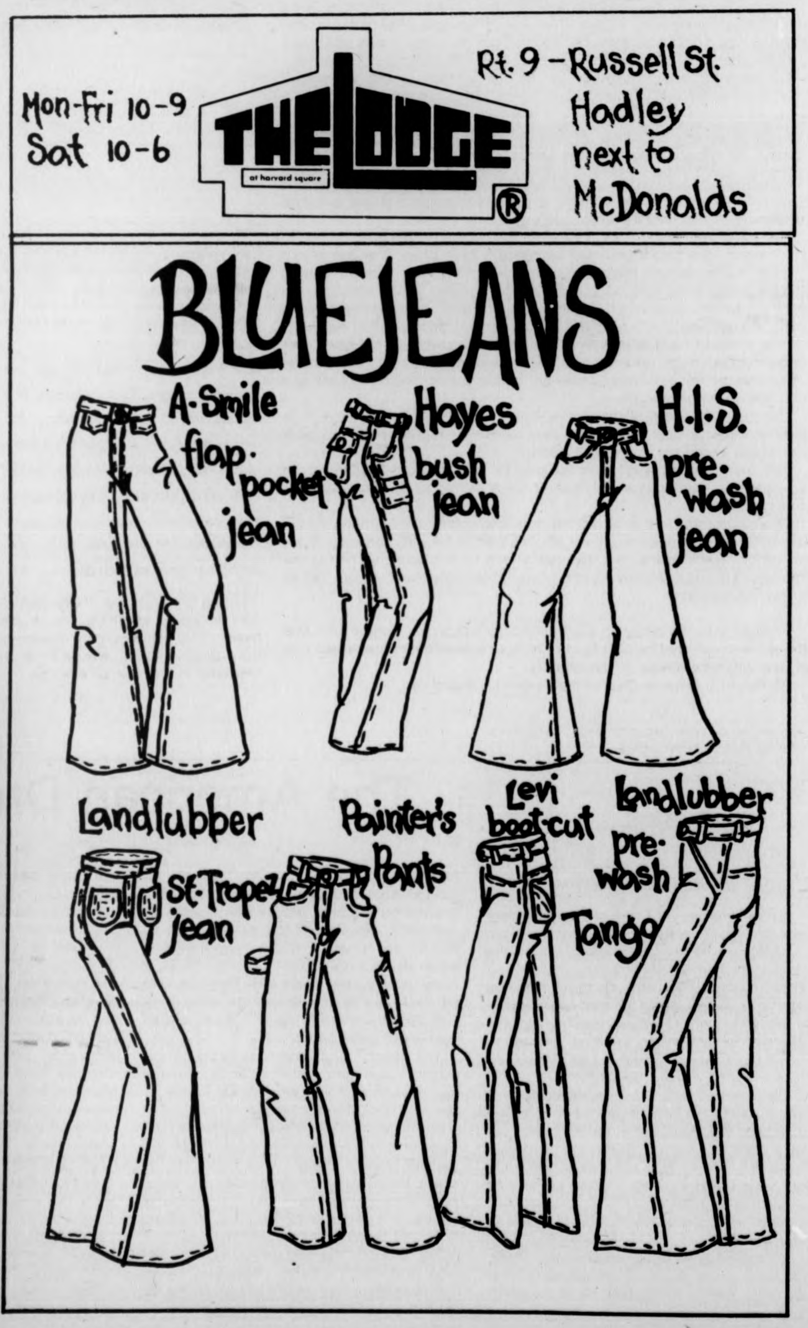
The celebration of LATIN AMERICAN WEEK at the University of Massachusetts (April 14 to the 19) will include a series of relevant activities including artistic, cultural and social events.

The celebration opens Monday, April 14, with a conference on Latin America, by Congressman JUAN CARLOS CORAL, prominent and controversial political figure from Argentina. This activity will be held at 7:00 p.m. in 102 Thompson Hall, at the University of Massachusetts Campus. On Tuesday, April 15 a Latin American Music Festival will include traditional, folkloric and contemporary music by some of its foremost interpreters, at 8:00 p.m. in 227 Herter Hall.

The Cuban film epic "GIRON," will be shown on Wednesday, April 16, at 7:00 p.m. in 104 Thompson Hall. The activities scheduled for Thursday, April 17, include the presentation of the popular theater group GUASABARA, on one of their celebrated social satires: "Como estas, Puerto Rico?" at 7:00 p.m. in 104 Thompson Hall. On Friday, April 18 a panel on the role of today's Latin-American Woman, will feature, from Lehman College, CARMEN PUIGDOLLERS, noted poet and specialist in Latin American Culture; DIGNA SANCHEZ, powerful exponent on the responsibility of women on the Third World struggles for liberation; Dr. HELEN RODRIGUEZ-TRIAS, specialized in Public Health and in its implications for emerging nations; and Dr. DIVA SANJUR, specialized in dietetics, from Cornell University. This activity will be held at 7:30 p.m. in 231 Herter Hall.

All activities will be open to the whole community, and with the exception of the final Dance, totally free of admission. Additional activities are currently being scheduled.

Programs and additional information are available at the offices of Ahora, the University of Massachusetts Student Organization and at the Bilingual Collegiate Program, or by phone on (413) 545-1968.



C & C Package Store, Inc.
-: WINE & LIQUOR MERCHANTS :-
61 MAIN STREET
AMHERST. MASS. 01002

This Weekend at C & C
Thurs., Fri., & Sat.

C & C Price

Schmidt's Beer $4.55 Cs.
Cs. 24-12 oz. N.R. Bottles

Falstaff Beer $5.45 Cs.
Cs. 24-12 oz. Cans

Dom Silvano $1.79
Portugese Rose 24 oz. bottles

College Club Burbon $9.29
½ Gal. 86 Pf.

Schenley Reserve $10.50
86 Proof ½ Gal.

Pastene Festival Wines 35c
Chianti or Burgundy 12 oz. bottles

Logosta Portugese Rose $2.09
25 oz. bottles

CEQ lecture topic: Land use dynamics

This week in its continuing effort to make people more aware of the factors shaping their environment, the Coalition for Environmental Quality is sponsoring a lecture titled "Urban Sprawl — A Viable Land Use System," by Professor David Meyer.

Meyer will explain the basics of land use dynamics as they apply to the formation of non-centric urban regions. One example of a non-centric urban region is the part of central Connecticut consisting of Hartford and all of the smaller urban centers surrounding it. This type of growth results in a sprawl effect in which, rather than having one major industrial and business center, there are a series of centers, all with their accompanying residential districts.

Prof to discuss history of coinage

Miriam S. Balmuth, associate professor of classics at Tufts University, will give a lecture "The Earliest Coinage and Their Forerunners" at Smith College tonight at 8 p.m. in Hillyer Hall, Room 117.

Balmuth has been a member of the Tufts University faculty since 1964. From 1955 to 1962 she was Keeper of Ancient Coins at the Fogg Art Museum. She has excavated at Ashod in Israel (1963), Satriano de Lucania, Italy (1970;, and Buccino (1968, 1969, 1971).

She is the author of many articles and papers, some of which are: "Greek coins in the fifth and Fourth Centuries B.C." (1975); "The David Moor Robinson Collection of Classical Art and Antiquities" (1961); and "the Origins of Coinage" in "A Survey of Numismatic Research 1965-67."

Staff Photo by Larry Hershkowitz

Seniors Dick Burbine and Tony Guerriero focus in on The Valley Advocate. They are preparing a television show for a Communication Studies course. The program will be aired on channel 8 cablevision next Tuesday at 7:30 P.M.

Indian films tonight at Hampshire

Marlon Brando narrates, and Buffy St. Marie sings in three films about the U.S. government's treatment of Native American people. The films will be shown at Hampshire College tonight at 9:30, Main Lecture Hall, Patterson Hall.

The films are: "Treaties Made, Treaties Broken" — discusses treaty rights, and details the fight for fishing rights in Washington State. "How the West Was Won — Honor Lost" — describes Western expansion from the Indian point of view. "Lament of the Reservation" — discusses reservation life and the problems of alcoholism and suicide.

The films will be followed by an update on the Native American struggle.

Spring fling!
WED. THRU SAT. APRIL 9TH ~ 12TH
10% OFF ALL NEW SPRING Tops~Shirts~Blouses ...WITH ANY PANT PURCHASE
It may be April, But with prices like these, you know We're not foolin' around!
APRIL FOOL
J
Sale!
Lee BLUE JEANS
STRAIGHT~LEG OR BELL
only $8.99 REG. $14.00
...while they last!
Male PRE-WASHED "RAGS" JEANS $9.99 REG. $16.00
WOMEN'S Spring Skirts ...SAVE 25% BY: LEVI FOR GALS -MALE- LANDLUBBER and Levi's DENIM SKIRTS Only $5.99 REG. $12.00
Mens SPRING & SUMMER DRESS PANTS ...Save 25%
HOODED SWEATSHIRTS in: GREEN~NAVY~RED ONLY $6.99 REG. $10.95
IN ALL COLORS! NAVY · GREEN BROWN · SAND CAMEL · GREY
Levi's BELL BOTTOM Cords ONLY $11.99 REG. $16.00
WHITE DRILL Painters Pants REG. $8.95 SAVE $1.00 $7.95
SALE AT BOTH STORES!
AMHERST: 9:30~6 FRIDAY TILL 9 P.M.
CHICOPEE: 10~9:30
the jeans store
WEAR-HOUSE
SOMETHING DIFFERENT IN CLOTHING FOR MEN & WOMEN
201 n. pleasant st. amherst
Fairfield Mall chicopee

notices

BICYCLE COLLOQUIUM

The Bicycle Colloq will meet at 7 Thursdays in Curry Hicks Room 2. Come if you are already registered. Bring your bike and basic tools.

BICYCLE CLUB

Trip to Quabbin Sun., 4-13, meet in front of S.U.B. 12 noon. East Bridgewater trip April 19-21. If you want to go and did not give me a survey form, you must call Cheryl 6-4127 tonight!

BICYCLE REPAIR COLLECTIVE

Spring overhaul for your bike? We'll do it for you, or teach you how, 51 S. Prospect St., Amherst 256-6852.

CHI OMEGA

The Great Pretenders, female style, are appearing tonight at 7 at Chi Omega with an all new show. Come and enjoy the show, sing along and remember the good ole day! Rides provided at 6:45. For info 454-0162 Boogie!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Christian Science study area has current Christian Science Literature including the Monitor, and the daily Lesson-Sermon. It is a quiet area for peaceful study of Christian Science. Located in Goodell, follow the signs. All are welcome.

DAIRY CLINIC

Tonight, Thurs., 6:30 p.m. Grinnell Arena. Bring fee for equipment. Please try to attend. If you plan to drop out let your Supt. know.

DANCE FOR THOSE WHO CAN'T

Third Annual Phi Mu Delta Dance Marathon for Muscular Dystrophy is still accepting applications for competition. Call 545-2163 or 253-9034 and ask for Carmen or Kitty.

ECKANKAR THE ANCIENT SCIENCE

of Soul Travel. There will be an open discussion class on Soul Travel Thurs., April 10, Rm. 801 C.C. All are welcomed to learn more about ECKANKAR.

ENVIRONMENTAL LECTURE

Prof. David Meyer will speak tonight at 7 p.m. in Thompson 106 on the causes and effects of Urban Sprawl! All welcome.

GOSPEL NIGHT-MLK WEEK

The Dorothy Lovecoates Singers and The Ronnie Ingram Singers. Campus Center Aud. 8 p.m. Reception to follow. Please, come.

HORSE CLINIC

April 14, Monday Grinnell Arena will be working with your horse. Check horse barn for notices. Those showing outside horses please fill in entry blank Dr. Lyford's office STK Mall.

J.S. UNDERGRAD MEETING

You can make the Journalism Dept. better! J.S. meeting Thurs., today at 7:30 in C.C. 164 to form committees that will initiate new programs in the department.

JUDO

Ron Berube, 4th degree black belt Judo Champion will be the guest instructor at tonight's class at 7 p.m. in Boyden 237. All are welcome to attend.

KAPPA DELTA PI

Meeting tonight in 908 C.C. at 7 p.m. The featured speaker will be Don White, Director of Human Services program at the School of Ed. He will present and discuss alternatives to teaching for Ed majors. All interested are asked to attend.

ORGANIZING STRATEGY MEETING

There will be a meeting for all students interested in discussing ideas on strategy and organizing with the new Student Organizing Committee in C.C. 105 tonight.

ORCHARD HILL COFFEE HOUSE!

Starting this Fri. nite and continuing every Friday at 8 in Dickinson Lounge, Orchard Hill ... live music, good food, free admission. More musicians are still needed and people to help us out. Call Deb or Paul 6-6616.

LIVESTOCK CLASSIC

Final drop out date Monday, April 14. Please let your Supt. know. There will be a scheduling meeting for all Supt. and Committee members next week. Watch Collegian for date.

"MAO'S WIFE AND WOMEN IN POWER IN CHINA"

Talk by Roxane Witke (Harvard), a specialist on Chinese women, who interviewed Madame Mao extensively. Thompson 102, 7:30, April 10.

MARINE SCIENCE SEMINAR

turn to p. 17

The 1975 Underground
UMass Yearbook
UMA Graffitti
CC Concourse

THE GREAT PHASES REBATE
• Now thru April •

TUES., WED., THURS. 20% Off Food Check AND 1st Drink With Dinner 50¢

FRI., SAT., SUN. 10% Off Food Check

Same Great Menu—Same Generous Drinks

the phases restaurant

huckle hill road . bernardston . mass. tel. 413/648-9161
exit 28 off I-91, rte. 10 east to bald mtn. road-follow new signs
Tues.-Thurs. 5:30-9:00; Fri. & Sat. 5:30-9:30; Sun. 4-8; Closed Monday
Reservations Suggested on Saturday

Four Seasons
Package Store
RUSSELL ST., HADLEY
at the Mt. Farms Mall

Rolling Rock
BEER
12 oz. cans
$$4^{99}$
case

ISABEL
Portuguese
ROSE
$$3^{29}$
51 oz. bottle

Four Seasons
BLENDED WHISKEY
86 Proof
$$8^{49}$ ½ Gal.
$$4^{49}$ Qt.

PIEL'S
BEER
12 oz. N.R.
$$4^{19}$
case

4/9/75 to 4/12/75
WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITIES.

CLIMB THE LETTERS TO SUCCESS.
AFROTC

An Air Force way to give more value to your college life and college diploma.

- Scholarships
- $100 a month tax-free allowance
- Flying instruction
- An Air Force commission
- A responsible job in a challenging field, navigation . . . missiles . . . sciences . . . engineering
- Graduate degree programs
- Good pay . . . regular promotions . . . many tangible benefits
- Travel

Contact Major Goodhue
Dickinson Hall
545-2437

Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Sansui Now Comes to Tech Hi-Fi . . . .

AU9500

Professional Integrated Stereo Amplifier, 80 Watts×2 RMS
An all-stage direct-coupled OCL pure complementary parallel push-pull power amplifier for very low distortion, 80-watts min. RMS power per channel; wide dynamic range equalizer; Triple Tone Controls with new "Tone Selectors"; choice of two cut-off frequencies on high and low filters; tape-to-tape reprint; 4-channel and noise-reduction adaptor circuits; much more.

SPECIFICATIONS

Power Output (min. RMS into 8Ω)	80 watts per channel, both channels driven
Total Harmonic Distortion	0.1%
Power Bandwidth	20–20,000Hz
Hum & Noise (IHF)	85dB
Controls BASS	+15dB, −15dB at 20Hz (3dB step)
MIDRANGE	+5dB, −5dB at 1,500Hz (1dB step)
TREBLE	+15dB, −15dB at 20,000Hz (3dB step)
LOW FILTER	−3dB at 50Hz, −3dB at 100Hz
HIGH FILTER	−3dB at 12,000Hz, −3dB at 6,000Hz
LOUDNESS	+10dB at 50Hz, +8dB at 10,000Hz
Dimensions	500mm (19⅝")W×140mm (5½")H×347mm (13⅝")D
Weight	23.3kg (51.3 lbs.)

LIST
~~$549^00~~
SALE
$400^00

441

FM/AM Stereo Control Center Receiver, 11 Watts×2 RMS
Attractive price, up-to-the-minute technology, highest fidelity efficiency. MOS FET FM frontend, LED stereo indicator, all-IC AM, semi-comp. power amp with low-distortion, highly-stable power ICs. Ideal for budget-conscious perfectionist.

SPECIFICATIONS

Power Output (min. RMS into 8Ω)	11 watts per channel, both channels driven
Total Harmonic Distortion	1.0%
Power Bandwidth	40–18,000Hz
Hum and Noise (IHF)	80dB
FM Sensitivity (IHF)	2.5μV
FM Capture Ratio	2.5dB
FM Total Harmonic Distortion	0.7% (STEREO)
Controls	BASS, TREBLE, LOUDNESS
Speakers	A, B, A+B
Dimensions	424mm (16¾")W×135mm (5⅜")H× 285mm (11¼")D
Weight	7.7kg (17.0 lbs.)

LIST
~~$229^00~~
SALE
$199^00

And Now Tech's Best Buy of the Week . . .

	LIST	SALE	You Save
MARANTZ 49's GLENBURN 2155A SANSUI 441	~~$435^00~~	$329^00	$106^00

We also have SANYO, PIONEER, MUNTZ CLARION, JENSEN, TEAC, Car Decks and Speakers and Radios.

master charge

tech hifi
Quality Components at the Right Price
259 Triangle St. Amherst 549-2610
186 Main St. Northampton 586-2552

BANKAMERICARD

Tran Van Dihn featured in OH third world discussion

Tomorrow Orchard Hill's Third World Center will present a panel discussion on Pan-Africanism and Marxism: a national and international perspective. It will feature vetern Vietnamese freedom fighter, Tran Van Dinh, and black liberation theoretician, William Strickland.

Tran Van Dinh, an associate of Ho Chi Minh, fought in the Vietnam People's Army during the Vietnamese struggle against French colonialism. Following the fall of Dien Bien Phu, he went to Laos to participate in the organization of the Pathet Lao Army. A former cabinet officer and senior member of the South Vietnamese Diplomatic Service from 1960 to 1963, Tran Van Dinh is currently on the faculty of the Institute of Pan-African Studies at Temple University. His writings on Vietnam and the peace movement have appeared in numerous publications including The New York Times and The New Republic.

William Strickland, teacher, lecturer and activist, is assistant director and a pioneer fellow of the Institute of the Black World, Atlanta, Georgia. During the 60's he participated in the Mississippi freedom movement and was executive director of the Northern Student Movement.

The program should provide insight into the contradictions currently besetting America and the black liberation struggle. It will take place in the Noah Webster lounge at Orchard Hill and will begin at 2:30. It is free to the public.

it's time for another . . .

GAY DANCE

FRIDAY, APRIL 11

9 p.m. Farley Lodge

$1.00 — Refreshments Served

Student Homophile League
and
Gay Women's Caucus

UMASS SOPHOMORES

IF YOU –

- Possess qualities of initiative, intelligence, and high ideals.
- Are self-disciplined and willing to set the example.
- Want to join an elite group of people who are developing leadership abilities.

AND IF YOU QUALIFY –

- Leadership training begins this summer.
- You will receive $100.00 per month during your Junior and Senior years.
- Plus a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve.

YOU SHOULD –

Get the facts about the two-year Army ROTC program.
- Drop by the Department of Military Science (located between Boyden Gym and Southwest) or call 545-2321 or 2322.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO GET THE FACTS.

MDC Classifieds

MDC Classifieds Pay

To place a classified, drop by the Collegian Office between 8:30 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. Monday - Friday.

The deadline is 3:45, two days before the day your ad is to appear.

The rates are:
Daily — $.35 per line
Weekly — $.30 per line
Monthly — $.25 per line
*Two lines on form approximate one line.

FOR SALE

Integral Systems power amp large Advent speakers ACE audio preamp, all immaculate. $560. Call Mike 549-0177.

Need a place to put your plants? Buy a plant hanger from me for $7.50. Made from real wood, hangs in dorm window, holds up to 12 plants. Call Vicki at 6-8451 or stop by and see at JQA 1403.

Pair JBL 88 speakers; high efficiency, 8 OHM. 367-9948. Keep trying.

SR-50 Calc. Tex. Ins. TR, $75. Judy, 253-5054.

Head skis, bndgs, boots, etc. 256-8989.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765, evenings.

Women's 3 spd. Eng. bike. Good make needs work $25. Call Barbara 546-5185.

Calc: Bowmar MX100 all funct. 549-0013.

Yamaha Classical Guitar, 1 year old. 549-6226.

Gibson ES-335, good cond., $275. 253-5745.

110 lb. weight set. $30. 253-2241 aft. 9.

Beaut. Sierra des[illegible] 200 sleeping bag. $90. Optimus [illegible] stove, $20. Seiko watch, new, $55. Call Doug 6-5620.

Camper: 67X97. Fits pick-up longbed. Dbl. bed, fridg., excel. cond. Call 584-7803.

Queen size mattress. $10. Call 256-0696.

Two man tent with floor, waterproof, screened, 4 lbs. Only $30. 586-0714.

Advent Speakers, mirocord turntable, marantz receiver. 6 mo. old. $350. 253-7687.

AUTO FOR SALE

'66 VW Van, new paint job, need mech. work. Best offer. 545-2896. Ask for Dave.

'67 Barracuda, V8, 4 spd., $300 or B.O. Four 13 in. tires, Chevy rims. $55. Mack. 549-0491.

1970 SAAB 96, 2 dr., 57,000 miles. Nev. Michelins, FM radio. Ross 256-0687. $1100.

'67 Mustang, tuned, std., conv. $270 or best offer. Call 549-1005 evenings.

For Sale — '64 Chevy truck, runs well but needs work. $100. Call 253-5077.

1966 VW Square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

'72 Capri, AM-FM stereo, 32 mpg. $1875. 549-0010.

'68 VW bus, good cond., rebuilt, cmpng. pltfrm, $1550. 549-1758. Low mileage.

Ford Van, '64, 6 std., camper top. Must see. New parts, very little rust, very unusual. Buying new one. $500. 773-8108.

69 VW Exc. cond., sunroof, new clutch, brakes; rebuilt engine. $1000. 253-9285.

For sale 1972 SAAB 99E Exc. cond., new injectors. Tires air cond., $2400 or best offer. 413-774-4289 evenings.

1966 VW square back, asking $400. Call 538-4037.

4 Sale — Peugeot U08 - 21" frame. Excellent cond. Asking $100. 253-5560.

AUTO FOR SALE

1968 Volvo 144S, needs work. Will consider any offer. Call 549-0929.

1966 Ford station wagon - just tuned. Good condition. $250. Call 256-0259.

'71 Fiat 124, good condition, radials. 30 mpg. $1195. Call Mrs. Roberts 5-0150.

Want to buy, '70-'72 Dart, Scamp, Valiant, Slant-6, 225 c.i. Call Jeanne, 549-1312, eve.

VW Sqbk, '69, good cond. 74,000 mi. 25 mpg. $695. 1-628-3367.

1967 Ford Cntry Sqr., $600 neg., good cond. Judy, 253-5054.

58 Peugeot, sunroof, bring a battery and drive it away! $100. Bob 253-7967.

64 Corvair Convert., body and top good, needs motor. $100 or best offer. 253-7967.

64 Chev. wagon, rebuilt motor, new. Exhaust runs well. 6 cyl., $250. Bob 253-7967.

68 Chev. No Beauty, but SUPER RUNNING. Small 8, automatic. p-s. $395. 253-7967.

Great 70 Fiat coupe, looking for good home. 40 mpg., $695 takes it. Bob 253-7967.

67 Ford Galaxie 6, auto $395. 253-7967.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

73 MGB exc. condition. 26 mpg. Selling cheap. Call 546-5033 Chuck.

Triumph 650 Bonne. Completely rebuilt and repainted. Stock. Asking $825. Call 584-0026. It's ready for the road.

'72 Suzuki, TS250J2, 300 mi. 532-6807.

450 Honda, engine totally rebuilt. Have all receipts. $700. 253-7687 eves.

1975 Kawasaki KZ400, 160 miles, perfect, crash bars, koni shocks. Asking $1150. Call Bob days 586-4552, nites message.

Amh. — New 3 bdr., w-w carpet, dw, disp., tennis ct., swimming pool. Imm. Occ. No lease req. $295 plus util. & sec. Call 549-6600 before 5.

'72 Honda CB175, exc. cond. Extras. 549-6373.

Fender Bandmaster & PA, Guild Guitar, Leslie 147, RMI Piano. 256-8160 after 5.

Symphonic stereo w-record changer, AM-FM Stereo radio, tape deck, 2 lg. speakers. Sell for $150. 253-7998.

Scott 342-C Stereo Receiver, 12 & 12W, gd. cond., new $300. Will take B.O. 549-6715 (5-7 p.m.)

Refrigerator, 10 cu. ft. Best offer over $100. Year old. Call Chris at 6-7970 or 5-3500.

Polaroid 330 extras. Ex. cond. Best offer. 665-4235.

Raised waterbed with htr. King size. Custom made $200. Firm. Jim. 253-7985.

Panasonic Model RE7670D FET solid state FM-AM stereo receiver with matched BSR turntable, two 6½ inch speakers. $135. Must sell. Call John 536-4809 after 5.

FOR RENT

For rent — 2 bdrm. apt., views, woods. $180 per mo., util. incl. Call 665-3972.

One bedroom apt., in Sunderland on bus rte. All conv. util. included. $160 a month. Call Ruth 665-4620 or 665-7077 evenings.

Room in house, util., wash, dry. 256-8456.

Room to rent in Pelham. In country home. Call David 253-2686.

Clfsd., 2 bdr. $190. AC, Dw. 665-3610, eve.

One bdrm. apt. for rent on Sd. bus route. $160 per mo., util. inc., all conv. Call Dave 665-7065.

Univ. Park Apts., 1 bedrm., $160 mo. includes util., 5-2256 (Sue) days, 256-0384, 5-6 p.m.

WANTED TO RENT

Sm. house in countryside. Isolation and work space. Resp. craftsman. Refs. available. Now or sum. Call collect 617-888-4430.

WANTED TO RENT

1 bedrm. apt. Northampton vicinity. 91S. Beg. May 1. Bus Phone. Call Patty 545-3139.

Liveable space in Amherst, shower or bath, cooking facilities. June-Sept. at $50-$60. 542-5837. Nancy.

TO SUBLET

2 bedrm. apt. with utilities. $180 a month. On bus line. June 1. August 31. Opt. to renew. 546-6333.

Brandywine June-August. 2 bedrm. 549-1864.

Air cond., 3 bedroom Puffton Apt. on bus rte. Tennis, basketball courts, pool, dishwasher. $60. 549-1866 for summer.

One person needed to share two bedroom apt. in Amh. Center from June 1 - Sept. 1. Convenient location and fairly inexpensive. Call 256-0127 after 4 p.m.

June 1 to Aug. 31. 2 bdrm. Cliffside Apt. $190 per mo., all util. incl., ten. crts and sw. pool. 665-4112 aft. 6.

Lg. semi-furn. one bedrm. apt. in house w-study. Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. $175. B'twn. 323-5551.

$170 a month till June. Can renew lease. Contact A. Lewis, 5-0333 or 665-48[illegible]3.

Great 2 bdrm. apt. for June - Sept. w-ac, util. inc., pool, on bus route. 256-8252.

3 bdr. Townhouse, sublet, June 1. Opt. to renew. On bus rte. Call 665-4166.

2 bedroom Riverglade Townhouse. Start June to Sept. Call 253-2562.

3 bedroom apt. on bus rt., air cond. For summer sublet - option to renew. Call 665-3687. $225.

To sublet w-option to renew. 8 bedroom house, 2 min. walk from N'Hampton Cen. Call 584-5136.

Want to sublet 1 bedroom apt. in Puffton. Would like unfurnished. Call 5-1993 between 11 and 1 a.m.

Apt. for rent. June, July, Aug. Furnished. $175. Phone, util., included. 549-2715, 10 minutes walk from campus.

Townhouse apt. to sublet. June to August. Option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate for summer months. If interested, call 549-0895.

3 bdrm. Townhouse, fully furn. Piano, laundry fac., 2 baths, dishwash. 549-1275.

Rm. in house. Belch. Sub May only. 260 AC. $100 incl. util. Call Rob 253-7887.

2 bedrm. apt., June - August. On busline, pool, tennis cts. w. util. included. Opt. Partially furnished. 665-2253.

2 bedroom apt. at Rolling Green available June 1st-Aug. 31st. Rent is $233 per month, but it includes all utilities: heat, water, air conditioning. Call Glenn or Jay at 253-9845. Best buy in town.

June 1. One or two people for Roll. Gr. Apt. Opt. to renew. Exc. Bus, pool, lge. rms., part. furn., air cond. $60 all inc. 256-6279.

House, 4 bdrm., near UMass, furnished, garage, yard. June-Aug. $350 per mon. 549-6417.

Three rms. in Co-op house, 5 min. from campus. Jun-Aug. Option for Sept. 253-5077.

Two bedroom apt. in Brandywine. June 1st - Aug. 31. Negotiable. 549-0112.

Mdrn. 3 bdrm. apt. on bus rt. $210. 256-8435.

Two bdrm. for summer w-option to renew. Busline. Rent a bargain! 665-4381.

F. in house in Amh. Own room, bus rt., w-option to lease. Rent neg. 253-3661.

Townhouse apt. on busline, part. furn. Two bed., 2 bath. $240 mth w-util, air cond., pool. June 1 to Aug. 31. 253-5282.

House from Jn. 1 - Aug. 31. 4 bdrm. 2 bdrm. fully furnished. 73 Leverett Rd., Amherst. 549-0521 anytime. B.O.

TO SUBLET

Sublet June 1-Aug. 31. Lg. 3 rm. apt. with extra lg. bedrm. Brandywine, heat and a.c. incl., opt. to renew lease. Call 549-4577 anytime.

To sublet pri. bedroom Squire Village. Can occupy immediately if needed. 665-3571.

Sublet June 1 - Sept. 1. Opt. to renew. 2 bedrm. apt. Belchertown, on bus route, lake. 323-6213.

Sublet room June - Sept. Great apartment and on bus route. Large windows. Call 256-8834 Sharon.

Apt. available June-August, 4 rm. furnished, reasonable. Opt. to renew. Northampton, Smith Col area 586-1130.

Summer Central Amherst. 4 bedrooms, guest room, 1½ baths., large sitting room, kitchen, dining room, garage. Suit two or three couples. Only $275 P.M. Call 5-0308 (days); 256-8472 (night).

2 bdrm. at King Philip, Sunderland. All electric. $205. inc. util. Avail. June 1 til Aug. 31. 665-3688.

Sublet - June 1. 1 bdrm. Puffton Vil. Apt. Furnished, AC, tennis cts., pool. On bus line, option to renew. $174 per month. 549-0825.

Close walking to campus and town. 2 bdrm. furn. apt. with phone. Negot. 256-6750.

Begin May 1 or befr. thru Sept. 2 bdrm. Brandywine — negotiable. Call evenings 549-2857; days, 5-0960. Denise.

Avl. June. Option 12 mo. Lease 2 bdrm. Twnhs. Apt. 10 ft. from bus stop. 106 Rolling Green. 253-7641 after 5 p.m.

Beautiful Townhouse apt. available Sept.-June with option to renew. 3 bdr., w-w carpeting, AC, swimming pool, fully modern kitchen, patio and plenty of room to roam. Would like to rent furnished. Call 549-6804 evenings.

Two bed. house. Pelham. $150.00. June 1-Sept. 1. Call 253-3302, Bob, Wayne.

Sublet with option to renew, 2 bdrm. Brandywine, mod. conv. June 1. Call 549-6714.

Two bdr. Brandywine. Pool, pets. $550 incl. util. June 1 to Aug. 31. Renewable. 549-3523.

Sunderland — two bedroom on bus rte. $150. June-Aug. Util. incl. 665-3668.

Sublet — June 1-Aug. 31. Puffton, 3 bdrm. apt. $210. 549-0490.

3-4 bedroom 3 year old house, Amh.-Bel. line. $250 per mo. for summer. Jim. 253-7985.

Garden apt., Rolling Green, 2 bdrms. June-Aug. Option to renew. Cheap. 253-7332.

One or 2 bedr. $169 mo. Furnished. June 1-Sep. 1. Call 549-0891, anytm.

ROOMMATE WANTED

N. Amherst. Large apt. Own room. $91.67 per mo. plus utils. Secur. depos. Lease until Aug. Tony 549-0699.

Wanted: Couple to share 2 bedroom apartment this summer — close to campus, on bus route. Call 546-8167 in evenings. Keep trying!!

3 girl roommates wanted, own room, at Swiss Village, with beds. $85 a month includes utilities. Call 253-5621.

Townhouse Apts. April 15 to Aug. Own room. $80 per month with double bed and dresser. Call 549-0699 mornings or evenings.

RESPONSIBLE M-F to share 3 bedr., furnished apt. Bus line. $110 w-utilities. 253-7967.

Cliffside, 1 bdrm. Sublet June 15 (app.). Opt. to renew. 665-3249.

Two roommates wanted for summer months, June through August. Squire Village Apt. On bus route. $58.75 per month. If interested call 665-4753 after 5 p.m.

Woman roommate wanted for quiet house in So. Deerfield on bus line. $90 inc. util. 665-3590.

1 pr. Ofunda 7X50 binoculars w-leather case. Exc. cond. Call 586-0561.

ROOM WANTED

Female — Own rm., mod. 2 bdrm. apt. Avail. immed. Over 25, no pets. In Amherst on bus line. $105 per mo. incl. util. 253-5411.

ROOM WANTED

Grad. Stud. seeks sunny room for Sept. 1 256-8247 eve.

HELP WANTED

Artists - Sell your paintings & sculpture. 598-8673. Now!

Drivers needed. Must have car. Apply Domino's Pizza after 4 p.m.

WANTED

BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967. BOB STILL WANTS YOUR AILING OR DECREPIT CAR. Fast $$ for the hulk. 253-7967.

Townhouse apt. to sublet option to renew. Air conditioned, carpeted, close to campus and on bus route. $235 plus utilities per month. Will negotiate rent for summer months if interested. call 549-0895.

Oscilloscope wanted. Will pay $200 or wish to borrow. Call 774-3294. John.

Double bed or larger wanted to buy. Either both mattress and spring or just mattress. Will pick up. Call 256-8056.

Drummer for summer gig at Cape Cod. Board and room included. 586-3765 or 1-467-7515.

Bop Shu Bop. I need jitterbuggers. Call Judy soon. 549-6553 nights. Keep calling.

Cute baseball player (U.Mass.) Must be a PBP! Bill Lee-Tony C. type. Call 546-4864 anytime.

TYPING

Regular and technical typing. Reasonable rates. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 665-4982.

PERSONALS

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0600.

For only $20 (special university price), you can protect your car, tires and its contents with a "Bradley ghost" automatic burglar alarm. Electricity's newest marvel. Or install it yourself for only $15. For more info and a demonstration, call Larg at 546-9621 or Bruce at 546-5663.

Happy belated birthday to a Gelastic Gear. Keep on Meshing. Mama.

To the girl who used my Greisheimar Physiology & Anatomy book LAST spring for Zoo 137-138. I need it NOW! Call Ann 5-2297 or 256-6887. Its Important!

Mo — If only there were more beautiful people like you. Happy Birthday! The H. Poet.

To Danny — The Bestest Birthday Bunny. Happy 19th. Love Ya, Cathi.

Rivglade Tnhs. 3 bdrm. Need roommates for 2 bdrms. Sum. w-option fall. Master bdrm. ideal for cple. Tot. $300 mo. incl. util. 253-9445.

Dance to "Overnight Sensation", Fri., Smith Coll., Alum. Gym. 9-1. 75c. Free Beer.

J. C. — You'll always be nothing but a Niki Ficket. Love Nicole.

Dear Bunny, Happy 20th. "To some kind of wonderful". Much love, Di & Co.

Tom Jones is alive and well and still performing. For further info, call 6-9832.

Trees need balling? This and other landscaping done by Tim. 6-9817.

Wanted: 3 female companions — Going to Europe — all expenses paid, fringe benefits incl. Call Mike 6-9820, Kevin and Joe, 6-9822.

$300 plus many prizes. 52 hour dance marathon, April 25-26-27. Live music, great bands. Applications to dance now available. Call Carmen or Kitty 253-9034.

Ralph Spoilsport says get your free edible steering column when you dance. For those who can't, call Pine at 253-9034 in the Dead of Night.

Shari, Happy birthday. Love: The Hamburg Flipper.

Raffle. Kennedy is sponsoring a bike raffle until April 17. Look for House Gov't members today! Your chance may be the chance. 25c or 5 for a dollar. Raleigh Grand Prix. Your choice, size and color. Retail $150.00. This is a one in a lifetime chance, so hurry!!!

TRAVEL

Interested in no-frills low cost travel to Europe, Africa, Middle East, Far East, at minimum cost, maximum flexibility and minimum hassle? For info. call educational flights toll free 800 223-5569.

Charter flights to Europe and Calif. Call Campus Travel 545-0500.

SERVICES

TOM'S BIKE REPAIR — expert, honest, cheap. Pick-up, delivery. 584-5024 anytime.

Interested in camping in Europe this summer? For more info., call Chris at 6-9634.

Guitar lessons. Jaye 546-4058. Start now, summer or fall. Anything you want to know. Beginners to advanced.

Datsun, Toyota, Volvo, Jaguar repaired by Russ Baca. Plenty of experience and equipment. Phone 586-1227.

RUBBER STAMPS made up with anything you'd like to stamp. Inexpensive. For instance, name and address $3, with telephone number $3.50. Fast service. Also personalized stationery. Joseph. 665-4765 evenings.

KARMACHANICS — All foreign and domestic auto repairs. Fiat specialists. Let us check out that used car before you buy it. People's prices. We'll teach you, too! 665-7145.

BOB WILL STILL FIX ANY CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967. BOB WILL STILL FIX YOUR CAR RIGHT! No job too small. Any make or year. 253-7967.

Wooden chair seats recaned. Call Lin 546-7274.

DON'T JUST GO THERE. Learn something. Meet people. SUMMER STUDY ABROAD lists dates, subjects, prerequisites, costs for over 600 credit and non-credit programs worldwide. Send $3 to Institute of International Education, Box CC, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, N. Y. 10017.

Spanish Lit. major will tutor in Spanish at any level (i.e., beginner, intermediate, advanced). Call 584-1316 for arrangements. Estudiante de la literatura espanola da clases. Particulares de Ingles llamen uds. A. 584-1316.

LOST

Lost: Orange fem. cat, Priscilla, in N. Amherst. 549-6696.

Green Botany 121 Notebook. Dr. Livingston. Badly needed for exam next week. Betsy. 546-6248.

ENTERTAINMENT

Four hours of non-stop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Dance to "Overnight Sensation", Fri., Smith Coll., Alum. Gym. 9-1. 75c. Free Beer.

Peter O'Toole & Katherine Hepburn star in "The Lion in Winter" on Fri., April 11 at 7-9:15 and 11:30 in Mahar.

"Chariots of the Gods". A documentary film by Erich Von Daniken is at Mahar on Sat., April 12th at 7:30-9:15 and 11:00.

Four hours of nonstop nostalgia and hits for only $55. Call Bob the D.J. 536-6075.

Little Fire wants to play for your next dorm party or Boogie. You've seen us at the Steak Out, Bluewall, Red Pantry, etc. Now bring us home. Reasonable rates. Call 586-4364 or 549-1511.

AUTO WORKSHOP

DO IT YOURSELF. Tools free with space, rental. $2 hr., professional advice. Parts wholesale. Level 1, C.C. Garage. Mon.-Fri., 3-10, Sat.-Sun., 12-10.

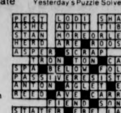
CALCULATORS

College Calculators has all the answers. I offer low discount prices on all makes and models of calculators. All machines new, with full warranty and more! If your machine malfunctions within 2 months I'll replace it free! All lines available, Texas Inst., HP, Commodore, Rockwell and others. SR-50, only $99.95; SR-51, only $159.95, HP-21, only $119.95. Before you buy anywhere, call me first and I'll give you the best deal I can. Call Bob Crowell 549-1316.

TODAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

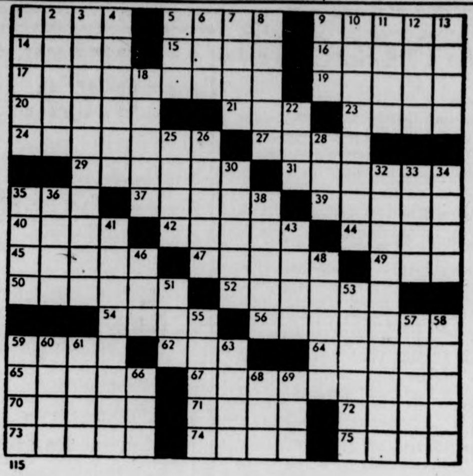
UNITED Feature Syndicate

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:



ACROSS
1 Manner of walking
5 Knocks
9 Official document
14 John, in Wales
15 Release
16 Armadillo
17 Enthrall
19 Publish
20 Flying toys
21 One who overacts
23 Opinion
24 Alarm
27 Secular
29 Isolated land mass
31 Smothers in water
35 Retreat
37 Concluded
39 Principle of good conduct
40 In addition
42 Architectural vaults
44 Oriental prefix
45 Conclude prematurely
47 Hayworth and Moreno
49 Asian holiday
50 Win over
52 E. Indian poet
54 Study
56 Resumed
59 College org
62 Legume
64 Hep
65 Within the law
67 Joint inflammation
70 Spanish province
71 Beginner: Var
72 Take heed
73 Walked in water
74 Uttered
75 Historic periods

DOWN
1 Units of volume
2 Expect
3 ---------- industry: Business VIPs
4 Inserts
5 Revenue: Abbr.
6 Church vessel
7 Gist
8 Take without right
9 Infants' food
10 Fruit
11 Was worthwhile
12 Sea bird
13 Pro ----: In proportion
18 Fiber-producing plant
22 Frantic
25 Real estate
26 Ancient Palestine village
28 Indignation
30 Resign
32 River turbulence: 2 words
33 Baseball team
34 U.K. native
35 No longer living
36 European river
38 Remove viscous matter
41 Capable of being set upright
43 Judicious
46 --- and gravel roof
48 Detecting apparatus
51 Spigot
53 Replace cables
55 Beef and pork
57 Feminine name
58 Office furniture items
59 Blemish
60 Actess Maria ----
61 Bitter
63 Tune
66 Small boy
68 Three: Prefix
69 Coal scuttle



115

Your Birthday By Stella Wilder

THURSDAY, APRIL 10 — Born today, you are exceptionally energetic, especially when engaged in an activity which takes your mental as well as your physical strength and application. More than energy, however, is an attitude which you carry with you into each and every endeavor in which you become involved. For not only do you give your full share — and more — of mental and physical energy to what your are doing, you also give your optimistic approach, your self-confidence, and your determination to succeed — three aspects of success which are not to be overlooked.

You are a formidable enemy, but you are also a faithful friend. You will not allow yourself to be taken in by the false — but you will always come to the aid, both material and moral, of the sincere. You find it hard to forgive any act taken against you on purpose — but you are exceedingly quick to both forgive and forget unwitting, unintentional slights or hurts. To be deceived or double-crossed is for you the ultimate in disappointment; to be upheld, honored, appreciated is the height of encouragement.

Keen of mind, sharp of wit, and gifted with a decided talent for expression by way of the spoken or written word, you are a lively, interesting conversationalist and one who is always sought after by those seeking a congenial "ball-carrier" for any gathering. Always conceiving new ideas, you are seldom without suggestions for solutions to problems, your own and those of others; this alone gains you followers.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

* * *

Friday, April 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Take care that carelessness in the morning does not cause you to forfeit gain in the afternoon. An interested observer lends a helping hand.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Serve your own self-interests today. There are benefits to be gained through a selfish act which will eventually help others get ahead, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Morning hours bring customary fare. But be ready during afternoon and evening to deal with the unusual. Material gains reward quick action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Today's decisions must be made quickly and accurately if they are to serve the purpose intended. Don't waste time considering fringe issues.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — A tedious day somehow works into an exciting evening — if you bide your time and give it half a chance. Romantic aspirations are to be encouraged.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Stick to old projects and old ways and means if you would have an uncomplicated day. An excess of emotion is to be strictly avoided.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Prior experience is not essential to the making of sound decisions early in the day — if you are willing to listen to expert advice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — What you can't afford to lose, don't risk. There is no time like the present for exercising restraint; take on no bets you're not sure of winning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Ignore morning tension at home. By the time you have put in a good day's work, all will be forgiven and forgotten.

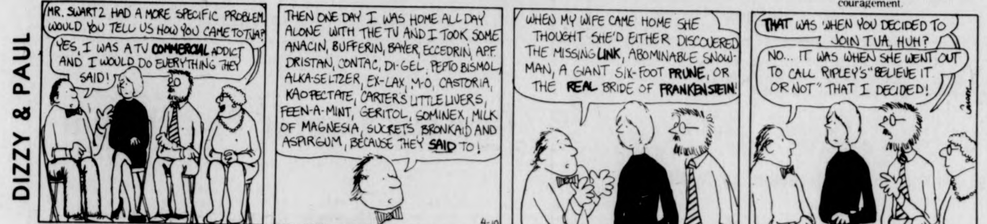
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Where finances are concerned, you would do well to sit tight. The time to take chances is both past and approaching — but it is not now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — There is possibility of early-morning upset due to an argument on the home front. Make every effort to talk another out of his present position.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Bear in mind another's difficult past and you will not be so prone to blame him or her for present behavior. Remain calm in afternoon.

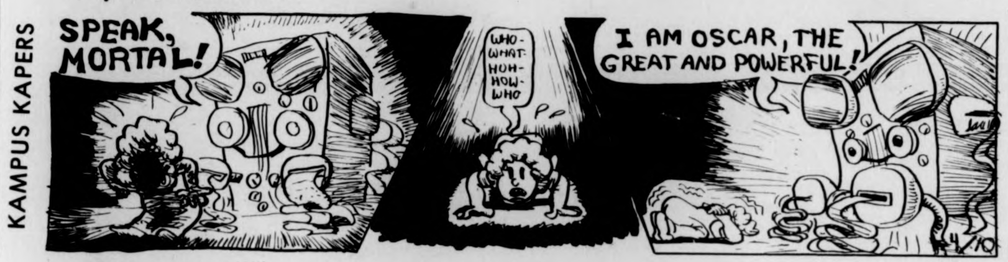
United Feature Syndicate

By Jim Carson

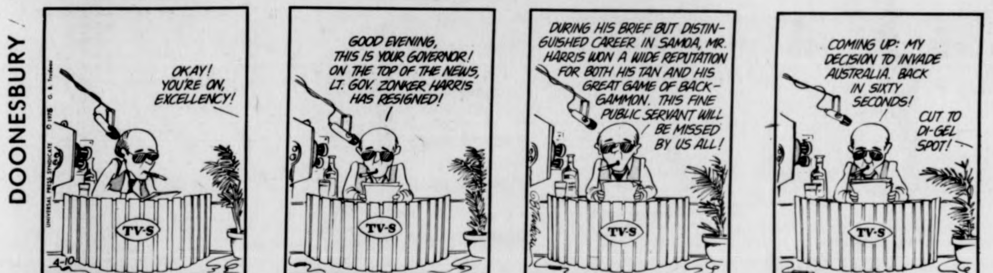


DIZZY & PAUL
MR. SWARTZ HAD A MORE SPECIFIC PROBLEM. WOULD YOU TELL US HOW YOU CAME TO TVA?
YES, I WAS A TV COMMERCIAL ADDICT AND I WOULD DO EVERYTHING THEY SAID!
THEN ONE DAY I WAS HOME ALL DAY ALONE WITH THE TV AND I TOOK SOME ANACIN, BUFFERIN, BAYER, ECCEDRIN, APF, DRISTAN, CONTAC, DI-GEL, PEPTO BISMOL, ALKA-SELTZER, EX-LAX, M-O, CASTORIA, KAOPECTATE, CARTER'S LITTLE LIVERS, FEEN-A-MINT, GERITOL, SOMINEX, MILK OF MAGNESIA, SUCRETS, BRONKAID AND ASPIRGUM, BECAUSE THEY SAID TO!
WHEN MY WIFE CAME HOME SHE THOUGHT SHE'D EITHER DISCOVERED THE MISSING LINK, ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN, A GIANT SIX-FOOT PRUNE, OR THE REAL BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN!
THAT WAS WHEN YOU DECIDED TO JOIN TVA, HUH?
NO... IT WAS WHEN SHE WENT OUT TO CALL RIPLEY'S "BELIEVE IT OR NOT" THAT I DECIDED!
4-10

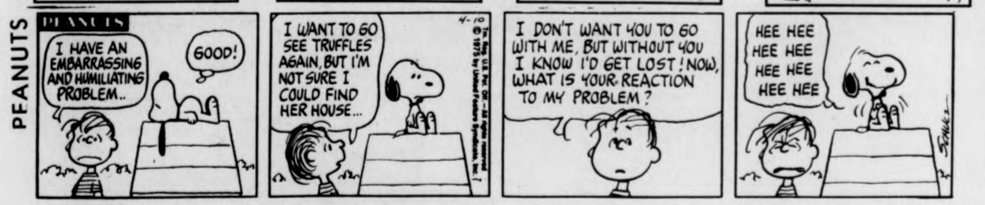
By Kris Jackson



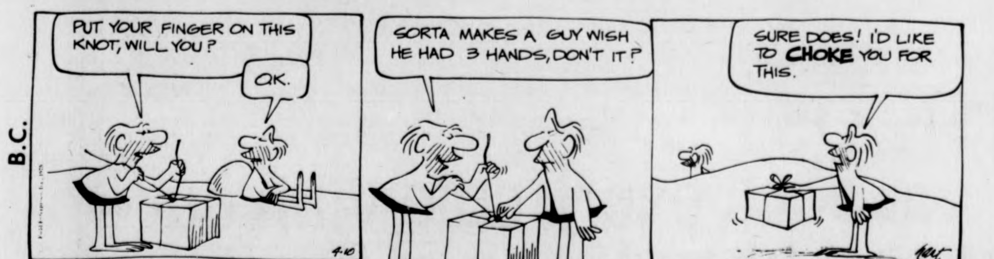
by Garry Trudeau



DOONESBURY
OKAY! YOU'RE ON, EXCELLENCY!
GOOD EVENING, THIS IS YOUR GOVERNOR! ON THE TOP OF THE NEWS, LT. GOV. ZONKER HARRIS HAS RESIGNED!
DURING HIS BRIEF BUT DISTINGUISHED CAREER IN SAMOA, MR. HARRIS WON A WIDE REPUTATION FOR BOTH HIS TAN AND HIS GREAT GAME OF BACKGAMMON. THIS FINE PUBLIC SERVANT WILL BE MISSED BY US ALL!
COMING UP: MY DECISION TO INVADE AUSTRALIA. BACK IN SIXTY SECONDS!
CUT TO DI-GEL SPOT!
TV-S
4-10

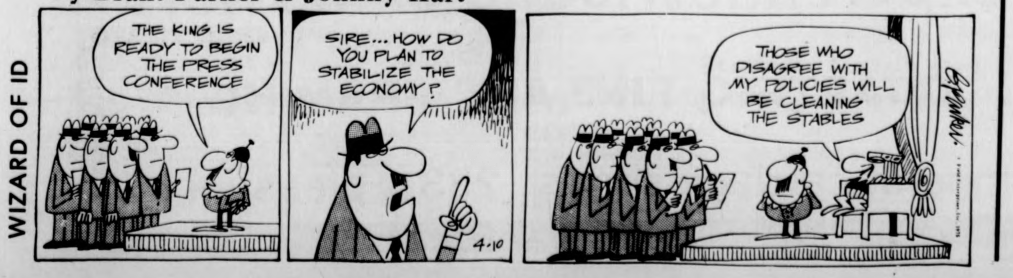


PEANUTS
I HAVE AN EMBARRASSING AND HUMILIATING PROBLEM..
GOOD!
I WANT TO GO SEE TRUFFLES AGAIN, BUT I'M NOT SURE I COULD FIND HER HOUSE...
I DON'T WANT YOU TO GO WITH ME, BUT WITHOUT YOU I KNOW I'D GET LOST! NOW, WHAT IS YOUR REACTION TO MY PROBLEM?
HEE HEE HEE HEE HEE HEE HEE HEE
4-10



B.C.
PUT YOUR FINGER ON THIS KNOT, WILL YOU?
OK.
SORTA MAKES A GUY WISH HE HAD 3 HANDS, DON'T IT?
SURE DOES! I'D LIKE TO CHOKE YOU FOR THIS.
4-10

By Brant Parker & Johnny Hart



WIZARD OF ID
THE KING IS READY TO BEGIN THE PRESS CONFERENCE
SIRE... HOW DO YOU PLAN TO STABILIZE THE ECONOMY?
THOSE WHO DISAGREE WITH MY POLICIES WILL BE CLEANING THE STABLES
4-10

notices

cont. from p. 14

Dr. John Teak of the Dept. of Biology at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute will speak on Salt March Ecology on Monday, April 14 at 4:30 p.m., C.C. 917 Coffee will be served at 4 p.m.

MEDITATION LECTURE

by Acarya Brygunatha, speaking on yogic philosophy and practices. 7:30 p.m. Friday, night, April 11 C.C. 804. Free of charge.

MUSIC THEATRE GUILD

Meeting today at 5:45 in Machmer E 16 to discuss election of officers and our November show. All old and new members and any interested people please attend.

MORTARBOARD

Important meeting Sun., 4-13, 7 p.m. Final decisions for next year's membership to be discussed. To be held at 115D Brittany Manor. 253-7854, if ride needed.

NEW YORK LAW SCHOOL

Representatives from New York Law School will be on campus Thurs., April 10 to solicit applicants for admission to the calss of Sept. 1975. They will be available to meet with students at 3:30 p.m. in C.C. 808. Anyone interested is invited.

PRE MEDICAL SOCIETY

PMS general meeting for this evening has been cancelled. In it's place the planning committee will meet at 7:15 in C.C. 903. Anyone interested in society activities for next year and-or who wants to be on the PMS planning committee should attend.

SBA FRESHMAN

All SBA Freshmen (Last names A-K) are reminded of an important counselling meeting tonight with the Dean's staff in SBA 120 at 7 p.m.

SENIOR DAY

Any student interested in developing a Senior Day program, come to a meeting Thursday, April 17 at 8 p.m. in C.C. 162.

STAR TREK LIVES!

Next meeting Monday, April 14, C.C. 803. Any quest? Call Barbara at 546-6672. LL & P.

SVP

Four coordinators meet tonight at S.U. Candy Counter and so from there. Nancy, Joe Mike and Steve. This is a must. 7:30.

TUTORS WANTED

If you are a good student and if you are interested in tutoring your respective discipline, call Janis Bookman, 5-2191 or 5-2192 for appt. CASIAC tutoring service is interested in talking to you.

UNIVERSITY JUDICIARY

Last general meeting of semester tonight at 8 p.m. in C.C. 911-915. All persons who have done any Judge or Advocate work for the semester are requested to attend.

WRITERS

The Index needs humorous satires about each living area. If you want to write or just relate some humorous stories, call 545-2874 or drop by 409 S.U.

LOST

Eyeglasses in blue case between Orchard Hill and Worcester and C.C. on 4-7 at about 8 p.m. Please return to C.C. Lost and Found. Thanks.

LOST

One green 6' by 9' notebook, Botany 121, Dr. Livingston, Exam next week so is badly needed. Call 546-6248. Betsv.

LOST

Left on Boston Express Bus Friday 4-4 "Little George" psychology book. If you picked it up, please call me Leslie 6-5788.

Donahue - the student-coach

By BARNABY KALAN

From a nuclear submarine to tennis court, athletics have been a way of life for Edward "Teddy" Donahue.

Donahue, the new assistant tennis coach, spent seven years in the Navy before coming to UMass. In Special Services he played on the Navy's football, basketball and softball teams. He also spent time as a Reactor Operator aboard a nuclear submarine.

This year, as Assistant Tennis Coach, Donahue will help senior coach Steve Kosakowski in organizing and training the tennis team. Together, they hope to coach the team to another Yankee Conference championship. It is a title the UMass netmen have won six times out of the past eight years.

Donahue's appointment came as a result of team problems last-spring season. Late in the season some team members complained about the coaching situation to the athletics administration. Several players did not compete in the last three scheduled matches as a protest. The matches were cancelled which prompted the administrators to look into the situation.

It was suggested that someone be hired as an assistant to Kosakowski.

"I got along very well with the coach," said Donahue, who was the number one singles player on the 1972 and 1973 UMass teams. There was money in the budget, Donahue said, payable out of the Athletic Trust Fund.

"The decision was left to him (Kosakowski) to decide who he wanted as an assistant — and he picked me."

Donahue, a graduate student in Physical Education, hopes to complete school with a Master's degree this August. He is specializing in sports administration.

Donahue said that Coach Kosakowski will probably have an assistant next year, after he graduates.

"I think he almost definitely will," Donahue said, "which is only right because as far as winning goes, he's one of the most successful coaches in the building."

Teddy's plans also include marrying Joyce A. Favaloro, a UMass gradutate, this July.

After graduating, Donahue said he hopes to be teaching or coaching.

"I'd love to coach a tennis team," he said.

Celts await playoff date

BOSTON [AP] — The Boston Celtics, waiting to find out the who, when and where of their National Basketball Association playoff games, will welcome the return of two backcourt players to the practice court today.

Paul Westphal, who is suffering from the flu, and Kevin Stacom, who has water on the left knee, are scheduled for some light work today and more strenuous activity tomorrow.

Coach Tom Neinsohn plans scrimmages for his team throughout the week at the Christian Academy court in Lexington.

Action in Madison Square Garden in New York Thursday night could answer some of the playoff questions. If Houston beats New York, they will move into Boston Garden on Sunday for the opening playoff match with the Celtics.

If the Knicks win, there will be another Houston-New York clash on Saturday, and Boston will meet the winner on Monday.

Bosox lose

BOSTON [UPI] — George Scott and Robin Yount drove in two runs apiece yesterday to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-4 win over the Boston Red Sox.

Scott hit a bases-loaded single to right field with two outs in the third inning, scoring Yount and Bob Coluccio. Yount had singled before Coluccio and Hank Aaron walked to fill the bases.

Yount drove in his first run in a three-run fourth with a single to right. Rookie Sixto Lezcana led off the inning with a double and scored on a Darrell Porter single. Porter moved to third on a Pedro Garcia single and scored on Yount's opposite field hit. Garcia came home on Coluccio's sacrifice fly as the Brewers took a 5-0 lead.

Boston responded with three runs in the bottom of the fourth. Dwight Evans tripled after a walk to Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli was hit by a pitch. Bob Montgomery doubled Evans home.

The Brewers added single runs in the sixth and eighth innings. Yount drove in the sixth inning run with a sacrifice fly.

WINDSHIELDS REPLACED

COMPLETE GLASS SERVICE
VALLEY Auto Trim
and Glass Shop
798 N. King St., 'Hamp.
584-4837 1 mi. no. of Godfather's Rte. 5
Installation WHILE YOU WAIT!

ONE WEEK LEFT!!

ALL persons applying for office space for next year must fill out an application by April 11th.

Applications available at RSO and Rm. 817 Campus Center

D.V.P. presents MLK week

TONIGHT

Gospel Night

Ronnie Ingram Singers

Dorothy Love Coates

Campus Center Auditorium

8:00 p.m.

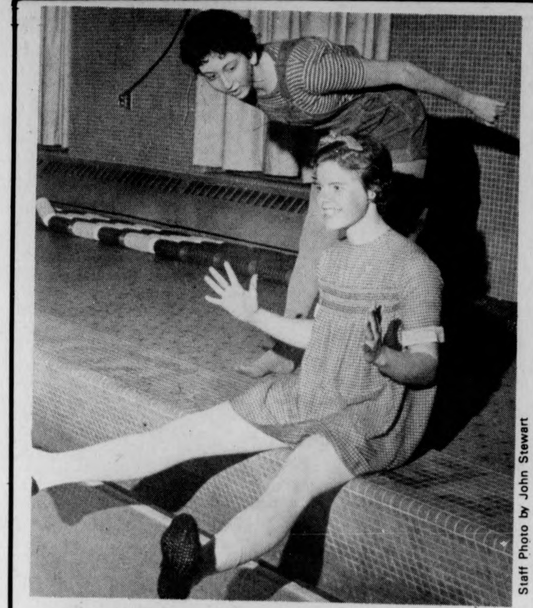
The Art Shop

ASK US.....
we back every sale with our expert knowledge of the field.

DRAFTING · FINE ART · FRAMING

amherst carriage shops 233 n. pleasant st.

NG



Staff Photo by John Stewart

Just waiting to be wound up — This is one of the scenes you'll see when you take in "An Aquatic Art Performance" by the UMass NAIADS, April 9—12.

JV mitters squeeze by

By CHAS O'CONNOR

For coach, Jeff McKay and his JV baseball team, it probably wasn't as easy in yesterday's opener as it was at times last year. One thing is for sure, though, and that is that despite the cold weather and the short time the team has been practicing, they're still winners.

"I was real pleased with the game considering the conditions. I think Nigro did a fine job," said McKay. In seven innings of pitching, Nigro fanned 8 and walked but 2. The pitcher, however, lost the spotlight to outfielder Tom Shilale when Shilale came through with a bunt base hit on a suicide squeeze play. The hit scored Bavel Cummings with the run that provided a 2-1 home win for the Mini Minuteman over Berkshire Community College.

The conditions were far from ideal, and the final stats prove it. Each team made but 3 hits, and pitchers recorded a total of nineteen strikeouts; your basic pitcher's duel.

UMass scored their first run in the first inning. With one out, Hendy went the other way, singling to left, and moved to second on a sacrifice by Lopriore. Hendy scored when a grounder hit up the middle was bobbled by the Berkshire shortstop.

Berkshire answered with an unearned run in the next inning. They loaded the bases on a walk, a bloop single and an effor and scored when pitcher Tom Nigro fielded a ground ball and tried to get an inning-ending DP by throwing to second base. They got the man at second but failed on the return throw to first, allowing the run to score.

The tie was broken in the seventh inning when Cummings walked, advanced to third on wild pitches, and was squeezed home by Shilale. It was as simple as that.

McKay said he didn't hesitate at all in giving the squeeze sign to Shilale. "Shilale is a kid who does everything right," commented McKay.

MINI MITTS: Sophomore Chris Kirby finished up yesterday... starts today's game against Quinsigamond CC in Worcester... "good fastball and slider"—McKay... catcher Charlie Ciccione impressive behind plate... one of "speed-up" rules employed by the coaches a designated runner (UMass—Charlie Johnson).

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officer's commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Netmen topple Rams

By PETER NALAK

Playing their first away match as well as their first Yankee Conference confrontation, the netmen beat the Rhode Island Rams 7-2.

A three hours ride to Kingston, Rhode Island and four come-from-behind victories added up to the team's first regular season victory yesterday.

Rhode Island, a weak team in past years, spent a week in Florida training for the season. The week of practice showed when the Rams shocked UMass by winning three out of six opening singles sets.

"We've only lost to U.R.I. once in the years Ive been coaching. It had to be back in the early fifties," said coach Kosakowski.

David Abramoff, at first singles, offered little resistence by losing 0-6, 2-6.

Captain Chris Post extended his perfect season with a 0-3, 0-3 victory at second singles.

Third singles provided another scare for UMass as undefeated Bill Karol dropped his opening set 4-6. Getting over his nervousness, Karol went on to win the next two sets 6-2, 6-3.

Barnaby Kalan at fourth singles was first off the courts with a 6-1, 6-0 victory.

The singles struggle-of-the-day was at fifth singles. Marc Ouellet, searching for his first regular season win, scraped by in the first set, 7-5. Then Rhode Islander Bob O'Reilly, who had not lost all season, came back in the second set 6-4.

Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

Marc Ouellet — psyching for match.

By this time fifth singles was the last singles match on the courts. Players from both sides watched as Ouellet won the final set 6-1 and put UMass ahead 4-2.

Six singles went to Rhode Island when Kevin Gerrahan was beaten 3-6, 4-6.

The match was decided, as usual, by the doubles.

"Third doubles clinched the match," said Coach Kosakowski.

Abramoff and Kalan were off the courts first with a 6-3, 7-5 win and the crucial fifth point for UMass.

Playing together for only the second time, the first doubles duo of Karol and Garrahan came from way behind to win, 2-6, 7-6, 6-4.

The last match of the day, second doubles, also went to UMass, as Post and Ouellet won 7-5, 7-6.

The match was crucial for UMass. By beating U.R.I. and later New Hampshire, the netmen can improve their seedings in the Yankee Conference championships two weeks from today.

The tennis team travels to Vermont this Friday to take on the Catamounts.

Collegian staff — Check blackboard in newsroom today for important notice.

Scott Hayes

Statistically speaking

If the ECAC playoff format was similar to the ones being used by the NHL, WHA, NBA, ABA and AHL, Jack Canniff's skaters would surely have been involved in post-season play.

It doesn't take a calculus major to compute that 46 of 69 teams or two out of every three teams in the five leagues, "qualified" for the playoffs.

The playoff set-ups are somewhat ridiculous, but one good point is that the wild card berths help hold spectator interest in some cities until the very end of the schedule. Take for example, the New York-Cleveland scramble for the final playoff spot; that lasted until the last day of the NBA season. The excitement in recent years usually ended with several weeks remaining.

Allowing so many teams to reach the playoffs may only be a scheme by club owners to stretch spectator enthusiasm and grab more money as a result of increased attendance, but anything is worth a try ... isn't it?

Senior Barry Emerson, a history major from Pittsfield, expressed his feelings about the situation. "They're (the playoffs) too confusing, but I think it made the regular season climatic rather than anti-climatic."

- - -

Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets was a nightmare for WHA goalies. The "Golden Jet" scored 77 goals in 78 games, surpassing Phil Esposito's mark of 76 goals in a season.

- - -

For those who missed the opening series against Milwaukee at Fenway Park---don't worry, there are 79 home dates remaining.

- - -

Minutemen baseballers are fighting to reach the .500 level early in the season ... before it becomes an impossible task. Coach Dick Bergquist's squad is now 3-5 with a big home doubleheader slated for Saturday vs. Northeastern.

- - -

The Red Sox found themselves atop the Al East the past two days, thanks to the alphabetical arrangement of the standings. Don't count on the Sox being there five months from now, especially since the division is solid this year.

- - -

The UMass lacrosse team was ranked 14th in the latest National Poll, based on votes by the national coaches' association, and second in the New England Poll behind Brown.

- - -

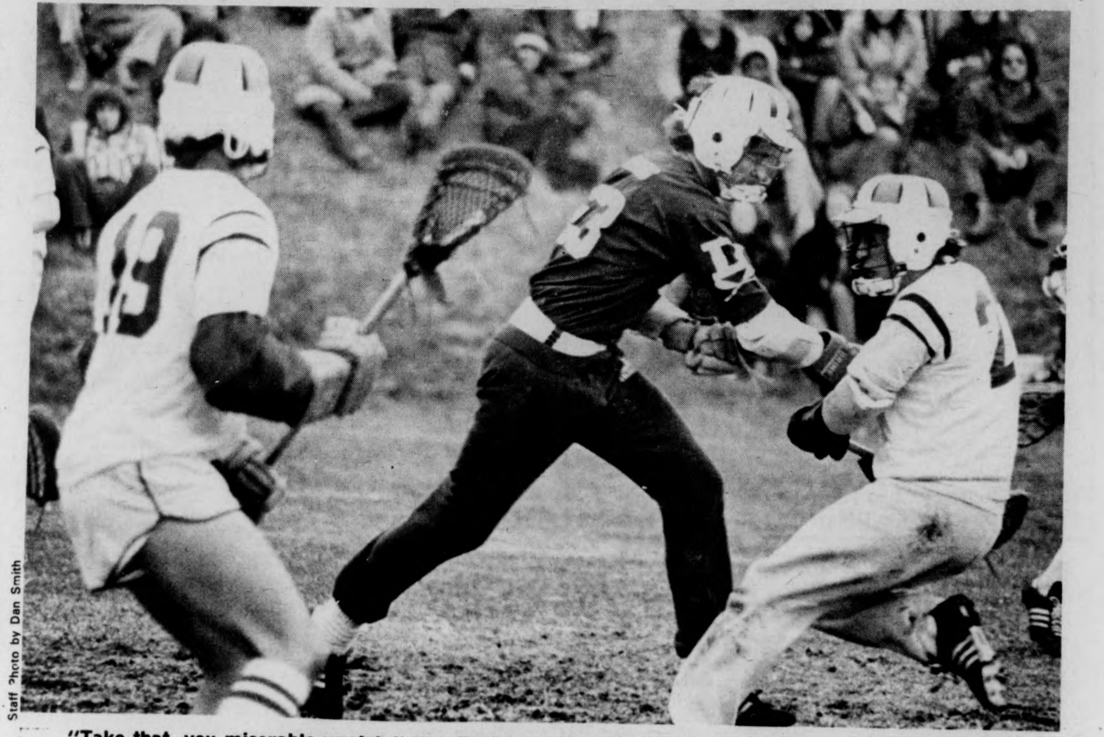
Nets Julius Erving and Al Skinner should enjoy more playoff success in 1975 than their alma mater did. In fact, the Nets get my vote for best team in the red, white and blue world of the ABA.

FOURTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT
"A Tribute to Cal Massey"
Lonnie Liston Smith and the Cosmic Echoes
also Jimmy Garrison — Bassist
Grachan Moncur — Trombonist
Zane Massey — Reeds
Friday, April 11, 1975
Student Union Ballroom 8:00 p.m.
Admission Free

Sponsored by:
Afro-Am Society
Harambee
Union of 3rd World Women
3rd World Caucus of Central Area
Commuter Assembly
Orchard Hill Music Committee
Program Council Executive Comm.
Malcolm X Room
Provost Office
New Africa House

Reverse of last year

Gorillas edge Cortland State, 11-10



Staff Photo by Dan Smith

"Take that, you miserable wretch," this Dartmouth defender seems to say to an unidentified UMass Gorrilla. Garber's Good Guys gave it to Cortland State, 11-10 yesterday, in a seat squirmer. The fans in the background, however, lacked the seats in which to squirm. (Next game — at home vs. UConn, April 14.)

By BEN CASWELL

In a game that was almost a carbon copy of last year's contest, the UMass lacrosse Gorillas eked out an 11-10 victory yesterday over Cortland.

The game was played on the neutral field of Cornell University in Ithaca, New York because the Cortland State field was covered with the snow of a recent storm that forced the cancellation of an earlier game of theirs.

The tables were somewhat turned around from last year through, as the Gorillas ended up on top in contrast to last year's 10-9 quintuple-overtime loss.

Cortland State started the scoring in yesterday's game after about three minutes of play. One minute later the Gorillas tied the score at 1-1 with Frank Garahan getting the score and Jeff Spooner, the assist.

The rest of the first half was give and take as the lead changed five times. At the end of the half the score was tied at 5-5.

Garahan, usually an attackman, played on the midfield unit with Bill Arnold and John Martin for all of the first half. Garahan was taking the place of the injured Bill Collins who is out with a shoulder separation. Kevin Patterson took Garahan's spot on attack with Bill O'Brien and Spooner.

In the first three minutes of the second half Cortland State jumped out to a 7-5 lead and it seemed that the Gorillas might not be able to regain the scoring momentum they would need to catch up.

But at the five minute mark of the third period things started to happen for the Gorillas. Or more appropriately, the Gorillas started to make things happen.

UMass scored three goals in a 50-second span of the five to six minute mark. All of the goals were classic fast break efforts that almost every player on the field for the Gorillas contributed to in some way. Kevin Patterson got two of the scores and Jeff Spooner got the other one.

The Gorillas now led 8-7. Cortland tied the score at 8-8, the Gorillas went ahead 9-8, and Cortland tied the game at 9-9 with one second left in the third period on an extra man play.

In the last period the Gorillas scored first to take a 10-9 lead. Cortland then tied the score at 10-10 and shades of a repeat of last year's overtime thriller were in the air.

But it was not to be. Jeff Spooner put the Gorillas ahead to stay 11-10 with five minutes left in the game.

"Our close defense of Bill Blaustein, Kurt Olson, Ken Michaud, and Rich Donovan did a hell of a job," said coach Dick Garber. "Bobby Durland (goalie) also did a great job in the second half as he cleared the baal well to start alot of fast breaks," Garber said.

Everyone played well, it was a great team effort, said Garber at the risk of sounding "corn-ball."

"Our attack, especially O'Brien, Spooner and Patterson all rode their men very well," said Garber.

At midfield the unit of Steve Pappas, Terry Keefe, and Vinnie LoBello really did their job well in the second half, said Garber. Another midfield unit of Gene Hardiman, Andy Scheffer and Mike Lettera also played well.

Kevin Patterson, who was doubtful starter because of a painful calf injury, led the Gorillas with four goals and one assist. Midfielder Vinnie LoBello also had a fine scoring day getting three goals and one assist.

SCOOP SHOTS -- Cortland was ranked 4th in the college division of the United State Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association (USILA) before yesterday's game. UMass was ranked 9th in the USILA university division.

Staff Photo by Paul Muzyka

TRACKMEN CRUSH CROSS

By RON ARENA

The UMass trackmen, as expected, introduced their spring team to the Holy Cross Crusaders yesterday in a rather unsympathetic manner as they clobbered the host squad, 95-59.

Freshman Joe Martens was the individual star of the day as his performance led him to a triple win. Martens topped the field in his specialty, the high jump, with a leap of 6'4", while also winning the 220 with a time of 22.5 seconds. He finished his day on yet another winning note, as he ran a leg on the victorious relay group.

Actually, Holy Cross stayed close to the Minutemen before the UMass specialties came up. After fifteen events, UMass led by only a 61-52 advantage. The Trakkers never looked back after that, though as they exploded to sweep the javelin and the two-mile. Todd Holt, a freshman who also plays varsity football, set a freshman record in the javelin with a toss of 204'11". Jim Shea and Bob O'Neil captured the next two javelin spots to complete the sweep.

John Scheer led the milers with a relatively slow winning time of 9:29. Obviously Scheer was anything but pressured by his Crusader opponents as teammates Phil Broughten and Andy Levy finished 2-3.

UMass didn't let up as they took the first two positions in the high jump, led of course by Martens.

The meet was then put out of reach as UMass took a 1-2 finish in the 440 hurdles to take a commanding 95-54 lead. As expected, Curt Stegerwald hit the tape ahead of the field.

Holy Cross, trying to avoid a complete humiliation saved a little face by defeating the visitors in the final event, the relay. Yet Holy Cross was so outclassed that the Minutemen were able to rest senior stars Randy Thomas and Bill Gillen. UMass showed their depth, however, as they captured both these events anyway.

Other individual winners were Teddy Power in the pole-vault, Power set the second UMass frosh record of the meet, as his 13'6" vault.

Tom Lonergan took the shot with a heave of 46'6". Peter Ryan won the triple jump (43'5"), Devin Croft, the mile (4:22), and Pete Famulari, the high hurdles, (15.2).

Remarked assistant coach Mike Muska on the runaway, "We knew we were going to kill them. The meet went just as we thought it would."

The win was merely a tuneup for the next meet, Saturday, versus Dartmouth and Colgate. Although UMass won the New Englands last year, the local favorite is Dartmouth.

A rested Gillen and Thomas can only be to the UMass advantage.

Mike Berger

Israeli Sports

By MIKE BERGER

"Apparently the intense hatred between the Jews and the Arabs is continued in the sporting world," said Beynosh Melamed at a Hillel sponsored brunch Sunday, April 6. The present UMass swim coach and former swim coach for the 1972 Israel Olympic team added, "If an Arab athletic team knew they would be competing against an Israelis team, they would withdraw from the game rather than play the Jews. Maybe it's a good thing. For if they could, they would kill us then and there."

In honor of Israel's 27th Independence Day (April 16), Melamed formerly spoke of the organization of physical education and professional sport in Israel.

There is no professional sports there as Americans know it. It is all amateur, and in order to survive financially, sports teams must be affiliated with a political party. Some of these parties include workers partys such as HaPoel, Macabbi, or Elitzur with different degrees of orthrodox, conservative, and liberal viewpoints.

As for the athletes themselves, they are not paid salaries. However, once they establish themselves as good athletes in their sports, they receive prestige in the form of a high paying job, or money under the table. Jumping from club to club is almost impossible.

The Israeli Olympic team is chosen by the political parties themselves. Two weeks before the Olympics are to begin, representatives of HaPoel, Macabbi, and other political parties "fight among themselves as to how many of each party should be represented." An even bigger hassle, according to Melamed, is the selection of the coach. He stresses that the tension here is not between the athletes in the parties but instead the parties themselves.

The major difference between American and Israeli physical educational programs is that the U.S. stress skills that individuals can develop themselves after high school graduation. In Israel, the emphasis is on the present physical condition of each person. "In America," Malemed says, they teach Ping Pong, Bowling, Tennis, etc. But in Isreal, the teachers stresses that it's better to run 2 miles than to bowl. It's not to say that bowling is looked down upon. But again, the Israeli emphasis is on present conditioning."

As to what sports are the big spectator draws, the coach responded that basketball, volleyball, and speedball are the three more popular team activities. "But the most popular and perhaps, the most violent is soccer. And although Israel is not known to produce the world's best soccer teams, the quality of the team is recognized by the world because of the "intense competitive spirit, the Israeli team displays."

---

inside:

P.D.Q. goes for two — p. 5

and a note from a concerned Parent

UMass Theatre

Cultural role-playing

by Julie Beth Beckett

Suppose one were to take a quick look back over the plays produced so far in the University Theater's 1974-75 season. There was An Apology for Larry Parks, written by a man about another man, directed by a man, with a cast of (surprise) mostly men. There was As You Like It, written by a man, directed by a man, with a cast of four women and three times as many men. There was After The Fall, written by a man about another man, (rumor has it that the protagonist, in this case, is actually the playwright in thin disguise, or vice versa), with a cast of more men than women, and directed by (things start to look brighter here) a woman. And finally, there was The Children's Hour, written by a woman about women, with a cast of one man and ten women (never mind that half of them are playing school girls under fourteen years of age), and directed by a man. All of which leads us, albeit hesitantly since four plays is in no way a solid basis for assumption, to some not so surprising conclusions; namely, mostly men write plays, they write mostly about other men, mostly men direct plays, and usually they direct other men.

Moreover, taking a quick glance at what happens to the females in these plays, four get married, two commit suicide, one is a vicious and destructive fifteen-year-old, and one is left sans job, sans school, sans fiance and sans best friend, with nothing to do except dust the books once a week and take a bath at five o'clock every day. Sad to say, that's show biz, and the University Theater is the rule rather than the exception.

There are presently around one hundred and twenty-five undergraduate majors in the Theater Department, and although the sexes are pretty evenly represented, there is a slightly higher percentage of women. There are twelve full time faculty members, of which only three are women; one of these women teaches stage movement, one is the resident costume designer, and the other is on sabbatical. Which means, essentially, that all the upper level acting classes are taught by men, all the history and criticism classes are taught by men, and all of the scenic design and lighting courses are taught by men. Costuming courses, on the other hand, are taught entirely by women, and the female graduate students have a foothold here. They teach lower level acting and design courses, and direct the one production required of them to receive their degree. Not so incredible, considering that theater is and always has been a male-dominated art.

Take Shakespeare, for example, who wrote terrific parts for women, except that he wrote them for men. Restoration pieces were written at a time when the only women in theater were considered tramps. (In fact, everybody in the theater was considered a tramp). Take most any modern play, and you will find that half the major characters and most of the minor characters are men. There are few women of any consequence in Arthur Miller; they either precipitate problems and-or fail to resolve them. Tennessee Williams wrote some fine roles for women, and then proceeded to surround them with men. With the exception of a handful of Europeans (Shaw, Strindberg, Ibsen, Chekov, Lorca), drama, like the lifestyles it proposes to represent, has been notoriously unkind.

Below the Salt photo by Ren DiSalvo

Hiding behind the skirts of traditon

Part of the problem, of course, is history, in that conflict is the essence of drama, and the big conflicts have been left for men to deal with for many years. Says one professor, "It is not so much a question of chauvinism as it is or reality — women, for the most part, were simply not visible." The other part of the problem is that, with the notable exception of Miller, many male playwrights are homosexuals, making their views of women just the slightest bit slanted. The result is that most men simply don't write good women.

But, but, Lillian Hellman wrote plays, and Susan Glaspell wrote plays, and Lorraine Hansberry wrote plays and Claire Boothe Luce wrote plays (well one, anyhow), and Gertrude Stein wrote plays and Doris Lessing wrote a play. Even some men wrote plays with lots of women's roles. (Lorca springs immediately to mind, and I know there must be others). Granted, one can only handle so many productions of The House of Bernarda Alba per year, but what about all those other hidden manuscripts? You know, the ones written by women and about women? Or maybe just written by women? Or maybe just about women? (Sure, I'll take cake without ice cream. I'll even take ice cream without cake. At this point, anything would be better than an empty plate).

Here at the University, little effort is made to track down these scripts. There are plenty of talented women running around, and the competition for the few female roles is fierce. The Children's Hour saw no less than eighty-five women audition. This semester it's been the same story — twice as many women auditioned for plays with twice as many male roles. Short of pulling a Sarah Bernhardt, there wasn't much that any of us could do.

Partial explanation of the over-abundance of men's productions about men rests with the fact that there are no women directors in the department. This is not to say that only women can direct women (men can and do very successfully); it's just that there would be more of a natural affinity. "Let's face it," quipped one non-major, "nobody here can direct Doris Lessing." This is assuming that Lessing's play (Play with a Tiger) is proposed, and passed by the Production Board, a group of three men and one woman who work in conjunction with the chairman of the department in determining the make-up (hence, flavor) of the season. (I wonder what one would call this season — Early Male Awareness? Abstract Male Expressionism? Classical Male Realism?)

Harry Mahnken, chairman of the Production Board, insists that the number of female roles is indeed considered. "But if everyone proposes plays with ninety-five percent male casts, what can we do?" The answer to that one is "not much", and plenty of women are frustrated and itchy and not at all pleased about the current state of affairs. When asked what women's place in the theater here, and in general, was, undergraduate answers ranged from the classic "It sucks!" to "How can I talk about women's place in the theater when we don't have one?" to "When you're worried about being screwed as an undergraduate, how can you worry about being screwed as a woman?" Many women replied that they simply hadn't ever thought about it, but certainly a vague and amorphous pressure existed, and now that I mentioned it....

You see, it's like this. Acting involves vulnerability, which is, well, damned hard, especially when one has spent years building up intricate systems of protection. It's a neat trick to strip the layers away, and a neater trick to do it on cue. Who needs the added tension of always having a male watch the process? (Which is the case nine times out of ten here, with men teaching all but one of the acting classes).

continued on page five

BELOW the SALT
Volume Three, Issue Ten "busy being born" 10 April 1975

Complaints: Below and Beneath

I am resubmitting this letter, originally sent March 18. Is it your policy to ignore criticism of your staff?

I hope not and further hope that this letter will be published in the Collegian and NOT in the BELOW THE SALT, since I consider that paper to be beneath contempt.

An Open letter to Jeffrey Polman:

In regard to your review of Russ Meyer's Supervixens—reviewed without having been seen. I feel that the entire review was in poor taste and at best irresponsible. Did you bother to research the real reason why Meyer had brought the film to Amherst? Did you bother to read the press material sent to the Collegian two weeks in advance on the film and the program surrounding it? Did you bother to think about the damage you, as a representative of the media and as an (unfortunately) powerful influence on UMass' viewing habits?

Meyer was in Amherst at the invitation of the Amherst Film Cooperative to premier a new film and to create a dialogue about his films and the genre (pornography) within which he works. We attempted, by having a small retrospective and a panel discussion to make the two day premiere an entertaining as well as educational event with more responsiblity attached to it than the usual "push 'em in the hall and push 'em out" film showing so typical of UMass.

While I have to admit that the premiere film itself was disappointing (which is the gamble taken in this type of thing), I resent a potentially damaging write-up such as yours that seemed to have selfish ego-tripping as its only motivation. What would have been the result if the film had really been good? And where do you feel you get the prescience to judge when you yourself have done nothing to uplift film programming at UMass? Have you, in the past year, done any work to improve the viewing habits of your public beside your cheap shots at films on the back page of Below the Salt? I resent your false importance. The members and friends of the Amherst Film Co-op expend much energy trying to keep the program responsible and serving the film community in this Valley in a unique way.

In the past, no one at the Collegian has taken the trouble to learn about the Film Co-op or its programs or functions despite its wide-spread acceptance on the other college campuses. Yet such other film programs on campus that don't need the publicity (or don't deserve it by nature of their poor taste) get endless treatment. Is it that you and your colleagues are deaf, dumb, and blind, or are you simply ignorant? I sincerely hope that in the future you and your editors will take more than a quick and uncaring glance at what is going on around you in film. To hold you up to your audience for the poor reviewer that you are I repeat a line from your review of Belle de Jour, shown recently by the Co-op "...erotic, but not as racy as if it were made today." I suppose you would have juiced it up with a little fellatio and sodomy?

To punctuate your idiocy, I'd like to turn your own words back on themselves, borrowing a phrase from the Supervixens review: "Russ Meyer...is supposedly here in Amherst to reach the college audience...If this is the case, I'm ashamed to admit I go to college." I'm ashamed you go to college too, Jeff.

—John D. Morrison
Coordinator

Mr. Morrison:

To begin with, I have no grudge against Amherst Film Co-op. I think your work on the whole in promoting film in the Pioneer Valley has been excellent: but as a film critic I am responsible for expressing my opinion about particular films which are showing in the area, and the reliability or importance of the group or organization exhibiting the film is secondary to me.

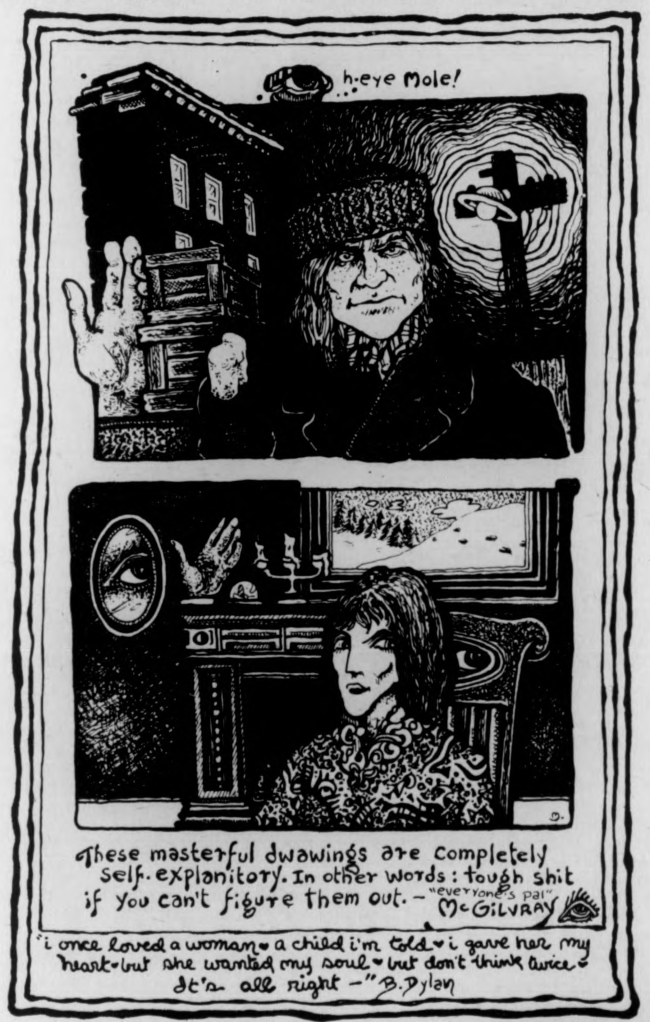
I wholeheartedly agree that my review on Supervixens was in poor taste. It was intended to warn the audience that the film itself might be in poor taste: in no way was I trying to sabotage the viewing habits of the 5-College Area. I did read the press material concerning the film (which, incidentally, was where I read that Meyer was trying to reach the college audience) and thought it in poor taste to run the enclosed photo which depicted a half-naked woman smashing a car windshield with a sledge-hammer. I have seen Vixen, Beyond the Valley of the Dolls, and have read many incriminating articles on Mr. Myer and felt that I was in a good position to predict another foolish movie from him. My "explicit" commentary on Supervixens, therefore, was my personal opinion on the man and his work.

Now, to discuss my "powerful influence" on U Mass' film minds, I should explain the thinking behind the "Weekend" capsule reviews. I am interested in 1) briefing the U Mass audience on the area films, 2) writing the reviews in such a way as to keep them interesting, to keep people reading the film page, and 3) to incorporate my personal beliefs into the reviews.

What I am most interested in, though, in my Below the Salt writing, is keeping my personal beliefs consistent. I am viciously against films with racist or sexist attitudes inherent. and Supervixens, with the help of an obnoxious preview, as well as my previous experience with Russ Meyer, drove me to write what I did. The fact that Mr. Meyer was here in person (and subsequently referred to me as "a very bad lay" at the press conference) did not in the least move me to change my opinion. Such an act would have been two-faced.

In conclusion, you who call me irresponsible should re-read your Co-op's very own policy, printed at the bottom of every one of your posters: "It's (the Co-op's) principal purpose is to show films of artistic and historical importance." If I caused you and your group embarrassment in front of Mr. Meyer I apologize, but I am not about to forfeit my beliefs because a man I happen to dislike is being given the spotlight for reasons I find contradictory.

Sincerely,
—Jeffrey Polman



h-eye Mole!
These masterful dwawings are completely self-explanitory. In other words: tough shit if you can't figure them out. — "everyone's pal" McGilvray
"i once loved a woman • a child i'm told • i gave her my heart • but she wanted my soul • but don't think twice • it's all right —" B. Dylan

Below the Salt 10 April 1975
Volume 3, Issue 10

WEEKLY SOCIAL

Julie Beth Beckett
John D. Morrison
Daniel Finneran
Bob Lampron
David Santos
Ross Nerenberg
David Miller
Kevin Pelletier
Ken Blanchard
Craig Roche
Kit Browne
Pepper
Joe Quinn
Diane Unger

Editor & Impression
Tyla L. Michelove

Asst. Ed. & Repression
Andrew B. MacKenzie

Asst. Ed., Music & Digression
Michael C. Kostek II

Expression
Gina Starodoj

Ingestion
Lori Leiderman

Token Literate
Ed Smith

Film & Rebuttal
Jeffrey Polman

Sex and Violence
Kris Jackson
Don McGilvray

Theatre
Marla Richmond

Dance
Sue Doskocil

Below the Salt is a weekly fine art—real world magazine of the UMass Daily Collegian, student newspaper, Amherst, Mass.

Below the Salt has always been the kind of magazine that would print peculiar work. We pledge to uphold this tradition, but can't promise everybody's peculiar work will fit. Yours must be typed, double-spaced, at sixty spaces to the line. The deadline for each Thursday's edition is noon the previous Tuesday; but you can write to us or call 545-3500 anytime.

"Professional Hair Styling"

HAIR PORT
HAIR PORT INC.

$1 OFF OUR SERVICES

(With This Coupon)

18 Bridge St.
Northampton
584-9683

Good April 1 thru 31

½ PRICE
Europe and California Charters

contact:
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
3rd Level
Campus Center
545-0500

SOPHOMORES

If Your Major Is:

Computer Technology
Aerospace Engineering
Civil Engineering
Electrical Engineering
General Engineering
Industrial Engineering
Mechanical Engineering
Mathematics or Physics

You may be eligible for a two-year scholarship and a commission in the Air Force — Call 5-2437 or stop by Rm. 205, Dickinson Hall.

Raconteur: a monthly anthology of the arts

by Bill Parent

One of the saddest things to happen in the seventies has been the decline of the arts in America. Television, political attention and self concern has left in the rubble of the American Dream a great cultural gap crying for the artist, the writer the opet laureate to emerge from the void of the sixties.

However, two men, Robert Diaz and Robert Neville are attempting to start a publication solely for the purpose of resurrecting "Poetry and Tales" for the public in their new magazine Raconteur, French for the story teller.

Raconteur is a literary magazine which will be on newsstands everywhere soon, if not already, beside Oui, Viva and Popular Mechanics. However, Raconteur is an attempt to publish something for everyone in the realm of poetry and short story.

Diaz, the editor, has long been fascinated by the written word, the way one can look at the world "through the eyes of the story teller." He was once a research writer at Cornell and Albany State in New York; His love of prose and poetry and the lack of the same on newsstands led him into the venture of publishing a monthly anthology of the arts. Thus came Raconteur, billed as a "new dawning of reading entertainment", selling for seventy-five cents in the University Store.

The magazine comes out of Schenectady, N.Y. (someone was saying something about a cultural gap?) and it is being distributed through upstate New York and Western Mass.

The preface gives interpretation of the first issue:

"The Raconteur has a straightforward goal. We wish to provide reading entertainment with appeal to all. To this end we solicit skilled story tellers who, with individual cant, will illuminate the human condition: and the pleasure and spark of the written word."

The main weakness of the publication, though, is also what the editors consider to be its major strength, namely the attempt to appeal to every segment of the reading audience. Works range from a sappy vintage Seventeen magazine story about falling in love with the new teacher, ending with a first kiss and marriage proposal to an excellent piece of short philosophical fiction about an old man of the future, looking back at the sixties when he was young.

Below the Salt photo by Dan Smith

Neville and Diaz: Scouting the Competition

The poetry falls into the same problem. "Aging Woman" by Ruth Peterson is by far the best piece of poetry in the book, while most of the others suffer from e.e.cummings mediocrity. Finally, there is a children's section with a few bedtime stories for the young'uns.

A generous intermingling of graphics varies the layout from fine to down-right awful from page to page; there is often an overdoing of nice ideas which has a tendency to take way from the stories.

In general Raconteur suffers from a lack of consistency, a problem which will have to wait for the magazine to mature as it finds its own direction.

All in all, openess for new, diverse material is enough to keep this publication around the coffee table for a while.

There is one final, interesting statement on the back cover of the magazine: a picture, unidentified, of the house where Kurt Vonnegut rented a room a long time ago and wrote Player Piano.... it's a beginning.

we gobble like starving men buried in food when really we are porkers oozing in mud what is this whose drum-skinned form beats angles of pain stare into his eyes whose oily tears are really maggots
this child is dying

but hurry through the yard to the hill run we run and the pant of blood pushes us up squealing confusion encases us as we are lopped off the cliff into the sea.

—Christopher Leighton

here where never answers

Search—Lexis

Stretched across the sky

the flaired form flies downward reaching into eternity

like a feather.

The little man below with wide smile and expectant arms spread out to receive her beckons to her

as she glides on by above his head.

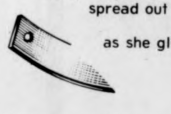
She is gone now.
He is still smiling.

—Orion



Analysis

there are ashes on your forehead holy communion from a sacred cigarette fumbling through butts for redemption
you question philosophers
Rousseau died so left you widow to his half truths and you never forgave him mutter what will i do primal scream or something freudian all manifestations of a desire to be touched seeping madness to your life through the cracks in your morning coffee begging recognition for glycerine tears from anyone passing your door duped by your forever innocence or a line from a book read you by some unsuspecting lover before you tired of offerings or lacks
the prognosis is deadly there is little hope for ones like you the future bleak and second-hand simply.....
.....you're normal

—Tyla

abc RECORDS
an ACE album
JIMMY BUFFETT AIA
abc RECORDS
DUNHILL

on Sale Now

40%
Off $6.98 list
$4.19

ONE WEEK
ONLY!

257 TRIANGLE ST.,
AMHERST

Store Hours:
M-W, 10-6
T-F, 10-9
S, 10-6

discount records!
the music people

books

CELEBRATE

Celebration by Harvey Swados, $8.95, 348 pp., Simon & Schuster. Reviewed by Ed Smith.

Novels about very old people are not common. Novels about very old people written in the first person even less so. There is a good reason for this situation. It is a very difficult task.

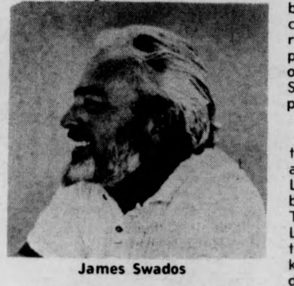
First one must contend with the physical limitations of a character who is in his or her eighties or nineties. The person may sleep a lot, usually stays quite close to home and may not have a totally reliable memory. Second, action must be confined to mental gymnastics and the power of conversation. Violence and travel, two common devices for producing drama, are not viable. However, if one can turn these limitations into advantages, there is the possibility of a good novel. Harvey Swados, in Celebration, has done it magnificently.

The story is of an aging radical, a few months short of his ninetieth birthday, who finds himself engaged in a pitched psychological battle with his secretary, his wife, a group of young radicals, numerous friends and former students, but most of all his own past.

Sam Lumen was a radical in the cause of children's rights all his life. He fought for them as a journalist, as an educator, and as an independent spokesperson when no conventional avenues seemed effective. Now, with his life nearly over, the government wants to dedicate a children's center in Washington to him. Lumen is honored, but torn because at the same time he is approached by a group called the Children of Liberty who ask him to refuse the honor and lend his support to their cause, a rectification of American history on the eve of the bicentennial.

Lumen is confused by these conflicts that he thought were gone along with the years. He is troubled constantly by dreams of his past. He begins to mistrust all those who surround him. He records all these impressions dutifully in a diary which is the text of the novel.

The first person, diary form of Celebration is effective in its verisimilitude. Swados uses touches like having Lumen refer to everyone by the first initial of their first name. Some days Lumen writes that he is just too tired to write, other days he goes on for twenty pages. Through the diary form, Swados can reveal the essential character, a man consumed by ninety years of living, badgered by guilt and the inability to say "screw it" to what he sees as moral obligations.



James Swados

Lumen though is not a totally reliable narrator. He misses days at a time in his record and at other times is not sure if he's forgotten something or if people are just out to confuse him. This may confuse the reader as well, but in the end it is what makes him a totally believable creation.

It is through the acceptance and belief in Lumen that the reader comes to a belief in his story. Many books, science fiction being the greatest offender, work on the theory that if the events are fascinating enough, the book can be populated with plastic characters. It does not work. The reader cannot identify and empathize with situations the way he or she can with a character. Swados' last novel is certainly proof of that.

Dreams are used extensively in this novel. Their main function appears to be the reconstruction of Lumen's past. It is here that the book seems to hesitate a bit. Through the dreams we see Lumen's guilt about his past, but they are hard to judge without knowing more about what actually did happen. The reader must try to reconstruct fact from fantasy.

Where the dreams are effective is in the area of Lumen's guilt. The topic reoccurs throughout the book as Lumen explains that no matter how virtuous a life one might try to lead, the incidents that we remember are those that shame us. He writes: "So we go to our deaths, streaked with guilt, as we come into the world, smeared with blood."

The forgetfulness of Sam Lumen, his sometimes cryptic musings over his past and his possible paranoic delusions about the "help" he is getting from friends all make this novel, if not crystal clear, a moving piece of art. It is a celebration of life and all its complexities, the good things and especially the experiences which bring us to an understanding of ourselves.

In the course of this novel Swados achieves something remarkable. He manages to totally eradicate his presence from the book. By the end of the novel, one attributes lack of information, and confusion to Lumen's own personality. Not only does the reader accept the character, but, as well, the character's authorship. What we learn in the book is taught by Sam not Swados.

Brain Food

Cocaine:
Its History, Uses and Effects
by Richard Ashley
$7.95 -206 pp.
St. Martin's Press
Reviewed by Diane Ungar

Richard Ashley is a scholar in love. He expresses his love's virtues as qualities worthy of everyone's affection and respect. And he simplifies his love's most stringent weaknesses to almost naught, as only a lover can do.

His love is cocaine.

"Both researchers and users agree that cocaine produces euphoria, sexual stimulation, increased energy and reduces fatigue. Users also insist it increases mental lucidity and muscular strength, but most researchers believe that users simply "feel" this way rather than actually have these attributes. Those researchers who have used cocaine agree with the users."

Factual evidence floods every page, though curiously less on controversial topics (such as the frequency of users experiencing "bad" effects). Regarding the cultural and legal backgrounds of cocaine, however, his facts do paint illustrative pictures.

Cocaine was first used in its basic form, the coca leaf, by the Incas of Peru. They engaged heartily in coca-chewing, for there is a food scarcity in the Andes and without coca, the average Indian would have lacked sufficient energy to work. They credited the gods for their coca, and worshipped them for this gift of strength and virility.

It was in the 1900's when Karl Koller, a German physician, discovered cocaine as an effective local anesthetic. It was also in the early 1900's that the Harrison Act made the sale of cocaine illegal in the U.S., except by prescription.

Ashley blamed the media's exaggeration of cocaine's bad effects for its removal from the common market. Besides sensationalizing its flaws, he claimed the media presented biased correlation by attributing supposed laziness, stupidity and poorness of the "savages" of Peru and the blacks and poor whites of America to their use of cocaine.

His other interpretation of cocaine's removal involves the values of the American physician.

"It is much more complex, and the first thing to understand is that doctors love drugs and, like most lovers, they are jealous and protective of their love."

Although he promised in his prologue not to linger on the evils of the drug laws, Ashley lingers. With the logic of a "street scholar" he points out the dangers of black market cocaine, adulterated with the less expensive amphetamines.

"Users have on more than one occasion charged a dealer with cheating them after he sold them high-quality cocaine. They didn't experience the kick they had learned to identify as the kick of cocaine."

The "kick" of amphetamine he argues, has no doubt killed users otherwise believed dead of a cocaine overdose.

Certainly Cocaine offers an intelligent view of drug reform, a fascinating picture of an ancient medicinal plant, and an informal summary of Helpful Hints for the Everyday Coke User. And yet, it leaves one with clutching desire for further clarification of ambiguities.

Cocaine is valuable if properly used. Ashley shows us that. But after the stimulation where do we go? Ashley himself answered this in a pointedly brief chapter on toxic reactions:

"Though toxic reactions are rare (no statistics this time for support), the progression is from excessive stimulation to depression and to death..."

For all Ashley's enthusiastic research, I heard the pathetic strains of Dave Van Ronk's "Cocaine Blues" when I finished this book.

"They say it's for horses,
not for men.
And I know it'll kill me —
just don't know when."

D.V.P. presents MLK week

TONIGHT

Gospel Night

Ronnie Ingram Singers
Dorothy Love Coates

Campus Center Auditorium

8:00 p.m.

©1975. Kalso Systemet, Inc

Style 170

This is the Earth® shoe.
Anne Kalsø invented it.
Everyone is trying to imitate it. But just because a shoe looks like the Earth® brand shoe doesn't mean it works like the Earth® shoe.

KALSØ® earth shoe®

Available at:
Amherst, Mass.: 264 No. Pleasant St.
Cambridge, Mass.: 14 Story St.

Continued from page one

Early Male Awareness?

Somebody put it this way, "As a general rule, men threaten me and I don't trust them. I feel threatened by all acting situations and trust very few people, except sometimes myself, when I'm in them. So where does that leave me? It would be so nice not to have to fear quite so much the battle which will surely ensue with the director afterwards, and concentrate completely on the one already raging within myself."

Surprisingly, the area where the most change is occurring is within the technical disciplines. Due, in part, to a sudden awareness that physical strength does not necessarily equal competence backstage, more and more women are being employed in what has traditionally been a male trade. This is true at least at the University where, not only is the costume shop, as expected, run by women, but there are three women graduate students and a healthy number of undergraduates concentrating in scenic design and lighting. The Bowker Auditorium backstage crew is more than three-fifths female, with no catastrophic results, and nobody screaming about broken fingernails or anybody's ineptness at climbing scaffolding or running dimmer boards or flying scenery.

The women performing these tasks are the first to admit that it took, initially, a certain re-adjustment of head. "I was starting from the premise that I didn't have an aptitude for it, when in reality I did", says one member of the Bowker crew. "It's like a vogue pattern. It's common sense. Now, I'm constantly trying to push myself to see just how far the stereo-type goes, by doing things that most people think women can't do." As to the various road companies' reactions to an all woman crew, they are, well, surprised, to say the least. "But once we get working, it's readily accepted," said another crew member.

Doug Gruber is the man behind the nonsexist Bowker hiring practice, and, although he can offer no rational explanation for this sudden influx, he is decidedly pleased with the women who work for him. "I have no qualms at all about hiring women. Aside from some initial hesitancy about working in what has always been a male field, there have been no problems. Physical strength, for the most part, just isn't a consideration." One is, of course, forced to speculate about the market for female techies out in that horrendous place referred to as "the real world." Instinct tells me that the picture may not be quite so promising.

Lest there be a price on my head by nightfall, let me hasten to add that I am neither an ardent feminist, nor out to see the heads of the male-chauvinist-pig-oppressors roll. I am only, quite frankly, miffed and vaguely disturbed. In an art which deals so intimately with self-expression and discovery, it seems ironic that women are not afforded equal opportunities for growth. The roots of the problem lie deep, and, as always, awareness is half the battle. There are no easy solutions, nor any immediate answers; there is only the possibility of slow and steady change, and the thin, far-off promise of women's eventual emergence as sensitive and exceptional human beings in the theater.

One of these fine days, the cast of characters may indeed read "her husband, her daughter, her mother, her sister, her lover and her sister-in-law." As one who patiently holds her breath in anticipation of the time when this is common practice, I have but one thing to say to Arthur Miller, Samuel Beckett, Edward Albee, Terrance McNally, etc., etc. ad nauseum, and this is this: may you live that long.

continued from last issue

Bach to the roots

As the more sober among you may recall, last week's issue contained phase one of the life and musical crimes...uh, times, of P.D.Q. Bach's eminent biographer and excavator, Peter Schickele. The response was overwhelming: Friday came, and everybody went home. So, without any undue ado, we continue with P.D.Q. (God, why am I wasting my time on these hack introductions when I could be making a fortune in limericks or something?). —Ed.

The Hardart — now, that's an example of a beautiful idea that was not my own, I mean, that was the geneses of the whole thing. Because Horn and Hardart is a restaurant chain. The only trouble with that title is that a lot of people haven't heard of the restaurant. Somebody just came up to me at Julliard once and said that somebody ought to write a concerto for horn and hardart. The Horn and Hardart is the old automat, where you put the nickel in and get a cup of coffee. And I still regard that as one of the great ideas of Western man, and it was soon after that, that somebody came to me and my friends, saying, "Look, we need a half a concert. This pianist is doing a concert, and he only has half a program, and we need to fill up the program with something. You guys wanna do something?" And so, and that was how the whole thing started at Julliard. And we built this incredible instrument, the Hardart — which, unfortunately, some of the notes looked better than they sounded. But still, it was a pretty amazing instrument. (Replying to MB) Yeah, the calliope is beautiful, too. Well, that's Bill's work — Bill Walters, it's built around an electric organ. But, I mean, all the stuff on it, he put on. It really is a masterpiece.

MB: Where did you find out that a hose makes a noise like that (referring to the Lasso D'amore)?

PS: That was a little instrument which was being sold as a novelty instrument in Greenwich Village about four years ago or something, called the Freeka. And, I'm sorry, it was being sold as that. And then, what happened is, we started using it, and then they stopped making it. And so we had to find it, and we were desperate there, for a while, and then we found this, uh, tubing which is used for, uh, swimming pool vacuum cleaners, right, uh, cleaners. And I'm sure that's what the Freeka was; I'm sure that the instrument was started by some guy fooling around with industrial tubing, and discovered that it did that. And then, unfortunately, the only draggy part of it is, is that this tubing that we can get now, that we have an inexhaustable supply of, as long as people clean swimming pools, is bigger, and we had to transpose the key of the piece; we couldn't get the same notes. But (replying to MB) No, it has to be corrugated, that seems to be important to it, a straight hose won't get it.

DU: (asks what instruments PS plays.)

The Double Reed
Slide Music Stand

PS: I, you know, play piano like a composer, and I used to play bassoon. As a matter of fact, last Christmas I discovered a P.D.Q. Bach bassoon concerto; I got it out after 17 years, and started playing it again.

BH: (Asks about a concerto for dog which was on television, some confusion about where it was seen.)

PS: Oh, yeah — in New York you saw this. Oh yeah, right, yeah, there was a cantata, a Canine Cantata called "Wachet Arf". (More garbled discussion of "Wachet Arf.") Well, as a matter of fact, I'm working on a book right now. (Laughing) Don't hold your breath, it won't be out till a year from now, at the best. (MB asks if posters are available, showing the examples of P.D.Q. Bach's notation which are used in the slide lecture — the best-known being a staff so loaded with notes that it collapses.) Yeah, everybody asks me that. There isn't — I have been trying to convince my partner to make a poster of that, 'cause everybody wants it. It'll be in the book, they'll all be in the book. The book is gonna be like a coffee-table type book, it'll have a lot of pictures in it. And they'll be in there.

MB: When I walked out of the Town Hall, at the exit, there was a bouquet, upside down, of dead-looking plastic roses. Was that yours?

PS: Oh, yeah, we decorated the hall, yeah.

MB: 'Cause it was like, "he won't leave you alone." In the morning my side still hurt.

PS: (Laughing) Well, no, in New York, it's become a sort of a tradition to try to have something aside from the concert. At Philharmonic Hall — a couple of years ago, we had a P.D.Q. Bach museum, with things on display, or manuscripts, or whatever. And we've had various things. It's a, it's a little — and we usually...

(tape ends, is quickly flipped over)

...and several butcher's aprons. The year we did it at Lincoln Center, we had a string quartet in the men's room, playing live Muzak. And we had a flutist in the ladies room once, till the ladies' room attendant kicked her out. But, as I say, that's sort of a specialty thing for New York, we don't do that on the road.

DM: Thank you.

PS: You're welcome!

McQueen — McGraw

THE GETAWAY

Thursday 7 & 9:30
April 10 Mahar

Deerfield Drive-In
Route 5 & 10
So. Deerfield, Mass.

Russ Meyer's
Cherry, Harry & Raquel
COLOR by DeLuxe contemplate the possibilities
X

ALSO Russ Meyer's
Finders Keepers Lovers Weepers
an EVE PRODUCTION in EASTMANCOLOR

Showtime 7:45
Police Officer
Will Check I.D.
Under 18 Not Admitted

Uncle Ed's Breakfast
Rte. 9 Hadley Center
Next to the Post Office
Breakfast Specials .99
OPEN
Mon.-Fri. 6 a.m.-2 p.m.
Sat. 6 a.m.-1 p.m.
Sun. 7 a.m.-1 p.m.

STABLES RESTAURANT
Rte. 9 Hadley
Opposite Mt. Farms Mall
Breakfast Specials 99¢
Luncheon Specials from 99¢
Dinner Specials from $2.99
OPEN 24 HOURS

NORTHERN GRILL
No. Pleasant St. (at lights)
No. Amherst
BREAKFAST SPECIALS 99c
OPEN
Mon.-Fri. 6 a.m.-4 p.m.
Sat. 6 a.m.-1 p.m.
Sun. 7 a.m.-1 p.m.

Strawbs reappear

by David Santos

Ghosts
Strawbs
A&M Records
Time: 41:07

Free Spirit
Hudson — Ford
A&M Records
Time: 40:29

The Strawbs' long and illustrious career now spans eight albums with the addition of their latest, Ghosts. Ghosts can be best described as a mild disappointment, for it lacks the complete intensity and strength of last year's Hero & Heroine or an earlier Strawbs masterpiece, Grave New World. (I personally believe that the Strawbs could never make another album on the level of Hero & Heroine; it is just too perfect in music and words.) Ghosts is more of a successor for Bursting At The Seams. Both are not themantic pieces like Hero or New World, and both have high points and low points.

Two major compositions dominate Ghosts. Musically, they are typical Strawbs workouts, alternating delicate with overpowering moods. However, lyrically they differ from past offerings. This is particularly true of "The Life Auction", which can be termed blasphemous of the human race. "Auction" is made up of two parts: one deals with Dave Cousins' impression of greed displayed at the auction of a woman's estate and the other, a description of a weedy, bleak area of London. Cousins paints a strinkingly ugly picture: "crippled trees in leg irons — Wearily haul themselves — Through another diluted-acid day." Couple that with appropriate music (distorted vocals and eerie piano chords which gives away to an amazing guitar—mellotron fusion), and you have a highly emotional, overpowering composition. Definitely as impressive as other Strawbs songs of this nature. ("New World", "Down By The Sea", "Lay Down" and "Lay A Little Light On Me").

The title cut nearly equals the emotions displayed in "Auction". Again, the lyrics tread new ground — being inspired by a rather bad dream on the road in Indianapolis. The music equals the images of the lyrics — a pleasant harpsichord-acoustic opening that leads into more of Cousins' emotion wrought vocals: "Tell me children are you sleeping — Are you innocent like me — May you never cross the line — I hope your dreams are not like mine."

STRAWBS
Ghosts

A mild disappointment, but still one of rock's premiere attractions.

The remainder of Ghosts is for the most part made up of the type of material we've come to know and love over the past years. "Starshine-April Wine" is the best of the batch, and surprisingly is written by bassist Chas Cronk. My surprise is not that Cronk wrote a good song, but lies in the fact the "Starshine" uncannily leads one to believe that Dave Cousins actually wrote it. It suits him so perfectly, especially the lyrics. Two shorter, standard Strawbs compositions round out the good material. "Lemon Pie" is a very catchy number and could serve as a great single. "You & I (When We Were Young)" is one of Cousins' better ballads.

The other three offerings left, "Grace Darling," "Where Do You Go (When You Need A Hole To Crawl In)" and "Don't Try To Change Me", simply fall short of the mark. "Grace Darling" in particular is frustrating in that it's spoiled by overproduction. It could have been one of the best tunes Dave Cousins ever wrote. "Where Do You Go" is embarrassing, sounding like (ugh) Cat Stevens. "Don't Try to Change Me" is worse because it totally sounds out of place.

The current lineup of the Strawbs is the strongest since the original Hudson-Ford-Wakeman days. A key part of any Strawbs lineup has been their keyboard slot, now ably filled by John Hawken. He's especially delightful on mellotron, piano and harpsichord. And one could not say enough about Dave Cousins: founder, leader and major songwriter of this wonderful band. Since his founding of this band back on the only-imports Strawbs lps', Cousins & Company remain one of rock's premier attractions.

(Speaking of imports: the second (Strawbs) and third (Dragonfly) Strawbs albums are still only available as imports and not likely to be released over here. However, Strawbs fans take note: both lp's are now released as a package called Early Strawbs. This is a great one for the price of two offer and should not be passed up. Cousins contributes extensive liner notes on the group's history).

* * *

Richard Hudson and John Ford both left the Strawbs shortly after 1973's Bursting At The Seams lp. They were also ironically responsible for the band's only hit single, "Part Of The Union." Soon after their departure, Hudson-Ford released an excellent debut album called Nickelodeon, from which two English singles were culled. Needless to say, Nickelodeon went nowhere in the States, about par for any good, unknown English band.

Free Spirit is pretty much in keeping with the same formula that made Nickelodeon so good. It is a fairly solid lp from start to finish, featuring some of the best "commercial" FM material you'll hear in a long time, and longer, more expansive pieces. "Silent Star" is the best of the longer songs, being a rather good tune for everybody concerned. "Such A Day" harks of early Strawbs lineage, about the Witchwood era, containing a very antique folk feel to it. Most H-F songs are marked by some rich harmonies that few other bands can create. Couple that with intelligent lyrics, such as in "I Don't Wanna Be A Star", and generally inventive melodies ("Silent Star", "Floating In The Wind" and "Take A Little Word"), Hudson-Ford are a band with much potential. You'd do well to catch some Free Spirit.

Ratings: Ghosts — AB; Free Spirit — B.

Still fighting the dirtbags

The Law, Language, and Lenny Bruce
LENNY BRUCE
(Warner Bros. SP 101)
Total Playing Time: 34:05

Lenny Bruce saw through a lot of things, and one of the things he knew about was the traps a culture gets into when it refuses to look beyond itself. If you don't look back and find out where you got your present traits, there's a tendency to be self-righteous about your Culture. Things were different before, they'll be different in the future, and they're different now for other people. As the man says here, for a rabbi, "virgin" is not a merit badge, whereas for a priest... "Ass" was the normal word at one point, like "Sheep", until some got classy and introduced "Derriere" and "Mutton". Your culture, our culture, any culture — no system is the alpha and omega. Are we any better than Adolph Eichmann? asks Bruce. He watched the Jews burn in the ovens, a horrible thing, but is it worse than burning our enemies at a distance? See Hiroshima...So Las Vegas is Sin City? Bruce says it's a direct result of St. Paul's decision to give up sex forever.

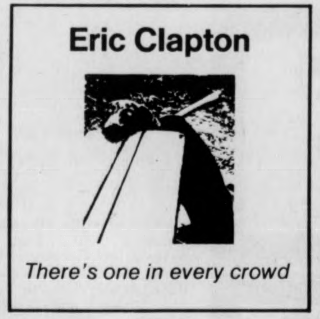
Members of a culture with no sense of history don't take too kindly to being told that their lifestyles will ultimately disappear — it was all accidental to begin with. In the mid-60's, Americans with no sense of history were particularly adverse to hearing "offensive" language used honestly — as a legitimate means of self-expression, as a way to dismantle our cultural pretensions. Thus Lenny Bruce's many trials and his ultimate death. But until he died, he continued to push us to a cross-cultural understanding of how we live, trying to force us to take a step back and see ourselves as we were. "How did the Jews and the Negroes get into show business?" Do you see that by trying to enforce obscenity laws, you're not protecting morals, just "punishing untalented artists"? What are the semantics behind the concept of bestialty? And what are the rules of this corrupt system, and why aren't they followed even by those who wrote them?

Ten years or so later, we can look back on the '60s with a comfortable and dangerous smugness. Comfortable because of course we can see that Lenny Bruce was right, and what fools we were, and etc. and so on. Dangerous — because of what fools we are now. Listening to Lenny Bruce demands giving up our cultural pretensions. And those pretensions, now more than ever (as someone once said), must be given up.

—David Miller

There's One in Every Crowd
ERIC CLAPTON
(RSO Records)

A gradual step in the right direction; Clapton's still thinks he's the white Bob Marley, but there is a trace of his old intensity. A friend and I decided after repeated listenings that there are only four good cuts on this release, of which only two rate as excellent. What is left constitutes the absolute dreck of any new material I've heard. I would be more than embarrassed to produce something as insipid and unimaginative as the reggae rendition of "Swing Low Sweet Chariot". Swing low, indeed, Eric! One of the four or five worst arrangements ever put on vinyl. Of course there's the obligatory sequel to that rancid Top-40 ditty, "I Shot the Sheriff"; "Don't Blame Me" is the title, and Clapton delivers a nauseated qualude-inspired vocal over a lukewarm reggae beat.



A great deal of potential, mostly wasted artlessly.

No sense in further elaborating on something that's not deserving of even a cursory listening. To look at the bright spots, "We've Been Told (Jesus Coming Soon)" is a spirited reworking of traditional gospel-blues, and exhibits a much-improved backup band than on 461. "Better Make It Through Today" has a casual, rainy-day air, and some nicely subdued textures provided by the band. "Opposites" is a moody, dirgelike piece which only bores one as the vocals proceed; but as the song segues into an instrumental passage, the mood becomes almost majestic as the subtle interactions of all players proves their all-too-little displayed abilities as a unit. Clapton adds some delicate, precise slide to build the passage to a swirling climax. "Pretty Blue Eyes" contains a simple but extremely appealing chorus and a nice, breathy Clapton vocal. "High" is what I've been starving for. An imaginative melody combined with the best lyrics of the lot, plus the sole snippet of incendiary guitar work we are allowed to hear almost make this album worth the wampum for all us Claptonians. Such a tease, though; as just when that marvelously unique Clapton guitar begins to take off with emotional power, the cut quickly fades out. All I hope for is that this tune is a taste of things to come.

Derek (aka Eric) has developed his vocal potential about as far as it can go. As I've said in the past, he's never a virtuosic singer but a very effective one; he seems to have better realized his strengths and weaknesses, in effect to become an intelligent singer. Yvonne Elliman does a fine job of smoothing any rough vocal edges, and the band itself is evolving into a unit worthy of some kind of recognition rather than just "Clapton's backup". I sense a great deal of potential in Eric Clapton's present musical incarnation, but I'm afraid that on this album most of that potential is wasted artlessly. Let it rain.

—Kevin Pelletier

The Restful Mind
LARRY CORYELL
(Vanguard VSD 79353)

Be forewarned that the majority of my friends were not thrilled with this album, and only a few expressed mild enthusiasm. But I am thrilled with it.

Granted, it is not something you'd listen to all the time, nor would it make you tap your feet or snap your fingers to it. Yet considered as a work of art, I feel that it is an album of stark beauty. But of course not all art is appreciated.

Guitarist Coryell, a major force in the jazz-rock genre, provides with this album a marked distinction and departure from the direction any of his previous recordings took. From the quasi-Eastern sound of the opening piece to the obvious Classical influences inherent in the remaining compositions, The Restful Mind offers music of somber elegance, profound in its simplicity.

And Coryell's playing is in top form. Unlike his previous recordings, where he sounds irritating at worst and repetitious at best, Coryell here demonstrates his skills to good advantage. His lines are fluent, his chords are enthralling, his use of harmonics is imaginative. Also unlike his previous recordings, the bulk of this album is performed on acoustic guitar.

Fellow musicians included on this release are most of Oregon, guitarist Ralph Towner, bassist Glen Moore and Collin Walcott on tabla and congas. They work well with each other — nobody gets in the way. But at the same time it is clear that this is Coryell's album.

All compositions were written by him except for Ravel's "Pavane For A Dead Princess", which receives a lovely solo treatment by Coryell (and is one of the album's highlights).

Perhaps it is because I am a guitarist that I'm so impressed with this album, yet I think that if you enjoy mellow, pretty, restful, searching and at the same time (to a degree) heart-rending music played with genuine, non-superflous artistry, you'll be impressed too.

—Ken Blanchard

Nuthin' Fancy
LYNYRD SKYNYRD
(MCA-2137)
Time: 37:15

With this, their third album, Lynyrd Skynyrd are ready to take their place as the No. 3 Southern band, right behind the rapidly deteriorating Allman Brothers and the rapidly rising Marshall Tucker. The turning point in Skynyrd's career was the huge success of their previous album, Second Helping, featuring the hit single "Sweet Home Alabama." Who'd have ever thunk it back in '73, when they were the forgotten warm-up act on The Who's Quadrophenia tour? Now, The Sound of the South rises again. Hoorah!

Nuthin' Fancy is as apt a title as any for this work. It is straightforward and hard drivin', with one or two laid-back country tunes thrown in for good measure. Side one starts off with "Saturday Night Special," a song with an anti-handgun moral. "Ain't good for nothin'," sings vocalist Ronnie Van Zant, "but put a man six feet in a hole." Yet, on the very next song, "Cheatin' Woman," he sings, "I'm gonna get my pistol, girl, I'm gonna shoot you and end your world. Then you won't bother poor me." A bit of a contradiction, eh? "I'm A Country Boy" is a nice cut which sums up the rural sentiments prevalent in Rebel Rock. On side two, "Am I Losin' " (my personal fave) tells the story of how life changes when you gain fame and money. All of a sudden you lose the things that you used to enjoy way back when. "Made In The Shade" is one of those basically simple, more laid-back ditties. Instruments include a coke crate, symbolic of just how loose the band treats this piece in comparison to most of the deeper songs.

A fine album by a fine group still on the rise. Give Lynyrd Skynyrd a "fyne tyme" A-.

—Ross Nerenberg

molto accel.
SNAP FINGERS
FARTS
4° SINGING INK
presto giojoso

Transcending decadence?

by David Miller

Young Americans
David Bowie
(RCA APL1-0998)
Total Playing Time: 40:06

With only a couple of quibbles, this is probably the finest work which Bowie has done since Ziggy Stardust — appropriately, too, because Young Americans signals an abandonment and a transcendence of the Ziggy Stardust myth. That myth involved the projection, onto a cosmic plane, of the rock superstar's rise in power and subsequent consumption by that power. Bowie was Ziggy Stardust in many ways, self-consciously theatrical, playing the part of a superstar. But identification with the myth must necessarily involve belief in the final consumption which is a part of it — a fatalistic attitude which leads, if not to the Ann Sexton exit (no disrespect intended), then to creative stagnation. Thus Bowie's Diamond Dogs. Fortunately, Young Americans picks up on and develops those aspects of the Stardust myth which leave room for growth, primarily, a belief in the unification of humanity through electricity — rock music, electric media ("Turn on your TV, we can pick him up on Channel Two" — "Star Man"), and the like.

Having done all that conceptual stuff, which we'll get back to in a minute, it's important to note that the album isn't totally given over to a single theme — another one of its virtues. "Win", "Fascination", and "Can You Hear Me" are concerned with one-to-one relationships on a terrestrial level. "Win" involves a certain amount of tension between the singer and a very tense other, with Bowie looking for a way out between them — as the "It ain't over" backing chorus suggests. "Fascination" is a song of love right on the edge of desire — "... I've got to use her — Every time I think — Of what she pulled me thru dear — Fascination moves — Sweeping near me". "Can You Hear Me" is the smoothest song here — an attempt to make contact with a former lover and find some peace.

Is glitter dead? As old Captain Trips knows, "the thing about being a success is that there's no future in it."

"Young Americans" and "Somebody Up There Likes Me", as the album's two main songs, deal with two sides of the electric media problem. "Young Americans" tells about being wiped out in the present, life moving too fast for those former youth of tomorrow, now just entering their designated roles to find out that the roles have disappeared. Alienation, pain, and defensive boredom result from being pushed without warning — "Do you remember President Nixon — Do you remember the bills you have to pay — Or even yesterday ... Would you carry a razor — In case, just in case of depression"? "Somebody Up There Likes Me", on the other hand, is a celebration for everyone of the post-Future Shock mind. We are all blessed and "Born of the TV tube", knowing that "leaders come and all the people know — That given time the leaders go" — all of us saviors. "Across The Universe" and "Right" expand this feeling of forward, positive motion in the universe. "Right" is charged, full of confidence, singing about "never no turning back". "Across The Universe" is the Beatles' song, of course, with Lennon singing backup and playing rhythm. Bowie's rendition of the song is a bit melodramatic and heavy-handed at times, but the performance is charged with conviction and has many moments of brilliance. The final song on the album is "Fame" — a fitting rejection of the consumptive aspects of the Ziggy Stardust myth — "Fame — it's not you brain — it's just up the flame — That burns your change to keep you insane". There are better things than fame, at the last.

The music on Young Americans is generally excellent, with David Sanborn particularly outstanding as a saxophonist on "Can You Hear Me", "Win", and "Somebody Up There Likes Me". The band's performance ranges from the sharp counterpoint of "Fascination", "Right", and "Fame", to the great intensities of "Young Americans" and "Somebody Up There Likes Me". One quarrel with orchestration lies in "Can You Hear Me". Besides being too long, the song contains completely superfluous writing. An old familiar trap ... The vocal work is very fine throughout, with Mr. Bowie frequently making use of his bass-baritone registers, and to good effect. It looks like Young Americans is pointing to a transcendence of decadence, and a passion for growth which is all too rare. Is glitter obsolete?

Hell bent for goofballs

Duit On Mon Dei
NILSSON
(RCA APL1-0817)
Total Playing Time: 32:31

Harry Nilsson and Randy Newman have been aligned in my mind for some time, although they're really quite different in many ways. Certainly the Nilsson Sings Newman album has a lot to do with it, but thinking it over, I realize that both of them, Newman more than Nilsson, seem to be concerned with the difficulties which many people face in achieving even an ordinary standard of living. There's a lot of pain behind even banality. We can laugh at the old pervert in Newman's "You Can Leave Your Hat On", but part of the song's power is our realization that his twisted mode of thought is the only one that holds any meaning for him — he "knows what love is". And so, in a slightly different way, with Nilsson's Duit On Mon Dei, achieving even an average life seems to require a lot of work.

There are cycles involved in this striving, and a lot of different angles. On the one hand, "It's a Jungle Out There", as the song title says, and at the end, the question comes up of "Was it all worth it? And who buries who? ("Down By the Sea")". Seeing the dream come true is filled with obstacles, but at the end there's rest — "Turn Out the Light" is all about letting go — "Don't be afraid— It's time to say Goodnight— Pull down the shade— And hold each other tight." And there is "Home" to search for, a place to find rest — "Home can make your heart beat faster as you near the door." "Salmon Falls" is the clearest statement of this duality, this continual cycle — "Each drop of rain— Falls a million times its own length— To crash upon earth's floor— And with its pain causes life to start anew." And the whole album ends with "Good For God" — the opposite of Newman's "God's Song". Here God is being congratulated on the hard job he's got — brought down to human level in order to really share some thanks.

Duit On Mon Dei also has some fairly kinky things in it. "What's Your Sign" is a fairly vicious satire of a subculture which uses the trappings in place of real communication (not a parody of astrology) — "They said you never made it with a Gemini". "Puget Sound" is a little fantasy on being stared at, not being treated for real, complete with a quote from "Paper Moon"; Easier For Me" deals with another odd duality — finding love through the acceptance of a rejected woman. Finally, "Kojak Columbo" displays the twisted kind of eroticism which results from TV addiction, an existence shaped by media messages — "TV is here to save us— And to tell us what to do". All of this eventually gets back to the subterfuges and honest deceptions which too often go into survival — all filled with humor, of course, to make it bearable.

The album's music is lovely — Van Dyke Parks has assembled and coordinated a real army here. The production is consciously theatrical, regardless of whether the sound is immediate, as in "Easier For Me" 's chamber orchestra, or filtered and removed, as in "It's A Jungle Out There" and "Down By the Sea". The textures range from "Good For God" 's drinking-song ambiance, to the reggae of "Home", "Puget Sound", and "Down By the Sea", "Turn Out the Light" 's sparkles, and the shifting and pulsating of "Salmon Falls". (This last actually owes more to Perry Botkin's arrangement than to Klaus Voorman's music, which is fairly pedestrian.) Generally speaking, Duit On Mon Dei is probably one of Nilsson's finest albums — the man continues to grow, and that's rare among popular musicians.

—David Miller

Let There Be Music ORLEANS
(Asylum Records)

It's high time someone sung the praises of this finely-honed outfit from upperstate New York. John Hall, the principal writer for the band, has been quoted as saying that poor promotion is the reason for Orleans' relative obscurity until now. These guys deserve a break; looks like this album might be it.

It's been many moons since I've heard such a tightly meshed American rock band (the Allman Bros. is the last I can remember). Everyone plays with both restraint and potency; no one voice or instrument exerts an overpowering will upon the others. Unity is the name of the musical game here. More than one person has commented to me that Orleans music just sets an omnipresent air of optimism loose from your turntable, and that's as apt a description of the musical tone as I could muster. John and Johanna Hall cover most of the writing tasks. Their tunes are either up-tempo, middle energy rock garnished with background acoustic guitars and some light, appropriate production touches; or they are ballads discussing slightly syrupy subjects like lost love. Mistake no doubt, though. This isn't John Denver in quadriphonic personification. These dudes can howl, as on "Cold Spell". John Hall and Larry Hoppen only emphasize here what the rest of the album establishes; this is the finest dual — guitar team on the boards at present. That's not to say they're anything akin to, say, the old Allman-Betts coalition. Hall and Hoppen more often will strive to complement each other's lines, each occasionally taking the spotlight briefly. It would be a crime not to commend the rhythm section. Wells Kelly's drum work fills out where many lesser lights fall apart at the rims, and Lance Hoppen's bass is so sparse and creative at the same time that I still can sit down and just listen to his lines. To put it succintly, Orleans is a rare bird on the scene. Their energy in the studio tells me they must be an M.F. of a live act.

An omnipresent air of optimism.

Hall and Hall aren't the only writers, as all the band members have contributed songs to their two releases. Look for Lance Hoppen's "Let There Be Music" to garner some AM airplay. This is how Top-40 rock should be.

'Nuff said. I've been known to be full of maggots at times, but this time there's no mistakin; this disc would be a fine investment in musical enjoyment for any and all takers.

—Kevin Pelletier

Alto Artistry
BENNY CARTER
WILLIE SMITH
PETE BROWN
(Trip TLP-5543)

This album of mid-40's jazz features four selections each from renowned alto saxophonists Benny Carter, Willie Smith and Pete Brown.

Carter, the only one of these three still alive, had a smooth swing style that is very pleasant listening. The quintet performing Carter's selections includes the bebop-ish piano of leader Arnold Ross, and the superb unamplified guitar solos of Allan Reuss. Presently Carter concentrates on writing and arranging television and motion picture scores.

The full-blowing sound of Willie Smith's sax is complemented by pianist Arnold Ross once again, and by the not-far-short-of amazing guitarist Les Paul, who takes some really tricky solos (electric). It is reported that the legendary alto saxophonist Charlie Parker owes a great deal to Willie Smith.

The disc is rounded out by four tunes exemplifying the hoarse-edged tone of Pete Brown's sax. His compelling swing is enhanced by a rhythm section featuring J.C. Heard on drums, Milt Hinton on bass, and Kenny Kersey on piano.

All legends in their own time, all immortalized.

—Ken Blanchard

Who Do You Outdo?
LON and DEREK VAN EATON
(A&M Records)

The glossy album cover portrays these brothers as your average hip young dudes. They sound English but are way too tan to be from anywhere but California. And everyone's fave producer Richard Perry lends a hand to this one. As with most every album he has done, Perry's touch is as important in the sound as the artist he works with, if not more. In this case it is about equal, and that makes for a respectable effort.

The hit on the album is "The Harder You Pull, The Tighter It Gets" which is all a hit should be — catchy, hummable and vibrant. The rest of the album isn't quite as good, but there is really only one low point, a dizzy ditty called "Do You Remember", a touching tune about losing one's virginity. It's a tacky, overblown number about a subject that is too ephemeral for the Perry—Van Eaton approach. But most all else clicks. This is one of those trendy, jaunty records that will sum up the sound of 1975 for you on a spring day in the future of 1977.

—Craig 665-3438 Roche

Two Sides Of The Moon
KEITH MOON
(Track MCA-2136) time 29:42

While this is not, perhaps surprisingly so, an album to predicate your life and crimes upon, and bears many marks of a certain over-ripeness (Moon plays drums on only two tracks, sings all of 'em...), this record is really, well, gash, it's just, nothing to get sweaty about, but, I, er, mean, just through a glance you'll see, uh, that is, most people having two....Fun is a rare commodity, and 'ere it is. Sort of.

Mooney's put too much time into this for me to really slag this disc. But still, maybe a bit less 'time' was needed to let the real Moon, uh, shine. Too short, too. (No, the record.)

A 'More Moon cheek needed' C.

Mike "Motion Use Only' Kostek film

Under the Influence

A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE
Directed by John Cassavetes

Reviewed by Joe Quinn

The Amherst Film Co-op's recent New England Premiere of John Cassavetes latest film, A Woman Under the Influence, proved to be a successful and interesting pairing of two parties who had previously received critical acclaim, but remained financially unrewarded. The film's two sell-out showings in Sage Hall at Smith College were by far the most prosperous events yet sponsored by the adventurous members of the film co-op, who were admittedly dumbfounded by being in the unfamiliar position of having to turn people away. Similarly, John Cassavetes, who has garnered little more than lofty praise for the artistic merit of his past movies (Shadows, Faces, Husbands, Minnie and Moskowitz), has achieved a large measure of popular success with A Woman Under the Influence, and deservedly so. Cassavetes has fashioned an incredibly powerful and searing film, and two of the finest performances of the year.

The "woman" is Mabel Longhetti (Gena Rowlands), whose emotional stability is suffering in the wake of mounting inability to perform as the wife of her workingman husband, Nick Longhetti (Peter Falk), and mother of three children. Mabel is trapped. She does not derive the happiness and personal fulfillment which she is led to expect from her housewife-mother role, but is incapable of operating outside of that context.

The situation compels Mabel to perceive her troubles as personal inadequacies; she does not consider for a moment that her problems might be structural. The socialization process which prepares women for subordinate roles in the culture (the family, work life, etc.) has therefore worked perfectly on Mabel. Accepting her role without question, she must try even more desperately to carry off what is expected. Her subsequent disappointments, and their effects on her crumbling sanity, are devastating.

Ms. Rowlands portrays Mabel on a very personal level, with a depth of feeling and emotion indicating a clear perception of Mabel's dilemma. Since the movie chronicles Mabel's errosion into a state of nervous collapse, it is also a painful performance to witness.

Behavior which initially appears only "kooky" and embarrassing, rapidly and disturbingly deteriorates. When Mabel falls apart at the seams in an absolutely gut-wrenching scene, Rowlands is physically and emotionally perfect. Mabel's nervous breakdown — the mental disorientation, the incoherence, the emotional suffering, her feelings of betrayal when Nick finally agrees to commit her to a mental hospital — is so powerfully and effectively portrayed, it is difficult to imagine an actress who could put more of herself into a performance. Her stunning characterization, integral to the success of the film, delineates the limits and frustrations accorded Mabel by her position.

As Nick, Peter Falk brilliantly conveys the character's distressing difficulty: at the same time loving Mabel, and feeling deep affection for her, while not knowing what to do as he watches his wife's sanity disintegrate. He lacks the understanding and patience she desperately needs, and ignorantly demands that the "old Mabel" simply reassert herself. No thought is given as to what Mabel's own needs might be, not as Mabel-the-housewife, or Mabel-the-wife, or Mabel-the-mother, but as Mabel the woman, because Nick only understands these functional levels of Mabel's personality.

Falk's is also quite a physical performance — his grutt veneer and frequent bursts of anger directed at Mabel display Nick's inability to cope rationally with her situation. Beneath the anger and seeming insensitivity, however, Falk transmits the character's frustration and inner turmoil. He tries, but fails to help or understand Mabel, because he cannot see that he is an integral part of her problem.

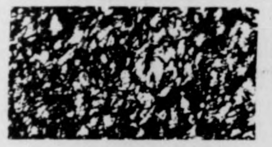
In a tense and unrelenting film, John Cassavetes (writer and director) has confronted the double bind within which many women exist — not feeling fulfilled by their positions as housewife-mother, but unable to advance effectively outside the home due to a wide range of inequalities and a socialization process which serves to "keep women in their place". With the exception of a surprising technical blurb (the appearance of a microphone in one scene, which drew gasps from some in the audience), Cassavetes direction is unique and exciting. He has created a film of rare intimacy, evoking a poignant and realistic atmosphere. The intimacy at times reaches almost unbearable intensity — the audience is compelled to become involved with Nick and Mabel, and eventually to realize and hopefully feel some of the frustration Mabel, the woman under the influence of society, the culture, of her husband and children, has experienced.

The movie is important, not only for its own artistic excellence, but because so few films are being written about women today (this film, and the recently released, Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore, starring Ellen Byrnsten are the only two current exceptions). The impact of A Woman Under the Influence may encourage other filmmakers, producers and directors to deal with the subject of women, hopefully with the honesty and sensitivity which Cassevetes has displayed.

Kit Browne ✶

The MFA

✶



Linda Bond

mfa thesis sh
herter galle

Linda Bond
MFA Thesis Show
Herter Gallery
April 6-11

Linda Bond's paintings deal with the patterns of nature. Free patterns such as scrawlings and dabs are contained in geometric shapes that are generally rectangular. These abstracted landscapes present a rather ordered view of the fields and trees around us, but an order that celebrates both the repetition and variety of natural patterns. Sometimes the geometric areas are defined by actual lines, like fences perhaps, but in several cases, a work will consist of two canvasses, and the space between them serves as the line. This regularity has a calm effect: as you look you feel that the world shown is as it should be. Linda's colors vary from rain-muted to sun-brightened to reinforce a mood, but the patterns are in themselves strongly suggestive, as the black and white lithographs prove.

Ron Michaud
MFA Thesis Show
Herter Gallery
April 6-12

At first I found Ron Michaud's works very confusing, for the first few skirt the edges of his theme. All are actually drawn with a china marker, except the very first, and I'm still unsure of its point in the show. The china marker presents two distinct textures by being applied heavily and delicately. Up close this was intriguing for a while, but then the novelty wore off. Then a surprising thing happened — I began to see a remarkable depth of space appearing. What close had been impressions of texture, tone, hard vs fading edges, flatness. At a distance, after so many variations, these elements all joined forces and took form into many overlapping planes. The shaded light areas ceased to be "lighter color" and became shadows. White planes curve up over colored ones instead of cutting through them. Aha! There is a certain joy in discovery.

APRIL 10 · 11 · 12
"MUFFIN BAND"
Pantry playroom
RTS. 202 & 21 •• BELCHERTOWN

Quicksilver
No. Pleasant St.
featuring
THURS. AIRTIGHT
FRI. & SAT. The ARTHUR CABLE BLUES BAND
STOP IN FOR HAPPY HOUR
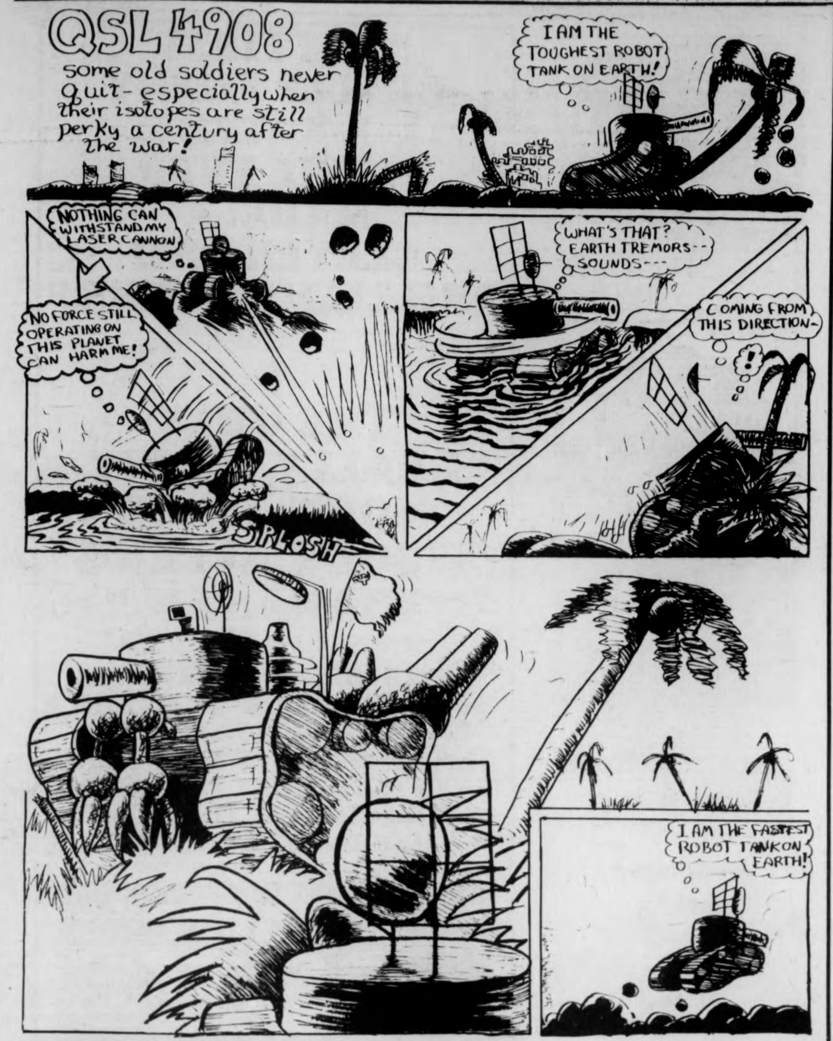
4 - 7 Daily
Mixed 55¢ Draught 25¢

The way fun is going to be...
Maxwells
discotheque & restaurant
Three Floors Of Good Times!
Every Sunday—Live Bands 8:30 P.M.-1:00 A.M.
Discotheque Nightly 9:00-1:00 A.M.
APRIL 13
Some of My Best Friends
Every Thursday is Student Day
(Bring Student I.D.)
Route 9 Hadley, Massachusetts
Gress Inn, Inc.
food drink dancing



QSL 4908
some old soldiers never quit - especially when their isotopes are still perky a century after the war!
I AM THE TOUGHEST ROBOT TANK ON EARTH!
NOTHING CAN WITHSTAND MY LASER CANNON
NO FORCE STILL OPERATING ON THIS PLANET CAN HARM ME!
SPLOSH
WHAT'S THAT? EARTH TREMORS-- SOUNDS---
COMING FROM THIS DIRECTION-
!
I AM THE FASTEST ROBOT TANK ON EARTH!

Theatre: Holding the corn in its place

PIRATES OF PENZANCE
by Gilbert and Sullivan
Directed by Carolyn Schade
Bowker Auditorium
April 3, 4, 5, 6

Reviewed by Marla Richmond

UMass Music Theater Guild productions play to consistently full houses for one reason: they are consistently good. Pirates of Penzance was no exception. The voices were good, if not the best projected. The costumes were a riot. The choreography very appropriate. The players seemed to be enjoying what they were doing. What more can you ask of any play?

Gilbert and Sullivan plays are by nature corny. Director Schade thankfully played up this corniness. The characters were all stock sillies dressed in fantastic costumes over-reacting to every situation. The circumstances of the play are absurd enough to require this. But this is not a put down at all. I loved this production. (Corn indeed has its place.) With all that is happening in the world, a good silly play does the soul good and this production did not pretend to be any more or less.

Stock Sillies: Major General Stanley and wards.

Paul Doran played Frederic, the "slave of Duty" with appropriate melodrama and agony. Gwen Seferian as his love, Mabel, was dutifully loving and dumb. A high school drama teacher once told me that the young lovers are the most boring part of a play: he was right. They sing pretty songs and make something for the other characters to play off of, but it is the others you really enjoy. I do have to admit that when Mabel sang about how much she would miss Frederic, it was a really moving moment.

The other characters were great. Among the most noticeable was J. Paris Finley as Major General Stanley, a complete turkey. He was stuffy, honorable and had medals on his pyjamas. Just great. He managed to overcome the problem a person in their twenties faces in playing an older person really well. Jack Haskell as the Pirate King also managed the transformation. He, along with the other pirates gave a glowing picture of "nobel men gone wrong", pirates with soft hearts.

Congratulations to Gail Brassard on her costume design. The maidens began in too-adorable pink outfits with bustles that bustled at the right time. Their second act night gowns were equally appropriate. The Keystone Cops costumes and actions worked well for Frederic's police force. It was a pleasure to see costumes that are not only fitting for the play, but well executed and allowing the actors to move.

All in all, the Music Theatre Guild has put together another tight, well done play. Encore.

South China

by Lori Leiderman

About three months ago, the Kalihi Kai Restaurant went the way of many of the over-priced, mediocre eating establishments in this area. The pseudo-Polynesian eyesore on Route 9 in Amherst then became the South China. Unfortunately, the new management has not significantly improved the prices or the cuisine.

There are a few excellent selections at the South China that make it impossible to rule the restaurant out entirely, though. Probably the biggest improvement over the Kalihi Kai is South China's Pu Pu Platter. For those who want a late night snack or a light dinner, a Pu Pu Platter is a welcome change from grinders and pizza. For $7.25, you receive a Lazy Susan filled with fried shrimp, barbecued chicken wings, egg rolls, barbecued spareribs and Gold Fingers (another chicken selection). The platter encircles a hibachi with wooden sticks to crisp each morsel of food. South China's Pu Pu's are better than most, with portions large enough to feed two people with advanced munchies to four people with dainty appetites.

Another unusual dish at the South China is the sizzling steak for two. At $8.65, the steak is a more than adequate serving of steak topped with ham, shrimp, pork and Chinese vegetables over fried rice, served on a sizzling hot plate. The dish is very impressive and made with a great deal of savoir faire at your table.

There are many lower priced entrees ranging from $2.35 to $4.00 also. The South China has a complete selection of normal garden variety Chop Suey's, Chow Mein's and the like which are on a par with the unimaginative and inauthentic Chinese food generally found in this area — sorry Wok lovers.

The only thing that makes the South China a less desirable choice is that their prices include no rice and no dessert. Sweet lovers must be satisfied by reading the bill and Chinese food epicures must pay extra to sop their sauces with rice.

Unfortunately, I can recommend no better Chinese or Polynesian restaurant in this area. But if your cravings are serious and you're a genuine connoisseur, get in a car and drive to Boston. A trip to the periphery of the Combat Zone is worth the price, and after the meal you can watch the free sideshow outside the Two O'clock Club.

Appearing
TONITE — SUN.
Big Screaming McGrew
at
Rusty Nail Inn
Rte. 47
Sunderland

Spring Madness Sale
APRIL 9, 10
from 10AM to 4PM
20% OFF ALL SCHOOL SHIRTS
(with student i.d.)
from 4:30 PM to 11 PM
20% OFF MARKED PRICE ON ALL SHIRTS
from MIDNIGHT to 3AM
BUY TWO SHIRTS, GET ONE FREE
THE COVER UP
amherst carriage shops
233 n. pleasant st.
THE T-SHIRT SHOP
NG

NOW CALVIN Theatre NOW
KING ST., NORTHAMPTON 584-2310
Nominated for 11 Academy Awards
The Godfather PART II
Best Picture
Best Actor
Best Director
R RESTRICTED
2nd SMASH WEEK!
Eves: Godfather II — 7:30
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

SHOWCASE CINEMAS 1 2 3 4 5 6
ROUTE 5 RIVERDALE RD.
WEST SPFLD. 24 HR. TEL. 733-5131
· CHARGE YOUR TICKETS ON MASTER CHARGE ·

ROBERT REDFORD
IN A GEORGE ROY HILL FILM
The Great WALDO PEPPER PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:20, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:35, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50.

Academy Award Winner
Jack Nicholson
Roman Polanski Faye Dunaway
"Chinatown" R
STARTS FRIDAY
Towering Inferno
Wed.-Thurs., 8:15

STREISAND & CAAN
Funny Lady PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Thurs., 8:00; Fri., 7:05, 9:55; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 4:15, 7:10, 10:00.

Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
Nominated for 6 Academy Awards
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:30, 9:45; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:40, 5:40, 7:40, 9:50.

warren beatty
Shampoo R
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri.: 7:15, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 2:00, 4:30, 7:10, 9:30.

What could be better than The Three Musketeers?
THE FOUR MUSKETEERS PG
Wed. Mat., 2 p.m.; Mon.-Fri., 7:40, 9:30; Sat.-Sun., 1:30, 3:25, 5:20, 7:20, 9:30.

Campus Cinemas
256-6411
AMHERST-HADLEY LINE

1. Something strange is happening in the town of Stepford
7 & 9
THE STEPFORD WIVES
PG

2. It's more than a movie.
7 & 9
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents
"THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT"
G
2 DAYS!
Starts FRIDAY! X
Emmanuelle was never like this.

3 No Dollar Night
5th WEEK 7 & 9:45
JOHN CASSAVETES
"A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE"
R Gena Rowlands

DOLLAR NIGHTS MON&TUES
ALL SEATS $1.00

film times

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Amarcord, 7-9:15
AMHERST CINEMA
Ruling Class, 7:00
Producers, 9:00
CALVIN THEATRE
Godfather II, 7:30
CAMPUS CINEMAS
Stepford Wives, 7-9:00
That's Entertainment, 7-9:00
Woman under the Influence, 7-9:45
DEERFIELD DRIVE-IN
Show starts at 7:45
EASTFIELD MALL CINEMA
Reincarnation of Peter Proud, 7:30-9:40
MT. FARMS 4 THEATRES
The Sting, 6-8:30
The Front Page, 6:15-8:30
Amarcord, 5:30-6:00
Lenny, 6:15-8:30
SHOWCASE CINEMAS
Waldo Pepper, 7:20-9:30
Funny Lady, 8:00
Shampoo, 7:15-9:30
Lenny, 7:30-9:45
The 4 Musketeers, 7:40-9:30
Towering Inferno, 8:15

"THE FIRST REALLY FUNNY X-RATED MOVIE EVER MADE! A CLEVER AND BRILLIANT SATIRE."
—Kevin Saunders, ABC-TV
!
"THE ONLY REALLY FUNNY MOVIE SINCE WOODY ALLEN'S 'BANANAS'."
—Roger Greenspun, New York Times
"...ITS MIND IS SO SANE, ITS IMAGINATION SO FREE, AND ITS FANTASIES SO LOGICAL, THAT IT BECOMES SOMETHING EVEN MORE RARE THAN GOOD SATIRE, THAT IS, IT BECOMES GOOD DIRTY SATIRE."
—Vincent Canby, New York Times
is there sex after death?
starring BUCK HENRY • ROBERT DOWNEY
MARSHALL EFRON • HOLLY WOODLAWN
JIM MORAN • EARL DOUD • RUBIN CARSON
FEATURING THE INTERNATIONAL SEX BOWL produced, written and directed by JEANNE and ALAN ABEL
associate producer
MICHAEL ROTHSCHILD
RELEASED BY U-M FILM DISTRIBUTORS INC.
COLOR BY MOVIELAB X
FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1975 C.C.A.
6:30-8:15-10:00-11:45

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
MEL BROOKS
(The Insane Genius)
The man who brought you "Blazing Saddles" and "Young Frankenstein" now brings you the funniest of them all.
"THE PRODUCERS"
"O'TOOLE IS FUNNY, DISTURBING, DEVASTATING!"
"A BRILLIANT FILM—STUNNING!"
PETER O'TOOLE
ALASTAIR SIM
ARTHUR LOWE
THE RULING CLASS
Eves: The Ruling Class — 7:00; The Producers — 9:00
MONDAY & TUESDAY BARGAIN NITES • ALL SEATS $1.00

a documentary film
ERICH VON DÄNIKEN'S
"CHARIOTS OF THE GODS"
SAT., APRIL 12th in MAHAR
75¢ at 7:30-9:15-11:30 75¢

KATHARINE HEPBURN
PETER O'TOOLE
THE LION IN WINTER
75¢ 75¢
Fri., April 11th at 7-9:15-11:30 in Mahar

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
ACADEMY OF MUSIC
NORTHAMPTON
— NOW — 7:00 & 9:15
FRANCO CRISTALDI'S Production of FELLINI'S
AMARCORD
("I REMEMBER")
Distributed by NEW WORLD PICTURES R RESTRICTED
the original version

ROBERT REDFORD and MIA FARROW
THE GREAT GATSBY
PG
A Paramount Picture
ORIGINAL SOUNDTRACK AVAILABLE ON PARAMOUNT RECORDS AND 8RT TAPES
Thursday, April 10
S.U.B.
7 & 9:45 75¢

— TRUFFAUT —
Bed & Board/Stolen Kisses
7 & 10:30 8:45
BOTH films for 75¢
S.U.B.

theatre

Five College Area:

Jungle of Cities, Dickinson Hall, Performing Arts, Hampshire, April 10, 11, 12, 13 at 8:00 p.m.

The Cavern, Studio Theatre, Fine Arts Complex, April 10, 11, 13, 15-19, 2-26 at 8:00 p.m., April 13 and 20 at 2:00 p.m.

Kyogen National Comic Theatre of Japan, Bowker, April 19 at 8:00 p.m.

Beast With Two Backs, Fine Arts Complex, April 24 & 25 at 8:00 p.m.

Heritage, Theatre 14, Smith, April 25 at 8:00 p.m.

Black Theatre Workshop, Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre, Smith, April 25 & 26 at 8:00 p.m.

The World of Lenny Bruce, Bowker, May 2 at 8:00 p.m.

Springfield:

The Guardsman; Stage West, nightly, May 7-10.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Stage West, nightly except Mondays, April 19 — May 10.

Hartford:

Afternoon Tea, The Hartford Stage Company, March 21 — April 27.

Fiddler on the Roof, Bushnell Memorial, April 20.

Boston:

Odyssey, Colonial Theatre, April 1-26.

H.M.S. Pnafore, Boston Light Opera Ltd., Madelein Lee Theatre, April 11, 12, 25, May 2, 3, 9, 10 at 8:00 p.m.

Marcel Marceau, Shubert Theatre, May 13-24.

poetry

Poetry

Robert Bly, Emily Dickinson Hall, Hampshire, April 16, 8:00 p.m.

Barbara Howes, Daniel Hoffman, Kathleen Spivack, New York Room, Mt. Holyoke, April 19, 10:30 a.m.

T. Carmi , West Lecture Hall, Franklin Patterson Hall, Hampshire, April 23, 7:30 p.m.

Below the Salt photo by Bob Lampron

dance

Performance:

Naiads, Nope Pool, April 10, 11, 12; 8:00 p.m.

University Concert Dance Group, Bowker, April 16, 17, 18; 8:15 p.m.

Participatory:

Heymakers Square Dance Club, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 8:00 p.m., Tuesdays.

Dance and Exercise Workshop, 8 week course, Valley Women's Center in Northampton, Wed. and Thurs. 12:30-2:30, or 5:00-7:00 starting April 16. Infor. 268-7266.

International Folk Dancing Club, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 7:30 p.m., Mondays.

Israeli Dancing, Cape Cod Lounge, S.U., 8:00 p.m., Wednesdays.

Dance Free, Campus Centre, 101, 7:30 p.m., Sundays.

Square Dance sponsored by ARA Outing Club and Phi Delta Sigma, Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke, April 11, 8:00 p.m. art

AREA EXHIBITS

Jones Library — Photographs by Ralmon Jon Black on display during April, black and white as well as color prints including technical data.

Springfield Museum of Fine Art — Academic Artists Association National Exhibit—the 26th annual exhibition of this national art society, April 6-May 4.

Leverett Craftsmen and Artists Inc. — Spring classes spinning, weaving, watercolor, pottery, stained glass, paint and collage, oil painting, batik, gravestone rubbing, children's arts and crafts, and children's animated filmmaking—for details call L C&A 253-9062.

The Bitten End Gallery — Fred Becker, prints

FIVE COLLEGE EXHIBITS

Amherst College — Mead Gallery—American and Dutch Paintings (primitive collection)

Hampshire College Gallery — April-May Student Examination Shows.

Mt. Holyoke College — Two contemporary Chinese artists. April 7-20.

Smith College Museum of Art — Five anonymous American paintings, through April 21 — opening April 10, Paintings by Alice Neel through May 4 — Photographs of Renaissance Art by Clarence Kennedy through April 20.

UMass Herter Hall Gallery — M.F.A. Thesis Shows, Linda Bond, Paintings-Ron Michaud Paintings through April 12.

Brown, Lindsay Paintings M.F.A. shows.

Student Union Gallery — Gene Laford B.F.A. sculpture "UN-TITLED" April 13-16.

Prescriptions Delivered

Everything looks worse in black and white

The Quest

by Daniel Finneran

Once upon a time there was a man whose mind and soul were aflame with desire, for he sought the answer to the question of existance. This flame within him burned brighter than the fires that destroyed the ancient city of Troy; and if unquenched would also destroy him. To answer his questions he would spend hours omnivorously reading the words of the greatest sages the world has known. Philosophy, Theology, Literature each led to the other and back again. The thoughts of men ancient and modern and all in-between he consulted; even those who were held to be fools and charlatans. His search lasted many years and led him around the world several times. Often he thought he had found the answer, only to be proved wrong. Finally, the day arrived when he knew he was on the right track.

At a recently excavated tomb in the Valley of Kings near Thebes in Egypt, he discovered a certain passage on the North wall of a temple of Thoth. In the inscription was a name that he had seen only once before, five years ago in India. In both cases the translations produced the same name, a name that could only be translated as: The One Who Knows. The rest of the message led him back to India and that ancient and eldritch scroll upon which he had first read the name.

He spent two more years in India investigating the message upon thr scroll. Consultation with the greatest Indian philosophers and holy men produced nothing; even they were baffled by the scroll. The only certainty in the scroll was that name and a reference to a village on the border of what is now India and Tibet. It was more than a long shot, but he set out to scour the border in search of a village that could have vanished thousands of years ago. He stopped at every village and every spot that looked as if it might have been a village. Eighteen months later he found the village mentioned in the scroll. In the village was a legend of a man who long ago set off for the mountains, where he is said to still live.

With crude directions from the villagers, he left to find the man who was known to both the ancient Indians and Egyptians as The One Who Knows. Months passed, and several times he thought he would surely die. Several times he almost did. For one week he wandered in circles, delirious from fever. At one time he was almost swept away by an avalanche. At another a fall badly sprained his ankle. However, the time came when his months of braving the cold and solitude were rewarded.

Upon reaching the top of a particularly dangerous ledge, he saw a cave in the distance. At the mouth of the cave was a man. As he walked towards the cave he could see that the man was very old. At the same time he could see the power of this little old man. For though there was snow on the ground, and the air bitterly cold, and the wind blowing fiercely the old man wearing only a loincloth was sitting in the lotus position upon the snow. If he was cold, or in any way affected by the environment around him he did not show it. Not even his thin wispy beard was disturbed by the wind.

As the seeker approached, the old man opened his eyes and slowly bowed. His heart pounding, the seeker moved closer. "Are you The One Who Knows?" he asked with trembling voice.

Once more the old man bowed, this time in answer to the question.

Now his years of search were over. Soon he would know the secret of the universe. Soon the riddle of existence would be solved. With quivering lips, the man asked the question whose answer he had been seeking for the past twenty years.

"Tell me please, what is the secret of the universe? What is the true meaning of life? Why have we been placed upon this earth? What is the purpose of our existence?"

Slowly the old man raised his head, as if listening to some heavenly music. Soon he lowered his head and looked deeply into the eyes of the man before him. And with a soft, but clear voice the old man spoke.

"My son, that is the worst Ronald Colman impression I have ever heard."

GLOBE 586-0935 Northampton
THRU SAT.!! Jean Couteau's 7:00 & 9:00
Beauty and the Beast
The Harder, They Come
11:00 Fri. & Sat.
Mean Streets
Sun.-Tues.!!
$1.00
7:00 and 9:10
Mon. & Tues.

AMHERST Cinema
AMITY ST. 253-5426
Special Midnight Show
Friday 4/11 & Saturday 4/12
"BERNIE TRAVIS PLAYS LENNY WITH DEADLY PRECISION." PLAYBOY
ALL THE WILDNESS... THE LOVES...THE SEX... THE BUSTS... THE MAD HUMOR... ALL THE BRILLIANCE OF THE MAN HIMSELF.
Released by THE FANFARE CORPORATION
METROCOLOR
R RESTRICTED
Introducing BERNIE TRAVIS as LENNY BRUCE
Dirtymouth
The Lenny Bruce Story
DIRTY MOUTH: FRIDAY & SATURDAY — 12:00

MOUNTAIN FARMS FOUR
584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 - HADLEY MASS
WINNER 7 ACADEMY AWARDS
— BEST PICTURE · BEST DIRECTOR
all it takes is a little Confidence
PAUL NEWMAN / ROBERT REDFORD
ROBERT SHAW
"THE STING"
1 PG 6:00, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
They'd do anything for a story...and do.
JACK LEMMON · WALTER MATTHAU
THE FRONT PAGE
2 PG 6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
BEST PICTURE
NEW YORK FILM CRITICS
JUDITH CRIST
FELLINI'S AMARCORD
R
3 6:00, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:30-6:00 Only
Dustin Hoffman
"Lenny"
A Bob Fosse Film
4 R 6:15, 8:30
Twi-Lite Hour — $1.25 — 5:45-6:15 Only
TIMES CHANGE DAILY

EASTFIELD MALL
543 3304 Cinema
BOSTON RD / U S 20 at RT 21
Every Eve at 7:30-9:40
Mat. Wed.-Sat.-Sun.
1:30-3:30-5:30
The Reincarnation of Peter Proud
a BCP presentation R
Filmed in Springfield, Holyoke, Amherst, Northampton, Deerfield and other local areas.

Recognize this headline?

by Jeffrey Polman

++++the Taj Mahal
+++ Lincoln Center
++ Baystate West
+ John Adams Middle

AMARCORD++++
Fellini's newest masterpiece, a visual rememberance of his Italian boyhood, photographed with thoughtful splendor and loaded with amusing symbols, Federico has been long famous for. A treat from one of the cinema's more confusing but spontaneously loved filmakers. (Academy of Music and Mountain Farms Four)

BEYOND THE VALLEY OF THE DOLLS++
One of my good friend Russ Meyer's more recent abortions of taste, this time depicting a crew of mammoth-chested actresses who slide in and out, in and out of various movie sets with the pseudo-serious intentions of becoming stars. Whereas real hard-core movies psychologically release your inner libido and leave you in a good frame of mind at the conclusion, it is groin larcenies like this which are responsible for nine out of ten projectionist rapes and donut assaults. (C.C.A., 4-12, 7, 9, and 11)

CHARIOTS OF THE GODS++
Did meatheads from outer space visit the Earth a million years ago and establish pre-historic massage parlors? Is the Connecticut River really all that remains of a once-turbulent stream of the Green Giant's urine? Erich Von Straken asks many mind-reversing questions about the origins of our planet, but doesn't answer any of them in this innane "documentary". Kirk and McCoy watch this every weekend on the Enterprise and laugh their asses off. (MAHAR, 4-12, 7:30, 9:15 and 11:00

DIRTYMOUTH??
Another contrived documentary on Lenny Bruce, this one starring Bernie Travis as the deceased comic. Pretty soon we'll have Richard Nixon playing him. (Amherst Cinema)

EMMANUELLE++
A new skin flick, which like most of the other failures, tries to satisfy the viewer by not satisfying him. Here we have Penthouse-style photography coated over the perverted proceedings. (Campus Cinema)

FUNNY LADY+++
Barbra Streisand and James Caan shine in the musical sequel to Funny Girl. An excellent evening of entertainment if you like Streisand and-or musicals, but honestly, aren't you getting sick of sequels? (Showcase Cinemas)

THE GETAWAY++++
A sam Peckinpah thriller, his most entertaining, about bank robbers that actually make it to Mexico unscathed. Ali MacGraw can't act her way off of a cliff, but Steve McQueen saves the film from being anything below dramatic excellence. (TONIGHT in MAHAR, at 7 and 9:30)

LENNY++++
Dustin Hoffman's finest two hours as Lenny Bruce, the dead comic who is more famous today than most of the living ones. Bob Fosse directs in a black-and-white documentary style designed to fill in unaware viewers on the basic highs and lows of Bruce's life and wife (Valerie Perrine). Chock full of hysterical human situations, and alternately depressing ones. (Showcase Cinemas and Mountain Farms Four).

THE GREAT GATSBY++
This thing had great promise, but Paramount Pictures made three drastic mistakes in the pre-production stage: 1) they over-publicized, 2) they hired Jack Clayton, a British director, to make a film which is totally about America, and 3) they began shooting it. Redford, Farrow, and Bruce Dern are fairly decent as the leading characters in the F. Scott Fitzgerald classic, but it is the direction which nosedives the film.

There is too much nostalgia and not enough character depth, and the rapid-fire, high spirited credit sequence which destroys the peaceful mood at the end is enough to make you hide your eyes. But then there's the stars...and the color...and the costumes...and there you are, shelling out the money. (TONIGHT in the S.U.B., 7 and 9:45)

THE LION IN WINTER+++
Peter O'Toole and Katherien Hepburn received Oscar nominations for their roles in this historical drama about King Richard. Thematically, it's something you might see on Hallmark Hall of Fame, but its power and insight raise it way above the television level. (MAHAR, 4-11, 6:45, 9, 11:15)

THE MALTESE FALCON++++
Humphrey Bogart's most famous role, as Sam Spade, in this 1941 detective classic. Peter Lorre and Sidney Greenstreet almost steal the show in their supporting performances, but John Huston's crack direction keep the show from getting off balance. A must. (Herter 227, 4-15)

SHAMPOO++
The first film about a hair-dresser features Warren Beauty as the scissorstud who keeps his customers after shop hours. Julie Christie, Goldie Hawn, and Lee Grant play his girlfriends in this tight, nicely photographed, but incredibly overrated saga of adultery, sex before marraige (ye gads!), and other assorted hot combs. (Showcase Cinemas)

THE STEPFORD WIVES+++
Katherine Ross stars in this Ira Levin chiller about a mad plot to replace wives with look-alike robots in a small New England town. The idea is almost silly, but may someday be possible, so the action keeps one's attention with the unique kind of crispness only a horror story can offer. (Campus Cinemas)

STOLEN KISSES — BED AND BOARD+++
Sequels number 2 and 3 to Truffaut's early, the 400 Blows, featuring the adolescent adventures of a young man and his eventual marriage, which occurs by the time Bed and Board comes around. They are both injected with that special brand of coherent lightness which pervades much of Truffaut's work, although here you might find your head floating away after four hours of it. But as a brief sampling of recent French cinema it remains an ingeniously chosen double-bill. (S.U.B., 4-13, 7, 9, 11)

A WOMAN UNDER THE INFLUENCE++++etc.
John Cassevetes' masterpiece of human emotion, laying bare the inner workings of a woman's nervous breakdown. It's enterning its fourth week at the Campus Cinemas, which proves we can all be affected by another's sorrow if we only try.

5-College Films

AMHERST COLLEGE — Merrill Science Center
Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers: the Gay Divorcee (1934) (4-11, 7:30 and 9:30); Humphrey Bogart: To Have and Have Not (1944) (4-11, 4-12 8 and 10)

HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE — Franklin Patterson Hall
Eisenstein: Old and New (4-11, 8:00 p.m.)

SMITH COLLEGE — Sage Hall
The Paper Chase (4-12, 7:30 and 9:30)

MT. HOLYOKE COLLEGE — Gamble Auditorium
Steve McQueen: Love With the Proper Stranger (1964) (4-11, 7:30 p.m.); Good News (1947) (4-13, 2:00 p.m.); Hooker Aud — Man of Aran and the Village (4-10, 8:00); Hooker Aud. — Hepburn and Tracy: Without Love (1945) (4-12, 7:30)

How about this one?

LOCAL MUSIC

May Apple — Mt. View Frolics, April 10-11
Johnny Walker Blues Band — Mt. View Frolics, April 12
Muffin Band — Red Pantry, April 10-12
Hamilton Bates Blue Flames — Lazy River, April 10-13
Forest — Steak-out, April 10-12
Doc Sullivan — Pub, April 10-11 (3-6 p.m.)
Great Pretenders — Pub, April 12-13
Actual Proof — Blue Wall, April 10-12
D.J. — Pub, April 11 (9-11)
Home Cookin' — Hatch, April 10-12
Sheila & Loveflame — Hatch, April 10
Stacy Leeds — T.O.C., April 10-12
Big Screamin' McGrew — Rusty Nail, April 10-12
Muffin Band — Rusty Nail, April 13

Concerts

(T — Indicates Tickets on sale at CC Hotel)

UMass

Gospel Festival — April 10, C.C.A. (8 p.m.)
Black Musicians Concert, "A Tribute to Cal Massey"—April 11, S.U.B. (8 p.m.)

Amherst College

(All music at Gerald Penny Memorial Black Culture Center)
Unsung Heroes — April 12, 9 p.m.
Sound Revolution — April 19, 4 p.m.
David Wave Trio — April 26, 9 p.m.

Springfield

Johnny Winter-James Cotton Blues Band — April 11, Civic Center, T
John Denver — April 15, Civic Center T
Tony Orlando & Dawn — May 2, Civic Center T

Aerosmith — April 25, Civic Center T
Jeff Beck—Mahavishnu Orchestra — April 26, Civic Center T
Lou Reed—String Driven Thing — May 4, Civic Center T
James Taylor — May 17, Civic Center T
The Lettermen — May 22, Civic Center, T

West Harford

David Bromberg—Aztec 2 Step—
Jayne Olderman — april 12, Music Hall

Cape Cod Colliseum

Paul Anka — April 26
Boston Pops — May 20, Tentative

Providence, R.I.

John Denver — April 17, Civic Center SOLD OUT
Seals & Crofts — April 19, Civic Center
Ike & Tina Turner — April 24, Civic Center
Lou Reed — April 25, Palace Theatre
Frank Zappa — April 26, Palace Theatre
Tony Orlando & Dawn — April 30, Civic Center
Aerosmith — May 3, Civic Center
Frankie Valle — May 10, Civic Center
James Brown — May 11, Civic Center
Frank Sinatra — May 12, Civic Center ON SALE
Boston Pops — May 18, Civic Center
J. Geils Band — May 24, Civic Center

Boston

Kenny Rankin — April 10, Jazz Workshop
Miles Davis — April 10-13, Paul's Mall
Bobby Blue Bland — April 10-13, Sugar Shack
Little Feat—Allen Toussant — April 11, Orpheum T
Charles Mingus & Friends — April 11, Symphony Hall
Superstramp — April 12, Orpheum T
John Prine — April 12, Symphony Hall
Passport — April 14, Paul's Mall
Jose Feliciano — April 14, Harbour House Hotel
Ecstacy, Passion & Pain — April 14-20, Sugar Shack
Aerosmith—Wishbone Ash—Foghat —April 18-19, Boston Garden, T (18th Sold Out)
B.B. King—The Persuassions — April 18, Roberts Center, Boston College
Robin Trower — April 20, Music Hall T
The Main Ingredient — April 21-27, Sugar Shack
Lou Reed—String Driven Thing — April 24, Music Hall T
Alice Cooper—Suzi Quatro — April 26, Boston Garden T On Sale
Frank Zappa-Roy Buchanan — April 27, Music Hall T (Two Shows 7 & 10)
Creative Source — April 28-May 4, Sugar Shack
Jeff Beck—Mahavishnu Orchestra — Music Hall, May 3 T
America — Music Hall, May 4 T
Maria Muldaur — Roberts Center, Boston College, April 25
Dr. John — Commodore Concert Club, Lowell April 18
Wendy Waldman—Tim Weisberg — Harvard Square Theatre, April 30
Janus Ian — Paul's Mall, April 18-20

Alternate meeting approved

Trustees review union policy

By DONNA FUSCO
Staff Reporter

By failing to notify the UMass Board of Trustees Committee on Student Affairs that the SGA wanted it to review the Student Union Enabling policy, a full vote on the Policy could have been delayed until the summer.

The Trustees' Student Affairs Committee meeting scheduled for April 15 was cancelled when it appeared that there were only a few items on the agenda, but an alternate meeting was scheduled yesterday when the committee was notified of the students desire to have the Committee study it.

A meeting to discuss the Policy, which sets the guidelines by which a student union can be formed, is now being tentatively scheduled by Alan Shaler, Chairman of the Committee, for Tuesday, April 22.

Shaler emphasized this is a tentative arrangement worked out yesterday over the phone with Gladys Kieth Hardy, secretary of the University.

Hardy cancelled the meeting in a memo dated April 8 because of a "lack of items on the agenda." SGA President Rick Savini was notified of the cancellation yesterday morning.

Hardy said after consulting with Shaler, they agreed there was "nothing on the agenda that couldn't wait."

Both she and Shaler told the Collegian yesterday they were "unaware of the unionization question."

Savini said yesterday that he hadn't talked to Hardy or Shaler but he had spoken at length with Vice-President of the University Peter Edelman and Chancellor Randolph

turn to page 9

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
TELEPHONE 545-3500
VOLUME CIII, ISSUE 46
FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1975

weather

Soft winds arouse me, as I lie in the sun.
With temps in the fifties, I've only begun!

Governors approve 1976 CC-SU budget

By FRED NOBLES
Staff Reporter

With certain "stipulations included" the Campus Center Board of Governors last night approved the 1976 Campus Center-Student Union budget. The budget requires no change in the $64 annual Campus Center fee payed by all students.

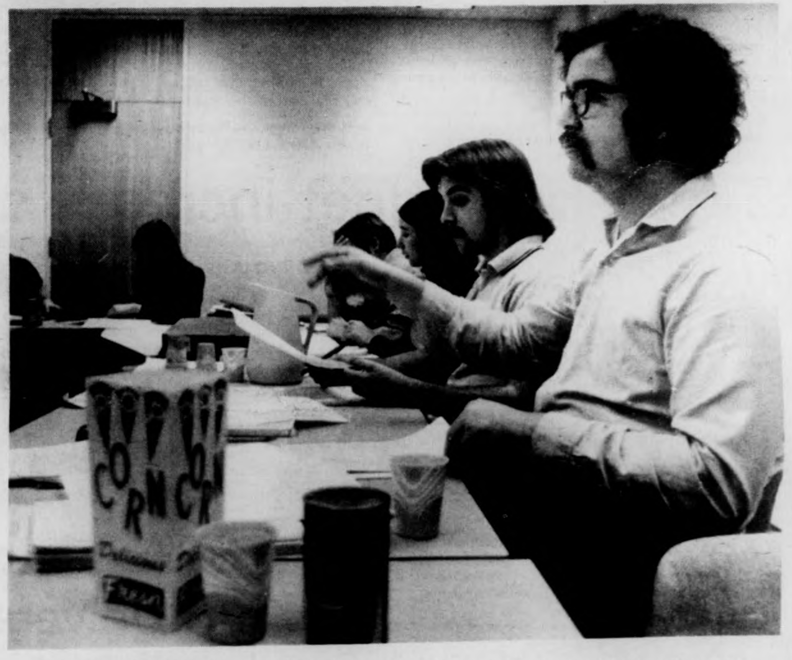
Incorporated into last night's budgeting process were two proposals to "evaluate the feasibility" of cutting the budget further.

Board member Chris McCarty introduced a motion charging the board's program council to investigate the possibility of establishing a student committee to program TOC, Blue Wall and Hatch entertainment.

McCarty said such a committee would cut $11,000 out of the budget by eliminating the need for both an assistant beverage manager and an auxiliary services manager.

In support of the motion, board member Sally Gotschall said that "students know better what groups they want to hear than non-students do" Gotschall further pointed out that the establishment of a "Talent Selection Committee" would make the elimination of one of the full time positions possible because the committee could do much of the time consuming work of auditioning bands.

Food Services Manager Phil Amico said he thought it was a good idea but the extra full time position should not be eliminated until an adequate program could be implemented.



Staff Photo by Chrs Bourne

Over coke and popcorn, Jeff Taggert and Mark Bennett, along with the rest of the Campus Center Board of Governors discuss the budget for the upcoming year last night.

The board also voted to evaluate an hourly employee position in the fast foods operation.

Board Chairperson Jeff Taggart said the board "hired the assistant fast foods manager with the understanding that he would stay only until the new food manager learned the whole operation."

The elimination of the assistant would cut the CC budget by $8,000.

Chairperson Taggart announced at the beginning of last night's meeting that he had received a response from Vice-Chancellor Robert Gage concerning the

turn to page 9

UPI Telephoto

PRESIDENT FORD delivers his State of the World address to a joint session of Congress.

Ford requests $1 billion, troops to rescue South Viets, Americans

Compiled from Wires

WASHINGTON — President Foro asked Congress yesterday to provide within the next nine days nearly $1 billion in aid for South Vietnam and to give him authority to use troops to rescue Americans and tens of thousands of South Vietnamese.

"A vast human tragedy has befallen our friends in Vietnam and Cambodia," the President reported in his nationally broadcast address.

Specifically, in his State of the World address to a joint session of the House and Senate, Ford requested $722 million more in arms and $250 million in economic and humanitarian aid for the Saigon government.

The $972 million combined military and economic request for South Vietnam more than triples the $300 million Ford sought in January and which Congress has not yet approved.

"The national interests of the United States and the cause of world stability require that we continue to give both military and humanitarian assistance to the South Vietnamese," Ford said.

Ford asked nothing for beleaguered Cambodia. Administration officials said it is too late for aid — Cambodia's fate would be decided in a matter of days.

He also called on Hanoi to halt all military operations in South Vietnam, and said he is urgently asking the nations who signed the 1973 Paris peace accords, including Russia and China, "to meet their obligation to use their influence to halt fighting and to enforce the 1973 accords."

Many in Congress said they were stunned by Ford's request of $722 million in new military aid for South Vietnam. He also asked $200,000 in humanitarian aid, and Congress promised to be generous.

"I can't conceive of this Congress voting $722 million in military aid for South Vietnam," said House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill.

"There would have to be a complete turnaround in the opinion of the American public — as I read it talking with members when they came back from the Easter recess — to support such aid."

Jackson, the Washington Democrat who is running for the presidential nomination, dismissed Ford's military aid request out of hand.

"Oh, it's dead," he said. "$300 million Ford's first request was dead. I don't know of anybody on the Democratic side who would vote for it."

Ford said Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, Army Chief of Staff just back from a fact-finding trip to Saigon, said the South Vietnamese "urgently" need the $722 million in military aid "if there is to be any chance of success for their defense plan."

turn to page 9

African nation seeks independence

Journalist describes 'oppressed' Namibia

By JAN ALEXANDER
Staff Reporter

Calling the Southwest African country of Namibia "the most oppressed country in the world," British journalist Roger Moody spoke yesterday afternoon before an attentive audience of 15 persons.

Moody said that on May 30 the United Nations will make the crucial decision as to whether Namibia deserves independence from Southwest Africa. The journalist has been in the U.S. since January forming action groups for Namibian independence.

Up until World War I, the country was under the control of the German government which created genocide between the tribes to take over the farmland. The population dropped by 50 per cent, Moody explained.

After WWI, the country was turned over to England and later to Southwest Africa. In 1966, the General Assembly declared SW Africa was illegally in control of Namibia, according to Moody.

The journalist said the country is a wealth of natural resources including uranium, copper, farmlands, fish, and Persian lamb pelts. "All of the minerals are in the hands of the whites," said Moody.

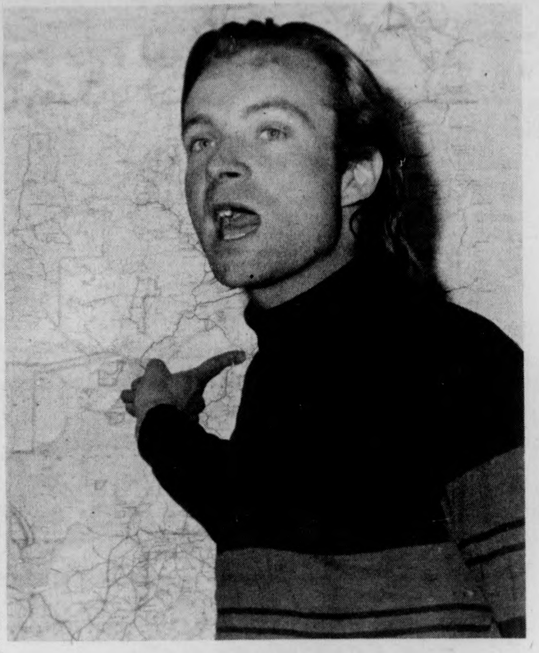
"The question of what to do with the minerals has not come up," he said, "because Namibia has been too busy trying to become independent."

"60 countries fish in Namibian waters, taking 90 per cent of the fish supply," he said. "In the meantime, one half of all Namibian children die due to protein deficiency."

Aside from an interest in Namibian resources, the U.S. sees all of South Africa as "A soft underbelly for American defense," said Moody. "NATO is invoked as a reason for U.S. military involvement in South Africa."

In reference to South Africa's apartheid, Moody said a 1971 memoradum by the National Security Council laid out quite specifically that the State Dept. would maintain a dual attitude toward South Africa, and not disrupt the apartheid.

"I don't think the Pentagon is prepared to see white South Africa fall," he said.



Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

Roger Moody points to map during yesterday's lecture on plight of Namibia.

5-College budget increase spurs bus proposals

'The big problem has been overcrowding' — Soule

By NANCY DAWSON
Staff Reporter

Approval of a record $236,000 transportation budget has allowed the Transportation Committee of the Five College Student Coordinating Board (FCSCB) to propose further improvements in the Five College Bus System.

The 1975-76 budget was approved on March 21 by the UMass Chancellor and the Presidents of the other four colleges in the area.

Robert Soule, an Amherst College representative and head of the FCSCB Transportation Committee, said this year's budget increased from $190,000 in 1974-75 and $105,000 in 1973-74.

The FCSCB contribution of $50,000 to the newly approved budget came from student government allocation at all five colleges, said Soule. As stated in a report from the Transportation Committee, "This financial stake in the system has enabled the FCSCB to gain a significant voice in policy making."

"That shows student intensity in the matter," Soule commented.

Head Manager of the Five College Bus System, Robert Jordon, composed the budget and justifications for it. Soule said, "we never would've gotten it through without him."

"Jordon is very pro-bus, pro-student," he said.

According to the Transportation Committee report, the proposed improvements for the bus system are:

— The addition of a third bus on Route 2 (Smith-UMass-Amherst) with buses leaving every 20 to 25 minutes.

— Half-hourly week-end night service.

— A two-way radio communications system for all the buses to aid in driver supervision and the handling of breakdowns.

— The employment of a full-time, professional Head Manager.

— The creation of more student jobs.

"The big problem has been overcrowding and the buses are running erratically on the week-ends right now," Soule said.

Four bus routes presently serve the Five College area, where there were only two at first. The bus system originated in 1967, along with the start of Five College coordination.

"The system has improved every single year. I don't see too much more expansion after this and the Presidents don't either because they're shelling out a lot of money," said Soule.

The improvement proposals will be presented for approval next fall.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Editors

Editor in Chief	Bill Parent
Managing Editor	Frits Geurtsen
Executive Editor	B.J Roche
News Editor	Richard Wright
Sports Editor	Ben Caswell
Photo Editor	Dennis Conlon
Fine Arts Editor	Tyla L. Michelove
Black Affairs Editor	Sherwood Thompson
Associate Editors
Wire Editors	Fred Gosiewski, Louise Pearson
Assistant Managing Editor	Chris Dillard
Assistant Executive Editor	E. Patrick McQuaid
Assistant News Editors	Judy Boucher, Cindy Rogers
Assistant Sports Editor	Scott Hayes
Assistant Photo Editor	Dick Leonard
Assistant Fine Arts Editors	Michael C. Kostek II, Andrew MacKenzie
Assistant Black Affairs Editor	Cal Whitworth
Business
Business Manager	Ken Shapiro
Advertising Manager	Gary Williams
Production Manager	Betsy Harkins
Assistant Business Manager	Bob Kriensky
Assistant Advertising Managers	Alan Anastos, Paul Kontrimas
TODAY'S STAFF
Issue Editor	Walt Powers
Layout and Graphics	Sue Blethen, Ron Chait
Editorial Layout	Mike Izdepski
Sports Layout	Chas O'Connor, Bill Doyle
Darkroom Staff	Chris Bourne, Rob Carlin
Ad Layout	Avis Yuni

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrator reads it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the student body, faculty or administration. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertising lies with the individual advertiser.

On-campus delivery guaranteed by 10 a.m.

Mail delivery to Amherst area same day of business day publication. In Massachusetts the following day. Outside Massachusetts, no delivery guarantee.

Send check or money order to The Daily Collegian. Allow 2 weeks for delivery start.

Second-class postage is paid in Amherst, MA., 01002. THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN publishes Monday through Friday during the academic year, except during vacation, exam periods or holidays. Accepted for mailing under the authority of an act of March 8, 1879; as amended by an act of June 11, 1943.

The office of the MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN is on the second floor of the Student Union on the campus of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002, telephone: 545-3500.

SBA Inc. recommends alternative to Universal Resource Fee

By AL COLARUSSO
Staff Reporter

SBA Inc., a student-managed corporation of doctoral candidates in business, has recommended that the administration immediately establish an office of dormitory space rental sales and bring in occupants during the summer period as an alternative to the Universal Resource Fee.

The SBA report, requested by the Graduate Student Senate, says a substantial market exists for low-cost housing to accommodate church groups and popular group conferences. An increase in dormitory revenues could be realized by seeking this market, according to the report.

"Purdue University and several Midwestern state universities have lowered the losses or increased revenues on dormitories substantially by attracting these group conferences," the report says.

Groups such as the Latter Day Saints, Seventh Day Adventists, church women, church laymen groups and youth conventions, the report adds, are eager to find housing but are not considered customers for convention hotel sales because of the lack of money.

At the same time, the plan would not represent a major competition to the local hotel and motel industry.

They would find an "overflow effect" from large conferences since speakers, professional staff and certain higher income attendees would probably prefer private hotel accommodations, according to the report.

Also benefiting from this plan would be: local business, campus cultural and fine arts events, the bookstore, parking, and employment to many full and part-time personnel.

SBA Inc. estimates that $2.5 million could be raised during the summer of 1976 by initiating this plan. The figures are based on 70 per cent occupany of 10,000 gross rooms at $6 per room.

Studio 75
University Theater
Jean Anouich's
THE CAVERN
This weekend 2:00 p.m.
on Sunday. Call 545-3511
Call 545-3511
Fine Arts Center

POOR RICHARD'S
Discotheque
Every Fri.
Happy Hour
4 to 7 p.m.

Expects sewerage completion before Fall

Fine Arts Center will reopen to public events

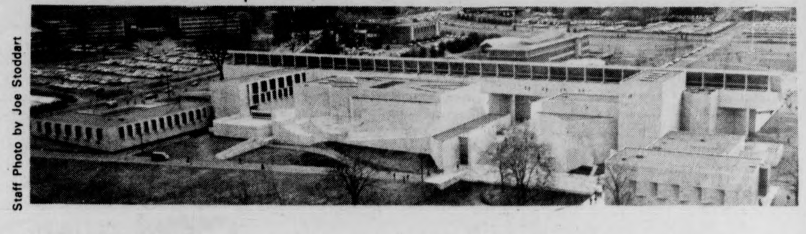
By FRED GOSIEWSKI
Staff Reporter

Public performances at the Fine Arts Center (FAC), which have been suspended by Amherst due to inadequate sewerage facilities in the town, are still scheduled to begin next semester as previously announced, according to FAC Director Frederick Steinway.

"As of September, we will be able to use it (the FAC) for public events," he said, adding that the building is being used only for academic purposes at the present time.

Amherst, under orders from the State Division of Water Pollution Control, refused to connect new buildings to its sewer lines. The town has been under a restriction from the state for three years, according to Amherst Town Manager Allen Torrey.

Last October, construction on a new outfall sewer, which connects the sewerage treatment plant in Hadley to the Connecticut River, began. Torrey said that completion of the new line is expected "by summer."



Staff Photo by Joe Stoddart

Staff Photo by Joe Stoddart

Fine Art toilets await Amherst approval for link-up with sewer system.

Torrey added that the sewer line was not constructed because the Fine Arts Center opened recently. Rather, he said, it was necessary for Amherst to satisfy the requirements to have the three-year-old restrictions lifted.

Steinway said that last year, UMass Director of Planning H.J. Littlefield applied for an exemption to the ban on connecting new buildings to the sewer. However, the exemption was lifted only for academic purposes. Steinway said the reason behind this partial exemption was that the changing of academic offices on campus would not add to the sewerage.

Public performances that would attract larger audiences were not exempted from the ban. "The town did not want performances that will bring people on campus," said Steinway.

"I think they had visions of 2000 people coming in here every night," he added. The Concert Hall in the building seats 2000, and the theater holds 650.

Steinway, who became director last June, said someone should have anticipated the inadequacy of the sewerage facilities in Amherst.

"No one really looks down the road and plans for the future," he said, adding, "Suddenly they wake up and look in the mirror and realize it is a crisis."

Three academic departments have already occupied the Fine Arts Center, and they are the only three scheduled to have offices there, according to Steinway. The Departments of Music and Theater Arts are "fully in and operational," he said, while the Department of Visual Arts has not yet completely moved in.

Noting that there has been a "tremendous increase in interest" in the arts, Steinway said that, "for the first time, the arts have proper housing." He also said the off-campus region will benefit from the Fine Arts Center, especially since the area will have "a proper concert hall" for the first time.

Expecting the Fine Arts Center to be operational this fall, the Arts Council has scheduled two symphonies for the new building. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Seiji Ozawa, and the Boston Pops, conducted by Arthur Fiedler, are booked for two consecutive nights this October.

Witke tells of wife of Mao Tse Tung

By MEREDITH MANNING and EILLEN GAVIN
Progressive News Service

Roxane Witke, a specialist in Chinese women's history and a member of the East Asian Research Center of Harvard University, discussed her historic interview with Chiang Ch'ing, the wife of Mao Tse Tung and leader of the Cultural Revolution last night in Thompson Hall.

Speaking to an audience of approximately one hundred people, Witke outlined the various transitional periods in Chiang Ch'ing's eventful life, including her transformation from a politically naive actress to a dedicated activist in the Communist Party.

Throughout her life she developed an interest in the performing arts, as well as the organizational talent which gave her the background for the prominent role which she played in the cultural upheaval of the sixties.

After marrying Mao Tse Tung in the late 1930's, tension festered among the members of the Central Committee over the nature of her political affiliations. She remained in the background for a decade following her marriage, but then became active during the fifties.

Chiang Ch'ing, astonished by the degree to which the performing arts "didn't fit and socialist base" in the late fifties, set into motion programs which would restructure the arts into more revolutionary forms. She took control over the direction of ballet, opera and symphony, making them more reflective of proletariat consciousness.

"She took over the arts of a nation four times the size of ours, and thus transformed the arts into the perfect sounding board for communist ideology," Witke said.

Witke revealed her dislike for the limitations which were imposed on films, and said, "It was a tragedy that filmmakers were immobilized."

Witke spoke of the conflict between Chiang Ch'ing's "being a comrade in her own right and her ardent dedication to her husbands views." Chiang Ch'ing does not wish to be perceived as a leader of the women's movement, but rather as a leader of the Cultural Revolution. Her view is that the Women's Movement must be conducted within the overall class struggle, Witke said.

When asked why Witke was given the opportunity to record Chiang Ch'ing's life, she said, "Chiang Ch'ing would like her history preserved. She sees herself as a romantic character in the revolution, but in China there is no vehicle for expressing this."

Staff photos by Rob Carlin

Roxane Witke smiles as she discusses her historic interview with the wife of Mao Tse Tung.

FacSen revises calendar, accepts program merger

Due to the shortness of the fall semester, the faculty felt that the curriculum of many courses had to be unduly condensed.

By BILL GONET
Staff Reporter

The faculty senate in a two and a half hour session revised next year's academic calendar and accepted a report recommending the merger of the University Year for Action (UYA) and Outreach programs.

In opening remarks Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery reported that the external visiting committee investigating the School of Ed will be meeting on campus, conducting interviews with students and faculty. Bromery also reported that the external committee will hold a meeting open to the public this Saturday from 5 to 7 p.m.

Senate delegate to the Board of Trustees, Prof. Stephenson Fletcher, in his report on last week's board of trustee's meeting, related the following remarks from Board Chairman Joseph P. Healey: "In light of the difficult budget situation, ... I feel the University must rally around the President's office ... I wish students and faculty would stop taking cheap shots at the President's office."

The revised academic calendar for 1975-76 provides for a fourteen week Fall semester and a fourteen week Spring semester.

The calendar revision resulted from the senate's adoption of an amended proposal contained in a report prepared by the Space and Calendar Committee.

Presently, the academic year is divided into a thirteen week Fall semester and a fourteen week Spring semester. Due to the shortness of the Fall semester, the faculty felt that the curriculum of many courses had to be unduly condensed.

To correct the imbalance without starting classes before Labor Day and without extending the exam period beyond December 19, the Calendar committee report proposed to shorten the registration period from three days to one, to eliminate the final exam reading day, and to shorten the final exam period from eight days to four.

According to Prof. Anthony Borton, chairperson of the Calendar Committee, the feasibility of shortening the final exam period was based on statistics which indicated that on the average "2.9 exams are scheduled for each student."

"Shortening the final exam period will subject some students to 2 to 3 exams in one day." objected Dean Alfange, Dean of the Faculty of Sociology and Behavorial Science. "We should not subject students to this because of a statistical mean which says that most have an average of 2.9 exams."

" ... Students are under enough pressure in having only one reading day to prepare a semester's work," said student Hillary Martick. " ... If you take it away and squeeze exams into only four days, ... it's really unfair."

In response to these objections, the senate adopted the amendment proposed by Dean Alfange which extends the Fall and Spring final exam period from four days to six days.

The revised calendar for next year in its amended form begins Fall classes on September 3, shortens registration to one day, and provides for a final period beginning on Tuesday, December 16 to Monday, December 22. The spring calendar will follow the same format.

The Senate's adoption of a report by the Ad Hoc Committee on Intern Evaluation, recommending the merger of UYA and Outreach, was accompanied by passage of a motion requesting the Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs to accept the recommendations contained in the report.

Spokesman for the committee on intern evaluation, Professor Anthony Quinton cited changes in the administration of funding as the rationale behind the merger.

Presently UYA is federally funded; while Outreach is funded by UMass. As of July of this year, it is proposed that both will be funded by the University.

UYA director, Dr. Ruth W. Burgin, and Outreach Director, Richard Sokol both approved the merger.

Communists troops attack 25 miles from Saigon

South puts up stiff resistance

SAIGON [UPI] — The Communists attacked with tanks and artillery to within 25 miles of Saigon yesterday but met stiff resistance from South Vietnamese troops backed by air strikes visible from the capital.

The heaviest fighting was along Highway 1 and tens of thousands of civilians fled the area, some toward Communist lines and others in the direction of Saigon. Field reports said government regulars and militiamen were standing fast against North Vietnamese troops.

South Vietnamese F5 Freedom Fighter jets supported by helicopter gunships pounded Communist positions outside Trang Bom district town, 25 miles northeast of Saigon.

Columns of black smoke could be seen on the horizon from downtown Saigon streets.

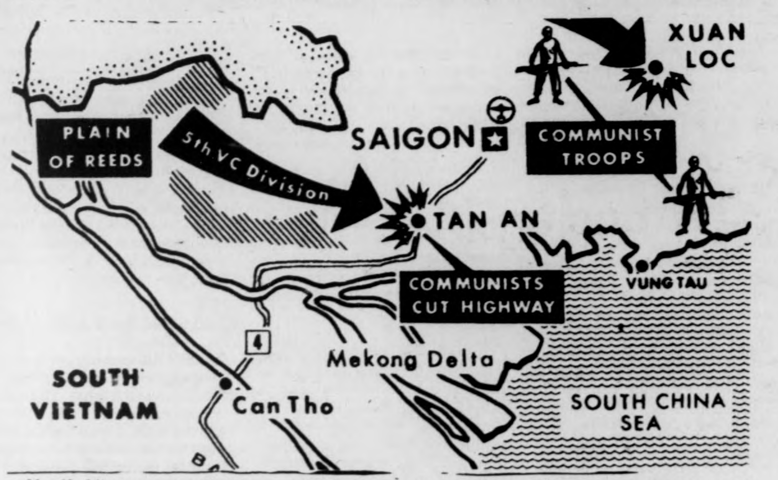
Communist tanks and infantrymen entered the province capital of Xuan Loc, 38 miles northeast of the capital, and field reports said artillery rounds struck a Catholic church where hundreds of women and children had taken refuge.

Fleeing civilians said some of those inside the church were killed or wounded but they could supply no other details. The Saigon command said the Communists during the past 24 hours fired nearly 5,000 rocket, artillery and mortar rounds into the Xuan Loc area, whose population is predominantly Chinese-most of them having fled North Vietnam 20 years ago.

Fighting also broke out Thursday along Highway 15 leading to the coastal resort city of Vung Tau, 45 miles southeast of Saigon. Reporters in the field said marines there had orders to blow up bridges outside Vung Tau if the Communists launch a major assault on the city, which is crowded with thousands of refugees who fled there from the north.

The fight for Xuan Loc was seen as the first major test for government troops in provinces around Saigon following humiliating defeats suffered in the northern and central regions of South Vietnam.

American officers here believe the Communists may next try to assault Bien Hoa, 14 miles northeast of Saigon. It is the headquarters base of the government's Military Region III and major air force units. Bien Hoa also is adjacent to the vast Long Binh supply base which was U.S. Army headquarters in Vietnam during the direct American military involvement here.



North Vietnamese divisions attacked two provincial capitals near Saigon, and reportedly partially occupied them. Xuan Loc is 38 miles to the north of Saigon, and Tan An is to the South. An offensive against the capital city is expected to start from these towns.

Cambodians withdraw after new rebel attack

PHNOM PENH [UPI] — Cambodian rebels overran a government outpost less than two miles from Phnom Penh's vital airport yesterday and fired a heavy rocket barrage that damaged an American transport plane and forced suspension of the U.S. food airlift.

Government forces retreated both south and east from the capital's porous, defense perimeter. To the east, two battalions of government forces fled their posts on the east bank of the Mekong River and swam across to the capital. Government forces now control only a three-mile stretch of the east bank.

South of the besieged capital, about 300 government defenders abandoned two positions only 5½ miles from the city and two miles from the suburb of Takhmau. Rebel forces heavily shelled the retreating troops.

Rockets and recoilless rifle fire fell on Phnom Penh streets. Nearly 40 artillery shells and rockets hit the capital's Pochentong airport. One of them killed three Cambodian cargo handlers and wounded seven others. An American C130 Transport carrying a load of ammunition was damaged, though there were apparently no injuries to the civilian crew.

The airport shelling forced a four-hour suspension of the U.S. food airlift from Saigon when cargo handlers fled the airport after their co-workers were killed or injured.

In Washington, White House sources said U.S. authorities Thursday ordered the evacuation of more Americans from Phnom Penh. They said about 500 persons including a diminished U.S. Embassy staff of 25 remain in Phnom Penh where Communist forces were within field mortar range of the airport.

The sources said that any final evacuation could only come after a request from the U.S. ambassador.

Indochina developments

Pacts dispute arises

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield indicated yesterday the furor over "secret agreements" with South Vietnam in 1973 is a matter of word definitions, but Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said it could all be resolved by a look at the documents.

Mansfield told reporters Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was technically correct in assuring Congress that no secret agreements existed. Kissinger, he said, stuck "to the letter" of what a secret agreement is, and thus avoided fully answering congressional questions on Vietnam commitments.

Jackson called for Senate hearings on the matter, and said publication of the secret documents would show how they were worded.

"I think what we need is to find out for ourselves the meaning of those agreements," Jackson said, adding that he thinks the Senate has the right to subpoena them.

"What we need to know is not what Nixon stated publicly but the specific and complete language of the communications and all papers relating to the communications between the governments of the United States and South Vietnam and their representatives," Jackson said.

Viet waste charged

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Government investigators have found that the South Vietnamese military ordered millions of dollars worth of trucks and other equipment it could not use and let much of it go to waste, it was learned yesterday.

A report to Congress by the General Accounting Office said in recent months the South Vietnam Army, Navy and Air Force routinely ordered and received millions of dollars worth of unneeded material from the United States.

The GAO said it "identified vehicles worth more than $76 million that exceeded requirements and believes that, when Vietnamese Army equipment inventories are completed, many more millions of dollars of equipment exceeding requirements will be disclosed."

In addition to ordering much more than it could use and wasting men and money for maintenance, the report said, the Vietnamese military allowed much of the equipment to deteriorate by exposure to the weather.

More orphans leave

By United Press International

A U.S. Air Force plane flew the first group of Cambodian war orphans toward eventual adoption in the United States yesterday, and South Vietnam unexpectedly agreed to let all 219 children under age 10 leave the An Lac orphanage for Ft. Benning, Ga.

An Air Force spokesman at Clark Air Force Base in the Phillippines said a C141 Starlifter flew the Cambodian orphans to the base 50 miles north of Manila from the U.S. air base in Utapao, Thailand. They ranged in age from 3 months to 12 years.

FOURTH ANNUAL BLACK MUSICIANS CONCERT
"A Tribute to Cal Massey"
Lonnie Liston Smith and the Cosmic Echoes
also Jimmy Garrison — Bassist
Grachan Moncur — Trombonist
Zane Massey — Reeds
Friday, April 11, 1975
Student Union Ballroom 8:00 p.m.
Admission Free
Sponsored by:
Afro-Am Society
Harambee
Union of 3rd World Women
3rd World Caucus of Central Area
Commuter Assembly
Orchard Hill Music Committee
Program Council Executive Comm.
Malcolm X Room
Provost Office
New Africa House

it's time for another . . .
GAY DANCE
FRIDAY, APRIL 11
9 p.m. Farley Lodge
$1.00 — Refreshments Served
Student Homophile League
and
Gay Women's Caucus

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors . . . areospace and aeronautical engineering majors . . . majors in electronics . . . computer science . . . mathematics.

The Air Force needs people . . . many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit . . . 4-year, 3-year, or 2-year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officers commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Contact Major Goodhue Dickinson Hall
545-2437
Put it all together in Air Force ROTC.

Sports betting may be illegally used

Public safety chief testifies at hearings

BOSTON [AP] — Organized crime would use sports betting for its own illicit advantage if wagering on baseball, basketball and football were legalized, the Massachusetts state police chief told the National Gambling Commission yesterday.

John F. Kehoe Jr., state commissioner of public safety, testified during the second of three days of hearings that legalized off-track betting would add revenues to the state and reduce to some extent the money flowing to organized crime.

"This would not necessarily be true in sports bookmaking, as I feel the organized crime element throughout the country would utilize a state operation as a lay-off center when they, the individual bookmakers, have over-extended themselves on bets," Kehoe said.

"This is similar to an operation used on occasion at a horse track where a bookmaker who has over-extended on a particular horse, will approach a window and get as much coverage as he can through the parimutuel machines."

However, Boston police commissioner Robert J. diGrazie and Kenneth T. Lyons, national president of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers, testified that all forms of gambling should be legalized because present laws are unenforceable.

DiGrazia said the question should not be whether gambling ought to be legalized but how. He did not supply an answer but said he would prefer it be under state control rather than private because "the profits would still be going to organized crime. I don't want to be in favor of legalizing hoods."

He said gambling was a criminal offense in the first place because some people wanted to impose their standards of morality on everybody else.

"We are burdened with unenforceable laws which nobody wants enforced," di Grazia said.

"Everyone from the casual poker player to the number enthusiast to the big businessman to the parish priest — everyone wants to gamble.

"And I cannot see a single reason why they should not be permitted to do so," the police commissioner said.

Lyon said the 40,000 members of the police brotherhood, largest law enforcement union in the nation, said laws to outlaw gambling merely force it underground.

He also said the emphasis on enforcement of such laws drastically misdirects the attention and resources of law enforcement agencies from other types of criminal activities.

"State legislative bodies can enact statute upon statute, but they are not going to succeed in abolishing illegal gambling," he said. "It seems plain to us that the only logical way to deprive organized crime of the fruits of gambling is to legalize it and control it," Lyon said.

The Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling, the panel's official name, has been studying gambling in the United States and its impact on society.

The 15-member panel must make a report with its recommendations, on what it believes the nation's policy toward gambling should be, to the President and the Congress by October, 1976.

The three days of hearings in Boston, which end today, are part of a series of regional meetings it will hold around the country in an attempt to gather the ideas of local officials. It has held hearings in Washington lotteries, sports gambling and horse racing.

Garrity says new busing plan may stop violence in Boston schools

BOSTON [AP] — A federal judge said yesterday that a proposed new integration plan could defuse the tensions that erupted into racial violence in Boston schools during the past year.

Judge W. Arthur W. Garrity Jr. said in U.S. District Court that he would adopt key features of the plan which was written by four masters he appointed.

In particular, Garrity said he liked the idea of establishing 32 "magnet schools." Each would offer training in a special field, such as airplane maintenacne and health care, and all would reflect the racial composition of the city at large.

"This network of citywide magnet schools appears to me like an enormous valve on the racial tensions of the parents and students of the city," Garrity said.

Assignment to the schools would be voluntary, he said, and students would know the racial makeup before they enrolled.

"This is what makes the plan imaginative and hopefully so effective," the judge said.

"The fact of the racial ratio being absolutely predictable makes the program predictable. It's going to be predictably peaceful. The kids aren't going to be as anxious about the possibility of a rumble in the cafeteria at noon. It's going to be a relaxed atmosphere where you won't have almost as many police officers as you have students."

The city wide schools will be 51 percent white, 36 percent black and 13 percent other minorities, he said.

Garrity has been overseeing integration of Boston schools since he ordered them desegregated when they opened last fall. That integration plan was temporary, however, and left out some sections of the city. It required the busing of about 18,000 pupils.

Prosecution rests in Connally trial

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Watergate prosecutors rested their bribery case against John B. Connally yesterday, still relying heavily on the testimony of lawyer Jake Jacobsen that he gave the former Treasury secretary two payoffs totaling $10,000.

Connally's trial on two counts of bribery was recessed until Monday morning, when his lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, will argue a routine motion for dismissal of the charges.

Although the government put 36 witnesses on the stand in the first seven days of the trial, Jacobsen was the only one who testified directly about the payoffs.

He said he paid the money to Connally in 1971 to enlist his help in getting an increase in milk price supports and conspired with him again in 1973 to cover up the transaction.

The other 35 witnesses all presented circumstantial evidence to bolster Jacobsen's testimony. A Treasury Department secretary verified the two met on the days of the alleged payoffs.

An official of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., said he gave Jacobsen the money. Bank tellers told of Jacobsen's visits to safety deposit boxes on the relevant dates, and hotel clerks told of more meetings between the two men.

Seventeen of the witnesses were Federal Reserve bank officials who traced the dates of one batch of bills totaling $10,000 that Jacobsen said Connally gave him two years after the alleged payoffs in an attempt to cover up the transaction.

Kennedy opposes anti-abortion bill

WASHINGTON [UPI] — Insisting he personally opposes abortion, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D—Mass., led a successful floor fight yesterday to defeat an antiabortion measure.

The Senate essentially killed the amendment by voting 54 to 36 to table it. The amendment would have barred the use of federal funds "to pay for or encourage the performance of abortions, except such abortions as are necessary to save the life of the mother."

Kennedy argued with antiabortion senators during debate and urged defeat of the measure. "This is not the place to resolve this issue," he said.

At one point, he angrily accused Sen. James L. Buckley, R—N.Y., of distorting his position on abortion.

The amendment would have been attached to a three-year, $2.5 billion health services and nurse training bill supported by Kennedy.

With little discussion after the abortion debate, the Senate approved the bill, 77 to 14.

In addition to extending federal funding authority for community mental health, migrant and family planning services — which the administration wants to scale down or eliminate — the bill would set up a new rape prevention and control study in the National Institutes of Mental Health.

Kennedy opposed the antiabortion amendment on the procedural grounds that no hearings had been held and that it raises "serious kinds of constitutional questions" in denying certain legally prescribed services.

news summary

Cabinet opposes cut

BOSTON [UPI] — Several members of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' cabinet have warned proposed cuts of $290 million in state welfare programs may be too severe and "it's going to hurt a lot of people."

The negative comments came Thursday during a 90 minute open cabinet meeting on the proposed cuts. Dukakis is expected to make a final recommendation on the plan early next week.

"It's going to hurt a lot of people. I'm particularly concerned about the elderly," said Environmental Affairs Secretary Evelyn Murphy.

She was joined by Transportation Secretary Fred Salvucci, Consumer Affairs Secretary Lola Dickerman and Education Secretary Paul Parks in expressing reservations about the plan to cut General Relief, Medicaid and other welfare programs.

Students protest cuts

PROVIDENCE, R.I. [UPI] — On the eve of a strike vote, more than 2,000 Brown University students rallied yesterday in support of changes in the school's proposed budget for the new academic year.

The secret ballot vote was scheduled all day today on a proposal to boycott classes next week. The Brown University Corp. meets April 19 on the Ivy League campus to take final action on a new budget.

The student coalition, formed last month in protest of budget priorities and proposed cuts in financial aid, student services, the number of junior faculty members and programs primarily affecting minority students.

Boston is expensive

BOSTON [AP] — Boston is No. 1 for the third year in a row as the most expensive city for a family to live in the mainland United States.

A report by the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics says heavy taxes and the cost of housing kept Boston at the top of the list of 38 urban centers across the country, Hawaii and Alaska excluded.

The greater New York area ranked second and Hartford, Conn., was third.

The report also said Boston was the fourth highest city in terms of food costs.

Bailey dies

HARTFORD [AP] — John Moran Bailey, 70, former national Democratic chairman and leader of the state party for more than a quarter century, died Thursday after a long battle with throat cancer.

Although stricken two years ago, Bailey continued to run the party from the Hartford Hospital bed where he died at 2:15 p.m.

APRIL 10 · 11 · 12
"MUFFIN BAND"
Pantry playroom
RTS. 202 & 21 • • BELCHERTOWN

Young adult estate plan

If you're 15 to 22 years old, you can start your life insurance program with $10,000 in term insurance for just $49.00 a year! When you're 25, your policy converts to permanent insurance at rates you'll be able to afford. It's called Nationwide's "Young Adult Estate Plan", and it's worth checking into. Call:

JEANNE A. MATTEI
Representative
285 North King Street
Northampton, Mass.
01060
Phone: 586-4522

NATIONWIDE INSURANCE
Nationwide is on your side
Nationwide Life Insurance Company
Home Office: Columbus, Ohio

PHOTO CONTEST

As part of a special photography supplement to the Collegian on April 30th the Collegian is holding a photo contest open to all UMass undergrads and grads. There will be three categories, Portrait, Still Life, and Abstract. Please indicate category. All photos should be on 8x10 paper and mounted, no large than 11x14. Black and white only. Entries should be submitted to the Collegian business office between 8:30 and 4:30, April 14 through 25 (deadline). Contest will be judged by nine of the most experienced members of the paper's photo staff and the graphics advisor. Prizes to be announced next Wednesday. Top three photos in each category will appear in the April 30th issue.

Start enjoying life at Cliffside today
WHERE THE EMPHASIS IS ON RECREATION THIS SUMMER BASKETBALL
and VOLLEYBALL
Included
One Bedrooms Start at $165
Two Bedrooms Start at $195
Furniture and Air Conditioning Optional
Subleases
or
One Year Leases
Drive Out And See Us Today
or call 665-3958
Rt. 116, Sunderland
Management by: Hodgkins Real Estate Management
NAHB Registered Apartment Manager

Gage supports Corker's decision

Tartaglia meets officials, but still without job

By P.J. PROKOP
Staff Reporter

Tony Tartaglia, out of work for ten weeks, is still jobless despite a conference with high campus officials here yesterday. Tartaglia's meeting with Vice-chancellor Robert L. Gage, Campus Attorney Sid Myers, and Campus Center Director John W. Corker, "didn't accomplish anything" said Tartaglia.

Tartaglia, a student employee, was terminated by Corker without explanation last January. His attorney, David Burres said at the meeting that Tartaglia had gone through proper University channels and gotten nowhere.

Chancellor Randolph W. Bromery did not veto the decision made by the Campus Center Board of Governors, but had sent it back to them for reconsideration, according to Tartaglia.

Asked why Tartaglia was not informed of the reason for his dismissal, as well as reasons for not reinstating him, according to the information given to him by Corker, he would support Corker's decision.

Myers said that the Administration has the right to hire and fire who they want, and it doesn't matter what the students say, according to Tartaglia.

Tartaglia said "I thought we were going to try and work out an equitable solution to this problem, and they obviously had no intention of giving me my job back."

He added that he went to Gage in good faith, and "to my knowledge, I have never done anything dishonest, I have always been very open, and I consider his actions atrocious. I'm very disappointed in him."

Tartaglia said that he will take his case to Bromery, and if the grievance is not answered satisfactorily, he will "definitely follow-up and go outside the University."

Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

"WHAT'S DOWN THERE?" — For Ronnie Call (in water), Rob Cannon, Jamie Bradley, Barbara Tager, Karla Kelly, Maxine Magnuson there was no better way to spend an afternoon than boating on the Campus mud hole - er - er - Pond.

'Silent generation' of 50's happy but still silent, says educator

AMHERST, Mass [AP] - Members of the so-called "Silent Generation" of the 1950s who now are approaching 40 say they are satisfied with their jobs, marriages and sex lives.

But an Amherst College graduate who polled fellow graduates of the all-male class of 1958 says the classmates show relatively little concern for social problems.

Arthur G. Powell, an associate dean of academic affairs at Harvard, said that after sifting through 102 responses, he found jobs occupy center stage in his classmates' lives.

"Ability to gain satisfaction from work was the most frequently mentioned life issue of greatest importance," Lowell said. "Seventy per cent mentioned work success as the accomplishment of which they were most proud and work problems were often cited as their greatest fear."

He said his survey found that most had done well materially. Their average income last year was $27,000, which put them in the upper 8 per cent of wage earners nationally.

Only 5 per cent spoke of being bored or in a rut with their jobs. Nearly 80 per cent said they are unlikely to make major changes in their careers.

Powell found that nearly all his classmates had married. The average number of children in each household was two.

About 40 per cent said they felt they married too early in life, yet most reported they were more confident about their marriages than their jobs. Only one of 10 foresaw the possibility of a breakup while 12 per cent had already been divorced.

Former advisor warns tax rebate could be overdose for economy

AMHERST, Mass [AP] - The federal tax rebate could prove to be an "overdose" of fiscal mmdicine for the fragile economy, a former economic adviser to the Eisenhower administration warned Thursday at a conference of 50 economists and business at UMass.

Raamond J. Saulnier, who served as chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers in the 1950s, expressed alarm at proposed deficit spending that he said could reach $120 billion in two years.

"If the budget deficits resulting from the tax cut are medicine for the economy, there's a chance the medicine is worse than the disease. There is such a thing as an overdose," he said.

He said his own analysis of the situation suggested that the economy would have taken an upward turn in the third quarter without a tax cut.

"But the events of the last several weeks have changed the picture. The proposed federal deficits have made a shambles of the corporate bond market, and I now have reservations that the stock market has actually hit bottom."

Urging Congress to act responsibly, Saulnier advised the legislators not to go beyond measures proposed by the Ford Administration.

"There is still round for hope that the need for significant restraint in spending will be seen. The ground for hope is that failure to see this need would have serious political consequences," he said.

Saulnier predicted that runaway deficit spending would result in the need to impose stiff controls on wages, prices and interest sommtime next year to head off inflation. He said Congress would want to avoid politically unpopular controls in an election year.

Before the tax cut was enacted, Saulnier said, he thought would carry the nation to a 7 per cent increase in the gross national product next year. But with the spending plans advanced by the government, he said he doubted whether a recovery would occur at all.

Spring Special HERCULES
$99⁹⁵
Peloton 1 E. Pleasant St. 549-6904

ATTENTION: Students & Faculty
The Textbook Annex will start returning Spring 1975 unsold books on APRIL 15th
UNIVERSITY STORE Textbook Annex 10 – 4 Mon. – Fri.

THE NEW HISTORY · CHINESE FOOD
THE HAN LIN
OPEN: 11 A.M.-10 PM. TUES-SUN.
193 LOCUST ST. (ROUTE 9)
FLORENCE, MASS. 586-4562

THIS SPRING......
LIVEN UP YOUR LIVING ROOM, KITCHEN, AND DEN WITH NEW CARPETS AND VINYL FLOOR COVERING FROM....
The Carpet Shop
1 east pleasant st amherst carriage shops 253-2911 FLOOR FASHIONS

SCER director Magid encourages philosophy of innovative research

By JOE MAHONEY
Staff Reporter

A cramped cluttered cubicle on the fourth floor in the Student Union is the headquarters for one of the most innovative higher learning research organizations in the U.S.

The development of the organization, the Student Center for Educational Research (SCER), is due largely to the efforts of one person — SCER Director Larry Magid.

Magid left his position as editor of Edcentric Magazine, a national journal of educational change, to come to UMass late in the 1973 Fall semester. He was petitioned by a Student Senate committee conducting a nationwide search for a professional staff person to coordinate the infant SCER. He has also served as the Executive Director of the National Association for Educational Reform.

"The basic philosophy behind SCER," explained the 27 year old Magid in a recent interview, "is that student research should not simply wind up on a professor's desk, receive a grade and be thrown in the trash can — that whenever possible students should do something which would actually have an impact on the community in which they live. We try to get students involved in research which can be published or used as a basis for some kind of decision making by the University."

"A lot of time goes into developing a student attitude towards the fact that students can produce publishable research," Magid said. "Ideally, I would like to see students do virtually all of the work and myself as an evaluator and coordinator."

The major research and teaching activity of SCER has been the Student Interest Research Seminar. The seminar, sponsored jointly by the residence colleges, is a research methods study group in which students apply their skills collectively to various research topics that have "some social utility."

Profile

Students who opt not to participate in a seminar but are interested in working with SCER, may arrange credit through Independent Study. According to Magid, "there is no single department where the student couldn't use the methods taught in that course to do student interest research."

is a violation of the 14th amendment, he added.

"We would like to see student support in this, especially from the Board of Governors (which has supported Tartaglia)," Tartaglia said. He added that he feels the administration "pays lip service" to the Student Government, and if the students don't do what they want, they do not go along with i especially concerning the Board c Governors.

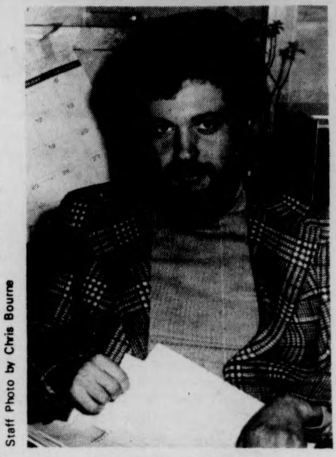
"I think student support in this matter would be helping the students themselves, not necessarily just me in that it would put pressure on the administration," and they need pressure to see the student's view and react, he said.

In addition to the existing seminar and independent study programs, next fall, Magid hopes to launch INREACH, a program he has designed that would allow students to receive full time academic credit for working with SCER on University change studies.

Most of the feedback SCER has received from its completed studies has been "pretty positive", said Magid. "A student housing study has been used in Boston by the Local Affairs Committee in the state legislature. It has been reprinted and circulated to the Amherst town selectmen for evaluation."

Magid, who has visited or lectured at over forty campuses throughout the U.S., feels that "students at UMass are every bit as bright and politically aware as anywhere."

"I think that UMass has only one problem. The students and faculty are top rate, but there is a false sense of inferiority because Massachusetts is dominated by elite, private colleges. This also has a negative effect on the budget question since most legislators



Staff Photo by Chris Bourne

LARRY MAGID

Considering the nature of the investigative research being accomplished by SCER, it is conceivable that a conflict of interests between the UMass administration and the students could arise for Magid. Although he is a professional staff member, Magid made it clear that he "works for the students."

As a participant in the student movement at Berkeley, Magid "thinks that the work being done here by the Student Organizing Project is every bit as sophisticated, although we had more fanfare."

UMass response on Ed records expected today

Written briefs in the case of a Daily Collegian reporter seeking access to records at the troubled School of Education are due today in Hampshire County Superior Court.

The records, all under subpoena in connection with a Boston federal grand jury investigation of funds misuse at the School, were sought by the reporter March 3, two days before the first of two subpoenas were issued.

Up to $100,000 may have been misused, sources close to the investigation have said. But University officials seek to convey the impression that only one or two individuals are involved and the amount is closer to $10,000.

William P. Densmore, Jr., a Collegian reporter filed the suit to view records of four federally-funded grant programs totalling $2.4 million over five years at the School.

The University responded in a letter March 7, saying the records were under the control of the jury and could not be released.

Densmore, who filed the suit as an individual, is being represented by Atty. Richard M. Howland, of Amherst. The University's Amherst campus attorney, Sidney Myers, is defending Kenneth W. Johnson, UMass treasurer and the named defendant in the case.

The reporter is expected to argue that the Massachusetts open documents law defines the records sought as public, and a federal subpoena has no effect over their availability, except to establish a "priority" of usage.

That is, if only a single copy of the documents exists, the plaintiff argues, the grand jury would have a legitimate right to view the document before the press or public.

In a March 25 Statement of Facts filed with Judge Raymond J. Cross, both parties agreed that copies of the records do exist and are being used in normal business at UMass-Amherst. The statement also said most of the subpoenaed documents are physically present on campus.

Now appearing at the
THE STEAK OUT
forest
Thurs. — Sat.
Happy Hour — Mon.-Sat., 4:30-7:00
in the Speakeasy Lounge

Proposed Rent Increase
All Married Student Housing
Up 13.5% Sept. '75
Another Rent Increase!
Is This Enough To Get You Involved?
Meeting Of All Tenants
Sun., April 13th 3 p.m.
C.C. 101
Child Care Provided

Negative reactions greet report of CC manager-employee fraternizing

By ELLEN GAVIN
Progressive News Service

Reaction to the report that Campus Center managers have "asked out" several of the women waitresses under their supervision ranged from outrage to "no comment" yesterday.

Michael Bardsley, chairperson of the Union of Student Employees said "this kind of behavior from management is demoralizing to the workforce. When the management loses its respect for its workers as workers and as people, relations between the management and workers can only deteriorate."

Tim Cox, Personnel Manager for the Campus Center, had "no comment" on the particular incidents which are alleged. When asked if there was any regulation or guideline which would forbid this kind of behavior, Cox said, "there is no regulation which deals with management and fraternization with employees."

Crissy Emerson, a student employee and Membership Coordinator for U.S.E. said that "it puts a woman in a difficult position to be asked out by her boss. We've all known about this for a long time."

"It is very unnerving, and you always have your job in the back of your mind, but all of us couldn't say no fast enough," said another woman worker.

John Corker, director of the Campus Center, said that he could not comment on the case until he was shown the specifics in writing. "I expect any professional staff person should conduct himself in a professional manner," he said.

When asked about the appropriateness of such behavior from management, Jonathan Tuttle, steward for Unit 3 of American Federation of State and Municipal Employees (AFSME) 1776 said "There is a basic antagonism already working between management and worker, and this kind of behavior can only aggravate it. It is atrocious behavior."

UMass police no longer dining at DC's

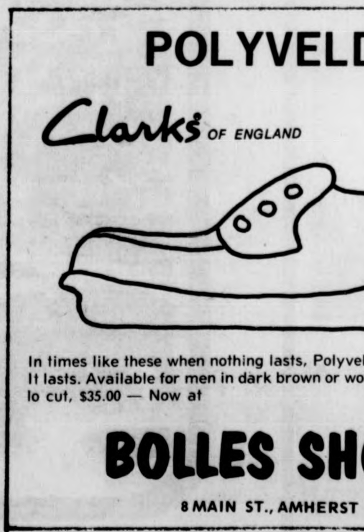
By ROBERTA MARTONE
Staff Reporter

Commenting on the law providing reduced food price rates for state employees, David L. Johnston, director of the UMass Department of Public Safety, said most UMass police have stopped eating at the Dining Commons.

Last month, students questioned the fairness of a law that said state employees could eat at state cafeterias for a reduced monetary charge. The UMass Police were apparently the only employees taking advantage of the situation.

When Johnston realized the difference in price was being paid for by student funds, he agreed to change the ruling and required that his department pay the full "visitor" price for the meals.

"Since this ruling, the number of officers in the department eating at the Dining Commons on campus, has dwindled," Johnston said.



POLYVELDT
Clarks OF ENGLAND
In times like these when nothing lasts, Polyveldt is revolutionary. It lasts. Available for men in dark brown or workboot yellow. Hi or lo cut, $35.00 — Now at
BOLLES SHOES
8 MAIN ST., AMHERST

WINDSHIELDS REPLACED
COMPLETE GLASS SERVICE
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass Shop
798 N. King St., 'Hamp.
584-4837
Installation WHILE YOU WAIT!

local events

Hypertension screening clinic

Tomorrow a free hypertension screening clinic will be held at Mountain Farms Mall from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The clinic is being sponsored by the Massachusetts Senate of Student Nurses and the Western Massachusetts Chapter of the American Heart Association to locate and identify those persons suffering from high blood pressure.

Because hypertension has no symptoms, a blood pressure reading provides the only test of its presence. Left untreated, high blood pressure can result in stroke, heart and kidney failure or heart attack. However, once detected, hypertension can easily be controlled in most cases.

The Mountain Farms Mall hypertension clinic is another community service project of the Western Massachusetts Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Hampshire legal conference

The Law Program is sponsoring a conference, "Crisis in the American Experience", tomorrow April 12, at Hampshire College. The conference will be held at ABII starting at 9 a.m. (coffee and doughnuts will be served.) This conference is an attempt to bring the five-college community together to hear and discuss student papers. The schedule is as follows:

9 a.m. — Kent State Environmental Law.
10:30 — Reverse Discrimination Oil and World Power.
1 p.m. — Forced Sterilization Anarchism.

Sylvan TV's second broadcast

Sylvan television viewers can tune their sets to channel 2 tonight for WSYL-TV's second official broadcast.

Beginning at 10:40 "Wonderlove — Stevie Wonder in Concert"; Ali fight highlights, and other selected short subjects; and an hour with Luther Johnson's Chicago Blues Band at last week's Big Bad Boogie, including interviews.

Indochina program on WFCR

The new program, Fiasco in Indochina, can be heard every Sunday at 4:30 p.m., on WFCR (88.5 FM). This Sunday, April 13, Prof. Richard Menear discusses the Domino Theory with Prof. Jean Grossholtz of the UMass. Political Science Dept.

Schedule for Catholic peace conference at Sacred Heart U.

In Light of the Holy Year: 1975 Catholic Peace Fellowship of Reconciliation, Fifth Annual New England Conference. "A Unity of Concerns — A Radical Edge," today and tomorrow, Sacred Heart University, Bridgeport, Connecticut (Merrit Pkwy. Ex. 47 — turn left — one block).

Today:

7 p.m.: REGISTRATION: Conference - Workshops - Hospitality

8 p.m.: "FINDING OUR FOCUS": A Discussion in the Round with Tom Cornell, CPF-FOR - Jim Forest, CPF-FOR - Joe and Sally Cureen, "Cross Currents" - Gordon Zahn, UMass - Margaret Ellen Traxler, SSND, Dir. Inst. of Women Today

10 p.m.: REFRESHMENTS

Saturday April 12th:

9 a.m. OPENING SESSION: "Peace and Justice in the Holy Year"

Keynote: David O'Brian, Holy Cross College, Dept. of History

Reactors: Rev. Brain Hehir, Dir. Office of Peace and Justice, USCC, Mary Daniel Turner, SND, Exec. Dir. LCWR

12:15 BREAD and SOUP

1:30 WORKSHOPS I

"American Catholic Radicals and the Bicentennial": Michael True, Assumption Coll.

"Amnesty": Elizabeth Bordman, AFSC; Don Dawson, Americans for Amnesty

"Corporal Works of Justice": Catholic Worker; CCNV; Wale's Tale; Mustard Seed

"Development and Reconciliation": George Metcalf, Technoserve

"Education for Peace and Justice": Don Allen, MM; Mary Coplice, CND

"Hospitality and Reconciliation": Henri Nouwen, Yale Divinity School

NOW TWICE AS BIG
The Mercantile
CLOTHING GIFTS
CARDS POSTERS BEADS
11 E. PLEASANT ST. 549-1396
(Next Door to Where We Were)

COME ONE, COME ALL!
Enter the First Annual UMass Car Rally.
SATURDAY, APRIL 12

Win prizes from the Rusty Scupper, Steak Out, Sound Scope, Old Weird Harold's, Faces of Earth, Bell's, Hungry U II, Papa Gino's, or Dominos.

Registration at 9 a.m. in front of Alumni Stadium. $3 per car. For further info call: 6-7801, 6-7791, 6-7794, 6-7728, 6-7761.

niversity of massachusetts arts council
presents

KYOGEN NATIONAL
COMIC THEATER OF JAPAN
SUNDAY, APRIL 20
8P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM

ITZHAK PERLMAN
and THE SPRINGFIELD SYMPHONY Robert Gutter conauctor
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23
8P.M. BOWKER AUDITORIUM
TICKETS :$4&3 general $2&1.50 umass students
ON SALE 125 HERTER HALL, U MASS AMHERST (413)545-0202

New Experience in Italian Dining PORTOFINO
SATISFACTION is our best advertisement.
OPEN TUES.-SAT. 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m. LUNCH
5 p.m.-11 p.m. DINNER
SUNDAY 1 p.m.-11 p.m.
Closed Mondays
RTE. 9 LEEDS, MASS. 584-7800

★ Ford wants Vietnam funds

cont. from page 1

Bromery about the Policy. Bromery said he had spoken to Savini, but he had never received a copy of the Policy.

When notified yesterday that if the Enabling Policy had to wait until the next meeting (May 13) it would not come before the full Board until June when the students wouldn't be here, Shaler decided on this compromise meeting.

He said it will be held on the Amherst campus "so the students could attend."

He said he would work the details out with Savini today.

Yesterday Savini sent a draft of the Policy to the President by special courier.

Shaler said the purpose of the meeting is to discuss the Policy, so he and the rest of the committee would have to see the policy before the meeting. "This is a complex subject, if we don't have backup material before hand we can't discuss it at the Committee meeting," said Shaler.

Bromery said the student senate should have used the proper governance channels of the University to present the Unionization Policy.

"Nothing was sent in writing so the Trustees did not know this was coming," said Bromery.

"It would have been more effective to send it up through me. It might have taken a little longer, but it would have been more effective," he said.

RECORDS
CLASSICAL JAZZ
BLUES
ROCK
The New
RECORD SHOP
197 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst
253-5394

★ Trustees to review

cont.from page 1

Ford asked Congress also to enact legislation by April 19 — acting with extraordinary speed — to permit him to reintroduce American soldiers into Vietnam for two specific purposes:

— To evacuate, if necessary, the 6,000 Americans who remain in Vietnam.

— To rescue Vietnamese who worked for and with the Americans and who might face extermination in a Communist takeover. Administration officials said between 150,000 and 200,000 might be evacuated — many to be given asylum in this country.

Said Ford:

"I must, of course, consider the safety of some 6,000 Americans who remain in South Vietnam, and tens of thousands of South Vietnamese employes of the United States government, of news agencies, of contractors and businesses for many years whose lives, with their dependents, are in grave peril.

"There are tens of thousands of other South Vietnamese intellectuals, professors and teachers, editors and opinion-leaders who have supported the South Vietnamese cause and the alliance with the United States, to whom we have a profound moral obligation."

Officials told reporters they were aware of polls showing overwhelming public opposition to any further aid for South Vietnam or Cambodia. But, they said, if this country did not provide aid the consequences — Saigon's bloody collapse — would be one they doubt the majority of Americans could live with.

A Louis Harris poll published yesterday said Americans by a 2-1 margin oppose further military shipments to South Vietnam and Cambodia, even if they "would avoid a bloodbath for the people of those countries."

CHEECH WIZARD PRESENTS—

VAUGHN BODE'S
DEADBONE
THE FIRST TESTAMENT OF CHEECH WIZARD, THE CARTOON MESSIAH

Now brought together and beautifully printed in a deluxe hardcover volume by Northern Comfort Communications! Cheech Wizard takes you on a high consciousness trip to Deadbone Mountain, a billion years ago, where dark unknown forces work Earth's first attempt at Organic Sanity atop a black volcanic mountain four miles high! From Whispering Wind Hook down through Moaning Cry Gallery, into the labyrinth depths of Deadbone, Cheech narrates the incredible experiment of strange beings, lizards, and broads trying to become something like we are today.

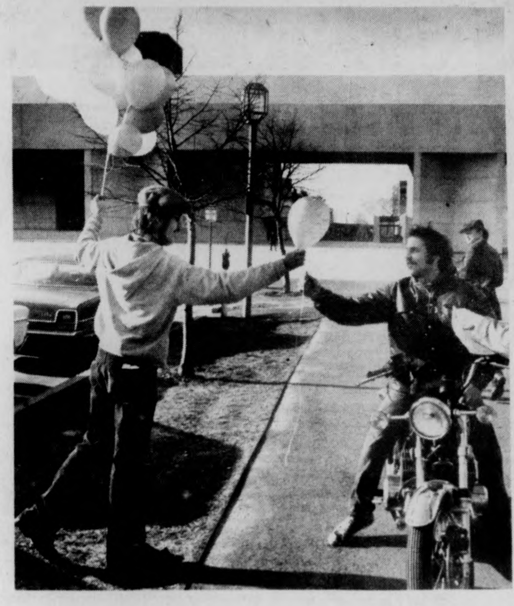
"DEADBONE is becoming a standard classic of cartoon art."

Printed on high quality stock and hardbound in a 9" x 12" format, combined halftone & line reproduces this universe according to Bode's original vision. It is now available direct from Northern Comfort Communications, Dept. C, Main St. Smithers, B.C. Canada V0J 2N0 at $14.95 postpaid. Send cheque, M.O., or Bankamericard/Mastercharge number and signature.

Clip and mail with payment enclosed

Name:________________
Apt. no.____ Address:____________
____
________ Code________
No. of copies:____(at $14.95 ppd.) DEADBONE
Total encl. $______ M.O., Cheque, or please charge my Bankamericard, Chargex, or my Mastercharge, no. ________
Expires:______ Signed:________

A Limited Edition is available, numbered 1-250, luxuriously bound in simulation leather and individually signed by Vaughn Bode, at $75.00 a copy. Either edition refunded within 10-day return period ©NCC



Staff Photo by Dennis Conlon

A passerby on a cycle stops to get a free balloon from a Westfield State College student. Hundreds of balloons were given out at area colleges yesterday to promote a fine arts festival at Westfield April 13-29.

★ CC budget approved

cont.from page 1

board's input into the selection process for the proposed Campus Center bank.

Gage said in the letter that he would find it "hard to imagine making a recommendation which disregards the wishes of the Board of Governors."

Taggart pointed out after the meeting that the board can still stop the bank from coming to the Campus Center if it chooses.

Board member Bea Collins introduced a motion last night to "evaluate sex discrimination in the Campus Center in light of charges in a recent Collegian article." The motion was sent to the board's executive committee for further consideration.

The board also considered a new food quality policy for the Campus Center. The policy states that "Meat, poultry, and fish substitutes, in Campus Center Food Service Areas are not to exceed 20 per cent vegetable and soy extender for any product except for specifically labelled vegetarian dishes."

Objecting to the broad intent of the policy Chris McCarty said, "I don't think this is what we mean when we're talking about food quality, this says what we shouldn't do, not what we should do. This could be called a synthetic food quality policy."

Following a suggestion from board member Jackie Joyner the policy was changed to a "Vegetable and Soy extender policy."

Pan-Africanism and Marxism a national and international perspective
with
Tran Van Dinh
former Vietnamese Freedom Fighter
Professor at Temple University
and
William Strickland
Assoc. Professor Political Science
W.E.B. DuBois Dept. of Afro-American Studies
TODAY
2:30 p.m.
Orchard Hill
Webster Lounge

NOW OPEN
UMass Student Federal Credit Union

- * Savings and loans at favorable rates.
- * Interest declared and paid quarterly.
- * Each member account fully insured up to $40,000 by the National
- * Credit Union Administration, a federal agency.
- * Food Stamps available every Tuesday as of
- * A non-profit organization owned and operated by its members.

If you have any questions or desire information concerning interest rates on loans, savings, etc. please do not hesitate to call us at 545-1994 or stop in room 166 of the Campus Center.

Open: 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.
Weekdays

Each member account insured to $40,000
NCUA
National Credit Union Administration

letters

Male discrimination

To the Editor:

There are at least two reasons for this letter. This letter commends you and your staff for some very interesting letters. Some letters are shocking and controversial in nature. It is good to print all sides of an issue.

This letter is also written to criticize you and your staff for printing offensive, obscene, and pro-communist material. I know where it comes from. Let's have some unoffensive, clean, and anti-communist material for a change. The more left wing you get, the more right wing I get.

We do not have the freedom to print or do as we want. Freedom has its price. If we did have this freedom we could all reap terrible consequences. "The Collegian*" is becoming an insult to the common intelligence of students and others.*

In the Apr. 4, 1975 issue, I read the editorial entitled 'Womanspace'. I say 'hogwash' to this. Your paper is so prejudiced toward women that it is sickening. Why should they be entitled to space if men are not entitled to space? May the women on your staff get runs in their panty hose. This letter is funded by the Committee Against Discrimination Of Men [CADOM]. By the way, where is 'Manspace'?

CADOM was started because your paper in particular has discriminated against men many times. CADOM is not against women or men, but for justice. How in God's good name, can you accept and uphold the Gay Women's Caucus? If you have read the Bible, you know that most homesexuals will burn in the fires of Hell forever. You are going to answer for every word that's printed in the "Collegian".

You can be very proud of yourself. But remember "pride cometh before destruction".

Carl Mathewson
Chairman of CADOM

Picket through the grapevine

To the Editor:

Because of months of hard picketing and support from both the students and the community, most of the liquor stores in the Amherst area have agreed to stop carrying Gallo wines. The opposition has been tough, the Gallo winery has flown a representative to UMass, they have sent PR personnel to persuade active boycotters they are wrong, local distributors and Teamsters have both threatened stores with boycotts if they support the UFW in its efforts. Nevertheless, in spite of the opposing pressure, the commitments have been won.

However, despite the success of the boycott here, one store, Town and Country Liquors in West Springfield has taken it upon itself to be a mouthpiece for Gallo. The store has been picketed since last semester and recently picket lines have turned into direct confrontations between the UFW supporters and the opposition. Verbal harrassment and threats of violence, especially against women and clergy have been common on the line. Both the Teamsters and the store personnel have received from Gallo all the help necessary to undermine the support committee's efforts.

Because of this, the Springfield UFW committee has called a Demonstration at Town and Country Liquors for April 12, this Saturday, starting at 1:00 p.m. Rides organized by the local UFW committee will be leaving the UMass Newman Center at 12:15. Now is a time when your help may make a difference. If interested in joining this mass action for justice for farmworkers, either call 586-4134 or meet us at the Newman Center on Saturday. BOYCOTT GALLO!

Steve Rowley

April fool no joke!

To the Editor:

Your April Fool's satire about the struggles of American Indian people was all wrong. [Pigs Hassle Indians: actually use handcuffs.)

You might argue that your real target was not Indians, but the Progressive News Service. If so, why didn't you display some insight into the purpose of PNS, or the issue of "objective" vs. "advocacy" reporting?

I would suggest you limit your satire to the world of your experience and understanding. I trust that if you understood the painful situation now present at Wounded Knee, you would respond in a humane and intelligent way. However, writing as you do from obvious ignorance, you appear to be irresponsible, insensitive, tasteless, spineless, and cruel. Is that the real you?

David Williams

Fostering false gripes

To the Editor:

Whenever a social injustice becomes highly exposed and publicized, any number of bleeding hearts immediately jump on the band wagon, wanting to be identified with the liberal side of the situation. A good example of this was in Bill Foster's "Action More Than Thought Needed" article in Wednesday's Collegian.

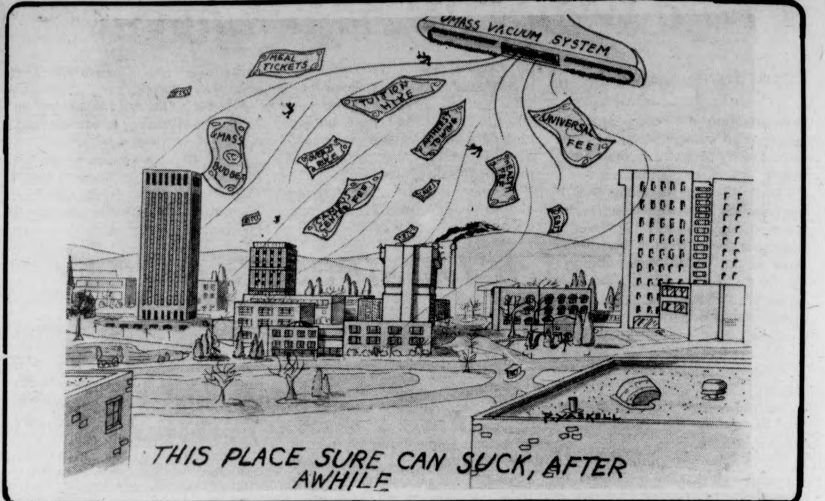
I don't know where he found the females who had suffered the barrage of come-ons from their professors, but they don't live anywhere near me. I made some inquiries myself. Not only had the women I talked to not been put in this situation, but I got the distinct impression that their profs were more in danger of being propositioned by them than vice versa!

Why shouldn't it be alright for a professor to exhibit overt interest in a student?

If a professor is actually harassing or putting undue pressure on a student to submit sexually to him or her, then something should be done. However, I'm sure the percentage of this is quite minimal.

Most women can take care of themselves as far as verbal come-ons are concerned. So if you're really interested in showing everyone how liberal you are, why don't you find a legitimate aspect of women's liberation to gripe about?

Sharon Hatch



THIS PLACE SURE CAN SUCK, AFTER AWHILE

essay

Israel's peace bid rejected

By S. ELIEZER
and G. EISEN

Israel's efforts to embark upon a step-by-step movement towards peace with Egypt, through the good offices of the United States, failed to produce results because of one over-riding reason — Egypt's insistence that it would make no political commitment of substance to Israel. For Cairo, the talks conducted through Secretary of State Kissinger had the sole objective of a military disengagement arrangement that would win for Egypt maximum strategic advantage on the ground. Israel's offers of territorial concessions were met with Egyptian demands that added up to a virtual ultimatum that Israel surrender its most important defensive positions in Sinai in return for virtually nothing. This made a mockery of the whole objective of the step-by-step policy towards the advancement of peace between Israel and Egypt.

The step-by-step policy was, from the outset, conceived as an instrument of diplomacy to try to bring about a visible and tangible movement towards peace between Israel and Egypt. As a policy it was extraordinary, designed to meet an extraordinary situation: the Arab States' refusal these past 26 years to recognize Israel or to treat Israel on anything but on military terms. Hence the idea was developed to reached out for something political, considerably less than peace but credible enough to establish a climate of mutual trust in which the seeds of a genuine peace might germinate. For the first time, Israel and Egypt were to discuss not merely battle lines, but Egyptian political movement towards peace in return for Israeli territorial concession. The concept that was developed was that the depth of withdrawal would be determined by the depth of the political progress towards peace.

Israel made the following proposals at the very outset of the negotiations: An Israeli withdrawal from the strategic mountain passes of the Mitla and the Gidi, and from the Abu Rodeis Oilfields.

In offering to withdraw from these territories and pull back into the peninsula, Israel was, in fact, expressing its readiness to give up its two more important negotiating cards and assume substantial risks, economic and strategic. The Abu Rodeis Oilfields supply today almost half of Israel's energy needs, the Mitla and the Gidi Passes are the key points of access through Sinai's western mountains to the sandy plain that reaches to Israel's borders proper, only ten armor hours away on the ground. The one who holds those Passes holds the key to Sinai — the classical battleground of the area. What Israel asked in return was an Egyptian undertaking, not for peace but for an end to war as an instrument of policy.

Cairo rejected a commitment to end the state of war in return for the passes and the Oilfields. Indeed, Egypt rejected the proposal without even taking the trouble to clarify its components. Egypt insisted on a military arrangement — a second disengagement agreement — and, in fact, did not hesitate to say so publicly. The best it would offer, and this only after arduous negotiation, was a rather vague military formula about "The non use of force" within the framework of the continuation of the state of war. In essence, this was a repetition, in different words, of the undertaking Egypt had assumed in the January 1974 military disengagement agreement, obligating itself to refrain from all forms of military and para military action against Israel.

With this, it became increasingly evident that Egypt was not going to be a serious partment in the purposes and goals of the step-by-step approach to peace. For what Egypt was demanding of Israel, in effect, was that it bow to a settlement that would weaken it strategically. And since, for Egypt, the aim of the exercise was essentially military, Israel had no recourse but to give due weight to its own military consideration. If, then, even after an agreement, the option of war was still to be preserved by Egypt as an instrument of policy, Israel felt that it, too, must preserve its own strategic assets for future defense.

Nevertheless, Israel continued to persevere in the hope of achieving some sort of a compromise. To that end it offered new concessions that went far beyond its original intentions: It agreed to hand over the Abu Rodeis Oilfields and its surrounding area to Egyptian civilian control. It agreed to evacuate the western half of the strategic Passes and hand them over to U.N. supervision, and it, agreed to the movement forward of the Egyptian military line up to and including the existing U.N. Buffer Zone. Egypt, once again, rejected these concessions outright and continued to demand withdrawal from the Passes and the surrender, not only of the Oilfields, but of a broad strip of territory stretching from the town of Suez 220 kilometers southwards along the Gulf of Suez.

It was this Egyptian intransigence, its refusal to grant anything even resembling political substance that would indicate peaceful intent, and its transparent determination to use the talks for military strategic gains that inevitably brought about the suspension of the negotiations.

Israel, for its part, refusing to take no for an answer, made agonizing decisions in proposing, time after time, new concessions that entailed grave military risks in the hope of eliciting some credible response from Egypt. In so doing, Israel was acutely aware of the United States' interest. Indeed, this was an important consideration in the minds of the Israeli negotiators as they toiled to reach an understanding through the good offices of Dr. Kissinger.

By any measure of fairness and justice, Israel cannot be faulted for the failure of the effort. It was Israel, together with the United States, that cooffered the very idea of the step-by-step diplomacy in face of the Egyptian 26 year-long refusal to negotiate a comprehensive peace settlement. It was Israel that, after the Yom Kippur War, agreed to a disengagement arrangement that lifted the siege of the trapped Third Army. It was Israel that volunteered to evacuate its forces from the salient captured on the Western Side of the Suez Canal. And it was Israel which agreed to pull back into Sinai. Above all, it was Israel that had made a calculated decision not to press on to a decisive military defeat of the invading Egyptian Army — a defeat which was only days away. This decision was made for one central reason: To give the United States a chance to employ its diplomacy in the effort to move the relations between Israel and Egypt from war towards peace. That was the point of departure out of which emerged the conditions for the step-by-step diplomacy. And it was Israel that was now again ready to make the tangible and far reaching concessions in full knowledge of the military risks involved, if only Egypt would take together with it the first step away from war towards the prospects of peace. This, Egypt refused to do.

S. Eliezer and G. Eisen are Guest Commentators.

Steve Tripoli

Pre-season warmup

(expletive deleted)

Richard M. Nixon

Well, there was nothing in my book of great quotations about Spring, so I thought I'd lay the old chestnut above on you just for the hell of it. Hey, it got you to read this far, didn't it?

Anyway, spring is here, and so are all the "spring is here" columns in the newspaper. Aside from those, here's what else you can expect around here as the weather warms up:

— Increases in everything slated for next fall. The great merry-go-round has already started, with students demanding no increases, and the Administration calling us "irresponsible" for not wanting to thrust ourselves into fiscal never never land. Credit for being the first with the "irresponsible" quote this year goes to Vice Chancellor Gage. Why not? It's his last chance before he's canned. He'll be one of the first victims of Administrative cutbacks demanded by the Governor, as a vicious back stabbing war erupts in Whitmore over who goes and who doesn't.

— Sexist Collegian photographers will hang around women's dorms trying to find the most scantily clad female. The photo will carry a caption saying "Spring brings out the best in people," or a reasonably absurd facsimile. Outraged letters to the editor will follow.

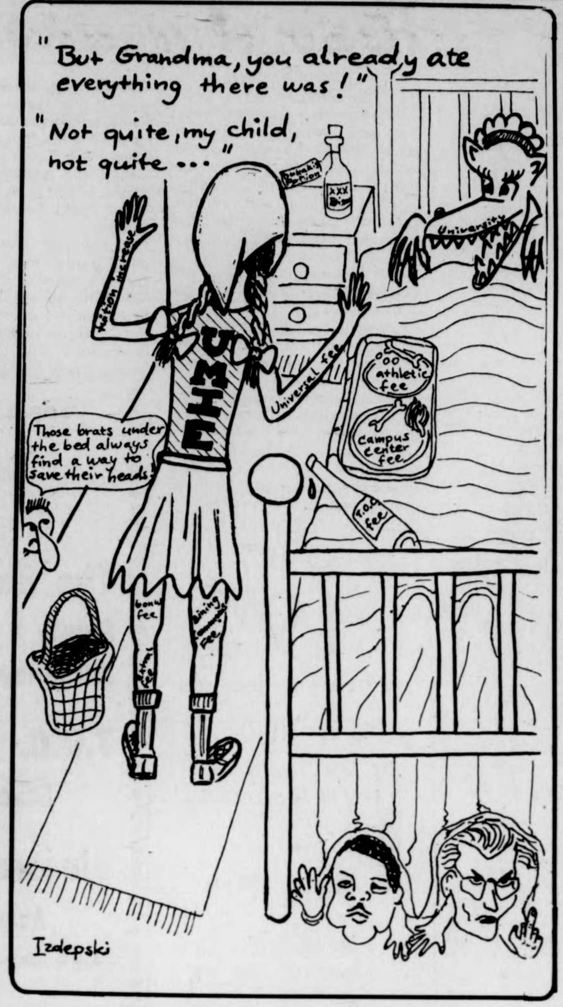
— The Student Government Association will hold another fiasco in the form of a Presidential election. The assembled student pigs will take it seriously. No one else will. Once again the assembled student pigs will ignore the will of the people and not elect Henry Ragin. Once again a dynamite person like Rick Savini will be elected, and will burn himself out in the process of discovering that it's all worthless and that our generation isn't the hope of the world after all.

— The Distinguished Visitors Program will ignore the will of the students who fund it and regale us with a succession of speakers of interest only to themselves. Their egos will feel great, and they will rest assured in the fact that they're bringing a little culture to their barbarian fellow students. Of course, the real will of the students will be to see Moe Howard, Hunter Thompson, or someone truly worthwhile, but the DVP committee will be at the TOC toasting Werner von Schmuck, oblivious as usual.

— A spring concert will be discussed. Very few people will care about whether there is one or not, but a bunch of students who know the ropes will wangle the funding for it, poll students through the Collegian to see who we want, and disappoint us with Gary Lewis and the Playboys, or worse, Fleetwood Mac.

With regards to Raoul Duke ...

Steve Tripoli is a Collegian Columnist.



"But Grandma, you already ate everything there was!"
"Not quite, my child, not quite ..."
Those brats under the bed always find a way to save their heads
UMASS athletic fee
Campus Center fee
Universal fee
University
Izdepski

Notable Quote

"After the fall of Da Nang and the coastal provinces, we felt we must escalate our demands and ask for his resignation. He responded by further arrests ..."

Dinh Thach Bich, spokesman for the Committee of Action for National Salvation talking in Saigon about South Vietnamese President Thieu.

commentary

Immaculate deception

There is always the trend in American culture to make a fast buck. Certain people in this culture have acquired a special talent and knack for executing this axiom. Occasionally, there are good causes which underlie this factor: an appeal for the Hungry, the Ecology Drive, the Bill Graham Crusade for Religious 'Starvation', and additional approximations of the above.

As America is part of the vast network of media and "consumerism," there is another trend, which is to be suckered into sensationalism; to read "what really happened," or the "true story behind the life of a criminal junkie, incarcerated within prison walls." So we would devour his bestselling book, concurrently supporting his habit, which is administered to him daily by a warden who gets paid off by the 9th precinct for a certain percentage of the weekly cut.

These actions can readily be concealed from the market-oriented citizen, but other money-making ventures are not that covert.

There are people raking in the bread, reaping benefits from their criminal actions and the ever-receptive public is footing the bill. The people: the old Watergate crowd: Magruder, Dean, Haldeman, etc. The tactics, simple; they are parading the college campuses around the country for $3000 a head base price to personally uncover the already uncovered cover-up (?!). There are publications in the works about them and their wives will be damned if they can't drag their domesticity into their husbands' diversions too, by including the "woman - behind - the - man" story, or making public apologies for another thousand per copyrighted word.

In other words, these bureaucratic scapegoats from the barnyard of the Capitol, gleeful in their deception because they will be the ones to come out on top financially, are perpetuating their crime, like the criminal junkie. And we are supporting their habit by being absorbed into this artifically-induced market.

